Crawl-like arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. Official intervention focuses on building foreign reserves and limiting exchange rate volatility while taking into account seasonal fluctuations. From July 2020, the kwacha followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to crawl-like from stabilized, effective July 16, 2020. The Reserve Bank of Malawi (RBM) does not publish its intervention data.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	The RBM uses an interest rate-based monetary policy framework. Under this framework, a change in the policy stance is communicated by changing the Policy rate. The MPC of the RBM meets quarterly to review global and domestic financial and economic developments and set the policy stance. The MPC decisions are published on the RBM website. However, monetary aggregates are still discussed and agreed in the context of the Extended Credit Facility (ECF) program.
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	There are 8 authorized banking institutions as of June 30, 2021, licensed by the RBM to deal in foreign exchange with the public. As June 30, 2021, there were 17 foreign exchange bureaus. ADs are allowed to determine freely their commissions with their clients. Maximum spreads between buying and selling exchange rates are set at 2% for Telegraphic Transfer (TT) and 3% for cash. The limit on spread applies to only banks, and bureaus have never been subjected to price restrictions.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Foreign exchange bureaus may not enter into foreign exchange transactions with the RBM. Their business is limited to the sale and purchase of foreign currency cash, and other similar instruments for immediate delivery (spot transactions). Foreign exchange bureaus account for only a small fraction of turnover in Malawi's foreign exchange market.
Operated by the central bank	No.	The RBM does not operate or organize any foreign exchange spot market.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are 8 banks authorized to trade in the foreign exchange interbank market as of June 30, 2021. The foreign exchange interbank market is very thin with very small volume of trades conducted within the confines of AD's bid and offer rates. The CB intervenes at its own discretion. Foreign exchange trading among ADs or between ADs and RBM is conducted via Reuters. Where not possible, it is conducted on a recordable phone or any ordinary phone with evidence provided via e-mail. The minimum tradable amount on the interbank market is US$50,000 or its equivalent in any fully convertible currency. The minimum intervention amount by RBM, however, is US$500,000 or its equivalent. Intervention is done through allocation to selected authorized dealer banks (ADB) at market rates that sell onward in the interbank market. Since all ADBs are registered market makers, they quote two-way. RBM is not a market maker and thus not obliged to quote two way.

Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	Yes.	The foreign exchange interbank market operates under a market-making arrangement.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Authorized banks may quote bid-ask prices on demand. Forward exchange rates are not set by the RBM. Banks are free to set their own rates based on the forward variables as they see fit. There are only sporadic forward and swap transactions. The RBM does not do forwards per se but swaps. Under swap arrangement, there is always a forward leg. The forward market is still in its infancy with negligible trade volumes.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments to and receipts from nonresidents may be made in any convertible currency traded in Malawi or in kwacha through nonresident accounts.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	Restrictions apply on amounts one can carry when traveling out of Malawi.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	Current transactions between residents and nonresidents must be settled in foreign exchange, except transactions through nonresident kwacha accounts. Tourists may settle their local bills in any convertible foreign currency or in kwacha after converting their foreign currency in the market.
For capital transactions	Yes.	Payments to and receipts from nonresidents for capital transactions cannot be paid in domestic currency, except for transactions through nonresident kwacha accounts.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Payments to and receipts from nonresidents for capital transactions cannot be paid in domestic currency, except for transactions through nonresident kwacha accounts.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Payments to and receipts from nonresidents for capital transactions cannot be paid in domestic currency, except for transactions through nonresident kwacha accounts.
Credit operations	Yes.	Payments to and receipts from nonresidents for capital transactions cannot be paid in domestic currency, except for transactions through nonresident kwacha accounts.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	Residents are not allowed to transact in foreign currency.

Regional arrangements	Yes.	Malawi is a member of the RIFF.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	Malawi is a member of the COMESA Regional Payment and Settlement System since 2013 and SADC Integrated Regional Settlement System since 2014.
Barter agreements and open accounts	Yes.	Direct exchange of exports for imports (barter or countertrade) is subject to approval from the Ministry of Trade.
Administration of control	Yes.	Foreign flows monitoring is administered by the RBM under the authority of and on behalf of the MOF.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Residents may purchase, hold, and sell gold coins for numismatic purposes. Only the monetary authorities may acquire or hold gold at home or abroad in any form other than numismatic coins and jewelry.
On external trade	Yes.	Only the monetary authorities may conduct external trade in gold. Imports of gold in any form other than jewelry require licenses issued by the Ministry of Industry in consultation with the MOF; such licenses are not usually granted, except for imports by or on behalf of the monetary authorities and industrial users.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Up to the equivalent of US$5,000 may be exported. Larger amounts may be exported with justified causes and RBM approval.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Residents may export foreign currency up to the equivalent of US $10,000, subject to applicable indicative limits on travel allowances. Nonresidents may export foreign currency up to the amount they imported.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Only monetary authorities (RBM) may import larger amounts.
Foreign currency	No.	There are no restrictions on the amount imported only that they are required to declare amount greater than USD5000 or equivalent for customs purposes. Further, since the legal tender in Malawi is Malawi kwacha, they are not allowed to make any transactions in foreign currency within Malawi but to convert it to Malawi kwacha at an Authorized Foreign Exchange Dealer.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may have foreign-currency-denominated accounts (FCDAs) under the terms and conditions of the bank involved, subject to the same rules that apply when one is buying and exporting foreign currency notes.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	Residents are in general not allowed to maintain accounts abroad. However, offshore accounts may be approved for investment projects in Malawi that are financed from offshore, as a requirement by

MALAWI

Approval required	Yes.	project lenders. Residents in general are not allowed to maintain accounts abroad. The only exception is when offshore accounts are required for financing investment projects from offshore. These offshore accounts for purposes of satisfying project lenders requirements are subject to RBM approval.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.	Residents and nonresidents may not hold offshore accounts denominated in kwacha.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.	Resident kwacha accounts are not convertible to foreign currency. Only nonresident kwacha accounts are convertible as the funds held in such accounts are freely remittable.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Nonresident FCDAs are permitted and not subject to Exchange Controls.
Approval required	No.	ADB's have delegated authority to open and operate such accounts subject to know-your-customer (KYC) and AML requirements.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Nonresident kwacha accounts may only be credited with funds that are remittable. This applies where nonresidents have received payment in kwacha for goods and services they have provided in Malawi.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Balances in these accounts can be remitted subject to guidelines.
Approval required	No.	ADB's have delegated authority for such transactions.
Blocked accounts	Yes.	Credits to and debits from these accounts require authorization, which is usually given, to be invested in an approved manner. Interest earned on balances may be transferred to the account holder's country of residence.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	No.	Importers may choose any method of payment, and imports may be paid for in kwacha to an appropriate local nonresident account or in any convertible currency. When imports arrive in Malawi and payment is due, importers must submit to an AD bank relevant importation and customs clearing documents for payment.
Minimum financing requirements	No.	There is no limit.
Advance payment requirements	No.	Prepayment for imports is allowed.
Advance import deposits	No.	Advance import deposits are not required by law; however, AD banks may require them as a banking practice, depending on the mode of payment (for example, LCs).
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	AD banks process payments based on invoices and other import documents including Customs clearing documents.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.	This is optional and conditional on buyer/seller terms of trade. It is not a government requirement.
Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	Import licenses are not used to restrict the availability of foreign exchange, but rather in keeping with the provisions of the Control of Goods Act. The Minister of Trade may designate certain goods requiring importation license for several reasons including national security and food security.

MALAWI

Other	Yes.	Importers may choose any method of payment, and imports may be paid for in kwacha to an appropriate local nonresident account or in any convertible currency. When payment for imports is due, importers must submit to an AD bank relevant importation and customs clearing documents in the case of an open account.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	The importation of all meats (with a few exceptions) is prohibited without prior permission in writing from the Minister of Industry and Trade.
Open general licenses	Yes.	Most imports are subject to OGLs, including imports from Commonwealth and WTO member countries.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Imports of clothing and uniforms designed for military or police use; radioactive substances; mist nets for the capture of wild birds, wild animals, and live fish; compound products suitable only for use as animal fodder; eggs of domestic or wild birds; live poultry (including day-old chicks); meat; dieldrin and aldrin; and table salt require specific licenses from the Ministry of Industry and Trade. Specific import licenses are usually issued within one week of application and are generally valid for six months.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Customs tariffs are ad valorem and range up to 30% of c.i.f. value, with a weighted average of about 15%. Customs tariffs on all items with MFN status range from 0% to 25%. There are no tariffs on items from the COMESA region. Selected government imports are exempt from customs tariffs. Imports are also subject to a surtax of up to 17.5%.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	No.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	The Central Bank of Malaysia Act 2009 requires BNM to pursue a monetary policy whose primary objective is to maintain price stability while taking into account developments in the economy. BNM's sole instrument to signal the stance of monetary policy is the overnight policy rate.
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Licensed onshore banks may freely determine their bid-ask spreads and foreign exchange commissions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	As of December 31, 2020, licensed onshore banks consisted of (1) 26 licensed commercial banks, (2) 16 licensed Islamic banks, (3) 11 licensed investment banks, and (4) 1 licensed international Islamic bank (IIB). Licensed onshore banks and MSB licensees conducting remittance, retail currency exchange, and wholesale currency businesses may undertake spot transactions with residents and nonresidents. There are 303 companies licensed by BNM to provide MSB. Of these, 264 are approved for retail currency exchange business only; 27 are approved for remittance business only; 5 are approved for both retail currency exchange and remittance businesses; 1 is approved for both retail currency exchange and wholesale currency businesses; and 6 are approved to conduct the full range of MSB activities (remittance, retail currency exchange, and wholesale currency businesses). In addition, 27 of total licensed companies are providing digital remittance/money changing services. Licensed money changers that undertake retail currency exchange transactions may (1) buy and sell foreign currency notes and coins against ringgit or other foreign currency notes and coins with any person in Malaysia and (2) buy and sell traveler's checks on behalf of an issuer of traveler's checks with any person in Malaysia. Licensed currency wholesalers may (1) buy or sell foreign currency with licensed banks, licensed Islamic banks, MSB licensees, and any person abroad and (2) import and export foreign currency notes with any person abroad. Licensed money changers and currency wholesalers do not conduct exchange transactions with BNM.

Operated by the central bank	No.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Trading activities in the onshore foreign exchange market are undertaken through a broker system or market-making arrangements between interbank participants. All licensed onshore banks can participate in the interbank foreign exchange market. There are no limits imposed by BNM on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants. When the need for intervention arises, operations are conducted at market rates with market participants.
Over the counter	Yes.	Licensed onshore banks may participate in the interbank foreign exchange market and trade among themselves at market-determined rates.
Brokerage	Yes.	There are currently five money brokers which include two electronic brokers approved by BNM to operate in the foreign exchange market.
Market making	Yes.	All licensed onshore banks are authorized to be market makers in the foreign exchange market.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	BNM may participate in the forward foreign exchange market.

(1) Forward exchange transactions by residents:

Residents may hedge current account and, effective April 30, 2020, also financial account transactions, such as foreign currency loan obligations, up to the underlying tenure, based on firm commitment or anticipation with licensed onshore banks. Previously, residents were allowed to sell ringgit with licensed onshore banks on forward basis up to 12 months of their foreign currency loan obligations and up to the underlying tenure for other foreign currency obligations, for example, import payments and other current account transactions. This is a further liberalization of the foreign exchange administration policy, which previously allowed residents to hedge their foreign currency current account obligations up to their underlying tenure.

Effective April 30, 2020, residents are free to cancel or unwind their forward positions, except hedges on portfolio investment. Previously, it could be done under certain conditions including prior approval from Bank Negara Malaysia.

Resident institutional investors registered with BNM may (1) enter into forward contracts to buy ringgit up to 100% of their invested underlying foreign-currency-denominated assets as specified by BNM and (2) unwind the forward contracts as described in (1), without documentary evidence with licensed onshore banks.

Resident entities may hedge on behalf of their resident or nonresident group of entities (other than financial institutions) with licensed onshore banks for any permitted underlying transactions, subject to compliance with Foreign Exchange Policy (FEP) Notice 1.

(2) Forward exchange transactions by nonresidents:

Nonresidents may hedge their current account and, effective April 30, 2020, financial account transactions based on firm commitment with licensed onshore banks or appointed overseas offices of licensed onshore banks.

Foreign exchange hedging on anticipatory basis is allowed for international trade in goods or services with licensed onshore banks or an appointed overseas office.

Effective April 30, 2020, nonresidents are free to cancel or unwind their forward positions, except hedges on portfolio investment. Previously, prior approval from BNM was required for nonresidents to undertake any cancellation or unwinding of forward positions. Nonresident institutional investors may register under the existing dynamic hedging framework to cancel or unwind their hedges on portfolio investment.

Nonresident institutional investors registered with BNM may (a) enter into forward contracts to sell ringgit up to 100% of their invested underlying ringgit-denominated assets as specified by BNM; (b) enter into forward contracts to buy ringgit up to 25% of their invested underlying ringgit-denominated asset; or (c) unwind the forward contracts as described in (a) and (b), without documentary evidence with licensed onshore banks or an appointed overseas office.

Nonresident entities may hedge on behalf of their resident or nonresident group of entities (other than financial institutions) with licensed onshore banks or an appointed overseas office for any permitted underlying transactions.

The capacity of the financial institutions to undertake forward positions is subject to their respective risk appetite. The Bank's role is to ensure that the development of the forward market is unimpeded but without introducing stability risk.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Approval required	Yes.	Prior approval from BNM is required for resident individuals to open and maintain joint FCAs with nonresident non-immediate family members.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.	Residents may not hold ringgit accounts abroad.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Residents may convert ringgit to foreign currency with licensed onshore banks. The conversion of ringgit funds to foreign currency is used for fulfilling foreign currency obligations such as import payment, foreign currency loan repayment, and other current international transactions by residents up to underlying tenure or value of the foreign currency obligations. Effective April 15, 2021, the sale of ringgit on spot basis by residents for placement into Trade FCA is freely allowed for any amount with a licensed onshore bank (excluding international Islamic banks). Previously, the sale of ringgit on spot basis for retention in Trade FCA remained free up to 6 months' value of foreign currency obligations. The conversion of ringgit funds to foreign currency for investment in foreign currency assets by residents without domestic ringgit borrowing is not restricted; for residents with domestic ringgit borrowing, it is subject to the following limits: (1) RM 50 million or

Other	Yes.	Other documents required are an invoice, a bill of lading, a sanitary or phytosanitary certificate, and a certificate of origin.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Import control authority rests with the Royal Malaysian Customs Department of the MOF. Import licensing in Malaysia is administered by the above department through 21 Permit Issuing Agencies (PIAs), including the Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI), the Ministry of Plantation Industries and Commodities, the Malaysian Timber Industry Board, the Ministry of Agriculture and Agro-Based Industry and its agencies, including the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Veterinary Services of Malaysia (DVSM), the Federal Agricultural Marketing Authority, the Department of Fisheries, the Malaysian Pineapple Industry Board, and the Fisheries Development Authority of Malaysia. The Strategic Trade Act 2010 (STA 2010) only controls the exportation but not the importation of strategic items.

MALAYSIA

Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	A negative list is established by Malaysian Customs (Prohibition of Imports) Order 2012, Gazette No. P.U. (A) 490/2012 and Customs (Prohibition of Exports) Order 2012, Gazette No. P.U. (A) 491/2012.
Open general licenses	Yes.	Import licenses are obtained from the MITI, the Ministry of Plantation Industries and Commodities and its agencies, and the Ministry of Agriculture and Agro-Based Industry and its agencies.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Certain licenses are subject to the tariff rate quota, per Appendix B of Malaysian Customs Duties Order 2012, Gazette No. P.U. (A) 275/2012 (August 30, 2012). Tariff rate quota is a trade policy tool or mechanism that is used to control or protect a locally produced commodity or product. Tariff rate quotas are as per Malaysian Customs Duties Order 2017, Gazette No. P.U. (A) 5/2017 (January 3, 2017).
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Antidumping duty is currently imposed on imports of: (1) Cold rolled stainless steel in coils, sheets, or any other form with the thickness of between 0.3 millimeters to 6.5 millimeters and width of not more than 1,600 millimeters, excluding; (a) cold rolled stainless steel with Bright Annealed, No. 8 (Mirror Finish), embossed, rigidized, etched, or colored finishes; or (b) cold rolled stainless steel with hardness value of more than 250HV; originating in or exported from The People's Republic of China, The Republic of Korea, Chinese Taipei and The Kingdom of Thailand. (2) Flat rolled product of iron alloy or non-alloy steel, plated or coated with zinc, using hot dip process (galvanized iron coils/sheets or galvanized steel coils/sheets); originating in or exported from The People's Republic of China and The Socialist Republic of Vietnam. (3) Cellulose fiber-reinforced cement flat and pattern sheets and specifically excluding external roofing; originating in or exported from The Kingdom of Thailand. (4) Cold rolled coils of iron or non-alloy steel, of width more than 1300mm excluding tin mill black plate and subject merchandise imported for the purpose of automotive and finwall for transformer end usage; originating in or exported from The People's Republic of China, Japan, The Republic of Korea, and The Socialist Republic of Vietnam. (5) Effective January 22, 2020, steel concrete reinforcing bar products that are hot rolled steel bar containing indentations, ribs, grooves or other deformation; originating in or exported from The Republic of Singapore and The Republic of Turkey. (6) Effective March 21, 2020, cellulose fiber-reinforced cement flat and pattern sheet and specifically excluding external roofing; originating in or export from The Republic of Indonesia. (7) Flat rolled product of non-alloy steel plated or coated with aluminum and zinc; originating in or exported from The People's Republic of China, The Republic of Korea, and The Socialist Republic of Vietnam. (8) Cold rolled stainless steel in coils, sheets, or any other form with the thickness of not more than 6.5 millimeters excluding; (a) cold rolled stainless steel with Bright Annealed, No. 8 (Mirror Finish), embossed, rigidized, etched, or colored finishes; or (b) cold rolled stainless steel with hardness value of more than 250HV; originating in or exported from The Republic of Indonesia and The Socialist Republic of Vietnam.

(9) Pre-painted, painted, or color-coated steel coils originating in or exported from The People's Republic of China and The Socialist Republic of Vietnam.

(10) Effective August 29, 2021, stranded steel wires for prestressing concrete originating in or exported from The People's Republic of China (until December 26, 2021).

Effective October 9, 2021, the antidumping duty ended on cold rolled coils of alloy and non-alloy steel of a thickness between 0.20 millimeters to 2.60 millimeters and width between 700 millimeters to 1300 millimeters excluding tin mill black plate and subject merchandise imported for the purpose of automotive and-usage of all grades and specifications, originating in or exported from The People's Republic of China, The Republic of Korea, and The Socialist Republic of Vietnam.

Taxes collected through the exchange system No.

State import monopoly Yes. Under a privatization agreement, BERNAS had been granted the sole right to import rice into Malaysia for 15 years beginning in 1996; the agreement was extended for an additional 10 years in 2011.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements Yes. Effective April 15, 2021, export proceeds must be repatriated to Malaysia in full value by resident exporters into their ringgit account or Trade FCA according to the sales contract within 6 months from the date of shipment, or within 24 months from the date of shipment where extenuating circumstances apply (see Appendix C of Notice 7 on Export on Goods). While the 6-month rule has been in place previously, the new arrangement eliminates the need for exporters to seek BNM's approval in repatriating their export proceeds beyond the 6-month period for reasons beyond the exporters' control. For other purposes, approval from BNM is still required. The refinement in FEP adopts the shift from approval-based to notification-based for low-risk transactions in line with better capability to monitor such transactions.

Effective April 15, 2021, resident exporters are allowed to offset or write-off export proceeds against permitted transactions or purposes.

Surrender requirements No.

Surrender to the central bank No.

Surrender to authorized dealers No.

Effective April 30, 2020, resident exporters were exempted from the requirement to convert export proceeds below RM 200,000 equivalent per transaction to ringgit.

Effective April 15, 2021, the requirement to convert export proceeds was removed. Previously, resident exporters were only permitted to retain foreign currency proceeds from their export of goods in their Trade FCA held with licensed onshore banks up to the higher of (1) 25% of the export proceeds or (2) resident exporters' 6-month foreign currency obligations that exist on the date of receipt of the export proceeds.

Financing requirements No. There are no specific export financing requirements. Resident exporters may obtain any amount of foreign currency trade financing facilities from licensed onshore banks and related nonresidents. Borrowing from other nonresidents is subject to compliance with FEP Notice 2.

Documentation requirements	Yes.	Requirements are determined by the receiving banks.
Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	No.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	Exports of live fish are subject to preshipment inspection. If requested, a certificate of health, sanitation, or origin may be issued by the Department of Fisheries. Veterinary examination, laboratory testing, and animal quarantine procedures – as well as accreditation of establishments and premises for exports of animals and animal products – are carried out by the DVSM in accordance with import requirements of importing countries. Plants and plant products, including rice, and raw commodities may be subject to preshipment inspection, depending on the requirements of the importing country.
Other	Yes.	Exports of rubber from Peninsular Malaysia require a certificate issued by the Malaysian Rubber Exchange and Licensing Board.
Export licenses	Yes.
Without quotas	Yes.	Certain exportable products are monitored to avoid shortages in the domestic market. Export licenses for fish and fishery products are issued by the Fisheries Development Authority of Malaysia. The shipment of live fish (including among Peninsular Malaysia, Sabah, and Sarawak) also requires a permit issued by the Department of Fisheries. In accordance with CITES, a permit from the Department of Wildlife and National Parks is required for exports of endangered species. The Certificate of Conformity issued by the Federal Agricultural Marketing Authority acts on behalf of the Royal Malaysian Customs Department to endorse exports and reexports of all types of vegetables, especially to Brunei Darussalam, Indonesia, Singapore, and Thailand. Exports of plants, seeds, and shoots for propagation require export permits issued by the Department of Agriculture. Exports of endangered species of plants require a CITES permit from the Department of Agriculture. Export permits and veterinary health certification from the DVSM are required for exports of animals and animal products. Export licenses (issued by the Malaysian Pineapple Industry Board) are required for fresh pineapple and canned pineapple products.
		Exportation of strategic items requires a permit under the STA 2010. Application for export of strategic items must be made through the e-Permit STA system.
		Export licenses or permits from the MITI are required for exports of scrap and waste metals; cement, clinker, under Ministry of Domestic Trade and Consumer Affairs, toxic chemicals and their precursors under the Chemical Weapons Convention and for strategic items under the STA 2010. Applications for export and import permits under the MITI may be made through an Internet-based system, the ePermit system and for strategic item through the ePermit STA system.
		Importers and exporters that meet the requirements may get online approval through these systems. Applications for live fish import and export permits must be made through an Internet-based system, epermit. Importers and exporters may get online approval through e-permit, provided the requirements are met.

With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	Export taxes are levied on selected commodities as indicated in the Customs Duty Order 2017. There are 217 tariff lines with tariff duty rates out of 11,698 lines in the Customs Duty Order 2017. Ad valorem export duty rates are found in Chapters 1, 12, 15, 26, 27, 40, 44, 68, 71, 72, 74, 75, 76, 78, and 79. Specific export duty rates are found in Chapters 6, 12, and 14.

Controls on capital and money market instruments

Yes. Interest income of nonresident individuals and companies from the following is not subject to withholding of taxes: (1) ringgit-denominated securities and debentures other than convertible loan stocks approved by the Securities Commission (SC); (2) securities issued by the government of Malaysia; and (3) foreign-currency-denominated sukuk (the Islamic equivalent of bonds) originating in Malaysia.

On capital market securities

Yes.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature

Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

Yes.

Nonresidents may purchase securities listed on Bursa Malaysia. Based on BNM's FEP rules, nonresidents are free to invest in any form of ringgit assets in Malaysia.

Effective April 30, 2020, residents are free to issue ringgit-denominated redeemable preference shares (RPS) to any nonresident for use in Malaysia. Nonresidents are thus free to undertake any type of investment in shares or securities of a participating nature without any restriction.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes.

The issuance or offering of shares for sale locally by nonresidents requires SC approval under Section 212 of the Capital Markets and Services Act (CMSA) 2007. Certain categories of transactions as set out in Schedule 5 of the CMSA 2007 are exempted from SC's approval.

MALAYSIA

		Approval from BNM is also required for issuance of ringgit-denominated securities by nonresidents.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These transactions are not restricted for resident entities without domestic ringgit borrowing and, effective April 30, 2020, for individuals without domestic ringgit borrowing.
		Resident entities with domestic ringgit borrowing may invest in foreign currency assets up to RM 50 million or its equivalent in aggregate on a corporate group basis a calendar year. This limit applies only to those funding investment abroad through conversion of ringgit, transfer from Trade FCA, foreign currency borrowing from licensed onshore banks for purposes other than direct investment abroad, and swapping of financial assets.
		Effective April 30, 2020, resident entities with domestic ringgit borrowing are no longer subject to the prudential limit of up to the ringgit amount sourced from proceeds of an initial public offering (IPO) on the Main Market of Bursa Malaysia.
		Resident individuals with domestic ringgit borrowing may invest in foreign currency assets up to (1) RM 1 million equivalent per calendar year using funds sourced from ringgit conversion, Trade FCA, and swapping of financial assets or (2) up to any amount for funds sourced from abroad, approved borrowing or for purchase of real estate outside Malaysia for the purpose of education, employment, or migration
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	The issuance or offering of shares abroad by resident, which is a public listed company or corporation whose shares are listed in Malaysia, requires SC's approval under subsection 212(4) of CMSA 2007 if the shares are being offered by way of an IPO or cross-listing.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	There is no minimum holding period requirement.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Resident entities may issue foreign currency bonds or sukuk abroad, subject to compliance with FEP Notice 2.
On money market instruments	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may issue foreign-currency-denominated securities. Approval is required only for issuance of ringgit-denominated securities by nonresidents.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These transactions are not restricted for resident entities without domestic ringgit borrowing and, effective April 30, 2020, for individuals without domestic ringgit borrowing.

Resident entities with domestic ringgit borrowing may invest in foreign currency assets up to RM 50 million or its equivalent in aggregate on a corporate group basis a calendar year. This limit applies only to those funding investment abroad through conversion of ringgit, transfer from Trade FCA, foreign currency borrowing from licensed onshore banks for purposes other than direct investment abroad, and swapping of financial assets.

Effective April 30, 2020, resident entities with domestic ringgit borrowing are no longer subject to the prudential limit of up to the ringgit amount sourced from proceeds of an IPO on the Main Market of Bursa Malaysia.

Resident individuals with domestic ringgit borrowing may invest in foreign currency assets up to (1) RM 1 million equivalent per calendar year using funds sourced from ringgit conversion, Trade FCA, and swapping of financial assets or (2) up to any amount for funds sourced from abroad, approved borrowing or for purchase of real estate outside Malaysia for the purpose of education, employment, or migration.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Resident entities may issue foreign currency money market instruments abroad, subject to compliance with FEP Notice 2. Prior approval from BNM is required for issuance or sale of ringgit money market instruments by residents outside Malaysia.
On collective investment securities	Yes.	Foreign collective investment schemes (CISs) may be offered and marketed in Malaysia to resident and nonresident investors (which include retail investors and investors defined in Schedule 6 and Schedule 7 of the CMSA 2007); these plans do not have to be managed and administered by a company licensed by the SC. However, foreign CISs must comply with Chapter 3.0 of the SC's Guidelines on Offering, Marketing, and Distribution of Foreign Funds (OMD – of March 3, 2008, as revised May 4, 2017). Since June 15, 2015, (1) a foreign fund is no longer required to be primarily regulated by a securities regulator that has satisfactorily implemented the International Organization of Securities Commissions (IOSCO) principles and objectives of securities regulation; (2) an operator of foreign fund is no longer required to be primarily regulated by a securities regulator that has satisfactorily implemented the IOSCO principles and objectives of securities regulation; (3) offering of a foreign fund to sophisticated investors is required to lodge relevant offering document in accordance with the requirements under the Guidelines on Unlisted Capital Market Products under the Lodge and Launch framework; (4) offering of a foreign fund to sophisticated investors is required to be in accordance with the requirements in relation to the Lodge and Launch framework; (5) clarifications regarding the reporting requirements in relation to foreign funds were provided. The CIS must meet the requirements of the OMD. Specific requirements for ASEAN CISs are given in the Handbook for CIS Operators of ASEAN CISs. The ASEAN CIS Framework is a streamlined process for cross-border offering of CISs in signatory countries. From May 4, 2017, (1) a foreign fund offered by a permitted entity that complies with the requirements under paragraph 4.03 and Appendix 3 of the OMD is permitted to be offered in Malaysia and (2) a foreign fund that invests or proposes to invest primarily in income-generating real estate – provided the units are listed on an exchange as specified by the SC and are located in a jurisdiction where the securities regulator for such fund is a full signatory of the IOSCO Multilateral MoU as listed in its Appendix A; the offering of units is made by a holder of a Capital Markets Services License (CMSL) who carries on the business of dealing in securities; and the offering of units is limited to a one-off offering only to sophisticated investors and is not offered to the sophisticated investors on a continuous basis.

Purchase locally by nonresidents No.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes.

Nonresidents may offer their CISs to investors in Malaysia if they have –
 (1) For unlisted CIS to retail investors, obtained SC’s recognition under s. 212(5) of the CMSA 2007;
 (2) For listed CIS, obtained SC’s approval under s. 212(2) of the CMSA 2007; or
 (3) Unlisted CIS to non-retail investors, lodged with SC under the Lodge and Launch Framework.
 Only CIS that complies with the requirements under the SC OMD Guidelines would be considered for SC’s recognition/approval, or be permitted to be lodged with the SC. The CISs may be offered in any foreign currency. Ringgit CISs under the ASEAN CIS Framework may be offered only in Malaysia. Proceeds from ringgit CISs must be settled and managed with licensed onshore banks. This includes currency conversion. The proceeds of ringgit CISs may be fully invested abroad if at least two-thirds of the foreign offering of the CIS are raised outside Malaysia in two other countries.

Purchase abroad by residents Yes.

These transactions are not restricted for resident entities without domestic ringgit borrowing and, effective April 30, 2020, for individuals without domestic ringgit borrowing.

Resident entities with domestic ringgit borrowing may invest in foreign currency assets up to RM 50 million or its equivalent in aggregate on a corporate group basis a calendar year. This limit applies only to those funding investment abroad through conversion of ringgit, transfer from Trade FCA, foreign currency borrowing from licensed onshore banks for purposes other than direct investment abroad, and swapping of financial assets.

Effective April 30, 2020, resident entities with domestic ringgit borrowing are no longer subject to the prudential limit of up to the ringgit amount sourced from proceeds of an IPO on the Main Market of Bursa Malaysia.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents may establish foreign currency-based currency CISs abroad. Establishment of ringgit-based currency CIS or classes of units denominated in ringgit abroad requires approval from BNM. A CIS established in Malaysia may be offered abroad through the Mutual Recognition Agreements or under the ASEAN CIS Framework.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may purchase derivatives or other instruments offered on the Bursa Malaysia or by licensed onshore banks, subject to compliance with relevant FEP Notices. Purchase of exchange rate derivatives is subject to compliance with Notice 1 on Dealings in Currency, Gold, and Other Precious Metals by nonresidents, including underlying requirements.
		Effective April 15, 2021, prior approval requirements for nonresident banking institutions (BIs) to enter into ringgit-denominated interest rate derivatives with no underlying commitment with licensed onshore banks or via appointed overseas offices of licensed onshore banks were removed, pursuant to Notice 5 on Securities and Financial Instruments.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Sale or issue of derivatives locally by a nonresident requires SC approval under Section 212 of the CMSA 2007. Certain categories of transactions, as set out in Schedule 5 of the CMSA 2007, are exempted from SC's approval.
		Prior approval from BNM is required for nonresidents to issue derivatives or other instruments in Malaysia.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents may purchase derivatives and other instruments (other than exchange rate derivatives) from specified overseas exchanges via a resident futures broker for (1) hedging purposes and (2) investment purposes, subject to compliance with FEP Notice 3. Prior approval from BNM is required for purchase of exchange rate derivatives and other derivatives referenced to ringgit.
		Effective April 30, 2020, resident individuals may purchase foreign-currency derivatives (other than exchange rate derivatives) directly from nonresident counterparties, subject to FEP Notice 3 if undertaken without firm commitment.
		Effective April 15, 2021, the liberalization of purchase of foreign-currency derivatives (other than exchange rate derivatives) directly from nonresident counterparties is expanded to all residents (that is, both individuals and entities). Previously, it was only liberalized for individuals. All residents may purchase foreign-currency derivatives (other than exchange rate derivatives) directly from nonresident counterparties, subject to FEP Notice 3 if undertaken without firm commitment.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes. Inward direct investment	Yes.	Controls are imposed on equity shares in accordance with national economic policy; however, no foreign exchange restrictions apply. The following inward investments require approval under the Economic Planning Unit guidelines: acquisition of property (such as undeveloped or developed land) by foreigners, depending on the value. The rules for acquisition of residential property valued not less than RM 500,000 are less stringent. Applications requiring SC approval under the securities and futures laws are centralized at the SC. Certain exemptions or relaxation of the foreign equity limits (for example, exemption from the 12.5% Bumiputera equity requirement) are granted to companies with Multimedia Super Corridor and BioNexus status; companies with major foreign-based operations seeking listing on the Bursa Malaysia; and intermediaries licensed by the SC, including investment banks, local and foreign fund managers, investment advisers, and exempt dealers. In relation to a "company" being taken over includes a corporation listed on a stock exchange, listed real estate investment trusts in Malaysia, listed business trusts in Malaysia, and unlisted public companies with more than 50 shareholders and net assets of RM 15 million or more, any acquisition of more than 33% of voting shares or of more than 2% in any six-month period for a holder of more than 33% but less than 50% requires compliance with Part VI, Division 2, of the CMSA 2007, the Malaysian Code on Takeovers and Mergers 2016, and the Rules on Takeovers, Mergers, and Compulsory Acquisitions. meet the shareholder suitability requirements in Schedule 6 of FSA 2013 and IFSA 2013. These requirements take into account, among other things, prudential considerations and potential contributions of investors in the best interest of Malaysia. The minimum value for acquisition of residential property by foreigners is RM 1 million, as stipulated under the Guideline on The Acquisition of Properties by the Economic Planning Unit (EPU, Prime Minister Department). While the acquisition does not require an approval from the EPU, the acquisition is subject to the State Authority's jurisdiction. The state governments have full control in considering and approving foreign ownership of properties including threshold values in their respective states. Therefore, the threshold prices would vary from one state to another.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment No.

Controls on real estate transactions Yes.

Purchase abroad by residents Yes.

These transactions are not restricted for resident entities without domestic ringgit borrowing. Resident entities with domestic ringgit borrowing may invest in foreign currency assets up to RM 50 million or its equivalent in aggregate on a corporate group basis a calendar year. BNM temporarily increased the single counterparty exposure limit from 25% to 35% of a BI's total capital for exposures to counterparties that are connected to selected large companies based on economic dependence factors. BIs must pare down any exposures in excess of 25% of total capital by December 31, 2022.

(2) Total outstanding credit exposure to all connected parties may not exceed 100% of a BI's total capital or 25% of total outstanding credit exposures.

Lending locally in foreign exchange

Yes.

Licensed onshore banks may lend in foreign currency any amount to resident entities and nonresidents. Lending to resident individuals is subject to RM 10 million in aggregate.

All licensed BIs are subject to the following prudential limits, which are applied to credit exposure to both residents and nonresidents: (1) Exposures to a single counterparty or a group of connected counterparties may not exceed 25% of a BI's total capital (that is, the sum Tier 1 and Tier 2 capital). For exposures to BI's related banking entities (whether operating in- or outside Malaysia), a limit as may be approved by the Central Bank of Malaysia may not exceed 50% of the BI's total capital and subject to clear criteria. This is applicable in aggregate to ringgit and foreign-currency-denominated exposures, including all claims, commitments, and contingent liabilities arising from on- and off-balance-sheet transactions (in both banking and trading books).

Effective March 24, 2020, until December 31, 2021, in response to the COVID-19 outbreak and to support lending activities by BIs, BNM temporarily increased the single counterparty exposure limit from 25% to 35% of a BI's total capital for exposures to counterparties that are connected to selected large companies based on economic dependence factors. BIs must pare down any exposures in excess of 25% of total capital by December 31, 2022.

(2) Total outstanding credit exposure to all connected parties may not exceed 100% of a BI's total capital or 25% of total outstanding credit exposures. Residents may enter into a transaction with (a) a licensed onshore bank to convert an existing ringgit debt obligation to a foreign currency debt obligation, provided there is no actual delivery of foreign currency at the inception of the transaction and (b) a licensed onshore bank, an IIB, or a nonresident to convert an existing foreign currency debt obligation to another foreign currency debt obligation.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange

Yes.

All licensed BIs are subject to the following prudential limits, which are applied to credit exposures to both residents and nonresidents:

(1) Exposures to a single counterparty or a group of connected counterparties may not exceed 25% of a BI's total capital (that is, the sum of Tier 1 and Tier 2 capital). For exposures to BI's related banking entities (whether operating in- or outside Malaysia), a limit as may be approved by the Central Bank of Malaysia may not exceed 50% of the BI's total capital and subject to clear criteria. counterparties that are connected to selected large companies based on economic dependence factors. BIs must pare down any exposures in excess of 25% of total capital by December 31, 2022.

(2) Total outstanding credit exposure to all connected parties may not exceed 100% of a BI's total capital or 25% of total outstanding credit exposures.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange Yes.

Reserve requirements

Yes.

The BNM statutory reserve requirement (SRR) rate of 2% is applied on BIs' eligible liabilities, which consist of ringgit-denominated deposits and non-deposit liabilities, net of interbank assets, and placements with the CB. Foreign-currency-deposit liabilities are not subject to reserve requirements.

Effective May 16, 2020, in response to the COVID-19 outbreak and to support lending activities by BIs, BNM temporarily allowed all BIs to recognize holdings of Malaysian Government Securities (MGS) and Malaysian Government Investment Issues (MGII) as part of their SRR compliance (that is, Statutory Reserve Accounts balances). Such securities used in this manner may be deducted from BIs' eligible liability base calculations and must continue to be recognized as High-Quality Liquid Assets. This temporary flexibility was made available initially until May 31, 2021. Effective March 16, 2021, this temporary flexibility was extended until December 31, 2022.

Yes.

The LCR was implemented June 1, 2015, based on the global phase-in timeline, that is, with an initial minimum requirement of 60% and followed by yearly 10% increment, reaching 100% by January 1, 2019. Banks are required to comply with a minimum LCR for their net cash outflows in all currencies on an aggregated basis and for their RM-denominated net cash outflows (that is, banks must hold a minimum amount of RM-denominated High-Quality Liquid Assets as a buffer for RM-denominated net cash outflows).

Effective March 24, 2020, in response to the COVID-19 outbreak and to support lending activities by BIs, BNM temporarily allowed all BIs to operate with LCR ratio below 100% until December 31, 2020. BIs should restore their buffers to the minimum regulatory requirements by September 30, 2021.

Effective December 15, 2020, BNM has reiterated that all BIs may drawdown on their LCR buffers (below 100%) when needed in response to liquidity shocks to support key lending activities for economic recovery from the COVID-19 outbreak. Those that drawdown the prudential buffers are required to establish plans that clearly identify actions and timelines to restore the buffers to their original regulatory minimums. However, to date, all banks have maintained their LCR above 100%. Consistent with the original design of the LCR rules, the liquid asset buffers can be utilized for idiosyncratic stress and there is no fixed timeline or deadline for banks to restore their buffers on utilization. The restoration timeline would hence be dependent on bank-specific circumstances.

The Net Stable Funding Ratio (NSFR) was implemented effective July 1, 2020, with an initial minimum requirement of 80% and by September 30, 2021, to 100%.

The NSFR requirement applies to all BIs at the aggregate currency portfolio (that is, Ringgit and all other currencies. All foreign currency exposures must be reported in Ringgit-equivalent terms based on the foreign exchange rates as at the reporting date.). The NSFR requirement is calculated in line with the Basel 3 standards. Where minor adjustments have been made, this was made mainly to account for domestic system structures or areas where Basel had provided national discretion.

FSA and IFSA: BIs may not establish or acquire a subsidiary in- or outside Malaysia, or acquire or hold any material interest in any corporation without the prior approval of BNM. Material interest is defined as 20% or more of the voting shares or voting power in a corporation.

In addition, BNM's approval is also required for any direct or indirect acquisition or holding of 33% or more of the voting shares or voting power in a corporation.

The BI must also notify BNM of any subsequent direct or indirect acquisition where it results in an increase in shareholding at any multiple of 5% above the material interest threshold, at least one month before the proposed acquisition. Nevertheless, BNM may require a BI to obtain its prior written approval if any subsequent increase impacts the BI's safety and soundness.

Investments by BIs, both locally and abroad, are subject to the following prudential limits:

(1) Aggregate direct and indirect acquisition or holding of interest in non-financial corporations by BIs, including those held below the material interest threshold (that is, 20% or more of the voting shares/power), must not exceed 10% of a BI's Tier 1 capital.

(2) BIs may not acquire, hold, or rent immovable properties, except to:

- (a) conduct their business;
- (b) provide housing or other amenities for their staff; or
- (c) satisfy debts (that is, foreclosed properties).

Approval from the Central Bank of Malaysia is required if a BI intends to acquire, hold, or rent immovable properties for purposes other than (a), (b), and (c).

BIs total holdings of immovable properties acquired in satisfaction of debts may not exceed 1% of its Total Capital.

In the case of Islamic finance, Islamic BIs are allowed to undertake property development and property investment activities subject to conditions such as allowable structures, governance, risk management, limits, and disclosure requirements. These investments are subject to prudential safeguards, including limiting each exposure to 25% of the Islamic BI's capital base. Islamic BIs and their subsidiaries are prohibited from direct property development activities but may participate in such activities through a joint venture or equity participation with reputable property development companies that are not subsidiaries of Islamic BIs.

(3) Exposures to a single counterparty or a group of connected counterparties may not exceed 25% of a BI's total capital (that is, the sum of Tier 1 and Tier 2 capital). For exposures to BI's related banking entities (whether operating in- or outside Malaysia), a limit as may be approved by the Central Bank of Malaysia may not exceed 50% of the BI's total capital and subject to clear criteria. This is applicable in aggregate to ringgit and foreign-currency-denominated exposures, including all claims, commitments, and contingent liabilities arising from on- and off-balance-sheet transactions (in both banking and trading books).

BIs must pare down any exposures in excess of 25% of total capital by December 31, 2022.

(4) Total outstanding credit exposure to all connected parties may not exceed 100% of a BI's total capital or 25% of total outstanding credit exposure.

In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may participate in the equity of Malaysian BIs. However, nonresidents may not hold 5% or more interest-in-shares, unless they have obtained the approval of the Central Bank of Malaysia or the Minister of Finance pursuant to Section 87 of the FSA 2013 and Section 99 of the IFSA 2013. These requirements take into account prudential considerations and potential contributions of investors in the best interest of Malaysia.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Licensed insurers and licensed takaful operators must invest a minimum of 10% of the total assets of their general insurance funds and general takaful funds in liquid assets.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	There are no regulations on currency matching. However, licensed insurers and takaful operators are required to hold 8% of capital on mismatched currency positions as prescribed in the capital adequacy framework for insurers and takaful operators.
Pension funds	Yes.	Pension funds approved by SC-designated private retirement schemes (PRS), like other CISs, may be invested abroad. The PRS comprise of core funds and non-core funds. Core funds will be selected automatically for a member who does not specify their fund option. Core funds comprise of three categories – conservative, moderate, and growth funds.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	PRS Guidelines do not stipulate a limit on securities issued by nonresident in relation to PRS. No more than 50% of total funds may be invested in non-Shariah-compliant assets for funds of resident clients with domestic ringgit borrowing.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Effective February 21, 2020, SC had liberalized the asset allocation for the core funds which included allowing conservative core funds to invest in foreign markets.
		While the specific asset allocation requirements have been liberalized in favor of broad principles, the general investment limits such as single issue exposure, etc., that are applicable to all funds would continue to apply to PRS funds.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	There is no minimum limit on local portfolio investment.

Changes during 2020 and 2021

Exchange Arrangement

Foreign exchange market

Forward exchange market	04/30/2020	Residents may hedge financial account transactions, such as foreign currency loan obligations, up to the underlying tenure, based on firm commitment or anticipation with licensed onshore banks. Previously, residents were allowed to sell ringgit with licensed onshore banks on forward basis up to 12 months of their foreign currency loan obligations and up to the underlying tenure for other foreign currency obligations, for example, import payments and other current account transactions. This is a further liberalization of the foreign exchange administration policy, which previously allowed residents to hedge their foreign currency current account obligations up to their underlying tenure.
	04/30/2020	Nonresidents may hedge financial account transactions based on firm commitment with licensed onshore banks or appointed overseas offices of licensed onshore banks.
	04/30/2020	Nonresidents are free to cancel or unwind their forward positions, except hedges on portfolio investment. Previously, it could be done with prior approval from Bank Negara Malaysia.
	04/30/2020	Residents are free to cancel or unwind their forward positions, except hedges on portfolio investment. Previously, it could be done under certain conditions including prior approval from Bank Negara Malaysia.

Prescription of currency requirements

Use of foreign exchange among residents	04/15/2021	Flexibility is given to resident exporters to settle domestic trade in goods and services in foreign currency with other resident entities involved in the global supply chain.

Payments arrangements

Bilateral payments arrangements	02/03/2020	A currency swap arrangement between the Bank of Korea and Bank Negara Malaysia for three years for W 5 trillion/RM 15 billion was renewed for further three years.
	09/18/2020	The currency swap agreement with the Bank of Japan (acting as agent of the Minister of Finance of Japan) was established to enable both authorities to swap their local currencies for US Dollar, and the arrangement will provide up to US$3 billion for both countries.
	07/28/2021	Bank Negara Malaysia access to the US Federal Reserve's FIMA repo facility was made permanent and can be used to channel US dollar liquidity into the onshore market.
	11/23/2021	The currency swap arrangement between the People's Bank of China and Bank Negara Malaysia, established in 2009, was renewed for five years, with the size of the arrangement being maintained at ¥ 180 billion/RM 110 billion.

Resident Accounts

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	04/15/2021	The sale of ringgit on spot basis by residents for placement into Trade Foreign Currency Account (FCA) is freely allowed for any amount with a licensed onshore bank (excluding international Islamic banks). Previously, the sale of ringgit on spot basis for retention in Trade FCA remained free up to 6 months' value of foreign currency obligations.

Imports and Import Payments

Import taxes and/or tariffs	01/22/2020	Antidumping duty was imposed on steel concrete reinforcing bar

		originating in or exported from Singapore and Turkey through January 21, 2025.
	03/21/2020	Antidumping duty was imposed on cellulose fiber-reinforced cement flat and pattern sheets originating in or exported from Indonesia through March 20, 2025.
	08/29/2021	Antidumping duty was imposed on stranded steel wires for prestressing concrete originating in or exported from The People's Republic of China (until December 26, 2021).
	10/09/2021	Antidumping duty ended on cold rolled coils of alloy and non-alloy steel of a thickness between 0.20 millimeters to 2.60 millimeters and width between 700 millimeters to 1300 millimeters excluding tin mill black plate and subject merchandise imported for the purpose of automotive and-usage of all grades and specifications, originating in or exported from The People's Republic of China, The Republic of Korea, and The Socialist Republic of Vietnam.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	04/15/2021	Resident exporters are allowed to offset or write-off export proceeds against permitted transactions or purposes.
	04/15/2021	Export proceeds must be repatriated to Malaysia in full value by resident exporters into their ringgit account or Trade Foreign Currency Account according to the sales contract within 6 months from the date of shipment, or within 24 months from the date of shipment where extenuating circumstances apply (see Appendix C of Notice 7 on Export on Goods). While the 6-month rule has been in place previously, the new arrangement eliminates the need for exporters to seek Bank Negara Malaysia's (BNM's) approval in repatriating their export proceeds beyond the 6-month period for reasons beyond the exporters' control. For other purposes, approval from BNM is still required.
Surrender requirements
Surrender to authorized dealers	04/30/2020	Resident exporters are exempted from the requirement to convert export proceeds below RM 200,000 equivalent per transaction to ringgit.
	04/15/2021	The requirement to convert export proceeds was removed. Previously, resident exporters were only permitted to retain foreign currency proceeds from their export of goods in their Trade foreign currency account held with licensed onshore banks up to the higher of (1) 25% of the export proceeds or (2) resident exporters' 6-month foreign currency obligations that exist on the date of receipt of the export proceeds.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	03/24/2020	In response to the COVID-19 outbreak and to support lending activities by banking institutions (BIs), Bank Negara Malaysia temporarily increased the single counterparty exposure limit from 25% to 35% of a BI's total capital until December 31, 2021, for exposures to counterparties that are connected to selected large companies based on economic dependence factors. BIs must pare down any exposures in excess of 25% of total capital by December 31, 2022.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	03/24/2020	In response to the COVID-19 outbreak and to support lending activities by banking institutions (BIs), Bank Negara Malaysia temporarily increased the single counterparty exposure limit from 25% to 35% of a BI's total capital until December 31, 2021, for exposures to counterparties that are connected to selected large companies based on economic dependence factors. BIs must pare down any exposures in excess of 25% of total capital by December 31, 2022.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	03/24/2020	In response to the COVID-19 outbreak and to support lending activities by banking institutions (BIs), Bank Negara Malaysia temporarily increased the single counterparty exposure limit from 25% to 35% of a BI's total capital until December 31, 2021, for exposures to counterparties that are connected to selected large companies based on economic dependence factors. BIs must pare down any exposures in excess of 25% of total capital by December 31, 2022.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange
Reserve requirements	05/16/2020	In response to the COVID-19 outbreak and to support lending activities by banking institutions (BIs), Bank Negara Malaysia temporarily allowed all BIs to recognize holdings of Malaysian Government Securities and Malaysian Government Investment Issues as part of their statutory reserve requirement compliance (that is, Statutory Reserve Accounts balances). Such securities used in this manner may be deducted from BIs' eligible liability base calculations and must continue to be recognized as High-Quality Liquid Assets. This temporary flexibility is available until May 31, 2021.
	03/16/2021	The temporary allowance of the Bank Negara Malaysia for all banking institutions to recognize holdings of Malaysian Government

MALAYSIA

		Securities and Malaysian Government Investment Issues as part of their statutory reserve requirement compliance (that is, Statutory Reserve Accounts balances) was extended until December 31, 2022.
Liquid asset requirements	03/24/2020	In response to the COVID-19 outbreak and to support lending activities by banking institutions (BIs), Bank Negara Malaysia temporarily allowed all BIs to operate with the LCR ratio below 100% until December 31, 2020. BIs should restore their buffers to the minimum regulatory requirements by September 30, 2021. However, to date, all banks have maintained their LCR above 100%.
	07/01/2020	The Net Stable Funding Ratio was implemented with an initial minimum requirement of 80% and will increase to 100% by September 30, 2021.
	12/15/2020	Bank Negara Malaysia has reiterated that all banking institutions may drawdown on their LCR buffers (below 100%) when needed in response to liquidity shocks to support key lending activities for economic recovery from the COVID-19 outbreak. Those that drawdown the prudential buffers are required to establish plans that clearly identify actions and timelines to restore the buffers to their original regulatory minimums.
Investment regulations
Abroad by banks	03/24/2020	In response to the COVID-19 outbreak and to support lending activities by banking institutions (BIs), Bank Negara Malaysia temporarily increased the single counterparty exposure limit from 25% to 35% of a BI's total capital until December 31, 2021, for exposures to counterparties that are connected to selected large companies based on economic dependence factors. BIs must pare down any exposures in excess of 25% of total capital by December 31, 2022.
Provisions specific to institutional investors

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	02/21/2020	Securities Commission had liberalized the asset allocation for the core funds which included allowing conservative core funds to invest in foreign markets.

MALDIVES(Position as of June 30, 2021)Status under IMF Articles of Agreement*Date of membership January 13, 1978.Article VIII*Article XIV Yes.Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices Yes. The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Maldives states that, as of April 30, 2019, Maldives continues to avail itself of the transitional provisions of Article XIV but no longer maintains any measures under this provision, and has not yet accepted the obligations of Article VIII, Sections 2, 3, and 4. It maintains an exchange restriction subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) of the IMF's Articles of Agreement arising from a shortage of foreign exchange at the official rate which leads to the Maldives Monetary Authority (MMA) rationing its supply of foreign exchange to commercial banks. This results in a channeling of foreign exchange transactions for current international transactions to the parallel market where transactions take place at an exchange rate that deviates by more than 2% from the prevailing market exchange rate. The greater than 2% spread gives rise to multiple currency practice subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 3, and also to an exchange restriction, given the additional cost involved for obtaining foreign exchange. The extent of rationing has been eased over the past two years by increasing the amounts provided to commercial banks and adjusting amounts in line with seasonal patterns. The official exchange rate used by the MMA for government transactions is calculated based on the midpoint of the weighted average of the buying and selling rates of foreign exchange transactions conducted by commercial banks one day earlier. The lack of a mechanism to prevent the spread between this official exchange rate used by the MMA for government transactions and the prevailing market exchange rate from deviating by more than 2% gives rise to a multiple currency practice subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 3. (Country Report No. 19/156)

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	Since 2011, the de jure exchange rate arrangement is classified as a pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands. This regime allows the rufiyaa to float within a 20% band around a central parity of Rf 12.85 per US dollar. However, the rufiyaa remained stabilized in a narrow band against the US dollar near the ceiling of the band (Rf 15.42 per US dollar). Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement. Under the MMA Act, the president may decide to change the exchange rate arrangement and adjust the exchange rate.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The MMA quotes buying, selling, and midrates each day. The midrate (reference exchange rate) is calculated each day as the midpoint of the weighted average of the buying and selling rates of commercial banks' transactions with their clients conducted two days before. This rate is used when the MMA sells foreign exchange to the government. It buys foreign exchange from the government at the buying exchange rate. The MMA sells foreign exchange to the banks at its selling rate and to state-owned enterprises at the upper limit of the band.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	There are 8 commercial banks (of which 3 are locally incorporated, 4 are branches of foreign banks, and 1 is fully owned subsidiary of a foreign bank) and 384 licensed money changers as of December 31, 2020. Money changers are licensed by the MMA and may buy and sell foreign exchange. There are no restrictions on money changers opening and maintaining accounts abroad.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The MMA exchanges rufiyaa for US dollars at the official buying and selling rates. However, a dollar shortage led to supplying limited amount of foreign exchange to market participants. The MMA intervenes in the foreign exchange market by allocating foreign exchange to banks and selling US dollars to state-owned enterprises. Commercial banks may deal with the MMA, the central government, state-owned enterprises, and the private sector at the official exchange rate (within the bounds of the 20% exchange rate band).
Allocation	Yes.	The MMA sells foreign exchange to the commercial banks on a weekly basis. The allocation includes a fixed and a variable component. The fixed amount sold to the banks takes into consideration the bank's net open positions and its share of total banking sector assets. An additional allocation (variable component) is sold to the banks to meet the travel, educational, and medical requirements of the general public and to the growing demand of Small and Medium Enterprises (SMEs), specifically for their LC payments and telegraphic transfers. This allocation is sold based on the seasonal requirements and utilization of the funds.

Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	With the recent amendments effective August 1, 2020, to the Export and Import Act, tariffs are levied at 18 different rates (12 ad valorem, 3 specific duty, and 3 composite duty) using the 2017 version of World Customs Organization's Harmonized System (HS-2017). Previously, tariffs were levied at 15 different rates (12 ad valorem and 3 specific duty). Under the current tariff structure, Maldives national tariff lines have 8,255 items at the ten-digit level (previously, 8130 items). However, because of lack of imports under some lines, currently only 5,987 tariff lines are used at the ten-digit level. Except for the specific and composite duty on cigarette, soft drinks, energy drinks, and alcoholic products, all tariff lines are ad valorem, levied on the free-on-board (FOB) value of imports. More than 42.6% of the tariff lines are subject to a zero rate (previously, 31.5%), which is applied to essential goods, such as food, medicine, construction goods including steel, cement, sand and wood, fertilizers, garments, domestic electric appliances, environmentally friendly goods, machineries, and vehicles which run on electric or renewable energy (previously, steel and electric were excluded from the list). About 6% of the tariff lines are subject to a duty rate equal to or higher than 35%. The highest rate of duty currently imposed is

Imports and Import Payments

Import taxes and/or tariffs	08/01/2020	With the recent amendments to the Export and Import Act, tariffs are levied at 18 different rates (12 ad valorem, 3 specific duty, and 3 composite duty) using the 2017 version of World Customs Organization's Harmonized System (HS-2017). Previously, tariffs were levied at 15 different rates (12 ad valorem and 3 specific duty). Under the current tariff structure, Maldives national tariff lines have 8,255 items at the ten-digit level (previously, 8130 items). However, because of lack of imports under some lines, currently only 5,987 tariff lines are used at the ten-digit level. Except for the specific and composite duty on cigarette, soft drinks, energy drinks, and alcoholic products, all tariff lines are ad valorem, levied on the free-on-board value of imports. More than 42.6% of the tariff lines are subject to a zero rate (previously, 31.5%), which is applied to essential goods, such as food, medicine, construction goods including steel, cement, sand and wood, fertilizers, garments, domestic electric appliances, environmentally friendly goods, machineries, and vehicles which run on electric or renewable energy (previously, steel and electric were excluded from the list). About 6% of the tariff lines are subject to a duty rate equal to or higher than 35%. The highest rate of duty currently imposed is 400%, levied on nonbiodegradable plastic bags and plastic drinking straws.

Official exchange rate Yes. The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the anchor currency, at the fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. Exchange rates for other currencies are cross-rates derived from the rate for the currency concerned in the Paris foreign exchange market vis-à-vis the euro. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation. The Conference of Heads of State and Government may decide to amend the Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAMU member countries and France.

Monetary policy framework

Exchange tax	Yes.	The commission rate charged by registered intermediaries on transfers outside the WAEMU that are authorized by their clientele is 0.6%. This commission is paid back in full to the National Treasury and is a portion of its tax revenue.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized non-electronic exchange dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which must be traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The commission on foreign exchange transactions may not exceed 2%. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU applies.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect on the financial conditions for executing banknote foreign exchange transactions that involve foreign currencies and issue a transaction slip for all transactions with a client. Moreover, to provide satisfactory information to clients, they are required to (1) permanently post at their windows the rates actually charged for the different currencies and (2) post notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions on presentation of the requestor's identity document. Banks and registered banknote exchange houses are intermediaries authorized by the Ministry of Economy and Finance (MEF) to conduct foreign exchange transactions with the public. Exchange houses may conduct transactions in foreign currencies (except euros) with the BCEAO. Registered banknote exchange houses may not

		make transfers or payments in foreign currencies with other countries or maintain accounts abroad. As of December 31, 2020, there were 146 OTC dealers in Mali authorized to perform OTC operations and 13 authorized intermediary banks. The entities authorized to conduct non-electronic foreign currency transactions are authorized intermediary banks and individuals or companies authorized to conduct non-electronic transactions by decision of the minister of finance with the consent of the BCEAO. In their operations with customers, authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized OTC dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 and may be subject to a maximum commission of 2.0%.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at the rates published on the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of 655.957 per euro. The non-electronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5%, for purchases or sales, is charged on all transactions. However, no commission is charged for the following operations: (1) OTC foreign banknote exchanges conducted by state entities, government employees of WAEMU member states on mission abroad, and officials of the CB and their beneficiaries and (2) payments made by banks and financial institutions.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are allowed. As of December 31, 2020, 14 banks conducted business. There is no regulated foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may contract forward exchange cover using exchange derivatives backed by the related commercial or financial operations for (1) imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), and (3) FDI in a resident enterprise. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions in the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps. Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, or options to sell foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution. Authorized intermediary banks are required to simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur in respect of derivative instruments traded with their customers. All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used as payment for current international transactions and as capital with non-WAEMU countries.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions outside the WAEMU.
For capital transactions	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for the settlement of transactions in capital and money market instruments with non-WAEMU countries. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require MEF authorization.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following operations on derivatives and other instruments with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward contract, foreign exchange swaps, and options. Operations on derivatives with foreign banks outside the WAEMU can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Credit operations	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone may not use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account is maintained with the French Treasury that links operations account countries. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros against CFA francs are ultimately settled through a debit or credit to the operations account.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	There is a multilateral netting agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS member countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone) as part of the WAMA. All payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be made under the netting agreement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.

Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO includes the following basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Mali for the purpose of preparing the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and physical exports of means of payment and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Mali are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfers with other countries must be made through registered intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Only Malians and licensed nationals of countries with which Mali has a reciprocal agreement and who hold professional identity cards may engage in domestic trade in gold, precious materials, and fossils. There are no controls on holding gold for non-commercial purposes.
On external trade	Yes.	Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers may freely export CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from one WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc banknotes issued by the BCEAO.
Foreign currency	Yes.	The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 5,00,000; the reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They may carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler's checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler's checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.

On imports Yes.

Domestic currency Yes. Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone may freely import domestic currency (CFA franc – XOF) banknotes. However, individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving banknotes in domestic currency. BCEAO redemption of banknotes exported outside its area of issuance has been suspended. Pursuant to this measure, registered intermediary banks are not authorized to receive shipments of CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from their correspondents located outside the WAEMU area.

Foreign currency No. Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone may freely import means of payment denominated in foreign currencies. Such means of payment in excess of the equivalent of CFAF 5 million must be declared to customs. Nonresident travelers must declare to customs foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 5 million on entry and exit.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Held domestically Yes.

Approval required Yes. Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.

Held abroad Yes.

Approval required Yes. Individuals who are residents of the WAEMU temporarily staying or traveling outside of WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Approval required Yes. Intermediaries authorized in the WAEMU are authorized to open accounts in euros for the benefit of nonresidents, subject to proof of their status and actual residence. Nonresident accounts denominated in foreign currency other than euros are subject to BCEAO authorization. Nonresident foreign currency accounts are valid for a renewable period of two years. In the event of a failure to obtain renewal (through a new BCEAO authorization for foreign exchange other than the euro), these accounts must be closed. The balances of these accounts may be freely transferred abroad after verification.

Domestic currency accounts Yes.

Convertible into foreign currency Yes. Authorized intermediaries may open nonresident accounts in CFA francs and in euros, under their own responsibility, depending on the status and actual residence of the applicant. These accounts may be debited for spot purchases of foreign exchange.

Approval required No.

Blocked accounts No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget No.

Financing requirements for imports Yes.

Minimum financing requirements No.

Advance payment requirements Yes. Advance payments for imports require authorization, and importers may not acquire foreign exchange until the payment date specified in the contract.

Advance import deposits No.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports Yes. Importers may purchase foreign exchange for import payments after establishing bank payment order accounts and submitting supporting documents, but not earlier than eight days before shipment if a documentary credit is opened, or on the due date of payment if the products have already been imported.

Domiciliation requirements Yes. Import transactions from outside the CFA franc area exceeding CFAF 10 million must be made through an authorized bank.

Preshipment inspection Yes. An inspection for quality and price is required.

Letters of credit No.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses No.

Other Yes. Exchange authorization, invoices, and export–import cards are required.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures Yes. There are no import licensing requirements, but imports must be registered and permits are issued automatically.

Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of certain goods are prohibited.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Quantitative restrictions may be applied to products for public health and security reasons.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The WAEMU CET consists of four tariff brackets: 0%, 5%, 10%, and 20%. Imports from countries other than WAEMU area countries are also subject to a 1% statistical tax and a 0.8% community solidarity levy. Moreover, a cyclical import tax (taxe conjoncturelle à l'importation) and a degressive protection tax (taxe dégressive de protection) may at certain times be charged on some products. Neither of these two taxes had been applied as at end-2018. Imports from non-ECOWAS members are subject to a 0.5% community levy (CL/ECOWAS).
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Resident economic operators are required to collect and repatriate within one month of the payment due date the entire amount of sales of goods abroad in the country of origin with the bank with which the transaction is domiciled. The payment due date is specified in the trade agreement and normally falls within a period of 120 days after the goods are dispatched.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds must be surrendered by ADs to the BCEAO within 30 days of the payment due date, which may not exceed 120 days after shipment of the goods. To cover its current foreign exchange needs, the domiciling bank may hold up to 20% of its export proceeds as own foreign exchange resources. However, it must ensure that its total foreign exchange resources to cover its requirements do not exceed 5% of total customer demand deposits; otherwise, the surplus must be surrendered to the BCEAO.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds must be surrendered to authorized banks within 30 days of the payment due date. Authorized intermediaries must then surrender the foreign exchange to the BCEAO by transfer through the bank of issue. Export revenue may be surrendered to intermediaries other than banks with which the transaction is domiciled if authorized by the BCEAO. Sales of foreign exchange by exporters to ADs other than the domiciling bank are permitted, provided they furnish the domiciling bank with the documents required for the domiciliation file to be closed.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	No.

Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	As a general rule, payments abroad in amounts greater than CFAF 5,00,000 are subject to the presentation of supporting documentation.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be repatriated. Residents of the WAEMU zone are required to surrender to an authorized intermediary all revenues and income in foreign currency collected abroad or received from a nonresident within one month after the payment due date.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	All proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be surrendered to an AD within one month. Resident travelers must surrender to an authorized intermediary, within eight days of their arrival in Mali, foreign banknotes and other means of payment denominated in foreign currency worth more than the equivalent of CFAF 5,00,000.

Restrictions on use of funds No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require MOF authorization, except (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans to finance industrial and commercial operations, (2) payments required on foreign exchange derivatives transactions or raw material or commodity derivatives transactions, and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries are generally permitted.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of investments of a resident abroad must be repatriated, if the resident has no reinvestment authorization, within one month through a registered intermediary.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone's investments abroad must be repatriated and surrendered within one month to a registered intermediary, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	RCPSFM (Regional Council on Public Savings and Financial Markets) authorization is required for the following operations: (1) issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a WAEMU member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. A nonresident entity that solicits the public of the WAEMU must obtain authorization from the BCEAO as the entity in charge of regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, these purchases must be declared to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes prior to the transaction.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

MALI

	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation (Article 8, Regulation No. 09/10/CM/UEMOA).
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of domestic establishments, foreign investors must make a prior declaration to the MOF. The sale of securities for liquidation of an investment abroad must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, except those constituting a loan. Issuance of the latter to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. There is no minimum holding period.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization of the MOF based on supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries is authorized by the RCPSFM. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, except for those constituting a loan. Issuance of the latter to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.

On money market instruments	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes prior to the transaction.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance and sale of money market instruments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of money market instruments resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of money market instrument transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation (Article 8, Rule No. 09/10/CM/UEMOA).
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign money market instruments by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign money market instruments whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local money market instruments abroad. The sale of money market instruments to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue money market instruments abroad, unless they constitute a loan.
On collective investment securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes prior to the transaction.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with

MALI

Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries. Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, except for those constituting a loan. Issuance of the latter to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using derivatives. They must be backed by the residents of the WAEMU zone's imports or exports of raw materials and commodities. Residents of the WAEMU zone are not authorized to purchase raw materials or commodities on foreign markets for delivery within the framework of a derivatives transaction in raw materials or commodities.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	The purchase of derivatives by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone in the domestic market is treated as a loan contracted by a resident with a nonresident. As such, it is permitted. The purchase must be executed through an authorized intermediary and must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign exchange derivatives from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the MOF.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods. The date on which payment falls due is specified in the contract (in principle not more than 120 days after the date of shipment).
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.

MALI

Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These credits require MOF approval. Outward transfers to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the MEF and substantiated by documentation.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The granting of guarantees and sureties is subject to MOF approval. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to MOF approval, and submission of supporting documentation.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered to be direct investments and therefore require prior declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.	Direct investment implies control of a company or enterprise. Mere participation is not considered direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company whose shares are quoted on a stock exchange. Direct investment implies control of a company or enterprise. All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	FDI, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes. An investment is not considered a direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of the company.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the proceeds of liquidation is subject to MOF authorization. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted but must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.

MALI

Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These purchases require MOF authorization.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company are allowed. They require declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.	Sales by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone to residents of the WAEMU zone require the submission of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary that handles the settlement and must be declared to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.	Personal capital transactions between residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through the BCEAO, the postal service, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless authorization is obtained from the MOF.
Loans	Yes.	The regulations governing securities and investments apply.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions require MOF authorization. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation, unless they are licensed and included on the list of financial institutions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions may be made freely, but are subject to declaration for statistical purposes to the MOF when granted and when repaid.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to MOF and BCEAO authorization. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant anti-money-laundering and terrorism financing provisions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	Immigrants with resident status must obtain MOF authorization to settle debts contracted abroad while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	These transactions are subject to MOF authorization if the value exceeds CFAF 5,00,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	Yes.	Foreign accounts (in foreign currencies or CFA francs) of nonresidents of the WAEMU zone who become residents of the WAEMU zone must be closed. However, these individuals may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. New transfers to these accounts require MOF approval.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	These transfers are conducted freely through authorized intermediaries, subject to the presentation of supporting documents and compliance with the relevant provisions on combating money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect September 28, 2012. Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 sets the deadline (December 31, 2013) for including this law in the domestic legislation of the WAMU members. It was incorporated into Mali's domestic legal framework with the enactment of Law No. 2014/032, on July 17, 2014.

Borrowing abroad	No.	Foreign borrowing is unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the MEF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions for their own account or the accounts of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements. In accordance with Regulation No. 09/2010/CM/UEMOA on the External Financial Relations of the WAEMU Member States, to cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency. The total amount of these assets may not exceed 5% of the clients' outstanding demand deposits. Assets in excess of foreign currency requirements must be surrendered to the BCEAO.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Commercial lending is allowed. Financial credits are subject to MOF authorization following BCEAO approval.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	There are no explicit regulations regarding these transactions, but MOF authorization is required with BCEAO approval.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These purchases require MOF authorization if their issuance was not approved by the RCPSFM.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.	A reserve requirement of 3% applies to WAEMU banks. Demand deposits, other deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the base for the calculation of the required reserves. The base for the calculation of the required reserves to be held with the CB includes customer foreign currency deposits.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	According to the prudential framework applicable to WAEMU banks and financial institutions that perform banking operations, the minimum standard liquid asset requirement is 75%.
Interest rate controls	No.	The maximum for all lending rates is set at 15%.
Credit controls	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and in general, any advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to MOF authorization, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.	Banking regulations make no distinction among resident deposit accounts, nonresident deposit accounts, and foreign deposit accounts.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company do not require prior authorization. They require declaration to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Any overdraft or advance granted to a nonresident requires MOF authorization with BCEAO approval.
Investment regulations	Yes.	The regulations governing direct investment apply.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to

MALI

		MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may, depending on their volume, be subject to authorization by the minister of finance. The banking law stipulates that investment by any person in a bank that would have the effect of changing the minority and/or majority voting rights requires authorization by the minister of finance.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain open foreign exchange positions. ### Changes during 2020 and 2021

No significant changes occurred in the exchange and trade system.

MALTA(Position as of July 31, 2021)Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership		September 11, 1968.
Article VIII	Yes.	Date of acceptance: November 30, 1994.
Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2020.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Malta implements all UN and EU sanctions which are directly applicable under Maltese law as per the National Interest (Enabling Powers) Act, cap 365 of the Laws of Malta. Malta therefore maintains restrictive measures on the following countries or specified related persons and entities: Afghanistan, Belarus, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Burundi, Central African Republic, China, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Guinea, Guinea-Bissau, Haiti, the Islamic Republic of Iran, Iraq, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Lebanon, Libya, Mali, Moldova, Montenegro, Myanmar, Nicaragua, Russia, Serbia, Somalia, Sudan, South Sudan, Syria, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, Venezuela, Yemen, and Zimbabwe.
		Malta also implements the horizontal sanctions regimes consisting of the following: Terrorism (2001), Chemical Weapons (2018), Cyber Attacks (2019), and Human Rights (2021).
		The Blocking Statute (1996) as amended in 2018. This measure provides for the extra territorial application of certain legislation adopted by the US. On November 22, 1996, the EU Council decided to respond to the extra-territorial measures taken by the US which purport to affect EU Member States on natural or legal persons, their activities and interests. Through this measure, Member States are to take necessary measures to protect the interest of the natural or legal persons affected by the extra-territorial application of a third country's laws.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Malta's framework legislation, the National Interest (Enabling Powers) Act provides for the possibility to enact national restrictive measures. Although no persons have yet been designated, effective June 23, 2020, Malta enacted a subsidiary legislation entitled "Measures in support of actions addressing smuggling activities in the Central Mediterranean Regulations" to provide a prior authorization procedure for boats going to Libya and which are not covered by EU restrictive measures.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	Yes.	The currency of Malta is the euro. The Central Bank of Malta (CBM) issued the following €2 commemorative coins: (1) Ta' Skorba Temples, the fifth coin of a series of seven coins depicting Maltese prehistoric sites, and (2) "Games," the fifth and final coin in a series

Free floating	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Malta participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks, which normally takes place at 2:15 p.m. Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community.” These include a “high level of employment” and “sustainable and non-inflationary growth.” Effective July 7, 2021, price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term. Previously, it was defined as inflation rate at levels below, but close to, 2% over the medium term.

MALTA

Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	ADs may freely determine their exchange rates and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Twenty-four credit institutions, including two branches from non-EU countries, are licensed under the Banking Act 1994. In addition, one branch established in Malta under the EU freedom of establishment rules may also undertake such activities. Moreover, 55 financial institutions are licensed to operate under the Financial Institutions Act (FIA) 1994. A number of these institutions are licensed by the Malta Financial Services Authority (MFSA) to deal in foreign exchange. Financial institutions may, in addition to the activities cited above, carry out other operations under the FIA, in accordance with their specific licenses (refer to Schedule of Activities under the FIA). They may maintain accounts with foreign counterparties and, in addition to dealing in foreign currency notes, may make foreign exchange payments and payment transfers on behalf of their customers. All institutions licensed under the FIA may deal directly with the CBM.

Schedules that need to be accompanied by a report prepared by a certified auditor and payment of provisional tax on capital gains and/or duty (where applicable):

Income Tax on Capital Gains

- Schedule C for transfers of a controlling interest;
- Schedule D for transfers of a non-controlling interest;
- Schedule E for transfers exempt under the provisions of the Income Tax Act.

The provisions in the Capital Gains Rules requiring the submission of Schedules C, D, and E were introduced with effect from February 24, 2006.

Duty on Documents and Transfers

- Sixth Schedule

Approval from the Commissioner for Revenue is required in the case of transfers which are exempt from duty under the provisions of the Duty on Documents and Transfers Act.

The provisions in the Duty on Documents and Transfers Rules requiring the submission of the sixth Schedule were introduced with effect from May 25, 2010.

In reference to the requirements from an Income Tax and Duty on Documents perspective, the relevant schedules are required with respect to all transactions in securities of companies registered in Malta (but not listed on the Malta Stock Exchange) and this has been the case since the introduction of the relevant provisions in the Capital Gains Rules and Duty on Documents and Transfers Rules.

Yes.

In case of transactions in securities in companies registered in Malta but not listed on the Malta Stock Exchange, transferors/transferees are required to submit relevant schedules accompanied by a report prepared by a certified auditor and payment of provisional tax on capital gains and/or duty (where applicable). In cases where transfers of shares are exempt from duty, approval from the Commissioner for Revenue is required. If a nonresident person as defined per Article 2 of Cap. 246 acquires shares in a company which holds immovable property, an Acquisition of Immovable Property permit would be required.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	No.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	Primarily, the Payment Accounts Directive (PAD) seeks to ensure access to basic payment accounts with credit institutions to enable all consumers legally resident in the EU to have access to basic banking service, independently of their financial situation or place of residence.

In particular, the PAD applies to consumers who intend to open and use a payment account on a cross-border basis. The PAD facilitates the opening of accounts on a cross-border level by allowing the consumer to ask the new payment service provider to set up on the new payment account all or part of standing orders for credit transfers, accept direct debits from the date specified by the consumer, and provide the consumer with information on the new payment account.

The PAD also aims to enhance transparency and comparability of fee information about payment accounts to make customers more aware of the fees and charges by payment services providers. Additionally, the PAD provides for more efficient switching of cross-border payment accounts by establishing minimum standards.

The provisions of the PAD have been transposed into Maltese legislation by means of the Credit Institutions and Financial Institutions (Payment Accounts) Regulations.

Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.

The CRR requires credit institutions to allocate capital against foreign exchange risk. Pursuant to Article 351 of the Regulation, “If the sum of an institution’s overall net foreign exchange position, calculated in accordance with the procedure set out in Article 352, exceeds 2% of its total own funds, the institution must calculate an own funds requirement for foreign exchange risks. The own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk must be the sum of its overall net foreign exchange position in the reporting currency, multiplied by 8%.” Therefore, a credit institution’s total net open foreign exchange position is subject to a prudential capital requirement of 8% of its own funds. Financial institutions licensed under local legislation may also be required to comply with this requirement. Foreign exchange risk requirements apply to the net foreign exchange position for all business activities of an institution (that is, trading and banking books). Thus, calculation of the net spot position in a particular currency includes all assets minus all liabilities, including accrued interest, in the currency in question. These requirements are not based on the principle of the residence of assets and liabilities but on the foreign exchange risk of currencies against the base currency of the assets and liabilities.

The provisions of the CRR have been transposed into the national regulatory framework by means of amendments to the Banking Act, subsidiary legislation, and several Banking Rules.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition No.

In terms of Directive 2009/138/EC (Solvency II Directive), insurance companies must only invest in assets and instruments the risks of which they can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, report, and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs. In addition, insurance companies must ensure that assets held to cover technical provisions are invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities, and in the best interest of all policyholders and insureds taking into account any disclosed policy objectives. The provisions of the Solvency II Directive have been transposed into national legislation through amendments to the Insurance Business Act as well as new and amended subsidiary legislation.

Pension funds No.

In accordance with prudential regulations, pension funds (that is, occupational pension funds, personal pension funds, and related investment vehicles) are required to comply with prudential investment restrictions to ensure diversification and minimize exposure to single entities or issuers. Certain borrowing restrictions also apply.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents No.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad No.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally No.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition No.

Investment firms and collective investment funds No.

Effective June 26, 2021, a new prudential regime was introduced for investment firms – the Investment Firm Regulation and Directive. Investment firms are subject to newly introduced K-Factors, which will be used to determine own funds requirements. The K-Factors are quantitative indicators to accurately reflect the risks which investment firms face. There are three groups of K-Factors: risk to customers, risk to market access, and risk to the firm itself. Class 2 Firms will be required to calculate their K-Factors when assessing their own funds requirements. Class 1 Firms are to calculate their own funds requirements as per the CRR, whereas Class 3 Firms are to apply either the Fixed Overheads Requirement or the Permanent Minimum Capital Requirement. Moreover, certain collective investment funds are subject to investment and borrowing restrictions. Retail collective investment funds are subject to restrictions on investments in securities, such as exposure limits to credit institutions, other collective investment funds, and financial derivative instruments. Retail collective investment funds may borrow up to 10% of their assets for investment purposes and are allowed to have a global exposure of up to 100% of NAV (calculated according to the Value-at-Risk or Commitment Method). Experienced professional investment funds may borrow up to 100% of the NAV of their funds. All other funds are subject to leverage requirements as stipulated in the AIFMD 2011/61/EU (calculated according to the Gross and Commitment Methods and using the conversion methodologies stipulated in the Directive). In terms of the loan fund rules, a number of investment restrictions are also present for such funds investing through loans including the restriction relating to short selling, reuse collateral, and the use of leverage of not more than 200% of the NAV.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents No.

The regulatory requirements do not impose restrictions on the source and location of assets.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad No.

The regulatory requirements do not impose restrictions on the source and location of assets unless this is self-imposed in the Prospectus.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally No.

The regulatory requirements do not impose restrictions on the source and location of assets.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition No.

The regulatory requirements in the Rules for Investment Services Providers and related Guidance Notes do not impose restrictions on the source and location of assets relating to currency matching. Although the Rules for Investment Services Providers and related Guidance do not make specific reference to currency matching, the license holders are required to employ a risk management process which enables them to monitor and measure at any time the risk of the positions and their contribution to the overall risk profile, including currency/exchange risk. In addition, UCITS and Alternative Investment Fund Managers are required to establish and maintain a permanent risk management function.

The Central Bank of Mauritania (BCM) intervenes to regulate the exchange market according to its exchange rate policy objectives (smoothing the exchange rate and the projected level of official reserves). Total bids and asks as well as the amounts settled with the fixing rate are published daily on the BCM website. A summary statement of market turnover data is updated daily on the BCM website. From May 2020, the ouguiya followed an appreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a crawl-like arrangement.

Official exchange rate

Yes.

The official or reference exchange rate is used by the BCM, banks, and exchange bureaus to set the bid and ask rates offered to customers, with a distinction being made between account operations and OTC transactions. These rates are also used by the customs services and other economic operators for contractual, accounting, and statistical purposes.

The official or reference exchange rate is determined as follows: for the US dollar (reference rate), effective March 31, 2020, the arithmetic average of the weighted average rates of purchases on the exchange market and that of sales on the same market (Instruction No. 02/GR/2020). Previously, the latest fixing was used. For other currencies, it is calculated as a cross-rate between the US dollar and the respective parities of the currencies with the US dollar on the international market published by Refinitiv.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	The monetary framework pursues multiple targets. The first is to ensure price stability. In addition, without prejudice to the objective of price stability, the BCM pursues the stability of the financial system and contributes to the implementation of the general economic policies defined by the Government.
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	ADs may freely determine their bid-ask spreads and commissions on foreign exchange transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	As of December 31, 2020, 18 commercial banks and 19 exchange bureaus were licensed by the BCM to deal in foreign exchange with their clients. The BCM is the only institution authorized to grant licenses to banks and exchange bureaus. Banks must offset their clients' purchase and sale orders in US dollars and euro and present a single purchase or sale order by currency to the organized foreign exchange market, depending on whether the net balance after offset is positive or negative. Exchange bureaus may not engage in exchange operations directly with the BCM. They engage in currency exchange by buying and selling banknotes and receive and transfer funds in foreign exchange on behalf of their clients in accordance with the exchange regulations. However, they are not authorized to open customer accounts. Nonetheless, they may have accounts abroad and make payments and transfers in foreign exchange on behalf of their clients.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.

MAURITANIA

Auction	No.
Fixing	Yes.	The BCM conducts fixing sessions to allocate foreign exchange to the banks and to itself and to determine the equilibrium rate based on supply. During the fixing sessions, banks submit purchase and sale orders with exchange rates, which are classified in descending order for purchases and ascending order for sales; an equilibrium rate emerges from the comparison of these orders, which is the highest selling rate that finds a buyer. The BCM may intervene (after calculating the provisional equilibrium rate). Purchase orders retained in full or in part on the foreign exchange market are unwound at the proposed rates, within the limit of 2% of the market-clearing price, with day value date "D." A purchase commission of 0.75% is charged. Sale orders are unwound at the final market-clearing price minus a sales commission of 0.25%. The ouguiya equivalent of the cumulative bids submitted by banks at an exchange market session must not exceed their free reserves in ouguiyas at the previous day's close. Bids that exceed the limit are automatically rejected. The BCM has issued an instruction prohibiting the manipulation of exchange rates for transactions on the official foreign exchange market.

Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An inoperative arrangement exists within the framework of the Arab Maghreb Union.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The BCM is responsible for drafting, implementing, and monitoring the foreign exchange regulations.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	Imports and exports of gold, except manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, require BCM authorization. A recent increase in the output of artisanal gold led the BCM to open two offices for the purchase of gold on December 28, 2018, in the town of Zouérate, and in the town of Chami.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers are not allowed to take out domestic banknotes and coins.
Foreign currency	Yes.	BCM permission is required for residents to export foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of MRU 300,000. In such cases, documentary evidence of the source of the funds must be presented. Any additional requests (for amounts exceeding that ceiling) to buy foreign exchange for travel, submitted to the BCM through an AD, are fulfilled based on the supporting documentation. Banks and exchange bureaus may automatically sell foreign currency up to the equivalent of MRU 6,000 to nonresidents who prove their legal entry into Mauritania (appropriately stamped passport). In excess of this amount, purchases of foreign exchange (surrender) are authorized after deducting MRU 2,000 for each day of stay in Mauritania and on presentation of the required documents. Resident and nonresident holders of accounts in foreign currency maintained with a licensed banking intermediary may export any amount of foreign banknotes withdrawn from foreign exchange accounts in accordance with the existing exchange regulations.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers are not allowed to import domestic banknotes and coins.
Foreign currency	No.	Imports of foreign banknotes exceeding the equivalent of US$3,000 must be declared.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Licensed intermediary banks may freely open accounts in foreign currency on behalf of residents. These accounts may be credited with: (1) foreign currency transfers from abroad; (2) transfers by debit to another account in the same currency belonging to the same account holder; (3) dividends and real net proceeds from capital transactions and the sale or liquidation of investments by imports of foreign currency; (4) the amounts of checks denominated in foreign currency drawn on foreign banks to the order of the holder; (5) interest on the accounts concerned; and (6) payments of foreign banknotes. (Amounts in excess of MRU 100,000 must be declared to the BCM.)

These accounts may be debited for: (1) withdrawals of foreign currency notes by the account holder, exclusively for the account holder's travel needs and in accordance with the existing exchange regulations; (2) foreign transfers ordered by the account holder, in compliance with the existing exchange regulations; (3) checks and transfers issued by the account holder, for foreign exchange payments authorized under the existing exchange regulations; (4) foreign exchange sold; and (5) bank commissions charged on these accounts.

Accounts opened by exchange bureaus with primary banks may be credited by deposits of foreign currency banknotes in the context of their business activities. Foreign currency cash withdrawals by the account holder are limited to MRU 300,000 for the account holder's travel needs. The limit of MRU 300,000 is applicable to each trip. The balances of these accounts may be transferred abroad in keeping with the prevailing regulations. Transfers abroad to finance trade transactions are authorized in accordance with the exchange regulations.

Approval required No.

Held abroad No. Licensed banks and foreign exchange bureaus may freely open accounts with banks abroad to accommodate foreign exchange transactions. Foreign exchange investment operations abroad of natural or legal persons residing in Mauritania must be carried out through Mauritanian banks, in accordance with the terms established by foreign exchange regulations. Pursuant to Article 10 of Law No. 2004-042 of July 25, 2004, any natural or legal person of Mauritanian nationality who has a residence in Mauritania is required to declare their assets and liabilities abroad to the BCM.

Approval required No.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad No.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency No. New accounts in domestic currency convertible to foreign exchange may not be opened. Those opened before 2000 are permitted in accordance with the provisions of Circular No. GR/005/2000 of which certain provisions were amended by Instruction No. 004/GR/05.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes. Licensed intermediary banks may freely open foreign exchange accounts on behalf of nonresidents. These accounts may be credited with: (1) foreign currency transfers from abroad; (2) transfers by debit to another account in the same currency belonging to the same account holder; (3) dividends and real net proceeds from capital transactions and the sale or liquidation of investments made by imports of foreign currency; (4) the proceeds of cashed checks in foreign currency drawn on foreign banks to the order of the holder; (5) interest on the accounts; and (6) payments of foreign banknotes. (Amounts above MRU 100,000 must be declared to the BCM.)

MAURITANIA

These accounts may be debited for: (1) withdrawals of foreign currency notes by the account holder, exclusively for the account holder's travel needs and in accordance with exchange regulations; (2) foreign transfers by the account holder, in compliance with exchange regulations; (3) checks and transfers issued by the account holder, for foreign exchange payments authorized under exchange regulations; (4) foreign exchange sold; and (5) bank commissions on these accounts.

Approval required No.

Domestic currency accounts Yes. Nonresidents may open domestic currency accounts. Balances on these accounts are freely transferable in accordance with the provisions of the foreign exchange regulations. Existing convertible ouguiya accounts may be credited in the same manner as foreign exchange accounts.

Convertible into foreign currency No. Existing nonresident accounts in convertible ouguiyas may be converted, but new convertible accounts may not be opened.

Approval required No.

Blocked accounts No.

Imports and Import Payments

Lending locally in foreign exchange	No.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Foreign currency transactions between residents are subject to BCM authorization.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Banks must hold required reserves in their current accounts at the CB for domestic and foreign currency deposits of residents and nonresidents pursuant to Instruction Nos. 3/GR/2006, 18/GR/2008, and 7/GR/2017. The required reserve base in ouguiya is the average of customer deposits. It is calculated over a period of four consecutive weeks based on total ouguiya deposits at the end of each week. The amount of the required reserve is calculated by applying the required reserve ratio in effect to the reserve base. The reserve holding period is four weeks beginning one week after the calculation period. During this period, the average daily balance of banks' ordinary current accounts in ouguiya at the CB must be greater than or equal to the reserve requirement. The required reserve ratio is 6%. Any deficiency of required reserves in ouguiya results in a penalty assessed on the deficiency during the holding period. The rate applied corresponds to the BCM policy rate plus 8 percentage points. The base for required reserves in foreign currency is the daily average of foreign currency demand deposits, term deposits, and other amounts due foreign currency, less the special accounts of projects financed from external resources. The daily average of the end-of-day balances of the current accounts in foreign currencies of each bank over the maintenance period must be at least equal to 7% of the daily average of the base. The holding period is 2 weeks. Any deficiency gives rise to a penalty a working day, applied on the amount of the insufficiency converted in ouguiya at the sale price of the BCM. The rate applied corresponds to the BCM policy rate plus 8 percentage points.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	Liquid asset requirements apply for both foreign and domestic currencies. The liquid asset requirement is set at a minimum of, effective January 1, 2020, 100% (previously 20%), which is the ratio between the high-quality liquid asset and the net cash outflows over a one-month horizon. The calculation of the new ratio complies with Basel III rules.
Interest rate controls	Yes.	Current accounts in foreign currency opened by primary banks with the CB do not earn interest.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.
Reserve requirements	No.	Banks must hold required reserves on resident and nonresident foreign currency deposits in their current accounts with the BCM. Resident and nonresident accounts are subject to the same treatment with regard to the reserve requirement (currency of denomination, remuneration, and penalty).
Liquid asset requirements	No.	Liquid asset requirements apply for both domestic and foreign currencies. The liquid asset requirement is, effective January 1, 2020, set at a minimum of 100% (previously 20%), which is the ratio between the high-quality liquid asset and the net cash outflows over a one-month horizon. Floating

Yes. The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are floating. The exchange rate of the rupee follows movements on the international foreign exchange market as well as domestic demand and supply conditions. Interventions by the Bank of Mauritius (BOM) in the foreign exchange market are limited to situations of excessive exchange rate volatility, shortages of foreign exchange on the market, and accumulation of foreign exchange reserves. Effective August 7, 2020, the BOM publishes the amount bought or sold and the rate of intervention by close of business on the day the intervention takes place. Information on foreign exchange intervention is also disseminated in the Monthly Statistical Bulletin and Annual Report of the Bank.

Since the onset of COVID-19 with an abrupt decline in tourism inflows, the BOM has stepped up the frequency of its foreign exchange interventions and sold US dollars to banks and foreign exchange dealers. Additionally, the BOM has conducted bilateral sales of foreign exchange to the State Trading Corporation (STC), which is the sole importer of petroleum products and an importer of basic commodities. Interventions were carried out at market rates, within the bid quotes from banks.

Free floating

Yes. The official exchange rate (referred to as the central rate of the BOM) is used for the valuation and recording of BOM assets and liabilities. The central rate is computed as an average of the mid dealt rates of USDMUR of the last three working days, with the dealt rate being the weighted average rate of market deals of US$20,000 and above as reported by banks and foreign exchange dealers. The official exchange rate is also used for conducting government transactions in foreign exchange. Specifically, government transactions are conducted at the official rate (that is, average of mid dealt rates for past three days) adjusted by a margin. The margin is added/subtracted to/from the official rate to determine the buying and selling rates. The margin varies according to the currency being transacted against the Mauritian rupee and represents costs incurred by the BOM for conducting the transaction, that is, SWIFT, negative interest, etc. Using the SWIFT network involves fees which the BOM passes through to the government in the margin. The official rate is not published.

Section 4 of the BOM Act 2004 stipulates that the primary object of the Bank is to maintain price stability and promote orderly and balanced economic development. The MPC of the BOM normally meets on a quarterly basis to formulate and determine the monetary policy to be conducted by the BOM to maintain price stability, taking into account Mauritius' orderly and balanced economic development. The MPC determines the Key Repo Rate (KRR), the policy rate, after reviewing international and domestic economic and financial developments while also assessing the balance of risks to the growth and inflation outlook. Section 5(2) of the BOM Act 2004 stipulates that the Bank will determine, with the concurrence of the Minister of Finance, the accepted range of the rate of inflation during a given period consistent with the pursuit of price stability. However, the provisions of this section are yet to be implemented.

In December 2006, the BOM introduced a new framework for the conduct of monetary policy. The Lombard Rate, which used to be the signaling rate of the monetary policy stance, was replaced by the KRR, with the overnight interbank money market interest rate as the operational target. The framework was based on a corridor of  $\pm 50$  basis points for the KRR, within which the overnight interbank interest rate was expected to move. The BOM would conduct repurchase transactions to inject/absorb liquidity in the banking system. Two additional instruments were introduced in April 2008 – the Special Deposits Facility and the Overnight Facility, while the corridor was widened to  $\pm 125$  basis points around the KRR. Since early 2018, the BOM has been focusing on the 91-Day Bill yield as its short-term operating target. After every MPC meeting, the governor holds a press conference on the same day to explain the decision of the MPC. The MPC also announces its decision through a Media Release that outlines the assessment of prevailing economic and financial conditions and forecasts for inflation and real GDP growth. The Media Release is posted on the BOM's website simultaneous to the holding of the press conference. The MPC minutes are released on the BOM's website exactly two weeks after the meeting and also contain the voting pattern of members.

The BOM Act 2004 has been amended to require the BOM to publish a report on its monetary policy at least twice a year. The report includes a review of price and financial stability and an assessment of the policies thereof. Accordingly, in its Annual Report for the year ended 30 June 2020, the BOM provided a review of the MPC meetings held during the financial year 2019–2020.

Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Banks, foreign exchange dealers, and money-changers are free to set their exchange rates.

MAURITIUS

Effective March 24, 2020, the BOM introduced a USDMUR swap arrangement with commercial banks for an amount of US$100 million to support import-oriented businesses. The initial swap arrangement was effective until June 30, 2020. Effective July 13, 2020, the amount was increased by an additional amount of US$100 million, and the facility was made available until December 31, 2020. Effective January 1, 2021, the facility was extended until and ended effective June 30, 2021.

This facility was a temporary measure taken by BOM to ease the liquidity situation in the domestic foreign exchange market. There are no outstanding drawdowns under the facility.

Effective March 26, 2020, the BOM has started servicing the foreign exchange requirements of the STC, which is the sole importer of petroleum products and a major importer of basic commodities. Sales of foreign exchange to STC is ongoing and the BOM will continue to do so until further notice.

Auction	Yes.	The BOM conducts a single price foreign exchange auction at its initiative. The foreign exchange auction is conducted with banks and foreign exchange dealers. Effective October 6, 2020, the BOM resumed intervention with foreign exchange dealers after a long hiatus in response to the effect of the COVID-19 pandemic on the domestic market. The BOM had last intervened with foreign exchange dealers on February 4, 2015.
Fixing	No.	The bids received normally reflect participants' demand, and the allotment is made on a pro-rata basis depending on the amount the BOM would buy or sell. Counteroffers are made to all bidders (including outliers) at the price determined by the BOM. The auction/counteroffer price is determined by the BOM based on banks' bid prices, the prevailing USDMUR market rate, and international movements in EURUSD. The rate of intervention is set within the minimum and maximum rates bid by participants. There is no set frequency of foreign exchange auctions.
Interbank market	Yes.	Banks and foreign exchange dealers trade among themselves at freely determined exchange rates. The BOM is the sole institution that grants licenses to banks, foreign exchange dealers, and money-changers. As at end-December 2020, 19 banks and 6 foreign exchange dealers were permitted to carry out transactions in the interbank foreign exchange market
Over the counter	Yes.	Banks, foreign exchange dealers, and money-changers transact in foreign exchange with clients over the counter.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Banks and foreign exchange dealers may engage in forward transactions.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	No.	As per the Insurance (Long-Term Insurance Business Solvency) Rules 2007 and Insurance (General Insurance Business Solvency) Rules 2007, insurers’ investment concentration limits may be as follows: (1) The aggregate value of investments as reported on the balance sheet by an insurer in any corporation, commodity or group of related corporations, except property, whose shares are listed on a licensed exchange in Mauritius or listed on such exchanges as are specified in the Second Schedule, may not exceed 10% of the assets of the insurer.

(2) The aggregate value of investments as reported on the balance sheet by an insurer in any corporation, commodity or group of related corporations, except property, whose shares are other than shares described in paragraph (2) above, may not exceed 5% of the assets of the insurer.

(3) An insurer may invest up to 10% of its assets in any property.

(4) When an insurer and its related company, other than a long term insurance company, make an investment in any corporation or commodity, the aggregate value of that investment in that corporation or commodity may not exceed:

In the case of listed shares described in paragraph (2), 10% of the assets of the insurer; and in the case of shares described in paragraph (3), 5% of the assets of the insurer.

(5) The aggregate value of investments of an insurer in one or more of its related companies may not exceed 10% of the assets of the insurer.

(6) When an insurer is a branch of a foreign company: the aggregate value of investments reported in its balance sheet in any corporation, commodity or group of related corporations, except property, whose shares are listed on a licensed exchange in Mauritius or listed on such exchanges as are specified in the Second Schedule, may not exceed 10% of the assets of the insurer;

the aggregate value of investments reported in its balance sheet in any corporation, commodity or group of related corporations, except property, whose shares are other than shares described in subparagraph (1), may not exceed 5% of the assets of the insurer.

(7) The branch of a foreign company may not invest more than 10% of its assets in any property. Property includes direct investment in Investment Properties, mortgages, and Land and Building for insurer's own use.

It is worth noting that insurers may invest beyond the above prescribed investments limit provided they are solvent as per the Insurance (Long-Term Insurance Business Solvency) Rules 2007 and Insurance (General Insurance Business Solvency) Rules 2007 (as appropriate).

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	No.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	As per the Guideline on Credit Concentration Risks (2019) issued by BOM, the same limits apply to credit exposures to both single customers or group of connected counterparties, irrespective of whether a credit facility is extended in Mauritius or provided to a counterparty based outside Mauritius. Effective September 4, 2020, the Bank issued a Guideline on Cross-Border Exposure which supplements the existing Guidelines issued by BOM and provides a set of additional minimum standards that would need to be adhered to by banks in respect of their cross-border exposures, that is, exposures to a counterparty or group of connected counterparties based outside Mauritius or whose majority of operational cash flows is derived from operations in a jurisdiction other than Mauritius. The guideline requires banks to have a board-approved policy on cross-border exposure and inter alia sets out, in respect of cross-border exposure: (1) clearly defined roles and responsibilities of the board of directors, control functions, and external auditors in respect of cross-border exposures; (2) specific due diligence to be conducted on counterparties, jurisdictions, and third parties involved in such exposures; (3) guidance on the risk appetite framework, risk identification and assessment and risk monitoring; (4) requirements for specialized lending and silent guarantees; (5) requirements for credit risk management and risk monitoring in addition to those prescribed in the Guideline on Credit Risk Management and Guideline on Country Risk Management.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Subject to compliance with additional criteria set out in the Guideline on Credit Concentration Risk (2019), subsidiaries and branches of foreign banks may apply different thresholds for exposures denominated in currencies other than Mauritian rupee, applicable to both credit extended in Mauritius or provided to counterparties based outside Mauritius.

For banks other than subsidiaries and branches of foreign banks, the credit exposure, denominated in currencies other than the Mauritian rupee, must be within the following limits:

- (1) aggregate credit exposure to any single customer may not exceed 25% of the bank's Tier 1 capital;
- (2) aggregate credit exposure to any group of connected counterparties may not exceed 40% of the bank's Tier 1 capital; and
- (3) aggregate large credit exposures to all customers and groups of connected counterparties may not exceed 800% of the bank's Tier 1 capital.

The aggregate credit exposure, in currencies other than the Mauritian rupee, of a subsidiary of a foreign bank must be within the following limits:

- (1) aggregate credit exposure to any single customer may not exceed 50% of the bank's Tier 1 capital;
- (2) aggregate credit exposure to any group of connected counterparties may not exceed 75% of the bank's Tier 1 capital; and
- (3) aggregate large credit exposures to all customers and groups of connected counterparties may not exceed 1200% of the bank's Tier 1 capital. This limit is exclusive of the limit of 800% imposed in Mauritian rupee denominated credit.

For credit exposure of a branch of a foreign bank in currencies other than the Mauritian rupee, there is no limit vis-à-vis the Tier 1 capital of the branch.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange

Yes.

The acquisition of these securities falls under the Guideline on Credit Concentration Risk, in which "credit exposure/facility" means a commitment by a financial institution to provide funds or substitute of funds, including investment in fixed dated securities/debentures and off-balance sheet funds to a customer or group of connected counterparties on a secured or unsecured basis.

For banks other than subsidiaries and branches of foreign banks, the credit exposure, denominated in currencies other than the Mauritian rupee, must be within the following limits:

- (1) aggregate credit exposure to any single customer may not exceed 25% of the bank's Tier 1 capital;
- (2) aggregate credit exposure to any group of connected counterparties may not exceed 40% of the bank's Tier 1 capital; and
- (3) aggregate large credit exposures to all customers and groups of connected counterparties may not exceed 800% of the bank's Tier 1 capital.

The aggregate credit exposure, in currencies other than the Mauritian rupee, of a subsidiary of a foreign bank must be within the following limits:

- (1) aggregate credit exposure to any single customer may not exceed 50% of the bank's Tier 1 capital;
- (2) aggregate credit exposure to any group of connected counterparties may not exceed 75% of the bank's Tier 1 capital; and
- (3) aggregate large credit exposures to all customers and groups of connected counterparties may not exceed 1200% of the bank's Tier 1 capital. This limit is exclusive of the limit of 800% imposed in Mauritian rupee denominated credit.

For credit exposure of a branch of a foreign bank in currencies other than the Mauritian rupee, there is no limit vis-à-vis the Tier 1 capital of the branch.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts Yes.

Reserve requirements

Yes. Foreign currency deposits of residents (excluding Global Business Companies), irrespective of whether these deposits are used to finance Segment A or Segment B activities, are subject to the Cash Reserve Requirement (CRR). However, all deposits of Global Business Companies which are used to finance Segment A activity are subject to the CRR.

Yes. Effective January 31, 2020, banks had to maintain a LCR of 100% in MUR, 100% (previously 80%) in material foreign currencies, and 100% (previously 80%) on a consolidated basis.

Effective September 24, 2020, the Guideline on Liquidity Risk Management was revised primarily to provide banks with some flexibility regarding the LCR for foreign currency in response of the COVID-19 pandemic. Specifically, the following provisions were added:

(1) Contractual committed liquidity facilities in foreign currency from the BOM may receive a 100% inflow rate subject to the following conditions:

- a) The committed liquidity facility must be supported by unencumbered collateral. The collateral should not be included in the stock of high-quality liquid assets (HQLA).
- b) The remaining contractual maturity of the liquidity facility must exceed 30 days.
- c) The committed liquidity facility must be irrevocable prior to maturity.
- d) The bank must ensure that it has appropriate arrangements in place to meet its liquidity requirements after the expiration of the committed facility.
- e) The aggregate value of such committed liquidity facilities to be considered as inflows may not comprise more than 15% of the total stock of HQLA.

(2) A new section on “Transitory deposits” was added, which reads as follows: Notwithstanding paragraph 47 of this Appendix, large wholesale foreign currency deposits of transitory nature from distinct depositors may be excluded from outflows for the purpose of computing the LCR subject to the following conditions:

- a) The value of the deposit from the distinct depositor should amount to at least MUR20 billion, or equivalent amount in other currencies, and should be kept at the bank for a maximum period of 3 days;
- b) Such deposits should be fully covered by the same amount of balances held with other banks in the same currency;
- c) The balances held with other banks covering the deposits should be excluded from inflows for the purpose of computing LCR;
- d) Firm instructions should be obtained from the depositors confirming that the deposit would be kept for a maximum period of 3 days;
- e) The bank should have policies and limits in place to ensure that its balances with other banks are duly diversified; and
- f) The details of such deposits and the corresponding balances held with other banks which have been excluded from the computation of the LCR should be submitted in the format provided by the BOM together with the returns on LCR.

Effective January 11, 2021, the minimum value of the deposit from the distinct depositor under Section 48 (a) of the Guideline on Liquidity Risk Management was changed from MUR20 billion to MUR12 billion (or equivalent amount in other currencies), and the Free floating	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are free floating; the exchange rate of the peso is determined in the foreign exchange market.

The Foreign Exchange Commission (FEC), comprised of members of Banco de México (Mexico's Central Bank, BM, acronym in Spanish) and the MOF, determines the foreign exchange rate policy. The FEC does not target or defend any exchange rate level. In February 2017, the FEC announced an intervention mechanism through a foreign exchange hedging program. The foreign exchange hedging is auctioned through non-deliverable forwards.

In this regard, as a response to the surge in global financial market volatility because of the spread of COVID-19, effective March 9, 2020, the FEC announced an increase to the foreign exchange hedging program, authorizing up to US$30 billion (previously US$20 billion) of non-deliverable forwards. During March 2020, the FEC announced two auctions of US$2 billion through non-deliverable forwards, on March 12, 2020, and March 18, 2020, respectively.

At its maturity, each outstanding amount must be rolled over under a roll-over auction until the FEC instructs otherwise. The data on interventions are published on the Bank's website immediately after the auctions. In particular, BM discloses received and allocated bids, including the forward points, as well as the total amount demanded.

Effective March 19, 2020, the BM announced a temporary US dollar liquidity swap line established with the Federal Reserve valid through September 30, 2020, for up to US$60 billion. Under this program, the FEC announced on March 30, 2020, the first auction to be conducted for up to US$5 billion with a maturity of 84 days, on April 1, 2020. Similarly, on April 2, 2020, a second auction with same characteristics was announced to take place on April 6, 2020.

Effective April 21, 2020, the FEC announced that it added to its toolkit the possibility of selling non-deliverable forwards settled by differences in US dollars with international counterparties, to be traded during hours when Mexican markets are closed.

On June 22, 2020, the FEC announced two auctions, under the temporary US dollar liquidity swap line established with the Federal Reserve, for US$7 billion and US$4 billion with a maturity of 84 days, on June 24, 2020, and June 29, 2020, respectively.

Effective July 29, 2020, the BM announced an extension of the US dollar liquidity swap line established with the Federal Reserve through March 31, 2021 (previously valid through September 30, 2020) for up to US$60 billion.

On September 11, 2020, the BM announced two auctions, under the temporary US dollar liquidity swap line established with the Federal Reserve, for US$5 billion and US$2.5 billion with a maturity of 84 days, on September 15, 2020, and September 21, 2020, respectively.

On December 7, 2020, the BM announced two auctions, under the temporary US dollar liquidity swap line established with the Federal Reserve, for US$1.5 billion each with a maturity of 84 days, on December 9 and December 14, 2020, respectively.

Effective December 16, 2020, the BM announced an extension of the US dollar liquidity swap line established with the Federal Reserve through September 30, 2021 (previously valid through March 31, 2021) for up to US$60 billion.

On March 1, 2021, the BM announced two auctions, under the temporary US dollar liquidity swap line established with the Federal Reserve, for US$750 million each with a maturity of 84 days, on March 3 and March 8, 2021, respectively.

On May 24, 2021, the BM announced two auctions, under the temporary US dollar liquidity swap line established with the Federal Reserve, for US$400 million each with a maturity of 84 days and 79 days respectively, on May 26, 2021, and May 28, 2021, respectively.

Effective June 16, 2021, the BM announced an extension of the US dollar liquidity swap line established with BM the Federal Reserve through December 31, 2021 (previously valid through September 30, 2021) for up to US$60 billion.

On August 16, 2021, the BM announced one auction, under the temporary US dollar liquidity swap line established with the Federal Reserve, for US$400 million, with a maturity of 84 days to take place on August 18, 2021. The current amount outstanding of the temporary US dollar liquidity swap line established with the Federal Reserve is US$100 million.

It is worth to mention that both mechanisms are considered temporary. In the case of the foreign exchange hedging program, each outstanding amount must be rolled over under a roll-over auction until the FEC instructs otherwise. On the other hand, the US dollar liquidity swap line, will expire until determined by the Federal Reserve.

Detailed data on the received bids and results of the US dollar loan auctions are published on the Bank's website.

Yes.

The exchange rate (FIX) is calculated by BM as an average of quotes in the wholesale foreign exchange market for operations payable in two banking days following the quote date of any of the exchange transaction platforms or of some other similar electronic means that BM considers indicative of prevailing conditions in the wholesale foreign exchange market. BM releases the FIX at noon each banking day after receiving all quotes and performing the corresponding calculations. The FIX is published in the Official Journal of the Federation one banking day after its calculation and is used to settle liabilities in US dollars payable in Mexico on the day following its publication. The FIX serves only as a reference; therefore, its use in foreign exchange transactions by market participants is not mandatory.

Monetary Policy Committee
Central Bank Board	Yes.	The decisions regarding monetary policy and those related to the responsibilities of BM are made by the members of its Board of Governors, which is composed of five members: The Governor presides and the others are called Deputy Governors.
		The Governor, or at least two of the Deputy Governors, may call for a meeting of the Board of Governors. For a session to be convened, at least three of its members must be present.
		The Minister of Finance and the Deputy Minister of Finance may attend the Board of Governor's meetings with voice but without vote for which purpose they must be previously called and informed of the corresponding agenda. These officials may call a Board of Governor's meeting and suggest issues to be addressed during the meeting.
		To be valid, resolutions require the majority of the votes of the present members; in case of a tie, the presiding member has the casting vote case.

Under the general provisions referred to in Article 115 of the Credit Institutions Law (CIL), issued by the MOF, there are limits on the following transactions: (1) purchases; (2) receipt of deposits; (3) receipt of payment for credits and services; and (4) cash transfers or allocation of funds in US dollars by credit institutions. These provisions aim to establish controls with respect to cash transactions in US dollars in credit institutions, to avoid introducing into the banking system resources whose origin may be related to illegal activities and the economic resources of organized crime.

The BM's interbank payment system in US dollars (SPID acronym in Spanish) aims to provide to the participants with means to process interbank electronic transfers between money deposit accounts in US dollars of the legal entities and domiciled in the national territory that are clients of the participants.

Said interbank payment system is regulated by the Regulation 13/2017 and 4/2016, both issued by BM.

Positive list

Yes. Import licenses from the Ministry of Economy (MOE) are required for 117 out of the 12,806 tariff items subject to general import duties, including 25 tariff lines related to special operations (Eighth Rule). Under this Rule, registered manufacturing industries may import (zero duty but under the corresponding license) finished goods to allow them to fulfill their contracts and comply with manufacturing programs in which they are registered. Licenses are also required for 19 tariff lines for used vehicles, certain imports under the trade agreement that require a license to receive tariff preference, and industrial raw diamonds imported under the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme. The Agreement by which the MOE issued rules and general criteria on foreign trade subject certain goods to automatic import permit: footwear products, steel, slot machines, and textile and clothing products. Once the requirements have been met, the corresponding permit is issued. Import licenses are generally valid for one year, but for certain sensitive products and used clothing, they are valid only for three months. The license may be renewed, depending on the importer's performance. Import licenses are not required for used vehicles imported by the diplomatic or consular missions, or by personnel of the Mexican Foreign Service, for station-wagon-type (family) vans ("motor home"), vehicles for physically challenged persons, funeral vehicles or funeral carriages and coaches, go-karts, or collector's vehicles (at least 30 years old), among others. Imports of other used cars require MOE approval. Only special-purpose vehicles not made locally are allowed for import.

In February 2019, the agreement that establishes the classification and codification of Hydrocarbons and Petroleum Products whose import and export are subject to Prior Permission by the MOE was modified, to adjust the requirements to get a Prior Permission for the import or export of these products.

Effective January 31, 2020, the Agreement that establishes the classification and codification of merchandise and products whose import, export, entry, or exit is subject to sanitary regulation by the Ministry of Health was modified, to subject various fish and crustaceans, mollusks and other aquatic invertebrates, as well as organic chemicals to regulation.

Effective February 4, 2020, the Agreement that establishes the classification and codification of merchandise and products whose import and export are subject to regulation by the agencies that conform to the Inter-ministerial Commission for the Use and Process Control of Pesticides, Fertilizers, and Toxic Substances was modified, to subject diverse organic chemical products and products of the chemical industries to regulation.

The Agreement by which the MOE issues general rules and criteria on foreign trade was modified on several occasions. Among other things to add tariff lines that will be subject to automatic import permits related to various footwear, textile and clothing products and make the corresponding adjustments to Annex 2.4.1 of the Agreement with respect to what is applicable to merchandise subject to compliance with Official Mexican Standards of the textile and clothing sectors, and footwear; to modify Annexes 2.2.1 and 2.2.2 of the aforementioned Agreement to update the list of tariff items subject to the Automatic Import Notice of Steel Products scheme; to add the reduction of response times, in some cases elimination of requirements, as well as the implementation of electronic means for their processing; to incorporate sections VII and VIII of numeral 10 of Annex 2.4.1 of, to guarantee compliance with the purposes of the Official Mexican Standards in terms of Article 40 of the Federal Law on Metrology and Standardization, and thereby ensure that imported products comply with the minimum safety requirements and standards and thus provide full protection to consumers; to extend the term of the agreement that made the export of iron ore subject to prior permission to inhibit the illegal exploitation and commercialization of said merchandise, update and strengthen the requirements of the prior export permit for said good; to add the official Mexican standards concerning specifications that must be met to import petroleum products, terminals connected or interconnected through wired access to a public telecommunications network; and radio communication equipment with digital interface, respectively, as well as to submit some steel products to the submission of an automatic import notification.

Effective December 28, 2020, this Agreement was updated to harmonize the tariff lines with the new Ley de los Impuestos Generales de Importación y de Exportación/General Import and Export Taxes Law, or LIGIE) in accordance with the Sixth amendment of the World Customs Organization’s Harmonized System and the T-MEC (Agreement between the United States of America, the United Mexican States, and Canada).

Negative list

Yes.

The imports of some endangered species, stickers known as “Garbage Pail Kids,” certain types of pesticides and insecticides, and some narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances are prohibited, as well as weapons and other goods from countries that are under sanctions by the UNSC and electronic cigarettes and vaporization devices with similar uses, as well as their cartridges and accessories.

In November 2019, the General Import and Export Taxes Law was modified, creating 19 tariff items identified as pesticides, of which 17 are forbidden because they have been identified as high hazardous chemicals under the Stockholm Convention on Persistent Organic Pollutants and by the Rotterdam Convention on the Prior Informed Consent Procedure for Certain Hazardous Chemicals and Pesticides in International Trade. Effective February 19, 2020, the General Import and Export Taxes Law was modified, which prohibits the import and export of electronic cigarettes and vaporizing devices with similar uses, as well as their cartridges and accessories.

Effective December 28, 2020, the Agreement that establishes the embargo of merchandise for import or export to various countries was modified to harmonize the tariff lines with the Sixth amendment of the World Customs Organization’s Harmonized System.

Furthermore, Eritrea was eliminated from the embargoed countries by the Resolution issued by the United Nations Security Council.

Other nontariff measures

Yes.

Other nontariff measures are required, such as: previous licenses for oil products; those related to national security (weapons and ammunition); also, some related to human health, ecological and environmental regulations; animal and plant health certifications; restrictions on drugs, narcotic substances, and their inputs; nuclear energy and toxic and hazardous materials, apply to about 3,304 tariff codes out of the 12,597 tariff items under the general import tariff. About 3,598 tariff codes must comply with the standards specified in selected norms for consumer protection and/or information.

The Agreement, which establishes the classification and codification of oil and oil-based products, is set whose import and export are subject to prior approval by the Ministry of Energy.

Once the sixth amendment of the World Customs Organization's Harmonized System applied on July 1, 2020, the MOE's General Rules on Foreign Trade as well as several agreements on Non-Tariff Regulation and Restriction Agreements were modified, impacting merchandise whose import and export is subject to authorization or regulation by the following authorities: Ministry of Energy, Ministry of Health, Ministry of the Environment and Natural Resources, Ministry of Agriculture and Rural Development, the agencies that integrate the Inter-secretarial Commission for the Control of the Process and Use of Pesticides, Fertilizers and Toxic Substances, Ministry of Culture, Ministry of National Defense.

Import taxes and/or tariffs

Yes.

On July 1, 2020, the new General Import and Export Taxes Law was published, implementing the sixth amendment to the World Customs Organization's Harmonized System. Mexico has 7,859 tariff items in the Law on General Import and Export Tariff: 97% have ad valorem taxes of between 0% and 20% and 58% are exempt from import duties.

The largest import tax is 75% and applies to a few products, such as poultry meat and edible offal and fructose. A 50% tariff applies to imports of used cars from countries without a trade agreement.

Imports from T-MEC, ALADI, and EFTA member countries, Australia, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, El Salvador, the EU, Guatemala, Honduras, Israel, Japan, Nicaragua, New Zealand, Peru, Singapore, Uruguay, and Vietnam receive preferential treatment.

There is a preferential tariff of 0% to 10% for imports within the framework of the Sectorial Promotion Programs (PROSEC) only for the inputs used in the elaboration of specific products, regardless of whether the goods produced are destined for export or domestic market. At 2021, the number of tariff items included in the PROSEC amounted to 854, with the automotive, electrical, and electronic products being the most benefited sectors. No tariffs are applied to goods imported temporarily for repair or transformation purposes and which will then be returned abroad.

Mexico applies antidumping and anti-subsidy duties to the following products: bond paper and rebar from Brazil; atomizers, chemical products, steel products, mushrooms, bicycles, coaxial cable "guidewire," pencils, ceramic tiles, cookware, polyester, ceramic dinnerware and ceramic parts, metallic balloons, cooking pots, and aluminum foil, hydraulic cylinder jacks, wind towers, metal zippers, zamak and steel pull handles and aluminum disks from China; steel pipe from the UK; epoxidized soybean oil, rubber, chemical products, steel products, and chicken leg and thigh from the USA; rubber and steel products from Japan; rubber, polyester, and steel products from Korea; steel products from Italy, France, Germany, Kazakhstan, Portugal, Romania, Russia, Spain, Taiwan Province of China, and Ukraine; metoprolol, steel products, and antibiotics from India; and epoxidized soybean oil from Argentina.

Effective September 4, 2020, new electric motor vehicles for the transport of ten or more people, new light electric motor vehicles and new electric motor vehicles for the transport of goods were temporarily exempted from the import duty. Effective October 23, 2020, new trolleybuses were also temporarily exempted from the import duty. These measures will be in force until October 1, 2024.

Effective February 23, 2021, the import duty was temporarily waived for vaccines against the SARS-CoV-2 virus and aluminum tanks for oxygen for medicinal use. The measure will be in force until the contingency situation derived from the disease epidemic generated by the SARS-CoV-2 virus (COVID-19) has ended in Mexico.

The imposition of import duties of 15% was extended for 180 days for 186 tariff items in the steel sector, dating from June 5, 2019.

In the same sense a six-year reduction plan was established for the steel sector. This means the creation of 82 tariff items, the modification of 25, and the elimination of 21. Thus, for 228 tariff items, an import tariff of 15% is established until 2021, later it will go to levels of 10% until 2023 and, finally at 3% levels and Exempt until 2024.

A 180-day import tariff was established for three tariff items related to the steel sector.

A temporary import tariff was established for 180 days on various tariff items in the textile-clothing and footwear sector.

A tariff reduction program was established for the clothing and footwear sector, which means temporarily establishing the import tariff of 317 tariff items at levels of 25% and 30% until 2024, the year in which they will return to their MFN level.

Export licenses

Yes. Most exports do not need a license. Exports of a few items related to drugs, narcotic substances, endangered species, archeological objects, and electronic cigarettes and vaporizing devices with similar uses, as well as their cartridges and accessories, are forbidden. Exports of arms and other products destined for countries sanctioned by the UNSC are also forbidden. Exports of petroleum products and their derivatives and rough industrial diamonds, some iron ores, conventional, nuclear and chemical weapons, their parts and components, dual-use goods, as well as software and related technologies require an export license. Tomato exports are subject to an automatic Notice (only when they are definitive exports).

Without quotas

Yes. Exports of petroleum products and their derivatives (gasoline, kerosene, propane, butane, etc.), wild species, hazardous substances and waste, nuclear material and drugs, narcotic substances and their inputs (“precursors”) considered high risk require a license. Industrial rough diamonds require a license under the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme. The export of certain iron minerals, conventional, nuclear and chemical weapons, their parts and components, dual-use goods, as well as software and related technology used in the manufacture and proliferation of conventional weapons and weapons of mass destruction also requires prior license, under the Wassenaar Arrangement, the Australia Group, and the Nuclear Suppliers Group. Tomato exports are subject to an automatic Notice (only when they are definitive exports).

In February 2019, the agreement that establishes the classification and codification of Hydrocarbons and Petroleum Products whose import and export are subject to Prior Permission by the Ministry of Energy was modified, to adjust the requirements to get a Prior Permission for the import or export of these products.

Effective January 31, 2020, the Agreement that establishes the classification and codification of merchandise and products whose import, export, entry, or exit is subject to sanitary regulation by the Ministry of Health was modified. The modification implies adding merchandise to those already regulated. The modification does not imply qualitative changes in the regulation.

Effective February 4, 2020, the Agreement that establishes the classification and codification of merchandise and products whose import and export are subject to regulation by the agencies that conform to the Inter-ministerial Commission for the Use and Process Control of Pesticides, Fertilizers, and Toxic Substances was modified. Derived from the creation and modification of tariff lines for chemical products, goods were added for better identification, and those already regulated, which underwent changes, were updated. The modification does not imply qualitative changes in the regulation. The agreement that establishes the classification and codification of petroleum and petroleum by-products determines imports and exports are subject to prior approval by the Ministry of Energy.

In December 2019, the Agreement by which the MOE issues general rules and criteria in Foreign Trade matters was modified, to publicize the modifications applicable to prior import and export permissions and the procedure to request tomato export notice.

With quotas	Yes.	Sugar exports must receive prior authorization, and when the destination is the USA, a maximum export quota is set. The agreement that allows the export of sugar was published in the Official Journal of the Federation ("Diario Oficial de la Federación"—DOF) on October 5, 2017 by means of an Agreement by which the export of sugar is subject to prior permission and a maximum quota for its export is established. Effective December 28, 2020, the Agreement by which the sugar export quota is disclosed was modified to update the tariff lines, according to the new Ley de los Impuestos Generales de Importación y de Exportación and the Sixth amendment of the World Customs Organization's Harmonized System.
		On August 28, 2019, the agreement by which the exports of various steel goods were temporally subject to prior license was published. This was done to ensure statistical monitoring of the trade of these goods and comply with the commitments established in the Joint Declaration between the United States and Mexico on Section 232 tariffs on aluminum and steel.
Export taxes	Yes. Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	On June 18, 2021, a Resolution that modifies the Regulations of General Nature applicable to credit institutions was published in the Official Journal of the Federation to incorporate the international total loss-absorbing capacity (TLAC) standard at a national level. This regulation will come into effect March 1, 2022.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Borrowing abroad is permitted. Open foreign exchange positions of commercial banks must not exceed 15% of their core capital. Commercial banks' foreign exchange liabilities must not exceed 1.83 times their core capital. However, BM can authorize higher positions in foreign currency for a maximum period of 5 days within a 12-month period for each limit.

MEXICO

Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Foreign exchange risk positions of both total and for each foreign currency must not exceed the daily limit of 15% of a bank's core capital. However, BM can authorize higher positions in foreign currency for a maximum period of 5 days within a 12-month period for each limit.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Commercial banks must diversify their risks to keep performing their transactions. There are maximum limits on the amounts commercial banks may lend resulting from the integral risk management and a specific regime regarding related persons, regardless of the borrower's residence. If a commercial bank extends credit to an individual or a group of individuals considered as a single individual because of common risk, it must comply with the limit established by the NBSC in accordance with the institution's capitalization.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	There are maximum limits on the amount commercial banks may lend, regardless of the borrower's nationality or residence, and on their net open foreign exchange position. Open foreign exchange positions may not exceed 15% of core capital. If a commercial bank grants a credit to a person or to a group of individuals who are considered to constitute a single person because of a common risk, the commercial bank will have to comply with the limits established by the NBSC, in accordance with the institution's capitalization.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Credit institutions may deal on their own behalf or throughout an agency agreement with securities, commercial debt instruments not registered in the NRS, capital instruments, whether or not registered in the NRS, and government securities.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	Commercial banks must invest in liquid assets—as determined by BM and denominated in foreign currency—an amount calculated through the maturity structure of their liabilities payable in foreign currency. In accordance with the Regulations of General Nature on Liquidity Requirements for Commercial Banks, issued jointly by BM and the NBSC, commercial banks must maintain high-quality liquid assets to meet their obligations and liquidity needs during 30 days.
		On August 23, 2021, the Regulations of General Nature on Liquidity requirements for Commercial Banking Institutions were published in the Official Journal of the Federation. The General Regulations on Liquidity requirements for Commercial Banking Institutions require commercial banks to report the LCR and the Net Stable Funding Ratio (NSFR) established under the Basel III Convention. Once the Regulations enter into force on March 1, 2022, Commercial Banks will be obliged to fully comply with said provisions, except for the provisions of article 1, subsection VIII (regarding the meaning assigned to Deposit Accounts for Operational Purposes), in accordance with the third transitory article, which will enter into force July 1, 2024.

Export licenses

Without quotas	01/31/2020	The Agreement that establishes the classification and codification of merchandise and products whose import, export, entry, or exit is subject to sanitary regulation by the Ministry of Health was modified. The modification implies adding merchandise to those already regulated. The modification does not imply qualitative changes in the regulation.
	02/04/2020	The Agreement that establishes the classification and codification of merchandise and products whose import and export are subject to regulation by the agencies that conform to the Inter-ministerial Commission for the Use and Process Control of Pesticides, Fertilizers, and Toxic Substances was modified. Derived from the creation and modification of tariff lines for chemical products, goods were added for better identification, and those already regulated, which underwent changes, were updated. The modification does not imply qualitative changes in the regulation. The agreement that establishes the classification and codification of petroleum and petroleum by-products determines imports and exports are subject to prior approval by the Ministry of Energy.
With quotas	12/28/2020	The Agreement by which the sugar export quota is disclosed was modified to update the tariff lines, according to the new Ley de los Impuestos Generales de Importación y de Exportación and the Sixth amendment of the World Customs Organization's Harmonized System.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions

Controls on derivatives and other instruments	04/09/2020	Regulations 9/2020 and 10/2020 issued by Banco de México (BM) were published in the Official Journal of the Federation, by which the Credit institutions, FIRA, Sofomes and the General Deposit Warehouses, Brokerage Houses and Investment Funds will not be subject to the administrative procedures for the imposition of sanctions by the BM regarding their obligations to report weekly, monthly and quarterly information, which they must comply within regular circumstances. This was because of the exceptional situation caused by the COVID-19 pandemic.

Spot exchange market Yes. Foreign exchange transactions are limited or infrequent and handled or transacted by a foreign commercial bank in the Federated States of Micronesia (FSM). There were about 50–100 foreign currency exchange transactions in 2019. The two commercial banks in the FSM are insured by the U.S. Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. The foreign banks only accept limited foreign currencies in exchange for the US dollar at foreign exchange rates. The absence of a domestic currency and a monetary authority—a CB—somewhat constrains the ability of the local authorities to regulate the scope of foreign exchange activities in the country. There are no foreign exchange bureaus in the country.

Floating

Yes.

The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are classified as floating. The National Bank of Moldova (NBM) intervenes in the domestic foreign exchange interbank market to smooth out sharp exchange rate fluctuations of MDL against the US dollar. Sharp fluctuations are not specifically defined. However, the NBM intervenes based on market conditions and future expectations of market participants. These interventions do not aim to change the trend of the exchange rate determined by the market. The NBM intervenes directly at the market-quoted rates and publishes aggregated monthly data on its website regarding its interventions and interbank market turnover. The data shows interventions by currency and type of operation (spot or derivative).

In 2020, the domestic foreign exchange market was strongly affected at the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic. Foreign exchange market pressures emerged in March–April following Government’s announcement of a lockdown in response to the pandemic, which has incentivized businesses to shift from domestic to foreign currency savings and individuals to hoard foreign exchange. To mitigate these developments, the CB intervened with foreign exchange sales. In less than a month, the Moldovan Leu has depreciated by 7.4% against the US dollar. This short-lived episode was preceded by a trade balance adjustment that has triggered an appreciation trend of the exchange rate, a dynamic that was further supported by seasonal developments along with gradual lifting of restrictions and an improvement of remittances, allowing for CB’s purchase interventions. Accordingly, in March–April 2020, the NBM has sold US$169 million and has subsequently purchased US$292 million. Under these circumstances, in 2020 the Moldovan Leu has appreciated, on average, by 1.5% against the US dollar.

In 2021, the exchange rate of the Moldovan Leu has reversed to a gradual depreciation against the US dollar, reflecting a deterioration of trade balance, as exports are recovering slower than imports, driven by a resumption in consumption. The CB has intervened occasionally with net sales of US$16 million (January through July). Aggregate monthly data on CB’s transactions with the domestic banks is published. Data is available by gross amount, by currency, and by transaction type.

Data on CB’s net foreign exchange interventions can be found in the press release on the evolution of official reserve assets, which is published by the 7th following the month for which the data is reported. The press release is available in Romanian and Russian (second hyperlink provided).

More detailed data (third and fourth hyperlinks) is published by the 22nd following the month for which the data is reported.

Free floating

Yes.

The official exchange rate of the leu against the US dollar is determined daily as the weighted average of the exchange rates applied for spot noncash transactions performed in the interbank and intrabank domestic market. The official exchange rate of the leu against other foreign currencies is based on the official exchange rate of the leu against the US dollar and the cross-rate of the respective foreign currency against the US dollar on international markets. The official exchange rate is used for accounting and statistical purposes.

As of June 30, 2021, 62 currency exchange machines were installed by foreign exchange entities (including 61 by licensed banks and 1 by a foreign exchange office). Licensed banks may buy from and sell to residents and nonresidents any currency (intrabank market). Foreign exchange entities may buy from and sell to individuals (residents and nonresidents) any currency. Licensed banks and foreign exchange entities may set their foreign exchange buying and selling rates. According to the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation, a foreign exchange office is a resident legal entity that performs only one type of activity in Moldova – that is, cash purchases and sales with individuals in lei and foreign currency and traveler’s check in foreign currency. Such entities may not make payments and transfers in foreign currency on behalf of their clients. Foreign exchange offices may have accounts abroad under the same conditions as other resident legal entities. Hotels’ foreign exchange bureaus may only purchase individuals’ foreign currency cash or traveler’s checks against lei. Currency exchange operations may be performed by individuals via currency exchange machines installed by the foreign exchange entities. Foreign exchange offices cannot make foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The Moldovan foreign exchange market is decentralized.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	The NBM conducts interbank foreign exchange auctions (in the form of multiple price auctions) for purchases and sales of foreign currency against lei between the NBM and licensed banks through a common trading platform (based on Bloomberg). The NBM notifies the licensed banks about the auction by sending an announcement message through the common trading platform at the latest 30 minutes before the start of the auction. The announcement message contains among other information the amount of foreign currency proposed by the NBM to be sold or bought. The frequency of the auction is not regulated. Licensed commercial banks are eligible to participate. Only one bid a participating bank is permitted, with a minimum amount of 100,000 units of the traded foreign currency. Auction participants are not required to finance specific international transactions with the foreign exchange obtained at the auction. The results are disclosed to the participating banks within one hour of the end of the auction. In case of default of the auction participants, the NBM may apply the penalties for the late payment to the respective bank according to the Agreement on the Interbank Foreign Exchange Market in the Republic of Moldova.

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Currently, 11 licensed banks participate in the domestic foreign exchange interbank market, under the Agreement on the Interbank Foreign Exchange Market in the Republic of Moldova. The Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation allows licensed banks to set bid and ask rates for their foreign exchange transactions. Under the Agreement on the Interbank Foreign Exchange Market in the Republic of Moldova, (1) spreads (difference between the bid and ask rates) may be determined by the quoting party and (2) banks may not charge fees on foreign exchange transactions in the domestic interbank market. The Law on Payment Services and Electronic Money allows resident nonbank payment service providers and electronic money institutions to perform foreign currency exchange transactions closely related to the electronic money issuance or to the provision of payment services. Under the Law on Capital Markets, resident investment firms may perform foreign exchange buying and selling transactions related to the provision of investment services. 		categories of individuals and legal entities. Payment cards are excluded from the definition of payment instruments of the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation.
On imports	Yes.	Fees for customs procedures and customs duties are not charged on imports of domestic currency and foreign currency in cash to Moldova by commercial banks and the NBM. Only the NBM is exempted from the VAT on import of domestic currency and foreign currency in cash to Moldova.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Nonresident banks and licensed banks may import cash in domestic currency with NBM approval. Importation by nonresident banks and licensed banks of domestic currency cash in an amount not exceeding MDL 100,000 does not require the NBM approval. The importation by licensed banks and other resident legal entities of banknotes and coins in domestic currency earlier exported to be used to test currency-processing machines also does not require the NBM approval. Cash must be returned after the testing, but no later than six months from the date of exportation. Imports of banknotes and coins by licensed banks and nonresident banks must be declared in written form to customs. Resident and nonresident individuals may, when entering Moldova, import unlimited banknotes and coins in domestic currency, subject to declaration in written form to customs if amounts exceed the equivalent of €10,000 an individual a trip. Importation of domestic currency cash in unaccompanied luggage by an individual is not allowed. Resident and nonresident legal entities may import domestic currency cash in cases stipulated by the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation (for example, imports of cash by nonresident legal entities to make payments for exports of goods and services) via their official representatives. In case of imports of cash in domestic currency by individuals who are also representatives of legal entities, the requirements (including the declaration requirement) established for individuals are applied for the total amount of the funds imported, except when customs legislation allows exceptions for certain categories of individuals and legal entities. Residents and nonresidents may import securities and payment instruments in domestic currency without limit, subject to declaration in written form to the customs authorities as follows: (1) by licensed banks and nonresident banks, regardless of the amount of imported securities and payment instruments and (2) by individuals and by official representatives of legal entities, if the total amount of imported securities and payment instruments exceeds the equivalent of €10,000 an individual a trip, except when customs legislation allows exceptions for certain categories of individuals and legal entities. Payment cards are excluded from the definition of payment instruments of the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Importation of foreign currency cash as well as traveler's checks in foreign currency by licensed banks and nonresident banks may be made without NBM approval. Banknotes, coins, and traveler's checks in foreign currency imported by licensed banks and nonresident banks must be declared to customs in writing. Resident and nonresident individuals, when entering Moldova, may import unlimited banknotes, coins, and traveler's checks in foreign currency, subject to declaration in written form to the customs authorities if amounts exceed €10,000 or its equivalent an individual a trip. Individuals may not import foreign currency cash and traveler's checks denominated in foreign currency in unaccompanied luggage. Resident and nonresident legal entities may import foreign currency cash and traveler's checks in foreign currency in cases stipulated by the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation (for example, imports of cash by nonresident legal entities to make payments for exports of goods and services) via their official representatives. In cases of importation of cash in foreign currency and traveler's checks in foreign currency by individuals who are also representatives of legal entities, the requirements (including declaration) established for individuals are applied for the total amount of the funds imported, except when customs legislation allows exceptions for certain categories of individuals and legal entities. Residents and nonresidents may import securities and payment instruments other than traveler's checks in foreign currency without limit, subject to declaration in written form to the customs authorities as follows: (1) by licensed banks and nonresident banks, regardless of the amount of imported securities and payment instruments, and (2) by individuals and by official representatives of legal entities, if the total amount of imported securities and payment instruments exceeds €10,000 or its equivalent an individual a trip, except when customs legislation allows exceptions for certain categories of individuals and legal entities. Payment cards are excluded from the definition of payment instruments of the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Residents may perform foreign exchange operations in cash, in cashless form or with payment instruments, including through foreign and domestic currency accounts and by using traveler's checks as specified in legislation.
Held domestically	Yes.	Resident legal entities and individuals may freely open accounts in any foreign currency with licensed banks. Residents' foreign exchange accounts may be credited with foreign exchange purchased locally or received from abroad or from other legal sources. Residents may freely sell to licensed banks foreign currency from their accounts. Resident account holders may use foreign exchange in their accounts to make payments and transfers according to the legislation, including – with NBM approval – for transactions that are subject to such approval under the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation. There are no restrictions on the use of funds for current international transactions. Domestic transactions must be settled in domestic currency, except as specified by law. Foreign currency earnings of resident legal entities must be deposited at licensed banks. Payments and transfers by resident legal entities must take place through noncash transfers, unless explicitly stipulated by law. Cash deposits to and withdrawals from resident individuals' foreign exchange accounts are not restricted. Resident legal entities and individuals may open payment accounts in foreign currency with resident nonbank payment service providers, except for payment accounts related to the issuance of electronic money (that may be opened in domestic currency only). These accounts in foreign currency are for payments only and are subject to the foreign exchange legislation. Resident nonbank payment service providers may carry out foreign currency exchange transactions closely related to the electronic money issuance or to the provision of payment services.
Approval required	Yes.	Residents are allowed to open domestic foreign exchange accounts without NBM approval. It is forbidden for budgetary authorities/institutions to open bank accounts for making operations through banks.
Held abroad	Yes.	Law No. 94 of May 13, 2016, on amending and supplementing of the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation introduced express provisions related to the nonbank payment service providers and accounts opened with them. If accounts to be opened with nonresident banks abroad by residents are subject to NBM approval, these accounts may be opened with such approval. NBM approval specifies allowable operations for these accounts and may specify balance limits, fund maintenance periods, and other conditions. If resident accounts opened with nonresident banks abroad do not require NBM approval, payments and transfers through these accounts must comply with foreign exchange legislation, including NBM approval for certain operations under the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation. Residents may open payment accounts with nonresident payment service providers. Funds from resident accounts abroad may be freely transferred to Moldova.

Approval required	Yes.	NBM approval is required for all residents to hold accounts opened with nonresident banks abroad, with the following additional exceptions: (1) resident individuals during a temporary stay abroad; (2) residents making direct investments and real estate investments abroad, if the opening of such accounts by investors (in their own name) is compulsory under the laws of the country where the investments are made; (3) resident public institutions; (4) licensed banks, in their own name, if required for their activities under the license issued by the NBM; (5) resident legal entities in the name of their representative office for the office's activity; (6) residents opening accounts related to guarantee deposit if the guarantee amount does not exceed €10,000 (or its equivalent); (7) residents opening accounts aimed at performing operations related to loans/credits/guarantees from nonresidents, if the amount of a loan/credit/guarantee does not exceed €10,000 (or its equivalent).
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Law No. 94 of May 13, 2016, on amending and supplementing of the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation introduced express provisions related to the nonbank payment service providers and accounts opened with them. NBM approval is required for all residents to hold accounts opened with nonresident banks, with the following exceptions: (1) resident individuals during their temporary stay abroad; (2) residents making direct investments and real estate investments abroad, if the opening of such accounts by investors (in their own name) is compulsory under the laws of the country where the investments are made; (3) resident public institutions; (4) licensed banks, in their own name, if required for their activities under the license issued by the NBM; (5) resident legal entities in the name of their representative office for the office's activity; (6) residents opening accounts related to guarantee deposit if the guarantee amount does not exceed €10,000 (or its equivalent); (7) residents opening accounts aimed at performing operations related to loans/credits/guarantees from nonresidents, if the amount of a loan/credit/guarantee does not exceed €10,000 (or its equivalent). Residents may open payment accounts with nonresident payment service providers.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Funds in leu-denominated accounts of resident individuals and legal entities with licensed banks may be freely converted through those banks to foreign exchange for any lawful purpose. Licensed banks may purchase foreign currency against domestic currency without restriction. The Law on Payment Services and Electronic Money allows resident nonbank payment service providers to carry out foreign currency exchange transactions closely related to the electronic money issuance or to the provision of payment services, which are subject to provisions of the foreign exchange legislation.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Nonresident individuals and legal entities may freely open with licensed banks accounts in any foreign currency. These accounts may be credited with funds from abroad, through purchases in the domestic foreign exchange market, and from other legal sources. Nonresidents with foreign exchange accounts at licensed banks in Moldova are permitted to transfer the balances from these accounts abroad or sell them in the foreign exchange market through licensed banks without restriction. Balances from these accounts may also be used for other operations as specified by law. Payments and transfers in Moldova between residents and nonresidents and between nonresidents may take place in domestic and foreign currency, except as indicated by law. Payments and transfers to and from the accounts of nonresident legal entities must take place through noncash transfers, unless explicitly allowed by law. Cash may be deposited in and withdrawn from nonresident individuals' foreign exchange accounts without restriction. The law specifies the foreign exchange operations, including deposits in and withdrawals from accounts in foreign and domestic currency, which nonresidents may perform in cash or using payment instruments. Nonresident legal entities and individuals may open payment accounts in foreign currency with resident nonbank payment service providers, except for payment accounts related to the issuance of electronic money (that may be opened in domestic currency only). These accounts in foreign currency are for payments only and are subject to the foreign exchange legislation. Resident nonbank payment service providers may carry out foreign currency exchange transactions closely related to the electronic money issuance or to the provision of payment services.
--	------	--

Approval required No.

Domestic currency accounts Yes.

Nonresident individuals and legal entities may freely open with licensed banks accounts in domestic currency. These accounts may be credited with funds obtained from the sale of foreign currency in the domestic foreign exchange market and from other legal sources. Nonresidents with leu accounts at licensed banks as well as on their payment accounts opened with resident nonbank payment services providers may transfer the balances from these accounts abroad or convert them to foreign currency in the foreign exchange market through licensed banks without restriction. Balances from these accounts may also be used for other operations according to the legislation. Payments and transfers to and from the accounts of nonresident legal entities must take place through noncash transfers, unless explicitly allowed by law. Cash may be deposited in and withdrawn from nonresident individuals' accounts in domestic currency without restriction. The law specifies the foreign exchange operations, including deposits in and withdrawals from accounts in foreign and domestic currency, which nonresidents may perform in cash or using payment instruments. Nonresident legal entities and individuals may open payment accounts in domestic currency with resident nonbank payment service providers. These accounts are for payments only and are subject to the foreign exchange legislation. Resident nonbank payment service providers may carry out foreign currency exchange transactions closely related to the electronic money issuance or to the provision of payment services.

Convertible into foreign currency Yes.

Balances from leu accounts of nonresidents opened with licensed banks may be converted freely to foreign currency. Resident nonbank payment service providers may carry out foreign currency exchange transactions closely related to the electronic money issuance or to the provision of payment services, which are subject to provisions of the foreign exchange legislation.

Approval required No.

Blocked accounts No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	Unless stipulated otherwise by law, goods must be imported and services rendered, as a rule, no later than two years from the date of advance payment. The value of all imported goods and rendered services must equal the amount paid. If a contract is not executed, the amount of the advance payment must be repatriated to Moldova no later than two years after such advance payment. However, the length of this period may vary, depending on the type of contract.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	Import payments in domestic and foreign currency in the amount exceeding EUR 10,000 (or their equivalent) each payment/transfer may be effected on submission of supporting documents to licensed banks and to resident nonbank payment service providers. To make import payments, foreign currency may be purchased from licensed banks and resident nonbank payment service providers.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	The following imports are subject to licensing for the purpose of consumer protection and to ensure compliance with domestic standards: dual-purpose goods and technologies, ammunition, military equipment, and special compounds for the manufacture thereof; explosive substances; nuclear products and technology; medicine, equipment for the manufacture of medicine, and medical equipment; chemicals; cultures for developing microorganisms; and stupefying or psychotropic materials and compounds for their derivation or production. Sugar imports are subject to authorization to monitor the volume of imports from countries that have signed FTAs with Moldova and are not members of the WTO (for example, Belarus) in conformity with Government Decision No. 134 of February 10, 2009. For WTO members, importation of sugar is performed on the basis of the first-in first-out principle and within the limits of tariff quotas, in conformity with Government Decision No. 114 of February 22, 2012. Sugar imports from EU members are based on a system for administration of tariff quotas that relies on the first-in first-out principle, under the registration in SIIV ASYCUDA World of the customs declaration. The Republic of Moldova also applies preferential tariff rate quotas within FTAs, particularly within Deep and Comprehensive Free Trade Agreement (DCFTA) with EU and with Turkey.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	No.	The Republic of Moldova does not maintain any negative or positive listing for imports.

MOLDOVA

Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	The Republic of Moldova applies tariff rate quotas for sugar and for other products mentioned within a FTA. It is important to mention that tariff rate quotas must not be confused with quotas because these two have a different effect on trade, the last ones being much more restrictive and should not be used.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	The Republic of Moldova also applies other nontariff measures (NTMs), such as: - Sanitary and Phytosanitary Measures that are applied to protect human or animal life and human plant health, from risks arising from: additives, contaminants, toxins, or disease-causing organisms in food; - Technical Barriers to Trade measures related to technical regulations, and procedures for assessment of conformity with technical regulations and standards.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The Republic of Moldova applies two types of tariffs: on a Most Favorite Nation Clause rate (non-preferential tariffs) and preferential tariffs applied within signed FTAs. Law Approving the Combined Nomenclature of Goods (No. 172 of July 25, 2014) stipulates all tariffs applied on a non-preferential basis, on a MFN rate. Integrated Customs Tariff of the Republic of Moldova (TARIM) contains all applied tariffs of the Republic of Moldova (including preferential trade agreements with EU, CIS countries, CEFTA states, Turkey and effective January 1, 2021, United Kingdom), as well as VAT and excise duty.  Fees for customs procedures and customs duties are not charged on imports of domestic currency and foreign currency in cash to the Republic of Moldova by commercial banks and the NBM.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Unless stipulated otherwise by law, proceeds from exports of goods and services must be repatriated to the exporter's account with a licensed bank, as a rule, no later than three years after issuance of the export customs declaration or from the date the services are provided, stipulated in confirming documents. The length of this period may vary, depending on the type of contract.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Unless stipulated otherwise by law, proceeds received by resident legal entities from invisible transactions must be repatriated to Moldova, as a rule, no later than three years from the date the services are provided as stipulated in the confirming documents. If services are not rendered by nonresidents to resident legal entities, any advance payment must be repatriated no later than two years after payment.
Surrender requirements	No.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	According to the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation, capital transactions do not require NBM approval, except as specified by law. NBM approval is required for certain capital transactions of residents that imply capital outflow. The authorization regime does not generally apply to (1) capital foreign exchange operations involving the MOF and the NBM, (2) capital foreign exchange operations with national public budget funds, and (3) foreign exchange operations related to guarantees as laid down in Article 4 Item 12 of the Law No. 184 of July 22, 2016, on financial collateral arrangements. Operations involving receipt by residents from nonresidents of certain categories of loans and credits and guarantees must be notified by residents to the NBM for statistical purposes. When amount of a loan/credit/guarantee from nonresident does not exceed €50,000 or its equivalent, it is not subject to notification to the NBM. Foreign exchange operations related to guarantees as laid down in Article 4 Item 12 of the Law No. 184 of July 22, 2016, on financial collateral arrangements are not subject to notification to the NBM. The NBM approval for capital transactions of residents that imply capital outflow does not generally apply to foreign exchange operations not exceeding EUR 10,000 (or their equivalent). Capital foreign exchange transactions are subject, among other requirements, to submission of supporting documents to the licensed bank and to resident nonbank payment service providers, except as specified under NBM regulations. To make such payments, foreign currency may be purchased from licensed banks and resident nonbank payment service providers.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds received by resident legal entities from capital transactions must be repatriated to Moldova unless a specific exemption has been granted by law. Law No. 1466 of January 29, 1998, on Regulation of Repatriation of Funds, Goods, and Services Obtained from External Economic Transactions regulates the repatriation of proceeds by resident legal entities in Moldova. The repatriation period depends on the type of contract as specified in Article 3 “Deadlines of repatriation of funds, goods, and services originating from foreign economic transactions.”
Surrender requirements	No.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Issuance in Moldova of securities denominated in foreign currency is not permitted. The procedures for purchases of government securities by foreign investors at auction are similar to those for local investors. A foreign investor may purchase government securities of a single international securities identification number (ISIN) according to the purchase limit of government securities, if it is announced in Communiqué of government securities placement. A noncompetitive bid submitted by an investor for government securities may not exceed more than 3% of the indicative volume of the issue announced at the reference auction, under a single ISIN.
On capital market securities	Yes.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.	According to the Law on the NCFM in case of violations in the securities market, to protect the rights of investors and the public, the NCFM may suspend the placement and circulation of securities admitted on the regulated market, outside regulated market, or multilateral trading facility (MTF), as well as clearing and settlement of transactions. According to the amendments to the Law on Capital Market regarding information disclosure, if the shareholder has acquired or alienated the voting shares of an issuer considered a public interest entity, the shareholder is required to inform the issuer and the NCFM within four working days of acquisition or alienation, if, after the transaction, the share reaches, exceeds, or falls below 5%, 10%, 15%, 20%, 25%, 33%, 50%, 66%, 75%, or 90%. The company must disclose information about its activity in accordance with this law, the Capital Market Law, and the normative acts of the NCFM. Therewith, an issuer that is considered to be a public interest entity will disclose publicly the information. The number of shares granting control over the company must be determined by the conditions for exercising control in the situations established by the capital market legislation. The natural or legal person that holds, directly or indirectly, alone or together with the persons acting in concert with it, more than 50% of the voting shares, which are in the circulation of the company or of the securities that can be converted or offer the right to purchase the voting shares, is obliged to carry out a mandatory takeover bid within three months from the date of making subscriptions (in the register of shareholders) regarding acquisition of shares. Up to the fulfillment of the requirements mentioned above, the person holding more than 50% has the right to vote at the general meeting of the shareholders within 25% of the voting shares, which are in the circulation of the company. The total number of voting shares belonging to this person must be taken into account only for the establishment of the quorum at the holding of the general meeting of the shareholders. The person holding more than 50% and/or its representatives is registered with the entire stock of securities held. The takeover bid may be initiated only in respect of securities issued by public interest entities. A mandatory takeover bid can be carried out by: (1) a natural or legal person who holds, directly or indirectly, alone or together with persons acting in concert, more than 50% of the voting rights of a company or transferable securities or offers the right to purchase the securities with the right to vote, is obliged to make a takeover bid regarding the purchase at a fair price of securities of the same class held by other persons; (2) a legal person who directly or indirectly owns more than 50% of all the voting securities of an issuer must be obliged to initiate a mandatory takeover bid whenever its founders change (associations or shareholders) who, together with the persons with whom they act in concert, hold a majority of the voting rights in that legal person. The takeover bid is voluntary if the bidder, failing this obligation, submits a takeover bid related to the purchase of a number of voting securities of an issuer that pursues or aims to obtain more than 50% of the total number of these securities. A takeover bid prospectus is approved by the NCFM and must be published within seven working days. A minority shareholder, who obtained the shares against patrimonial vouchers or its legal successor, may require the acquisition of its shares by a person who alone or with affiliates owns more than 90% of the total number of voting shares. The price offered for the shares of minority shareholders must equal at least the highest of the following: (1) the weighted average share price in transactions over the 12 months preceding the date of notification of the application, (2) the per share NAV in accordance with the issuer's latest financial position, (3) the per share market value of net assets, calculated by the censors committee on the basis of the valuation report drawn up by a specialized organization which is not a related party of the company, or (4) the nominal (set) value of shares. The majority shareholder, within 30 working days of receipt of the application, must notify the minority shareholder of the fixed price according to the criteria mentioned above. Payment for the shares by the majority shareholder may take place with the consent of the minority shareholder at a price in accordance with the application within 30 working days of acceptance of the price. The stock exchange must disclose the following information for securities admitted on the regulated market or a MTF: (1) date and time of the transaction, (2) class and government registration number of the securities traded, (3) price per security, (4) type of transaction, and (5) amount and share of securities in the transaction of the respective class. Insiders may purchase and sell securities of the issuer if information that could influence the securities price is disclosed before the purchase and the price are established according to the securities market law. The Regulation on licensing and authorization on the capital market set requirements for granting, suspending, and withdrawing licenses and authorizations on the capital market according to the EU Directives. It stipulates new requirements for equity capital, internal policies, internal control, entity's management, technical audit for registrars, approval of delegated agents and accepted persons, evaluation procedure of qualified holdings in the investment firm, market operator, and central depository (NCFM Decision No. 56/11). In a transaction with financial instruments admitted on a regulated market, outside regulated market, or a MTF, investment firms must disclose information on the volume, price, and data of these transactions. For transactions in financial instruments admitted to trading outside regulated markets or MTFs, reports must be submitted to the NCFM no later than one working day after the transaction as prescribed by the NCFM. Licensed/authorized entities must also disclose other information on their activity according to the law. Reports on events and actions affecting the financial and economic activities of the issuer must be published by the issuer in accordance with the normative acts. The Rules of the regulated market of the Moldova Stock Exchange were approved by NCFM Decision No. 23/3 of May 8, 2015, published in the Official Gazette No. 115-123/758 of May 15, 2015. The rules stipulate the requirements for admission of issuers on the regulated market and additional requirements on information disclosure, introduce the requirement for approval by the supervisory authority of the manager and members of the council and the requirement for technical audit of the information system, and increase the minimum amount for equity capital to €100,000 within three years up to €1 million within ten years. The Instruction on reporting of licensed and authorized entities on the capital market was approved by NCFM Decision No. 38/5 of July 3, 2015. The Instruction on reporting provides requirements on the reporting method and conditions for legal entities authorized and licensed to provide services on the capital market. It includes provisions regarding the conditions for information disclosure and principles to which the reports should comply.

Yes.

Foreign investors must purchase securities of issuers registered in Moldova as set forth in the legislation. The shareholders of professional participants in securities markets may be any natural or legal persons. Proposed acquirer must notify the NCFM in writing before the acquisition of shares placed by an investment firm if they intend to obtain a qualifying holding or increase their holding at a level equal to or exceeding 20%, 30%, or 50% of the share capital. The NCFM will in no more than 60 working days from the date of acknowledgment review the documents submitted by the potential

		acquirer and assess the reputation of the proposed acquirer, the reputation and experience of any person who will manage the investment, and the financial soundness of the proposed acquirer. Particular attention will be paid to the type of business the investment firm intends to carry out. In case of rejection of the proposed acquisition, the potential acquirer will be notified on the day the notice is issued. The NCFM rejects the proposed procurement draft if the result of the assessment reflects that a qualifying holding is or will be directly or indirectly held by persons resident in jurisdictions where there are not implemented international standards of transparency.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Foreign securities for public offering in Moldova must be in the form of Moldovan depository receipts (MDRs) issued by local investment firm. According to Article 9 of the Law on Capital Markets: (1) MDRs may be issued only on shares and bonds of foreign issuers subject to registration by the relevant foreign authority. (2) MDR issuance may not exceed the market value of the underlying shares and bonds issued by foreign issuers at the time of issuance. (3) The issuer of the MDRs is obligated to (a) pay dividends and any other payments paid by the foreign issuer to the holders of MDRs; (b) repurchase the MDRs at the request of their holders; and (c) publicly disclose and/or submit to MDR holders the financial reports and any other information disclosed by foreign issuers. ### Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The acquisition by the bank of any qualifying holding in a foreign entity is subject to the prior approval of the NBM if, as a result of the acquisition, the entity must be included in the scope of prudential consolidation. The total net MDL exposure of a bank indexed to foreign currency to individuals, including those engaged in entrepreneurial or other activities, may not exceed 30% of eligible capital, of which total net exposure, other than mortgages, may not exceed 10% of eligible capital of banks.

Residents of jurisdictions that do not implement international transparency standards may not hold directly or indirectly equity shares in the capital of banks.

The mechanism for setting up a branch of a foreign bank provides for requirements related to licensing, endowment capital (which have to be the same amount as the capital that a bank must maintain) and conditions for carrying out the activity.

To overcome the difficult period in the context of the negative economic consequences generated by COVID-19, the Executive Board of the NBM adopted the following decisions:

-Decision No. 69 of March 17, 2020 “on certain measures concerning the classification of loans to individuals” (that includes individuals carrying out entrepreneurial activities) as of March 20, 2020, until July 31, 2020;

-Decision No. 81 of March 27, 2020 “on certain measures concerning the classification by banks of loans granted to legal persons” as of April 2, 2020, until June 30, 2020.

The mentioned Decisions allowed banks to manage flexibly the payment obligations of individuals, including individuals carrying out entrepreneurial activities and legal entities, which, are in difficulty to pay their loans under the conditions of state of emergency generated by COVID-19.

Strengthening the financial stability of the nonbank lending sector and fostering consumer protection and responsible lending practices to reduce the risks of over-indebtedness of the population and bring into line the laws related to the activity of nonbank lending organizations has led to performing the following amendments to the law:

(1) prohibiting nonbank credit organizations (NBCOs) to call for any deposits and other reimbursable funds from public since April 20, 2020. However, this prohibition does not apply to subordinated loans;

(2) limiting the total costs of the nonbank credit or financial leasing for a period of up to two years and in the amount of up to 50 thousand lei (for individual consumers), that should not exceed the amount disbursed according to the respective contract, since April 20, 2020;

(3) regulating the responsible credit, including the conditions and the way of evaluating the client’s ability to repay the nonbank credit and/or financial leasing, the degree of collateral coverage, criteria related to the debt service ratio to the debtor’s income, since April 20, 2020;

(4) the introduction and significant increase of pecuniary sanctions on NBCOs, so that they are effective, proportionate, and dissuasive, since April 20, 2020; loan/credit does not exceed €50,000 (or its equivalent). Licensed savings and credit associations (SCAs) may not perform activity abroad or in foreign currency. With regard to the activity of NBCOs, there are no restrictions.

Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Licensed banks may open accounts abroad on their name with nonresident banks, necessary for carrying out activities under the license issued by the NBM, without the NBM approval. Under the foreign exchange legislation, NBCOs may open accounts with nonresident banks abroad with the NBM approval.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.	The NBM approval is not required for financial loans or credits granted by licensed banks to nonresidents. The NBM approval is not required for commercial loans or credits provided by licensed banks to nonresidents.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Licensed banks may grant foreign currency loans to residents as follows: (1) for payments and transfers with nonresidents, (2) for repayment of other credits received from licensed banks for the purpose of payments and transfers with nonresidents, (3) for purposes provided for in the credit agreements concluded between the Moldovan government and nonresidents and between licensed banks and international financial organizations, (4) for interbank lending related to the financial activities of licensed banks, (5) to resident legal entities involved in exports of goods (including leased assets) and services against financial means in foreign currency, and (6) to legal entities engaged in insurance and nonbank lending activity.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Securities denominated in foreign exchange are not issued in Moldova.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.	Banking regulations do not provide for separate accounts in foreign exchange; banks, however, perform separate accounting for each currency.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Banks keep their required reserves separately in Moldovan lei and foreign currencies (in US dollar and euro). The reserve base for required reserves in MDL consists of liabilities in MDL and nonconvertible currencies, while the reserve base for required reserves in foreign currency consists of liabilities in freely convertible currencies. A required reserves ratio of 0% applies to banks' liabilities with a contractual maturity higher than 2 years. Starting in 2019, the CB pursued a policy toward rebalancing required reserve ratios, by lowering the one in domestic currency and increasing the required reserve ratio in foreign currencies. Accordingly, the required reserve ratio in Moldovan lei was lowered with the following maintenance periods: - effective January 16, 2020–February 15, 2020 – 42% (previously 42.5%) (NBM Decision No. 324 of December 11, 2019); - effective February 16, 2020–March 15, 2020 – 41.5% (previously 42%) (NBM Decision No. 324 of December 11, 2019); - effective March 16, 2020–April 15, 2020 – 41% (previously 41.5%) (NBM Decision No. 324 of December 11, 2019); - effective April 16, 2020–May 15, 2020 – 34% (previously 41%) (NBM Decision No. 89 of April 3, 2020); - effective August 16, 2020–September 15, 2020 – 33% (previously 34%) (NBM Decision No. 183 of August 6, 2020); - effective September 16, 2020–October 15, 2020 – 32% (previously 33%) (NBM Decision No. 183 of August 6, 2020); - effective March 16, 2021–April 15, 2021 – 30% (previously 32%) (NBM Decision No. 37 of March 5, 2021); - effective April 16, 2021–May 15, 2021 – 28% (previously 30%) (NBM Decision No. 60 of April 5, 2021); and - effective May 16, 2021–June 15, 2021 – 26% (previously 28%)

(NBM Decision No. 75 of April 30, 2021).

The required reserve ratio applied to freely convertible currencies was hiked in the following maintenance periods:

- effective January 16, 2020–February 15, 2020 – 18% (previously 17%) (NBM Decision No. 324 of December 11, 2019);
- effective February 16, 2020–March 15, 2020 – 19% (previously 18%) (NBM Decision No. 324 of December 11, 2019);
- effective March 16, 2020–April 15, 2020 – 20% (previously 19%) (NBM Decision No. 324 of December 11, 2019);
- effective April 16, 2020–May 15, 2020 – 21% (previously 20%) (NBM Decision No. 73 of March 20, 2020);
- effective August 16, 2020–September 15, 2020 – 24% (previously 21%) (NBM Decision No. 183 of August 6, 2020);
- effective September 16, 2020–October 15, 2020 – 27% (previously 24%) (NBM Decision No. 183 of August 6, 2020);
- effective October 16, 2020–November 15, 2020 – 28.5% (previously 27%) (NBM Decision No. 202 of September 202, 2020);

- effective November 16, 2020–December 15, 2020 – 30% (previously 28.5%) (NBM Decision No. 202 of September 202, 2020).

Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	Effective October 1, 2020, banks must ensure that the currency denomination of their liquid assets is consistent with the distribution by currency of their net liquidity outflows. However, where appropriate, the NBM may require banks to restrict currency mismatch by setting limits on the proportion of net liquidity outflows in a currency that can be met during a stress period by holding liquid assets not denominated in that currency. Previously, banking regulation did not provide differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange with regard to liquidity requirements.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.	Banking regulations do not provide for separate accounts for nonresidents; banks, however, perform separate accounting for nonresidents.

Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	According to the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation, purchases by licensed banks of foreign financial instruments do not require NBM approval. However, under the Law on Banking Activity, the acquisition by the bank of any qualifying holding in a foreign entity is subject to the prior approval of the NBM if, as a result of the acquisition, the entity must be included in the scope of prudential consolidation.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents of jurisdictions that do not implement the international transparency standards may not hold direct or indirect equity interests in the capital of banks. Banks and foreign bank branches are established in the same conditions stipulated in the Law on Banking

		Activity and Law on State Registration of Legal Entities and Individual Entrepreneurs No. 220-XVI from October 19, 2007. Foreign banks are allowed to establish branches in the Republic of Moldova without legal personality, with the condition that existing legislative framework in the country of origin and/or its application does not prevent the exercise of the National Bank supervisory functions.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	Balance sheet foreign exchange assets may not exceed 125% or be less than 75% of balance sheet foreign exchange liabilities. The open long or short foreign exchange position limit for each currency may not, respectively, exceed or be less than 10% of the regulatory capital. The open long or short foreign exchange position limit for all currencies may not, respectively, exceed or be less than 20% of regulatory capital.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	Limits on open foreign exchange positions apply equally to assets and liabilities of residents and nonresidents. Balance sheet foreign exchange assets may not exceed 125% or be less than 75% of balance sheet foreign exchange liabilities. The open long or short foreign exchange position limit for each currency may not, respectively, exceed or be less than 10% of the regulatory capital. Liquid asset requirements	10/01/2020	Banks must ensure that the currency denomination of their liquid assets is consistent with the distribution by currency of their net liquidity outflows. However, where appropriate, the National Bank of Moldova may require banks to restrict currency mismatch by setting limits on the proportion of net liquidity outflows in a currency that can be met during a stress period by holding liquid assets not denominated in that currency. Previously, banking regulation did not provide differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange with regard to liquidity requirements.
Provisions specific to institutional investors
Insurance companies
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	03/27/2020	Cash in current accounts in banks and branch of a bank from other state, licensed by the National Bank of Moldova, including in foreign currency, must not exceed the limit of 20% of total technical reserves, excluding the reinsurer's share in technical reserves, and half of the minimum solvency margin.

MONGOLIA(Position as of June 30, 2021)Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership	February 14, 1991.
Article VIII	Yes. Date of acceptance: February 1, 1996.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation, with Mongolia states that, as of August 2, 2019, Mongolia maintained two MCPs subject to IMF jurisdiction. First, the modalities of the multi-price auction system give rise to an MCP because there is no mechanism in place that ensures that exchange rates of accepted bids at the multi-price auction do not deviate by more than 2%. In addition, Mongolia has an official exchange rate (reference rate) that is mandatorily used for government transactions (as opposed to the commercial market rate). Therefore, by way of official action, the authorities have created market segmentation. While Order #699 of the Bank of Mongolia (BOM) issued on December 3, 2010, sets forth that the reference rate is determined based on the weighted average of market rates used from 4 p.m. of the previous day to 4 p.m. of the current day, staff are of the view that this Order does not eliminate the market segmentation and the multiplicity of effective rates arising from it. Accordingly, in the absence of a mechanism to ensure that the commercial rates and the reference rate do not deviate by more than 2%, the way the reference rate is used in government transactions gives rise to an MCP subject to IMF approval. (Country Report No. 19/297)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Restrictions are imposed on certain transactions with the former Republic of Serbia and Montenegro.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	Yes.	The currency of Mongolia is the Mongolian togrog.
Other legal tender	No.
Exchange rate structure
Unitary
Dual
Multiple	Yes.	The exchange rate structure is classified as multiple because the official exchange rate may differ from the market rate by more than 2%, and a multiple-price auction was introduced without a formal mechanism to prevent a spread exceeding 2% of effective rates between the winning bids. Since the inception of the auction, however, winning bids have never deviated by more than 2%. To eliminate the risk of accepted bids deviating by more than 2%, in addition to multiple-price auction, the BOM introduced a single-price auction, from October 1, 2015, that is, where all accepted offers are fulfilled at a single cutoff rate.

MONGOLIA

Stabilized arrangement

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The BOM reserves the right to intervene in the foreign exchange market. To ensure the togrog's exchange rate flexibility with macroeconomic fundamentals, BOM intervenes through the auction in the foreign exchange market to mitigate the supply-demand gap. In the first quarter of 2021, the amount of USD buy orders from banks were relatively low because of lockdowns imposed by the government in January and March. After the lockdown restrictions in May, foreign exchange market started to be more active. The foreign trade turnover has increased compared to the second half of 2020 and first quarter of 2021.

As of June 30, 2021, Mongolia's imports have risen by 33% to US$3.20 billion, exports have increased by 45% to US$4.1 billion from previous year, and Balance of Payment (BOP) showed deficit of US$54.2 million.

As of June 30, 2021, the exchange rate was 2848.87, incurring Mongolian togrog appreciation of 0.04% from the start of the year. However, compared to June 30, 2020, the exchange rate slightly depreciated by 0.9%.

From September 2020, the exchange rate stabilized within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to stabilized from crawl-like, effective September 9, 2020.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The BOM's closing rate—togrog against US dollar—is calculated as the sum of weighted purchase and sale rates multiplied by total purchase and sale volume percentages, respectively. Purchase and sale volumes are based on transactions between 4:00 p.m. of the previous day and 4:00 p.m. of the current day reported by banks by 4:40 p.m. every business day. The closing reference rate is announced by 5:40 p.m. everyday once it is cleared by the director of the Reserve Management and Financial Markets Department at the BOM. Calculation of reference rates of togrog against all other foreign currencies is based on rates in international markets between 4:00 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. of the current day. The reference rate is used in accounting, customs valuation, and government transactions with the BOM. For accounting purposes, the daily reference rate is the BOM's closing rate on the previous day. The reference rate is announced each weekday except national holidays.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	The BOM has had a monetary aggregate targeting framework since the mid-1990s with reserve money as the operating target and M2 as the intermediate target. However, because of the remonetization process and the volatility of the money multiplier since 2007, the BOM has not strictly adhered to its monetary targets (except during 2009–2011, when the BOM had an IMF-supported program). It has pursued an eclectic anchoring strategy involving the monitoring of a broad range of financial (exchange rate, money and credit growth, interest rate) and real (domestic demand, current account, production) indicators. Since 2012, the BOM has been pursuing a more forward-looking approach by introducing the Forecasting and Policy Analysis System (FPAS) in which monetary policy decision is based on macroeconomic forecasts. The current policy strategy of the BOM can be considered as inflation-targeting framework. Following the annual BOM Monetary Policy Guidelines proposal, the 2021 and medium-term inflation targets were set at 6%±2% for the years 2021–2023, which were approved by parliament in November 2020 (effective November 30, 2020). The target measure is headline inflation (CPI). The BOM cut the policy rate from 11% to 8% in three increments of 100 basis points each, effective March 12, 2020, effective April 14, 2020, and effective September 15, 2020, and once by 200 basis points to 6%, effective November 23, 2020. Inflation targets are set in the Monetary Policy Guidelines, which is prepared by the BOM and approved by the parliament. Realization of the target is reported to the parliament. The MPC consists of 7 members, including the BOM Governor, the First Deputy Governor, the Deputy Governor, and four outside members. Currently, there are 3 outside members who are advisor to the National Development Agency's Chairman and 2 professors from the Institute of Finance and Economics and National University of Mongolia. The meetings of the MPC are held at least 4 times a year, and it publishes its decisions after each such meeting. Minutes of the MPC meetings are published on the BOM website. Inflation forecasts are published quarterly in the Inflation Report.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	In accordance with the AML/CFT Law, banks and other credit institutions are supervised and monitored by the BOM and Financial Regulatory Commission of Mongolia, respectively. The supervising authorities conduct on- and off-side risk-based supervision. The duties of banks and other credit institutions (reporting entities) include understanding their risks associated with AML/CFT and adopting internal procedures which cover regular, enhanced, and simplified customer due diligence.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	The registration of foreign borrowing is not required except as required for the purpose of combating terrorism and money laundering.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	The BOM permission is required.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Banks are required to obtain a supplementary foreign exchange settlement license to engage in these transactions.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Banks are required to obtain a supplementary foreign exchange settlement license to engage in these transactions.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Banks must meet separate reserve requirements for both togrog and foreign currency deposits. The MPC reduced the reserve requirement rate for togrog from 10.5% to 8.5% effective March 25, 2020, and then to 6% effective December 2, 2020. The foreign currency reserve requirement was increased by 300 basis points from 12% to 15% effective January 1, 2020, to maintain the stability of the togrog and to reduce the togrog exchange rate volatility. Banks must maintain an amount equivalent to at least 50% of required reserves in their togrog and foreign currency accounts held at the BOM by the end of each day. Along with the daily requirement, banks are also required to maintain an average basis equivalent to the required reserves throughout the maintenance period. The cash in vault for either togrog or foreign currency is not taken into account when calculating reserve fulfillment. The banks' required reserves in togrog are remunerated at 50% of the BOM's overnight deposit rate. The penalty interest for failing to meet the reserve requirement is equal to the overnight repo rate plus 5%.

Investment regulations	Yes.	Nonresidents' investment activities are regulated by the Law on Investments, Company Law, and Banking Law.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	Banks are required to hold a supplementary foreign exchange settlement license and securities trading license to engage in these transactions. Basic activities such as transfers and foreign exchange trading are granted with the banking license. Banks may not establish subsidiary companies or hold minority interest of more than 20% in any company.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents' investments in banks are regulated by the Law on Investments, Company Law, Banking Law, and Regulation on Change in Bank Capital Structure. All residents and nonresidents are required to get a permit from the BOM to become a bank shareholder. According to the Law on Investments, any foreign state-owned legal entity willing to invest in more than 33% of bank's ownership must get a permit from the Government of Mongolia before getting a permit from the BOM.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The limits are 15% of adjusted capital for the net position in a single currency and 30% of adjusted capital for the total net position in all currencies. Adjusted capital is calculated, as follows: (1) Treasury-owned common and preferred equities are deducted from Tier 1 and Tier 2 capital, respectively; (2) goodwill is deducted; (3) the sum of deferred taxes and software in excess of 10% of Tier 1 is deducted; (4) 75% and 25% of amounts in excess of limits set in the Banking Law 17.1–17.5 are deducted from Tier 1 and Tier 2 capital, respectively. If Tier 2 is insufficient, the remainder is deducted from Tier 1; (5) Tier 2 is capped at 50% of Tier 1.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses No.

Other No.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures Yes.

Import licensing procedures are maintained for various reasons including protection of national security, human, animal, or plant life or health, and to meet commitments under international conventions to which Montenegro is a signatory, for example, the CITES. As of the end of 2017, these requirements covered approximately 356 ten-digit HS tariff items, or 3.6% of all tariff lines, comprising explosives, headgears, optical instruments, pharmaceutical products, insecticides, contact lenses, uranium, and apparatus based on the use of X-rays or alpha, beta, or gamma radiation.

Positive list No. There is no positive list. An estimated 96.4% of all tariff items may be imported freely. Goods not included on the control list (negative list) may be imported and exported freely.

Negative list Yes. Negative list (prohibitions or restrictions). Montenegro prohibits a few imports, mainly to protect health, safety, security, the environment, and natural resources. Imports of radioactive waste (HS28.44.10.10, HS28.44.30.55, and HS28.44.50) and trade in nuclear materials (from HS28.44.20.25 to HS28.44.20.99) are prohibited. No other import prohibitions are in place. Regarding the importation of used products, certain technical requirements must be met. Used motor vehicles being imported or being placed on the Montenegrin market for the first time can be put into free circulation on determination of the level of costs for the type approval of such vehicles. Waste tires can only be imported for processing, on the basis of an approval or an import license issued by the Environmental Protection Agency, provided their import does not endanger the environment or human health.

Open general licenses No.

Licenses with quotas No.

Other nontariff measures No. Export and import quotas have been eliminated in Serbia and Montenegro, in accordance with an agreement between the two republics for harmonizing their trade, customs, and indirect tax regimes.

Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The Law on Customs Tariff (OGM of the MNE No. 28/12) stipulates customs duty that has to be paid for imports of goods. The rate does not exceed 50%. The average applied tariff rate for 2021 is 5.38% calculated by customs rates set out in the Decree on Customs Tariffs for 2021 (OGM No. 39/21). Montenegro applies only tariff-rate (preferential) quotas under its Regional Trade Agreements. They currently affect imports of 149 agricultural products from the EU in line with the Stabilization and Association Agreement (for example, poultry meat, fish, cheese, water, and wine) since 2008 and imports of dried fruit from Turkey since 2010. Tariff-rate quotas are allocated by the Customs Administration on a first-come, first-served basis.

Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Article 27 of the Law on Investment Funds prescribes the following: (1) Open-end funds may invest no more than (a) 10% of assets in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by the same entity and (b) 20% of assets in deposits with the same subject. (2) Exposure of open-end funds to counterparty risk in OTC derivatives transactions may not exceed (a) 10% of assets if the counterparty is a credit institution referred to in the Article 25, Paragraph 1, Item 4, of the law and (b) 5% of assets in other cases. (3) The total value of transferable securities and money market instruments held by open-end funds in issuers in which more than 5% of assets are invested may not exceed 40% of total assets. (4) The limitation referred to in Paragraph 3 of this article does not apply to deposits or transactions in OTC derivatives with financial institutions subject to prudential supervision. (5) Notwithstanding the limits referred to in Paragraph 1 of this article, open-end funds may not, if it would cause investment of more than 20% of assets in the same company, combine (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by such company; (b) deposits with the respective company; and (c) exposures arising from transactions in OTC derivatives in which the respective company is involved. (6) Notwithstanding Paragraph 1 of this article, open-end funds may invest no more than 35% of assets in transferable securities or money market instruments of the same company, if transferable securities or money market instruments are issued or guaranteed by the state, the local government, or an international organization. (7) Notwithstanding Paragraph 1 of this article, open-end funds may invest no more than 25% of assets in bonds, if bonds are issued by a credit institution with a registered office in an EU member state that is under the supervision of the relevant authority for the purpose of protection of bondholders. For bonds issued by foreign institutions not registered in an EU member state, the 10% limit indicated in Item 1 applies. (8) Funds raised by issuing bonds referred to in Paragraph 7 of this article must be invested in assets that until the maturity of the bond may back claims on bonds, and that would be, in case of bankruptcy of the issuer, used for payment of principal and accrued unpaid interest. (9) If an open-end fund invests more than 5% of its assets in bonds referred to in Paragraph 7 of this article issued by the same entity, the total value of these investments may not exceed 80% of open-end fund assets. (10) If an open-end fund invests more than 5% of its assets in transferable securities and money market instruments in accordance with Paragraphs 6 and 7 of this article, those transferable securities are not taken into account when applying limits specified in Paragraph 2 of this article. (11) Investments in transferable securities and money market instruments issued by the same entity, or in deposits or derivative instruments issued by the same entity, which are carried out in accordance with Paragraphs 1–8 of this article, may not together exceed 35% of the open-end fund's assets. (12) Companies in the same group as the group that keeps the consolidated accounts in accordance with recognized international accounting standards are considered to be a single company for the purpose of calculating limits referred to in this article. Open-end funds may cumulatively invest no more than 20% of assets in transferable securities and money market instruments within the same group. Article 81, Paragraph 1, Items 4 and 5, of the Law on Investment Funds prescribes allowable investments of a closed-end investment fund as follows: (1) deposits with authorized banks in Montenegro or in another country, provided they are subject to supervision and limitations equivalent to supervision and limitations established by the regulations, maturing within no more than 12 months and withdrawable at any time; (2) forwards and options and other financial derivatives traded on an organized market, provided they are based on financial investment instruments, financial indices, interest rates, exchange rates, or currencies in which the fund is permitted to invest according to its prospectus and articles of association; business activities agreed on in other organized markets and concluded with institutions subject to supervision of the appropriate authority in Montenegro or in an EU member state, subject to reliable and verifiable daily valuation and sellable at any time, and that may be liquidated or completed by settlement at their fair value at the request of the fund. Such instruments may be used solely to reduce or limit risk or increase yields and reduce costs of the fund without increasing the risk—that is, that they should not change the investment strategy, objectives, or limitations defined by this law and the prospectus and/or articles of association of the fund. The fund's prospectus must provide for investment in these instruments and the purpose for which they may be used (protection against the risk and/or to achieve the investment objectives of the fund) and indicate that risk evaluation of these instruments has been provided. Article 62, Paragraph 2, of the Law on Investment Funds prescribes that an investment fund for investment in initial capital may not invest more than 20% of its net assets in any other company. Article 27 of the Law on Investment Funds prescribes the following: (1) Open-end funds may invest no more than (a) 10% of assets in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by the same entity and (b) 20% of assets in deposits with the same subject. (2) Exposure of open-end funds to counterparty risk in OTC derivatives transactions may not exceed (a) 10% of assets if the counterparty is a credit institution referred to in the Article 25, Paragraph 1, Item 4, of the law and (b) 5% of assets in other cases. (3) The total value of transferable securities and money market instruments held by open-end funds in issuers in which more than 5% of assets are invested may not exceed 40% of total assets. (4) The limitation referred to in Paragraph 3 of this article does not apply to deposits or transactions in OTC derivatives with financial institutions subject to prudential supervision. (5) Notwithstanding the limits referred to in Paragraph 1 of this article, open-end funds may not, if it would cause investment of more than 20% of assets in the same company, combine (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by such company; (b) deposits with the respective company; and (c) exposures arising from transactions in OTC derivatives in which the respective company is

MOROCCO

Pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands	Yes.	Bank Al-Maghrib (BAM) is implementing exchange rate policy in connection with the exchange regime and guidelines established by the government, subject to the opinion of the bank (Article 11 of the Law establishing the Charter of the BAM). The de jure exchange system is a pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands calculated based on a basket of currencies, comprised since April 2015 of the euro and the US dollar, weighted, respectively, at 60% and 40%. The limit exchange rates for the fluctuation band around the central rate of the basket are (+) and (–) 5%. On March 6, 2020, the Ministry of Economy, Finance, and Government Reform, following the opinion from the BAM, decided, effective March 9, 2020, to increase the fluctuation band for the dirham from +/-2.5% to +/-5% against the central rate established by the BAM based on a basket of currencies comprised of the euro and the US dollar, weighted, respectively, at 60% and 40%. Since March 2020, the exchange rate increased its flexibility while still being managed within the +/-5% band against the US dollar–euro basket. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands from stabilized, effective March 24, 2020.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The dirham has been pegged since 1973 to a basket of currencies reflecting Morocco’s foreign exchange structure with the rest of the world. The composition of this basket is subject to adjustment. Since April 2015, the basket has been composed of the euro and the US dollar, with weights of 60% and 40%, respectively. The BAM sets the central dirham/US dollar exchange rate, as well as the limits for the exchange rate fluctuation bands around the central rate at, effective March 9, 2020, +/-5% (previously +/-2.5%). However, the BAM may establish limits for the exchange rate bands against another currency. Based on its published methodology, the BAM establishes daily reference exchange rates for the dirham based on quotes listed by banks with market maker status as outlined in the BAM’s Circular.
Monetary policy framework
Exchange rate anchor	Yes.
U.S. dollar
Euro
Composite	Yes.	The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis a composite comprising the euro and the US dollar. Within the framework of an exchange rate fixed to a currency composite, the BAM adopted a monetary policy framework in 2006 based on various inflation indicators, with the overnight interest rate as its operational target to pursue its main objective of price stability. On March 22, 2016, the BAM lowered the reference interest rate to 2.25%. Since April 2015, the basket has been composed of the euro and the US dollar, with weights of 60% and 40%, respectively.

MOROCCO

Exchange tax	Yes.	Banks charge a 0.1% commission on foreign exchange transactions for dirhams with customers, as well as with foreign banks. This commission is not charged on transactions between Moroccan banks. For banknote transactions with foreign banks, the commission is not charged.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The foreign exchange market was established in 1996.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Banks must adhere to the band rates set by the BAM when performing spot market foreign exchange transactions in exchange for dirhams, referred to in Articles 2 and 4 of the Decision of the Governor of the BAM on how to apply the exchange rate regime. The exchange rate band in relation to the central rate is set at, effective March 9, 2020, +/-5% (previously +/-2.5%). The FEO's Foreign Exchange Policy Statement defines spot foreign exchange transactions as follows: (1) the purchase and sale of foreign currencies against dirhams by banks, between themselves, with the BAM, or with their customers; (2) the purchase and sale of foreign currencies against other foreign currencies by banks, between themselves, with customers, with foreign banks, or with the BAM. Banks are authorized to carry out, either on their own account or on behalf of their customers, spot foreign exchange transactions, hedging transactions, loan-borrowing transactions in accordance with the 2020 General Instructions on Foreign Exchange Operations, and to establish foreign exchange positions, in accordance with the procedures laid down by the BAM. Amounts repatriated and not paid into the foreign currency accounts referred to in the provisions of the foreign exchange regulations in force must be transferred under market conditions and in accordance with the procedures laid down by the BAM regarding the applicable exchange rates within three working days of receipt of the funds by the bank. The equivalent in dirhams must be immediately made available to the beneficiary by the bank that received the funds. For foreign exchange transfers, licensed banks and exchange bureaus freely determine their bid-ask spread within the fluctuation band of +/-5% around the central rate of the band established by the BAM. Banks charge a 0.1% commission on foreign exchange transactions for dirhams with customers, as well as with foreign banks. This commission is not charged on transactions between Moroccan banks. For banknote transactions with foreign banks, the commission is not charged. Banks are authorized to buy and sell foreign currency among themselves and with customers and to maintain foreign exchange positions on terms established by the BAM. Purchase, sale, and arbitrage operations among banks or on behalf of their clients may be denominated in any currency traded in the foreign exchange market. Banks may conduct foreign currency buying and selling operations with foreign banks and the BAM for any currency traded in the foreign exchange market. The BAM reserves the right not to list certain currencies even if they are traded in the foreign exchange market. Currencies not listed by the BAM may be traded by banks among themselves or with their foreign correspondents. There were 15 financial institutions active on the foreign exchange market as of December 31, 2020.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BAM intervenes in the exchange rate market, on its own initiative, via buy or sell currency auctions in exchange for dirhams. The BAM sets: (1) the currency for its interventions on the exchange rate market and (2) the terms of eligibility for auctions. It may also intervene using other instruments, such as OTC currency

		sales or purchases in exchange for dirhams, currency loans or borrowings, and foreign exchange swaps against the dirham.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.	The BAM does not redistribute foreign exchange inflows to transactors, nor does it verify transactions in advance when dealing with commercial banks.
Auction	Yes.	The BAM organizes on its own initiative auctions to buy or sell US dollars in exchange for dirhams on an electronic platform. It may also organize auctions for other currencies. Only banks with market maker status are authorized to participate in the currency auctions. The first auction took place January 15, 2018. Before each session, the BAM uses the auction platform to publish its contribution pages on Reuters, Bloomberg, and its website, with the press release setting out the characteristics of the following call for tenders: Session date; Purchase or Sale; Currency; Amount; Opening time; Closing time; and Value date. Bids must comply with the following conditions: The minimum amount per bid is US$500,000; the amount of the bid must be a multiple of 500,000; each bid may be divided, at most, into 3 tranches of a multiple of 500,000; the amount per bid must not exceed the amount of the auction announced by the BAM. The BAM sets and publishes the fluctuation band, in relation to the central exchange rate, which it uses as a basis for operating on the foreign exchange market. To that end, it sets a minimum and maximum exchange rate for each auction. Bidders may modify or cancel their bids until the auction closing time. At the closing time of the auction session, the bids submitted to the BAM are deemed firm and irrevocable. The BAM publishes the overall results of the auction on its website as well as on its contribution pages on Reuters and Bloomberg. The last foreign exchange auction was held on March 20, 2018. The BAM reserves the right to suspend access for banks having status as market makers in foreign exchange auctions when they fail to comply with the rules in connection with this status to which they are subject under the circular from the BAM. The BAM may also decide to withdraw market maker status from a bank when it no longer meets the conditions for which the status of market maker was granted, and despite warnings issued by the BAM, the bank engages in actions that may adversely affect the proper operation of the foreign exchange market.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	The interbank market participants are primarily market makers, the number of which was nine banks as of December 31, 2020. Banks that have status of market makers must comply daily, among themselves, with firm reciprocal buying and selling price obligations on the USD/MAD parity. Banks having market maker status may freely engage in foreign exchange operations with other Moroccan and foreign banks in compliance with current regulations. As of December 31, 2020, 15 banks were participating in the interbank market.
Over the counter	Yes.	For OTC operations, authorized intermediary banks are authorized as follows: (1) Authorized intermediaries, foreign exchange bureaus, and payment institutions, licensed for this purpose by the FEO, may engage in trading involving foreign banknotes and traveler's checks with customers.

Only credit institutions with the status of authorized intermediary may negotiate with customers LCs, bank checks, and money orders. These institutions may also engage in currency trading involving foreign banknotes with Moroccans and foreign nationals holding foreign exchange accounts. For OTC foreign exchange operations, licensed intermediary banks may (a) buy or sell foreign currency banknotes, travelers' checks, LCs, bank checks, and money orders with their customers and (b) repurchase nonresidents' dirhams at the end of their stay in Morocco from previously surrendered foreign currency. The FEO permits exchange bureaus and payment institutions it has authorized to conduct OTC operations to buy and sell foreign banknotes and travelers' checks with their customers as allowed by foreign exchange regulations. Foreign exchange bureaus and payment institutions authorized to conduct OTC transactions may buy, in exchange for domestic currency, foreign banknotes and/or foreign-currency-denominated travelers' checks and sell for cash, in exchange for domestic currency, foreign banknotes and traveler's checks, as part of the allowance for tourists, the Hajj pilgrimage, missions, and internships abroad by personnel of central and local governments and of public institutions and enterprises, and the educational allowance for students. Effective January 1, 2020, payment institutions are also permitted to grant electronic trade allowances to individuals.

Foreign exchange bureaus may hold cash equivalent to DH 500,000. For exchange bureaus in airport duty-free (hors douane) departure lounges or bonded arrival areas, the cash limit is DH 600,000. Foreign exchange bureaus must deal with a licensed intermediary bank or the BAM to transfer their surplus holdings and cash travelers' checks. Certain establishments – other than licensed bank intermediaries, exchange bureaus, and payment institutions – may also be authorized by the FEO to purchase foreign banknotes and/or traveler's checks for dirhams on behalf of a licensed bank intermediary they have freely chosen. These authorizations are known as sub-delegations and the beneficiaries as sub-delegates. Such establishments are classified as hotels, guesthouses, tourism residences, youth hostels, international passenger carriers, travel agencies, and car rental firms with offices at ports and airports, and casinos authorized by the relevant authorities.

Sub-delegates may engage, for the account of an authorized intermediary, in operations involving the purchase of foreign banknotes or negotiation of traveler's checks with customers. (2) Authorized intermediaries, foreign exchange bureaus, and payment institutions may deal in foreign banknotes, traveler's checks, LCs, bank checks, and money orders in foreign exchange with their customers up to the limits allowed by the limit rates applied by the BAM at the central rate of plus 7.5% for sales and minus 7.5% for purchases effective March 9, 2020 (previously +/-5%). The BAM sets the OTC fluctuation band exchange rate limits for the dirham against other currencies.

Sub-delegates engage in the transactions referred to in Article 1(3) of the BAM Circular on OTC transactions at the exchange rates agreed on with the authorized intermediary on whose behalf they are dealing. Rates applied to OTC exchange transactions are net, inclusive of all charges and commissions.

Foreign exchange bureaus and payment institutions must go to a credit institution with the status of authorized intermediary trade in foreign banknotes and cash traveler's checks.

These operations are carried out on the terms and conditions agreed on between the parties.

As of December 31, 2020, there were 655 exchange bureaus

		authorized by the FEO exclusively to engage in OTC foreign exchange operations. It may postpone setting the OTC band rate limit of one or more currencies in the event of a major event affecting them. When performing OTC foreign exchange transactions, banks must apply exchange rates that fall within the band rate limits referred to in Article 8 of the Decision of the Governor of the BAM on how to apply the exchange rate regime. The BAM informs banks of the exchange rates of listed currencies against the US dollar applicable to the foreign banknote transactions it carries out with them at the time of publication of the rate limits. Regarding OTC foreign exchange transactions between the BAM and banks, the settlement of foreign banknote transactions initiated by banks with the BAM is carried out by hedging in foreign currency with their foreign correspondent banks. These transactions involve only the banknotes of listed foreign banks and result in the payment of 1% commission, before tax, to the BAM.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	Yes.	Banks with market maker status must meet the following requirements: (1) Provide continuous buy/sell trading quotes of USD/MAD on the spot market listed on Reuters and Bloomberg, with updates every 15 seconds; (2) provide firm buy/sell spot market quotes for USD/MAD on the trading platform for at least 6 banks with market maker status within the limits of their daily requirements; (3) provide simultaneous and identical quotes on the trading platform and on Reuters and Bloomberg contribution pages; (4) provide quotes for a minimum of, effective February 1, 2021, US $1,000,000 (previously US$500,000) with a maximum bid-ask spread of 50 basis points (bps) within the limits of the daily requirement; (5) provide reciprocal daily commitments vis-à-vis relevant market makers in terms of amounts and spread; (6) perform all trades relating to the reciprocal quote commitments on the trading platform; and (7) perform all other operations not relating to reciprocal commitments on the Bloomberg or Reuters platform.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Banks may perform the following hedging operations against the following risks on behalf of their customers or for their own proprietary purposes, in compliance with the foreign exchange regulations in effect: (1) hedging operations against foreign exchange rate risk for foreign currencies against dirhams and foreign currencies against other foreign currencies; (2) hedging operations against interest rate risk; (3) hedging operations against the risk of commodity fluctuations taken out by Moroccan legal entities with banks or foreign broker-dealers on an organized international market; commodities include mining, energy, and agricultural products, as well as timber, coal, silver, and other precious metals; and (4) hedging transactions against any risk inherent in any asset or debt. Banks are required to ensure that the unwinding of hedging transactions does not exceed the settlement periods of the current or underlying capital transaction provided for in the commercial or financial contracts concluded in this context. Effective January 1, 2020, operators may undertake hedging operations with justification that the outcome has been secured rather than the initiation of the hedge agreement for imports and exports of goods. This option of signing hedging agreements for imports and exports may be executed within the limit of 25% of the average value of imports carried out during the last three fiscal years and 100% of the average export turnover for the past three fiscal years. Hedging transactions, carried out by banks with their customers, must be covered by a contract in the framework of the International

Swaps and Derivatives Association (ISDA), the French Banking Federation (FBF), or the European Market Infrastructure Regulation (EMIR).

Hedging transactions – foreign exchange transactions against dirhams – carried out with customers are subject to foreign exchange commissions in accordance with current regulations.

Articles 140 and 143 of the 2020 General Instruction from the FEO on Foreign Exchange Operations on hedging operations specifies the terms and conditions of hedging operations with regard to the above-mentioned risks, which must be related to actual commercial or financial operations when the hedge relates to a current or capital transaction linked to the activity of the company (which must have been in business for at least three years) and when the amount to be hedged does not exceed the amount of the transaction and the settlement does not exceed the settlement deadlines. These provisions are intended to prevent speculative transactions in the foreign exchange market.

Banks may offer their customers a combination of instruments as part of the same hedging operation. Hedging transactions may also result in the unwinding of positions arising from such transactions. In addition, hedging the stock of imported commodities may cover exported/imported products as well as imported and stored products. For hedging against any risk inherent in any asset or debt, banks may conclude these transactions only on a proprietary basis or on behalf of certain institutional entities – credit institutions and similar entities, insurance companies, and collective investment funds (organismes de placement collectif en titrisation). Institutional investors were also allowed to cover capital transactions, such as investments made abroad by UCITS or insurance companies.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements Yes.

Controls on the use of domestic currency Yes.

Transactions between Morocco and foreign countries – regardless of the type – must be settled in foreign currencies quoted by the BAM or in convertible dirhams.

For current transactions and payments Yes.

As a general rule, settlement of current transactions between residents and nonresidents must be made in currencies listed by the BAM. However, importers of services are authorized to use dirhams on the national territory to settle transactions for import services rendered in Morocco by nonresident natural persons.

“Special” accounts denominated in dirhams may be opened in the name of nonresident foreign natural or legal persons in the cases and conditions set out in the 2020 General Instruction on Foreign Exchange Operations.

Current transactions within the national territory may only be settled in the national currency.

Any foreign exchange transaction not specifically defined remains subject to the authorization of the Exchange Office.

For capital transactions Yes.

As a general rule, settlement of capital transactions between residents and nonresidents must be made in currencies listed by the BAM. Capital transactions within the national territory may only be settled in the national currency.

Any foreign exchange transaction not specifically defined remains subject to the authorization of the Exchange Office.

Transactions in capital and money market Yes.

As a general rule, settlement of capital transactions between residents instruments		and nonresidents must be made in currencies listed by the BAM. Capital transactions within the national territory may only be settled in the national currency.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	As a general rule, settlement of capital transactions between residents and nonresidents must be made in currencies listed by the BAM. Capital transactions within the national territory may only be settled in the national currency.
Credit operations	Yes.	As a general rule, settlement of the credit transactions between residents and nonresidents must be made in currencies listed by the BAM. However, banks are allowed to grant loans in national currency to nonresidents: (1) loans in dirhams granted by banks to nonresident foreign individuals and Moroccans residing abroad, intended to finance the acquisition and/or development of real estate in Morocco; (2) consumer loans granted in dirhams by banks to foreign personnel working for diplomatic representations accredited in Morocco or international organizations based or represented in Morocco; and (3) credit lines and facilities granted to branches registered with the FEO as part of the execution of contracts in Morocco, the remuneration of which is denominated entirely in dirhams. Credit transactions within the national territory may only be settled in national currency.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	Transactions among residents in Morocco must be denominated and settled in domestic currency.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	A regional payments arrangement among the CBs of Algeria, Libya, Mauritania, Morocco, and Tunisia governs payment operations among those countries. Economic operators may settle their transactions either within the framework of these arrangements or by following normal procedures. Payments between Morocco and AMU countries may be made either under the unified bilateral payments agreement concluded between AMU countries or through the banking system. Payments between Morocco and the AMU countries and all related documents must be denominated either in one of the currencies of the two countries involved in the transaction or in a currency that is jointly quoted by the two countries.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	Foreign exchange controls are overseen by the FEO (Office des Changes) and the Administration of Customs and Indirect Taxes, both under the MOF. The Office has delegated the execution of the main exchange regulation measures to authorized banks. Foreign exchange controls involve verifying that all foreign exchange transactions are conducted in accordance with the regulations in effect.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Residents may purchase, hold, and sell gold coins in Morocco for numismatic or investment purposes. Ten different types of foreign gold coins are traded on the Casablanca Stock Exchange, which does not, however, deal in gold bars. Any individual or legal entity wishing to operate as a manufacturer or merchant of items made of platinum, gold, or silver is required to file a declaration with the customs precious metal warranty office, eight days prior to the date on which the establishment opens or commences operation (Article 4 of Dahir No. 1-77-340 and Article 91 of Minister of Finance arrêté 1309-77). This application must include the following supporting documents: (1) a copy certified as true to the original from the register of commerce and (2) a certificate of registration in the business license tax rolls (rôle des patentes), prepared for the year during which the declaration is prepared. Items made from platinum, gold, or silver, except for those articles weighing one gram or less, imported into or manufactured in Morocco, must be presented to the customs precious metal warranty offices to undergo assay and, if necessary, to be covered with hallmarks indicating warranty (Article 44 of Dahir No. 1-77-340). The items thus presented may not have a fineness of less than the following minimum amounts: (1) for platinum items: 950 per mille; (2) for gold items: 750 per mille; and (3) for silver items: 800 per mille. Manufacturers and merchants (including itinerant traders) of platinum, gold, or silver items are required to keep a register signed and initialed by the chief of the customs precious metal warranty office with local jurisdiction, in which register they must enter the type, number, weight, and fineness of the articles made of these materials which they are purchasing, selling, or receiving to repair, and they must do so on a daily basis and at the very time when these items are bought, sold, or brought in (Articles 93 and 94(2) of the Minister of Finance arrêté).
On external trade	Yes.	Imports of gold are subject to authorization from the Administration of Customs and Indirect Taxes. The MOF fixes a quota annually for the importation of gold ingots. The quota is allocated among jewelers and industrial users of precious metals. Exports of gold are also regulated.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Exports of domestic banknotes are subject to authorization. However, authorized intermediary banks or operators established in the export free zones may export dirham-denominated banknotes to the Tangiers Export Free Zone with an export declaration. The dirhams must be drawn from convertible dirham accounts of operators in the export zone and used solely for payments to residents for the following expenditures: wages and other wage-earner remuneration up to any amount and transportation, repairs, work, and supplies of products from the territory covered up to DH 5,000 an operation and subject to an annual ceiling of DH 150,000 an operator. Travelers may export up to DH 2,000 in dirham banknotes. Authorized intermediary banks may set up foreign exchange counters on sea ferries operating between Morocco and other countries. The rules governing such foreign exchange counters (1) allow banks to bring aboard the ferry, under customs control, a stock of dirham banknotes for each crossing, and (2) limit such transactions at these counters to the purchase of foreign banknotes against dirhams from Moroccan citizens and foreign residents or nonresidents traveling to Morocco. Stocks of dirham banknotes for such counters must be brought aboard the ferry under customs control. For this purpose, the bank must execute with customs a dirham export declaration at the time of the ferry's departure.

Foreign currency	Yes.	Foreign and Moroccan nonresidents may export foreign-currency-denominated means of payment previously imported or debited from their foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts. Nonresident individuals (foreigners and Moroccans residing abroad) are not required to show a declaration to Customs filled out on entering the territory or a foreign currency receipt when, at the end of their stay, they resell remaining dirhams from previous exchange transactions to foreign exchange bureaus, payment institutions authorized to conduct OTC exchange transactions, and authorized intermediary banks situated at ports or airports, up to DH 2,000 a passport. Residents may also export foreign banknotes within the limits specified in the foreign exchange regulations (for example, for travel allowances). Nonresident individuals are authorized, when leaving Morocco, to export previously imported foreign-currency-denominated means of payment in accordance with the foreign exchange regulations currently in force. Moroccans residing abroad may buy foreign currency back from banks and export up to 50% of the foreign currency repatriated and sold on the foreign exchange market over the last 12 months up to a maximum of DH 100,000, excluding the foreign currency credited to their convertible dirham accounts. Effective January 1, 2020, Moroccan nationals resident abroad may repurchase and export 100% of the foreign exchange previously repatriated and transferred on the foreign exchange market within the limit of DH 100,000.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	The importation of domestic banknotes is subject to authorization. Travelers are, however, authorized to import up to DH 2,000 in dirham banknotes.
Foreign currency	No.	Nonresident travelers may bring in unlimited amounts of foreign banknotes, traveler's checks, and other means of payment denominated in foreign exchange, including negotiable bearer instruments. The term "negotiable bearer instruments" means monetary bearer instruments such as traveler's checks; negotiable instruments (especially checks, promissory notes, and money orders) that are either payable to the bearer or freely endorsable or made out to a fictitious beneficiary or in any form that permits a transfer by simple remittance; and incomplete instruments (especially checks, promissory notes, and money orders) that are signed but do not indicate the beneficiary. Resident travelers may also import unlimited amounts of foreign banknotes, but must surrender them for dirhams within 30 days of their return to Morocco. Imports of foreign banknotes must be declared at customs offices when the amount to be imported exceeds the equivalent of DH 100,000. Imports of foreign currency banknotes less than the equivalent of DH 100,000 may be covered, if desired, by a written declaration filed with customs on entering Morocco.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

MOROCCO

Held domestically

Yes. Two types of accounts may be opened: (1) Foreign resident individuals and foreign firms may open foreign exchange accounts in Moroccan banks without limitation. These accounts may be credited with transfers from abroad, any foreign-exchange-denominated means of payment (for example, banknotes, traveler's checks), and foreign currency that was withdrawn from a Moroccan bank in accordance with current foreign exchange regulations. Deposits of foreign banknotes by the account holder must be supported with an original signed foreign exchange import declaration from the border customs services or another document attesting to the origin of the foreign exchange. These accounts may be debited for transfers abroad and for the surrender of foreign currency for dirhams for all domestic settlements. There are no restrictions on interest payments on these accounts, on transfers between foreign exchange accounts, or on transfers between foreign exchange accounts and convertible dirham accounts. Authorized banks may issue international credit cards to holders of these accounts. Overdrafts on these accounts are not permitted. (2) Moroccan exporters of goods and services (including fishing companies) may open foreign exchange accounts and deposit up to 70% of the repatriated foreign exchange receipts from exports. The portion that Moroccan exporters of goods in the aeronautics and space industries may hold is 85% of export earnings in convertible dirham or foreign exchange accounts. The accounts may be credited in full or in part at the discretion of the exporter. In the case of a partial credit, the remaining amount may subsequently be credited to the account within one year of the date the foreign exchange was sold in the foreign exchange market. Exporters' foreign exchange accounts may also be credited without restriction with (1) transfers from other foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts belonging to the same account holder, (2) funds debited from foreign exchange accounts and sold in the foreign exchange market, and (3) funds withdrawn from convertible dirham accounts for payment of expenses in Morocco. These funds may be credited to exporters' accounts within a period of one year of the date on which they were withdrawn. The accounts may also be credited with foreign banknotes withdrawn for professional travel purposes and not used, provided the account is credited within 30 days of the date foreign currency was withdrawn for travel that did not take place or for travel that did take place within 30 days of entry into Morocco. The accounts may be debited (1) for foreign exchange expenses related to the account holder's professional activity, (2) to credit another foreign exchange or convertible dirham account in the name of the same account holder, and (3) to sell foreign exchange in the foreign exchange market. Authorized banks may issue international credit cards to holders of these accounts. Overdrafts are not permitted in foreign exchange accounts. Authorized banks may open foreign exchange accounts for foreign placement operations for insurance and reinsurance companies, UCITS, and OPCCs (Organisme de Placement Collectif en Capital (Capital Investment Organizations)), and make transfers related to foreign deposit, investment, and placement operations. They may also open foreign exchange accounts to allow traders to improve their management of international trade operations while avoiding exchange rate fluctuations and commissions and fees related to sales and repurchases of foreign currency. Authorized intermediary banks may open, on behalf of nonexporter individuals or firms, foreign exchange accounts to facilitate use of annual allowances in their favor under exchange regulations currently in force. Banks are authorized to open, on behalf of companies that do not have a foreign currency account – micro-credit associations, associations recognized as being of public utility, cooperatives and professional federations as well as individuals engaged in professional activity – and who benefit from a business travel allowance, a foreign currency or convertible dirham account for “business travel allowance” for the purpose of receiving the allowance.

These accounts may record on the credit side up to 100% of the allowances related to business travel. Such accounts may also be freely debited (1) with foreign banknotes to meet business travel needs; (2) with outward transfers or Internet purchases, in connection with the above-mentioned business travel (hotel bookings, transport costs abroad, etc.); (3) for the issuance of bank checks and/or traveler’s checks; and (4) for the issuance or charging of international bank cards in accordance with the provisions of the exchange regulations.

Authorized intermediary banks may also open foreign exchange accounts in the name of recipients of the tourism allowance. These accounts may be credited (1) with 100% of the tourism travel allowances and (2) with the tourism travel allowances for the individual’s minor children or spouse. Such accounts may be debited (1) with foreign banknotes to meet needs associated with tourism or business travel; (2) with outward transfers or Internet purchases in connection with tourism travel; (3) for the issuance of bank checks and/or traveler’ checks; and (4) for the issuance or charging of international bank cards issued in accordance with the exchange regulations.

Authorized intermediaries may open on their books foreign exchange accounts in the name of insurers and reinsurers for the purpose of engaging in the collection of premiums or settlement of amounts of compensation for claims associated with foreign exchange policies signed in accordance with instructions from the minister of finance. These accounts may be credited (1) with the amounts of the premium, which is to be settled in foreign exchange; (2) with the share of premiums accruing to the insurer under a coinsurance policy. In such cases, the transfer must be made by debiting the “foreign exchange insurance” account of the lead insurer; (3) with the payments of reinsurers and coinsurers to cover their liabilities; (4) with the payments in connection with recoveries (recours et sauvetage); (5) for foreign exchange purchases required to cover liabilities originating from insurance policies underwritten in foreign exchange if the balance on a foreign exchange insurance account is unable to cover liabilities borne by the insurer; and (6) for the refund of premiums paid to a reinsurer following termination of the policy. They may be debited (1) with compensation for claims as allowed by the exchange regulations; (2) with shares of premiums and other amounts owed to coinsurers; (3) with premiums and amounts owed to reinsurers under reinsurance agreements; and (4) with commissions and charges payable in foreign exchange in favor of a nonresident insurance intermediary under an insurance policy denominated in foreign exchange. Insurance and reinsurance enterprises licensed in Morocco and required to accept on a reinsurance basis the risks envisaged by current exchange regulations as well as risks ceded from foreign insurers, may open on the books of authorized intermediaries accounts known as “reinsurance acceptances in foreign exchange–local business” and “reinsurance acceptances in foreign exchange–foreign business.”

Insurance and reinsurance enterprises, engaging in reinsurance acceptances for operations insured in foreign exchange under a policy underwritten with an insurance and reinsurance enterprise, may open reinsurance acceptances in foreign exchange–local business accounts on the books of authorized intermediaries. Local business is defined as risk situated in Morocco covered by insurance policies in foreign currencies and underwritten with Moroccan insurers and ceded to Moroccan reinsurers. A reinsurance acceptance in foreign exchange–local business account may be credited with (1) amounts paid by direct insurers, on the understanding that these payments must be made by debiting their insurance in foreign exchange–local business accounts and (2) with amounts owed by reinsurance reinsurers (rétrocessionnaires) in settlement of their liabilities on retroceded risks. A reinsurance acceptance in foreign exchange–local business account may be debited (1) with amounts owed to reinsurance reinsurers and (2) with reinsurance balances and shares in compensation for claims accruing to direct insurers. Insurance and reinsurance enterprises engaging in reinsurance acceptances for operations insured in foreign exchange under a policy underwritten with an insurance and reinsurance enterprise may open reinsurance acceptances in foreign exchange–local business accounts on the books of authorized intermediaries. Local business is defined as risk situated in Morocco covered by insurance policies denominated in foreign currencies and underwritten with Moroccan insurers and ceded to Moroccan reinsurers. A reinsurance acceptance in foreign exchange–local business account may be credited with (1) amounts paid by direct insurers, on the understanding that these payments must be made by debiting their insurance in foreign exchange–local business accounts and (2) with amounts owed by reinsurance reinsurers (rétrocessionnaires) in settlement of their liabilities on retroceded risks. A reinsurance acceptance in foreign exchange–local business account may be debited (1) with amounts owed to reinsurance reinsurers and (2) with reinsurance balances and shares in compensation for claims accruing to direct insurers.

Insurance and reinsurance enterprises accepting on a reinsurance basis foreign business denominated in foreign exchange may open a reinsurance acceptance in foreign exchange–foreign business account with an authorized intermediary. Foreign business is defined as risk situated abroad covered by insurance policies underwritten with foreign insurers and ceded to Moroccan reinsurers. A reinsurance acceptance in foreign exchange–foreign business account may be credited (1) with shares of premiums accruing to the reinsurer in connection with business accepted and (2) with the balance in favor of the reinsurer. This account may be debited (1) with shares of compensation for claims borne by the reinsurer and (2) with the balance in favor of the ceding company.

Operators duly licensed under Moroccan insurance regulations to engage in reinsurance brokerage operations, which serve to place abroad risks entrusted by foreign insurance and reinsurance firms, may open a currency-specific account referred to as a “foreign exchange reinsurance brokerage” account on the books of authorized intermediaries. These accounts may be credited with funds received from foreign insurance and reinsurance firms in connection with premiums, compensation on claims, reinsurance balances, and brokerage commissions. These accounts may be debited with amounts paid to foreign insurance and reinsurance firms in connection with premiums, compensation on claims, and reinsurance balances. Brokerage commissions accruing to Moroccan brokers must be surrendered in the foreign exchange market immediately after encashment.

The categories of capital that may be freely managed by entities with Casablanca Finance City (CFC) status and that therefore may be deposited in their foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts at authorized intermediary banks were defined. Entities with CFC status may freely open foreign currency accounts in banks in Morocco to manage their foreign currency holdings in one of the following categories: (1) capital entrusted by nonresident investors to entities with CFC status for placement or investment purposes; (2) capital collected by entities with CFC status for their own account when issuing securities abroad or mobilizing external financing; (3) holdings in foreign exchange accounts or convertible dirham accounts opened on the books of authorized intermediaries in the name of foreign individuals or legal entities or in the name of Moroccans residing abroad and made available to entities with CFC status by the holders of such accounts; (4) funds made available to entities with CFC status by Moroccan financial institutions licensed to engage in foreign placement operations; (5) holdings in foreign exchange accounts or convertible dirham accounts opened in the name of entities with CFC status and engaging in services export operations; and (6) any other foreign-source foreign currency holdings.

Entities with CFC status engaging in services export transactions may open foreign exchange accounts or convertible dirham accounts on the books of authorized intermediary banks. Such accounts may be credited with 100% of proceeds from services rendered to nonresident entities by entities with CFC status.

For hedging operations against the risk of commodity price fluctuation on behalf of Moroccan legal entities, banks are required to open foreign currency accounts on their books. Foreign currency accounts, dedicated to customer hedging transactions, must record all related financial flows, including the security deposit, daily margin calls, and premiums received or paid.

Effective January 1, 2020, service exporters bidding for foreign contracts have the option of opening foreign exchange accounts in Morocco dedicated to the settlement of expenditure in connection with such contracts.

Effective January 1, 2020, resident individuals having revenue from foreign sources may place up to 70% of such revenue in an account in foreign exchange or in convertible dirhams to be opened with Moroccan banks.

Approval required

Yes.

Approval is not required for resident foreign exporters of goods and services; nonexporters who are beneficiaries of business travel allowances and individuals with tourism allowances; insurance and reinsurance firms; operators authorized to engage in brokerage operations; entities with CFC status for needs associated with management of their foreign exchange assets; entities with CFC status engaging in services export operations; and Moroccan legal entities that have subscribed to hedging instruments against commodity price fluctuation risks (Circular No. 1699 of January 13, 2004).

Held abroad

Yes.

Authorized banks may transfer funds for investment purposes as deposits to, foreign banks on their own behalf and on behalf of (1) insurance and reinsurance companies for up to 5% of the total volume of their reserves, (2) retirement agencies for up to 5% of the total volume of their reserves, and (3) UCITS and OPCCs for up to 10% of their net assets for dirham-denominated subscriptions and 100% for subscriptions collected in foreign currency. Authorized banks may open foreign currency accounts related to management of hedging operations against the risk of fluctuation in the price of certain commodities. These accounts devoted exclusively to managing hedging operations must record all financial flows relating to hedging of the risk of price fluctuations of certain commodities,

MOROCCO

Approval required	Yes.	including the security deposit, margin calls, premiums received, etc. Foreign residents do not require approval to open these accounts. FEO approval is no longer required for the opening of foreign currency accounts in foreign banks for companies holding contracts abroad. These accounts may credit the amounts of advances transferred, revenue for services rendered abroad under contracts, and debit the amounts of expenditure incurred abroad in the execution of these contracts and transfers to Morocco.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.	Residents may not open dirham accounts abroad.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Resident foreign nationals may open accounts in convertible dirhams in Moroccan banks. The accounts may be credited with the proceeds of foreign exchange sales and amounts transferable from Morocco, in accordance with exchange regulations. The accounts may be debited to purchase foreign exchange or for any other domestic settlement. There are no restrictions on interest payments or on transfers between accounts abroad in convertible dirhams and between convertible dirham accounts and foreign exchange accounts. Authorized banks may issue international credit cards and checks to the holders of these accounts. Overdrafts on these accounts are not permitted. Exporters of goods and services (including fishing companies) may open accounts in convertible dirhams in Moroccan banks. These accounts may be credited with the dirham equivalent of 70% of foreign exchange that is repatriated and transferred to approved intermediary banks for exports of goods and services. The accounts may be credited in full or in part at the discretion of the exporter. In the case of a partial credit, the remaining amount may subsequently be credited to the account within a maximum period of one year from the date the foreign exchange was sold on the foreign exchange market. Convertible dirham accounts may be credited with (1) amounts from other foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts belonging to the same exporter; (2) foreign banknotes withdrawn and not used, provided the account is credited within 30 days of the date the foreign currency is withdrawn; (3) the amount of expenses for which funds have been debited from the account for operations that have been partially or fully cancelled; and (4) amounts withdrawn from foreign exchange accounts and sold in the foreign exchange market and those debited from a convertible dirham account to cover expenses in Morocco. These amounts may be credited to the exporter's account within a maximum of one year from the date of the debit. Funds in these accounts may be used to finance expenditures related to professional activities. The maximum amount of repatriated export earnings exporters may place in a foreign exchange or a convertible dirham account is 70% (85% for companies in the aeronautics and space sector). Holders of these accounts may obtain international credit cards and checks from authorized banks, but overdrafts are not permitted. Authorized intermediary banks may open convertible dirham accounts in the name of individuals to facilitate use of the annual allowances specified in the exchange regulations and to combine in one foreign exchange or convertible dirham account in the name of an individual the tourism travel allowances for the individual's minor children or spouse. These accounts may be credited (1) with 100% of the tourism travel allowances and (2) with the tourism travel allowances for the individual's minor children or spouse. Such accounts may be debited (1) with foreign banknotes to meet needs associated with tourism or business travel; (2) with outward transfers or Internet purchases in connection with tourism travel; (3) for the issuance of bank checks and/or traveler's checks; and (4) for the issuance or charging of international bank cards issued in accordance with the exchange regulations.

Banks are authorized to open, on behalf of companies that do not have a foreign currency account – micro-credit associations, associations recognized as being of public utility, cooperatives and professional federations as well as individuals engaged in professional activity – and who benefit from a business travel allowance, a foreign currency or convertible dirham account for “business travel allowance” for the purpose of receiving the allowance.

The categories of capital that may be freely managed by entities with CFC status and that therefore may be deposited in their foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts opened at authorized intermediary banks were defined. Entities with CFC status may freely open convertible dirham accounts in banks in Morocco to manage their foreign currency holdings in one of the following categories: (1) capital entrusted by nonresident investors to entities with CFC status for placement or investment purposes; (2) capital collected by entities with CFC status for their own account when issuing securities abroad or mobilizing external financing; (3) holdings in foreign exchange accounts or convertible dirham accounts opened on the books of authorized intermediaries in the name of foreign individuals or legal entities or in the name of Moroccans residing abroad and made available to entities with CFC status by the holders of such accounts; (4) funds made available to entities with CFC status by Moroccan financial institutions licensed to engage in foreign placement operations pursuant to exchange regulations; (5) holdings in foreign exchange accounts or convertible dirham accounts opened in the name of entities with CFC status and engaging in services export operations; and (6) any other foreign-source foreign currency holdings.

Entities with CFC status engaging in services export transactions may open foreign exchange accounts or convertible dirham accounts at authorized intermediary banks. Such accounts may be credited with 100% of proceeds from services rendered to nonresident entities by entities with CFC status.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Two types of accounts may be opened: (1) Foreign exchange accounts in the names of foreign nationals may be maintained by nonresident individuals and legal entities of foreign nationality. These accounts may be credited with transfers from abroad; foreign banknotes, checks, and traveler’s checks; any other means of payment denominated in foreign currency; and foreign currency withdrawn from domestic banks, in accordance with exchange regulations. Deposits of foreign banknotes by the account holder must be justified by an original signed import declaration from the border customs offices or any other supporting document. These accounts may be debited for transfers abroad or for the surrender of foreign currency for dirhams for all domestic settlements. (2) Foreign exchange accounts may be opened by Moroccan nationals residing abroad. These accounts may be credited with transfers from abroad; traveler’s checks, foreign banknotes, or any other means of payment denominated in foreign currency; and foreign currency withdrawn from domestic banks in accordance with exchange regulations. They may be debited for transfers abroad and for the surrender of foreign currency for dirhams for all domestic settlements. There are no restrictions on interest payments on these accounts, transfers between foreign exchange accounts, or transfers between foreign exchange

A set of conditions and modalities governing the opening and functioning of nonresident accounts denominated in foreign currency and in dirhams include the following: (1) specification of arrangements related to the crediting of foreign exchange accounts and foreign accounts in convertible dirhams with foreign banknotes and (2) distinction between foreign accounts in convertible dirhams held in the names of foreign correspondents of Moroccan banks and those held in the names of customers (individuals and legal entities other than foreign correspondents).
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Nonresidents may open three types of dirham accounts as follows: (1) External convertible dirham accounts are restricted to nonresident individuals and legal entities of foreign nationality. (2) Convertible dirham accounts may be held in the name of Moroccans residing abroad. Both types of accounts may be credited with proceeds from the surrender of foreign currency and amounts freely transferable from Morocco in accordance with general or special authorization from the FEO. They may be debited for the purchase of foreign currency and all domestic settlements. There are no restrictions on transfers between foreign accounts in convertible dirhams or between these accounts and foreign exchange accounts. Holders of these accounts may obtain international credit cards from authorized banks. Overdrafts are not allowed, and there are no restrictions on the payment of interest on these accounts. (3) Nonresident foreigners whose funds are deemed nontransferable under the exchange regulations may deposit those funds in convertible term accounts at authorized intermediary banks. Funds from these accounts may be transferred within four years at a rate of 25% a year. Nonresident foreign currency and dirham accounts are subject to the following: (1) definition of modalities related to the crediting of foreign exchange accounts and foreign accounts in convertible dirhams with foreign banknotes; (2) distinction between foreign accounts in convertible dirhams in the name of foreign correspondents of Moroccan banks and those in the name of customers (individuals and legal entities other than foreign correspondents); and (3) extension of the authorization for nonresident foreigners to hold dirham-denominated accounts called “special accounts” to other entities – namely diplomatic representatives; international organizations headquartered or represented in Morocco; foreign staff of diplomatic missions and international organizations; businesses operating in EPZs and financial centers and those under contract to provide goods or services in Morocco; and nonresident foreign individuals who have outstanding dirham-denominated loans with Moroccan banks.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Funds in convertible dirham accounts held by foreign nonresident natural or juridical persons and Moroccans residing abroad are freely convertible.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	Yes.	Nonresident foreigners with funds deemed nontransferable under the exchange regulations may deposit them in convertible term accounts at authorized intermediary banks. Funds from these accounts may be transferred within four years at a rate of 25% a year. Holders of convertible term accounts and those acquiring them, including Moroccans residing abroad, may use these funds freely for domestic expenditures in dirhams, including investment. Investments financed from the accounts are covered by the convertibility arrangements for a period of two years from the date of the investment.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	Importers may make advance payments of up to 30% of the total import value of goods (50% for companies operating in the aeronautical and space sector). Importers may make advance payments of up to 30% of the total value of the import of services (up to 50% of the price invoiced for the cost of repairs and technical overhauls abroad of Moroccan fishing vessels or ships). The ceiling for the advance payment of imports of goods was harmonized and the advance payment of the total amount of imports was authorized for categorized companies. Importers of goods are authorized to pay in advance for the import of goods in the following cases: (1) up to the foreign currency equivalent of DH 200,000, regardless of the nature of the goods to be imported; (2) up to 100% of the amount invoiced for imports of goods to be carried out by companies that have been categorized by the FEO and the General Directorate of Tax or by the FEO and the Customs and Indirect Taxes Administration; (3) up to DH 1 million for companies in the aeronautics and space industries sector registered with the FEO; and (4) up to the value of the second-hand equipment acquired at auctions, on presentation of an invoice or any document in lieu thereof, drawn up by the foreign company that organizes these sales and stipulating the obligation to pay before the equipment is collected. The importation of services was redefined to include all services rendered to a resident by a nonresident in Morocco. These services may be rendered in Morocco or abroad. The provision of training, expertise, and analysis services of all kinds may be provided abroad. The ceiling for advance payment by importers of services was increased. They may make advance payments before the delivery of the service when it is so stipulated in the commercial contract: (1) up to the foreign currency equivalent regardless of the imported service and (2) up to the amount invoiced, in the case of equipment repairs (including aircraft) or the processing of products temporarily exported abroad and related incidental costs. Effective January 1, 2020, service importers were permitted to make advance payments before the services are provided, when such payments are provided in the commercial agreement: within the limit of the equivalent of DH 200,000 in foreign exchange regardless of the service that is imported.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Entities and individuals duly listed in the trade register may engage in operations involving the import of goods and international trade, including services not related to commercial operations.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	For imports of goods, an import security must be obtained by the importer and domiciled at an authorized bank to cover payment for goods and related fees. This domiciliation is not required for imports that do not involve payments. The import security for the purchase of goods for noncommercial use such as books, periodicals, and technical and scientific documentation by residents for their own use is also waived if the purchase value does not exceed DH 20,000. Importers in the aeronautics and space industries may domicile a

Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	Except for goods imported by air or by post, insurance policies for imports must be taken out with insurance companies in Morocco. For certain groups of goods, however, insurance policies may be underwritten abroad. This group includes: (1) externally financed imports if the terms include foreign insurance; (2) capital goods and equipment under turnkey contracts; (3) crude oil, gas, heifers, and wood; (4) imports whose risk cannot be covered by insurance and reinsurance companies established in Morocco; and (5) imports under free trade agreements for risk that may or may not be covered by insurance and reinsurance companies established in Morocco. Importers may, as part of their import operations, contract insurance in foreign currency with insurance and reinsurance companies established in Morocco when these contracts are signed by or on behalf of nonresidents or when the regulations authorize the underwriting of insurance abroad. Payments for discrepancies arising from the ullage of petroleum products and derivatives and payments of imports by a third party in lieu of the initial importer have been liberalized. Liberalization measures have been implemented to allow free settlement of the following transactions: (1) settlements of differentials noted between the amounts on bills of lading and those imputed by the customs services for grains, mining products, and chemicals; (2) settlements related to variations in content for the liquidation of sugar, oil, and mineral imports; (3) settlements of general average contributions for ships transporting merchandise to Morocco; and (4) settlements for disputed claims related to imports. Payments for imports made in connection with sales exhibitions are subject to FEO authorization. Resident individuals may make Internet transactions involving imports of goods and services by using an international credit card, up to DH 10,000. Effective January 1, 2020, the electronic trade allowance for individuals was increased from DH 10,000 to DH 15,000.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	Yes.	Imports are not restricted, except for arms and explosives, secondhand clothing, chemical products that deplete the ozone layer, white weapons, drones, and used tires and wheels with used tires or retreads. These products require an import license issued by the Department of Foreign Trade (DFT).
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of products that pose a threat to public health, morals, order, or security are prohibited.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Imports may be restricted for limited periods to protect new industries or counteract dumping.

Safeguard (tariff) measures may be established for periods of five years to protect new industries, and they may be extended to eight years. In the case of dumping, the product in question is subject to import declaration for up to nine months, and this measure is renewable once. During this period, investigations are carried out to determine whether dumping is taking place and, if it is, to determine the tariff measures that need to be introduced.

Individuals may import merchandise valued at up to DH 20,000 a year that is not to be resold.

Commercial activities of individuals not registered in the Commercial Registry and without a tax identification number must be authorized by the DFT.

Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Customs duties are levied on an ad valorem basis. A large number of goods are only subject to a 2.5% import duty. Imports of products to be used in the manufacture of goods for export are exempt from customs duties. Specific rates are applied to certain agricultural products.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	There is no obligation to sign an export declaration (titre d'exportation) for any freely exportable product or merchandise. Export proceeds must be repatriated within 150 days of customs declaration. The deadline for repatriating the export proceeds from goods sold on consignment was also set at 150 days. The repatriation requirement does not apply to exports of goods involving no payment, which includes (1) noncommercial goods with a value less than or equal to DH 10,000; (2) samples whose value is less than or equal to DH 20,000; (3) pharmaceuticals, documents, and promotional materials shipped in connection with free samples up to 3% of the value of medications to be exported with payment, provided they are shipped simultaneously with the pharmaceuticals to be exported with payment; (4) toxic waste for disposal abroad; (5) goods shipped temporarily under economic customs arrangements; (6) goods shipped to make up for missing items or replace defective merchandise; (7) goods returned to the Moroccan exporter for additional work; (8) goods previously imported, recognized as not conforming to the order or defective, on presentation to customs of a bank certificate stating that no payment has been or will be made under the pertinent import commitment; (9) products shipped for tests and analyses by foreign laboratories; and (10) books, reviews, periodicals, and journals imported and not sold. Proceeds from exports may be collected abroad and used directly to finance imports of goods and raw materials needed to manufacture goods for exportation. Exporters of goods may freely extend commercial credits to nonresidents for up to 150 days. Credits with longer terms may be granted FEO approval, if justified by commercial necessity. Exporters and authorized intermediary banks may extend supplier and buyer credits to foreign customers for up to 85% of the value of exported goods or works and of the provision of services abroad. These credits may be short or medium term for all categories of goods and services and long term for capital goods (repayment up to eight years).
Surrender requirements	Yes.

MOROCCO

Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Foreign exchange must be surrendered within one month of payment by the foreign buyer. In principle, this date must not be more than 150 days from the date of the shipment of goods. This deadline may be extended if warranted by business conditions and approved by the FEO. Exporters of goods and services may hold up to 70% of their export earnings in convertible dirham or foreign exchange accounts. Exporters of goods and services in the aeronautics and space industries may hold up to 85% of export earnings in convertible dirham or foreign exchange accounts. Exporters of goods may grant their foreign clients a discount of up to 5% of the invoice price for reasons such as late delivery, contribution to packaging, rebates on turnover, missing or defective items, or payments in cash. Exporters of goods in the aeronautics and space industries may grant their foreign clients a discount of up to 10% of the invoice price for reasons such as late delivery, contribution to packaging, rebates on turnover, missing or defective items, or payments in cash.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.	There is no obligation to sign an export declaration (titre d'exportation) for operations involving the export of any freely exportable product or merchandise. No guarantee is required. The customs declaration provides proof of export.
Domiciliation	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.	Preshipment inspection is not required; however, exports of food products are subject to quality control.
Other	Yes.	Entities and individuals duly listed in the trade register may engage in international trade operations, including services not related to commercial operations. Exporters may make: (1) payment of factoring commissions, (2) payment of fees for exports up to 10% of the value of the good or service exported, (3) payment of miscellaneous expenses incurred abroad for the shipment of goods to Morocco, (4) payment of expenses related to seafood exports, and (5) price concessions on exports of goods (revision of prices following weight or content analysis and cancelation of orders).
Export licenses	Yes.
Without quotas	Yes.	Exports of grain flour, charcoal, archeological items, leather and hides, raw algae and agar-agar, and chemical products that deplete the ozone layer require export licenses issued by the DFT.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	A 1% quality control tax is levied on exports of foodstuffs.

assistance, income from capital (including interest and dividends), and wages; (2) transfers of amounts owed to foreign suppliers for international business transactions (purchases of goods and services abroad for direct sale to foreign customers) conducted by Moroccan corporations or individuals; and (3) transfers for services by nonresidents at call centers in Morocco, such as rental of specialized lines or satellite segments, use of telephone lines abroad, etc. The importation of services includes all services rendered to a resident by a nonresident in Morocco. These services may be rendered in Morocco or abroad. The provision of training, expertise, and analysis services of all kinds may be provided abroad. Entities with CFC status may transfer funds for foreign technical assistance expenses and services by foreign contractors and for the following: (1) subsidiaries' share of expenses incurred by their parent company, such as management and headquarters' expenses, royalties, and research and development expenses relating to the activity of entities with CFC status; (2) expenses billed by the parent company, including those relating to personnel; and (3) expenses relating to services shared by subsidiaries and parent companies, such as information technology (IT)-related expenses, human resource management costs, expenses relating to accounting/finance services, and training expenses.

Authorized intermediaries may transfer to the account of entities with CFC status remuneration owed in connection with management fees. Clarification of provisions governing outlays associated with the transfer of personnel by a parent company specifies that these outlays refer to fees billed to entities with CFC status in connection with the transfer of foreign personnel or Moroccans residing abroad transferred to the Moroccan subsidiary. These outlays include wages, payroll taxes, expatriation allowances, and other incidental costs such as those for housing, airline tickets, travel, etc., paid abroad for the benefit or the account of such personnel.

International courier services have been liberalized.

International messaging services refer to services performed under an agreement between a Moroccan international messaging company and its nonresident partner, entailing (1) collection of mail and parcels delivered by customers established in Morocco and their shipment abroad through the nonresident partner's network and (2) receipt of mail and parcels originating abroad via the nonresident partner's network and their distribution to recipients in Morocco.

Operators in the aeronautics and space industries may settle several types of services, including contributions to the research programs of their parent companies, access to IT systems, and miscellaneous administrative and management services and transfer payments to parent companies for separation of foreign, expatriate, or transferred personnel.

Prior approval No.

Quantitative limits No.

Indicative limits/bona fide test Yes.

Payments for freight, unloading, and storage are not restricted. Importers may pay for overweight freight charges in amounts not exceeding 10% of the amount initially stated in the commercial contract, as well as any penalty for late shipment or landing of the goods. Representation and brokerage charges of exports of goods and services may be settled for up to 10% of their value. Rental fees for stands and exhibitor fees for fairs and exhibitions abroad by residents without a foreign exchange or a convertible dirham account may be transferred by authorized intermediaries on presentation of an invoice or fee slip signed by the organizer of the fair or exhibition.

Costs related to consignment sales may be settled directly by deduction from the selling price of the goods sold on consignment, including such costs as commissions, transit charges, handling charges, customs duty, packaging and repackaging costs, warehousing and storage fees, expert costs, analysis or sampling fees, destruction expenses in case of damage, costs for advertising and promotion incurred by foreign commission merchants and purchasing cooperatives, costs of transportation to or from Morocco, and costs incurred by foreign consignees for marketing goods sold on consignment (fresh fruit and vegetables, citrus fruits, flowers, fishing products). Authorized intermediaries may also freely transfer funds returned by the General Treasury for the VAT on bills of purchase in Morocco collected by diplomatic and consular representatives and representatives of international public organizations and their foreign staff.

Insurance underwriting for commercial transactions is carried out in accordance with insurance regulations. The regulatory framework governing insurance and reinsurance operations lists the foreign currency operations eligible for insurance in Morocco and authorizes economic operators to contract insurance with insurance and reinsurance companies abroad. The foreign currency operations for which economic operators may contract insurance denominated in foreign currency with insurance and reinsurance companies in Morocco are as follows: (1) imports and exports, when the related contracts are signed by or on behalf of nonresidents; (2) merchandise shipments from a foreign country or a free trade zone in Morocco to a foreign country within the framework of international business transactions initiated by resident operators; (3) exports not involving payments; (4) risk in free trade and offshore areas established in the national territory; (5) aviation risk (hull and civil liability); and (6) “contractor’s all risk” operations, when the insured party is a nonresident. The foreign currency operations for which insurance may be contracted with foreign insurance and reinsurance companies are as follows: (1) mandatory insurance for which coverage cannot be found with insurance and reinsurance companies in Morocco; (2) aviation and maritime and transportation insurance, including international road transportation (hull and cargo), whether or not covered by insurance and reinsurance companies in Morocco; (3) import insurance related to payment for certain goods (crude oil, gas, and diesel fuel; heifers; wood; goods imported by air or by post; externally financed imports if the terms include foreign insurance) whose import certificate is expressed in c.i.f. value and for which the importer is required to accept insurance abroad; and (4) premiums payable by Moroccan ship owners to foreign associations as coverage for certain risks related to the development of their shipping company that cannot be covered by insurance and reinsurance companies in Morocco. Moroccan businesses with construction contracts abroad may transfer up to 20% of the contract amount to defray their initial expenses and liberalized transfers for technical assistance required for the performance of contracts abroad. The regulatory framework for international transport is set out in the 2019 General Instruction on Foreign Exchange Operations. The regime applicable to international transport uses a single “international transport account” to record all transactions carried out with the same foreign partner.

Investment-related payments

Yes.

Since 1992, income generated by foreign investments in Morocco is freely transferable, without limitation in amount and duration, when the investments are financed in foreign currency. This income is freely transferable to nonresident foreigners, even in the absence of foreign currency financing.

Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	There are indicative limits on transfers of interest, which must be market based. The exchange regulation states that the applicable interest rates must correspond to the market rates but does not give a quantified limit.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	Limits vary by the type of journey. Tourism allowance: Effective January 1, 2020, the ceiling on the tourism allowance was changed to DH 200,000 and the indexation rate for the income tax supplement was changed to 25%, with the option of carrying the unused portion forward once to the next year. As a result of the closing of air, sea, and land links to address the spread of COVID-19, the FEO decided, effective April 17, 2020, to provide a DH 20,000 exceptional tourism allowance for Moroccan residents who had been stranded abroad and who had used all of their tourism allowance. This temporary measure ended when the borders reopened. The amount of the tourism allowance was previously DH 45,000 that could be increased by a supplement equal to 10% of income tax. The overall amount of the tourism allowance may not exceed DH 100,000 a person and a calendar year. Religious travel allowance: DH 15,000 a person a calendar year for Umrah pilgrimage; DH 15,000 a person a calendar year for the Hajj pilgrimage; an additional DH 20,000 for the staff of the travel agency accompanying pilgrims, per accompanying person a trip. Business travel allowance: 100% of the amount of corporate or income tax (for companies subject to that tax) paid by the companies and subsidiaries, referred to in Article 105, in the past fiscal year, up to DH 500,000 a calendar year; 100% of the amount of income tax for individuals engaged in professional activity, as referred to in Article 105, in the past fiscal year, up to DH 100,000 a calendar year; DH 60,000 for companies that paid corporate tax of less than DH 60,000, those exempt from corporate tax, and Moroccan micro-credit associations or associations deemed to be in the public interest, Moroccan cooperatives, and professional federations. Cooperatives and professional federations also benefit from the DH 60,000 allowance for business travel. Larger allowances may be approved by the FEO on proof of need. The allowances for specific business travel may not be added to other allowances, except for the tourism allowance. Effective January 1, 2020, cooperatives subject to corporation tax have the option of benefiting from a business travel allowance of 100% of the amount of tax paid, with a ceiling of DH 500,000. Previously, it was a lump sum of DH 60,000.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	For a given trip, the tourism allowance may be combined, in whole or in part, with any other foreign exchange allowances under a general or special FEO authorization. The same allowance for tourism travel may also be granted to Moroccan nationals living abroad. Foreign residents who wish to travel abroad may be granted the foreign exchange equivalent of all their income savings. Moroccans and foreign nationals residing in Morocco and Moroccans residing abroad are eligible for a foreign exchange allowance equivalent to DH 15,000 for umra (lesser pilgrimage) travel. Allowances for tourism and umra travel may be delivered in whole or in part, by subrogation, to Moroccan travel agencies approved by the Ministry of Tourism for tourism, family, cultural, or private travel abroad by means of an individual or group check or by transfer to foreign service providers.

With regard to tourism and religious travel, (1) pilgrims may make advance payment of living expenses if required by contractual provisions; (2) pilgrims may purchase foreign exchange for personal expenses; (3) travel agencies may, in case of overrun of their allowances, use funds in their convertible dirham and/or foreign-currency-denominated accounts to cover the expenses of pilgrims and their travel companions; and (4) intermediaries may issue securities guaranteeing the settlement of services to be provided to pilgrims and their travel companions on behalf of Saudi service providers, at the request and on behalf of travel agencies organizing Hajj trips. Business travel by exporters of goods and services may be financed without restriction by debiting foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts in Moroccan banks. For business travel other than by exporters of goods and services, a tax criterion is used to determine the maximum business travel allowance banks may provide to individuals and legal entities for companies without convertible dirham and foreign exchange accounts. The allowance is 100% of the amount of corporate or income tax (for companies subject to that tax) paid by such companies in the past fiscal year, up to DH 500,000 a calendar year; 100% of the amount of income tax for Moroccans engaged in professional activity, with an increased ceiling for such allowances to 100% of the income tax they paid in the past fiscal year, up to DH 100,000, and up to DH 60,000 for companies that paid corporate tax of less than DH 60,000, those exempt from corporate tax, and Moroccan micro-credit associations or associations deemed to be in the public interest.

Licensed banks may provide foreign exchange allowances to Moroccans for travel abroad for medical treatment, up to the equivalent of DH 30,000 a trip, and may make transfers, without restriction, on patients' behalf for treatment abroad to hospitals and medical institutions. Licensed banks are also authorized to transfer sums relating to the purchase of medicine, medical supplies, and medical tests by foreign laboratories. Banks may make transfers for study abroad as follows:

- (1) an annual departure allowance equivalent to DH 25,000, paid in one or several installments;
- (2) allowances for living expenses of up to DH 10,000 a month. Transfers may be higher on presentation of supporting documents, with the possibility of making advance transfers for up to 12 months;
- (3) for the corresponding rents and charges (trustee fees, taxes, and fees related to the conclusion of the lease): up to the amount indicated in the required documents;
- (4) for tuition and fees: up to the amount indicated in the required documents.

Students may benefit from additional transfers for living expenses and rent for the year following the end of their studies. Banks are authorized to transfer the repayment of student loans contracted with foreign banks and the costs of visits abroad for language-learning purposes. To cover the costs of internships and missions abroad, banks may sell foreign exchange to staff of public agencies, local governments, public institutions and enterprises, and foreign institutions or organizations up to the amount allocated by their employers, or up to DH 2,000 a day, within an overall limit of DH 20,000 a trip, if the mission order does not cover the costs of the mission or the internship. The allowance of DH 20,000 for the father, mother, or guardian of a minor student leaving Morocco for the first time and the allowance for acquisition of computer hardware among the facilities granted for study travel abroad were eliminated. Medical personnel in public agencies, local governments, and public institutions and enterprises wishing to attend professional events abroad may also purchase foreign exchange. If the costs of the mission or internship are borne in full by the traveler, banks may provide DH 2,000 a day up to DH 20,000 a trip. Requests for additional amounts require FEO approval, which is granted on presentation of supporting documents. Banks may transfer funds for family assistance up to DH 10,000 a year.

Foreign workers' wages	No.	Foreigners residing in Morocco and employed in either the private or public sector or engaged in industrial, commercial, agricultural, or certain other professions may transfer all their income. There are no quantitative limits on transfers of foreign workers' remuneration. Transfers of wages and retirement pensions may be made monthly, in arrears. When the payments are not executed at these intervals, the interested parties may arrange to settle arrears in connection with their income entitlements for the past 12 monthly payments that have already matured. They may also freely contribute to pension or social security funds in their countries of origin. These arrangements apply equally to Moroccans' foreign spouses. Commercial banks are authorized to transfer pensions paid by government or private organizations to retirees residing permanently abroad. In addition, retired foreigners and Moroccans' foreign spouses may transfer their entire pensions. They may also transfer severance benefits paid by their Moroccan employers by order of a Moroccan court. Authorized banks may make payments for after-tax earnings of foreign or Moroccan artists residing abroad who are invited to exhibit or perform in Morocco, and transfers of prize money won at film festivals.

By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Gifts and grants are subject to authorization. However, transfers of inheritances may be effected freely if the inherited property is covered by convertibility arrangements. In other cases, eligible parties may enjoy transfer rights if such rights have not been already exercised by the deceased.
To residents from nonresidents	No.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	These operations are unrestricted, provided they are financed from the foreign funds of the parties concerned or from their funds in foreign exchange or in convertible dirhams.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	On departure from Morocco, foreigners may freely transfer assets not subject to the convertibility arrangement, up to DH 30,000 or the equivalent for each year of residence in Morocco, in addition to other transfer rights (for example, income or savings). Any remainder must be deposited in a convertible term account.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	No.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	These earnings are transferable, provided the gambling was financed with foreign currency.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Commercial banks may borrow abroad only to finance foreign trade or investment operations on behalf of customers or as part of the introduction of forward cover for customers' foreign exchange swaps, with maturities equal to the duration of the hedging operations offered.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Banks may open and maintain accounts with their correspondents to effect outward payments and to manage hedging operations against price fluctuation risk for certain commodities. Authorized banks may deposit funds into accounts with banks in other countries.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Lending to nonresidents by Moroccan banks is subject to FEO approval. However, banks may grant loans to nonresident foreign individuals for the purchase or development of real estate in Morocco, up to 70% of the value of the real estate. Moroccans residing abroad are permitted such credits. Banks may use cash in foreign exchange accounts held by foreign nationals, Moroccan nationals resident abroad, and exporters for buyer credits to foreign customers to finance Moroccan exports. Banks are authorized to issue guarantees in favor of foreign banks that grant medium- and long-term loans in foreign exchange to individual nonresident foreign nationals or to Moroccan nationals residing abroad, for the purchase of homes in Morocco, within the limit of 100% of the value of the asset to be acquired. Authorized intermediary banks may use funds from foreign exchange accounts opened in the names of exporters of goods and services, resident nationals, and resident and nonresident foreigners for their lines of credit to each other, especially for buyer credits to foreign customers of Moroccan exporters. Classification

Pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands	03/09/2020	The Ministry of Economy, Finance, and Government Reform, following the opinion from the Bank Al-Maghrib (BAM), decided to increase the fluctuation band for the dirham from +/-2.5% to +/-5% against the central rate established by the BAM based on a basket of currencies comprised of the euro and the US dollar, weighted, respectively, at 60% and 40%.
	03/24/2020	Since March 2020, the exchange rate increased its flexibility while still being managed within the +/-5% band against the US dollar-euro basket. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands from stabilized.
Official exchange rate	03/09/2020	The Bank Al-Maghrib set the limits for the exchange rate fluctuation bands around the central rate at +/-5% (previously +/-2.5%).

buying and selling operations on the interbank foreign exchange market (MCI), the BM uses listings from commercial banks, which are only required to observe a maximum spread of 2% between buying and selling exchange rates for foreign currencies. Commercial banks may change their listings when required during the MCI's operating hours.

From January 2020, the exchange rate has followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the U.S. dollar with one realignment in March 2020. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to "crawl like" from "floating," effective January 6, 2020. While the exchange rate has appreciated since February 2021, more observations are necessary to determine its new trend. Until then, the de facto exchange rate arrangement remains classified as a crawl-like arrangement.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	The monetary policy regime is based on the use of the interest rate as the key monetary policy instrument. The framework is considered transitory until the adoption of an explicit inflation-targeting regime and has as main characteristics: (1) the de jure interbank money market rate of Mozambique (MIMO) is used to signal the BM's monetary policy stance to the market; (2) the MIMO rate is defined based on the analysis of recent domestic and international macroeconomic developments, as well as inflation projections, weighted to reflect the relevant risks; (3) the MIMO rate is fixed within the corridor formed by the interest rate of the Standing Lending Facility and Deposit Standing Facility; (4) the bank regulates very short-term liquidity through repo and reverse repo overnight operations, to ensure that the interest rate of the transactions contracted in the interbank market for this period, with the designation of the effective MIMO rate, fluctuates around the MIMO rate; and (5) for the management of longer-term liquidity, the bank uses reverse repo operations of 7 up to 364 days and the issuance of BT of 91, 182, and 364 days, as well as the adjustment of the coefficient and period of compliance with the reserve requirement.
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.

MOZAMBIQUE

Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks, MCI participants, and exchange bureaus can establish operations with customers at freely negotiated rates. Negotiated transactions between the BM and commercial banks have a spot-value date (up to two business days). Thirteen banks and 12 foreign exchange bureaus are authorized to buy and sell foreign exchange. The BM grants licenses to deal in foreign exchange. The establishment of foreign exchange bureaus is subject to authorization by the BM. Foreign exchange bureaus may not enter into foreign exchange transactions directly with the BM, and they may not make foreign currency payments or transfers on behalf of their clients. Foreign exchange bureaus may maintain accounts abroad subject to authorization by the BM. ADs may trade freely with their customers. The maximum spread between buying and selling rates is 2% plus fees collected by banks for foreign exchange operations.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	Yes.	The BM intervenes on the market through bilateral operations to avoid disorderly market conditions and to share in up to 100% of the payment of fuel import invoices, through the requesting and presentation of documentation from banks.
Auction	No.	The MCI regulations are currently being revised with a view to introducing foreign exchange auctions. The regulations were approved by the BM's board of directors on March 26, 2020, and the publication in the National Gazette (Boletim da República) is in progress.
Fixing	Yes.	Interbank market operations and operations with the BM are carried out using the BM's software. All US dollar–meticaïs buying and selling quotes of banks authorized to operate in the MCI are shown on a screen. The quotes may be adjusted as many times a day as necessary during MCI operating hours, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. The average official exchange rate of the day is set at 3:30 p.m. (close of business). All operations between the banks and the BM are based on the exchange rates shown on the screen. The exchange rate used for accounting and valuation purposes is the benchmark rate, calculated at 3.30 p.m. on each business day.
Interbank market	Yes.
Over the counter	Yes.	Commercial banks may engage in interbank transactions through the MCI. Exchange bureaus may not participate in the MCI. Thirteen commercial banks participate in this market. Operations between commercial banks are arranged with exchange rates near market rates. The BM intervenes in the MCI at prices quoted by commercial banks through the BM's application software (Meticalnet). The BM is a price taker.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	Yes.	Commercial banks participating in the MCI must adhere to a code of conduct, observe the prudential ratios and limits, maintain a history of operations with customers, and have technical and professional capacities. All foreign exchange operations between commercial banks must take place on the MCI. The maximum spread between buying and selling prices is set by the BM. Within these limits, commercial banks may freely determine the exchange rates for operations carried out between themselves.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Effective April 16, 2021, banks and their customers were permitted

Article XIV Yes.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices No. No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2020. Myanmar implemented a new auction mechanism and clear internal guidelines that removed the MCP which arose from the previous multi-price foreign currency auction. (Country Report No. 20/88)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons Yes.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51) Yes. In accordance with the provisions under the Counter-Terrorism Law enacted in June 2014, the Central Committee of Counter Terrorism released the Order Nos. 1/2015 and 3/2015 in relation to the freezing and prohibition of assets and financial resources of those persons involved in international terrorism or groups associated with terrorism. Following these orders, the Central Bank of Myanmar (CBM) issued letters to banks and nonbank financial institutions (NBFIs) to comply with provisions under the Counter-Terrorism Law. After the enactment of the Counter-Terrorism Law, the CBM issued Instruction No. 6/2014 of October 3, 2014, Letter No. MaBaBa/BRD/Htwe (42/2015) of January 20, 2015, Letter No. MaBaBa/BRD/AML/CFT (7/2015) of March 13, 2015, Letter No. MaBaBa/BRD/AML/CFT (14/2015) of November 27, 2015, and Letter No. MaBaBa/BRD/AML/CFT (7/2016) of January 29, 2016, to banks and NBFIs. According to the name list of persons involved in terrorism connected with Taliban or Al-Qaida designated as persons associated with terrorism by US Executive Order No. 13224, the UN 1267 Sanctions Committee forwarded by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Myanmar, US Embassy, Australian Embassy and through the UN website, the CBM issued seven letters in 2006, seven letters in 2007, nine letters in 2008, six letters in 2009, one letter in 2011, and two letters in 2013, respectively, to all state-owned banks and private banks to comply with the CBM Directive No. 2/2002 issued March 7, 2002, which required banks to freeze funds and other assets of and prohibit transactions with persons suspected to be involved in terrorism and organizations associated with terrorism to report these accounts related to such persons to the CBM. With reference to the Anti-Money-Laundering Central Board's letter, the Central Committee for Counter Terrorism issued the Freezing Order No. 3/2016 of May 19, 2016, with respect to freezing and prohibition of money, properties, and funds of those persons and organizations associated with terrorism including the ISIL, Taliban, and Al-Qaida groups and the groups associated with those groups connected with terrorism under the Sanctions list of the UNSC. Therefore, the CBM instructed state-owned banks, private banks, foreign bank branches, and finance companies to comply with the Order No. 3/2016 issued by the Central Committee for Counter Terrorism.

MYANMAR

According to the UNSC Resolution Nos. 2270 (2016), 2371 (2017), 2375 (2017), and 2397 (2017), the CBM issued four letters in 2017 to all banks, NBFIs, and mobile financial services providers for freezing and prohibition of money, properties, and funds of the related persons and organizations of Democratic People’s Republic of Korea which are included in the freeze lists of the said resolutions. Moreover, the CBM has directed the aforesaid Institutions to take necessary due diligence on the information about the U.S. Department of the Treasury’s “Treasury acts to Increase Economic Pressure on North Korea and Protect the US Financial System” in 2017.

According to the UNSC Resolution Nos. 1267 (1999), 1989 (2011), 2253 (2015), and 2462 (2019), the CBM issued nine letters in 2019 to all banks, NBFIs, and mobile financial services providers for freezing and prohibition of money, properties, and funds of the related persons and organizations of ISIL (Da’esh) (Al-Qaida) which are included in the freeze lists of the said resolutions.

Following the Standing Order Nos. 1/2017 and 1/2018 of the Central Committee for Counter Terrorism, Countering the Financing of Terrorism Working Committee, the CBM had released two letters in 2017 and 2018 to all banks, NBFIs, and mobile financial services providers for freezing and prohibition of money, properties, and funds of Bengali Extremist Terrorists designated by the Central Committee for Counter Terrorism, Arakan Rohingya Salvation Army, and persons who are related to such persons and the name list of the Arakan Rohingya Salvation Army.

According to the Standing Order No. 3/2017 of the Central Committee for Counter Terrorism, Countering the Financing of Terrorism Working Committee, all banks, NBFIs, and mobile financial services providers are instructed to regularly update the UNSC’s list of persons and groups associated with terrorism and enhance customer due diligence to freeze and prohibit money, properties, and funds of the said persons involved in terrorism. In 2018, Myanmar FIU’s Directives in relation to high-risk and noncooperative jurisdictions were circulated to all banks, NBFIs, and mobile financial services providers to apply Enhanced Due Diligence (EDD) measures to business relationship and transactions with natural and legal persons, and financial institutions, from countries called for by the FATF.

Official exchange rate      Yes.      The CBM computes and publishes the daily reference exchange rate based on transactions in the foreign exchange market in accordance with CBM Instruction No. 5/2019. The reference exchange rate is computed by assigning weights to the average rate between executed interbank foreign exchange transactions among AD banks, and the average rate of transactions between AD banks and their customers. This reference rate is an indicative rate, and participants in the foreign exchange market are not required to use it in their transactions.
Indicative cross-rates for certain other currencies are based on Thomson Reuters and the IMF website. Previously, indicative cross-rates were based on Thomson Reuters, Oanda.com, and the respective CBs.

Monetary aggregate target      Yes.      The CBM has been exercising Reserve Money Targeting monetary policy framework. Under this framework, reserve money is the operational target and broad money is the intermediate target. Currently, the CBM is conducting deposit auction based on the moderate level of inflation. The CBM also stipulates the reserve requirement ratio for all banks to control the broader monetary conditions.

To boost and maintain the adequate level of liquidity in the system responding to the COVID-19 pandemic impact, the CBM has temporarily suspended the deposit auction as of March 26, 2020, and lowered the minimum reserve requirement ratio for banks to 3.5% of customers' deposits in Myanmar currency (Myanmar kyat (MMK)) from 5%. Furthermore, to stimulate the country's economic development, the CBM cut the bank rate three times: 50 basis points (bps) on March 16, 2020, 100 bps on April 1, 2020, and 150 bps on May 1, 2020, respectively.

Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The spot market consists of the retail MC counters and wholesale AD market, including foreign exchange auctions organized by the CBM. As of June 30, 2020, 24 private banks and 369 nonbank companies were licensed to carry out the money changing business. Of these private banks, 19 are also licensed as ADs and may conduct wholesale noncash transactions. In addition, three state banks and 13 foreign bank branches are licensed as ADs. Some state banks also have money changing counters. The Myanmar Foreign Trade Bank has three MC counters, the Myanmar Investment and Commercial Bank (MICB) maintains one MC counter, and the Myanmar Economic Bank (MEB) maintains three MC counters out of 22. The CBM abolished the trading band (reference rate $\pm$ 0.8%) for foreign exchange transactions in August 2018. Customers may buy or sell in the retail market up to US\$10,000 or its equivalent in Singapore dollars (SGD), euros (EUR), Thai baht, and Malaysian ringgit without documentation. For larger amounts, documentation may be required.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.

Auction	Yes.	One-way foreign exchange auction rules were adopted. Previously, the CBM conducted daily two-way multiple-price auctions. All AD license banks can participate in the auction. Banks will be notified for the foreign exchange auction at least 30 minutes before the auction. The foreign exchange auction notification includes time and date of the auction, foreign currency, auction type, (buying/selling), auction volume, minimum and maximum exchange rates, settlement date, and bidding time. Currently, the auctions are conducted only in US dollars (USD).
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Wholesale private banks authorized to deal in foreign exchange may settle foreign exchange transactions among themselves through foreign currency accounts abroad. ADs are allowed to offer larger noncash foreign exchange services to customers and to trade directly with each other in the AD market. Actual exchange rates quoted by wholesale foreign exchange interbank market are the prevailing market rates. Authorized private banks participate in the interbank foreign exchange market. Thus far, 34 banks have accessed the interbank market activities, and the turnover sees a prominent improvement. The CBM does not intervene with market participants in the interbank market.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. The foreign exchange market in Namibia has developed as an extension of the foreign exchange market in South Africa. ADs are allowed to determine freely their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

Spot exchange market Yes. Foreign exchange bureaus are allowed to operate in the spot foreign exchange market and are subject to licensing by the CB. As of December 31, 2020, there were six foreign exchange bureaus in Namibia. Foreign exchange bureaus may engage only in travel-related transactions and may not transact directly with the CB. They may not maintain accounts abroad, and their operations are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes.

Operated by the central bank Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility Yes. The BON buys and sells Namibian dollars for rand at par with no commission. The BON deals only with ADs and the government.

Allocation No. The BON does not verify the validity of transactions when dealing with banks.

Auction No.

Fixing No.

Interbank market Yes. Banks trade among themselves in foreign currency. As of December 31, 2020, there were six banks participating in the interbank market. All these banks are licensed by the CB.

Over the counter Yes. There are eight commercial banks in Namibia. The foreign exchange interbank market in Namibia is still closely linked to South Africa's as most banks are subsidiaries of South African Banks. Because of liquidity constraints in Namibia, banks would often enter into interbank deals with South African counterparties. Banks are allowed to determine freely their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

Brokerage Yes.

Market making No.

Forward exchange market Yes. ADs are permitted to conduct forward exchange operations, including providing forward cover, with residents in any foreign currency with respect to authorized trade and nontrade transactions. Forward exchange contracts may cover the entire period of the

NAMIBIA

Official cover of forward operations	Yes.	outstanding commitments and accruals. Forward cover is also provided to nonresidents, subject to certain conditions. Gold mining companies and houses may sell forward anticipated receipts of their future gold sales. Forward cover is provided in US dollars only and is available to ADs for maturities not exceeding 12 months at a time in the form of swap transactions involving Namibian dollars (rand) and US dollars, with a margin based on the interest rate differential between the two currencies. The CB does not participate in the forward foreign exchange market.
		Special forward cover at preferential rates is provided for import financing.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	All countries outside the CMA constitute the nonresident area. The rand is legal tender in Namibia. Settlements by or to residents of the CMA within the nonresident area may be made in rand to and from a nonresident account or in any foreign currency.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.
For current transactions and payments	No.	Settlement by or to residents of the CMA within the nonresident area may be made in Namibian dollars to and from a nonresident account or in any foreign currency. There are no controls on the use of the Namibia dollar for current transactions and payments.
For capital transactions	Yes.	Namibian dollars may not be used to settle interest and principal payments.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Namibian dollars may not be used to settle interest and principal payments.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	Yes.	Namibian dollars may not be used to settle interest and principal payments.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	In accordance with CMA arrangements, residents are not allowed to transact business in foreign currencies. Transactions may be invoiced in foreign currencies, but payments must be made in the local currency.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	Namibia is part of the CMA, and no restrictions are applied to payments within the CMA.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The BON has delegated some powers to ADs that assist the BON in administering exchange controls. If an AD is not authorized to approve a transaction under the terms of the Exchange Control Regulations, an application is filed with the BON. The norms applied by the BON in scrutinizing applications are subject to CMA policy guidelines.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.

NAMIBIA

Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.	The Exchange Control Regulations 1961 prohibit the purchase and sale, both domestically and abroad, of unworked gold by Namibian residents without the specific authorization of the BON. All such requests are considered on their merits.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Residents are permitted to purchase, hold, and sell gold coins within the CMA for numismatic and investment purposes only.
On external trade	Yes.	Exports and imports of gold require approval of the monetary authority.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Individuals may export no more than N$25,000 in BON banknotes in addition to the basic travel allowance. A currency conversion agreement between the BON and the National Bank of Angola allowed business people and traders to export Namibian dollars to Angola and Angolan Kwanzas to Namibia and exchange them for local currency for trading purposes. The import of Angolan Kwanzas to Namibia was suspended from December 1, 2015. However, Namibian dollars are still exported to Angola under specific arrangements in terms of the Currency Conversion Agreement.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Residents and contract workers departing from Namibia to destinations outside the CMA may take out their travel allowance in foreign banknotes. Foreign visitors leaving Namibia may take with them the unspent portion of the proceeds of foreign currency imported and exchanged in Namibia.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	On entry from countries outside the CMA, residents and nonresidents may bring in no more than N$25,000 in Namibian banknotes or R 25,000 in South African banknotes. There are no limitations on the importation of domestic currency from Eswatini, Lesotho, and South Africa.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Importation of foreign currency by nonresidents of the CMA is unrestricted. However, Namibian residents are allowed to import into Namibia only the residual balance of foreign currency initially exported. A currency conversion agreement between the BON and the National Bank of Angola allowed business people and traders to export Namibian dollars to Angola and Angolan Kwanzas to Namibia and exchange them for local currency for trading purposes. The import of Angolan Kwanzas to Namibia was suspended from December 1, 2015. However, Namibian dollars are still exported to Angola under specific arrangements in terms of the Currency Conversion Agreement.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Resident private individuals are allowed to hold foreign exchange accounts with local ADs, subject to approval. Exporters may retain export proceeds for 180 days after receipt in foreign exchange accounts with ADs. Up to the equivalent of N$6 million a year may be held in a domestic foreign exchange account. Balances may only be effected through the commercial banking system on condition that all the requirements are met.
Approval required	Yes.

NAMIBIA

Held abroad	Yes.	Approval is required and is granted to resident individuals on the merit of the application. Approval is not required for investments up to the equivalent of N$6 million a year or to retain abroad income earned overseas. Balances may be transferred to the home country freely.
Approval required	Yes.	Foreign bank accounts for investment up to the equivalent of N$6 million a year do not require approval.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Payments in foreign currency may be effected from resident accounts, provided the transaction is covered under the Exchange Control Regulations 1961, or with approval.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	ADs are required to open separate accounts on behalf of nonresident clients to distinguish between normal clearing accounts and foreign exchange trading accounts. This requirement does not affect the transferability of funds.
Approval required	No.	Nonresidents may open foreign exchange accounts, and funds in these accounts are freely transferable.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	These accounts may be credited with all authorized payments by residents, with the proceeds of sales of foreign currency to ADs, and with payments from nonresidents' accounts. They may be debited for payments to CMA residents for any purpose (other than loans), payments to nonresidents for any purpose, transfer to a local nonresident account or remittance to any country outside the CMA, purchases of any foreign currency, and payments to account holders residing in Namibia for short periods.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	These accounts may be converted, and no approval is required.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	Yes.	Residents who emigrated from Namibia on or before February 28, 2002, may transfer their blocked funds abroad freely through an authorized bank. The assets of residents who emigrated after that date are subject to normal emigration procedures. Emigrants may transfer up to the equivalent of N$10 million a family or N$6 million an individual, inclusive of any assets previously transferred abroad. Transfers in excess of these limits are subject to a transfer tax of 10% of the amount in excess of the limit. Emigrants may subsequently transfer annual income from their remaining blocked assets, but may not dispose of the assets through sale to Namibian residents.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	Foreign exchange may be provided for advance payment up to 100% of the ex-factory cost of capital goods to be imported up to N$20 million. For amount above N$20 million, only up to 50% advance payment may be made. ADs must, however, ascertain that an order would be refused without the advance payment and that such payment is typical in the trade concerned. There are no limits on advance payments for noncapital goods.
Advance import deposits	No.

NAMIBIA

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Documentation confirming receipt of the imported articles into Namibia (for example, a bill of entry or local mail receipts) is required.

Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	Yes.	LCs may be established locally by ADs.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	No.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	There are no restrictions on imports originating in any country of the SACU. Imports from countries outside the SACU are usually licensed in conformity with South Africa's import regulations. These permits are valid for one year for imports and are expressed in terms of value. At present, about 90% of imports require a permit.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Namibia has the right to restrict certain imports (through customs duties or quantitative restrictions) from countries outside the SACU and, under certain conditions, from countries within the SACU.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	A general sales tax of 10% is levied on all imports in addition to a sales duty between 0% and 15%, depending on the type of commodity.
State import monopoly	No.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Interest rates on foreign-currency-denominated loans must not exceed LIBOR plus 5%; those on local-currency-denominated loans must not exceed the prime overdraft rate plus 3%. ADs may allow the transfer of loans up to N$1 million an applicant a year. Residents require approval to extend larger loans to nonresidents.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions are subject to BON approval.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Credit operations outside the CMA are subject to BON approval, which is generally given for borrowing abroad with a maturity of at least six months by domestic entrepreneurs, except for speculative borrowing or consumer credit. ADs are generally permitted to raise funds abroad in their own name for Namibia's foreign trade financing and for other approved purposes.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Only companies that are 75% or more foreign owned are subject to exchange controls.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Foreign loans to Namibian residents require approval, which is usually granted if the repayment and servicing do not disrupt the balance of payments and the interest rate is reasonable in terms of prevailing international rates.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.

NAMIBIA

By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Approval is required for guarantees with respect to financial loans but not for trade transactions.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	BON approval is required. There is also a limit of N$1 million.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	Applications by residents to retain funds in, or transfer them to, countries outside the CMA for bona fide long-term investment in specific development projects or for the expansion of existing projects owned or controlled by residents are considered on their merits. There is no limit on such investments. Consideration is given to foreign borrowing to finance direct investment with recourse to or guarantee from Namibia, implying that a local corporation's balance sheet may be used in negotiating such a facility. Approved foreign subsidiaries may expand activities abroad without approval, provided such expansion is financed by foreign borrowing or by profits earned by the foreign subsidiary. Namibians older than 18 years of age may invest abroad in any form or place in a domestic foreign exchange account up to the equivalent of N$6 million a year on presentation of a tax clearance certificate from the Namibia Inland Revenue. Income earned abroad and capital introduced into Namibia on or after July 1, 1997, by individual resident in Namibia may be transferred abroad, provided it was previously converted to Namibian dollars.
Inward direct investment	No.	Inward transfers of capital from non-CMA countries for equity investment may be effected freely.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Real estate purchases are permitted up to the foreign investment limit of N$6 million a year. Other purchases are subject to BON Exchange Control approval.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.
Loans	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	ADs may allow the transfer of loans up to N$1 million an applicant a year. Residents require approval to extend larger loans to nonresidents.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Foreign loans to residents are subject to approval to ensure that the level of the interest paid is reasonable in terms of prevailing international rates and that repayment does not disrupt the balance of payments.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Cash bequests and the cash proceeds of legacies and distributions from estates to nonresidents may be remitted abroad. There is a N$1 million limit for gifts a person a year. There are no controls on endowments.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Residents must declare funds obtained and repatriate them to Namibia. An exemption may be obtained from the BON for the retention of such funds abroad. Transfers by ADs of monetary gifts of up to N$1 million an applicant are allowed annually.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	If immigrants have formally declared their assets and liabilities and have no cash resources available with which to pay a debt, the BON may consider requests for exemption.

Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	The regulations that apply to the transfer of assets abroad in South Africa also apply in Namibia. Emigrants are allowed to export household and personal effects for a family or single person up to an overall limit of N$10 million or N$6 million, respectively. Emigrants are allowed to transfer abroad funds in excess of the aforementioned limits, subject to a transfer tax of 10% of the amount in excess of the limits.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	Yes.	Immigrants are required to furnish the exchange control authorities with a complete account of their foreign assets and liabilities at the time of their arrival. Any foreign assets they transfer to Namibia may, through the same channel, be retransferred abroad.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	Namibians are discouraged from participating in international lotteries; therefore, most requests are denied.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Borrowing abroad	No.	ADs are generally permitted to raise funds abroad in their own name for the financing of Namibia's foreign trade and for other approved purposes.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Approval is required for lending not related to trade. Only companies that are 75% or more foreign owned are subject to exchange controls, and local financial assistance may be granted to nonresident-owned companies against a nonresident's guarantee.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	ADs may lend money locally in Namibian dollars. However, lending locally in foreign currency is not allowed.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These transactions are not allowed.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	No.	If these deposits are liabilities to the public arising from operations in Namibia, they are included in the calculation of the minimum liquid assets and reserve requirements.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.	The limit on credit facilities to any person or group of related persons is 30% of a banking institution's capital funds. In addition to the above limit, credit facilities of more than 10% of capital funds may not exceed, in aggregate, 800% of the total capital funds of the banking institution in Namibia. These limits apply to all customers, regardless of their citizenship status.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.	If these deposits are liabilities to the public arising from operations in Namibia, they are included in the calculation of the minimum liquid assets and reserve requirements.

(Position as of June 30, 2021)

Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership		September 6, 1961.
Article VIII	Yes.	Date of acceptance: May 30, 1994.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2020 Article IV Consultation with Nepal states that as of February 28, 2020, the Industrial Enterprises Act places a 75% limit on the conversion and transfer to foreign currency of salaries of nonresidents from countries where convertible currency is in circulation. Because the limit applies to amounts that may be less than net salaries, it gives rise to an exchange restriction under Article VIII. (Country Report No. 20/96)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	No.	There are no exchange measures imposed for security reasons. Security-related exchange measures are taken indirectly through other laws that control such activities.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.

Official exchange rate Yes. The Nepalese rupee has been pegged to the Indian rupee at the rate of Nrs. 1.6 per Indian rupee since February 1993. The reference rate of the US dollar quoted by the NRB is based on the midrate of US dollar/Indian rupee (USD/INR) in the Indian foreign exchange market at the stipulated time. Buying and selling rates are quoted daily for certain other currencies, with quotes based on the buying and selling rates for the US dollar in markets abroad. The official exchange rate is fixed by the NRB. The NRB deals directly with the government and other public entities at the official exchange rate. The official exchange rate is used for accounting and valuation for NRB and government transactions.

Free floating

Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. The Netherlands participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is around 14:30 Central European Time to around 16:00 Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community.” These include a “high level of employment” and “sustainable and non-inflationary growth.” Effective July 7, 2021, price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term. Previously, it was defined as inflation rate below but close to 2% over the medium term.
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	No exchange controls apply to either the spot exchange market or the forward exchange market. ADs may freely determine their exchange rates and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Money transfer offices fall under the regulatory framework for payment service providers (PSPs) in the Financial Supervision Act (Wet op het financieel toezicht (WFT)). Under Section 2:3a of the WFT, no one domiciled in the Netherlands may conduct business as a PSP without an authorization from De Nederlandsche Bank (DNB, Dutch Central Bank). This prohibition does not apply to credit institutions authorized by the DNB. As of December 31, 2020, there were 224 PSPs, of which 81 were credit institutions and 143 were other PSPs. In 2019, there were 237 PSPs, of which 94 were credit institutions and 143 were other PSPs.

Interbank market	Yes.	The foreign exchange market operates on the basis of a market-making agreement for large professional market participants, such as banks. Smaller participants usually use a broker. In theory, there are no limits on bid-ask spreads. Excessive spreads, however, would be deemed “off-market” and are, therefore, not allowed. Commissions must also be market based. Intervention, if any, must be coordinated within the Eurosystem and takes place directly via market makers at their quoted rates (best price). Banks licensed by the DNB may trade in the interbank foreign exchange market.
Over the counter	No.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	Yes.	The interbank market operates on the basis of a market-making agreement, under which participants commit to a maximum spread and a minimum amount to trade. To the extent that the necessary contracts are in place, banks may participate in the interbank foreign exchange market. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	The CB may engage in foreign exchange swaps or foreign exchange forwards in the global market for investment purposes.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	In accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national financial intelligence unit. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EC regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EC regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EC regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purpose of the EC regulation; the EC regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The exchange rate is determined on the basis of supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. The Reserve Bank of New Zealand (RBNZ) may intervene if the exchange rate is exceptionally high or low, if that rate is not justified by economic fundamentals, and if there is a material prospect that the intervention will influence the exchange rate. Interventions may not be used as an attempt to influence the long-term trend of the exchange rate. The RBNZ publishes information on its foreign currency assets and liabilities, including its foreign currency intervention capacity (stock of reserves available for intervention) and foreign exchange swap position, on its website but does not publish data on its direct intervention. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating.

Government and Central Bank	Yes.	Under the RBNZ Act 1989 (Section 8), the RBNZ, acting through the MPC, has the function of formulating a monetary policy directed to the economic objectives of achieving and maintaining stability in the general level of prices over the medium term and supporting maximum sustainable employment. The operational objectives for monetary policy are set out in a remit that is issued by the Minister of Finance or in a remit made by a legislative instrument (Order in Council). Effective March 1, 2021, the RBNZ (Replacement of Remit for MPC) Order 2021 (Order) requires the MPC to assess the effect of its monetary policy decisions on the government’s policy to support more sustainable house prices, in addition to its previous operational objectives. The Order will be revoked on February 13, 2024. The next remit is likely to be issued by the Minister of Finance following public, non-binding advice from the Reserve Bank. Previously, the remit specified the MPC’s operational objectives as follows: (1) keep future annual inflation between 1% and 3% over the medium term, with a focus on keeping future inflation near the 2% mid-point, and (2) support maximum sustainable employment. The MPC operates under a charter that includes requirements to promote transparency and accountability in connection with the performance of the MPC’s functions and the MPC’s decision-making procedures. The current MPC Charter has been in place from April 1, 2019, and was agreed between the Minister of Finance and the Governor. All future charters will be agreements between the Minister of Finance and the MPC. The Minister and MPC can agree to review the charter at any time, and it must be reviewed whenever the remit is reviewed (every five years). The MPC consists of between 5 and 7 members, comprising the Governor, Deputy Governor, 1–2 other employees or officers of RBNZ, and 2–3 individuals external to the RBNZ. The Governor is Chair of the MPC. The MPC Charter states that the MPC is to aim to reach consensus on decisions, but that when consensus cannot be reached the decision will be by vote (simple majority).

Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Tariffs apply mainly to imported manufactured products that compete with domestic production. Most primary products that compete with domestic production are admitted duty-free. In 2009, all remaining tariff rates were reduced to either 10% or 5%. Import tariffs will remain at their current levels until at least June 2021. Tariffs on clothing, footwear, carpets, ambulances, and motor homes are set at 10%. There are multilateral, bilateral, and regional preferential tariffs. On December 30, 2018, the Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership (CPTPP) entered into force among Australia, Canada, Japan, Mexico, New Zealand, and Singapore. Under reciprocal free trade agreements, tariffs on goods originating from the following countries or territories have either been removed or are being reduced for eventual elimination: Australia, Brunei Darussalam, Canada, Chile, China, Hong Kong SAR, Japan, Korea, Malaysia, Mexico, Singapore, Taiwan Province of China, Thailand, and ASEAN member countries. The ASEAN-Australia-New Zealand Free Trade Agreement (AANZFTA) is in effect between Australia, Brunei Darussalam, Cambodia, Indonesia, Lao P.D.R., Malaysia, Myanmar, New Zealand, Philippines, Singapore, Thailand, and Vietnam. Goods from least developed countries and Pacific island economies are duty-free under nonreciprocal free trade arrangements. Eligible imports from the UK and developing economies are also given tariff preference. In August 2017, the government decided to keep import tariffs unchanged until at least July 31, 2021, except where they are being reduced through trade agreements. The Tariff (Concessions) Amendment Order 2014 went into effect, introducing temporary tariff concessions on residential building materials to assist

Canterbury earthquake rebuilding and Auckland housing demand. This tariff concession was reviewed in October 2018 and will remain in place. It is due for review in 2023.

Effective March 28, 2020, the government temporarily removed tariffs on all medical and hygiene imports needed for the COVID-19 response, with a view to permanently eliminate customs duties on these products. Further work is under way to voluntarily eliminate duties on vaccine-related products as part of the Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) Statement on COVID-19 Vaccine Supply Chains.

For conservation reasons, there are also restrictions on exports of various animals and plants. Certain items classified as strategic goods may be exported only if specific requirements have been met and an export permit has been issued.

The primary change to these sections is that they allow incremental investments between “ownership and control interest limits” (more than 25%, 50%, 75%, 100%) which no longer require consent. Effective July 5, 2021, the reform also removes certain widely held bodies corporate that are both New Zealand-incorporated and New Zealand-listed from the definition of “overseas person,” as reflected in Sections 7(2) and 7(3) of the Overseas Investment Amendment Act 2021. Consent is required under Section 12 of the Overseas Investment Act 2005 for overseas investments in sensitive land. Section 12 sets out that: An overseas investment in sensitive land is the acquisition by an overseas person, or an associate of an overseas person, of all or any of the following (a Section 12 interest): an estate or interest in land if: the land that the estate or interest relates to is sensitive land under

Part 1 of Schedule 1; and the estate or interest acquired is:
a freehold estate; or if the land that the interest relates to is residential land, any interest in land (other than an exempted interest) for a total term (as calculated in accordance with Schedule 1A) of 3 years or more; or if the land that the interest relates to is sensitive (but not residential) land, any interest in land (other than an exempted interest) for a total term (as calculated in accordance with Schedule 1A) of 10 years or more;
rights or interests in securities of a person (A) if A owns or controls (directly or indirectly) an estate or interest in land described in paragraph (a) and, as a result of the acquisition:
the overseas person or the associate (either alone or together with its associates) has a more than 25% ownership or control interest in A;
or the overseas person or the associate (either alone or together with its associates) has an increase in an existing more than 25% ownership or control interest in A that:
results in an ownership or control interest in A that equals or exceeds their ownership or control interest limit as set out in subsection (2);
or is in securities of A of a different class to the class in which their existing interest is held; or gives the overseas person or the associate (either alone or together with its associates) any or more disproportionate access to or control of a strategically important business; or
A becomes an overseas person in any of the following circumstances:
A is a body corporate that is a New Zealand listed issuer and meets the control test in Section 7(3) (b);
A is a managed investment scheme that is a New Zealand listed issuer and meets the control test in Section 7(4) (b);
A is not a New Zealand listed issuer.
The ownership or control interest limits are as follows:
if their existing ownership or control interest in A amounts to more than 25% but less than 50%, their ownership or control interest limit is 50%;
if their existing ownership or control interest in A amounts to 50% or more but less than 75%, their ownership or control interest limit is 75%;
if their existing ownership or control interest in A amounts to 75% or more, their ownership or control interest limit is 100%.

Consent is required under Section 13 of the Overseas Investment Act 2005 for overseas investments in significant business assets. Section 13 sets out that:

An overseas investment in significant business assets is:
the acquisition by an overseas person, or an associate of an overseas person, of rights or interests in securities of a person (A) if:
as a result of the acquisition, the overseas person or the associate (either alone or together with its associates) has a more than 25% ownership or control interest in A or an increase in an existing more than 25% ownership or control interest in A of a type referred to in Section 12(1) (b) (ii); and the value of the securities or consideration provided, or the value of the assets of A or A and its more than 25% subsidiaries, exceeds $100 million or an alternative monetary threshold that applies in accordance with regulations made under Section 61A; or the establishment by an overseas person, or an associate of an overseas person, of a business in New Zealand (either alone or with any other person) if: the business is carried on for more than 90 days in any year (whether consecutively or in aggregate); and the total expenditure expected to be incurred, before commencing the business, in establishing that business exceeds $100 million or an alternative monetary threshold that applies in accordance with regulations made under Section 61A; or the acquisition by an overseas person, or an associate of an overseas person, of property (including goodwill and other intangible assets) in New Zealand used in carrying on business in New Zealand (whether by 1 transaction or a series of related or linked transactions) if the total value of consideration provided exceeds $100 million or an alternative monetary threshold that applies in accordance with regulations made under Section 61A.

However, an overseas person that was lawfully carrying on business in New Zealand on January 15, 1996 (which was when the Overseas Investment Regulations 1995 came into force), does not require consent for an overseas investment in significant business assets described in subsection (1) (b) if the investment requires consent only because it comes within that paragraph.

The Overseas Investment Amendment Regulations 2021 also introduced an exemption from the definition of overseas person for non-listed bodies corporate and managed investment schemes. This exemption generally lines up with the exemption for listed issuers.

“Significant business asset” investments must meet an investor test.

Consent is required under Section 57B of the Fisheries Act 1996 for the acquisition by an overseas person or associate of (a) an interest-in-fishing quota or (b) rights or interests in securities of a person (A), if A owns (directly or indirectly) an interest-in-fishing quota and as a result of the acquisition the overseas person or associate has an ownership of 25% or more or a controlling interest in A or an increase in a 25% or more ownership or a controlling interest in A, or A becomes an overseas person. Fishing quota investments must meet an investor and a national interest test. Only New Zealanders may acquire, without the consent of the Crown, 49.9% or more of the shares of Chorus Limited or an interest in equity securities that confers 10% or more of the total voting rights in Air New Zealand Limited. Under the Overseas Investment Regulations 2005, certain securitization and underwriting arrangements are exempt from the above requirements.

A number of New Zealand’s free trade agreements, such as the Comprehensive and Progressive Trans Pacific Partnership and the New Zealand-Australia Closer Economic Relations Trade Agreement, establish higher monetary thresholds for screening of significant business assets for nongovernment investors.

On August 22, 2018, the Overseas Investment Amendment Act 2018 received Royal assent. As a result of these amendments, from October 22, 2018, “residential land” is a category of “sensitive land” in the Act. As such, overseas persons must generally obtain consent to acquire residential land. Consent may be granted in circumstances where the applicant is: committing to reside and become tax resident, in New Zealand (that is, spending at least 183 days of every year in New Zealand living in the residence for which consent to purchase was received); committing to increase the stock of residential housing on a piece of land (either by building a new, or expanding an existing, residential development or long-term accommodation facility); or to convert to a non-residential use (that is, establishing business operations on the site). Consistent with the Protocol on Investment to the New Zealand-Australia Closer Economic Relations Trade Agreement and the New Zealand-Singapore Closer Economic Partnership, Australian and Singaporean investors are not subject to screening of residential (but not otherwise sensitive) land. Consent may also be granted for overseas persons to acquire residential land subject to an exemption certificate; however, there are still restrictions on their use of the land under such circumstances – including a requirement that they cannot reside at the property. The Overseas Investment Amendment Act 2018 also narrows the existing exemptions for profits à prendre. In particular, from October 22, 2018, consent is required for an overseas person to obtain an interest in forestry-related profits à prendre of 1000 hectares or greater a year and other regulated profits à prendre of five hectares or more. At the same time as the range of land interests for which consent is required to conduct forestry activities was expanded, the pathways to obtain consent to acquire forestry assets (whether freehold, leasehold, profits à prendre, or through a forest registration right) were streamlined through the introduction of “the special benefits test” for forestry. Under this test, investors may obtain consent to acquire forestry assets if they satisfy the criteria specified in the Overseas Investment Amendment Regulations 2018.

Effective June 2, 2020, the Overseas Investment (Urgent Measures) Amendment Bill (1 of 2 bills) received Royal consent. It introduced a national interest test, which always applies to transactions that warrant greater scrutiny. As a response to the economic impacts of COVID-19, the national interest test can also be applied to certain transactions which are not ordinarily screened, and it is mandatory for these transactions to be notified to the Overseas Investment Office. This temporary Emergency Notification Regime was replaced by a permanent call-in power targeted to the types of transactions which are more likely to pose risks to national security and public order, and which empowers the government to review, impose conditions on, or block those transactions to manage risks to national security or public order.

Purchase abroad by residents	No.

Effective July 5, 2021, the latest reforms (Overseas Investment Amendment Act 2021) have generally liberalized the regime, seeking to decrease the amount of low-risk investments being screened under the regime. New Zealand Treasury officials have estimated that the reforms have reduced the number of transactions that are subject to screening by approximately 30%.

Foreign investment in certain types of land must meet an investor test and generally must benefit New Zealand or a group of New Zealanders. If sensitive land is nonurban land of more than five hectares, the benefit must be substantial and identifiable. Consent is required for acquisitions of the following: nonurban land exceeding five hectares; land adjoining a marine and coastal area, lakebed, conservation land and reserves, regional parks, national parks, and some land significant to Māori. As a result of these amendments, from October 22, 2018, “residential land” is a category of “sensitive land” in the Act. As such, overseas persons must generally obtain consent to acquire residential land. Consent may be granted in circumstances where the applicant is: committing to reside, and become tax resident, in New Zealand (that is, spending at least 183 days of every year in New Zealand living in the residence for which consent to purchase was received); committing to increase the stock of residential housing on a piece of land (either by building a new, or expanding an existing, residential development or long-term accommodation facility); or to convert to a non-residential use (that is, establishing business operations on the site). Consistent with the Protocol on Investment to the New Zealand-Australia Closer Economic Relations Trade Agreement and the New Zealand-Singapore Closer Economic Partnership, Australian and Singaporean investors are not subject to screening of residential (but not otherwise sensitive) land. Consent may also be granted for overseas persons to acquire residential land subject to an exemption certificate; however, there are still restrictions on their use of the land under such circumstances – including a requirement that they cannot reside at the property.

The Overseas Investment Amendment Act 2018 also narrows the existing exemptions for profits à prendre. In particular, from October 22, 2018, consent is required for an overseas person to obtain an interest in forestry-related profits à prendre of 1000 hectares or greater a year and other regulated profits à prendre of five hectares or more. Under this test, investors may obtain consent to acquire forestry assets if they satisfy the criteria specified in the Overseas Investment Amendment Regulations 2018.

Effective June 2, 2020, the Overseas Investment (Urgent Measures) Amendment Act 2020 removed screening requirements for Fundamentally New Zealand entities acquiring sensitive New Zealand assets.

This is pursuant to Regulation 44, introduced by the Overseas Investment Amendment Regulations 2018, which effectively exempts Retirement Schemes (RS) from the definition of an overseas person. The difference between the new position and the old position is that investments (a New Zealand company, for instance) downstream from the RS are no longer required to count the RS's holdings when determining whether they are an overseas person, as the RS is exempt from the definition of overseas person.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF Staff Report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Nicaragua states that, as of January 30, 2020, staff identified an exchange restriction arising from Nicaragua's participation in the SUCRE (Sistema Unitario de Compensación Regional de Pagos) regional payments arrangement. SUCRE gives rise to an exchange restriction because the period for settlement under this regional payment arrangement exceeds three months. See Decision No. 10749-(94/67). Under the SUCRE, Nicaragua made four commercial transactions between 2013 and 2015, and since 2015 no transactions have been made. (Country Report No. 20/59)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	No.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	No.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	Yes.	The currency of Nicaragua is the Nicaraguan córdoba.

Crawling peg	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is a crawling peg. The Central Bank of Nicaragua (BCN) publishes aggregated monthly data pertaining to BCN foreign exchange transactions with the banks and the government. In November 2020, the BCN reduced the crawling peg of the córdoba against the US dollar from 3% to 2%

Official exchange rate

Yes. The official exchange rate of the córdoba is determined and preannounced by the BCN. The official exchange rate is calculated daily using the formula  $(1 + 0.02)^{1/365}$ . The official exchange rate is used for BCN purchases of US dollars from the banks and the government and is used to calculate the exchange rate for BCN US dollar sales to these agents. The official exchange rate is used as a reference for the settlement of foreign exchange contracts payable in local currency, such as BCN bonds, and as an anchor for fixing market exchange rates.

Monetary policy framework

Exchange rate anchor

Yes.

U.S. dollar

Yes. The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the US dollar. Monetary operations are aimed at maintaining an adequate level of international reserves to support the crawling peg regime. Open market operations are the CB's primary monetary policy tool and are conducted to absorb a target volume of liquidity consistent with the desired level of reserve accumulation. In addition, the BCN buys and sells foreign exchange in accordance with banking system demand.

Exchange tax	No.	There is no tax, but the BCN applies, effective November 26, 2020, a commission of 2% to the sale of foreign exchange: the official exchange rate plus a commission of 2% (previously 1%).
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	In the foreign exchange market, the observed difference between the selling rate and the official rate is usually less than 2% of the commission charged by the BCN for the sale of foreign exchange, given the current exchange arrangement. Agents may freely determine their foreign exchange commissions with their clients. The Exchange Desk Module (Microsoft Management Console) continues to be operational. It is available to banks, financial institutions, and the government (through the Ministry of Finance and Public Credit) for online purchases and sales of foreign exchange (US dollars and euros) against córdobas. The Microsoft Management Console makes it possible to buy and sell US dollar against córdobas in real time and to buy and sell euros against córdobas with a delay (but within the same business day) because they require BCN authorization.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Participants in the foreign exchange market are the BCN, the government, banks, financial institutions, exchange bureaus, individuals, and legal entities that usually buy and sell foreign exchange. As of June 30, 2021, there were 27 institutions registered with the BCN as participants in the foreign exchange market: 8 commercial banks, 2 financial institutions, 8 microfinance, and 11 legal entities.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCN exchanges US dollars and euros for córdobas at the official rate only for the government, banks, and financial corporations registered with the BCN. There are no restrictions on the amount, and the origin and destination of the foreign currency do not have to be declared. Transactions between the BCN and the government and financial institutions are effected directly.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Banks and financial institutions are allowed to trade among themselves at freely determined rates. As of December 31, 2020, 8 banks and 2 financial institutions participated in the interbank market. The BCN does not intervene in the interbank market. Article 60 of the BCN Financial Rules indicates that the interbank market operates independently of the BCN. The difference between the purchasing price and the selling price, and the commissions for market participants, are not subject to limits.
Over the counter	Yes.	The interbank foreign exchange market operates over the counter and through repurchase operations in the Stock Market of Nicaragua.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	No.	There are no restrictions. However, financial institutions must report to the SIBOIF all individual transactions, including multiple or partial transactions, such as deposits, withdrawals, currency exchanges, securities trading, and other financial transactions, and other payments or transfers involving the exchange of currency in cash and exceeding US$10,000 or its equivalent in domestic currency. International loans may be settled in the currency of the lender or in any other currency set by the lender.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	No.
Payments arrangements	Yes.	Public sector external debt contracts with bilateral and multilateral creditors include a payments arrangement specifying payment modalities and currency. There are no payments arrangements for private sector transactions.

Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	The Treaty on Payments and Securities Settlement Systems in Central America and the Dominican Republic remains in effect between the Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua. Under the Payments Treaty, the Payments System Interconnection between Central America and the Dominican Republic is also in effect. In January 2013, the Treaty Establishing the Single Regional Payments Clearing System (SUCRE, Sistema Unitario de Compensación Regional de Pagos) went into effect in Nicaragua. Payments may take place through this system for trade operations with the other treaty signatories (Bolivia, Cuba, Ecuador, Venezuela).
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	Exchange operations between private agents are not restricted. Banks, financial enterprises, exchange bureaus, individuals, and legal entities may freely buy and sell to the public US dollars or any other freely convertible foreign currency for any amount or purpose. However, banks, financial enterprises, and exchange bureaus are subject to prior registration with the BCN as participants in the foreign exchange market for statistical purposes.
Payments arrears	Yes.
Official	Yes.	Government and public sector arrears (most of which are attributable to the BCN) to bilateral creditors (non-Paris Club members) relate to debt subject to relief under the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries Initiative.
Private	Yes.	Negotiations continue on one pending claim (for about US$27 million) with a creditor that did not participate in the external commercial debt buyback operation (about US$1.4 billion) launched in October 2007 and concluded in December 2008. This claim is also subject to relief under the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries Initiative.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	The Ministry of Development, Industry, and Commerce (MIFIC) and the National Administration of Geological Resources coordinate, manage, and supervise the mining, production, and exportation of gold. Individuals and legal entities may trade gold coins only for numismatic purposes.
On external trade	Yes.	A permit from the MIFIC is required to export gold.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Exports equivalent to US$10,000 or more require a customs declaration. Outward transfers by financial institutions must comply with the regulations issued by the SIBOIF.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Exports equivalent to US$10,000 or more require a customs declaration. Financial institutions may carry out export operations in compliance with provisions established by the Directorate General of

NICARAGUA

		Customs.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Imports equivalent to US$10,000 or more require a customs declaration. Imports of domestic currency are carried out by the BCN.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Imports equivalent to US$10,000 or more require a customs declaration. The BCN is the only entity authorized to import nonredeemable currencies.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Checking, savings, and term deposit accounts are available both in US dollars and in euros. There are no restrictions on transferring balances abroad, although a fee may be charged.
Approval required	No.	The opening of foreign exchange accounts in the national financial system must comply with SIBOIF standards.
Held abroad	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts must comply with the standards for the prevention of laundering of money and other assets and commodities and the financing of terrorism and with other SIBOIF, BCN, and Financial Analysis Unit standards.
Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Most accounts denominated in córdobas are indexed to the US dollar, except for current account deposits. Conversion may be effected through foreign exchange operations with financial institutions and exchange bureaus at buying and selling market rates.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Only foreigners with approved immigration status (for example, diplomatic missions and international organizations) may open these accounts.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Only foreigners with approved immigration status may open these accounts (for example, diplomatic missions and international organizations).
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Conversion may be effected through foreign exchange operations with financial institutions and exchange bureaus at buying and selling market rates.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	No.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.

NICARAGUA

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	No.	LC requirements are regulated in contracts between importers and nonresident suppliers. Some import payments are made through certified drafts, but almost all are made through LCs.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	All importers must register with the unified taxpayers' register. They may obtain foreign currency in the foreign exchange market (financial institutions and exchange bureaus) without restriction. All purchases and sales equivalent to US$10,000 or more require a declaration indicating the origin and destination of the funds.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Imports of some medications for human and veterinary use and of agrochemicals require a license. Canned food products require a permit from the Nicaragua Ministry of Health, MINSA.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Certain categories of imports are banned.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Import quotas under CAFTA, for the Dominican Republic, Panama, Taiwan Province of China, and WTO countries, and tariff quotas for supplies (yellow corn, chicken, corn syrup, milled rice, rice) are in effect.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Measures apply to certain imports, including those related to public health, national security, the environment, and national emergencies.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The import tariff regime is harmonized with that of the CACM. The maximum tariff rate, which applies to chicken legs and thighs, is 137%. There is a tariff elimination schedule under the Dominican Republic–CAFTA framework. A selective consumption tax is imposed on imports of sugar, alcoholic and nonalcoholic beverages, and tobacco cigarettes. Imports are subject to a VAT of 15%, with a few exceptions.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Institutions may borrow abroad, subject to compliance with regulations governing foreign indebtedness. Violation of these regulations is punishable by fines under the General Law on Banks, Nonbank Financial Institutions, and Financial Groups.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Standards on investments and deposits held abroad are issued by the SIBOIF.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Banks may extend loans in general and collect them in the same currency in which they were granted. However, according to Resolution No. CD-SIBOIF-547-1-AGOST20-2008, financial institutions should assess the credit risk of commercial debtors with loans granted in foreign currency and in córdobas to maintain their value.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These instruments may be issued by the BCN, the government, or any private corporation registered on the Stock Exchange of Nicaragua.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	No.
Reserve requirements	No.	Reserve requirements must be fulfilled in the currency of the underlying deposits. The reserve requirements are 10% of deposits on a daily basis and, effective June 19, 2020, 15% of average deposits on a fortnightly basis for both national and foreign currencies. Previously, the reserve requirement was 13% of average deposits on a weekly basis for national currency and 15% for foreign currency.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries (banks and nonelectronic exchange dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which must be traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The commission on foreign exchange transactions may not exceed 2%. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU applies.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Nonelectronic foreign currency transactions can be conducted by authorized intermediary banks and individuals or companies specifically authorized by decision of the minister of finance, with the consent of the BCEAO. Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect on the financial conditions for engaging in nonelectronic foreign exchange transactions that involve foreign currencies and must issue a transaction slip for all transactions with a client. Moreover, to provide satisfactory information to clients, they are required to (1) permanently post at their windows the rates actually charged for the different currencies and (2) post notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions on presentation of the requestor's identity document.

In their operations with customers, authorized banks and OTC dealers freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 and may be subject to a maximum commission of 2.0%. As of December 31, 2020, there were 14 active banks and 4 bank-like financial institutions, which are also subject to the Banking Law. There were 95 licensed exchange entities in Niger, 55 of which are legal persons, including 52 exchange bureaus. Authorized foreign exchange agents may purchase foreign currency from the BCEAO, which exchanges foreign currencies for CFA francs based on the euro exchange rate on international markets. These transactions are subject to a commission charge of 0.5%. Furthermore, only banks are authorized to hold accounts abroad and to carry out payments and transfers in foreign currency on behalf of their clients. Authorized OTC entities may only conduct sales and purchases of means of payment denominated in foreign currency.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at the rates published on the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The nonelectronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals). However, commissions are not charged on cash foreign exchange transactions conducted by governments, officials of Member States of the WAMU on missions abroad, officials of the CB and their beneficiaries, and on payments made by banks and financial institutions.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are allowed. As of December 31, 2020, 8 out of 12 banks participated in the domestic currency interbank market. There is no regulated foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions on the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps. Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to buy or sell foreign currency, available to residents of the WAEMU zone to purchase from an authorized intermediary bank in the WAEMU or from a foreign bank. Authorized intermediary banks are required to simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur with respect to derivative instruments traded with their customers. The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or direct foreign investment in a resident company. All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO. BCEAO forward exchange transactions are centralized at its headquarters.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used as payment for current international transactions and capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used as payment for current international transactions with countries outside the WAEMU.
For capital transactions	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for the settlement of international capital transactions with non-WAEMU countries. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for the settlement of transactions in capital and money market instruments with non-WAEMU countries. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require authorization by the MOF.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following operations on derivatives and other instruments with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward contract, (2) foreign exchange swaps, and (3) options. Operations on derivatives with foreign banks outside the WAEMU can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Credit operations	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone may not use foreign exchange for domestic transactions. Regulatory provisions require residents of the WAEMU zone to surrender to an intermediary bank all income or proceeds in foreign currency received abroad or paid by a nonresident.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.

NIGER

Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account is maintained with the French Treasury that links national operations accounts for WAEMU member countries. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros against CFA francs are ultimately settled through a debit or a credit to the operations account.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	There is a multilateral clearing agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS member countries (Cabo Verde, the Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone) as part of the WAMA. All payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be made under the clearing agreement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO establishes the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Niger for the purposes of preparing the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and physical exports of means of payment and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Niger are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfers with other countries must be made through registered intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers may freely export CFA franc banknotes from one WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals (that is, from any WAEMU member country) and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc banknotes issued by the BCEAO.
Foreign currency	Yes.	The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; the reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They are allowed to carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler's checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler's checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.

On imports Yes.

Domestic currency Yes.

Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone may freely import domestic currency (CFA franc – XOF) banknotes. However, individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from receiving banknotes in domestic currency (CFA franc – XOF). The redemption by the BCEAO of banknotes exported outside its area of issuance was suspended. Pursuant to this measure, registered intermediary banks are not authorized to receive shipments of CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from their correspondents located outside the WAEMU area.

Foreign currency No.

Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone may freely import CFA area banknotes denominated in foreign currencies. Such means of payment in excess of the equivalent of CFAF 5 million must be declared to customs. Nonresident travelers must declare to customs foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 5 million on entry and exit. Regulatory provisions require residents to surrender to an authorized intermediary bank all revenue or proceeds in foreign currency collected abroad or received from a nonresident.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Held domestically Yes.

Approval required Yes.

Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.

Held abroad Yes.

Approval required Yes.

Individuals who are residents of the WAEMU temporarily staying or traveling outside of WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Approval required Yes. Intermediaries authorized in the WAEMU are authorized to open accounts in euros for the benefit of nonresidents, subject to proof of their status and actual residence. Nonresident accounts denominated in foreign currency other than euros are subject to BCEAO authorization. Nonresident foreign currency accounts are valid for a renewable period of two years. In the event of a failure to obtain renewal (through a new BCEAO authorization for foreign exchange other than the euro), these accounts must be closed. The balances of these accounts may be freely transferred abroad after verification.

Domestic currency accounts Yes.

Convertible into foreign currency Yes. Authorized intermediaries may open nonresident accounts in CFA francs and in euros, under their own responsibility, depending on the status and actual residence of the applicant. These accounts may be debited for spot purchases of foreign exchange.

Approval required No.

Blocked accounts No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget No.

Financing requirements for imports Yes.

Minimum financing requirements No.

Advance payment requirements Yes. Advance payments for imports require authorization, and importers may not acquire foreign exchange until the date of the payment specified in the contract.

Advance import deposits No.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports Yes. Importers may purchase foreign exchange for import payments after establishing bank payment order accounts and submitting supporting documents, but no earlier than eight days before shipment if a documentary credit is opened or on the due date of payment if the products have already been imported.

Issuance of securities constituting a loan by residents of the WAEMU zone to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using derivatives. They must be backed by the residents of the WAEMU zone's imports or exports of raw materials and commodities. Residents of the WAEMU zone are not authorized to purchase raw materials or commodities on foreign markets for delivery within the framework of a derivatives transaction in raw materials or commodities.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	The purchase of derivatives by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone on the domestic market is treated as a loan contracted by a resident with a nonresident. As such, it is permitted. The purchase must be executed through an authorized intermediary and must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign exchange derivatives from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.

NIGER

Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the MOF.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The date on which payment falls due is specified in the contract and should in principle be no later than 120 days after the date of shipment.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These credits require MOF approval. Outward transfers to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the MOF and substantiated by documentation.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The granting of guarantees and sureties is subject to MOF approval. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require the issuance of an exchange authorization, subject to MOF approval, and the submission of supporting documents.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered to be direct investments and therefore require prior declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Controls on direct investment	Yes.	Direct investment implies control of a company or enterprise in excess of 10% of the capital of the company (such as shares listed on a stock exchange). All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of residents of the WAEMU and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MOF authorization.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	FDI, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes. An investment is not considered a direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of the company.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MOF and the CB for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the proceeds of the liquidation is subject to MOF authorization. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted, but must be reported to the MOF and the CB for statistical purposes.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These purchases require MOF authorization.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company are allowed. They require a declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.	Sales by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone to residents of the WAEMU zone require the submission of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary that handles the settlement and must be declared to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.	Personal capital transactions between residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through the BCEAO, the postal administration, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless authorization is obtained from the MOF.
Loans	Yes.	The regulations governing securities and investments apply.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions require MOF authorization. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation without first being licensed and included on the list of approved financial institutions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions may be made freely but are subject to declaration to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes when disbursed and when repaid.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to MOF and BCEAO authorization. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant anti-money-

To residents from nonresidents	No.	laundrying and terrorism financing provisions. These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	Immigrants with resident status must obtain MOF authorization to settle debts contracted abroad, while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	These transactions are subject to MOF authorization if the value exceeds CFAF 500,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	Yes.	Foreign accounts (in foreign currency or CFA francs) of nonresidents of the WAEMU zone who become residents of the WAEMU zone must be closed. However, these residents of the WAEMU zone may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired, while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. New transfers to these accounts require MOF approval.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	These transfers are conducted free through authorized intermediaries, subject to the presentation of supporting documents and compliance with the relevant provisions on combating money laundrying and financing of terrorism.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect September 28, 2012. Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 sets the deadline (December 31, 2013) for including this law in the domestic legislation of the WAMU members. These procedures were included in Niger's legislation by law on October 17, 2014, and adopted by the National Assembly on October 23, 2014.
Borrowing abroad	No.	Borrowing abroad is unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions for their account or the accounts of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements. In accordance with Regulation No. 09/2010/CM/UEMOA on the External Financial Relations of the WAEMU Member States, to cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits not exceeding the total amount on their books of import payments domiciled by clients, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits not exceeding the balance of their open foreign accounts in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency. The total amount of these assets may not exceed 5% of the clients' outstanding demand deposits. Assets in excess of foreign currency requirements must be surrendered to the BCEAO.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Commercial lending is allowed. Financial credits are subject to MOF authorization following BCEAO approval.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	No explicit regulations exist regarding these transactions, but MOF authorization is required with BCEAO approval.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These purchases require MOF authorization if their issuance was not approved by the RCPSFM.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.	A reserve requirement of 3% applies to WAEMU banks. Demand deposits, other deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the base for the calculation of the required reserves. The base for the calculation of the required reserves to be held with the CB includes customer foreign currency deposits.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	According to the prudential framework applicable to WAEMU banks and financial institutions that perform banking operations, the minimum standard liquid asset requirement is 75%.
Interest rate controls	Yes.	The wear rate in WAEMU member countries is set at 15% for banks and at 24% for decentralized financial systems.
Credit controls	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to MOF authorization, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.	Banking regulations make no distinction among resident deposit accounts, nonresident deposit accounts, and foreign deposit accounts.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Any overdraft or advance granted to a nonresident requires MOF authorization with BCEAO approval.
Investment regulations	Yes.	The regulations governing direct investment apply.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may, depending on their volume, be subject to authorization by the minister of finance. The banking law stipulates that investment by any person in a bank that would have the effect of changing the minority and/or majority voting rights requires authorization by the minister of finance.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks may not maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts to assist in the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. However, to cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in non-WAEMU zone banks assets allocated to the execution of current customer operations, listed as follows: (1) demand deposits not exceeding the total amount on their books of import payments domiciled by clients, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits not exceeding the balance of their open foreign

Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Controls are imposed by the CIMA Code.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	The CIMA Code specifies that liabilities in a given currency must be covered by assets denominated in the same currency.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, presentation, and floating of securities of any kind by foreign governments, local authorities, foreign companies, or international institutions are subject to authorization by the RCPSFM.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	With the exception of foreign securities issued or sold with RCPSFM authorization in WAEMU member countries, all investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MEF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.

Changes during 2020 and 2021

No significant changes occurred in the exchange and trade system.

NIGERIA

(Position as of July 31, 2021)

Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership March 30, 1961.

Article VIII

Article XIV Yes.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices Yes. The IMF staff report for the 2020 Article IV Consultation with Nigeria states that, as of December 16, 2020, Nigeria maintained the following exchange restrictions subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) of the IMF’s Articles of Agreement: (1) an exchange restriction arising from the prohibition to access foreign exchange at the Nigerian foreign exchange markets for the payment of imports of 42 categories of items; (2) an exchange restriction arising from the rationing of foreign exchange by the Central Bank of Nigeria (CBN) in different foreign exchange windows, and its allocation based on the CBN’s determination of priority categories of transactions; and (3) an exchange restriction arising from existing limits on the amounts of foreign exchange available when traveling abroad (business travel allowance (BTA)/personal travel allowances (PTAs)), which cannot be exceeded even on verification of the bona fide nature of the transaction. In addition, Nigeria maintains the following MCPs subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 3 of the IMF’s Articles of Agreement: (1) an MCP arising from the intervention practice of the CBN that results in the establishment of an official exchange rate for use in official (government) transactions and some other transactions, which may differ by more than 2% from the rate used by commercial banks in other CBN foreign exchange windows (Secondary Market Intervention Sale (SMIS), SME, IEFX, and Invisibles), and by money transfer operators; (2) an MCP arising from the large spread between exchange rates used by the CBN in its foreign exchange windows and the rates in the parallel market, caused by the CBN’s limitation on the availability of foreign exchange which channels current international transactions to such market; and (3) an MCP arising from the potential spread of more than 2% in the exchange rates at which the CBN sells foreign exchange to successful auction bidders in the SMIS window. (Country Report No. 21/33)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons No.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51) No.

Other security restrictions No.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency Yes. The currency of Nigeria is the Nigerian naira.

Other legal tender No.

Exchange rate structure

Unitary

Dual

Multiple

Yes. There is a multiple exchange rate structure as a result of MCPs as per Country Report No. 21/33, as follows: (1) MCP arising from the intervention practice of the CBN that results in the establishment of an official exchange rate for use in all official (government) transactions and some other transactions, which may differ by more than 2% from the rate used by commercial banks in other CBN foreign exchange windows (SMIS, SME, IEFX, and Invisibles) and by money transfer operators; (2) an MCP arising from the large spread between exchange rates used by the CBN in its foreign exchange windows and the rates in the parallel market, caused by the CBN's limitation on the availability of foreign exchange which channels current international transactions to such market; and (3) an MCP arising from the potential spread of more than 2% in the exchange rates at which the CBN sells foreign exchange to successful auction bidders in the SMIS window.

The CBN made efforts to unify exchange rates in different foreign exchange market segments, and as at August 13, 2021, the exchange rates were as follows: (1) The exchange rate at the CBN's official window (IFEM) was N405.27/$ (used mainly for monetization, government LCs transactions and purchases of oil proceeds from oil companies and oil services companies). Effective May 10, 2021, the previously existing facility for banks to have access to US$50,000 per day on a rotating basis at the official exchange rate was eliminated; (2) the Investors & Exporters' window (IFEX) exchange rate was around N410.00/$–N420.00/$; (3) the approved rate for invisibles (PTA/BTA transactions) was around N 410/$, mainly derived from the I&E window rate; (4) the exchange rate through the SME window (where the CBN intervenes to ensure payment for eligible imports by small and medium enterprises with a limit of US$20,000 a customer a quarter) was around N 410/$, mainly derived from the I&E window rate; and (5) exchange rates on the SMIS retail sales by the CBN were around N 390/$–N 445/$. On March 2020, the CBN suspended sales to banks for wholesale SMIS window, while SMIS retail is still functional for critical sectors. Effective November 30, 2020, the CBN issued a circular directing the banks to pay beneficiaries of international money transfer operator (IMTO) remittances in foreign currency cash or paid into their domiciliary account. (Previously, extant regulation provided recipients of international money transfers be paid in naira.)

Stabilized arrangement

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The CBN explicitly aims to maintain an exchange rate principally driven by market forces, but intervenes to reduce volatility and to counteract speculative attacks on the national currency. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as stabilized. The CBN publishes its intervention data, and this is also reported weekly by various news agents across the nation.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The official exchange rate is determined by the market. The official exchange rate is the rate at which the interbank market (I&E) closes. I&E is the main market in which the banks trade among themselves. The official exchange rate is the rate used for monetization, tax, and duty payments, other accounting purposes as well as in all official transactions.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Foreign exchange purchased from the CBN and not used must be returned to the CBN within 72 hours. Unused foreign exchange acquired from sources other than the CBN is exempt from mandatory sale and may be used for interbank transactions.

ADs are not allowed to have a bid-ask spread exceeding 50 kobo. The commission charged by the ADs is guided by the provisions of the Guide to Bank Charges, which is reviewed periodically by the CBN. According to the CBN Guide to Bank Charges (May 1, 2017), the commissions are (1) 1% of the value involved—flat (or as determined from time to time by the CBN) for purchases from the CBN and (2) negotiable subject to a maximum spread of 50 kobo per US dollar for interbank purchases. The rate for spot purchases from customers is the interbank rate. However, for purchases at the I&E market, ADs are not allowed to have a bid-ask spread exceeding N1.00.

Spot exchange market Yes. The CBN established a single market structure through the autonomous/interbank market, that is, the interbank foreign exchange market with the CBN participating in the foreign exchange market through interventions directly in the interbank market or through “SMISs.” It is used by banks to transact among themselves for proceeds from export and personal transfers. The I&E window is to provide liquidity to investors and exporters and was a bid to boost liquidity in the system and reduce the corridor between the official and bureau de change (BDC) market.

The market participants in the foreign exchange market are as follows: banks (commercial, merchant, and non-interest banks) and BDCs licensed by the CBN.

As of December 31, 2020, there were 29 deposit money banks (DMBs), 34 primary mortgage banks (PMBs), 913 licensed microfinance banks (MFBs), and 5392 eligible BDCs.

Exchange bureaus (BDC) may only deal in banknotes and coins, buying and selling traveler's checks, and other business as approved by the CBN. They may not engage in foreign business or foreign correspondence relationships, or directly or indirectly in any form of outward or inward foreign currency transfers or credit card services. BDCs are not allowed to maintain accounts abroad.

IMTOs are only licensed to conduct international money transfers. Their customers include individuals and businesses.

Effective November 30, 2020, IMTO remittances are to be paid to beneficiaries in cash (USD) or directly into their Domiciliary accounts. (Previously, extant regulation provided recipients of international money transfers be paid in naira.)

Effective November 30, 2020, the requirement for IMTOs to sell foreign exchange to banks and the CBN was eliminated. Previously, approved IMTOs were directed to sell foreign exchange sourced from remittances to their approved banks and CBN. The banks were expected to monetize 25% of the proceeds for their use to fund any eligible transaction, while the 75% was to be sold to and monetized by the CBN for sale to BDCs.

The CBN made efforts to unify exchange rates in different foreign exchange market segments, and as at August 13, 2021, the exchange rates were as follows: (1) The exchange rate at the CBN's official window (IFEM) was N405.27/$ (used mainly for monetization, government LCs transactions and purchases of oil proceeds from oil companies and oil services companies). On March 2020, the CBN suspended sales to banks for wholesale SMIS window, while SMIS retail is still functional for critical sectors.

Operated by the central bank

Yes.

The CBN sells foreign exchange to the IFEM. Effective May 10, 2021, the previously existing facility for banks to have access to US$50,000 per day on a rotating basis at the official exchange rate was eliminated.

Other windows are SMIS, IFEX, SME, Invisible and BDC.

On March 2020, the CBN suspended sales to banks for wholesale SMIS window, while SMIS retail is still functional for critical sectors. Effective, September 8, 2020, foreign exchange sales by the CBN to BDCs resumed after the suspension effective March 17, 2020, because of the closure of international borders, resulting from the outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic. Sales to BDCs by the CBN is conducted by allocation to eligible BDCs. Sales to BDCs by the CBN is conducted by allocation to eligible BDCs. Effective July 30, 2021, foreign exchange sales by the CBN to the BDC segment was suspended, and part of their allocations was channeled to banks for effective utilization and monitoring.

Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	Yes.	The CBN sells foreign exchange to the banks according to the availability and demand of foreign exchange and documented needs of customers of the participating banks. Funds not used by banks within 72 hours of the value date must be returned to the CBN for repurchase at the funds purchases rate. Effective May 10, 2021, the previously existing facility for banks to have access to US$50,000 per day on a rotating basis at the official exchange rate was eliminated. Windows through which the CBN sells foreign exchange through allocation are Invisible, SME, I&E, and BDCs. Effective, September 8, 2020, foreign exchange sales by the CBN to BDCs resumed after the suspension effective March 17, 2020, because of the closure of international borders, resulting from the outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic. Sales to BDCs by the CBN are conducted by allocation to eligible BDCs. Effective July 30, 2021, foreign exchange sales by the CBN to the BDC segment were suspended, and part of their allocations was channeled to banks for effective utilization and monitoring.
Auction	Yes.	The CBN sells foreign exchange at the SMISs. Retail SMIS is operated via the multiple price book building process using the Thomson Reuters foreign exchange auction system. There is no predetermined spread in SMIS. There is a limit of 1% of the total on offer to single customers on the SMIS retail. All sales to end users must be trade backed. All DMBs (commercial banks) with authorized dealership licensed can participate in the auction. On March 2020, the CBN suspended sales to banks for wholesale SMIS window, while SMIS retail is still functional for critical sectors.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	The I&E rate is determined among interbank players; the CBN discourages speculative bids, and the rate as at August 13, 2021, was N 410/$. ADs' bid-ask spread may not exceed N1.00. The commission is subject to the limit specified in the Guide to Bank Charges. Funds purchased from the CBN but not used by banks within 72 hours of the value date are to be returned to the CBN for repurchase at the fund buying rate. As of August 13, 2021, the foreign exchange markets had 32 ADs participating with licenses acquired from the CBN.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Forward exchange transactions in the foreign exchange market are permitted among ADs and between dealers and their customers, subject to prudential limits and provided the transactions relate to trade in goods and services. The CBN engages in foreign exchange forward transactions with the aim of transforming and deepening the Nigerian financial markets. These transactions take place with ADs in the market for the benefit of foreign exchange users in the economy.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Documentation is required as described in BSD/DIR/GEN/LAB/07/037 on Prudential Regulation for the Management of Foreign Exchange Risks of Banks. The aggregate foreign currency borrowing of a bank excluding intergroup and interbank (Nigerian banks) borrowing should not exceed 125% of its shareholders' funds unimpaired by losses.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	Documentation is required.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.	CBN regulations do not preclude banks from extending credit facilities to nonresident individuals or companies. Each bank is expected to carry out appropriate due diligence and ensure that such credits are in line with its risk management policy and practices. Lending to nonresidents, including overdraft facilities, is given the same treatment as lending to residents, as provided in the CBN Prudential Guidelines.

Licensed banks in Nigeria may grant loans and permit overdrafts for periods of up to 14 days and may increase the amount of any advance or overdraft by the amount of loan interest or bank charges payable thereon. Documentation is required. There are no credit restrictions for nonresident individuals or companies (other than banks) registered in Nigeria that are controlled directly or indirectly from outside Nigeria. Lending is subject to the single obligor limit of 20% of shareholders' funds unimpaired by losses.

As announced and effective March 16, 2020, the CBN introduced some policy measures in response to the COVID-19 outbreak and its spillover effects. This included granting a forbearance to banks to allow them to provide temporary and time-restricted restructuring of the tenor and loan terms of facilities (to residents or nonresidents) granted to sectors impacted by the pandemic.

Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	The aggregate foreign currency borrowing of a bank excluding intergroup and interbank (Nigerian banks) borrowing should not exceed 125% of its shareholders' funds unimpaired by losses. The 125% limit supersedes the 200% specified in Section 6 of the 2001 Guidelines for Foreign Borrowing for On-Lending by Nigerian Banks. Banks should borrow and lend in the same currency (natural hedging) to avoid currency mismatch associated with foreign currency risk. The basis of the interest rate for borrowing should be the same as that of lending; that is, there should be no mismatch in floating and fixed interest rates, to mitigate basis risk associated with foreign borrowing interest rate risk.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Foreign exchange may not be acquired in the foreign exchange market for purchases of Eurobonds, foreign currency bonds, or foreign currency share purchases (CBN Circular TED/FEM/FPC/GEN/01/010). Purchases of such securities are not prohibited, provided the purchaser uses their own funds without recourse to the Nigerian foreign exchange markets.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	Liquid asset requirements are not applied to foreign exchange deposits. Banks are expected to meet a minimum LR requirement (ratio of specified liquid assets to current liabilities), which is currently set at 30%. Foreign exchange deposits are not included in the computation of the LR. The liquidity requirements are specified in BSD/DO/CIR/GEN/VOL.02/044 of January 29, 2009.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.

NIGERIA

Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	For prudential purposes, CBN approval is required for banks prior to the acquisition of equity interests in financial, commercial, or other banks (domestic or foreign). The type of banking license/authorization issued to the bank is also a determining factor. Only commercial banks with international authorization may obtain CBN approval to open/invest in foreign branches or subsidiaries.
In banks by nonresidents	No.	The inflow of funds is subject to the provisions of the Money-Laundering (Prohibition) Act and the CBN AML/CFT Regulations for Banks.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	Net open position and foreign currency trading position limit the banks' ability to hold foreign currencies. The exposure limit applies to DMBs only. There are two types of exposures: (1) a daily foreign exchange trading exposure limit for long positions in foreign currency of 0.5% and for short positions in foreign currency –10.0% of shareholder funds unimpaired by losses (CBN Circular TED/FEM/FPC/GEN/01/002) and (2) a net open position of foreign assets and liabilities of 10% of shareholder funds unimpaired by losses.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The exposure limit applies to DMBs only. There are two types of exposures: (1) a daily foreign exchange trading exposure limit for long positions in foreign currency of 0.5% and for short positions in foreign currency –10.0% of shareholder funds unimpaired by losses (CBN Circular TED/FEM/FPC/GEN/01/002) and (2) a net open position of foreign assets and liabilities of 10% of shareholder funds unimpaired by losses.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The exposure limit applies to DMBs only. There are two types of exposures: (1) a daily foreign exchange trading exposure limit for long positions in foreign currency of 0.5% and for short positions in foreign currency –10.0% of shareholder funds unimpaired by losses (CBN Circular TED/FEM/FPC/GEN/01/002) and (2) a net open position of foreign assets and liabilities of 10% of shareholder funds unimpaired by losses.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	No.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Investment limits are decided by the category of instruments and credit rating, not the residence status of the issuer. All investments in securities (shares and bonds) of eligible entities (period lists provided by PenCom, the regulator) must be through public offerings approved by the Nigerian Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), unless securities listed or quoted in an offshore securities exchange have prior approval by SEC.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Prior approval from the Commission is required.

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. Under the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations (Article 33), the denar exchange rate is freely determined on the basis of supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. This arrangement is still in place under the current legislation. However, the National Bank of the Republic of North Macedonia (NBRNM) participates in the foreign exchange market (Article 34), to achieve the goals determined with the monetary and the foreign exchange policies. The NBRNM is implementing the monetary strategy of targeting the nominal exchange rate against the euro, the intermediary objective of the monetary policy being the maintenance of the denar exchange rate stability. Thus, the NBRNM maintains a stable exchange rate within a narrow fluctuation band of bid-ask exchange rates determined by the Committee for Operational Monetary Policy.

Size and direction of the interventions are published on a regular quarterly basis, in the Quarterly Report of the NBRNM (Balance of Payments section, Financial Account subsection, in the part commenting on the developments of the foreign exchange reserves). The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement.

Official exchange rate

Yes.

On the basis of the daily quotes of the market makers, the NBRNM determines the nominal denar exchange rate against the euro. This rate is determined at the end of each business day as the average of the daily bid-ask quotes for euros among the market makers in the interbank foreign exchange market.

According to the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, the official exchange rate is used for accounting and balance of payments statistics. The denar exchange rate is published daily on the NBRNM website.

U.S. dollar

Euro

Yes.

Beginning October 1995, the NBRNM implemented a monetary policy strategy of targeting the denar exchange rate against the German mark until 2002 and thereafter against the euro. This monetary policy strategy stems from the importance of the exchange rate of the domestic currency for a small open economy as a transparent nominal anchor for credible monetary policy.

Accordingly, the monetary policy framework is using an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro.

Foreign exchange market Yes. According to the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, foreign exchange sales and purchases must take place in the foreign exchange market. The exchange market operates at two levels: wholesale (companies, commercial banks, and NBRNM) and retail (transactions of natural persons with foreign exchange bureaus and commercial banks). The wholesale market is also divided into two segments: (1) transactions between clients and banks and (2) interbank market transactions. Banks freely set the exchange rate in transactions with their clients, in accordance with supply and demand

Spot exchange market	Yes.	in the foreign exchange market. Banks buy and sell foreign exchange on their own account and on behalf of third-party accounts. Savings houses buy and sell foreign exchange only with a NBRNM license for foreign exchange operation. They may buy and sell foreign exchange on their own behalf only with banks licensed by the NBRNM to deal in the foreign exchange market. Other entities may purchase and sell foreign exchange on their own behalf only with entities (banks and foreign exchange bureaus) approved by the NBRNM. Foreign exchange bureaus have accounts with domestic banks and may engage in transactions, as legal entities, with those banks. Residents other than banks and foreign exchange bureaus, may purchase foreign exchange for payments abroad and sell foreign exchange collected from abroad in the foreign exchange market. Resident natural persons may purchase and sell foreign exchange in the market for other purposes as well. Residents other than natural persons, may not purchase or sell foreign exchange through foreign exchange bureaus. As of December 31, 2020, 247 entities were licensed for foreign exchange operations (13 banks, 1 savings house, and 233 foreign exchange bureaus). The foreign exchange bureaus cannot deal directly with the NBRNM. They may purchase foreign currency cash and checks from foreign and domestic natural persons and sell foreign currency cash to domestic and foreign natural persons. Foreign exchange bureaus are not allowed to open and maintain accounts abroad. Their operations are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes, where they may sell foreign currency cash to foreign natural persons in the same way as they sell it to domestic natural persons. Automated teller machines (ATMs) with a function for foreign exchange operations are available to banks. The NBRNM participates in the foreign exchange market to maintain a stable exchange rate. The frequency of intervention depends on the conditions in the market. The NBRNM intervenes only through banks (market makers). The NBRNM intervenes through market makers on its own initiative or on that of the market makers. The NBRNM bid-ask quotes are published daily on the market makers' segment of the electronic trading platform. When the NBRNM intervenes on its own initiative, it does so at the quotes of the market makers. Brokerage	No.

Market making	Yes.	As of July 31, 2021, five banks are market makers in the interbank market. The NBRNM introduced market makers to decrease its presence in the foreign exchange market and to enable banks to satisfy foreign exchange liquidity needs among themselves when demand and supply are in broad equilibrium. The Market Makers' Agreement as amended in 2014 is in effect. Market makers have the exclusive right to trade with the NBRNM; they must also continuously quote bid-ask rates with a predefined spread. The maximum bid-ask spread on quotes with each other is MKD 0.05 per euro, and the minimum transaction between a market maker and the NBRNM in the foreign exchange market maker segment is €0.5 million. Market makers must quote a bid-ask spread of MKD 0.25 with other banks. No commission is charged on foreign exchange transactions apart from the bid-ask spread.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Outright forward and foreign exchange swap transactions are allowed in the foreign exchange market, but this segment of the market is in the early phase of development, with no regular transactions.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	The Macedonian Interbank Payment System offers cross-border payments in euros through Trans-European Automated Real-time Gross settlement Express Transfer system (TARGET2) for domestic banks payments. Furthermore, correspondent banking arrangements of domestic banks with foreign banks are used for commercial payments, and correspondent arrangements of the NBRNM with foreign CBs or commercial banks are used for payments of government agencies and budget entities.

Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	Only the NBRNM may export or import monetary gold. Exports and imports of other types of gold require the Ministry of Economy (MOE) approval. Other types of gold, such as investment gold, may be traded with certain restrictions. Residents may not invest and trade in investment gold abroad. Nonresidents may invest and trade in investment gold in the RNM in accordance with a special law.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Up to MKD 120,000 may be exported in the form of banknotes or checks by residents and nonresidents. Nonresidents may export larger amounts of domestic currency in cash only with proof of the purchase of denars from bank or withdrawal from a bank account. Domestic banks may export denars in cash sold to a foreign bank based on a written contract, without limitation.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Residents may export up to the equivalent of €2,000 without document or up to €10,000 with document from an exchange bureau or bank (exports exceeding €10,000 are prohibited for residents). Nonresidents may export up to €10,000 without document; larger amounts require a certificate from the customs authorities. The amount exported by nonresidents may not exceed the amount reported on entering North Macedonia.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Up to MKD 120,000 may be imported in the form of banknotes or checks by residents and nonresidents. Nonresidents may import larger amounts of domestic currency in cash only with proof of the purchase of denars from domestic or foreign banks or withdrawal from domestic or foreign bank accounts. Domestic banks may import denars in cash sold to a foreign bank based on a written contract, without limitation.
Foreign currency	No.	Residents and nonresidents may import up to the equivalent of €10,000 without document. Larger amounts of cash foreign currency require a "cash and checks declaration form," in accordance with the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations and the Decision on the Terms and Amount of Cash Foreign Currency and Checks That May Be Imported or Exported from North Macedonia. This form is provided on entrance or exit from North Macedonia, and a copy is given as a receipt for the imported cash foreign currency.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents, on proof of identity, may open foreign exchange accounts without restriction. Residents (legal entities) may open foreign exchange accounts on presentation of registration with the Central Registry (CR). Funds from these accounts may not be transferred abroad, but payments can be made abroad on the basis of appropriate documentation (invoice, contract, etc.) showing international payment liability. The bank identifies the resident natural person on the basis of a valid ID card or passport showing the permanent place of residence in the RNM. The bank identifies foreign natural persons temporarily residing in the RNM on the basis of a residential or working permit valid for at list six months. These provisions are prescribed in the NBRNM Decision on the manner of opening resident foreign currency accounts. Pursuant to amendments to Article 4 Paragraph 3 of the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, residents which are authorized banks are allowed to hold foreign means of payment on foreign exchange account with the NBRNM for the purposes of conducting payment operations through foreign payment systems, such as the TARGET2, and the NBRNM may approve intraday credit and overnight credit facilities in foreign currency to authorized banks for the smooth performance of payment through such foreign payment systems (Official Gazette Issue 97/15). Pursuant to Article 4 Paragraph 2 of the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, the domestic banks may keep foreign means of payment on foreign exchange accounts or foreign currency deposits with the banks in the RNM, authorized under the Banking Law.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	The following residents may freely open and maintain accounts abroad: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(1) Diplomatic, consular, and other representative offices of North Macedonia abroad, financed by the budget of the RNM.</li> <li>(2) Natural persons with permanent residence in North Macedonia, who temporarily reside abroad for three months or more during their residence abroad.</li> <li>(3) Natural persons with permanent residence in North Macedonia, residing temporarily abroad for six months or more during their residence abroad.</li> <li>(4) Natural persons with permanent residence in North Macedonia, who temporarily reside abroad during their residence abroad, and have a valid work permit.</li> <li>(5) Natural persons with permanent residence in North Macedonia, who temporarily reside abroad as employees of a diplomatic representative office abroad and members of their immediate families, during their residence abroad, and have a valid permit to work in a diplomatic representative office abroad.</li> <li>(6) Foreign natural persons who temporarily reside in North Macedonia who have valid residence or work permit valid for a period of at least six months.</li> <li>(7) Natural persons with permanent residence in North Macedonia who in the foreign country acquired the right to personal retirement, pension of a deceased spouse, welfare, child support, tuition for a child whose parent is deceased, and premium/indemnification of life insurance. The acquired right must be proved by appropriate documentation issued by a competent authority abroad.</li> <li>(8) Natural persons with permanent residence in North Macedonia, who at the same time have a valid foreign passport containing the</li> </ol> address of the residence abroad.

The following are also allowed to freely open and maintain accounts abroad without approval: (1) Residents who have sold real property abroad, for collection of claims based on the sale of the property. The acquisition of the property abroad must be confirmed by evidence of the registration in the Registry of the investments in real estate of residents abroad at the CR of the RNM. The sale of the property must be evidenced with a sales agreement. The account in a foreign bank on this basis may be opened only in the country where the property, subject to the sales agreement, is acquired and may only be used for transfer of funds from abroad up to the amount of the sales agreement. (2) Residents who rent out real property abroad, for recovery of claims based on lease of the property. The acquisition of the property abroad must be confirmed by evidence of the registration in the registry of investments in real estate at the CR of the RNM. Renting out the property under lease must be evidenced by a lease agreement. The account in a foreign bank on this basis may be opened only in the country where the property, subject to the lease agreement, is located and may only be used for transfer of funds from abroad up to the lease amount indicated in the lease agreement. (3) Residents who have acquired real property abroad, for payment of costs for the property abroad. The acquisition of the property abroad must be confirmed by evidence of the registration in the registry of investments in real estate at the CR of the RNM. Costs for the property abroad must be evidenced by a relevant document that requires their payment. The account in a foreign bank on this basis may be opened only in the country where the property is located and may only be used for transfer of funds abroad up to the amount of the costs. (4) Residents who have an obligation to pay on the basis of purchase of securities abroad and residents who have securities abroad, for the purposes of recovery of claims based on sale of securities abroad, dividends, interests or other proceeds based on securities.

The obligation to pay when purchasing securities and the collection from the sale of securities abroad must be proved by a transaction execution order, or a transaction report, or an agreement or other document that can confirm the transaction or a relevant document that can confirm the establishment of a business relation between the resident and the authorized participant on a foreign stock exchange or on an organized securities market. The claims based on dividends, interests or other proceeds based on securities must be proved by a notification/document for paid dividend, interest or other proceeds from securities, as well as a certificate from securities account issued by a relevant foreign depository. The order for the inflow should clearly state the basis of the transaction (sale of securities, return of unused funds, payment of dividend, interest or other proceeds). The account with the foreign bank or with the authorized participant on a foreign stock exchange or on an organized securities market of this sub-item may only be used for transfer of funds from and to abroad, which are related to the transactions with securities abroad.

Effective June 22, 2020, the following are allowed to freely open and maintain accounts without approval: residents who have an obligation to make a payment to a competent authority or legal entity abroad (notary fee, court fees, bank fees, or enforcement costs). The obligation is substantiated by submitting a document in original or a notarized photocopy.

Account in a foreign bank on this basis may only be used for transfer of funds from abroad up to the amount of the obligation for payment.

The resident may also transfer the balance of the account opened abroad to the RNM even after the expiration of the validity of the document on the basis of which the account was opened.

Accounts in countries that are part of the Single Euro Payments Area (SEPA) are considered to be in a single country.

Resident legal entities and natural persons may freely open and hold accounts with payment institutions or e-money institutions abroad only for commercial purposes, that is, for purchasing/selling goods and services electronically. Effective April 11, 2021, funds transfers to accounts with payment institutions or e-money institutions abroad on the basis of purchasing goods and services electronically may not exceed Euro 2,500 a person a month.

If the foreign payment institutions or e-money institutions are also authorized participants on a foreign stock exchange or an organized securities market, in terms of Article 14 of the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, residents, legal entities and natural persons may freely open and hold accounts with them and for the purposes of purchasing/selling securities abroad, in accordance with the provisions referred to in sub-item 2.12 of the Decision on the Manner and Terms under Which Residents Which are not Authorized banks may Open and Hold Accounts Abroad.

Pursuant to Article 23 Paragraph 1 of the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, banks may open and hold accounts abroad.

Yes.

NBRNM approval is required for a resident: who has concluded a contract for performing investment works abroad; who intends to open a representative office abroad as part of a company; who provides services in the international transport of goods and passengers; who provides services in the area of scholarly work; for recovery of claims based on a decision made by a competent authority abroad or extrajudicial settlement concluded abroad; for collection of claims abroad based on VAT returns on commercial transactions; for recovery of claims abroad based on goods delivered or services provided on the basis of won international bids. Effective June 22, 2020, the following were also allowed to freely open and maintain accounts without approval: residents who have an obligation to make a payment to a competent authority or legal entity abroad (notary fee, court fees, bank fees, or enforcement costs).

Surrender requirements	No.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	According to the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, “securities” denote: (1) shares issued by joint-stock companies and limited partnerships with shares; (2) shares of investment funds operating in accordance with law; (3) bonds, money market instruments, derivative financial instruments, certificate of foreign securities; and (4) other financial instruments which the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) classifies as securities.
On capital market securities	Yes.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents are allowed to purchase securities issued locally only through an authorized participant. All foreign investments registered with the CR are protected from nationalization. The transfer of profits and other proceeds is permitted freely after all tax obligations in North Macedonia are met. Nonresidents may not invest in certain sectors (such as arms production, trade in narcotics, protection of historical and cultural heritage). There are no other controls on the purchase of shares and securities locally by nonresidents.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may issue or sell locally shares or other securities of a participating nature with permission from the SEC.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents may access international financial markets, taking their own investment risk. The requirement for submission of reports to the NBRNM on all residents’ portfolio investments in securities abroad, as well as the modifications in these investments, including their sale, still stands. Direct investments are not restricted, but residents must report the investment and subsequent modifications to the CR within 60 days of the capital transaction—the legal basis for acquisition of a direct investment abroad. Insurance companies and pension funds may purchase securities abroad in accordance with their appropriate laws. For insurance companies, a maximum of 20% of the total assets covering technical provisions may be invested in securities issued by nonresidents. Pension funds may invest in securities issued outside the RNM up to 50% of total investments, subject to sub-limits.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Permission from the SEC is required for residents to issue securities abroad.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Nonresidents may purchase debt securities issued locally without any restrictions on their duration. For statistical reporting, purchases of bonds in private placements must be reported on the same forms as credit transactions. There is no minimum period prescribed for holding of bonds and debt securities.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	With the entrance into the second stage of the Stabilization and Association Agreement between the RNM and the EU, the issuance of foreign debt securities in the RNM with maturity over three years was allowed.

REPUBLIC OF NORTH MACEDONIA

Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	Emigrants are allowed to sell their assets and transfer the money by changing their status from resident to nonresident.

Transfer into the country by immigrants	No.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	No.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The NBRNM Credit Register contains a historical database for banks' and savings houses' credit exposure (consisting of claims on loans: regular, past due, nonperforming, interest, fees, investments, off-balance-sheet items, etc.) to residents and nonresidents. The database is updated by banks and savings houses monthly.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	The total exposure to one entity (including connected parties) may not exceed 25% of a bank's own funds. If the entity is a qualified shareholder (owning more than 5% of the voting shares of a bank), the total exposure to that entity, including its affiliated parties, may not exceed 10% of the bank's own funds. The bank's exposure to its subsidiary including connected persons is limited to 10% of the bank's own funds.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Commercial banks assess the credit risk, both for residents and nonresidents. They may lend in foreign currency to residents for payments abroad. If legal entities intend to use the loan proceeds domestically, the proceeds must be in denars. Credit exposure to one person, including connected parties, may not exceed 25% of a bank's own funds. The NBRNM determines the conditions for extending loans in foreign exchange.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Total credit exposure (loans, securities, etc.) to the issuer (and connected parties) may not exceed 25% of a bank's own funds. If the entity is a qualified shareholder (owns more than 5% of the voting shares of a bank), the total exposure to that entity, including its affiliated parties, may not exceed 10% of the bank's own funds. The bank's exposure to a subsidiary including connected parties is limited to 10% of its own funds. A bank's investment in shares of a nonfinancial institution may not exceed 15% of its own funds.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	The reserve requirement (RR) ratio on foreign currency liabilities is 15%; for domestic currency liabilities with a foreign exchange clause, it is 50%; and for domestic currency liabilities, it is 8%. For banks' short-term liabilities to nonresident financial companies with contractual maturity up to one year, the RR is 13%. In addition, the RR ratio of 0% is applied to following categories: (1) liabilities to natural persons in domestic currency with contractual maturity of over one year as well as to all liabilities to natural persons (in domestic currency with foreign exchange clause and in foreign currency), with contractual maturity of over two years; (2) liabilities based on repo transactions in domestic currency; (3) liabilities based on issued debt securities in domestic currency and original maturity of at least two years, in the amount of the nominal value; (4) liabilities to nonresidents—financial institutions in domestic currency, in domestic currency with foreign exchange clause and in foreign currency, with contractual maturity of over one year and liabilities to nonresidents in domestic currency, in domestic currency with foreign exchange clause and in foreign currency, with contractual maturity of over two years. RR in domestic currency is fulfilled with funds on the accounts with

		the NBRNM, on average basis during the RR period. For the RR in euro (EUR), 30% of the amount calculated by applying the RR rate on foreign currency liabilities is fulfilled in domestic currency. The rest of the amount of RR in euro is fulfilled on fix level, by placing funds on the NBRNM accounts abroad up to 95% of the RR on the first day of period, while 5% of RR in EUR is fulfilled with funds on bank foreign exchange accounts in the domestic payment system. The NBRNM charges remuneration on RR in euro at a rate equal to the interest rate on the ECB's overnight deposit facility applicable as of the last day of the reserve maintenance period. If the average daily outstanding amount of bank's funds allocated to the foreign exchange account in euro in the domestic payment system exceeds 5% of the calculated RR in euro for the entire reserve maintenance period, remuneration is charged on the excess allocated funds at a rate equal to the interest rate on the ECB's overnight deposit facility applicable as of the last day of the reserve maintenance period less 0.15 percentage points.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	The following minimum liquidity requirements apply: (1) a liquidity ratio of up to 30 days equal to 1, as a ratio of assets and liabilities maturing in the following 30 days; and (2) a liquidity ratio of up to 180 days equal to 1, as a ratio of assets and liabilities maturing in the following 180 days.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	Banks are required to obtain approval from the NBRNM and register these investments with the CR within 60 days. Authorized banks are allowed to invest in securities abroad on their own behalf and for their account freely if the securities are part of the bank's trading portfolio, are measured on a mark-to-market basis, and the bank allocates capital for market risk according to the methodology for capital adequacy.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Initial or any subsequent investment in banks by nonresidents which is not portfolio investment requires registration with the CR within 60 days. Approval from the NBRNM is required when investments reach 5%, 10%, 20%, 33%, 50%, and 75% of total shares of the bank or shares with voting rights. (The same requirement applies to residents.)
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The limit on the aggregate open foreign exchange position is 30% of banks' own funds. Limits on positions in each currency must be determined internally by each bank.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.	Insurance companies, pension funds, and investment funds may purchase securities abroad in accordance with the laws governing their operations.

Insurance companies	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The assets covering technical provisions are subject to limits; a maximum of 20% of the total assets covering technical provisions may be invested in securities issued by nonresidents.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	The assets covering technical provisions are subject to limits; a maximum of 20% of the total assets covering technical provisions may be invested in securities issued by nonresidents.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	The following limits apply to investment of the assets covering technical provisions: (1) cash and assets of business accounts of insurance companies (bank accounts), up to 3%; (2) deposits in banks licensed by the NBRNM, up to 60%; (3) securities issued by the RNM and NBRNM and bonds and other debt securities guaranteed by the RNM, up to 80%; (4) bonds and other debt securities issued or guaranteed by a local government of the RNM, up to 10%; (5) bonds and other debt securities traded on a regulated securities market in the RNM, up to 35%—investments in the same issuer may not exceed 5%; (6) bonds and other debt securities not traded on a regulated securities market whose issuer is a legal entity established in the RNM, up to 5%—investments in the same issuer may not exceed 1%; (7) shares traded on a regulated securities market in the RNM, up to 25%—investments in the same issuer may not exceed 5%; (8) shares not traded on a regulated securities market whose issuer is a legal entity established in the RNM, up to 5%—investments in the same issuer may not exceed 1%; and (9) shares and shares of investment funds registered in the RNM, up to 20%. The following limits apply to the investment of capital: (1) Up to 60% may be invested in real estate, equity capital of other insurance companies, and financial institutions and other legal entities. (2) Up to 15% may be used for advance payments and loans approved by the insurance company under the general terms and conditions of insurance, based on presentation of the company's policies for which premiums are paid on time. Individual investments of the insurance company in such loans may not exceed 1% of the value of its capital.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	Assets covering technical provisions must be diversified to avoid overreliance on any one category of assets, market, or investment. The insurance company must adjust its investments in assets covering the technical provisions that are exposed to potential loss resulting from a change in interest rates, exchange rate fluctuations, credit risk, and other market risks to the liabilities under insurance contracts affected by those changes.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Pension funds' investments are subject to the following limits: (1) no limit for single bonds issued and authorized by EU and OECD governments; (2) 5% of total investment in instruments issued by a single company authorized in an EU or OECD country; (3) 15% of total investment in participation units or shares of investment funds issued by a single investment company authorized in an EU or OECD country; and (4) 5% of total investment in participation units or shares of a single investment fund managed by a company authorized in an EU or OECD country.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Mandatory pension funds may invest in (1) securities issued outside the RNM, up to 50% of total investments; (2) bonds, bills, and other securities issued or authorized by foreign governments or CBs of an EU or OECD country, up to 50% of total investments; (3) bonds, bills, and other fixed-income securities of private foreign companies or banks of an EU or OECD country, up to 30% of total investments; and (4) shares and securities traded on the primary stock exchange of an EU or OECD country and in participation units, shares, and other securities of mutual and investment funds based and authorized in an EU or OECD country that invest primarily in quoted equities in these countries, up to 30% of total investments. Voluntary pension funds may invest in (1) securities issued outside the RNM, up to 50% of total investments. Within this limit they may invest in (a) debt securities of municipalities, nongovernment foreign companies, or banks of EU and OECD members with an investment-grade-level rating from a reputable international rating agency; (b) shares issued by foreign companies or banks with an investment-grade-level rating by a reputable international rating agency and traded on the main stock exchanges of EU and OECD members; and (c) participation units, shares, and other securities issued by authorized open-end and closed-end investment funds established in EU and OECD members, up to 30% of total investments; and (2) bonds and other securities issued by foreign governments or CBs of EU and OECD members and debt securities issued by the ECB, EIB, and World Bank, up to 50% of total investments.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Pension funds' investments may not exceed (1) 80% of total investments in bonds, bills, and other securities issued or guaranteed by the RNM or the NBRNM; (2) 30%, in the case of mandatory pension funds and 60%, in the case of voluntary pension funds, of total investments in interest-bearing bank deposits in banks licensed by the NBRNM; (3) 60% of total investments in CDs, bonds, and mortgage-backed securities issued or guaranteed by banks licensed by the NBRNM; (4) 40% of total investments in bonds and other securities issued by joint-stock companies (other than banks) in the RNM approved by the SEC and traded on organized and supervised RNM securities markets and in commercial notes issued by first-class joint-stock companies (other than banks) in the RNM; (5) 10% of total investment in bonds issued by municipalities in the RNM for mandatory pension funds and for voluntary pension funds; (6) 30% of total investments in shares issued with SEC approval by joint-stock companies in the RNM, other than closed-end investment funds, and traded on organized and supervised RNM securities markets; (7) 5% of total investments in participation units and shares of open-end and closed-end investment funds in the RNM authorized by the SEC under the Law on Investment Funds; and (8) for mandatory pension funds, 1.5% of total investment in participation units and shares of private investment funds in the RNM authorized by the SEC that invest in shares and participation units of micro, small, and medium RNM companies.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	n.a.	These are not applicable to defined contribution systems.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	No.	The Law on Investment Funds allows investment funds to purchase securities abroad. Limits are not defined according to investment in securities issued by nonresidents or residents or investment portfolios held abroad or domestically, but according to the types of financial instruments (transferable securities, money market instruments, deposits, shares or stocks of investment funds, term and optional contracts, and other financial derivative instruments, etc.) and in terms of a single issuer. Therefore, there are no specific limits on investment in securities issued by nonresidents or residents.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	There are no limits on purchases of securities issued by nonresidents.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	There are no limits on the portion of the investment portfolio held abroad.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio	No.	There are no limits on the portion of investment portfolio held held locally locally.

Floating

Free floating

Yes. The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are classified as free floating; the krone floats freely and independently against other currencies. The exchange rate is determined on the basis of supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. The Norges Bank (NB) does not normally intervene to influence the exchange rate of the krone; however, it may intervene in the foreign exchange market on short notice if the krone deviates substantially from the level the NB considers reasonable in relation to fundamentals and if exchange rate developments weaken the prospect of achieving the inflation target. The NB may also intervene in response to pronounced short-term fluctuations in the krone when liquidity in the foreign exchange market falls to a very low level. As a consequence of the effects from COVID-19 on financial markets, the liquidity in the foreign exchange markets for Norwegian krone was considered insufficient as it fell to a very low level in a short space of time. NB responded by publishing a statement which said that it was continuously considering the need to intervene in the market. Following the statement, NB conducted interventions by buying a total of 3.5 billion Norwegian kroner in the spot market, on two separate occasions, during a one-week period in March 2020. Foreign exchange purchases or sales for the Government Pension Fund Global are publicly preannounced on the CB website. In terms of interventions, the aggregated transacted volumes are published in the NB liquidity statistics on a weekly basis. In extraordinary circumstances, the NB may provide foreign exchange liquidity via collateralized operations. This was done between September 2008 and July 2009.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The NB's exchange rates are middle rates (that is, the midpoint between buying and selling rates in the interbank market at a given time). Rates are usually determined at 2:15 p.m. local time. On July 1, 2016, the NB changed the publication time of the daily exchange rate to around 4:00 p.m. local time. The change was made as a result of the change in publication time by the ECB of the euro foreign exchange reference rates. The exchange rates are intended to serve only as an indication and are not binding on the NB or other banks, but they are often used as a reference and for historical comparisons.

NORWAY

Monetary aggregate target
Inflation-targeting framework	Yes.
Target setting body	Yes.
Government	Yes.	The objective of monetary policy has been laid down by the government and submitted to the Storting (Parliament). The responsibility for the conduct of monetary policy is delegated to the NB pursuant to the NB Act and appurtenant regulation. NB's most important monetary policy instrument is the key policy rate, which is the interest rate on banks' deposits up to a quota in the NB. NB's Monetary Policy and Financial Stability Committee is responsible for NB's role as the executive and advisory monetary policy authority and for the use of policy instruments to attain the monetary policy objectives. The Committee is appointed by the King in Council and consists of the Governor, the two Deputy Governors, and two external members. The Committee functions as a unified group and the members are collectively responsible for the Bank's decisions. NB's Monetary policy assessment includes voting records of monetary policy meetings.
Central Bank
Monetary Policy Committee
Central Bank Board
Other
Government and Central Bank
Inflation target	Yes.
Target number	Yes.
Point target	Yes.	The point target is set as the annual consumer price inflation of close to 2% over time. It was revised to 2% through Royal Decree, on March 2, 2018, pursuant to Section 2, third paragraph, of Act No. 28 of May 24, 1985, on NB and the Monetary System, etc. (NB Act).
Target with tolerance band
Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.	Monetary policy shall maintain monetary stability by keeping inflation low and stable. The operational target of monetary policy shall be annual consumer price inflation of close to 2% over time. Inflation targeting shall be forward-looking and flexible so that it can contribute to high and stable output and employment and to counteracting the buildup of financial imbalances.
CPI	Yes.	The operational target of monetary policy is annual consumer price inflation of close to 2% over time. The NB uses the CPI defined and published by Statistics Norway.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	The NB sets the interest rate with a view the aim of stabilizing inflation around the target in the medium term. The horizon will depend on disturbances to which the economy is exposed and the effects on the outlook for inflation and the real economy. In its conduct of monetary policy, NB takes into account indicators of underlying consumer price inflation.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.

NORWAY

Policy rate	Yes.	NB's most important monetary policy instrument is the key policy rate, which is the interest rate on banks' deposits up to a quota in NB. This interest rate is also called the sight deposit rate.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The key policy rate is the midpoint in an interest rate corridor with a width of 200 basis points. The lower limit is equal to the reserve rate. Each bank with an account at the NB is assigned an individual quota for reserves (in nominal Norwegian krone (NOK) terms). Reserves within the quota are remunerated at the key policy rate. Reserves in excess of the quota are remunerated at the reserve rate, which is equal to the sight deposit rate minus 100 basis points. The upper limit in the interest rate corridor is equal to the D-loan rate, which is the interest rate on NB's standing lending facility. The D-loan rate is equal to the sight deposit rate plus 100 basis points.

The National Security Act entered into force on January 1, 2019, and states that anyone who wants to acquire a qualified ownership in a business that is subject to the Act, is obliged to notify the relevant ministry. When the business is not covered by any ministry's area of responsibility, the notification must be addressed to the Norwegian National Security Authority. A qualified ownership means that the acquisition directly or indirectly will result in the acquirer achieving: (1) at least one-third of the share capital, shares, or votes in the business; (2) the right to become the owner of at least one-third of the share capital or shares; or (3) significant influence over the management of the company in other ways. Within 60 working days, as a general rule, the relevant ministry or the National Security Authority must inform the notifier of whether the acquisition has been approved, or whether the case must be dealt with by the King in Council. If the King in Council considers that an acquisition under Section 10-1 may entail a not insignificant threat to national security interests, the King in Council may deny the execution of the acquisition, or determine criteria for the execution.

The IMF staff report for the Request for an Extended Arrangement under the Extended Fund Facility with Pakistan states that, as of June 28, 2019, import restrictions and an MCP, which are subject to approval under Article VIII of the IMF's Articles of Agreement, were introduced to support the balance of payments at a time of heightened volatility. Specifically, Pakistan maintains (1) a requirement to fully pre-fund LCs, imposed in early 2017; and (2) an exchange restriction on advance payment for imports against LCs, imposed in July 2018. Floating

Yes.

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. Exchange rate is determined by market forces, that is, demand and supply of FE. The State Bank of Pakistan (SBP) does not explicitly or implicitly commit to an exchange rate target or path. The SBP intervenes in the market to curb speculative pressures for ensuring smooth functioning of the markets. Banks are free to quote and trade at any exchange rate. Since June 2019, Pakistan has adopted a market based flexible exchange rate system where interventions are limited to safeguarding financial stability and preventing disorderly market conditions (DMC). Under the new market-determined flexible exchange rate mechanism, the PKR moved in tandem with changes in the country's trade balance and foreign inflows. After disruption in global markets because of the COVID-19 pandemic in early 2020, the PKR depreciated in the face of capital outflows. Afterwards, in line with the reduction in the trade deficit because of the economic slowdown and favorable terms of trade, the PKR started to appreciate. This was further supported by gradual resumption in private flows. However, as the economy rebound strongly from the pandemic, the trade deficit has increased in recent months, and the PKR reflected these developments. In addition, common seasonal factors such as budget utilization and foreign repatriation at the end of each financial and calendar years also have a temporary impact on the PKR exchange rate. The de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to floating from other managed, effective March 9, 2020. The SBP does not publish data related to market intervention.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	The SBP adopted an interest rate corridor framework in August 2009. Over time, the framework has undergone many changes and in May 2015, the SBP introduced a policy target rate for effective signaling. Since June 2020, the policy target rate has been set at 7.00%, SBP's reverse repo rate (that is, ceiling rate) is currently at 8.00%, and SBP's repo rate (that is, floor rate) is at 6.00%. The SBP's monetary policy framework is characterized by an emphasis on anchoring inflation expectations to the medium-term inflation target range announced by the government using short-term interest rates. It can be termed as a regime in transition towards flexible inflation targeting (FIT). An independent MPC examines various indicators from the real, external, financial, and fiscal sectors, along with their model-based forecasts and stakeholder surveys, to assess the inflation outlook as well as the state of the output gap and financial stability. On the basis of this information, the MPC decides on the policy rate that would be appropriate to manage inflation expectations, while promoting growth and safeguarding financial stability. The government has shifted from announcing an annual inflation target to a medium-term target range since July 1, 2019, which is currently 5–7%.

Furthermore, following best global practices, the MPC has been providing forward guidance through its monetary policy statements since the beginning of 2021. This has helped arrest uncertainty and provide confidence to businesses decision making, particularly during the challenging times associated with COVID-19.

Exchange tax No.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Banks may determine their own rates of exchange, both for ready and forward transactions for the public, subject to the condition that the margin between the buying and selling rates should not exceed 50 paisa per US dollar or its equivalent in other currencies. There are no SBP restrictions on bid-ask spreads of interbank transactions.

Spot exchange market Yes. For ECs and Exchange Companies of “B” category (ECBs), the spread between the buying and selling rates of US dollar, pound sterling, euro, Saudi Arabian riyal, and U.A.E. dirham may not exceed 1% of their buying rate. For all other foreign currencies, the ECs/ECBs need to ensure to maintain a competitive spread.

The SBP issues licenses to banks to operate as ADs to deal in FE. Notably, not all of the banks have status of ADs. As of December 31, 2020, the number of ADs was 29. The SBP also issues licenses to ECs to deal in foreign currency notes, coins, postal notes, money orders, bank drafts, traveler’s checks, and remittance transfers and licenses to ECBs under the prescribed criteria. ECBs may purchase and sell foreign currency notes and coins only. ECs/ECBs deal with individuals only. Hotels with a three-star rating or higher may also buy foreign currency from their customers. As of December 31, 2020, 27 full-fledged ECs, 25 ECBs, and 29 (restricted authorized) hotels were operational. ECs may make outward remittances in accordance with the regulations. Importers, exporters, and businesses may shop around for the best rates without recourse to the SBP. Individuals may purchase FE from or sell it to ECs/ECBs at freely negotiated rates in accordance with the regulations. Banks are limited to a spread of 50 paisa in all foreign currency quotes to customers. For ECs/ECBs, the spread between the buying and selling rates of US dollar, pound sterling, euro, Saudi Arabian riyal, and U.A.E. dirham may not exceed 1% of their buying rate. For all other foreign currencies, the ECs/ECBs need to ensure to maintain a competitive spread (FE Circular No. 06 of May 12, 2015). ECs/ECBs may not make trade-related remittances on behalf of their customers. To focus ECs on their primary function of promoting home remittances, ECs may make outward remittances on behalf of bona fide customers for permissible transactions for up to 75% of the home remittances they handled in the preceding month. ECs must report remittances in the prescribed format by the fifth day of every month (FE Circular No. 04 of 2008). Some government FE transactions (for example, debt-service payments) are conducted directly by the SBP, at interbank market rates.

Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	The SBP, in consultation with SECP, allowed local insurance companies to issue US-dollar-denominated insurance policies on a notional basis to meet the condition of foreign lenders for foreign currency loans. Issuers must obtain a recommendation letter from the SECP for each issuance proposal as prescribed in the SECP Circular of December 11, 2017. However, premium and claims are required to be paid in PKR only.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents' issuance of securities in the local market requires SECP approval. Resident insurance companies may purchase securities issued by nonresidents, if these securities have been approved by the SECP, on their own behalf with no restrictions. However, these investments may or may not be admissible for determining the solvency of an insurance company, depending on whether the company in question has exceeded the limits under Section 32 of Insurance Ordinance 2000 read with Rule No. 12 of the Insurance Rules 2017. Investment for the purpose as per Section 32(6) of the Insurance Ordinance 2000 includes all forms of shares, debentures, bonds, deposits, and other securities and derivatives instruments, and includes immovable property whether or not occupied by the insurer.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	As per Insurance Ordinance 2000, resident insurance companies may invest abroad on their own behalf with no restrictions. However, these investments may or may not be admissible for determining the solvency of an insurance company, depending on whether the company in question has exceeded the limits under Section 32 of Insurance Ordinance 2000 read with Rule No. 12 of the Insurance Rules 2017. Prior approval of SBP is required.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Under Section 35 read with Rule No. 16 of the Insurance Rules 2017, 30% of the shareholder or statutory fund of a life insurer other than the portion with investment-linked policies alone must be invested in government securities. An additional 10% must be invested in a combination of government securities and other approved securities. Approved securities are defined in Section 2(iii) of the Insurance Ordinance as government securities and other securities based on the revenues of the federal government or of a provincial government, guaranteed fully as regards principal and profit or return (however

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	The SBP approves investment abroad and imposes limits on investment amounts. For purposes of diversifying their asset classes or portfolios, locally established mutual funds are allowed to invest abroad up to 30% of aggregate net assets of a fund (including foreign currency funds) in permissible categories, subject to a cap of US$15 million or its equivalent at any given time. Approval of the SBP and the SECP is required.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	CISs are not allowed to invest more than 10% of their total net assets in a single entity; 25% in securities of a single sector, as classified by the stock exchange; and 35% in a single group, with a 10% limit for listed group companies of the AMC managing the fund. However, separate exposure limits have been defined for certain types of CISs. Regulation 55 of NBFC Regulations 2008 stipulates specific exposure limits for different types of funds.  In terms of Circular No. 7 of 2009; it is mandatory for an Equity Scheme to maintain an exposure of 70% of its net assets in listed equity securities during the year based on quarterly average investment calculated on daily basis. Further, for a Balance Scheme, it is mandatory to keep at least 30% of net assets invested in listed equity securities, for an Index Tracker Scheme, it is necessary to remain fully invested in accordance with the stated index, or at least 85% of its net assets in securities covered in the index or its subset during the year based on monthly average investment calculated on daily basis, for Income Scheme, at least 25% of the net assets must be invested in cash and near cash instruments, and for Aggressive Income Scheme, at least 10% must be invested in cash/or near cash instruments. Further, subsequent circulars on Categorization of CISs prescribes further investment limits and controls for different categories of CIS including Equity Scheme, Income Scheme, Money Market Scheme, and others.

Outward direct investment	No.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	Under the Palau National Code, all foreign investment must be approved by the Foreign Investment Board. Foreign nationals, except those who invest jointly with a Palau national, may not invest in certain categories. The 2011 Foreign Investment Regulations detail the restricted and semi-restricted sectors. The following businesses are reserved solely for Palauan citizens: (1) wholesale or retail sale of goods; (2) all land transportation including bus services, taxi services, and car rentals; (3) tour guides, fishing guides, diving guides, and any other form of water transportation services; (4) travel and tour agencies; and (5) commercial fishing for other than highly migratory species. While these businesses are officially closed to foreign investment, there is a prevalent use of partnership companies in several categories, in which the foreign investor owns less than 50%. The retail sector, as well as travel- and tour-related businesses, currently has numerous foreign investors via such partnership companies. In semi-restricted sectors (pursuant to regulations from 2010), businesses can include foreign ownership as long as a Palauan citizen also has an ownership interest. There are no minimum or maximum requirements for percentage ownership for the foreign investor as long as the monetary and/or Palauan-employment minimums for all foreign investments are met. These semi-restricted businesses are: (1) handicraft and gift shops; (2) bakeries; (3) bar services; (4) operations/selling products being produced by wholly Palauan-owned manufacturing enterprise; (5) equipment rentals for both land and water within the Republic, including equipment for purpose of tourism; and (6) any such other businesses, as the Foreign Investment Board may determine. Sectors not listed as either closed or semi-restricted are presumed to be open for foreign investment. The Foreign Investment Board may, however, amend the semi-

Exports of unworked gold produced in Panama are subject to an export duty of 1% ad valorem, and exports of gold coins (other than US coins, which are exempt) are subject to a duty of 0.5%.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.	The Federal Reserve Bank (FRB) verifies payment amounts, deposits, status of banknotes, and inventory and makes arrangements with shippers handling international cash with regard to the date of delivery to the shipper and the date on which the currency is deposited with the FRB. A SWIFT message is sent by the FRB International Department confirming the date, amount, and denominations to deliver (in US dollars only), and the shipper provides proof of delivery to the FRB once the shipment is delivered. The FRB then credits the account with the amount of the deposit.
Domestic currency	Yes.	The following controls apply: (1) FRB approval by three administrative officers and the executive security manager is required. (2) The International Department carries out monthly reconciliation and whenever there is a transaction. (3) No more than B 60 million may be exported, and the number and weight of bags are restricted. The following prohibitions apply: (1) Transactions will not be carried out unless there is a SWIFT message with the FRB. (2) Deposits that do not comply with the FRB's operational circulars are returned to the bank. (3) Transshipment by shipping companies is not permitted. (4) Contracts must be on door-to-door terms (from the FRB to the National Reserve, and vice versa). (5) Deposits from the FRB must be received during normal business hours. ------------------------------------	------

No import licenses are required in Panama. A contingent mechanism was negotiated under a WTO agreement to facilitate the exchange of phytosanitary permits for rice products, pork, poultry, and tomato paste and puree, allowing imports of these products at preferential tariff rates.

Tariff rates are calculated on an ad valorem basis and assessed on the c.i.f. value of imports. Trade reform has resulted in simplified tariff bands of 0%, 3%, 5%, 10%, and 15%. Exceptions to the maximum tariff of 15% are automobiles (17%) and sugar (50% on imports exceeding a historical average price range). Also excluded are other products (mainly foodstuffs) whose tariffs are the maximum (and declining) levels negotiated with the WTO, including dairy products (50%–155%); rice (90%); onions (90%); beef (40%); pork (70%–90%); boneless and whole hams (83%); some poultry (300%); cabbages, carrots, celery, and lettuce (32.5%); cooking oils (20%–30%); margarine (15%); salt (87%); ketchup (70%); and tomato paste and puree (87%). Imports into the Colón Free Zone and the newly established EPZs are exempt from duty. There is a free trade agreement in effect between Panama and the United States. It aims to

PANAMA

(1) reduce tariffs on 88% of US imports to 0%, (2) phase out the remaining tariffs over the course of 10 years, (3) increase agricultural import quotas, (4) simplify and harmonize sanitary requirements, and (5) clarify market access for public procurement (including by Panama Canal authorities).

Exports of certain drugs, firearms, and ammunition are prohibited or restricted. In addition, exports of certain plants and animals in danger of extinction in accordance with CITES are prohibited. Wood requires an export permit issued by the National Environment Authority (ANAM), in accordance with Executive Decree No. 57 of June 5, 2002, governing wood exports; non-ferrous scrap requires a special license granted by the Directorate-General of Customs (DGA) (Executive Decree No. 32 of February 8, 1991). Any product (including raw materials and machinery) may be imported into the Colón Free Zone and stored, modified, processed, assembled, repackaged, and reexported without being subject to customs procedures.

With quotas No.

Export taxes Yes.

Collected through the exchange system No.

Other export taxes Yes. Exports of some marine species, flammable products, and weapons are subject to a permit or compliance with special formalities. For reasons of sustainability and to boost national value added, exports of wood in slabs and blocks or simply planed are prohibited. Panama does not apply any export taxes except on products manufactured from native woods. Domestic taxes are not imposed on exports.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consolation and Request for Staff Monitored Program with Papua New Guinea states that, as of February 21, 2020, Papua New Guinea maintained the following exchange restrictions subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) of the IMF's Articles of Agreement arising from: (1) the requirement to obtain a tax clearance certificate (TCC) evidencing the payment of all taxes prior to making payments or transfers for certain current international transactions and (2) the rationing of foreign exchange, which results in undue delays and arrears in current international payments. Papua New Guinea also maintains the following MCPs subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 3: (1) a MCP arising from the spread of more than 2% between the rates set by Bank of Papua New Guinea (BPNG) for its foreign exchange allocations to authorized foreign exchange dealers (AFEDs), and the rates used by AFEDs in transactions with their clients; and (2) an MCP arising from the potential spread deviation of more than 2% between the rates set by BPNG for its foreign exchange transactions with the government and embassies, and the rates used by AFEDs in transactions with their clients. (Country Report No. 20/95)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	No.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.

Exchange rate structure
Unitary

Multiple	Yes.	There is a multiple exchange rate structure as a result of MCPs arising (1) from the spread of more than 2% between the rates set by the BPNG for its foreign exchange allocations to AFEDs and the rates used by AFEDs in transactions with their clients and (2) from the potential spread deviation of more than 2% between the rates set by the BPNG for its foreign exchange transactions with the Stabilized arrangement                      Yes.      The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The exchange rate of the kina is determined in the interbank market, in which ADs participate. The BPNG intervenes in the foreign exchange market to smooth extreme fluctuations. On June 4, 2014, the BPNG introduced an exchange rate trading margin with a kina buying rate within 75 basis points (bps) above the interbank midrate and a kina selling rate within 75 bps below the midrate. Since November 2020, the exchange rate has stabilized within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to stabilized from crawl-like, effective November 3, 2020. The BPNG publishes the intervention data in its annual report and semi-annual monetary policy statement.

Official exchange rate                      Yes.      The official exchange rate is the interbank market midrate which is determined by the interaction between demand for foreign currency (offer) and supply of foreign currency (bid) by the ADs, including the BPNG. The live price at the close of trading becomes the official rate. The BPNG publishes official exchange rates based on the closing interbank U.S. dollar–kina rate for use by government departments and institutions as well as the ADs. There is small margin on trades done for U.S. dollar–kina rate for use by government departments and institutions as well as the ADs. The official exchange rates for other currencies are determined by crossing other currencies with kina/US$ official rate, and applying the trading margin as specified in the operational guidelines agreed to with the commercial banks.

Monetary aggregate target                      Yes.      Monetary policy is conducted within the reserve money framework. The BPNG announces the policy rate—the kina facility rate—monthly and use open market operations to implement monetary policy. It also uses direct instruments from time to time, including cash reserve requirement, to assist in the conduct of monetary policy (liquidity management). Low inflation is a key operational objective, although there is no immediate target or numerical target.

Under the Central Banking Act 2000, the objective of price stability is for the Bank to strive for low-interest rates, low inflation, and stable exchange rate. The formulation of monetary policy is broadly guided by analysis of the main factors that affect price stability and an understanding of their economic consequences. The BPNG sets annual growth projections, in line with its monetary policy stance, on monetary aggregates in its semiannual monetary policy statements, released in March 31 and September 30. The BPNG does not pursue inflation targeting.

Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The BPNG is the exchange control authority. ADs deal in foreign exchange in house with exporters and importers and buy and sell excess foreign exchange in the interbank market. The BPNG may buy or sell foreign exchange in the interbank market, if necessary, to smooth out exchange rate volatility.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	ADs, which consist of four commercial banks and two nonbank financial institutions, provide foreign exchange service to customers, including spot transactions. ADs publish buying and selling rates for customers, and may determine their own commissions with their clients. They may trade in kina against U.S. dollars, but within a trading margin of 75 bps above or below the official reference rate determined in the interbank market. To enhance competition in the foreign exchange market, nine currency exchange bureaus are licensed by the BPNG to deal in physical notes and coins and cash traveler's checks. The BPNG clearance must be obtained before additional products are offered to customers. Currency exchange bureaus may not maintain foreign currency accounts (FCAs) for their customers. Currency exchange bureaus are allowed to freely set their purchase and sale exchange rates. There are no limits set by BPNG. The bureaus set their own rates and commissions because they need to cover for associated costs such as transportation, insurance, security, and storage.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	Yes.	The BPNG intervenes in the foreign exchange market to sell or buy foreign exchange to smooth the kina exchange rate fluctuations. To buy foreign exchange from ADs, BPNG offers a matching competitive price to the one quoted for sale in the interbank market. To sell foreign exchange, BPNG offers foreign exchange to ADs at an offer price based on the price quoted in the interbank market.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Four commercial banks and two nonbank financial institutions participate in the interbank market. There are no limits on the bid and offer spreads. The BPNG may buy or sell foreign exchange in the interbank market, if necessary, to smooth out exchange rate volatility. The BPNG executes deals at the rates quoted by the ADs. If there is only a bid and no offer or vice versa, the BPNG as a market participant, may place a counterbid or offer.

PAPUA NEW-GUINEA

Over the counter	Yes.	Customers may engage in OTC transactions with licensed ADs. Customers include individuals, businesses, and other organizations.
Brokerage	Yes.	The BPNG acts as a broker for ADs under the current arrangement. There are no brokerage fees charged.
Market making	Yes.	ADs continuously make a market for their major customers.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Exporters and importers may engage in forward cover transactions with the four commercial banks at market-determined rates. Each commercial bank is subject to a prudential limit on its uncovered forward position. Currently, commercial banks may not bring a forward cover order to the interbank market. They may deal with forward orders in house with their own resources (foreign currency) but may not use BPNG intervention (which is for spot orders only) to fund forward orders. The BPNG may participate in the forward market with commercial banks but not directly with their clients. The BPNG issued a directive for a temporary suspension on all forward transactions, effective July 16, 2020.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Contractual commitments to persons residing outside Papua New Guinea and expressed in foreign currency may be paid in the same foreign currency. Export proceeds may be received in any foreign currency.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	All outward remittances (telegraphic transfers and drafts) must be in foreign currency and done through an AFED.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	All outward remittances (telegraphic transfers and drafts) must be in foreign currency and done through an AFED.
For capital transactions	Yes.	All outward remittances (telegraphic transfers and drafts) must be in foreign currency and done through an AFED.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	All outward remittances (telegraphic transfers and drafts) must be in foreign currency and done through an AFED.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	All outward remittances (telegraphic transfers and drafts) for derivatives and other instruments must be in foreign currency and done through an AFED.
Credit operations	Yes.	All outward remittances (telegraphic transfers and drafts) must be in foreign currency and done through an AFED.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	An agreement by a resident that creates an obligation in favor of another resident in a foreign currency (domestic transaction) requires a prior BPNG approval. All domestic transactions involving two resident parties must be settled in kina; if one of the two parties has foreign currency, it must be converted to kina for the settlement.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	Yes.	There is a bilateral payments agreement with Fiji, which is operational.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	Papua New Guinea participates in the Economic Partnership Agreement (EPA) with the EU and African Caribbean and the Pacific (ACP) Countries and is a signatory to South Pacific Regional Trade and Economic Cooperation Agreement (SPARTECA), PICTA, Melanesian Spearhead Group Trade Agreement (MSGTA); Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC); and the WTO. The bilateral, regional, sub-regional, and multilateral trade

Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The overall policy is determined by the government with advice from the BPNG. The BPNG has delegated considerable power to ADs to deal with foreign exchange transactions. All current and capital account transactions, government transactions, and current and capital account contracts (agreements) are exempt from obtaining a prior authorization of the BPNG. However, the capital and current account transactions and contracts are subject to the BPNG's reporting requirement and TCC requirement of the Internal Revenue Commission (IRC).
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.	Exportation or importation of gold is regulated.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.	Residents may trade gold freely within Papua New Guinea.
On external trade	Yes.	The exportation or importation of gold requires a license from the BPNG.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Removal or export of more than K20,000 in kina banknotes and coins by residents and nonresidents requires a prior BPNG approval. It is also required for exports for numismatic purposes. For the purpose of AML/CFT, entities or individuals are obliged to report currency, monetary instruments and precious metals, and precious stones, the individual value or combined value of which is K20,000.00 or more in value to the Financial Analysis and Supervision Unit (FASU).
Foreign currency	Yes.	Removal or export of foreign currency banknotes and coins in excess of K20,000.00 by Residents and nonresidents requires a prior approval of the BPNG. For the purpose of AML/CFT, entities or individuals are obliged to report currency, monetary instruments and precious metals, and precious stones, the individual value or combined value of which is K20,000.00 or more in value to the FASU.
On imports	No.
Domestic currency	No.	For the purpose of AML/CFT, entities or individuals are obliged to report currency, monetary instruments and precious metals, and precious stones, the individual value or combined value of which is K20,000.00 or more in value to the FASU.
Foreign currency	No.	For the purpose of AML/CFT, entities or individuals are obliged to report currency, monetary instruments and precious metals, and precious stones, the individual value or combined value of which is K20,000.00 or more in value to the FASU.

Resident Accounts

PAPUA NEW-GUINEA

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	The ADs were directed to cease opening any new FCAs for PNG residents since March 5, 2015. Thereafter, only a prior approval of BPNG is required to open FCAs for PNG residents.
Held abroad	Yes.	There are two categories of FCAs: First is those accounts covered under the project development agreements which usually involve movement of large and lumpy foreign exchange, which may cause significant kina exchange rate volatility if these flows are allowed to enter the domestic foreign exchange market. Second category is those FCAs which are not covered by project development agreements, but are required to receive foreign currency income and to settle contractual obligation to nonresidents abroad. With a prior BPNG approval, residents may open FCAs of both categories outside Papua New Guinea. Account holders must submit a Monthly FCA Report to the BPNG.
Approval required	Yes.	These accounts may be held abroad, but a prior BPNG approval is required. Accounts of ADs that are not nostro or vostro accounts require a prior approval of the BPNG.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.	Since March 5, 2015, residents cannot maintain domestic currency accounts held abroad.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Since March 5, 2015, BPNG approval is required to convert kina accounts held with ADs to FCAs. Funds in domestic accounts denominated in kina can be converted to foreign currency and repatriated abroad without approval, except for removal of kina in excess of K20,000.00 in physical notes and coins.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	ADs may open nonresident FCAs in accordance with BPNG guidelines. The dealers must report nonresident FCA balances to the BPNG. ADs can transfer funds abroad from balances of domestic accounts.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Nonresident expatriates domiciled or living in PNG under foreign embassy and consulate arrangements or multilateral arrangements, including such institutions, may operate kina accounts. ADs may hold such accounts in PNG under correspondent banking arrangements for nonresidents. All other nonresidents cannot open and operate kina accounts. All kina deposited into Vostro accounts of foreign banks have to be from conversion of foreign currency into kina through an AFED.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Conversion to foreign currency is permitted.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.	All new trade finance loans provided by ADs must be approved by the BPNG.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.	There are no restrictions on import payments. For imports that have not arrived in PNG, a Customs Entry Declaration Form 15 (Form 15) must be submitted to an AD, within 60 days from the date of making the import payment in advance. For imports that have arrived in PNG, it is a requirement that Form 15 is submitted at the time of making the payment.

Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	Yes.	A prior approval of the BPNG is required for ADs to issue LCs in favor of nonresidents as guarantees. The BPNG's approval is not required when such credits are from nonresidents in favor of residents.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	ADs may process and remit import payments abroad. Payments must be supported with summary commercial invoices, customs forms, and duly completed balance of payments (BOP) reporting forms and TCC issued by the IRC if required. Payments exceeding K10,000.00 must be reported to BPNG on BOP reporting form for imports, by an AD. For import payments between K5,000.00 and K10,000.00, must be reported to BPNG on an aggregate BOP reporting form for imports, by an AD. For import payments below K5,000.00, ADs may process import payments without submitting their reports to the BPNG. An AD is obliged to provide details of these transactions on request. The BPNG issued some of the foreign exchange reports in 2017 to get more visibility into the other trades that are done by ADs that fall outside the threshold of K3.0 million. This is to facilitate the capture of all transactions and currency of trade, reported to the CB. The BPNG monitors all SWIFT transactions through a SWIFT enhancement, namely the "Swift Scope."
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	No.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	The purpose of these measures is to restrict or prohibit the importation of certain goods to protect health, security, bio-security, and morals.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	There are four major ad valorem tariff rates (0%, 15%, 25%, and 40%) and some additional specific tariff rates, including 70% on sugar and 20% on mackerel. To assist local industries, the following measures apply: (1) The tariff on canned dark tuna is 20%. (2) The tariff on canned baked beans is 25%. In line with the theme of connecting PNG, the government introduced an overall reduction on the import excise rate by 56% on imported vehicles. The duty rate for brand new vehicles (60%) and used vehicles (80%) with lower engine capacity is reduced to 20%. The duty rate for sporting and luxury vehicles is reduced from 110% for new vehicles and 120% for used vehicles.

Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	Yes.	A state import monopoly applies to the importation of military equipment.
Exports and Export Proceeds
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	All exporters not covered by a project agreement must repatriate all export proceeds and convert them to kina or deposit into onshore FCAs. The repatriation must be done within three months from the Shipment Date of export. Any offset against offshore liabilities is not permitted. For an exporter with an approved offshore FCA, any surplus funds in the account after meeting offshore liabilities must be repatriated to PNG within three months from the Shipment Date of export and converted to kina or deposited into a domestic FCA. Those exporters covered under a project agreement are required to repatriate any surplus funds after meeting their 3 months forward commitments to offshore suppliers of goods and services. The surplus funds can be converted to kina or held in domestic FCAs.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Exporters with approved FCAs abroad can repatriate export proceeds to their onshore FCAs, in which case there is no surrender of foreign exchange to ADs. Exporters that do not operate approved FCAs onshore will repatriate funds from abroad and at the same time surrender them to ADs after conversion to kina. Exporters that do not operate any approved FCAs must repatriate and convert all export proceeds to kina.
Financing requirements	Yes.	Since April 2017, ADs cannot provide trade finance loans in any currency except with a prior authorization of the BPNG.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Other	Yes.	Customs documentation must be submitted to an AD after each shipment. ADs may process export receipts without submitting them to the BPNG. A BOP form must be completed for export proceeds exceeding K10,000 or its equivalent.
Export licenses	Yes.	For gold exports, a license from the BPNG is required.
Without quotas	Yes.	Licenses are required for exports of logs, pearls, fishery, and marine products, wood chips, sandalwood, rattan, coffee, cocoa, and copra. Log export licenses are issued based on minimum export price guidelines.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	No.

Other export taxes	Yes.	Export taxes apply to logs, mineral ores and concentrates (except gold, silver, and copper), sandalwood, and crocodile skins. There is a flat 28.5% export tax on logs. The capture of resource rent on the export of unprocessed old—growth logs increased progressively from the current duty rate average of 32.0% to an average of 50.0%.

Other managed arrangement
Floating	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating. The exchange rate is determined by supply and demand. The objective of the Central Bank of Paraguay (BCP) under Article 3 of Law No. 489/95 is to preserve and safeguard the stability of the currency and promote the efficiency, integrity, and stability of the financial system.

Article 47 states the following: “Within the framework of the national government’s economic policy and laws, the BCP shall administer the legal provisions and their regulations that set the exchange rate regime, as well as the control measures over current foreign collections and payments and capital movements that are only adopted by the Powers of the State in circumstances of exceptional national emergency.

Foreign exchange operations shall be carried out on the free foreign exchange market which, for the purposes of this Law, is made up of entities authorized to operate in the foreign exchange market.

Anyone may engage in foreign exchange operations.

The exchange rate shall be that freely agreed on by the parties involved, in accordance with supply and demand.”

Article 50 establishes the following: “The free foreign exchange market shall operate with foreign currency and other documents, checks, drafts, or foreign exchange transfer securities derived from the export and import of goods, services, and capital movements, except in cases of specific prohibitions established by the Law or by provisions founded by the Executive Branch.

The BCP shall operate in the foreign exchange market to ensure its normal, competitive, and balanced operation and to respect the fundamental trends in the supply and demand of foreign currency.

Foreign currency trading by the BCP shall aim to mitigate the effects of seasonal fluctuations in supply and demand and offset erratic capital flows and speculative movements that could disrupt the market or the exchange rate.”

The BCP, in its capacity as a financial agent of the government (Article 71 of its Organic Charter – Law No. 489), buys US dollars from the government, received by the latter in the form of royalties and compensation paid by bi-national hydroelectric entities, in exchange for guaraníes. These dollars purchased from the public sector are returned to the market via sales to the financial system according to BCP announcements.

During 2020, net purchases (purchases less sales) of the BCP with the financial system were US$1,770.3 million, while net purchases with the public sector were US$2,581.4 million. Foreign exchange sales to the Financial Sector were made by the BCP to moderate any abrupt exchange rate volatility that does not respond to market fundamentals, within the compensatory and complementary sales regime. When the monthly amount sold to the financial sector is equal to or less than the net amount purchased from the MOF during a given month, the accumulated monthly amounts represent compensatory sales. When the monthly amount of these sales is greater than the net amount purchased from the MOF, the difference between the two represents the complementary sales. Therefore, in 2020, compensatory sales amounted to US$1637.09 million, while complementary sales amounted to US$133.21 million.

Since December 2020, the exchange rate increased its flexibility. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to floating from crawl-like, effective December 11, 2020.

Every week, the BCP publishes daily data on exchange operations (with the public sector and with the financial sector) for the previous month on its institutional website. Additionally, operations are also published according to classification, either compensatory or complementary.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	Resolution No. 7, Minute No. 86 of December 19, 2019, “Regulation on Open Market Operations and Standing Facilities and Regulation on Exchange Operations, Annex II,” states the following in Article 14(e), Publication of the Fluctuating and Benchmark Exchange Rate: “The Board of Directors shall determine the method for calculating the benchmark exchange rate for the day. The latter rate shall be noted in the minutes of the Monetary Committee meeting, which shall, in this case, require the Board of Directors to participate.” Effective August 3, 2020, the BCP determined that the benchmark exchange rate for the US dollar against the guaraní will be equal to the weighted average of interbank operations carried out in the spot market. This benchmark exchange rate is published daily on the BCP website at 1:00 p.m. Operations used as a basis for calculating the benchmark exchange rate are registered by financial institutions on a platform called “Datatec.” The exchange rates calculated in this manner are published on the BCP website every 30 minutes from 8:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. The cumulative exchange rate at the final 30-minute cutoff is the benchmark exchange rate. Previously, the benchmark exchange rate was the average buying and selling nominal exchange rate from financial entities’ transactions with nonfinancial customers in the spot market, beginning at US$50,000. The benchmark exchange rate is used to close public sector operations with the BCP and to settle the maturity of foreign exchange forward contracts.

		The Monetary Operations Executive Committee (Comité Ejecutivo de Operaciones Monetarias – CEOMA) became the MPC (Comité de Política Monetaria – CPM), in accordance with Resolution No. 8, Minute No. 86 of December 19, 2019.
		The aim of the CPM within the framework of inflation targets is to establish the monetary policy rate and the guidelines, mechanisms, and instruments for monetary policy implementation to maintain price stability.
		The CPM is responsible for: (1) Analyzing and assessing information, submissions, and documents presented during the meeting and used as a basis for making monetary policy decisions.

(2) Determining the monetary policy rate value.

(3) Establishing the interest rates of standing deposit facilities and liquidity facilities and the financial conditions for the early cancellation and early redemption of monetary regulation instruments.

(4) Providing information to the Markets Committee (Comité de Mercados – CM) on the general guidelines (guidelines, mechanisms, and instruments) for implementing the monetary policy to align the interbank rate with the monetary policy rate.

(5) Providing information to the CM on the general guidelines for implementing the exchange rate policy.

Decisions: Decisions to be adopted by the CPM are based on the following:

(1) Technical criteria to be presented by Economic Studies.

(2) Analysis of prevailing economic conditions by Committee members, with the latter being able to have their dissenting opinions reflected in the minutes, if they so wish.

(3) The final decision must be adopted by simple majority of the voting members, based on the first and second points of this paragraph. In the event of a tie, the CPM Chair must decide with a double vote. The decisions taken by the CPM members must be recorded in the minutes.

The CB's CPM is made up of the chairman and four incumbent full members of the Board, who have the right to speak and vote. The CPM is chaired by the incumbent president of the BCP.

CPM participants:

The following members are, in the performance of their duties, permanent participants of the CPM with the right to speak but not vote:

(1) Chief Economist;

(2) Director of the External Sector Statistics Department;

Policy rate	Yes.	The BCP's operational monetary policy objective is the Interbank Loan Interest Rate (TIB). The TIB should fluctuate around the same level as the TPM. Given that inflationary pressures moderated significantly with the COVID-19 pandemic because of its impact on domestic demand and import prices, the BCP considered that there was sufficient space for more accommodative monetary policy, reducing the reference rate by 325 basis points in total at its March, April, and June meetings. Thereby, the monetary policy rate was lowered from 4.00% to 0.75% annually, and remained at this level until July 2021. As of August 2021, the monetary policy rate increased by 25 basis points to 1%.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The cap of the corridor band is the Standing Liquidity Facility (Facilidad Permanente de Liquidez – FPL), and the floor is the Standing Deposit Facility (Facilidad Permanente de Depósito – FPD). Effective March 16, 2020, the corridor is structured as follows: FPL = TPM + 25 bps; FPD = TPM – 25 bps. Previously, it was structured as follows: FPL = TPM + 50 bps; FPD = TPM – 25 bps.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks may freely set the exchange rate in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	As of December 31, 2020, there were 17 banks, 9 financial institutions, and 29 exchange houses licensed by the BCP to operate in the foreign exchange market. Under Article 5 of Law No. 2794/05, exchange houses require BCP authorization to operate in the foreign exchange market and may not engage in foreign exchange transactions with the BCP. That same law prohibits exchange houses from maintaining accounts abroad or making foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their customers.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BCP conducts its operations on the foreign exchange market with the sole aim of managing its balance sheet (programmed sales) and occasionally to prevent market volatility. Compensatory sales of US dollars to the financial system offset the US dollars purchased from the government (MOF).
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	Foreign exchange operations (whether compensatory sales or supplementary operations) generally take place through competitive auctions, awarded at multiple prices, for both purchases and sales of US dollars.

Participants registered in the Registry of Participants in Exchange Operations may participate in BCP exchange operations (purchase/sale of foreign currency). The Open Market Department will record, at the request and on the prior approval of the BCP Board of Directors, banking institutions that can participate in exchange operations (purchase and/or sale of foreign currency) with the BCP.

If it is found that the financial institution has not complied with the operating rules of the BCP, the operation will be canceled and the authorities will be informed of the situation at the close of daily operations.

A financial institution that fails to settle the operation because of either insufficient funds or another operational deficiency by the established settlement date will be unable to operate with the Office of the Market Manager for a period of ten business days.

Interbank market	Yes.	The interbank market is understood to mean transactions carried out between banks only. There were 17 banks participating in the interbank market as of December 2020. These banks do not need to be licensed to participate in the interbank market because all banks licensed by the BCP automatically form part of the interbank market. There are no limits on the bid-ask spread of market participants.
Over the counter	Yes.	The interbank market is reported on through DATATEC, an electronic platform supplied by a private firm.
Brokerage	No.

Section b.2 of Resolution No. 3 Minute No. 25 of May 4, 2017 (Regulating Law No. 5787 amending Law No. 861). Banks' credits, contingent credits, and financial leasing operations to individuals and corporations resident abroad, with certain exceptions, may not exceed 5% of effective net worth. This ceiling may be increased to 20% with a sufficient guarantee that it can back the transaction in an amount equal at least to the excess over the aforementioned ceiling. Section b.4 of Resolution No. 3, Minute No. 25 of May 4, 2017 (Regulating Law No. 5787 amending Law No. 861).
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	These transactions must comply with the bank's net position limit.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These transactions must comply with the bank's net position limit.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	The following reserve requirements apply to deposits in foreign currency: (1) 24% for terms of up to 360 days (including sight deposits); (2) 16.5% for terms of 361 days to 540 days; (3) 0% for terms above 541 days.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	A (non-compulsory) guide for managing liquidity (liquid assets/short-term deposits) is in effect.
Interest rate controls	No.	.

Abroad by banks	Yes.	Banks may invest up to 20% of their effective net worth in shares of financial institutions abroad, with the prior authorization of the BCP, in addition to the other considerations set out in Law No. 861/96. Article 40 Number 17 authorizes the purchase of shares in foreign banks or other institutions that operate in financial intermediation or in the stock market, or are auxiliaries of one or the other, for the purpose of achieving international scope for their activities.
In banks by nonresidents	No.	As an anti-money-laundering control and prudential oversight measure, entities supervised by the Superintendency of Banks may not sell, assign, or transfer their shares to individuals or legal entities domiciled in countries deemed to be tax havens.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The following ratio categories are established for the foreign currency position. Resolution No. 2, Minute No. 34 of May 13, 2019, on effective net worth: (1) Category A: liability position of 10% to asset position of 15%.  (2) Category B: asset position of 40% to asset position of 50%.  (3) Category C: asset position of 90% to asset position of 100%. Resolution No. 3, Minute 34 of May 13, 2019, also amends the daily net operating foreign exchange position from US$3 million to US$5 million. The daily net operating foreign exchange position is defined as the (negative or positive) difference in the net aggregate foreign currency position from one day to the next, which may not exceed US$5 million, for both long and short positions. A financial institution that exceeds the limit must deposit in its account with the BCP, within 24 hours of the BCP notice to the financial institution, an amount equal to the excess over the established limit. This amount will remain unavailable in the US dollar account that the financial institution holds with the BCP for 15 business days. Net long or short positions on forward transactions with residents have an applicable limit. Such positions may not exceed the smaller of: (1) two times the average volume of banking operations of banks in the last three months or  (2) 80% of the effective net worth in the previous month converted to US dollars. In the case of forward transactions with nonresidents, it is considered that (modified from Resolution No. 11, Minute No. 34 of May 31, 2018):

(1) The current purchase volume of forward transactions carried out in US dollars with nonresidents may not exceed 3% of the effective net worth in the previous month converted to US dollars.

(2) The sales volume of current forward transactions carried out in US dollars with nonresidents may not exceed 3% of the effective worth in the previous month converted to US dollars.

Forward transactions that do not involve the guaraní are exempt from that limit (Resolution No. 15, Minute No. 67 of October 18, 2018).

On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	As of June 30, 2021, there were 34 insurance companies authorized by the Superintendency of Insurance to operate in the market. (However, Universo S.A. de Seguros has stopped issuing policies because of a deficit in its Guarantee Fund.) Pursuant to Article 4 of Law No. 827/96 on Insurance, the BCP's Superintendency of Insurance is responsible for authorizing the operation of insurance companies.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	There is no defined limit. To represent technical reserves, the insurer must obtain authorization from the Superintendency of Insurance, in which consideration is given to the qualifications of the issuing body and/or the instruments issued and the profitability identified or anticipated. Without such authorization, the securities issued by nonresidents are not part of the investible funds stipulated by the Superintendency of Insurance. They are therefore deducted from net worth to obtain the technical net worth.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	There is no defined limit. To represent technical reserves, the insurer must obtain authorization from the Superintendency of Insurance, in which consideration is given to the qualifications of the issuing body and/or the instruments issued and the profitability identified or anticipated. Without such authorization, the securities issued by nonresidents are not part of the investible funds stipulated by the Superintendency of Insurance. They are therefore deducted from net equity to obtain the technical equity.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	There are no minimum limits, but maximum limits exist for the investments allowed, both by type of Assets and by Issuer, as established in Articles 6 to 9 of Resolution SS.SG. No. 132/2015.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	Foreign currency assets and liabilities must be based on the end-of-month exchange rate.
Pension funds	No.	Because there is no pension regulator, there are no general regulations on portfolio allocations. However, there are eight special pension funds (cajas), each created under a specific law (which outlines rules for administration, contributions, benefits, investments, accounting, and supervision). These laws do not set any investment limits. There are also ten private social insurance funds, the operations of which are not regulated.

Official exchange rate	08/03/2020	The Central Bank of Paraguay (BCP) determined that the benchmark exchange rate for the US dollar against the guaraní will be equal to the weighted average of interbank operations carried out in the spot market. This benchmark exchange rate is published daily on the BCP website at 1:00 p.m. Operations used as a basis for calculating the benchmark exchange rate are registered by financial institutions on a platform called “Datatec.” The exchange rates calculated in this manner are published on the BCP website every 30 minutes from 8:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. The cumulative exchange rate at the final 30-minute cutoff is the benchmark exchange rate. Previously, the benchmark exchange rate was the average buying and selling nominal exchange rate from financial entities’ transactions with nonfinancial customers in the spot market, beginning at US$50,000.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are floating. The exchange rate is determined by supply and demand. The Central Reserve Bank of Peru (BCRP) intervenes in the foreign exchange market to limit volatility without altering the exchange rate trend.

BCRP interventions can also be conducted through dollar-indexed bonds and foreign exchange swaps. From April 2020, the exchange rate followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar with two realignments, one in June 2020 and a second one in November 2020 (each within a 6-month period) and then increased its volatility from March 2021. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified twice: (1) to crawl-like from floating, effective April 6, 2020, and (2) to floating from crawl-like, effective March 30, 2021. The BCRP publishes daily information about its intervention operations (prices and amounts) on its website with a one-day lag.

Free floating

Official exchange rate

No. The legal framework of the floating exchange rate system is established by Executive Decree No. 268-91-EF (March 26, 1991), which states that the exchange rate for foreign currency operations is determined in the foreign exchange market by the free interaction of supply and demand. Consequently, there is no official exchange rate. For private contracts involving transactions with foreign currency, Article 1237 of the Civil Code establishes that the exchange rate for valuation in domestic currency of obligations denominated in foreign currency is the ask exchange rate at the due or payment date of the contract. The Economic Studies Department of the Superintendence of Banks, Insurance Companies, and Pension Funds (SBS), within its role of promoting the transparent flow of information in the financial system (Article 32 of SBS Resolution No. 4027-2011), proposes the methodology for recording the exchange rate and interest rates (both freely determined). To contribute to the provision of information and for statistical purposes, the SBS publishes the daily exchange rate on its website. The daily exchange rate is registered as the bid and ask prices for banking operations recorded on DATATEC.

Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The overnight interbank interest rate is the operating target of monetary policy, at 1% since September 2021 (after having remained at 0.25%, its all-time low, since April 2020 and having been raised to 0.50% in August 2021). CDs issued in local currency by the BCRP are the main monetary instrument for open-market operations. The BCRP also issues CDs indexed to the policy rate, and charges a commission on transfers of these CDs to resident and nonresident institutions, except between resident financial institutions. The commission is currently 4%. Time deposits in the BCRP are also used as a sterilization instrument. In addition, CDs indexed to the exchange rate and denominated in local currency continue to be used as a monetary regulatory instrument to mop up liquidity in the financial system. They are also used by private banks as part of their exchange position. The BCRP issues CDs redeemable in US dollars, which facilitate its intervention in the spot foreign exchange market. Similarly, the BCRP participates in foreign exchange swap auctions with financial institutions.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The BCRP sets interest rates related to permanent facility operations in domestic currency with financial entities: (1) Overnight deposits: 0.85% per year. (2) Direct security/currency repo and rediscount operations: 1.5% per year.

All banks are licensed to participate in the interbank foreign exchange market. There were 15 commercial banks as of December 31, 2020. Licenses are granted by the SBS. There are no limits on bid-ask spreads. However, all banks are subject to a daily ceiling according to the risk policy of the banking institution. The BCRP intervenes in the market via DATATEC at its quoted rates or by proposing its own prices. The BCRP may launch auctions of CDs indexed to the exchange rate. Auctions are not conducted on a regular basis. Auction participants who default on their obligations may be temporarily barred from participation. All lending institutions (including banks and microfinance entities) are eligible to participate. Auction results are published on the BCRP's website and DATATEC, Reuters, and Bloomberg terminals. Transactions in the foreign exchange market by private pension funds (Administradoras Privadas de Fondos de Pensiones) may not exceed a daily limit of 0.75% of the value of the fund and of 1.75% for the preceding five days (SBS Resolution No. 561-2013).

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.

Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	These accounts are permitted, but capital income from investment abroad is subject to income tax.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.	Lending by resident financial institutions to nonresident financial institutions, individuals, and enterprises is subject to the same prudential limits that apply to lending to residents.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	No.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	For financial stability purposes, deposit accounts in domestic and foreign currency are treated differently:  Effective September 1, 2021, the reserve requirement ratio (RRR) in domestic currency is the greater of: (1) the RRR resulting from a marginal reserve rate of 25% on the increase in obligations in domestic currency with respect to July 2021 and (2) the RRR resulting from applying the minimum average reserve rate of 4% in September, 4.25% in October, and 4.50% in November 2021. Previously, effective March 31, 2020, RRRs applicable to domestic currency accounts were as follows: (1) The reserve requirement rate in domestic currency was lowered to 4% from 5% and the minimum requirement of funds deposited in current accounts at the CB was lowered to 0.75% from 1%.  A special reserve requirement of 35% is applied to obligations in domestic currency that are indexed to foreign exchange variations. Reserve rate requirements applicable to foreign currency accounts are as follows: There is a minimum reserve requirement rate of 9%, but for macroprudential purposes, the BCRP requires additional reserves, which are determined based on a marginal reserve rate and a cap on the average reserve rate, both currently at 35%. Foreign-exchange-indexed obligations are subject to a special reserve requirement rate of 9%.

Effective March 30, 2020, the Central Bank of Peru decided to: (1) reduce the reserve requirement rate with average maturities equal to or less than 2 years with foreign financial entities subject to the special regime to 9%; and (2) temporarily suspend for the remainder of the year 2020 the additional reserve requirement based on the evolution of credit in foreign currency.

Coverage of legal reserve requirements includes liabilities of foreign branches. The general reserve rate requirement applies to the following operations: (1) foreign-exchange-indexed obligations; (2) obligations with nonresident institutions with maturities of two years or more that exceed certain limits and operations; and (3) obligations derived from credit with nonresident institutions.

Effective March 1, 2021, additional reserve requirements in foreign currency conditional to the expansion of total loans in dollars and the total automobile credits and mortgage in dollars entered back into force. Previously, these additional reserve requirements were suspended effective March 30, 2020, until March 2021 (firstly, the suspension was until December 2020, but the suspension was extended until March 2021).

Effective May 1, 2021, when the financial entity has an average daily balance of credits greater than or equal to US$200 million (excluding the average balance of credits for foreign trade and the average balance of credits granted as of January 1, 2015, with a term greater than 3 years that exceed an amount of US$10 million), an additional reserve requirement is established if the average daily balance of total credits (former exclusion applies) exceeds the average daily balance of credits in foreign currency of December 2018 plus 30% of the accumulated flow compared to December 2018 of the average credit in national currency, excluding from said flow that corresponding to mortgage, consumer and foreign trade credit. The additional reserve is equal to 30% of the percentage excess. The additional reserve is applied to total liabilities in foreign currency.

Effective May 1, 2021, financial entities whose average daily balance of total vehicle and mortgage consumer loans exceeds 90% of the balance reached as of December 31, 2018, or 6% of their ultimate effective equity, whichever is greater, will be subject to an additional reserve requirement equal to 15% of the percentage excess. The additional reserve is applied to total liabilities in foreign currency.

Effective January 1, 2020, the limits on average daily balance of total automobile credits and mortgage in dollars were reduced to 40% (from 50%) of the balance reached as of February 28, 2013, or 6% (from 9%) of the last effective equity published (Circular No. 031-2019).

A type of repo operation is used to inject soles; this operation allows the BCRP to provide soles to financial institutions in exchange for an equivalent amount of foreign currency reserve funds, which is deducted from their dollar reserve requirements up to an amount equal to 20% of their obligations subject to foreign currency reserve requirements (an expansionary operation). Another new type of repo operation was implemented to support the conversion to national currency of loans granted by financial institutions in foreign currency. Under the terms of the operation, the CB sells foreign currency to the financial institution on the spot date to finance this conversion (a currency substitution operation). Synthetic forwards are also included in the calculation used for limits on foreign exchange derivatives.

Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	As a prudential measure, a liquid asset requirement as a percentage of short-term liabilities (20% in foreign currency and 8% in domestic currency) is applied. These ratios increase to 25% and 10%, respectively, if concentration (measured as the percentage of liabilities with the largest 20 depositors) is higher than 25%. A short-term LCR is 100% (SBS Resolution No. 6694-2015). Effective March 16, 2020, the SBS (Oficio Multiple No. 11148-2020) indicated that the limits of LCRs in national currency (RCL-MN) and in foreign currency (RCL-ME) will not be applied temporarily, until further notice.

Reserve requirements

01/01/2020	The limits on average daily balance of total automobile credits and mortgage in dollars were reduced to 40% (from 50%) of the balance reached as of February 28, 2013, or 6% (from 9%) of the last effective equity published (Circular No. 031-2019).
03/30/2020	The Central Bank of Peru decided to: (1) reduce the reserve requirement rate with average maturities equal to or less than 2 years with foreign financial entities subject to the special regime to 9%; and (2) temporarily suspend for the remainder of the year 2020 the additional reserve requirement based on the evolution of credit in foreign currency.
03/31/2020	Reserve requirement rates applicable to domestic currency accounts are as follows: (1) The reserve requirement rate in domestic currency is 4% (previously, 5%). The minimum requirement of funds deposited in current accounts at the CB is 0.75% (previously, 1%).
03/01/2021	Additional reserve requirements in foreign currency conditional to the expansion of total loans in dollars and the total automobile credits and mortgage in dollars enter back into force. They had been suspended between April 2020 and March 2021 (firstly, the suspension was until December 2020, but it was extended until March 2021).
05/01/2021	Financial entities whose average daily balance of total vehicle and mortgage consumer loans exceeds 90% of the balance reached as of December 31, 2018, or 6% of their ultimate effective equity, whichever is greater, will be subject to an additional reserve requirement equal to 15% of the percentage excess. The additional reserve is applied to total liabilities in foreign currency.
05/01/2021	An additional reserve requirement is established for financial entities with an average daily balance of credits greater than or equal to US $200 million (excluding the average balance of credits for foreign trade and the average balance of credits granted as of January 1, 2015, with a term greater than 3 years that exceed an amount of US $10 million), if the average daily balance of total credits (former exclusion applies) exceeds the average daily balance of credits in foreign currency of December 2018 plus 30% of the accumulated flow compared to December 2018 of the average credit in national currency, excluding from said flow that corresponding to mortgage, consumer and foreign trade credit. The additional reserve is equal to 30% of the percentage excess. The additional reserve is applied to total liabilities in foreign currency.
09/01/2021	The reserve requirement rate (RRR) in domestic currency is the greater of: (1) the RRR resulting from a marginal reserve rate of 25% on the increase in obligations in domestic currency with respect to July 2021 and (2) the RRR resulting from applying the minimum average reserve rate of 4% in September, 4.25% in October, and 4.50% in November 2021. Previously, between April 2020 and August 2021, the reserve requirement rate in domestic currency was 4% and the minimum current account requirement was 0.75%.
Liquid asset requirements	03/16/2020 The Superintendence of Banks, Insurance Companies, and Pension Funds (Oficio Multiple No. 11148-2020) indicated that the limits of LCRs in national currency (RCL-MN) and in foreign currency (RCL-ME) will not be applied temporarily, until further notice.

Central ng Pilipinas (BSP) adheres to a market-determined exchange rate policy with some scope for occasional action solely to prevent potentially disruptive sharp fluctuations that may have an adverse impact on the inflation outlook. The importation season, which lasted around July to September, and the inflows because of seasonal remittances in the fourth quarter were taken into consideration in estimating the possible intervention amount. However, the BSP does not target or support a given level of exchange rate; it allows the value of the peso to be determined by the demand for and supply of foreign currencies. The BSP may participate in the US dollar–peso market directly with market participants or via market makers and does not disclose intervention data. Data on currency swaps settled in foreign currency and non-deliverable forwards (NDFs) settled in domestic currency are reported monthly in Sections II and IV, respectively, of the Data Template on International Reserves and Foreign Currency Liquidity, which is posted on the BSP website. For 2020, the peso appreciated by 5.44% to 48.023 on December 29, 2020, from its closing rate of 50.635/US$1 on December 2019. Since March 2020, the exchange rate followed an appreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar, with one realignment in August 2020. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to crawl-like from floating, effective March 19, 2020. While the exchange rate has increased its flexibility since February 2021, more observations are necessary to determine its new trend. Until then, the de facto exchange rate arrangement remains classified as crawl-like arrangement. The de facto methodology for classification of exchange rate regimes is based on a backward-looking statistical approach that relies on past exchange rate movement and historical data. Therefore, this reclassification does not imply statements or views on future or intended policies nor does it imply a policy commitment on the part of the country authorities.

Monetary aggregate target

Inflation-targeting framework

Yes.

The Philippines adopted inflation targeting in January 2002.

Target setting body	Yes.
Government
Central Bank
Monetary Policy Committee
Central Bank Board
Other
Government and Central Bank	Yes.	The Development Budget Coordination Committee (DBCC), in consultation with the BSP, sets a fixed inflation target over a multi-year period to promote a longer-term view on inflation, help anchor inflation expectations, and foster greater flexibility in economic decisions. On approval by the DBCC, the BSP announces the inflation target to the public. The DBCC is composed of the principals of the four member agencies, namely Department of Budget and Management, Department of Finance, National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA), and the Office of the President. The BSP was invited to join the DBCC as a resource institution to provide inputs on monetary measures and policies. Although the responsibility of achieving the inflation target rests primarily with the BSP, the joint announcement of the inflation target reflects active government participation in achieving the goal of price stability. In practice, the agreements reached by the DBCC members are typically made through a consensus decision. The BSP sits in the DBCC as a resource institution to ensure close coordination on real, fiscal monetary, and external sectors of the economy. While the BSP has no vote during DBCC meetings, the BSP is tasked with providing recommendations on a set of medium-term macroeconomic assumptions that are used in setting domestic growth and fiscal targets. Other member-agencies also propose targets or assumptions under their purview. For instance, the National Economic and Development Authority recommends the medium-term GDP growth targets, while the Department of Budget and Management and the Department of Finance endorse the medium-term fiscal and financing programs, that are, in turn, used in the preparation of the National Government budget. The DBCC also serves as an important venue for presentation and discussion among economic managers of other important matters, for example, setting of inflation targets, proposals for tax legislation, and mitigating measures against the economic impact of the COVID-19 pandemic, among others.
Inflation target	Yes.
Target number	Yes.
Point target
Target with tolerance band	Yes.	The BSP has employed fixed multi-year inflation targets in replacement of the previous variable annual inflation target since July 2010. The National Government’s inflation target has a tolerance interval of <math>\pm 1</math> percentage point (pp) around the target. It is measured in terms of the average year-on-year change in the CPI over the calendar year. 2011: 4.0% <math>\pm 1</math> pp (3.0%–5.0%); 2012–2014: 4.0% <math>\pm 1</math> pp (3.0%–5.0%); 2015–2016: 3.0% <math>\pm 1</math> pp (2.0%–4.0%);

PHILIPPINES

2017–2018: 3.0% ± 1 pp (2.0%–4.0%); 2019–2020: 3.0% ± 1 pp (2.0%–4.0%). On February 26, 2019, in line with the inflation-targeting framework, the DBCC, through its Resolution No. 2019-01, decided to maintain the current inflation target at 3.0% with a tolerance band of ±1 pp for 2019–2020 and to set the inflation target at 3.0% ± 1.0 pp for 2021–2022. These decisions were announced to the public, with effect February 8, 2019. The DBCC, during its meeting on December 3, 2020, decided to keep the current inflation target at 3.0% ± 1.0 pp for 2021–2022 and set the inflation target range at 3.0% ± 1 pp for 2023–2024.

Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.
CPI	Yes.	The primary objective of the BSP monetary policy is “to promote price stability conducive to a balanced and sustainable growth of the economy and employment.” The government’s inflation target is defined in terms of the average year-on-year change in the CPI over the calendar year and is set two years ahead in consultation with the BSP.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	The BSP adopts a two-year policy horizon (current and one year ahead) in setting the medium-term inflation targets.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The BSP’s primary monetary policy instrument is its overnight reverse repurchase rate.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The overnight lending facility (OLF) and the overnight deposit facility rates form the upper and lower bounds of the corridor, which are set at 50 basis points (bps) around the overnight reverse repurchase rate.
Other	No.
Accountability	Yes.
Open letter	Yes.	To ensure accountability in cases where the BSP fails to achieve the inflation target, the BSP Governor issues an Open Letter to the President outlining the reasons why actual inflation did not fall within the target, along with the steps that would be taken to bring the inflation toward the target. The Open Letter contains explanation clauses, a predefined set of acceptable circumstances under which the BSP failed to achieve its inflation target. Open Letters to the President were issued January 16, 2004, January 18, 2005, January 25, 2006, January 19, 2007, January 14, 2008, January 26, 2009, January 28, 2016, January 20, 2017, and January 25, 2019.
Parliamentary hearings	Yes.	Detailed report on economic developments is submitted to the President and Congress, on a quarterly and annual basis. These reports are released to the public as the BSP’s Report on Economic and Financial Developments and Annual Report.
Other	No.
Transparency	Yes.
Publication of votes	No.	The decisions of the Monetary Board (MB) concerning monetary policy are determined by consensus. No attribution of votes to individual Board members is made to emphasize the collegial and consensus-based nature of the decision-making process.
Publication of minutes	Yes.	As part of its efforts to promote greater transparency and

		accountability under the inflation-targeting framework, the BSP publishes the highlights of each MB meeting on the monetary policy stance, with a lag of four weeks. The highlights of each MB meeting contain the MB's monetary policy decision as well as key considerations in the formulation of the said monetary policy stance, including the inflation outlook, output, and domestic liquidity and credit conditions. The schedule of MB meeting highlights' publication is posted on the BSP website (Schedule of Monetary Policy Meetings, Inflation Report Press Conference, and Publication of MB Highlights).
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	The BSP discloses updated baseline inflation forecasts after each MB meeting on the monetary policy stance (which is held eight times a year). In addition, the BSP also publishes in greater detail the inflation outlook using a fan chart in its quarterly Inflation Report. The fan chart depicts the probability of different inflation outcomes based on the central projection (corresponding to the baseline forecast of the BSP) and the risks surrounding the inflation outlook.

Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks may freely set their exchange rates and margins in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Universal and commercial banks (U/KBs) licensed by the BSP to operate in the Philippines may engage in spot foreign exchange transactions in pesos and US dollars and in other third-currency transactions. Member banks of the BAP may trade in the peso-US dollar spot market via the Bloomberg trading platform. As of December 31, 2020, there were 45 BAP member banks, of which 38 have trades on the Bloomberg terminal. Residents may purchase foreign exchange from foreign exchange dealers (FXDs) and money changers (MCs) for outward investment in any amount. The BSP Financial Market Operations Sub-Sector does not deal with MCs. Thrift banks (TBs), rural banks, and cooperative banks may buy and sell foreign exchange under the pertinent foreign exchange rules and regulations.
Operated by the central bank	No.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Interbank trading is conducted among BAP member banks and between these banks and the BSP. As of December 31, 2020, there were 45 BAP member banks, of which 38 have trades on the Bloomberg terminal. Member banks may also deal through brokers. Only banks authorized for foreign exchange operations by the BSP and members of the BAP may engage in peso-US dollar trading with the BSP and among themselves. Trading among banks takes place on the Bloomberg trading platform. The USD/PHP trading takes place from 9:00 a.m. to noon and from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. daily. However, it may be noted that during the pandemic, following the imposition of quarantine measures in the country, trading hours were cut short to 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. with a

Only the BSP has access to the database showing full details of individual trades on any day. Banks may view only statistics such as the day's open, high, low, close, average, volume, and bank quotes. Banks may also view their own completed transactions. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads or commissions of market participants. The BSP may participate in the domestic interbank foreign exchange market directly and/or via market makers.
Over the counter	Yes.	Commercial banks may deal over the counter after the close of official trading at 4:00 p.m. These transactions, along with transactions involving institutions that are not members of the BAP, are not included in the BAP statistics for the day.
Brokerage	Yes.	Commercial banks may deal via brokers but must enter such transactions through the electronic platform provided by Bloomberg. At present, there are four foreign exchange brokers: Tullett Prebon (Philippines), Inc., GFI Group Philippines Inc., Tradition Financial Services Philippines, Inc., and Amstel Philippines Inc.
Market making	Yes.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Universal banks, commercial banks, and other banks with limited user authority may engage in foreign exchange forwards with counterparties and customers if the latter are hedging market risks or covering funding requirements. TBs with existing authority to issue foreign LCs and pay, accept, and negotiate import and export drafts and bills of exchange are allowed to apply for Type 2 derivatives authority to operate as a dealer, broker, and end-user of deliverable foreign exchange forwards, subject to certain conditions. Forward transactions involving the sale of foreign exchange to nonresidents without full delivery of principal no longer require BSP approval. The BSP participates in the swap market for its monetary and exchange rate operations. Data on currency swaps settled in local and foreign currencies and NDFs settled in domestic currency are reported monthly in Sections II and IV, respectively, of the Data Template on International Reserves and Foreign Currency Liquidity, which is posted on the BSP website. The BSP's derivatives framework allows supervised financial institutions to offer or engage in non-complex derivatives activities without prior BSP approval. These activities are called generally authorized derivatives activities or "GADA." BSP-Supervised Financial Institutions (BSFIs), however, are expected to undergo the licensing process prior to offering or engaging in more complex derivatives instruments. The amendments to the derivatives regulations under BSP Circular No. 1119 (Amendments to Derivatives Regulations of Banks, Quasi-Banks, and Trust Corporations) involve: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(1) Removing the tenor limits on instruments currently classified as GADA of U/KBs;</li> <li>(2) Including non-deliverable foreign exchange forwards (NDF) as GADA under a dealer capacity for U/KBs as opposed to requiring at least a Type 2 limited dealer authority, while maintaining (a) the existing regulatory limit anchored on capital to prevent the buildup of systemic risks and (b) the applicable documentary, reporting and other requirements under the foreign exchange Manual;</li> <li>(3) Allowing trust departments of U/KBs, quasi-banks, and nonbank financial institutions (NBFIs) to transact as institutional</li> </ol>

counterparties on behalf of their trustor/principal/s: (a) in products being offered by U/KBs as dealers as GADA and (b) in specific structured products and credit-linked notes, and aligning the derivatives authorities of trust corporations with trust department of U/KBs; and
 (4) Streamlining the licensing process by subjecting variants of and structures involving stand-alone derivatives products that are under a BSFI's existing authority to notification and pre-qualification requirements (that is, will form part of type "C" activities) instead of another licensing process (that is, reserved for type "A" applications).

Official cover of forward operations No.

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments for exports may be made in the following currencies: Australian dollars, Bahrain dinars, Kuwaiti dinars, Brunei dollars, Canadian dollars, Chinese yuan, euros, Hong Kong dollars, Indonesian rupiah, Korean won, Pound sterling, Saudi Arabian riyals, Singapore dollars, Swiss francs, Thai baht, UAE dirhams, US dollars, Japanese yen, and any other foreign currency declared convertible with the BSP as indicated in the BSP Reference Exchange Rate Bulletin posted at the BSP website.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	The use of domestic currency for international payments and receipts is generally allowed subject to the PHP 50,000 limit on cross-border transfer of local currency under domestic laws and regulations. Amounts in excess of the PHP 50,000 limit require prior written authorization from the BSP. Domestic currency can be used for imports and exports from ASEAN countries provided the BSP is not asked to intervene in the clearing of any balances from this payment scheme and gold sales to the BSP which are considered constructive exports.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	The use of domestic currency for international payments and receipts is generally allowed subject to the PHP 50,000 limit on cross-border transfer of local currency under domestic laws and regulations. Amounts in excess of the PHP 50,000 limit require prior written authorization from the BSP. Domestic currency can be used for imports and exports from ASEAN countries provided the BSP is not asked to intervene in the clearing of any balances from this payment scheme and gold sales to the BSP which are considered constructive exports.
For capital transactions	Yes.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Transactions in capital and money market instruments are subject to the PHP 50,000 limit on cross-border transfer of local currency under domestic laws and regulations. Amounts in excess of the PHP 50,000 limit must require prior written authorization from the BSP.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Customers may hedge their market risks arising from foreign exchange obligations through foreign exchange forwards (deliverable and non-deliverable) and foreign exchange swaps with Authorized Agent Banks (AABs), provided the underlying transaction is eligible for servicing using foreign exchange resources of AABs or AAB-forex corps. All NDF contracts by banks with residents must be settled in Philippine pesos.
Credit operations	Yes.	Banks may extend peso financing to nonresidents to fund the following: (1) Without prior BSP approval – specific cases allowed under the Manual of Regulations for Banks (MORB); or

PHILIPPINES

(2) Subject to prior BSP approval – for use in projects/programs/purposes that are: (a) not covered by Item (1) above and (b) legitimate and not contrary to laws, regulations, public order, public health, public safety, or public policy.

Offshore issuances by nonresidents of peso-denominated bonds/notes and similar debt instruments (whether to be settled in foreign or local currency) must be registered with the BSP to be eligible for servicing using foreign exchange resources of AABs/AAB-forex corps, where the transaction will involve: (1) inward remittance of foreign exchange to the Philippines by the nonresident issuer/investor or (2) participation of a resident enterprise or any of its offshore offices, branches, subsidiaries, and affiliates as issuer, guarantor, or beneficiary under the transaction. The transaction must comply with the rules on cross-border transfer of Philippine currency as well as pertinent rules and regulations of the government agencies/entities.

Use of foreign exchange among residents Yes.

There are no restrictions on the use of foreign exchange among residents, provided the sale of foreign exchange by AAB/AAB-forex corps is supported by documentation. Foreign exchange purchases exceeding US$60 million or its equivalent in other foreign currency an investor a year, or a fund a year are only subject to a notification to the BSP at least 15 banking days after determination that total foreign exchange requirements will exceed the US$60 million threshold and present to the foreign exchange selling institution a copy of the notice duly received/acknowledged by the BSP.

Residents may also purchase any amount of foreign exchange from FXDs and MCs, subject to the following documentary requirements: (1) application to sell/purchase foreign currency and (2) supporting documents for purchase of foreign exchange if the amount exceeds US$10,000 for non-trade current account purposes or for all other purposes, regardless of the amount involved. FXDs/MCs must only be allowed to sell foreign currencies in an amount not exceeding US$10,000 or its equivalent a transaction, and not exceeding US$50,000 or its equivalent a month a customer. Exemption or higher limits may be granted by the appropriate department of the BSP Financial Supervision Sector (FSS) if justified by the business model of the MC/FXD. FXDs’/MCs’ pay-outs of more than PHP 500,000 or its foreign currency equivalent in any single transaction with customers or counterparties must only be made via check payment or direct credit to deposit accounts.

AAB/AAB-forex corps may sell foreign exchange to residents to cover payments to nonresident beneficiaries for non-trade current account purposes (excluding foreign/foreign currency loans and investments), subject to the submission of the following to the foreign exchange selling institution: (1) for sale not exceeding US$500,000 (for individuals) and US$1,000,000 (for corporates/other entities) or its equivalent in other foreign currency a client a day, a duly accomplished ATP form and (2) for sale exceeding US$500,000 (for individuals) and US$1,000,000 (for corporates/other entities) or its equivalent in other foreign currency a client a day, a duly accomplished ATP form and supporting documents required under existing rules. Foreign exchange purchased from AABs/AAB-forex corps must either be: (1) remitted directly to the intended nonresident beneficiary's account, regardless if resident or nonresident (including payment/treasury centers/hubs of a group of companies, collection agents, and e-commerce market participants), on the date of purchase or (2) effective September 13, 2021, credited to the resident purchaser's FCDU (with the same or another AAB) for eventual remittance by the depository AAB to the intended nonresident beneficiary, regardless if resident or nonresident (including payment/treasury centers/hubs of a group of companies, collection agents, and e-commerce market participants), for the declared purpose. If the depository bank is different from the foreign exchange selling institution: (1) the foreign exchange selling institution must directly transfer the foreign exchange purchases to the depository bank of the purchaser and (2) the depository bank must also be the foreign exchange remitting AAB. The foreign exchange purchaser must certify that: (a) the foreign exchange must be used for the declared purpose; (b) funds credited to the FCDU account must eventually be remitted to the intended beneficiary on or before due date; and (c) the foreign exchange purchaser must include the purpose of the remittance in the remittance instructions to the remitting bank. Residents are allowed to purchase foreign exchange (regardless of the amount) from AAB/AAB-forex corps to cover credit card obligation to another resident, subject to submission to the foreign exchange selling AAB/AAB-forex corps of a duly accomplished ATP form and supported by documents listed under existing rules. From February 14, 2017, FXDs/MCs must only be allowed to sell foreign exchange currencies in an amount not exceeding US$10,000 or its equivalent transaction, and not exceeding US$50,000 or its equivalent a month a customer. Exemption or higher limits may be granted by the appropriate department of the BSP-FSS if justified by the business model of the MC/FXD. FXD/MCs' pay-outs of more than PHP 500,000 or its foreign currency equivalent in any single transaction with customers or counterparty must only be made via check payment or direct credit to deposit accounts.

Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Derivatives are considered securities under the Securities Regulation Code and are being administered by the SEC. Banks may engage in GADA without BSP approval, provided they follow the risk management guidelines for derivatives transactions and comply with laws, rules, and regulations for this activity. BSP approval is required for banks to engage in all financial derivatives activities not expressly classified as "generally authorized." Since February 5, 2008, U/KBs may act as dealer of forward foreign exchange contracts, subject to BSP licensing requirements and compliance with sales and marketing guidelines. On the other hand, all banks may apply for limited user (to transact as end-user) or special broker (to facilitate transactions) authority for forward foreign exchange transactions, subject to BSP regulations.

Since February 5, 2008, universal banks, commercial banks, and other banks with limited user derivatives authority may engage only in foreign exchange forwards and swap transactions with other banks and nonresidents if the latter are hedging market risk or covering funding requirements. Foreign exchange regulations and documentary requirements for derivatives apply. TBs authorized to issue foreign LCs and pay, accept, and negotiate import and export drafts and bills of exchange may apply for Type 2 derivatives authority to be a dealer, broker, and end-user of deliverable foreign exchange forwards, subject to certain conditions. The total notional amount of banks' NDFs involving Philippine pesos is limited to 20% and 100%, respectively, of the capital of domestic banks and local branches of foreign banks. AML laws, rules, and regulations; relevant SEC rules; foreign exchange regulations; and documentary requirements for derivatives also apply.

The BSP's derivatives framework allows supervised financial institutions to offer or engage in non-complex derivatives activities without prior BSP approval. These activities are called GADA. BSFIs, however, are expected to undergo the licensing process prior to offering or engaging in more complex derivatives instruments.

The amendments to the derivatives regulations under BSP Circular No. 1119 (Amendments to Derivatives Regulations of Banks, Quasi-Banks, and Trust Corporations) involve:

- (1) Removing the 3-year tenor limits on instruments currently classified as GADA of U/KBs, effective June 22, 2021;
- (2) Including non-deliverable foreign exchange forwards (NDF) as GADA under a dealer capacity for U/KBs as opposed to requiring at least a Type 2 limited dealer authority, while maintaining (a) the existing regulatory limit anchored on capital to prevent the buildup of systemic risks and (b) the applicable documentary, reporting and other requirements under the foreign exchange Manual, effective June 22, 2021;
- (3) Allowing trust departments of U/KBs, quasi-banks, and NBFIs to transact as institutional counterparties on behalf of their trustor/principal/s (a) in products being offered by U/KBs as dealers as GADA and (b) in specific structured products and credit-linked notes, and aligning the derivatives authorities of trust corporations with trust department of U/KBs, effective June 22, 2021; and
- (4) Streamlining the licensing process by subjecting variants of and structures involving stand-alone derivatives products that are under a BSFI's existing authority to notification and pre-qualification requirements (that is, will form part of type "C" activities) instead of another licensing process (that is, reserved for type "A" applications), effective June 22, 2021.

By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Guarantees for public sector accounts that may give rise to actual foreign obligation of the public sector to nonresidents and those issued by government-owned and government-controlled corporations [excluding public sector banks and NBFIs with quasi-banking functions (NBQBs)] in favor of nonresidents require BSP approval. Guarantees issued by resident banks and other financial institutions, including public sector banks and NBQBs that cover foreign obligations for account of the private sector other than foreign loans, need not be registered, but must be reported to the BSP to be eligible for servicing using foreign exchange purchased from AABs and/or AAB-forex corps.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Guarantees that are related to foreign/foreign currency loans/borrowings that require BSP approval/registration must already form part of the loan terms submitted for BSP approval/registration (as applicable). In case of a call on such guarantee: (1) The borrower/guarantor must submit a written notification to the BSP target date of settlement of the call on the guarantee to allow servicing using foreign exchange resources of AABs/AAB-forex corps and (2) the borrower must comply with pertinent rules covering the underlying obligation (including reportorial requirements). Guarantees by nonresident foreign banks and financial institutions as well as other nonresident entities to cover private sector peso loan/foreign currency loans from banks operating in the Philippines authorized under existing regulations need not be registered, but must be reported to the BSP to be eligible for servicing with foreign exchange purchased from AABs and/or and AAB-forex corps.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	Residents may invest abroad without restriction. Residents may purchase foreign exchange from AABs and/or AAB-forex corps for investment abroad up to US$60 million or its equivalent an investor a year, a fund a year for qualified investors. Resident investors may purchase foreign exchange in excess of the US$60 million annual threshold without prior BSP approval, subject to the 15-day prior notification to the BSP and documentation. Residents may also purchase foreign exchange from FXDs and MCs for outward investment, including investment in bonds and notes of the Philippines and other Philippine entities requiring settlement in foreign currency, regardless of the amount, provided such purchases are supported by documentation.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	Foreign inward investments registered with the BSP may be serviced using foreign exchange purchased from AABs, AAB-forex corps, and BSP-registered FXDs and MCs, subject to documentary requirements. Inward FDIs may be registered with BSP. A BSP Registration Document (BSRD) will be issued by the BSP as evidence of the investment. For the purpose of registration, foreign exchange funding for cash investments must be remitted to the Philippines but need not be converted to pesos, except for the cases cited in Section 36.3 of the Foreign Exchange Manual. Foreign investments need not be registered with the BSP, unless the foreign exchange needed to service repatriation of capital and remittance of dividends, profits, and earnings is purchased from AABs or and AAB-forex corps. Registering banks for foreign investments may sell for outward remittance the equivalent foreign exchange of excess pesos funded with inward remittance of foreign exchange as follows: peso proceeds of foreign exchange inwardly remitted minus the peso amount actually used for BSP-registered investments; and interest earned on the excess pesos, subject to certain conditions.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	Registration is required only if the foreign exchange for capital repatriation and remittance of profits and earnings is purchased from AABs and/or and AAB-forex corps.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents who have their own foreign exchange assets may freely engage in these transactions. Residents may purchase foreign exchange from AABs and/or AAB-forex corps without BSP approval for investment in real property abroad, including condominium units, provided these do not exceed US$60 million an investor a year when aggregated with other allowable outward investments. Resident investors may purchase foreign exchange in excess of the US$60 million annual threshold without prior BSP approval, subject to the 15-day prior notification to the BSP and documentation.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Purchases are subject to constitutional and legal limits. Under the Philippine Constitution, foreign nationals and foreign companies are not allowed to directly own land. Ownership of private lands in the Philippines is reserved for Philippine citizens and corporations that are considered Philippine nationals. The Philippine Foreign Investment Act allows foreign nationals and companies to indirectly own land by acquiring up to 40% ownership of a corporation that is considered a Philippine national, that is qualified to own land (corporations that are considered Philippine nationals are those corporations or partnerships with at least 60% of the capital stock outstanding owned by Filipinos). Foreign nationals and foreign companies may also acquire condominium units and shares in condominium corporations up to not more than 40% of the total and outstanding capital stock of a Filipino-owned or controlled condominium corporation, subject to the rules under the Condominium Act of the Philippines.
Sale locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents are not allowed to own private lands in the Philippines and thus cannot sell them the same locally. The Philippine Condominium Act provides that each condominium owner also has the absolute right to sell or dispose of his condominium, unless the master deed contains a requirement that the property be first offered to the condominium owners within a reasonable period of time before the same is offered to outside parties.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.
Loans	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Loans are permitted, provided foreign exchange is not purchased from AABs and/or and AAB-forex corps. Banks may extend peso financing to nonresidents to fund the following: (1) Without prior BSP approval – specific cases allowed under the MORB; or (2) Subject to prior BSP approval – for use in projects/programs/purposes that are: (a) not covered by Item (1) above and (b) legitimate and not contrary to laws, regulations, public order, public health, public safety, or public policy.

In reference to Item (1) above, banks are allowed to extend peso consumer loans to Overseas Filipino Workers, embassy officials and employees, and foreign nationals holding valid visas issued by relevant Philippine authorities (subject to conditions) without prior BSP approval.

To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Private sector borrowing may be freely obtained, provided there is no guarantee from the government sector and payments are not funded with AABs' and/or AAB-forex corps' resources. Foreign loans/borrowings of the private sector that are not publicly guaranteed and will be serviced using foreign exchange purchased from AABs or AAB-forex corps do not require prior BSP approval but are subject to notification and registration to the BSP. Foreign loans/borrowings of the public sector and of the private sector that are guaranteed by the public sector require prior BSP approval. Banks that wish to issue unsecured subordinated debt must secure the approval of the BSP.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Private land may not be transferred or conveyed, except to individuals, corporations, or associations qualified to acquire or hold land in the public domain.
To residents from nonresidents	No.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	No.
Transfer of assets	No.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	No.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	No.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	Transfers are subject to appropriate supporting documents. The use of domestic currency for international payments and receipts is generally allowed but subject to rules on cross-border transfer of local currency, that is, any person may import or export, or bring with him into or take out of the country, or electronically transfer, legal tender Philippine notes and coins and other bills of exchange drawn in pesos against banks operating in the Philippines in an amount not exceeding PHP 50,000 without prior written authorization from the BSP.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Banks with foreign exchange trading corporations as subsidiaries or affiliates must make available daily the names of counterparties and other details of purchases and sales of foreign exchange. Banks authorized to operate an FCDU may engage in the following in any acceptable currency: (1) accept deposits and trust accounts from residents and nonresidents; (2) deposit funds, regardless of maturity, at foreign banks abroad, OBUs, and other FCDUs/EFCDUs; (3) invest in readily marketable foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments; (4) grant short-term foreign currency loans as allowed by BSP regulations; (5) borrow at any maturity from EFCDUs, foreign banks abroad, and OBUs and short term from other FCDUs; (6) engage in foreign currency-foreign currency swaps with the BSP, OBUs, and other FCDUs/EFCDUs; (7) engage in securities lending activities as a lender, subject to certain conditions; (8) engage in repo agreements

		involving foreign-currency-denominated government securities; (9) purchase foreign-currency-denominated government securities under resale agreements from other banks' FCDUs/EFCDUs, nonresident financial institutions, and OBUs; (10) issue hybrid Tier 1 capital instruments; (11) engage in US dollar-denominated repo agreements with the BSP; and (12) invest in foreign-currency-denominated structured products issued by banks and special-purpose vehicles of high credit quality. In addition, banks authorized to operate EFCDUs may engage in the following: (1) invest in foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments; (2) grant foreign currency loans as allowed by the BSP; (3) borrow from other FCDUs/EFCDUs and from nonresidents and OBUs, as permitted by foreign borrowing rules; (4) engage in foreign currency–foreign currency swaps; (5) engage in foreign exchange trading and, with BSP approval, in financial futures and options trading; (6) on request/instructions of a foreign correspondent bank, issue LCs for a nonresident importer in favor of a nonresident exporter, and pay, accept, or negotiate drafts/bills of exchange under the LC; and (7) engage in direct purchases of export bills of resident exporters.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Banks' foreign borrowing is subject to the MORB, as well as other applicable laws, rules, and regulations. EFCDUs may borrow from nonresidents and OBUs, subject to existing rules on foreign borrowing. FCDUs of thrift, rural, and cooperative banks may borrow from foreign banks abroad and OBUs, regardless of maturity. Banks' foreign borrowing exceeding one year and intended for relending does not require BSP approval. Banks that wish to issue unsecured unsubordinated debt abroad must secure the approval of the BSP.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	Banks may generally have accounts with foreign banks abroad and OBUs, except for peso-denominated accounts.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Banks may grant commercial credit to nonresidents, provided foreign exchange is not purchased from AABs and/or AAB-forex corps to service the loan. As of January 15, 2018, per Circular No. 984 dated December 22, 2017, AABs may extend peso financing to nonresidents to fund the following: (1) Without prior BSP approval – specific cases allowed under the MORB; or (2) Subject to prior BSP approval – for use in projects/programs/purposes that are: (a) not covered by Item (1) above and (b) legitimate and not contrary to laws, regulations, public order, public health, public safety, or public policy. Previously, banks could not extend peso financing to nonresidents, unless explicitly allowed under existing BSP rules. Banks could extend consumer loans to nonresidents if they are (1) non-immigrants holding visas issued under Sections 9(d) and 9(g) of the Philippine Immigration Act of 1940, special investors' resident visas, and visas issued by the Philippine Economic Zone Authority, but excluding real estate or housing loans; or (2) embassy officials residing in the Philippines for a term of one year or more.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	In reference to Item (1) above, banks are allowed to extend peso consumer loans to Overseas Filipino Workers, embassy officials and employees, and foreign nationals holding valid visas issued by relevant Philippine authorities (subject to conditions) without prior BSP approval. EFCDUs of U/KBs are authorized to grant foreign currency loans as allowed by the BSP. 		banks may grant short-term foreign currency loans, except to producers or manufacturers, including oil companies and public utility companies. Regular banking units of universal, commercial, and TBs may engage in trade-related loan transactions, subject to the regulations on trade transactions.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	EFCDUs of U/KBs may invest in foreign-currency-denominated securities, regardless of maturity. However, FCDUs of TBs or rural and cooperative banks may invest only in foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments that are readily marketable. Regular banking units of banks may generally invest in locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange, subject to regulations, particularly on risk management.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	There is no reserve requirement for deposit accounts in foreign exchange. However, banks are required to have 100% asset cover on foreign currency deposits and the requirement of maintaining 30% of asset cover in the form of liquid assets was lifted. The liquidity and statutory reserve requirements for peso deposits and deposit substitute liabilities of U/KBs are unified into a single, combined reserve requirement of 16%, except for long-term negotiable CDs, which are subject to lower reserve requirement of 4%.  Reserve requirements for bonds are 3% for U/KBs, TBs, and NBQBs.  Reserve requirements for deposit and deposit substitute liabilities of U/KBs were reduced from 14% to 12% effective April 3, 2020.
		Reserve requirements for deposit and deposit substitute liabilities of NBQBs were reduced from 14% to 12% effective April 3, 2020. Reserve requirements for deposit and deposit substitute liabilities of TBs were reduced from 4% to 3% effective July 31, 2020. Reserve requirements for deposit and deposit substitute liabilities of rural and cooperative banks were reduced from 3% to 2% effective July 31, 2020.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	Depository banks with FCDUs and EFCDUs must maintain at all times 100% asset cover for their foreign currency liabilities, except for US-dollar-denominated repo agreements with the BSP. From February 15, 2018, the requirement of at least 30% of the cover for these liabilities to be in liquid assets was lifted. From February 15, 2018, the requirement for EFCDUs of U/KBs, of at least 70% of the cover must be in the same currency as the deposit liability, and up to 30% in other acceptable foreign currencies was lifted. The requirement of FCDUs of TBs and rural and cooperative banks to maintain foreign currency cover in the same currency as the deposit liability was likewise lifted. Under the BSP framework on LCR, banks are expected to be able to meet their liquidity needs in each currency, although the framework only requires the LCR to be met and reported in a “single currency” (that is, in peso terms).
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.

Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	The establishment or acquisition by a bank of subsidiaries or affiliates abroad requires BSP approval. A bank subsidiary may invest in a foreign subsidiary, subject to the following: (1) The investment of a bank subsidiary in the equity of a subsidiary abroad is subject to BSP approval. (2) The bank subsidiary may invest in the subsidiary if it meets the prequalification requirements of the BSP. (3) The application for authority of the requesting bank subsidiary must be accompanied by a certified true copy of the resolution authorizing the investment by the board of directors of the parent bank and the bank subsidiary, feasibility study indicating among other things the economic justification for investment and the proposed organizational structure. (4) The applicant parent subsidiary must comply with the licensing requirements of the host country, and the necessary license must be secured from the appropriate government agency of the host country. (5) The proposed subsidiary may invest in another subsidiary with BSP approval. (6) Outward investment representing initial capital and other outlays is subject to the regulations. (7) At least 50% of the yearly net profits of the proposed subsidiary must be declared and paid as cash dividends to the parent subsidiary. (8) The proposed subsidiary is subject to BSP reporting and supervision requirements, and the cost of such examination is chargeable to the parent bank. (9) Additional funding or advances of the parent bank in the Philippines to its subsidiaries abroad require BSP approval.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Qualified foreign banks may own or control up to 100% of the voting stock of a domestic bank while a foreign individual or a foreign nonbank corporation may own up to 40% of U/KBs and TBs and 60% of rural banks. Aggregate ownership of the voting shares of stock of foreign individuals and/or foreign nonbank corporations in U/KBs is limited to 40% of U/KBs and 60% of TBs and rural banks. Total resources of banks held by foreign banks may not exceed 40%. The equity investment of a cooperative in a coop bank may not exceed 40% of its subscribed capital stock.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	Banks' allowable open foreign exchange position (either overbought or oversold) is the lower of 20% of their unimpaired capital or US$50 million. The BSP imposes sanctions for the violation of open position limits. The BSP prescribes the use of the "netting" method for determining banks' net open position.  On September 13, 2021, the BSP approved an increase in the net open foreign exchange position (NOP) limit for banks that recognizes the increased demand for foreign exchange arising from the growth in the volume of underlying trade transactions and investments. The NOP limit was raised to the lower of 25% of qualifying capital or US$150 million, from the previous limit of 20% of unimpaired capital or US$50 million, whichever is lower. A bank's NOP represents the amount of its net assets and/or liabilities denominated in foreign currency.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions

Controls on capital and money market instruments

On capital market securities

Shares or other securities of a participating nature

Purchase locally by nonresidents 06/23/2021

The Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas approved the amendments to the regulations on securities custodianship and securities registry operations which aim to simplify the licensing process and expand both the client base and the number of financial institutions offering said services.

Controls on derivatives and other instruments 06/22/2021

The licensing process for derivative trading was streamlined by subjecting variants of and structures involving stand-alone derivatives products that are under a BSFI's existing authority to notification and pre-qualification requirements (that is, will form part of type "C" activities). Previously, they were subject to another licensing process (that is, reserved for type "A" applications).

06/22/2021

Trust departments of universal and commercial banks (U/KBs), quasi-banks, and nonbank financial institutions were allowed to transact as institutional counterparties on behalf of their trustor/principal/s in products being offered by U/KBs as dealers under the so-called generally authorized derivatives activities.

06/22/2021

Previously, at least a Type 3 limited dealer authority was required. Trust departments of universal and commercial banks (U/KBs), quasi-banks, and nonbank financial institutions were allowed to transact as institutional counterparties on behalf of their trustor/principal/s in specific structured derivative products and credit-linked notes, and aligning the derivatives authorities of trust corporations with trust department of U/KBs. Previously, at least a Type 3 limited dealer authority was required.

06/22/2021

Tenor limits on non-complex derivative instruments provided by universal and commercial banks were removed. Previously, the maximum term was three years.

06/22/2021

Non-deliverable foreign exchange forwards were included as derivative instruments that can be traded under the so-called generally authorized derivatives activities under a dealer capacity for universal and commercial banks, while maintaining (a) the existing regulatory limit anchored on capital to prevent the buildup of systemic risks and (b) the applicable documentary, reporting and other requirements under the foreign exchange Manual. Previously, at least a Type 2 limited dealer authority was required.

Floating

Free floating

Yes. The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are free floating; the exchange rate of the zloty is determined on the basis of supply and demand in the foreign exchange market, and the zloty is traded freely against all currencies. Narodowy Bank Polski (NBP, National Bank of Poland), however, may intervene in the foreign exchange market if necessary to ensure domestic macroeconomic and financial stability. The NBP intervened in the foreign exchange market twice in 2020 (on 18 December and between 29 and 31 December, three days in a row) to enhance the impact of monetary policy easing on the Polish economy. The bank purchased a certain amount of foreign currencies for zloty, counteracting appreciation of domestic currency. The interventions were conducted in line with requirements of exchange rate arrangement being in force in Poland. Intervention data are not disclosed as they are classified as confidential.

In 2020, as in previous years, MOF exchanged foreign currencies in the CB and the state-owned development bank BGK. The procedures related to exchange of foreign currencies into zlotys by the MOF in the NBP have not changed. Every year, the MOF publishes on its website information on any transactions conducted by the MOF on the financial market. As regards NBP, it publishes general information about purchase of foreign currencies from the MOF and limits on foreign exchange transactions with MOF in Annual Reports of Banking Sector Liquidity and Monetary Policy Instruments of NBP.

Official exchange rate

Yes. Exchange rates are freely determined by the market. The NBP calculates and publishes daily rates for convertible currencies. Euro rates fixing is based on foreign exchange market rates as quoted on trading platforms between 10:55 and 11:00 a.m. local time (average foreign exchange market rates between specified period of time). Exchange rates for other major currencies are calculated from cross-currency rates against the euro as quoted on trading platforms. The NBP daily rates are mainly used for statistical and accounting purposes. In general for accounting purposes, these rates are used to recalculate amounts and cash flow in foreign currency into zloty. The rates are also used by businesses to price foreign-exchange-denominated assets and liabilities as well as settlement rates for exchange-traded derivatives. As regards financial markets, the rates are used as the fixing price in the settlement of derivatives (options, etc.).

Monetary aggregate target

Inflation-targeting framework

Yes. Monetary policy is based on flexible inflation targeting. Within this framework, the Monetary Policy Council (MPC) sets the inflation target and adjusts monetary instruments (predominantly the NBP policy interest rates) to keep headline inflation close to the target in

		the medium term. Since 2004, the NBP has pursued a medium-term inflation target of 2.5% with a symmetrical band of deviations of <math>\pm 1</math> pp (percentage point). The medium-term orientation of the target does not involve any definition or guidance about the time-specific horizon of inflation returning to target in case of deviation. The NBP's inflation-targeting framework is laid down in Monetary Policy Guidelines, which – in line with the Constitution of the Republic of Poland – are presented to the lower chamber of the Polish parliament (Sejm) on an annual basis. The Constitution also imposes an obligation on the MPC to present a Report on Monetary Policy to Sejm each year. These are the main annual documents for informing the public about the causes and nature of the shocks behind inflation target misses. The MPC, however, retains a large degree of discretion over the reaction to these shocks. In addition, the implementation of the Monetary Policy Guidelines is assessed by the Polish Supreme Audit Office, also on an annual basis.
Target setting body	Yes.
Government
Central Bank	Yes.
Monetary Policy Committee	Yes.	According to the Polish Constitution, the NBP is responsible for the value of Polish currency. The Act on NBP states that “the basic objective of the activity of NBP shall be to maintain price stability, while supporting the economic policy of the Government, insofar as this does not constrain the pursuit of the basic objective of NBP.” In line with the above-mentioned legal guidelines, the numerical value of the inflation target was set by the MPC in “Monetary Policy Strategy beyond 2003” published in February 2003. The target is confirmed each year in Monetary Policy Guidelines, published annually. Monetary policy decisions are taken by majority vote with the presence of at least five members of the MPC, including Chairperson (the President of the NBP), who has the deciding vote in case of a tie. Inflation target is set by the MPC which has the right to modify the target.

CPI	Yes.	Target measure refers to the annual change in the consumer price inflation. –1 pp in the medium term. (Thus, it is a continuous target, not an end-year target.)

Core inflation

Target horizon Yes. The target horizon is medium term. The Council flexibly determines the time necessary for inflation to return to the target depending on the character of the shock, its persistence, and the overall assessment of risks posed by the shock to both price stability and broadly understood macroeconomic stability in the medium term.

Operating target (policy rate) Yes.

Policy rate Yes. The instrument of key significance for the monetary policy implementation is the NBP reference rate. By determining the yields on open market operations, this rate influences the interest on short-term money market instruments, in particular unsecured interbank deposits. The range of fluctuations of interbank overnight interest rates is determined by the NBP deposit and Lombard rates.

Target corridor band Yes. Before the COVID-19 crisis, the NBP reference rate stood at 1.50%, the deposit rate at 0.50%, and the Lombard rate at 2.50%. On March 17, 2020, the MPC took the decisions of lowering the reference rate to 1.00%, the deposit rate at 0.50%, and the Lombard rate to 1.50%; On April 8, 2020, the MPC further decided to lower the reference rate to 0.50%, the deposit rate to 0.00%, and the Lombard rate to 1.00%; On May 28, 2020, the MPC further decided to lower the reference rate to 0.10%, the deposit rate at 0.00%, and the Lombard rate to 0.50%. Since May 29, 2020, the deposit rate has been standing at 0.00%, the Lombard rate at 0.50% and the reference rate at 0.10%. The deposit rate and the Lombard rate set the fluctuation band for overnight interest rates in the interbank market, which is not anymore symmetric with respect to the reference rate.

Accountability Yes.

Open letter No.

Parliamentary hearings Yes. Once a year the President of the NBP attends the parliamentary hearing to present the NBP's Annual Report.

Other Yes. The key communication instruments include the cyclical publications: Information from the meeting of the MPC (with the accompanying press conferences), Minutes of the MPC decision-making meetings, and Inflation Reports. Once a year, the NBP also publishes its Annual Report, Report on Monetary Policy, and Monetary Policy Guidelines. Publication of monthly schedule of open market operations: The schedule presents information on open market operations planned by the NBP to be carried out in a given month. Its publication takes place at the end of the preceding month. The schedule contains detailed data on the parameters planned to carry out main and structural operations (involving the purchase of debt securities), including the adopted dates of their tenders, as well as additional information, such as the conditions for the possible use of fine-tuning operations or a list of collateral in the case of banks using NBP's liquidity-providing open market operations.

Transparency Yes.

Publication of votes Yes. Pursuant to the decision of the MPC, the NBP publishes on its

		website the motions relating to interest rates, together with a breakdown of votes cast by individual MPC members. The rules for publishing are as follows: If the motion was not passed – after the lapse of 6 weeks from the date of voting, at 14.00 hours; if the resolution on interest rates was adopted – after the results of voting on the resolution have been published in Monitor Sądowy i Gospodarczy (Court and Commercial Gazette). If, in addition to adopting a resolution on interest rates, other motions were voted at the MPC meeting which did not receive a majority vote, the results of voting on such motions are posted on the NBP website after the announcement of voting results on the adopted resolution in the Court and Commercial Gazette. In accordance with the principles adopted by the MPC, information on any motions regarding the NBP interest rates is published, in the first instance, in the Minutes of the MPC decision-making meetings. Thus, voting results are not released prior to the publication of the Minutes.
Publication of minutes	Yes.	Prior to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Minutes of the MPC decision-making meeting were published prior to the next decision-making meeting of the MPC. In principle, the publication took place approximately 2 weeks after the MPC decision-making meeting – on Thursdays at 2:00 p.m. However, when the break between the MPC meetings was longer/shorter than usual, the Minutes were published with somewhat longer/shorter lag, but always before the next MPC decision-making meeting. During the pandemic, the schedule of MPC meetings was changed several times and the overall number of MPC meetings was reduced. Hence, Minutes of the previous decision-making meeting were approved on the next decision-making meeting and published 2 days later. Content of the Minutes: main issues discussed by the MPC and arguments raised during the discussion; the decision on monetary policy instruments, including interest rates, and information on the motion/s raised and whether it/they received a majority vote (no voting records are published in the Minutes); no individual views (no names of individual MPC members) approximately 3–4 pages.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	NBP projections are prepared three times a year and published in March, July, and November Inflation Reports. In addition to the publication of the Inflation Report, a separate press conference is held to present current projections. The press conference – together with the accompanying presentation – is available on the NBP website. The projection covers economic developments up to three years ahead from the publication date.

Administration of control	Yes.	The Polish Parliament has the legislative authority to amend the Foreign Exchange Law. As regards executive acts to the Law, regulations are issued by Minister of Finance (MOF) in cooperation with the President of the NBP. General foreign exchange permits are granted by the MOF under the MOF regulation regime; individual foreign exchange permits are granted by the NBP in the form of administrative decisions. Those decisions are subject to appeal to the appropriate regional administrative court. The NBP exercises control over foreign exchange permits, exchange office activities, and collects submissions to be provided by residents as regards their banking statistics for the purpose of compiling balance of payments data and the external assets and liabilities position of the country.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Residents may hold gold in any form. Trading in gold, other than in jewelry form, is a regulated economic activity and requires registration with the President of the NBP.
On external trade	Yes.	The exportation of foreign gold (gold coins) is subject to declaration procedures (written declaration at the border).
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	Effective June 3, 2021, Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672 of the European Parliament and of the Council of October 23, 2018, on controls on cash entering or leaving the Union entered into force and repealed Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005. In accordance with EU Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying cash of a value of €10,000 or more are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information. The national FIU has direct access to CIS+ Cash module in Automated Fingerprint Identification System (AFIS), where all the cash declarations and cash disclosure declarations are introduced at the border and kept. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, the person is subject to a fine for tax offense pursuant to Article 106f or 106h of the Act of September 10, 1999, Penal Fiscal Code (Journal of Laws of 2020, item 19); there is a possibility of retaining undeclared cash as part of activities carried out under the procedure of Article 308 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and then handing it over to the Public Prosecutor's Office. The regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the regulation; the regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders.

On exports	No.	The exportation of foreign or domestic banknotes with a total value amounting to or exceeding the equivalent of €10,000 is subject to declaration procedures (written declaration at the border).
Domestic currency	No.	The exportation of foreign or domestic banknotes with a total value amounting to or exceeding the equivalent of €10,000 is subject to declaration procedures (written declaration at the border).
Foreign currency	No.	The exportation of foreign or domestic banknotes with a total value amounting to or exceeding the equivalent of €10,000 is subject to declaration procedures (written declaration at the border).

Domestic currency	No.	The importation of domestic or foreign banknotes amounting to or exceeding the equivalent of €10,000 is subject to written declaration at the border.
Foreign currency	No.	The importation of domestic or foreign banknotes amounting to or exceeding the equivalent of €10,000 is subject to written declaration at the border.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Depositing funds in a foreign exchange account is permitted and balances may be transferred abroad freely, subject to specific regulations.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	Residents (individuals and enterprises) are allowed to maintain accounts in the member countries of the EU, EEA, and OECD without permission. Accounts in other countries may be maintained only for settlements with nonresidents. Controls apply to deposits of funds with nonresident institutions by a privately managed occupational pension fund. The allocation of assets of insurance companies is not subject to limits but must remain consistent with prudent person principle specified in Article 276 of the Act of September 11, 2015, on insurance and reinsurance activity which is based on Solvency II Directive. According to Article 276 of the Act of September 11, 2015, on insurance and reinsurance activity, assets of insurance and reinsurance companies should be invested according to prudent person principle. This act is an implementation of Directive 2009/138/EC of November 25, 2009, on the taking-up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance (Solvency II) and prudent person principle is provided in Article 132 of this directive. The main principles are: (1) With respect to the whole portfolio of assets, insurance and reinsurance companies must only invest in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report, and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs. (2) All assets, in particular those covering the minimum capital requirement and the solvency capital requirement, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole. In addition, the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability. (3) Assets held to cover the technical provisions must also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities. Those assets must be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries taking into account any disclosed policy objective.

The limit on open pension funds' investments in assets denominated in a currency other than the national one is 30%. The total value of open pension fund assets invested in assets denominated in currency other than the national one may not exceed 30%. For occupational pension funds, the value of assets denominated in a currency other than the national one may not exceed 30% of a fund's total assets. Assets of pension funds may be invested in assets denominated in currencies of EU, EEA, and OECD member countries. For Employee Capital Plans (PPK), the value of assets denominated in a currency other than the national one may not exceed 30% of total assets.

Approval required Yes.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad Yes.

The regulations for foreign exchange accounts held abroad also apply to these accounts. The allocation of assets of insurance companies is not subject to limits but must remain consistent with prudent person principle specified in Article 276 of the Act of September 11, 2015, on insurance and reinsurance activity which is based on Solvency II Directive.

For occupational pension funds, the value of assets denominated in a currency other than the national one may not exceed 30% of a fund's total assets. Assets of pension funds may be invested in assets denominated in currencies of EU, EEA, and OECD member countries. For PPK, the value of assets denominated in a currency other than the national one may not exceed 30% of total assets.

Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may acquire real estate or other immovable property in Poland only with permission from the Ministry of the Interior, except if it is inherited. Under the Law on Acquisition of Real Estate by Foreigners, foreigners may also acquire real estate without a permit if (1) the real estate is an apartment; (2) the foreigner has lived in Poland for at least five years since obtaining a permanent residence visa; (3) the foreigner has been married to a Polish citizen for at least two years (the purchased real estate must constitute part of matrimonial community property); or (4) the real estate is purchased by nonresident juridical persons for statutory purposes, and the real estate is no larger than 4,000 square meters if it is in an urban area.

The Council of Ministers may issue a regulation defining other cases for which a permit is not required, provided the size of the acquired real estate does not exceed 4,000 square meters in urban and 10,000 square meters in rural areas. The Council of Ministers may also extend the area to be acquired without a permit to 12,000 square meters in urban and 30,000 square meters in rural areas. Poland maintained rules until 2009 regarding the acquisition of secondary residences by foreigners other than nationals of EU member countries and nationals of countries that are parties to the EEA and who have been legal residents of Poland continuously for four years. Rules regarding the acquisition of agricultural land and forests are in effect until 2016. Under these rules, nationals of another EU member country or of a country that is party to the EEA who want to establish themselves as self-employed farmers and who have been legally resident and leasing land continuously in Poland as a natural or legal person for at least three years are not subject to any procedures other than those that apply to nationals of Poland; in some western and northern “voivods” (state administrations), the residence and leasing period is for a minimum of seven years.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	No.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.

The CRR, among other things, covers areas of regulation such as large exposures, risk weights for credit exposures, and calculation of own funds requirements for foreign exchange risk. In general, CRR does not differentiate between residents and nonresidents. According to CRR provisions, banks are subject to large exposure limits, which apply to exposures to both residents and nonresidents. The CRR also allows for, under certain conditions, national competent authorities to set higher risk weight for exposures secured by mortgage on commercial immovable property, which applies to both residents and nonresidents. According to the Regulation of the Minister of Development and Finance of May 25, 2017, on a higher risk weight for exposures secured by mortgages on immovable properties, risk weight applicable to exposures secured by mortgage on commercial immovable property located in Poland amounts to 100% (this regulation concerns banks using the Standardized Approach for determining capital requirement).

Effective October 8, 2020, the Regulation of the Minister of Finance, Development Funds, and Regional Policy, amending the regulation on a higher risk weight for exposures secured by mortgages on immovable properties, reduces risk weight from 100% to 50% for exposures secured on commercial real estate used by the borrower to conduct his own business and not generating income from rent or profit from their sale. For other commercial properties, the 100% risk weight is applied. This followed the recommendation of the Financial Stability Committee (FSC) of July 13, 2020, to reduce these risk weights for exposures secured on commercial real estate used by the borrower to conduct his own business and not generate income from rent or profit from their sale to reduce the required capital of the domestic banking sector and enable banks to allocate more capital to finance the economy.

The Regulation of the Minister of Finance, Development Funds, and Regional Policy has been published in the Journal of Laws on October 15, 2020.

Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	According to Article 6 paragraph 1 of the Act of March 23, 2017, on Mortgage Loan and on Supervision over Credit Intermediaries and Appointed Representatives, mortgage loans may be granted only in the currency or be indexed to the currency in which the consumer receives most of his income or holds most of his funds or other assets valued in the currency of mortgage loan or in the currency to which the mortgage loan is indexed. Additionally, both Recommendations S (from 2013 and 2019) – which are non-legally binding acts but issued based on the Banking Act – concerning good practices with regard to mortgage credit exposures require banks to grant loans only in the currency of the borrower’s income. Recommendation T concerning good practices with regard to risk management of retail credit exposures requires banks in case of loans granted in currency different from the one in which borrower receives income, to disclose comprehensive pre-contractual information regarding foreign exchange risk and apply stricter creditworthiness standards (KNF Resolution No. 59/2013). According to the Regulation of the Minister of Development and Finance of May 25, 2017, on a higher risk weight for exposures secured by mortgages on immovable properties, risk weight applicable to exposures secured by mortgage on residential immovable property located in Poland in case of which installments depend on exchange rates relating to currency other than the one in which borrower receives income amounts to 150% (this regulation concerns banks using the Standardized Approach for determining capital requirement).
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	No.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.

POLAND

Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.
Reserve requirements	No.	At the meeting of the MPC held on March 17, 2020, the MPC decided to decrease the required reserve ratio from 3.5% to 0.5% and to increase the remuneration of the required reserves from 0.5% to the reference rate level. The required reserve ratio and remuneration rate are the same for both residents and nonresidents.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	The CRR replaced domestic regulations concerning among other things large exposures, risk weights, and calculation of own funds requirements for foreign exchange risk. According to provisions of the CRR, banks are subject to large exposure limits, which apply to exposures to both residents and nonresidents.
In banks by nonresidents	No.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The CRR replaced domestic regulations on the calculation of own funds requirements for foreign exchange risk. According to its provisions, banks are subject to large exposure limits, which apply to exposures to both residents and nonresidents. There is no binding direct limit on open foreign exchange positions. However, in accordance with the CRR if the sum of the overall net foreign exchange position and net gold position exceeds 2% of total own funds, banks must calculate own funds requirements for foreign exchange risk in line with the provisions of the CRR. The relevant Polish regulations, which implemented the capital requirements provided for in EC Directive Nos. 2006/48/EC and 2006/49/EC, are now superseded by the CRD IV package consisting of the CRD and the CRR.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	No.	In compliance with EU directives and the Polish Act on Insurance and Reinsurance Activity, a KNF's permission is required for non-EU entities to set up an insurance company; insurance companies located in the EU are subject to the general provisions of EU and domestic law. The KNF must be notified of investment transactions that would result in the acquisition of 10%, 20%, one-third, or 50% of shares or voting power or in an increase beyond 10%, 20%, one-third, or 50% of total shares or voting power. The KNF must also be notified whenever a given entity intends to become a parent company (either directly or indirectly) of an insurance or reinsurance company (currently, Article 82 of the Act on Insurance Activity). The KNF may object to the transaction within a 60-working-day period.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	New regulations concerning the allocation of assets of insurance companies are consistent with prudent person principle resulting from the implementation of the Solvency II Directive. According to Article 276 of the Act of September 11, 2015, on insurance and reinsurance activity, assets of insurance and reinsurance companies should be invested according to prudent person principle. This Act is an implementation of Directive 2009/138/EC of November 25, 2009, on the taking-up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance (Solvency II) and prudent person principle is provided in Article 132 of this directive. The main principles are: (1) With respect to the whole portfolio of assets, insurance and reinsurance companies must only invest in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report, and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs. (2) All assets, in particular those covering the minimum capital requirement and the solvency capital requirement, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole. In addition, the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability. (3) Assets held to cover the technical provisions must also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities. Those assets must be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries taking into account any disclosed policy objective. With respect to assets other than assets held in respect of life insurance contracts where the investment risk is borne by the policy holders:

(1) the use of derivative instruments must be possible insofar as they contribute to a reduction of risks or facilitate efficient portfolio management,

(2) investment and assets which are not admitted to trading on a regulated financial market must be kept to prudent levels,

(3) assets must be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer or group of undertakings, or geographical area and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole,

(4) investments in assets issued by the same issuer, or by issuers belonging to the same group, may not expose the insurance undertakings to excessive risk concentration.

The absence of regulatory limits on investments does not mean that undertakings can take investment decisions without any regard to prudence and to the interests of policyholders. The insurance and reinsurance companies are obliged to possess the risk-management system. According to Article 57 of the Act of insurance and reinsurance activity, the risk-management system must cover investments, in particular derivatives. The requirements concerning the risk-management system are laid down in the Act of insurance and reinsurance activity, which implements appropriate regulations of Solvency II Directive. When undertakings have a material investment in other currencies, the insurance company must properly identify and manage the currency risk. Furthermore, the currency risk is taken into account when the undertakings calculate solvency capital requirement. In short, the higher the currency risk exposure, the more the solvency capital requirement.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad No.

The regulations concerning the allocation of assets of insurance companies are consistent with prudent person principle resulting from the implementation of the Solvency II Directive. According to Article 276 of the Act of September 11, 2015, on insurance and reinsurance activity, assets of insurance and reinsurance companies should be invested according to prudent person principle. This Act is an implementation of Directive 2009/138/EC of November 25, 2009, on the taking-up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance (Solvency II) and prudent person principle is provided

The absence of regulatory limits on investments does not mean that undertakings can take investment decisions without any regard to prudence and to the interests of policyholders. The insurance and reinsurance companies are obliged to possess the risk-management system. According to Article 57 of Act on insurance and reinsurance activity, the risk-management system must cover investments, in particular derivatives. The requirements concerning the risk-management system are laid down in the Act of insurance and reinsurance activity, which implements appropriate regulations of Solvency II Directive. When undertakings have a material investment in other currencies, the insurance company must properly identify and manage the currency risk. Furthermore, the currency risk is taking into account when the undertakings calculate solvency capital requirement.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally No.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition No.

The regulations concerning the allocation of assets of insurance companies are consistent with prudent person principle resulting from the implementation of the Solvency II Directive. According to Article 276 of the Act of September 11, 2015, on insurance and reinsurance activity, assets of insurance and reinsurance companies should be invested according to prudent person principle. This Act is an implementation of Directive 2009/138/EC of November 25, 2009, on the taking-up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance (Solvency II) and prudent person principle is provided in Art. 132 of this directive. The main principles are: (1) With respect to the whole portfolio of assets, insurance and reinsurance companies must only invest in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report, and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs. (2) All assets, in particular those covering the minimum capital requirement and the solvency capital requirement, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole. In addition, the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability. (3) Assets held to cover the technical provisions must also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities. Those assets must be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries taking into account any disclosed policy objective. With respect to assets other than assets held in respect of life insurance contracts where the investment risk is borne by the policy holders:

(1) the use of derivative instruments must be possible insofar as they contribute to a reduction of risks or facilitate efficient portfolio management,

(2) investment and assets which are not admitted to trading on a regulated financial market must be kept to prudent levels,

(3) assets must be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer or group of undertakings, or geographical area and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole,

(4) investments in assets issued by the same issuer, or by issuers belonging to the same group, may not expose the insurance undertakings to excessive risk concentration.

The absence of regulatory limits on investments does not mean that undertakings can take investment decisions without any regard to prudence and to the interests of policyholders. The insurance and reinsurance companies are obliged to possess the risk-management system. According to Article 57 of the Act of insurance and reinsurance activity, the risk-management system must cover investments, in particular derivatives. The requirements concerning the risk-management system are laid down in Act on insurance and reinsurance activity, which implements appropriate regulations of Solvency II Directive. When undertakings have a material investment in other currencies, the insurance company must properly identify and manage the currency risk. Furthermore, the currency risk is taken into account when the undertakings calculate solvency capital requirement. The Act on Insurance and reinsurance activities specified also how to take into account currency risk when determining risk-free rate used for the calculation of (re)insurance liabilities expressed in foreign currencies.

In addition to the above regulations based on Solvency II regime, under the local accounting regulation for statutory purposes there are certain provisions which require a kind of matching of actual yields on investments with the technical rate to calculate the technical provisions (long term insurance liabilities) which also apply to assets in foreign currencies.

Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Open pension funds are allowed to invest up to 30% of their assets in assets denominated in a currency other than the national one, and such investments may be only in assets denominated in currency of countries that are member countries of the EU, EEA, or OECD. In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Pursuant to Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51), Portugal implements UNSC resolutions (UNSCRs) that approve restrictive measures (related to freezing of funds and other economic resources) directly and immediately by way of Article 8(3) of the Constitution of the Portuguese Republic, and Law No. 97/2017 of August 23 as amended by Law No. 58/2020 of August 31, and does so for the preservation of international security. As a full-fledged member of the EU, Portugal also benefits from decisions and regulations of the EC implementing UNSCRs that approve restrictive measures related to freezing of funds and other economic resources, as well as imposing restrictive measures of EU initiative. Portugal has all of the rights and obligations stemming from its membership at the EU. Therefore, all directly applicable EU legislation applies in Portugal including all decisions adopted in the framework of the Common Foreign and Security Policy (CFSP) and all regulations based on Article 215 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU. Free floating

Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Portugal participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is around 16:00 Central European Time on every working day, except on TARGET closing days. The reference rates against the euro are the average of the buying and selling rates. The exchange rates against the euro published by the ECB are released for reference purposes only.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Union with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Union.” These include a “high level of employment” and “sustainable and non-inflationary growth.” Effective July 8, 2021, the Governing Council adopts new monetary policy strategy of symmetric 2% inflation target over medium term. Previously, price stability was defined as an inflation rate below but close to 2%.

On external trade	Yes.	In accordance with EU legal acts, there is a ban on trade in gold, precious metals, and diamonds with the government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) (as of May 2016, as amended) and Syrian public agencies (as of June 2013, as amended).
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	In accordance with EC Regulation No. 2018/1672 and Decree-Law No. 61/2007 of March 14, 2007, there is a mandatory declaration system for cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EC regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EC regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EC regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered "cross-border" for the purposes of the EC regulation; the EC regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU's external borders. According to Decree-Law No. 61/2007 of March 14, 2007, when required by the Portuguese customs authorities, a similar declaration must be presented when cash is transported within the EU. The single European Cash Declaration Form is used for declaration. The form allows the identification of a person or legal entity by its tax ID number. In accordance with EC regulations, there

On capital market securities	No.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	No.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public by the buyer of shares or other securities of a participating nature when such purchases occur through a public takeover bid. Such public offers are subject to (1) prior registration with the Portuguese Securities Markets Commission (Comissão do Mercado de Valores Mobiliários—CMVM), pursuant to Article 114 of the Securities Code, and (2) prior publication of the respective prospectus (Article 134 of the Securities Code). Qualifying holdings in listed companies are subject to disclosure based on the EU Transparency Directive: Articles 16 et seq. of the Securities Code lay down the framework for disclosure triggered by a ladder of holding thresholds. Prospectuses approved by the appropriate authority of another EU country, pertaining to public offerings of takeover bids of shares admitted to trading in Portugal, are recognized by the CMVM, subject to translation into Portuguese and provided the CMVM receives the necessary documentation (Article 147-A of the Securities Code).
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public by the issuers of shares or other securities of a participating nature. When securities of less than €100,000 in nominal value (or subscription price as applicable) are offered to the public in Portugal, a prospectus is required and subject to approval by the CMVM and to public disclosure by the offeror (Articles 108, 111, 114, and 134 of the Securities Code). If the issuer is registered in another EU country, or if the securities were or are to be admitted to trading in a regulated market in another EU country, the approval of the prospectus may be the responsibility of that country's authority, if that is the choice of the issuer or of the offeror (Article 145 of the Security Code). A prospectus approved by the appropriate authority of an EU Member State is valid in Portugal if the CMVM receives the necessary documentation (Article 146 of the Securities Code)—the prospectus in English, the Portuguese translation of the summary, and the documents' certificate of approval. The CMVM may approve prospectuses of an issuer from a non-EU country if they are drawn up according to international standards of organizations of securities supervisory authorities—namely the International Organization of Securities Commissions (IOSCO)—and contain information required under the Securities Code and the Prospectus Regulation (Article 147 of the Securities Code).

Purchase abroad by residents	No.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public. Sales or issues of shares or other securities of a participating nature through a public offering launched simultaneously in Portugal and abroad require the prior publication of a prospectus (Article 134 of the Securities Code), which must be approved by the CMVM (Article 145, Subparagraph 1, of the Securities Code). If the sale or issue occurs through a public offering launched only abroad, the CMVM has no authority to control such offers, but may be consulted by the foreign authorities.
Bonds or other debt securities	No.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public to support the buying decisions of resident and nonresident investors before bonds and other debt securities are offered to the public. A prospectus must be published and be subject to approval by the CMVM (Article 114 of the Securities Code).
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public before bonds and other debt securities are offered to the public. When securities of less than €100,000 in nominal value (or subscription price as applicable) are offered to the public in Portugal, a prospectus is required and is subject to approval by the CMVM and to public disclosure by the offeror, pursuant to Articles 108, 111, 114, and 134 of the Securities Code. If the issuer is registered in another EU country or if the securities were or are to be admitted to trading in a regulated market, the approval of the prospectus may be the responsibility of that country's authority, if that is the choice of the issuer or of the offeror (Article 145 of the Security Code). A prospectus approved by the appropriate authority of an EU country is valid in Portugal as long as the CMVM receives the necessary documentation (Article 146 of the Securities Code)—the prospectus in English, the Portuguese translation of the summary, and the certificate of approval of such documents. The CMVM may also approve prospectuses of an issuer from a non-EU country, provided they are drawn up in accordance with international standards set by international organizations of securities supervisory authorities—namely IOSCO—and contain information required under the Securities Code and the Prospectus Regulation (Article 147 of the Securities Code).
Purchase abroad by residents

PORTUGAL

	No.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public. Sales or issues of debt securities through a public offering launched simultaneously in Portugal and abroad require the prior publication of a prospectus (Article 134 of the Securities Code), which must be approved by the CMVM (Article 145, Subparagraph 1, of the Securities Code). If the sale or issue occurs through a public offering launched only abroad, the CMVM has no authority to control such offers, but may be consulted by the foreign authorities.
On money market instruments	No.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public. Pursuant to Article 12(2) of Decree-Law No. 69/2004 of March 25, 2004, before commercial paper is offered to residents, the issuer must prepare an information document for CMVM approval. Furthermore, according to Article 17(8), issuance of commercial paper for which a prospectus is optional is subject to the same requirements as public offers for which a prospectus is mandatory under the securities law. CMVM Regulation No. 2/2014 of November 4, 2014, provides additional guidance related to the issuance of commercial paper.
Purchase abroad by residents	No.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.
On collective investment securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Only the marketing and sale of units in foreign AIFs to local retail investors require CMVM authorization. Sale and issuance of units of EU-harmonized funds—UCITS—are allowed, under the national regime resulting from the Directive 2009/65/EC (UCITS Directive), subject to a notification to CMVM from the home country competent authority. Sale and issuance of units of EU AIFs distributed only to professional investors are allowed, under the national regime resulting from the Directive 2011/61/EU (AIFMD), subject to a notification to CMVM from the home country competent authority. Sale and issuance of units of third-country AIFs distributed only to professional investors are allowed, subject to CMVM's authorization and, after the date to be specified on the delegated act to be adopted by the Commission pursuant to Article 67(6) of AIFMD, subject to notification to CMVM by the competent authority. The national regime on UCITS and AIFs is established in the General Framework of Collective Investment Schemes. Venture capital, social entrepreneurship, and specialized investment funds follow the regime established in the General Framework of Collective Investment Schemes (according to Article 65 of the Legal Framework of Venture Capital, Social Entrepreneurship, and Specialized Alternative Investment).
Purchase abroad by residents	No.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	In the case of UCITS funds and pursuant to the UCITS Directive, the CMVM, as the home country authority, sends passport notifications to the relevant authority in the EU host country where the units are to be marketed. Management companies authorized in the EEA may also establish UCITS in another member country. These features are regulated under the above-mentioned General Framework of Collective Investment Schemes. In accordance with the AIFMD, EEA management companies authorized by their home country authority may manage, market, and sell to professional investors, under an EU passport, units of EU and third-country AIFs in other EEA countries. Marketing and sale of such units to retail investors are subject to host-country laws.

Controls on derivatives and other instruments	No.	As a special case because of the high risk involved in certain types of differential contracts (CFDs) and in certain types of binary options, their marketing, distribution, or sale to retail investors was prohibited throughout the territory of the EU, following temporary decisions by the European Securities and Markets Authority (ESMA). Such restrictions were implemented as permanent measures in Portugal by the Regulation CMVM No. 5/2019. These prohibitions apply to the marketing, distributing, or selling the specific types of financial instruments either by Portuguese firms to resident and to nonresident retail investors and by non-Portuguese firms to resident retail investors. Apart from these special cases related to the information required to be disclosed to the buyer and to the high level of risk that makes the financial instrument not adequate to retail investors, the transactions of derivative instruments can generally be undertaken.

Foreign exchange market Yes.

Spot exchange market Yes. Exchange rates of commercial banks for transactions in US dollars are based on the buying and selling rates of the QCB. The buying and selling rates of commercial banks for other currencies are based on the QCB's rates for the US dollar and on the market rates for the other currency against the US dollar. A spread of QR 0.0085 is applied to exchange transactions with the public. Thirty-seven institutions are licensed by the QCB to deal in foreign exchange with the public. These institutions consist of 17 commercial banks and 20 foreign exchange bureaus, which are allowed to operate subject to licensing by the QCB. Foreign exchange bureaus do not engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the QCB, but they may maintain accounts abroad. Their operations are not limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes; they may also make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. Commercial banks trade US dollars domestically based on the price determined by the QCB, plus a margin of 0.24% when dealing with the public. Commercial banks trade other currencies based on the QCB-determined exchange rates of riyals against US dollars and market-determined rates of other currency against the US dollar. Commercial banks have a margin of 0.24% for US dollar trades and trade other currencies through the US dollar.

Operated by the central bank Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility Yes. The QCB buys and sells foreign currency at the announced rates every business day from 8:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., unless it decides otherwise. The QCB purchases US dollars at a fixed rate of QR 3.6385 and sells US dollars at a fixed rate of QR 3.6415 to banks in Qatar. The QCB does not deal directly either with the government or with other public entities.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2020.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	In accordance with UNSC Resolution Nos. 1267 (1999), 1333 (2000), 1373 (2001), and 1988 (2011), certain restrictions are maintained against the listed terrorists and the Taliban, aimed at freezing their accounts and banning all payments to persons and organizations related to terrorism.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Measures have been taken to freeze the accounts and assets of listed individuals, groups, and organizations associated with terrorism, and for safety reasons such as nonproliferation of weapons of mass destruction (that is, UNSC Resolution No. 1540 (2004)). These measures were taken in accordance with UNSC resolutions, updated by the 14 committees empowered (the activity of three committees being terminated as a result of lifting the related restrictions). In accordance with UNSC Resolution No. 1989 (2011), certain restrictions are maintained against the listed terrorists and the Taliban, aimed at freezing their accounts and banning all payments to persons and organizations related to terrorism.

Crawling peg

Crawl-like arrangement

Yes.

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed floating; the exchange rate of the leu is determined in the interbank foreign exchange market. The National Bank of Romania (NBR) may intervene to smooth excessive exchange rate fluctuations. There is no formal definition of excessive exchange rate fluctuations: The assessment is based on domestic and international market circumstances and on prevailing macroeconomic conditions. The NBR intervenes either directly with market participants at their quoted rates or via market makers. The NBR does not publish information on its interventions.

The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as crawl-like. The de facto methodology for classification of exchange rate regimes is based on a backward-looking statistical approach that relies on past exchange rate movement and historical data. Therefore, this reclassification does not imply statements or views on future or intended policies nor does it imply a policy commitment on the part of the country authorities.

Free floating

Yes.

The NBR quotes rates for 30 foreign currencies and the SDR. The exchange rates are based on the quotes of 10 local banks licensed to perform foreign exchange transactions. These banks are selected by the NBR, taking into consideration their participation in the interbank foreign exchange market. The use of exchange rates listed by the NBR is not compulsory for foreign exchange transactions and accounting records.

Point target
Target with tolerance band	Yes.	Flat multi-annual inflation target of 2.5%±1 percentage point is adopted.
Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.
CPI	Yes.	The flat multi-annual inflation target is defined in terms of the annual change in the CPI (that is, year-on-year (y-o-y) headline inflation). The CPI is based on the national definition.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	A flat multi-annual inflation target is adopted.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	As of August 12, 2021, the policy rate is 1.25%. The monetary policy interest rate is the interest rate on NBR's main open-market operations, which normally have a maturity of one week.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The interest rates on the NBR's standing facilities, that is, the deposit facility and the lending facility, were set at ±0.50 percentage points around the monetary policy rate as from March 23, 2020, when the amplitude of the interest rate corridor was narrowed from ± 1.00 percentage points. As of August 12, 2021, these interest rates stood at 0.75% (deposit facility) and 1.75% (lending facility).
Other	No.
Accountability	Yes.
Open letter	No.
Parliamentary hearings	No.
Other	Yes.	According to NBR's Statute (Article 35(4)), on behalf of the Board, the governor must submit to the parliament, until June 30 of the following year, the NBR's annual report, which covers the NBR's activities, annual financial statements, and the auditor's report, subject to debate, but not voted in the joint session of the two Chambers of parliament.
Transparency	Yes.	NBR's monetary policy decisions are communicated and explained to the public via: press releases, press briefings following the decisions, inflation reports (presented in detail in press conferences), publication of minutes, and annual reports.
Publication of votes	No.
Publication of minutes	Yes.	Starting with the NBR Board meeting of September 30, 2016, the account (minutes) of discussions underlying monetary policy decisions are published in the "Monetary Policy" section on the NBR website within seven calendar days after each Board meeting dedicated to monetary policy issues. The aim is to provide the general public with the rationale and economic data behind monetary policy decisions. The minutes include the outcome of the vote but the voting results are not attributed.

Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	In the context of the inflation-targeting framework, the NBR updates and publishes its medium-term inflation forecast on a quarterly basis within the inflation report.
Other monetary framework
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents are allowed access to the foreign exchange market without supporting documents. Juridical persons other than authorized credit institutions may purchase or sell foreign exchange through intermediaries. Individual persons may purchase or sell foreign currency either through intermediaries or through foreign exchange offices authorized by the Ministry of Public Finance (MPF), except those supervised by the NBR. Commercial banks and exchange bureaus are free to set both their exchange rates and commissions in transactions with their clients. Article 26 paragraph (1) (b) and Article 30 paragraph (1) of Law No. 129/2019 on the Prevention and Combating of Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing, as well as on the Modification and Completion of Some Normative Acts apply. The National Agency for Fiscal Administration (NAFA) is the designated institution for anti-money laundering and combating the financing of terrorism (AML/CFT) licensing and supervision of specialized foreign exchange entities, except those supervised by the NBR. According to the provisions Law No. 129/2019, as amended and supplemented, the structure of the supervisory committee is established by joint Order of the Minister of Public Finance, the Minister of Internal Affairs, the President of the National Authority for Consumer Protection, and the President of the National Office for Prevention and Control of Money Laundering (NOPCML). Its structure includes at least one representative of the MPF (legal and tax structures, legislative regulation structure), National Office for the Prevention and Control of Money Laundering, and law enforcement, Consumer Protection Authority and Ministry of Internal Affairs.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Foreign exchange offices conduct transactions with foreign currency banknotes and accept traveler's checks denominated in those currencies. They may also conduct transactions with foreign currencies that are not quoted. Licensing and control of foreign exchange offices/bureaus are performed by the MPF. Foreign exchange offices are not allowed to perform payments and transfers on behalf of their clients, because the payment services may only be legally performed in Romania by credit institutions, payment institutions, and electronic money institutions. Foreign exchange offices may maintain accounts abroad.
Operated by the central bank	No.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.	Economic operators or traders who perform precious metals activities are authorized by the National Authority for Consumer Protection.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Economic operators or traders who perform precious metals activities are authorized by the National Authority for Consumer Protection.
On external trade	Yes.	Economic operators or traders who perform precious metals activities are authorized by the National Authority for Consumer Protection.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	NBR regulations (NBR Regulation No. 4/2005 on the Foreign Exchange Regime), republished, amended, and supplemented by NBR Regulation No. 6/2012, do not stipulate controls on exports and imports of banknotes, but in accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1672/2018, cash controls require mandatory declaration of cash entering or leaving the EU equivalent to €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying cash of a value equivalent to €10,000 or more must make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. Thus, in accordance with the requirements to declare cash under Regulation (EC) No. 1672/2018 on controls of cash entering or leaving the Community and based on the Article 7 Paragraph 6 of Law No. 129/2019 on the Prevention and Combating of Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing, as well as on the Modification and Completion of Some Normative Acts, the NAFA is required to communicate to the NOPCML (FIU Romania), all the information it holds regarding declarations by natural persons of cash in domestic or foreign currency equal to or above €10,000, within the time limit established through the Regulation (EC) No. 1672/2018, according to a Methodology approved by joint Order of the President of the NAFA and the president of the NOPCML. In addition, Law No. 129/2019 on the Prevention and Combating of Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing, as well as on the Modification and Completion of Some Normative Acts stipulates that NAFA will immediately send a report to the NOPCML when, in the application of the Regulation (EC) No. 2018/1672, from the data held, knows, suspects, or has reasonable grounds to suspect that the goods/funds come from crimes or are related to the financing of terrorism or that the persons has violated the obligations established by this Regulation. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EC regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries, and the information must be transmitted to the EC. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EC regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EC regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EC regulation; the EC regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Credit institutions' accounting reports must conform to IFRS. Following implementation of IFRS 9, starting by 2018, which has replaced IAS 39 Financial Instruments: Recognition and Measurement, a regulation has been issued at European level (Regulation (EU) No. 2017/2395 amending Regulation (EU) No.

575/2013 as regards transitional arrangements for mitigating the impact of the introduction of IFRS 9 on own funds and for the large exposures treatment of certain public sector exposures denominated in the domestic currency of any Member State). Under this regulation, credit institutions were able to choose for a progressive phase-in regime (with a maximum duration of 5 years) to mitigate that potentially significant negative impact on CET1 capital arising from expected credit loss accounting. NBR Regulation No. 1/2018 applies.

In accordance with Regulation (EU) No. 2020/873 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 24, 2020, (amending regulations (EU) No. 575/2013 and (EU) No. 2019/876) as regards certain adjustments in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, to mitigate the potential impact that a sudden increase in expected credit loss provisions could have on institutions' capacity to lend to clients at times when it is most needed, the transitional arrangements should be extended by two years, and institutions should be allowed to fully add back to their CET1 capital any increase in new expected credit loss provisions that they recognize in 2020 and 2021 for their financial assets that are not credit impaired. Those changes would bring additional relief from the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on institutions' possible increase in provisioning needs under IFRS 9 while maintaining the transitional arrangements for the expected credit loss amounts established before the COVID-19 pandemic.

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, effective March 30, 2020, according to the Government Emergency Ordinance (GEO) No. 37 regarding the granting of facilities for loans granted by credit institutions and nonbank financial institutions to certain categories of debtors, a public moratorium to suspend the payment of the banking installments was introduced. The application deadline for the facilities of this moratorium expired on March 15, 2021.

Borrowing abroad No.

Maintenance of accounts abroad No.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits) No.

NBR Regulation No. 5/2013 (as amended and supplemented) requires that credit institutions have in place policies and processes for the identification, measurement, evaluation, monitoring, reporting, and control or decreasing of country risk and transfer risk. Credit institutions must set limits on country exposures. The credit institution's management body approves the strategies, processes, and policies on the management of country risk and transfer risk to ensure that these policies and processes are implemented effectively and are fully integrated into the overall risk management of the credit institution.

Lending locally in foreign exchange Yes.

Capital requirements addressing foreign exchange risk, indirectly affecting local lending in foreign exchange, are included in Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms and amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012. This regulation is directly applicable across the EU. Article 351 of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 requires banks whose overall net foreign exchange position exceeds 2% of their own funds to calculate capital requirements for foreign exchange risk. There is a different provisioning regime for foreign exchange loans by nonbank financial institutions to unhedged borrowers under NBR Regulation No. 5/2012 on the Classification and the Establishment, Adjustment, and Use of Specific Credit-Risk Provisions relevant to Romanian entities under the supervision of the NBR, other than credit institutions. The provisioning costs for foreign exchange loans to unhedged borrowers are higher than those for local currency lending.

According to NBR Regulation No. 17/2012, subsequently amended and supplemented, creditors must warn unhedged clients of the consequences of exchange rate depreciation on debt obligations and establish the maximum debt levels (debt-to-income ratio – DTI) for consumer loans. NBR Regulation No. 17/2012 provides for an aggregate DSTI ceiling of 40% of which the maximum DSTI for loans denominated or indexed in a foreign currency granted to debtors exposed to foreign exchange risk is 20%. The maximum levels of DSTI are increased by 5 percentage points in case of a mortgage loan contracted by the debtor for the purchase of the first residential property to be occupied by the debtor (including Prima Casa loans). The caps on the DSTI have been set including taking into account the impact of the currency risk, the interest rate risk, and the risk of decrease of the eligible income available during the period of the credit life. The regulation provides also for an exemption from the maximum level of the aggregate DSTI, under certain conditions, for up to 15% of the loans granted by a creditor. LTV ratios apply to foreign currency consumer loans (75%) and for foreign currency credit agreements secured by mortgages as follows: (1) 85% for lei; (2) 75% for euros, for unhedged borrowers; (3) 60% for other foreign currency, for unhedged borrowers; and (4) 80% for foreign currency credit, for hedged borrowers. Following the entry into force of the CRD IV package in 2014, the requirements for credit institutions were incorporated into NBR Regulation No. 5/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions.

Effective December 24, 2020, in accordance with NBR Regulation No. 11/2020 (amending and supplementing Regulation No. 5/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions), credit institutions must set their own risk limits for approving foreign currency loans and have in place policies and procedures adequate to the volume and complexity of their activity to accurately identify and assess the risks arising from the foreign currency lending of debtors not covered at foreign exchange risk and for their reflection both at the level of the processes of internal evaluation of the price of risks related to loans and at the level of the internal process of capital adequacy to risks.

Also, credit institutions must assess the existence and significance of the additional credit risk associated with foreign currency credit exposures of debtors not covered at foreign exchange risk and, in particular, any non-linear relationship between market risk and credit risk where exchange rates (market risk) can have a disproportionate impact on the credit risk of an institution's foreign currency loan portfolio.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange No.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange Yes.

Reserve requirements Yes.

Minimum reserve requirement ratios can differ according to the currency and residual maturity involved. The minimum reserve requirement ratio on leu-denominated liabilities of credit institutions is 8%. The minimum reserve requirement ratio on foreign-currency-denominated liabilities was reduced to 6% from 8% effective February 24, 2020. Effective November 24, 2020, this requirement was further reduced to 5%.

The minimum reserve ratio on leu- and foreign-currency-denominated liabilities with a residual maturity of over two years

Abroad by banks	Yes.	Following the entry into force of the CRD IV package, all its requirements for credit institutions were incorporated into NBR Regulation No. 5/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions. According to the amended regulation, for qualifying holdings (direct or indirect holdings in an enterprise that represent 10% or more of the capital or of the voting rights or that make it possible to exercise significant influence over the management, except financial sector entities or enterprises deemed by the relevant authority to be engaged in the following: (1) direct extension of banking; (2) activities ancillary to banking; and (3) leasing, factoring, management of unit trusts, management of data processing services, or similar activity) for the purpose of calculating the capital requirement, Romanian credit institutions must apply a risk weight of 1.250% to the greater of the following: (1) the amount of qualifying holdings in excess of 15% of eligible capital or (2) the total amount of qualifying holdings that exceed 60% of the eligible capital of the institution (NBR Regulation No. 5/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions and Regulation No. 575 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 26, 2013, on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms and amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012 (CRR)). Total investments outside the financial sector may not exceed 60% of a bank's own capital (Regulation No. 575 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 26, 2013, on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms and amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012 (CRR)). Banks may not acquire shares in a nonfinancial entity, either resident or nonresident, if that results in control over that entity. In addition, NBR approval is needed if a bank intends to acquire a qualifying holding in a financial entity outside the EU, if this entity will be included in the scope of the bank's prudential consolidation (GEO No. 99/2006 regarding Credit Institutions and Capital Adequacy, approved by Law No. 227/2007, as amended).
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Advance NBR notification is required for investments by residents or nonresidents of 10% or more in a bank's capital. The NBR may oppose the acquisition within (generally) 60 working days of notification.

Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Insurance/reinsurance companies are licensed and supervised under the Law No. 237/2015 on the authorization and supervision of the business of insurance and reinsurance, which transposes the EU Directive (EC) No. 2009/138 on the taking-up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance (Solvency II), with subsequent completions. The regulatory framework is completed by the European Commission's Regulations (Commission Delegated Regulation No. 2015/35 and all the other Regulations laying down implementing/regulatory technical standards with regard to different area of the Directive), which are binding in their entirety and directly applicable in all Member States, and by the secondary legislation issued by the Romanian Financial Supervisory Authority (FSA) to implement the European Insurance and Occupational Pensions Authority (EIOPA) Guidelines or to regulate other aspects not covered by the legislative acts previously mentioned. Solvency II is a risk-based supervision regime, imposing for the insurance/reinsurance companies to determine their solvency capital requirements (SCR) and minimum capital requirements (MCR) depending on the risks associated to their businesses, using the standard formula provided by the Directive or their own internal models approved by the FSA, and to cover them with eligible own funds. The regulatory framework establishes detailed rules for insurance/reinsurance companies related to their system of governance, classification of own funds in three tiers, eligibility criteria of own funds for covering of SCR, methodologies to calculate technical provisions, etc. The Solvency II regime does not apply to specific insurance companies which fulfill certain conditions (such as gross written premiums under €5 million, technical reserves under €25 million, locally business only, non-underwriting of liability, and credit and suretyship risks). For this category of insurance companies, member states are allowed to impose their own licensing and supervision conditions. In Romania, for this category of insurance companies, the FSA decided to maintain the former supervision regime, with some improvements mainly related to the qualitative requirements (such as those related to system of governance and public disclosure). Consequently, for the insurance companies falling out the scope of Solvency II regime, there are no significant changes in legal requirements related to available and minimum solvency margin, minimum guarantee fund, methodology to calculate the technical reserves, assets admitted to cover the technical reserves and other quantitative requirements) comparing to those applicable before January 1, 2016, the former provisions being included in the Regulation No. 28/2015 on the operation of supervised insurers in accordance with the national regime. According to Article 24, the categories of assets admitted to cover the technical reserves are: (1) investments: (a) government securities and treasury notes; (b) securities issued by local public administration authorities; (c) bonds and other money and capital market instruments, similar therewith, traded on a supervised market;

(d) shares and other variable yield securities, similar therewith, traded on a supervised market; (e) units in UCITS and other investment funds; (f) deposits and current accounts with credit institutions; (g) land and buildings owned by the insurers, except for agricultural land and land located outside the built-up area of localities; (2) receivables: (a) receivables with contractors and intermediaries resulting from direct insurance operations and acceptances in reinsurance; (b) the part of the technical reserves related to contracts ceded in reinsurance, except for the contracts ceded to captive insurers and reinsurers and which do not have a rating granted by at least one of the rating agencies registered or certified according to Regulation (EC) No. 1.060/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council of September 16, 2009, on credit rating agencies; (c) interest receivable related to the assets admitted to cover the gross technical reserves; (3) other assets: (a) acquisition costs carried forward; (b) available cash. The rules for the diversification of the admitted assets are established in Article 26 as follows: (1) The insurers may invest maximum: (a) 50% of the gross technical reserves in shares, bonds, and other capital market instruments traded on a regulated and supervised market, as well as units with UCITS and other investment funds in compliance with the provisions of Letter b); (b) 5% of the gross technical reserves in shares and other negotiable securities treated as shares, bonds, debt securities, and other money or capital market instruments, as well as units with UCITS and other investment funds issued by the same entity; (c) 20% of the gross technical reserves in land and buildings, in compliance with the provisions of Letter d) and of Article 24(4); (d) 10% of the gross technical reserves in one land or building or in a number of plots of land or buildings sufficiently closely located so as to be considered a single investment; (e) 90% of the gross technical reserves in deposits and available funds with credit institutions, but not more than 20% of the gross technical reserves in a single credit institution; (f) 3% of the gross technical reserves in cash; (g) 5% of the part of the technical reserves related to the contracts ceded in reinsurance to insurers/reinsurers that do not have a rating granted by at least one of the rating agencies registered or certified according to Regulation (EC) No. 1.060/2009. (2) In the case of the categories of assets admitted to cover the gross technical reserves, other than those referred to in Paragraph (1), for which no maximum limits were provided, when investing them, the insurers must comply with the following rules: (a) the assets covering the gross technical reserves must be diversified so that there is no excessive use of a certain category of assets, of an investment market, or of an investment; (b) the investments in certain types of assets posing a high risk either because of the nature of the asset or because of the status of the issuer must be limited to a prudential level; (c) the limits of certain categories of assets must have regard to the treatment of reinsurances in the calculation of the technical reserves; (d) if the assets held represent an investment in a subsidiary that manages in full or in part the insurers' investments in their name, when applying the provisions of Article 23 (6), Articles 24–26 hereof, and those regarding the categories of gross technical reserves for the insurers pursuing life insurance business provided by the FSA regulations, they must take into account the subsidiary's assets, the treatment of the assets of other subsidiaries of the insurers being similar.

With the implementation of the Solvency II regime, there are no investment restrictions. The insurance/reinsurance companies invest all their assets in accordance with the “prudent person” principle (in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report; all

		assets, in particular those covering the MCR and the SCR, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole and the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability). The absence of regulatory limits on investments does not mean that undertakings can take investment decisions without any regard to prudence and to the interests of policyholders. The requirements of Solvency II and of the Commission Delegated Regulation No. 2015/35 cover extensively some of the main aspects of the prudent person principle, such as asset-liability management, investment in derivatives, liquidity risk management, and concentration risk management. For the insurance companies falling out the scope of Solvency II regime, the FSA Regulation No. 28/2015 provides that the assets that cover gross technical provisions must be placed in Romania. These insurers may invest gross technical provisions in (1) government bonds and treasury bills; (2) debt securities, bonds, and other money and capital market instruments traded in supervised markets; (3) shares and other variable yield participations traded in supervised markets; and (4) units in UCITS and other investment funds.

- (5) the conditions under which the undertaking can pledge or lend assets;
- (6) the link between market risk and other risks in adverse scenarios;
- (7) the procedure for appropriately valuing and verifying the investment assets;
- (8) the procedures to monitor the performance of the investments and review the policy when necessary;
- (9) how the assets are to be selected in the best interest of policyholders and beneficiaries.

For the insurance companies falling out of the scope of Solvency II regime, the FSA Regulation No. 28/2015 provides the following maximum limits of the investments covering gross technical provisions: (1) 50% in shares, bonds, and other instruments traded in a regulated and supervised capital market and in debt securities in companies for collective investment in securities, according to the provisions of point (2); (2) 5% in shares and other negotiable securities treated as shares, bonds, debt certificates, and other money and capital market instruments and in debt securities in companies for collective investment in securities issued by the same company; (3) 20% in land and buildings (agricultural land and land outside built-up areas may not cover technical provisions); (4) 10% in a single land or building investment or in multiple land and building investments close enough together to be considered one investment; and (5) 90% in deposits and accounts in credit institutions, with no more than 20% of the gross technical provisions in a single credit institution. The above maximum limits apply to the total value of the technical gross provisions and are similar for life and non-life activity. For both non-life-insurance and life insurance activity, the assets covering the technical provisions must be evaluated on a prudential basis, taking into account the minimum between the book value and the market value. If a certain asset does not have rules regarding maximum limits, the FSA may restrict the use of that asset.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition

Yes.

With the implementation of Solvency II regime, there are no currency-matching rules. For the insurance companies falling out of the scope of Solvency II regime, Article 28 of the FSA Regulation No. 28/2015 provides matching rules for assets covering technical provisions as follows: (1) The insurers must comply with the principle of matching assets, which refers to the coverage of the obligations subscribed in a certain currency with assets expressed or realizable in the same currency. (2) The insurers' obligations are deemed to be paid in the currency in which the commitments in the contract were expressed. (3) If the insurers' obligations provided in the contract are not expressed in a certain currency, the insurers' commitments are deemed to be payable in Romanian leu. (4) By way of exception from Paragraph (3), the insurers may opt for the currency in which the premiums are collected if there is an adequate framework for adopting such a solution; this is possible if, starting from the entry into force of the contract, it is likely that a claim is paid in the currency in which the premium is collected, and not in Romanian leu. (5) If the insurers reported a claim that may be paid in a currency other than that resulting from the implementation of the procedures mentioned in this article, the insurers' commitments must be paid in that currency and, particularly, in the currency established by the court of law or by a settlement concluded between the insurer and the contractor. (6) If a claim is requested which is expressed in a currency known in advance by the insurers but which is different from the currency resulting from the implementation of the procedures mentioned in this article, the insurers' commitments may be paid in that currency. (7) The insurers may choose not to cover the technical reserves with matching assets if the implementation of the procedures provided by this article results in their obligation to keep the assets in a currency not exceeding 7% of the assets expressed in other currency, to comply with the principle of matching assets. (8) If the commitments may be paid in a currency of a third country, if the investments in such currency are regulated, if the currency is subject to transfer restrictions or if, for similar reasons, the currency is not appropriate to cover technical reserves, the insurers do not have the obligation to comply with the principle of matching assets. (9) The insurers may hold assets that are not matching to cover an amount not exceeding 20% of their obligations in a certain currency.

Pension funds

Yes.

Pension funds are governed by Law No. 411/2004 regarding privately administered pension funds, recast as amended, Law No. 204/2006 on voluntary pension funds, as amended, and Law No. 1/2020 on occupational pension as amended. The Private Pensions Guarantee Fund was established under Law No. 187/2011 to guarantee the rights of members and beneficiaries of the private pension system. Annual contributions that private pension funds' management companies make to the Private Pensions Guarantee Fund are computed based on provisions of Norm No. 2/2013. As a first measure for guaranteeing the rights of members and beneficiaries, privately administered pension fund management companies are required to establish a technical provision based on the provisions of Norm No. 13/2012 and voluntary pension fund management companies are required to establish a technical provision based on the provisions of Norm No. 26/2015. The market regulator is the FSA—The Private Pensions Sector, formerly known as the Private Pension System Supervisory Commission.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents

Yes.

Laws and other regulations do not set different limits on securities issued by residents and nonresidents from the EU or the EEA. Some regulations refer to specific securities issued by countries that are not EU or EEA members traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, and EEA countries. There are general rules for portfolio diversification established by the primary law provisions (Article 25 of Law No. 411/2004, and Article 87 of Law No. 204/2006 and Article 98 of Law No. 1/2020) and secondary legislation (Norm No. 11/2011 on the investment and evaluation of private pension fund assets, as amended and Norm No. 16/2020 on the investment of occupational pension funds). Regarding the Norm No. 11/2011, the assets of pension funds may be invested in (1) money market instruments up to 20% with the following sublimits: (a) current accounts in lei or foreign currency in banks authorized to operate in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 5%; (b) bank deposits in lei or foreign currency in banks authorized to operate in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 20%; (c) treasury bills traded on regulated markets or on a secondary market in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 20%; (d) reverse repo agreements with credit institution counterparties up to 5%; (2) government bonds (including treasury bills designated in (1) (c)) issued by the MPF, EU members, or EEA countries up to 70%; (3) municipal bonds and other securities issued by local authorities in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries and traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 30%; (4) securities traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 50% with the following sublimits: (a) shares and rights traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 50%; (b) corporate bonds, except those that embed derivatives up to 30%; (5) government bonds issued by countries that are not EU or EEA members, traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 15%; (6) municipal bonds and other securities issued by local authorities of countries that are not EU or EEA members, traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 10%; (7) bonds issued by the World Bank, EBRD, and EIB and traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 15%; (8) bonds issued by foreign nongovernmental institutions, except as indicated in (7) traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 5%; (9) UCITS including exchange-traded funds in Romania or EU members up to 5%; and (10) exchange-traded commodities and non-UCITS traded on regulated markets in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 3%.

In addition, GEO No. 38/2019 introduced the possibility for the assets of privately administered pension funds to be invested:

- (1) in shares and bonds of public private partnerships issued in accordance with GEO No. 39/2018 regarding public private partnerships or in infrastructure investment funds up to 15%;
- (2) financial instruments traded on regulated markets and issued by real estate investment funds or companies undertaking real estate activities such as real estate development or marketing, purchasing and selling own real estate, letting and sub-letting activities, and facility management up to 3%;
- (3) private equity shares or bonds issued by companies in Romania, EU members or EEA countries or units issued by private equity funds from EU members or EEA countries up to 10%.

Effective May 14, 2020, regarding the Norm No. 16/2020 on the investment of occupational pension funds, the asset of pension funds may be invested in

- (1) current accounts in lei or foreign currency in banks authorized to operate in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 20%;
- (2) bank deposits in lei or foreign currency in banks authorized to operate in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 30%;
- (3) treasury bills traded on regulated markets or on a secondary market in Romania, EU members, or EEA countries up to 30%;
- (4) reverse repo agreements with credit institution counterparties up to 10%;

Floating

Free floating

Yes. The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are free floating. Under this arrangement, the exchange rate of the ruble is determined by market factors. The BR does not perform interventions in the domestic foreign exchange market for the purpose of maintaining a certain exchange rate or determining the speed at which it changes. At the same time, the BR may perform operations with foreign currency in the domestic market in the event of a threat to financial stability, and also to replenish (use) international reserves in connection with application of the budget rule by the Russian MOF.

In 2020, the dynamics of the ruble's exchange rate have been determined by capital flight from developing markets because of the coronavirus pandemic, the decline in oil prices in March–April, and an inflow of capital as financial markets stabilized.

In the spring of 2020, the BR was faced with high risks to financial stability because of exchange rate volatility caused by a drop in the price for Urals grade oil to below US$25 a barrel and a decline in oil and gas exports. On March 9, 2020, the BR announced a suspension of foreign currency purchases under the budget rule for 30 days, and those postponed in 2018. On March 10, 2020, it announced a shift to the forward sale of foreign currency, taking into account the actual oil price in effect under the budget rule. Because of the high degree of uncertainty associated with further development of the pandemic in Russia and around the world, the BR did not make any commitments with regard to the specific volumes and terms of the forward sales. Daily foreign currency sales between March 11 and 19, 2020, were in the range of 3.6 billion to 5.6 billion rubles, and the BR posted information about this on its website on a daily basis (under the “Banking sector liquidity and monetary policy instruments” subsection in the “Statistics” section).

As of March 19, 2020, in addition to standard operations, within the context of the budget rule the BR started to sell foreign currency in the domestic market as part of the transaction by the Russian Federation government to acquire a block of shares in the Sberbank Public Joint-Stock Company at the expense of funds from the National Wealth Fund. In connection with this, the markets experienced greater volatility, the BR developed a sales mechanism intended to strengthen the stabilizing effect of the budget rule given low oil prices and thereby promote economic and financial stability. According to this mechanism, additional foreign currency sales were intended to make up entirely for the shortfall in the supply of foreign currency in the domestic foreign exchange market because of a decline in export earnings from the sale of oil, petroleum products, and natural gas when the price for Urals grade oil fell below US$25 a barrel. This measure was aimed at easing the volatility in the foreign exchange market at a specific point in time, and not at establishing a certain exchange rate, and it made it possible to strengthen the stabilizing effect of the budget rule with extraordinarily low oil prices. (A new cut-off price was not set under the budget rule.) The forward sales mechanism was in effect through April 6, 2020. As of April 7, 2020, the BR switched to regular currency sales under the budget rule. The price conditions that developed in the oil market in May–August meant that operations involving currency sales as part of the transaction with Sberbank shares came to an end after May 12, 2020. As of May 13, 2020, the BR performed only regular operations in the foreign exchange market under the budget rule.

As announced July 24, 2020, to minimize its impact in the foreign exchange market, after September 30, 2020, the BR performed an offsetting (netting) of the remaining foreign currency to be sold under the transaction with the block of Sberbank shares, the volume of forward sales performed in March–April and purchases deferred during this period, the volume of purchases that were deferred in 2018 and had still not been carried out, and currency sales as part of the transaction involving acquisition of Aeroflot Public JointStock Company shares by the Russian Federation government at the expense of the National Wealth Fund. Under other circumstances, all of these operations would have been performed on instructions from the Russian MOF over a longer period of time.

In 2021, the ruble’s exchange rate was relatively stable against a backdrop of favorable external factors. Specifically, oil prices rose by more than 40%, and there was essentially no change in the demand for risk assets. Isolated periods of a significant weakening of the exchange rate, which were seen in January and March, for example, were tied to geopolitical and sanction risks, which have declined significantly at this point and do not have a substantial impact on the exchange rate. Starting in May, the tightening of monetary policy by the BR is providing additional support to the ruble.

Data on operations involving the purchase (sale) of foreign exchange performed by the BR on instructions from the Russian MOF are published on the official website of the BR on a daily basis in the Factors Affecting Banking Sector Liquidity table (under the column Operations of the Russian MOF Involving the Purchase (Sale) of Foreign Exchange in the Domestic Exchange Market). Information about the frequency and volumes of the BR’s foreign currency interventions is posted on the BR’s website under the “Liquidity of the banking sector and monetary policy instruments” subsection of the “Statistics” section.

Official exchange rate

Yes.

The BR establishes official exchange rates for a number of foreign currencies against the ruble. These rates may be used in calculating state budget revenues and expenditures for payments and settlements by state administrative agencies with businesses, organizations, and individuals and for taxation and accounting. Regulation of the use of the official exchange rates of foreign currencies against the ruble for various purposes, including the areas of their mandatory use, is not within the BR's purview.

Official exchange rates are set every business day and, effective April 3, 2020, on non-business days announced in the Russian Federation (for example, related to quarantine), with the exception of non-business days that are weekends or official holidays, and take effect the next calendar day. Information on official rates is published on the BR's website the day they are set and in the next edition of the BR Bulletin. The official rate for each currency applies until the next official rate becomes effective.

The official US dollar–ruble exchange rate is calculated on the basis of quotes for this currency pair in the domestic foreign exchange market. The calculation of official rates for other foreign currencies against the ruble is based on quotes of these currencies against the US dollar in the global market and the official exchange rate of the US dollar and the ruble.

Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Pursuant to Federal Law No. 86-FZ of July 10, 2002, on the Central Bank of the Russian Federation, the BR licenses credit institutions to handle banking transactions (Paragraph 8 of Article 4). Branches may handle all or some of the banking operations (including purchase and sell foreign exchange cash) that are provided for under the banking license of the credit institution (and the regulation on the branch) and delegated to them. Internal structural subdivisions that purchase and sell foreign exchange cash must also handle other transactions delegated to them by the credit institution. Operations with foreign exchange cash are performed in accordance with relevant BR regulations. Pursuant to Articles 8.8 and 8.9 of BR Instruction No. 135-I of April 2, 2010, basic and universal banking licenses, as provided for by annexes 29, 30, 32, 42–44 and annexes 34, 36, 45, and 46 of said Instruction, respectively, allow credit institutions created through incorporation to carry out operations in foreign currency. As of December 31, 2020, the number of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations in foreign exchange was 399. As of December 31, 2020, the number of professional participants in the securities market with a broker, dealer, or trust license (other than client brokers) was 376.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may open foreign exchange accounts with authorized banks without restriction and perform foreign exchange operations on such accounts in accordance with the foreign exchange legislation.
		Foreign exchange accounts for residents are opened, maintained, and closed following the same procedure as for domestic currency accounts opened by authorized banks on the basis of a bank account or deposit agreement.
		Accounts of residents in foreign currency opened with authorized banks may be used for any operations, with the exception of operations in foreign currency between residents that are not listed in Article 9 of Federal Law No. 173-FZ that contains the list of foreign currency operations that are permitted between residents.
		The provisions of Instruction No. 181-I with regard to a failure to provide an authorized bank with documents related to the performance of operations pertain to residents that have concluded foreign trade agreements with nonresidents, the obligations under which do not exceed 200,000 rubles.
		Residents may transfer funds from their accounts (deposits) at authorized banks to their own accounts opened at banks outside Russia without restriction.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	Residents, except as indicated under Federal Law No. 79-FZ of May 7, 2013, on Prohibiting Certain Categories of Persons from Opening and Maintaining Accounts (Deposits) and Holding Cash and Valuables at Foreign Banks Located Outside the Territory of the Russian Federation and Holding and/or Using Foreign Financial Instruments (this law concerns government employees), may without restriction open accounts (deposits) in foreign currency and in rubles at banks and, effective January 1, 2020, other financial market institutions located outside the territory of the Russian Federation, in accordance with the private law of such institutions that have the right to provide services related to the attraction from residents and placement of funds or other financial assets for safekeeping, management, investment, and/or the performance of other transactions in the interests of a resident or directly or indirectly on behalf of a resident.

Residents must notify the tax authorities where they are registered of the opening and closing of these accounts and of any change in account details no later than one month after opening or closing an account or a change in account details, and residents must also provide reports, effective January 1, 2020, on the movement of funds and, effective August 11, 2020, other financial assets on accounts (deposits) at banks and other institutions in the financial market located outside the territory of the Russian Federation.

If resident individuals are abroad for a total of more than 183 days in a calendar year, then they are exempted for the period of their stay abroad from submitting a notice to the tax authority. When returning to Russia (if the period of the stay abroad was less than a total of 183 days in a calendar year), such an individual must notify the tax authority of accounts abroad before June 1 of the year following the reporting year and must also submit to tax authorities with which he is registered reports on the movement of funds on accounts (deposits) at banks located outside the Russian Federation.

Transfers by resident legal entities of funds to their accounts with banks outside Russia from their accounts with authorized banks require, at the time of the first transfer, presentation to the authorized bank of the notification provided to the tax authority where the resident legal entity is registered and acknowledgment of receipt of that notification.

Resident authorized banks licensed to engage in ruble and foreign exchange transactions may maintain correspondent accounts with nonresident banks. They may also open accounts with nonresident banks to service the activities of their representative offices abroad, subject to notification requirements. Foreign branches of authorized banks may freely maintain accounts with nonresident banks subject to the permission of the parent bank.

Pursuant to Federal Law No. 92-FZ of May 1, 2017, on Amending Certain Legislative Acts of the Russian Federation, two types of banks were defined: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. A bank with a basic license is not permitted to open bank (correspondent) accounts at foreign banks, with the exception of the opening of an account at a foreign bank for the purpose of participating in a foreign payment system. A bank with a basic license does not have the right to provide loans to foreign legal entities, to foreign organizations that are not legal entities under foreign law, or to individuals subject to the private law of a foreign state (Federal Law No. 92-FZ of May 1, 2017). A bank with a universal license that has obtained the status of a bank with a basic license or that has changed its status to that of a nonbank credit institution, or a bank with a basic license that has changed its status to that of a nonbank credit institution, is required to abrogate a bank (correspondent) account agreement with a foreign bank within one year of the date such status is acquired. This restriction does not apply to cases in which an account is opened at a foreign bank for the purpose of participating in a foreign payment system. Effective April 17, 2020, the crediting of funds to accounts (deposits) of residents opened at financial market institutions and the debiting of funds from such accounts (deposits) are performed in all cases without restriction.

Residents may transfer to their accounts with banks outside Russia funds from their accounts with authorized banks or from other accounts with banks abroad. Any types of foreign exchange transactions on accounts (deposits) opened with banks abroad are allowed between residents that stay outside the territory of the Russian Federation for a total of more than 183 days in a calendar year.

Residents' accounts at banks outside Russia may be credited with: (1) interest earned on the balance of such accounts; (2) a minimum deposit required by the rules of the respective bank when opening an account (deposit); (3) cash placed in an account (deposit); (4) funds received as a result of conversion operations using funds credited to such accounts (deposits); (5) taxes refunded by competent authorities of the state visited by the resident; (6) funds received by resident individuals as wages, reimbursement for business travel expenses, and other payments made in foreign currency outside the Russian Federation under labor agreements concluded by them with resident legal entities providing for the performance by such resident individuals of their official duties outside the Russian Federation; (7) transfers in rubles from the accounts of other residents in Russia and from the accounts of other residents abroad; (8) transfers in connection with execution of the Russian Federation budget; (9) transfers for the purpose of carrying out the activities of diplomatic missions and consular institutions of the Russian Federation, permanent missions of the Russian Federation to international (interstate, intergovernmental) organizations, other official representative offices of the Russian Federation and representative offices of federal executive government bodies located outside the Russian Federation; (10) transfers of foreign currency by Russian resident individuals that do not exceed in one business day through one authorized bank the equivalent of US$5,000 at the official BR exchange rate on the date the funds are debited; (11) transfers under settlements between transportation entities and individuals abroad, as well as with branches, representative offices, and other subdivisions of legal entities, under passenger transportation agreements; (12) transfers by residents from their accounts with authorized banks to accounts of related residents (spouse or close relative – direct forebear or descendant: parent, child, brother, sister, grandparent, grandchild, full-blooded or half-blooded, with a common father or mother, adoptive parent, adopted child); (13) transfers of foreign exchange from accounts with authorized banks (opened by federal executive branch authorities performing functions related to their activities outside the Russian Federation through their representatives or representative offices, organizations that are entitled on the basis of federal law to use the accounts of said official representative offices and permanent missions of the Russian Federation, and organizations that have concluded agreements with federal executive government bodies managing the activities of trade representative offices of the Russian Federation in foreign states regarding the employment conditions for representatives at trade representative offices of the Russian Federation in foreign states) to the accounts of diplomatic missions and consular institutions of the Russian Federation, permanent missions of the Russian Federation to international (interstate, intergovernmental) organizations, other official representative offices of the Russian Federation and representative offices of federal executive government bodies located outside the Russian Federation for the payment of wages and other payments related to the maintenance of their representatives or personnel of their representative offices located outside the Russian Federation, and also for payment and/or reimbursement of business travel expenses; (14) settlements performed outside the Russian Federation between resident individuals who have spent a total of more than 183 days in a calendar year outside the Russian Federation and resident legal entities that are Russian public higher education institutions or branches thereof, located outside the territory of the Russian Federation, under education contracts; (15) payment of wages to resident individuals and other payments made in foreign currency outside the Russian Federation under labor agreements concluded by them with resident legal entities providing for the performance by such resident individuals of their official duties outside the Russian Federation; (16) the receipt of foreign exchange assets through inheritance and the transfer of foreign exchange assets in a deceased person's estate to beneficiaries of the estate; (17) effective January 1, 2021, transfers of foreign currency by resident individuals from their accounts at authorized banks to pay for goods delivered to them, work performed for them, services provided to them, information and intellectual property provided to them, including exclusive rights thereto, by resident individuals who have spent a total of more than 183 days outside the Russian Federation in a calendar year and who are engaged in entrepreneurial activity without incorporation as a legal entity in accordance with the legislation of the foreign state in which they are located, to accounts (deposits) of such individuals opened at banks located outside the Russian Federation; (18) settlements with resident individuals located abroad, with the branches, representative offices, and other subdivisions of legal entities established under Russian law, as well as with nonresident individuals, under contracts for the transportation of passengers, and settlements in foreign exchange and rubles by resident individuals abroad and with nonresident individuals, under contracts for the transportation of freight by individuals for personal, family, household, and other noncommercial needs; (19) payments by nonresidents of wages and other payments to resident individuals related to the performance of their official duties outside Russia under labor agreements (contracts) with nonresidents, and in the form of payment for and/or reimbursement of expenses incurred by such resident individuals in connection with official business travel abroad; (20) payments by nonresidents to resident individuals in accordance with rulings of courts of foreign states, with the exception of decisions by international commercial arbitration bodies; (21) payments by nonresidents of pensions, scholarships, child support, and other payments of a social nature to resident individuals; (22) insurance payments to resident individuals made by nonresident insurers; (23) payments by nonresidents to resident individuals made in the process of returning funds previously paid by resident individuals, including the return of funds transferred in error, the refunding of money for a product previously purchased by a resident individual from a nonresident and subsequently returned, or for a service for which a nonresident was paid by a resident; (24) a gift of foreign exchange assets made by a resident individual to a spouse or close relatives and a bequest of foreign exchange assets or the receipt of foreign exchange assets through an inheritance or as a beneficiary of an estate; (25) effective January 1, 2020, income from the sale of precious metals recorded on residents' accounts opened at banks located outside the Russian Federation and paid by nonresidents by virtue of the requirements of the legislation of a foreign state, bypassing accounts at authorized banks; (26) crediting of foreign currency or rubles to the accounts of resident legal entities or third parties at banks outside the Russian Federation – for the purpose of fulfilling the obligations of resident legal entities under credit facilities and loan agreements with nonresident organizations that are agents of governments of foreign states, and also under credit facilities and loan agreements concluded with residents of Eurasian Economic Union (EAEU) member states or with residents of foreign states (territories) with which there is automatic exchange of financial information, for a term of more than two years; (27) payment or reimbursement by (nonresident) contracting authorities and/or (nonresident) third parties for local expenses of residents under agreements (contracts) concluded by them with nonresidents in the performance of activity by said residents, arising in connection with the construction, reconstruction, or modernization by residents of facilities located outside the territory of the Russian Federation – for the period of the construction, reconstruction, or modernization, on the conclusion of which the remaining funds must be transferred to residents' accounts opened at authorized banks; (28) the receipt of foreign currency by residents from exhibitions and sports, cultural, and other similar events abroad (must be used to cover expenses of such events for the duration of the event); (29) the crediting of foreign currency or rubles to the accounts of resident transportation entities with banks abroad for payment of aerial navigation, airport, and port fees and other fees in foreign countries; expenses associated with the servicing of aircraft, river and marine vessels, and other means of transport of such transportation entities and their passengers abroad; and expenses for the activities of branches, representative offices, and other offices of such transportation entities located abroad; (30) funds in foreign currency and, effective January 1, 2020, rubles under foreign trade agreements (contracts) concluded by such residents with nonresidents, with respect to which the repatriation requirement has been lifted; (31) a refund by a nonresident of funds previously paid by a representative office or branch of a resident legal entity for goods purchased from a nonresident and being returned by the representative office or branch of a resident legal entity, for a service for which the representative office or branch of a resident legal entity made payment to the nonresident in the event that the service was not performed or was not properly performed, under transactions related to the performance of activities of the representative office or branch of a resident legal entity, with the exception of transactions that entail the performance of foreign trade activity; (32) a refund by a nonresident of funds previously offered by a representative office or branch of a resident legal entity as security under a real estate lease; (33) funds paid by a nonresident to a representative office or branch of a resident legal entity under a purchase and sale agreement for a motor vehicle and/or other property which the resident legal entity allocated to its representative office or branch, with the exception of transactions that entail the performance of foreign trade activity; (34) effective August 11, 2020, insurance payments made by nonresident insurers to a representative office or branch of a resident legal entity; (35) effective January 1, 2020, funds received from nonresidents may be credited without restriction to accounts (deposits) of resident individuals opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation on the condition that these banks are located within the territory of an EAEU member state or within a foreign state (territory) with which there is automatic exchange of financial information. Previously, only the following funds from nonresidents could be credited to accounts of resident individuals opened at banks in OECD or FATF member countries: (a) income from the leasing (or subletting) of the resident individual's real estate or other property located outside Russia to nonresidents; (b) funds paid in the form of accumulated interest (coupon) income provided for under the terms of an issue of foreign securities belonging to a resident individual, as well as other income on foreign securities (dividends, payments on bonds and bills, and payments when there is a reduction in the authorized capital of an issuer of a foreign security); and (c) funds paid to a resident individual in the form of income earned from the placement of funds and/or securities in trust with a nonresident trust manager.

The foreign currency credited in accordance with Items (26) and (28) above to the accounts of residents or third parties with banks abroad must be used to meet the residents' obligations as specified under said items or transferred to accounts with authorized banks.

Effective July 2, 2021, in cases when regulatory legal acts of the Central Bank of the Russian Federation or the legislation of a foreign state or association of foreign states require the provision of security for the fulfillment of obligations under financial agreements concluded with nonresidents, the following funds from nonresidents may be credited to the accounts of resident legal entities that are qualified investors or professional participants in the securities market, which have been opened at banks located outside the Russian Federation: (1) those provided as security for the fulfillment of obligations under financial agreements; (2) those paid as a refund for funds previously paid by such residents, including the return of funds transferred in error and the return of funds when they are no longer serving as security for the fulfillment of obligations under financial agreements; (3) those paid in the form of interest, coupon income, dividends, or other income on funds or other assets offered as security for the fulfillment of obligations under financial agreements or recorded on the resident's accounts after the funds and/or other assets were posted to these accounts in accordance with this federal law; (4) those paid in the form of proceeds from the sale of security for fulfillment of obligations under financial agreements when collection action is taken; (5) those paid on securities provided as collateral for fulfillment of obligations under financial agreements or recorded on the resident's accounts after they were posted to these accounts in accordance with this federal law, in the form of redemption (or partial redemption) of securities, as well as income from the buyback of securities by their issuer, from the sale of securities on the basis of a voluntary offer, including a competitive offer, a compulsory offer, or the compulsory conveyance of securities on another basis, or from the distribution of the assets of a company undergoing liquidation among the shareholders.

Approval required No.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad Yes.

Residents have the right to open accounts (deposits) in rubles at banks and other financial market institutions abroad in accordance with the private law of such institutions that have the right to provide services related to the attraction from residents and placement of funds or other financial assets for safekeeping, management, investment, and/or the performance of other transactions in the interests of a resident or directly or indirectly on the account of a resident, without limitation. Exceptions are established by Federal Law No. 79-FZ of May 7, 2013, on Prohibiting Certain Categories of Persons from Opening and Maintaining Accounts (Deposits) and Holding Cash and Valuables at Foreign Banks Located Outside the Territory of the Russian Federation, and Holding and/or Using Foreign Financial Instruments (as amended). The procedure for opening a ruble account by residents at banks abroad and the grounds for the performance of foreign currency operations on these accounts are the same as those established for accounts (deposits) in foreign currency opened by residents at banks abroad.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency Yes.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes. Nonresidents have the right to open bank accounts (bank deposits) in foreign currency at authorized banks within Russia. They may carry out any operations on their accounts in foreign currency and in Russian rubles.

Nonresidents have the right without restriction to transfer foreign currency from their bank accounts (bank deposits) at authorized banks to their own accounts (deposits) at banks abroad.

The requirements of Instruction No. 181-I of August 16, 2017, apply to nonresidents only with regard to their presentation to an authorized bank of the settlement document for the given operation when performing an operation that involves the debiting of rubles from their bank account (with the exception of cases referred to in paragraphs 2 through 5 of Item 2.8 of Instruction No. 181-I); the document must contain in the entry "Purpose of payment" the code for the type of operation, which corresponds to the name of the operation indicated in Annex 1 to Instruction No. 181-I.

Federal Law No. 92-FZ of May 1, 2017, on Amendments to Certain Legislative Acts of the Russian Federation, defined two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license.

A bank with a basic license is not permitted to open bank (correspondent) accounts at foreign banks, with the exception of the opening of an account at a foreign bank for the purpose of participating in a foreign payment system. A bank with a basic license does not have the right to provide loans to foreign legal entities, to foreign organizations that are not legal entities under foreign law, or to individuals subject to the private law of a foreign state (Federal Law No. 92-FZ of May 1, 2017).

Approval required No.

Domestic currency accounts Yes. Nonresidents may without restriction make transfers of rubles between their accounts and from accounts abroad to accounts at authorized banks or from accounts at authorized banks to accounts abroad or at other authorized banks.

Foreign exchange operations between residents and nonresidents with rubles as a means of payment are performed without restriction. Nonresidents, except individuals, in the performance of a foreign exchange operation involving the debiting of rubles from the nonresident's own bank account opened at an authorized bank in rubles must submit to the authorized bank a settlement document for a foreign exchange operation, indicating (except for certain cases) the code for the type of foreign exchange operation corresponding to the purpose of the payment.

Follow-up monitoring of the performance of the aforementioned operations is performed within the context of monitoring residents who are parties to such operations.

Advance payment requirements	Yes.
------------------------------	------

The requirement concerning the importation of goods into the Russian Federation after a resident has made an advance payment for imports within the deadline established by a foreign trade agreement (contract) is provided for by the foreign exchange legislation of the Russian Federation.

Thus, when performing foreign trade activity residents are required, within the deadlines specified by foreign trade agreements (contracts), to either import the goods into the Russian Federation or provide for the return to the Russian Federation of the funds paid to nonresidents as an advance payment.

When performing foreign trade activity residents are required to provide information to authorized banks about the deadlines for nonresidents' fulfillment of obligations under foreign trade agreements (contracts) through the transfer of goods to residents based on the advance payments made by the residents, and the deadlines for the return of said advance payments in accordance with the terms of the foreign trade agreements (contracts). In the event that goods are not imported into the Russian Federation and an advance payment is not returned, this information is forwarded by the authorized bank to the foreign exchange control body (the Russian Federal Customs Service), which applies administrative enforcement measures against the resident for violation of the repatriation requirement.

Other	Yes.

Residents are not required to submit documents to an authorized bank related to the performance of foreign exchange transactions under any contracts with nonresidents if the amount of obligations under them does not exceed 200,000 rubles. In the case of a contract that contains obligations exceeding the equivalent of 200,000 rubles but not exceeding the equivalent of

RUSSIA

3,000,000 rubles, when debiting foreign currency from its account a resident must submit to an authorized bank documents related to the performance of the transaction, together with the order to debit the foreign currency.

In the case of an import contract containing obligations equal to or greater than the equivalent of 3,000,000 rubles, a resident must register the contract with an authorized bank.

The following are subject to registration with an authorized bank:

(1) agreements, including agency agreements, commission agreements, and trust agreements providing for the importation of goods into the Russian Federation in the performance of foreign trade activity; (2) agreements providing for the purchase and/or performance of services related to the purchase within the Russian Federation (or outside the Russian Federation) of fuel and lubricants (bunker fuel), food, material and technical supplies, and other goods (with the exception of spare parts and equipment) necessary to ensure the operation and maintenance of vehicles, regardless of their type and purpose, en route or at intermediate stopping points or parking areas; (3) agreements, including agency agreements, commission agreements, and trust agreements, with the exception of agreements referred to under (1), (2), and (4), which provide for the performance of work, delivery of services, or the transfer of information and intellectual property, including exclusive rights thereto; and (4) agreements providing for the transfer of movable and/or real property under a rental agreement or financial lease agreements (leasing).

To register a contract, a resident importer must present to an authorized bank an import contract (excerpt from a contract) containing information needed by the authorized bank for registration of the contract and the performance of foreign exchange control, including oversight of the resident's compliance with repatriation requirements, as well as other information needed by the authorized bank.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	The repatriation requirement for export earnings under foreign trade

export contracts (non-commodity goods, work, services, and intellectual property) was lifted with regard to the entire amount of the contract effective January 1, 2020, in the currency of the Russian Federation, and in foreign currency effective July 1, 2021.

In the case of foreign trade contracts for raw materials exports (with the exception of timber and timber materials, as well as contracts concluded by budget organizations), the lifting of the repatriation requirement for Russian currency is scheduled to take place in several stages from January 1, 2020, to January 1, 2024:

effective January 1, 2020 – applicable to 10% of the contract amount;

effective January 1, 2021 – applicable to 30% of the contract amount;

as of January 1, 2022 – applicable to 50% of the contract amount;

as of January 1, 2023 – applicable to 70% of the contract amount;

as of January 1, 2024 – applicable to the entire contract amount.

Under contracts for which the repatriation requirement has been lifted, export earnings may be posted without restriction to residents' accounts opened at banks outside the Russian Federation, and there are no restrictions on the methods for fulfillment or termination of obligations under such contracts.

In other cases, when performing foreign trade activity (under contracts for which the repatriation requirement is still in place, such as those involving raw material exports, prepayment for imports, repayment of loans), residents must credit to their accounts at authorized banks, within the time periods specified in the foreign trade contracts or loan agreements, funds in foreign currency or rubles due to them under the terms of said contracts, except in the following cases: (1) when foreign currency or currency of the Russian Federation is credited to accounts of resident legal entities or third parties with banks outside the territory of the Russian Federation to fulfill the obligations of resident legal entities under credit facilities and loan agreements with nonresident organizations that are agents of foreign governments and under credit facilities and loan agreements with residents of EAEU members or with residents of foreign states (territories) with which there is automatic exchange of financial information, for a period exceeding two years; (2) in the case of payment or reimbursement by (nonresident) contracting authorities and/or (nonresident) third parties for local expenses of residents under agreements (contracts) concluded by them with nonresidents in the performance of activity by said residents, arising in connection with the construction, reconstruction, or modernization by residents of facilities located outside the territory of the Russian Federation – for the period of the construction, reconstruction, or modernization, on the conclusion of which the remaining funds must be transferred to residents' accounts opened at authorized banks; (3) when foreign currency obtained from exhibitions and sports, cultural, and other similar events abroad is used for expenses of such events, for the duration of the event; (4) when foreign currency is used to offset counterclaims for obligations (a) between resident and nonresident entities that conduct fishing operations abroad and provide services abroad under agency agreements with residents; (b) between resident and nonresident transportation entities performing services abroad for residents under agreements with them; or (c) between resident and nonresident transportation entities if settlement takes place through specialized entities established by international organizations in the area of international transportation and of which such resident transportation entities are members; (d) effective August 11, 2020, in the event that settlements between resident and nonresident transportation entities are performed in accordance with rules adopted by international organizations in the area of international shipments, which establish the procedure for the performance of mutual settlements and related services; (5) when foreign currency is used to offset counterclaims for obligations resulting from reinsurance agreements or service agreements connected with reinsurance agreements between nonresidents and resident insurance entities or insurance brokers; (6) when foreign currency proceeds are credited to the accounts of resident transportation entities with banks abroad to pay for the expenses of such transportation entities abroad in connection with the payment of aerial navigation, airport and port fees and other mandatory fees abroad; expenses associated with the servicing of aircraft, river and marine vessels, and other means of transport and their passengers abroad; and expenses connected with branches, representative offices, and other offices located abroad; (7) when there is offsetting of counterclaims on obligations arising from agreements concluded between residents engaged in exports of natural gas in the gaseous state and nonresidents that provide for the purchase and sale of natural gas in the gaseous state, and agreements under which nonresidents have obligations to residents in connection with the transit of natural gas in the gaseous state across the territory of foreign states; (8) when counterclaims on obligations arising from agreements on the provision of international telecommunications services, including international roaming services, are offset between a nonresident and a resident that are international telecommunications operators, including situations in which settlements between them are performed through specialized settlement organizations registered within member states of the International Telecommunication Union; (9) when crediting foreign currency or currency of the Russian Federation to accounts opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation by Russian public higher education institutions and their branches located outside the territory of the Russian Federation, under education contracts with nonresident individuals that provide for the delivery of educational services outside the territory of the Russian Federation; (10) effective February 17, 2021, in the event of the posting of funds to their own accounts at authorized banks in the form of insurance payments from resident insurance companies under insurance contracts to cover the risk of default by a nonresident on obligations under foreign trade export contracts; (11) effective June 28, 2021, in the event of the posting of funds to their own accounts at authorized banks under a bank guarantee issued to nonresidents in favor of residents to secure fulfillment of a nonresident's obligations under a foreign trade contract.

The foreign currency credited in accordance with Items (1) and (3) above to the accounts of residents or third parties with banks abroad must be used to meet the residents' obligations as specified under said items or transferred to accounts with authorized banks.
