Export licenses	Yes.	New export operations should use the Single Export Declaration (Declaração Única de Exportação – DUE). The DUE is based on the electronic receipt and comprises information of a commercial, administrative, customs, tax and logistics nature that characterizes the export operation of the merchandise contained therein. It is basic document for the customs clearance and should therefore cover all the goods contained in an export consignment subject to this procedure. By now with the implementation of the Licensing, Permits, Certificates and Other Export Documents (LPCO-Exportation) module of the Single Window, it is also possible to request to the government bodies the legal document necessary to the export through a single point on the Internet. The responsible agency will analyze the request within 30 days (Law No. 9.784, of 1999, Article 49). As of August 10, 2020, the inward process is now regulated by Ordinance SECEX No. 44 (2020) which updated the rules of the regime to simplify the procedures and provide greater predictability and legal certainty to foreign trade operators. As for financed exports, similarly as to the previous system, it is necessary to present the Operations Summary Form (Ficha de Resumo de Operações) directly to the National Development Bank (BNDES) so that the financing operation can be started. The LPCO will be created by the National Development Bank itself to ensure consistency between the Ficha de Resumo de Operações and the LPCO so as to mitigate a large reason for requesting rectification of the credit records. A number of products are subject to special export procedures, including exports subject export taxes, export licenses, or country-specific tariff quotas in certain markets under Brazil’s international agreements. The Annex of Ordinance SECEX No. 52 lists the export procedures of goods under quotas, which are described on the Annex XVII of Ordinance SECEX No. 23. These include (1) certain types of beef to the EU under the “Hilton quota”; (2) poultry and poultry preparations to the EU subject to country-specific tariff quotas; (3) sugar and confectionery products to the EU subject to export licenses; (4) milk to Colombia under the MERCOSUR quota; (5) cigarettes; (6) precious stones, which may be sold for foreign currency to nonresidents; (7) arms and ammunition subject to export tax and other restrictions; and (8) effective May 8, 2020, cars to Argentina, under the Economic Complementation Agreement – ACE No. 14. The exports procedures of cars to Colombia, under MERCOSUR/Colombia Economic Complementation Agreement – ACE No. 72, are described in the Ordinance SECEX No. 49. In accordance with UNSC resolutions, Brazil prohibits exports of weapons and military equipment to the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Iraq, the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea, Libya, Sierra Leone, Somalia, and Sudan and of materials and technology that could lead to the development of nuclear weapons. Exports of some products are prohibited for reasons of environmental protection and compliance with international agreements (for example, Montreal Protocol) and UNSC resolutions. Some export operations are subject to control by government agencies, including the SECEX. Most operations that the SECEX examines have automatic approval through the SISCOMEX, under parameters of analysis in the system. Exports of certain goods require authorization from government agencies mainly for reasons of safety and environmental protection and compliance with international agreements. Effective June 29, 2020, Decree No. 10,407 (2020) of June 29, 2020, as amended by Decree No. 10,752 (2021) of July 23, 2021, instituted prior authorization for the export of certain medical products essential to combat COVID-19.

With quotas	Yes.	Some products listed in SECEX Ordinance No. 72 of December 18, 2020, are subject to tariff quotas/licenses when exported to certain markets. There are export quotas for Europe and United Kingdom (poultry, beef – Hilton quota – and sugar), Colombia (milk and cars), effective June 3, 2020, Argentina (cars) and effective December 21, 2020, Paraguay (cars). There are also some export quotas for goods in MERCOSUR/Colombia and MERCOSUR/Israel Agreements (SACME – MERCOSUR Quota Management System). In the case of beef and poultry, the producers must be accredited by the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Food Supply (Ministério da Agricultura, Pecuária e Abastecimento, MAPA) and accepted by the EU or United Kingdom as safe exporters to obtain a quota. Exports of milk (HS 0402) to Colombia must obtain a MERCOSUR quota authorization from the Subsecretariat of Foreign Trade Operations (SUEXT) to benefit from the access conditions under the Economic Complementation Agreement.

Currency board	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement is a currency board. The Brunei Darussalam Central Bank (BDCB) issues Brunei dollars and manages the Currency Fund, which is used to back up the currency in circulation. Under the Currency Interchangeability Agreement (CIA), signed in 1967, which remains in effect between the BDCB and the Monetary Authority of Singapore, the monetary authorities agree to the mutual exchange of their currency at par without charge. The monetary authorities and banks must accept each other's currency at par, and the currencies are customary tender in both countries. Excess currency is repatriated regularly, with the cost borne by the currency-issuing authority. The BDCB must ensure that reserves in the Currency Fund cover at least 100% of the currency in circulation as required under the Currency Order, 2004, as amended by the Currency and Monetary (Amendment) Order, 2010. The BDCB publishes data on the reserves used to cover the currency in circulation in its annual report.

Exchange tax No.Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. The Brunei Association of Banks provides indicative daily buying and selling rates to its members for transfers/remittances in 15 other currencies on the basis of the interbank quotes for these foreign currencies against Singapore dollars. Customers are encouraged to liaise with their respective banks for competitive rates should they want to deal in this foreign exchange as rates fluctuate from time to time.

Spot exchange market Yes. As of December 31, 2020, there were 7 banks (6 conventional and 1 Islamic), 18 remittance companies, and 24 money changers that were authorized to conduct foreign exchange transactions (including four hotels with conditional license).
 Money-changing businesses:
 do not conduct foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB;
 do not maintain accounts abroad;
 are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes; and are not allowed to make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients.

		As for remittance businesses, foreign exchange transactions are not conducted directly with the CB. Remittance business can maintain accounts abroad. Remittance business operations are mainly focused on transmitting funds abroad. The purchase and sale of banknotes are not part of their operations.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BDCB does not control or direct any foreign exchange activity with banks, except for the Singapore dollar activity.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BDCB stands ready to buy and sell Singapore dollars for Brunei dollars at the official rate without a bid-ask spread or commission. The BDCB deals only in Singapore dollars and does not quote rates for other currency. The BDCB deals directly with the government.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.

Bulgaria implements the following European Regulations and Directives for the prevention of the use of the financial system for the purposes of money laundering or terrorism financing and regarding the information accompanying transfers of funds: Directive (EU) No. 2015/849 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 20 May 2015 on the prevention of the use of the financial system for the purposes of money laundering or terrorism financing, amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012 of the European Parliament and of the Council, and repealing Directive (EC) No. 2005/60 of the European Parliament and of the Council and Commission Directive (EC) No. 2006/70.

Directive (EU) No. 2018/843 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 30 May 2018 amending Directive (EU) No. 2015/849 on the prevention of the use of the financial system for the purposes of money laundering or terrorism financing and amending Directive (EC) No. 2009/138 and Directive (EU) No. 2013/36.

Regulation (EU) No. 2015/847 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 20 May 2015 on information accompanying transfers of funds and repealing Regulation (EC) No. 1781/2006.

Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2019/758 of 31 January 2019 supplementing Directive (EU) No. 2015/849 of the European Parliament and of the Council with regard to regulatory technical standards for the minimum action and the type of additional measures credit and financial institutions must take to mitigate money-laundering and terrorism financing risk in certain third countries.

Effective March 12, 2021, the EU Council decided to revoke the EU framework for sanctions against persons identified as responsible for the misappropriation of Egyptian state funds, and, to that effect, to lift the restrictive measures currently in force against nine Egyptian individuals. Restrictive measures were initially adopted on February 21, 2011.

documentation to the payment services provider. Ordinance No. 28 of the MOF and BNB on the Information and Documents Submitted to Payment Service Providers in Executing Third-Party Cross-Border Transfers and Payments provides the details on this requirement.

Bulgaria applies the EU import licensing system, based on the premise that import licenses are not required except for specific products subject to quantitative restrictions, safeguard measures, or import monitoring and surveillance. The basic regulations setting up the rules for imposition of safeguard measures are Regulation (EU) No. 2015/755 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 29 April 2015 on common rules for imports from certain third countries and Regulation (EU) No. 2015/478 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 11 March 2015 on common rules for imports (codified version of Regulation No. 260/2009). By Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2019/159, the European Commission imposed a definitive safeguard measure, which consists of tariff-rate quotas on imports into EU of certain steel products. (This Regulation entered into force on February 2, 2019). Where tariff quotas are exhausted, a safeguard duty at the rate of 25% is applied on the imports of the steel products in the scope of the Regulation No. 2019/159 of February 2, 2019.

Effective May 15, 2020, regulation on prior EU surveillance of imports of certain steel and aluminum products originating in certain third countries expired.

After the second review investigation carried out by the European Commission, effective July 1, 2020, the Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2020/894 of June 29, 2020 amending Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2019/159 imposing definitive safeguard measures against imports of certain steel products is in force.

Effective July 1, 2021, Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2021/1029 of June 24, 2021 amending Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2019/159 to prolong the safeguard measure on imports of certain steel products is in force.

Agricultural imports are licensed for statistical purposes under an automatic licensing system. Import licenses require lodging a security and are valid in all EU member countries. Some EU agricultural tariff quotas are subject to import licensing. Licenses may be issued on a pro rata or historical basis or related to quotas of exporting countries. Article 176 (1) of Regulation (EU) No. 1308/2013 requires licensing of certain agricultural imports, which are listed in Annex, Part I, of Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2016/1237 and include cereals, rice, sugar, olive oil, flax and hemp, fruits and vegetables, processed fruits and vegetables, beef and veal, milk and milk products, pork, eggs, poultry, and agricultural ethyl alcohol. Import licenses are issued by the relevant authority on request. Forest Law Enforcement, Governance, and Trade voluntary partnership agreements with the EU are subject to licensing. Under these agreements, timber-producing countries agree to verify the legality of their shipments of timber and timber products to the EU. Forest Law Enforcement, Governance, and Trade voluntary partnership agreements were signed with Ghana (2010), the Democratic Republic of the Congo (2011), Cameroon (2011), the Central African Republic (2012), Liberia (2013), and Indonesia (2014). Negotiations are ongoing with Côte d'Ivoire, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Gabon, Guyana, Honduras, Laos, Malaysia, Thailand, and Vietnam.

govern the allocation of tariff-rate quotas for exports of wood from Russia to the EU (OJ L 152, June 13, 2012, pp. 28–37, and OJ L 351, December 12, 2012, pp. 34–35, respectively).

Import surveillance applies to the following agricultural products: rice, flax and hemp, and agricultural ethyl alcohol. These products are subject to automatic licensing for statistical purposes and to maintain better control over their origin. The EU licenses a range of firearms and ammunition. Imported food must comply with the requirements of EU food and animal health laws, conditions recognized by the EU as equivalent to these requirements, or requirements contained in specific agreements. The EU has sanitary and phytosanitary agreements with Andorra, Canada, Chile, EFTA, the Faeroe Islands, Liechtenstein, Mexico, New Zealand, San Marino, Switzerland, and the United States. Imports of live animals and animal products are prohibited except from previously approved areas, which are on the Commission's relevant "third country list." Products and live animals generally may be imported only from countries on the approved third country import list for that product or animal species. Products of animal origin usually must be from establishments approved for exportation to the EU. In October 2010, the EU adopted legislation that prohibits the sale of illegally harvested timber and timber products in the EU – Regulation No. 995/2010. Under Regulation No. 995/2010, operators who sell domestically produced or imported timber and timber products in the EU for the first time must exercise due diligence to ensure that such products do not contain illegally timber harvested. Due diligence systems involve a risk management exercise based on information and criteria in the regulation. Anyone trading in timber and timber products within the EU, except first-time participants in the EU market, must keep records of their suppliers and customers. Timber and timber products with valid Forest Law Enforcement, Governance and Trade or CITES licenses are considered to be in compliance. Effective January 1, 2021, a new law entered into full force across the EU – the Conflict Minerals Regulation – Regulation (EU) No. 2017/821 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 May 2017 laying down supply chain due diligence obligations for Union importers of tin, tantalum and tungsten, their ores, and gold originating from conflict-affected and high-risk areas. It aims to help stem the trade in four minerals – tin, tantalum, tungsten, and gold – which sometimes finance armed conflict or are mined using forced labor.

Imports of the following items are prohibited in accordance with UN or EU regulations: antipersonnel mines, torture equipment, and certain products from the Islamic Republic of Iran, the DPRK, and Syria.

Regulation (EU) No. 2019/125 of February 20, 2019, of the European Parliament and of the Council of 16 January 2019 concerning trade in certain goods which could be used for capital punishment, torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment (codified version of Regulation No. 1236/2005), Council Regulation (EU) No. 692/2014 (as amended) restricts imports into the EU of goods from Crimea or Sevastopol, in response to the illegal annexation of Crimea and Sevastopol.

Council Regulation (EU) No. 2021/1030 effective June 24, 2021, amending Regulation (EC) No. 765/2006 concerning restrictive measures in respect of Belarus prohibit the import petroleum products as listed in Annex VII, import, purchase or transfer, directly or indirectly, potassium chloride ("potash") products as listed in Annex VIII from Belarus, whether or not originating in Belarus. Furthermore, restrictions on access to Union capital markets should be imposed in relation to the Belarusian Government, as well as Belarusian state-owned financial institutions and entities. A prohibition should also be introduced on providing insurance and re-insurance to the Belarusian Government and Belarusian public bodies and agencies.

Council Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1509 of August 30, 2017, concerning restrictive measures against the DPRK and repealing Regulation (EC) No. 329/2007 introduced restrictions on the import and export of certain goods, services, and technology which could contribute to the DPRK's nuclear-related, ballistic missile-related, or other weapons of mass destruction-related programs, luxury goods embargo.

Import taxes and/or tariffs

Yes.

Bulgaria applies import tariffs according to the Community Customs Code for trade with countries outside the EU and does not levy tariffs on trade within the EU. Under the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, common customs tariff duties are set by the European Parliament and the Council or by the Council based on a proposal from the Commission. The basic customs legislation is the EU Customs Code and its implementing regulation: Council Regulation (EEC) No. 2913/92, October 12, 1992, establishing the Community Customs Code (OJ L 302, October 19, 1992), applied as of January 1, 1994, and Commission Regulation (EEC) No. 2454/93, July 2, 1993, establishing Provisions for the Implementation of the Common Customs, as amended. The EU has exclusive authority in customs matters. Customs procedures, as defined in EU legislation, are harmonized and monitored at the EU level. The tariff nomenclature, known as the Combined Nomenclature, is based on the Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System (HS). The 2013 tariff reflects the fourth amendment to the HS (HS 2007). The EU has harmonized the structure and established a number of minimum rates for excise duties – indirect taxes on the consumption or use of certain products – on alcohol, tobacco, and energy. The EU maintains a public online database that integrates tariff rates and other measures, including quantitative restrictions and contingency measures applied on imports (and exports) – known as TARIC (Integrated Tariff of the European Communities).

Effective May 28, 2021, the European Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2021/866, suspended commercial policy measures concerning certain products originating in the United States of America imposed by Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2018/886. The EU suspends the application of additional ad valorem duties of a rate of 10%, 25%, 35%, and 50% on imports of the products listed in Annex II to Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2018/886 ranging to and including November 30, 2021. The duties provided for in Annex II of Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2018/886 must thus apply with effect from and including December 1, 2021 (previously set to apply from June 1, 2021).

Export licenses	Yes.	Export licensing for agricultural products serves statistical purposes. Export licenses are subject to lodging a security and are valid in all the member countries of the EU.
Without quotas	Yes.	Bulgaria has adopted EU policies for export licenses. An export authorization or license is required for cultural goods and certain agricultural products and for the control of exports of dual-use items and technology. Under Article 176 (1) of Regulation (EU) No. 1308/2013, the Commission may require an export license for one or more products from the following categories: cereals, rice, sugar, beef and veal, milk and milk products, pigmeat, eggs, and poultrymeat. Article 2(2) of Regulation No. 1237/2016 requires a license for exports of products listed in Part II of the Annex (rice) and the following Union products referred to in Part II of the Annex to be exported: (1) products that are under the customs procedure of inward processing; (2) products that are basic products as listed in Annex III to Regulation (EU) No. 510/2014 of the European Parliament and of the Council and that are under the customs procedure of outward processing; (3) products that are subject to the recovery or remission of the amount of import or export duty as set out in Chapter 3 of Title III of Regulation (EU) No. 952/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council in respect of which a final decision has not yet been taken. Export licenses are issued by the relevant authorities at the request of economic operators. There are quantitative restrictions and controls on exports for foreign policy or national security reasons. These follow EU common rules governing exports of military technology and equipment, as defined in Council Common Position (CFSP) No. 2008/944, which aims to standardize members' arms export policies to meet agreed minimum standards. Exports of dual-use items are controlled at the EU level.

BULGARIA

Effective September 9, 2021, the EU's dual-use export control system in Regulation (EU) No. 2021/821 of the European Parliament and of the Council of May 20, 2021 entered into force, setting up a Union regime for the control of exports, brokering, technical assistance, transit, and transfer of dual-use items (recast). It defines dual-use items as "items, including software and technology, which can be used for both civil and military purposes, and includes items which can be used for the design, development, production or use of nuclear, chemical or biological weapons or their means of delivery, including all items which can be used for both non-explosive uses and assisting in any way in the manufacture of nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices." Bulgaria has imposed some restrictive measure on some countries for security reasons. Effective January 31, 2021, an export authorisation is required for the export of vaccines against SARS-related coronaviruses. This requirement also covers active substances including master and working cell banks used for the manufacture of such vaccines. Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2021/1071 of June 29, 2021 prolonged the implementation of this measure until September 30, 2021.

In line with its CFSP obligations, Bulgaria has imposed restrictive measures on some countries for security reasons.

With quotas	Yes.	Article 2(2)(b) of Regulation No. 1237/2016 requires a license for exports of EU products for which an export license needs to be presented for admission under a quota that is administered by the Union or by a third country and has been opened in that country for those products. Tariff quotas must be administered in one of the following ways: (1) based on the chronological order of submission of the applications (first-come, first-served principle); (2) distributed in proportion to the quantities requested at the time of application (simultaneous examination method); or (3) taking into account traditional trade patterns (traditional/new comers method). Export licenses are issued by the relevant authorities at the request of economic operators.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Law on Limitation of Cash Payments aims to limit cash payments. According to the law, payments in Bulgaria may be made only through transfers or payments on account if (1) the amount is equal to or exceeds lev 10,000; (2) the amount is less than lev 10,000 but may be considered as part of a linked payment transaction on the same grounds whose total value is equal to or exceeds 10,000 lev; or (3) the provisions of the law are applicable also to foreign currency payments equal to or exceeding lev 10,000. The provisions do not apply to (1) withdrawals or cash payments from the holder's own accounts; (2) withdrawals or cash payments from accounts of family members, direct relatives, and fully or partially legally disabled individuals; (3) cash transactions by foreign exchange bureaus; (4) banknote and coin operations with the CB; (5) exchanges by banks of damaged Bulgarian banknotes and coins; (6) payment of wages; and (7) payments of deposits guaranteed as defined by the Law on Bank Deposits Guarantee. The amendments to the Law on Limitation of Cash Payments on April 10, 2018, create a new possibility of collecting revenues by means of card payments to the budget organizations and their subordinate budget authorizers by delegation serviced by the BNB. In this way, these budget organizations can optimize the management of their revenues as the amounts directly come to the account with the BNB, designated for the purpose. In this way, cashless payments in the public sector are optimized, and the costs for servicing cash payments are reduced. With regard to natural and legal persons, this amendment to the Law creates one more free and convenient way for them to pay their obligations to the budgets of these budget organizations. Article 4, Paragraph 8, of the Law expressly says that natural and legal persons pay no bank charges or fees for making card payments to budget organizations.

Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	The Solvency II Directive (EC) No. 2009/138 transposed into the Bulgarian Insurance Code introduces prudential requirements tailored to the specific risks which each insurer bears. Those prudential requirements are not restrictions and apply equally to all insurers. The directive requires insurance companies to hold capital in relation to their risk profiles to guarantee that they have enough financial resources to withstand financial difficulties. Also, the Insurance companies under the scope of the Directive (insurers with a right of access to the common market of the EU and EEA) have to put in place an adequate and transparent governance system and conduct their own risk and solvency assessment on a regular basis. These insurers should invest its assets in accordance with prudent person principle (Article 124 of the Insurance Code). There are no restrictions on investing in financial instruments issued by nonresidents for insurance undertakings under the scope of the Solvency II Directive (insurers with a right of access to the common market). Chapter XVII, Articles 198–207, of the Insurance Code defines the technical reserves requirements and the provisional fund of an insurer excluded from the scope of the Solvency II Directive (insurers without a right of access to the market of the EU and EEA). The general rules for diversification, the currency conformity rules, and special rules for the cover of reserves for the investment funds of life insurance companies apply. The requirement of Article 198 is not a restriction, because it is a general rule applicable equally to all insurers that fulfill the requirements of Part IV of the Insurance Code. Chapter XVIII, Article 208, of the Insurance Code and the following defines own funds; the solvency margins, and guarantee capital, which applies only to the insurers without a right of access to the common market. Different types of assets may cover technical reserves of insurance companies without a right of access to the common market (Article 200 of the Insurance Code). The requirement of Articles 208 and 200 is not restrictions, because they are general rules applicable to all insurers equally.

There are no restrictions on investing technical reserves in financial instruments issued by nonresidents. Investments to cover technical provisions are securities admitted for trading on a regulated market or a multilateral trading facility (MTF) in the Republic of Bulgaria or in another Member State, as well as shares, qualified bonds, and other qualified debt securities, admitted for trade on internationally recognized and liquid regulated markets or multilateral trading facilities in a third state as it is described in Article 200, Paragraph 1, p. 1, of the Insurance Code. There are other assets that may cover the technical provisions of the insurers without a right to access of the common market described in Article 200 of the Insurance Code. All assets must be invested in compliance with the prudent person principle. According to the rules on diversification, the technical provisions can be invested: (1) up to 20% in real estate, but not more than 10% in a single property or in a group of properties that may be regarded as one investment because of their location; (2) up to 80% in securities under Article 200, Paragraph 1, Items 1 and 3, but not more than 30% in assets other than qualified bonds and other qualified debt securities; (3) without any restriction whatsoever in assets under Article 200, Paragraph 1, Item 2; (4) up to 5% in securities of a single issuer, where this restriction may not apply to assets specified in Article 200, Paragraph 1, Item 2; (5) up to 50% in bank deposits, but not more than 25% of the gross amount with one bank; and (6) up to 3% in cash in hand and under current accounts.

Territorial distribution rules stipulate that the technical reserves must be covered by assets located on the territory of the Republic of Bulgaria or on the territory of a member state. By permission of the Commission, issued in each specific case, technical reserves may also be covered by assets, located within the territory of a third country.

The requirement for territorial distribution of assets under Article 205, Paragraph 1, may not apply to cases where the technical reserves are covered by investments in receivables from reinsurers in the proportion set under Article 202.

The assets' location according to Article 205, Paragraph 1, must be:

- (1) For ownership of real estate – the real estate's location;
- (2) For securities:
  - (a) the issuing enterprise's seat of business;
  - (b) the bank's seat of business – in case the securities are guaranteed by a bank;
  - (c) the Depository's seat of business – in the case of dematerialized securities;
- (3) For deposits – the place where the deposit contract has been concluded;
- (4) For any other receivables – the debtor's seat of business;
- (5) For shares in investment funds – the location of assets included in the fund with a predominant share, fixed pursuant to the terms and conditions under Items 1–4.

Requirements for professional qualification and reliability – Article 80(7) stipulates that each member of a management or control body of an insurer or of a reinsurer, respectively, as well as each person authorized to manage and/or represent it must hold a permit for long-term residence in the Republic of Bulgaria if he is a person from a third country.

In terms of granting consent in the case of a transfer of an insurance portfolio within the EU, the FSC must refuse to grant consent, when insurance contracts, under which risks located in the Republic of Bulgaria are covered, are transferred to:

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents

Yes.

(1) a branch of an insurer from a third country with a seat of business in another member state;

(2) an insurer from a member state which does not have the right to cover risks on the territory of the Republic of Bulgaria.

In terms of certification of the capital solvency requirement of an insurer with a seat of business in the Republic of Bulgaria on transfer of insurance portfolio by an insurer from a third country established in a member state through a branch – the FSC must issue a document, certifying that, following the transfer, the undertaking insurer will have at its disposal the necessary eligible own funds for cover of the capital solvency requirement.

The FSC must refuse to issue such certificate, if: (1) following the transfer, the undertaking insurer or the branch of an insurer from a third country registered in the Republic of Bulgaria, respectively, will not have at its disposal the necessary eligible own funds for cover of the capital solvency requirement and therefore the interest of the insured person is jeopardized or (2), as a result of the transfer, a branch of an insurer from a third country with a seat of business in the Republic of Bulgaria will undertake a portfolio of contracts covering risks located in other member states.

According to Article 3 of Economic and Financial Relations with Companies Registered in Preferential Tax Treatment Jurisdictions, the Persons Controlled Thereby and Their Beneficial Owners Act, companies registered in preferential tax treatment jurisdictions and the persons controlled thereby may not participate in procedures for obtaining a license to perform insurance or reinsurance activity under the Insurance Code or participation in a company carrying out such activity, where the percentage of participation constitutes a qualifying holding within the meaning of the Insurance Code.

There are no limits on securities and on investment portfolio held abroad. The assets of the insurers must be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer or group of undertakings, or market, and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole.

For small insurers without a right of access to the common market, the maximum amount may be 20% in case an insurer invests technical reserves in debt securities issued by a credit institution having its seat of business in a member state, subject to special supervision, for the purpose of protecting the holders of such securities. Furthermore, the technical provisions of such insurers must be covered by assets situated in the territory of the Republic of Bulgaria or in the territory of a Member State. With a permission by the FSC granted on a case-by-case basis, the technical provisions may also be covered by assets situated in the territory of a third country. The requirement for territorial distribution of the assets does not apply to cases where the technical provisions are covered by investments in receivables from reinsurers. Freedom of investment is regulated in Article 196 of the Insurance Code, and it is relevant to the insurers with a right to access of the common market:

(1) The insurer or the reinsurer, respectively, may not be placed under an obligation to invest in specific asset categories.

(2) The investment decision of the insurer or reinsurer or of the persons managing the investment operations may not be subject to a preliminary approval or to a notification procedure.

(3) The Commission may, by an ordinance, limit the assets or the benchmark values, with which the insurance policies related to investment funds are to be associated.

Location of the assets and prohibition to pledge assets are regulated in Article 197 of the Insurance Code: The assets for covering the technical reserves as regards risk located within the boundaries of the Currency matching is required when the assets in any one currency exceed 7% of the assets in the other currencies. Up to 20% of the total amount of technical reserves may be covered by assets in a currency other than the one in which they were set up, provided the total amount of assets for cover of technical reserves in all currencies is at least equal to the total amount of liabilities in all currencies. If the technical reserves were set up in leva, euros, or another currency of an EU member, the assets for their cover may be in euros (Article 206 of the Insurance Code).

Pension funds	Yes.	Controls specific to pension funds in Bulgaria are provided in the SIC. Chapter 14 on Assets and Investments and Chapter 25 on Investments contain the requirements for the investment of mandatory and voluntary pension funds, respectively. The specialized reserve requirements are laid down in Chapter 16 of the SIC, as well as in Article 213 with regard to voluntary pension funds only. In addition, further detailed requirements on the reserves are stipulated in Ordinance number 19 of December 8, 2004, on pension reserves and reserves for guaranteeing the payment of lifelong pensions. With respect to investing funds of the supplementary mandatory pension funds, there are specific restrictions with regard to investment in third countries. These restrictions are valid for: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- debt securities issued, or guaranteed by a third country designated by an ordinance of the FSC, the obligations which constitute sovereign debt, or are issued by a third country central bank and are admitted to trading on a regulated market in a Member State or on an official stock exchange market, or on another regulated market in a third country, operating regularly, recognized, and publicly available;</li> <li>- bonds issued by a local authority of a third country determined by an ordinance of the FSC, in which case the bonds must have an investment credit rating and be admitted to trading on a regulated market in a Member State or on an official stock exchange market, or on another regulated market in a third country, operating regularly, recognized and publicly available;</li> <li>- corporate bonds admitted to trading on an official market on a stock exchange or on another regulated market in a third country, operating regularly, recognized and publicly available, whereas the bonds must have an investment credit rating;</li> <li>- shares, other than shares of a collective investment undertaking, as</li> </ul> well as rights or warrants on them traded on an official stock exchange market or on another regulated market in a third country, operating regularly, recognized and publicly available, whereas the shares must be included in the indices of these markets.

According to Article 176, Paragraph 13, of SIC, the supplementary mandatory pension funds cannot invest in investment property unless it is located in EU member state.

The detailed requirements for the third country investing described above, as well as the full list of applicable third countries, are stipulated in Ordinance number 29 of July 12, 2006, on the minimum level of credit ratings of banks and on the determination of countries, international financial organizations, markets, and indices of these markets pursuant to Article 176, Paragraph 2, of the SIC.

Moreover, some limits apply to the diversification of supplementary pension funds' investment portfolios (Articles 177a, 178, and 251 of the SIC). These limitations are the same for investments in both local and foreign securities.

According to Article 3 of Economic and Financial Relations with Companies Registered in Preferential Tax Treatment Jurisdictions, the Persons Controlled Thereby and Their Beneficial Owners Act, companies registered in preferential tax treatment jurisdictions and the persons controlled thereby may not, directly and/or indirectly, participate in procedures for obtaining a license for carrying out the activity as a company for additional social security under the SIC or participation in such a company, where the percentage of contribution represents 10% or more than 10% of the capital of the company.

The activity of supplementary pension insurance can be carried out only by pension insurance companies licensed by the FSC (Article 121 and Article 353 of the SIC). Foreign companies are not allowed to provide services except for institutions for occupational retirement provision based in the EU and the EEA (Article 120a, Article 229d, and Article 353 of the SIC).

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	The legal framework does not contain any specific limits in this regard.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	The legal framework does not contain any specific limits in this regard.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	The legal framework does not contain any specific limits in this regard.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	No more than 20% of the assets of a supplementary mandatory pension insurance fund may be denominated in any currency other than Bulgarian leva and euro (according to Article 178, Paragraph 16, of the SIC). No more than 30% of the assets of a supplementary voluntary retirement insurance fund or of a fund for supplementary voluntary pension insurance under occupational schemes, as appropriate, may be denominated in any currency other than Bulgarian leva and euro (according to Article 251, Paragraph 13, of the SIC).
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.	The Law on Collective Investment Schemes (CISs) and other collective investments applies as of 2011. CIS investment policy requirements in Chapter 6 outline the legal obligations regarding the investment policy of CISs. Detailed rules are given in Ordinance No. 44, which incorporates Directive (EC) Nos. 2010/43 and 2010/44. In 2013, the AIFMD was transposed in Part III, Title 2, of the Law on CISs and other collective investments, and in Part III, Title 1, a new type of investment fund was introduced – the national investment fund. National investment fund investment policy requirements are mentioned in Article 187. Investments in local and foreign securities are treated the same.

In terms of the investment firms, Bulgaria fully transposed the EU framework on markets in financial instruments, which consists of Directive (EU) No. 2014/65 and Regulation No. 2014/600. In terms of capital requirements, Bulgaria complies with the EU rules under capital requirements.

According to Article 3 of Economic and Financial Relations with Companies Registered in Preferential Tax Treatment Jurisdictions, the Persons Controlled Thereby and Their Beneficial Owners Act, there are prohibitions for companies registered in preferential tax treatment jurisdictions and the persons controlled thereby directly and/or indirectly to participate in procedures for obtaining a license for providing services or carrying out activities under the Markets in Financial Instruments Act or participation in a company that has been licensed under the said Act, where the percentage of participation constitutes a qualifying holding within the meaning of the said Act, or participate in procedures for obtaining a license, permit, or in a registration procedure under the CISs and Other Undertakings for Collective Investment Act or participation in a company that owns a license, permit, or is registered under the said Act, where the percentage of participation constitutes a qualifying holding within the meaning of that Act.

There are exceptions, described in Article 4.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents No.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad No.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally No.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition Yes.

In the terms of the investment firms, pursuant to Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council, if the sum of an institution's overall net foreign exchange position and net gold position, calculated according to Article 352, including for any foreign exchange and gold positions for which own funds requirements are calculated using an internal model, exceeds 2% of its total own funds, the institution must calculate an own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk.

Changes during 2020 and 2021

Exchange Measures

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons

Other security restrictions	12/07/2020	Restrictive measures against serious human rights violations and abuses came into effect.
	03/12/2021	The EU Council decided to revoke the EU framework for sanctions against persons identified as responsible for the misappropriation of Egyptian state funds, and, to that effect, to lift the restrictive measures currently in force against nine Egyptian individuals. Restrictive measures were initially adopted on February 21, 2011.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)

On domestic ownership and/or trade	02/21/2020	Extraction, processing, and trade of precious metals and gemstones and items containing them or made of them by occupation may be carried out by: (1) merchants registered under the Commerce Act or under the legislation of an EU Member State or of another State and (2) companies under the Obligations and Contracts Act, if they engage in such activities by occupation and are entered in the public register of the persons carrying out activities with precious metals and gemstones and items containing them.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes

On exports

Domestic currency	02/21/2020	When cash in the amount of BGN 30,000 or more is carried across the border of the country to a third country, the customs authorities must request through official channels information concerning the existence or non-existence of liabilities. Where the information provided ex officio contains data of existence of public liabilities in excess of BGN 5,000, the customs authorities do not permit such cash to be carried across the border.
Foreign currency	02/21/2020	When cash in foreign currency in the amount equivalent to BGN 30,000 or more is carried across the border of the country to a third country, the customs authorities must request through official channels information concerning the existence or non-existence of liabilities. Where the information provided ex officio contains data of existence of public liabilities in excess of BGN 5,000, the customs authorities do not permit such cash to be carried across the border.

Imports and Import Payments

Import licenses and other nontariff measures

	05/15/2020	Regulation on prior EU surveillance of imports of certain steel and aluminum products originating in certain third countries expired.
	07/01/2020	After the second review investigation carried out by the European Commission, the Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2020/894 of 29 June 2020 amending Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2019/159 imposing definitive safeguard measures against imports of certain steel products has been in force.
	07/01/2021	Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2021/1029 of 24 June 2021 amending Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2019/159 to prolong the safeguard measure on imports of certain steel products has been in force.
Other nontariff measures	01/01/2021	A new law entered into full force across the EU – the Conflict Minerals Regulation – Regulation (EU) No. 2017/821 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 17 May 2017 laying down supply chain due diligence obligations for Union importers of tin, tantalum and tungsten, their ores, and gold originating from conflict-affected and high-risk areas. It aims to help stem the trade in four minerals – tin, tantalum, tungsten, and gold – which sometimes finance armed conflict or are mined using forced labor.
	06/24/2021	Council Regulation (EU) No. 2021/1030 entered into force, amending Regulation (EC) No. 765/2006 concerning restrictive measures in respect of Belarus prohibit the import petroleum products as listed in Annex VII, import, purchase or transfer, directly or indirectly, potassium chloride (“potash”) products from Belarus, whether or not originating in Belarus. Furthermore, restrictions on access to Union capital markets should be imposed in relation to the Belarusian Government, as well as Belarusian state-owned financial institutions and entities. A prohibition should also be introduced on providing insurance and re-insurance to the Belarusian Government and Belarusian public bodies and agencies.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	05/28/2021	The European Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2021/866, suspended commercial policy measures concerning certain products originating in the United States of America imposed by Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2018/886. The EU suspends the application of additional ad valorem duties of a rate of 10%, 25%, 35%, and 50% on imports of the products listed in Annex II to Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2018/886 ranging to and including November 30, 2021. The duties provided for in Annex II of Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2018/886 must thus apply with effect from and including December 1, 2021 (previously set to apply from June 1, 2021).

Exports and Export Proceeds

Export licenses

Without quotas	01/31/2021	An export authorisation is required for the export of vaccines against SARS-related coronaviruses. This requirement also covers active substances including master and working cell banks used for the manufacture of such vaccines. Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2021/1071 of June 29, 2021 prolonged the implementation of this measure until September 30, 2021. In line with its CFSP obligations, Bulgaria has imposed restrictive measures on some countries for security reasons.
	09/09/2021	The EU's dual-use export control system in Regulation (EU) No. 2021/821 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 20 May 2021 entered into force, setting up a Union regime for the control of exports, brokering, technical assistance, transit, and transfer of dual-use items. It defines dual-use items as "items, including software and technology, which can be used for both civil and military purposes, and includes items which can be used for the design, development, production or use of nuclear, chemical or biological weapons or their means of delivery, including all items which can be used for both non-explosive uses and assisting in any way in the manufacture of nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices." Bulgaria has imposed some restrictive measure on some countries for security reasons.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions

Controls on direct investment

Inward direct investment	10/11/2020	Regulation (EU) No. 2019/452 of March 19, 2019, which established an EU-wide framework for FDI screening and for the European Commission and the Member States to coordinate their actions on foreign investments came into effect.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for settlement of current or capital international transactions with countries outside the WAEMU.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for settlement of international transactions outside the WAEMU.
For capital transactions	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require Minister of Economy and Finance (MEF) authorization.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following operations on derivatives and other instruments with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward contract, foreign exchange swaps, and options. Operations on derivatives with foreign banks outside the WAEMU can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Credit operations	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone are not permitted to use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account is maintained with the French Treasury that links operations account countries. All purchases or sales of foreign currency, including euros, against CFA francs are ultimately settled through a debit or credit to the operations account.

Clearing agreements	Yes.	A multilateral clearing agreement exists in the context of the WAMA among the countries of the WAEMU and other ECOWAS countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone). Payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be effected under the clearing arrangements. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO went into effect April 1, 2010, with the adoption of the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. All residents of WAEMU countries are treated as residents of Burkina Faso for the purposes of determining the foreign assets of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export proceeds, issuance and marketing of securities, imports and exports of gold, investment and borrowing operations, and the physical exportation of payment instruments and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes related to the balance of payments, all countries other than Burkina Faso are considered foreign countries. In addition, all transfer operations with the rest of the world must be performed through an authorized intermediary bank, the postal service, or the BCEAO.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers may freely export CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from one WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc banknotes issued by the BCEAO.
Foreign currency	Yes.	The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess of the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They may carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler's checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler's checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.

On imports Yes.

Domestic currency

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be repatriated. Residents of the WAEMU zone are required to surrender to an authorized intermediary all revenues and income in foreign currency collected abroad or received from a nonresident within one month after the payment due date.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	ADs must immediately surrender residents of the WAEMU zone's proceeds from invisible transactions to the BCEAO. At the request of the BCEAO, ADs must sell to it, in exchange for currency that it issues, all their holdings in euros or other foreign currencies.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be surrendered to an AD within one month of the payment due date. Resident travelers must surrender to an authorized intermediary, within eight days of their arrival in Burkina Faso, foreign banknotes and other means of payment denominated in foreign currency worth more than the equivalent of CFAF 500,000.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require MOF authorization, except (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans to finance industrial and commercial operations, (2) payments required on foreign exchange derivatives transactions or raw material or commodity derivatives transactions, and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries are generally permitted.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone's investments abroad must be repatriated within one month through a registered intermediary, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign

Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of WAEMU residents' investments abroad must be repatriated and surrendered within one month to an AD, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	RCPSFM (Regional Council on Public Savings and Financial Markets) authorization is required for the following operations: (1) issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. Soliciting the public of the WAEMU by nonresident entities is subject to authorization by the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority responsible for regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization from the RCPSFM, with authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority responsible for external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of resident entities, foreign investors are required to make a prior declaration to the MEF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.

BURKINA FASO

Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. There is no minimum holding period.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization to be submitted to the minister responsible for finance for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries is authorized by the RCPSFM.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of domestic establishments, foreign investors are required to make a prior declaration to the minister responsible for finance. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. Issuance by residents of the WAEMU zone to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone of securities constituting a loan must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MEF for statistical purposes.
On money market instruments	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to prior declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance and sale of money market instruments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization by the RCPSFM, with authorization of the BCEAO as the authority responsible for external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of money market instruments resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. 		abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan.
On collective investment securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to prior declaration to the minister responsible for finance for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization with authorization of the BCEAO as the authority responsible for external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization to be submitted to the minister responsible for finance for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of domestic establishments, foreign investors are required to make a prior declaration to the minister responsible for finance. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the minister responsible for finance for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The purchase of derivatives by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone on the domestic market is treated as a loan contracted by a resident with a nonresident. As such, it is permitted. The purchase must be executed through an authorized intermediary and must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign exchange derivatives from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the minister responsible for finance.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods. The date on which payment falls due is specified in the contract (in principle not later than 120 days after the date of shipment).
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Outward transfers necessary to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the minister responsible for finance and substantiated by documentation.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.	The regulations governing financial credits apply.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The granting of guarantees and sureties is subject to approval by the minister of finance. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require the issuance of an exchange authorization, subject to approval by the minister of finance and the submission of supporting documents.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered direct investments and therefore require prior declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.	Investment that implies control of a company or enterprise is considered direct investment. Mere participation is not considered direct investment unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company. All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization.

Outward direct investment	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of residents of Burkina Faso and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in Burkina Faso. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	FDI, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the minister responsible for finance for statistical purposes. A share is not considered a direct investment unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the liquidation proceeds is subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted but must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These purchases require authorization by the minister of finance.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company are permitted. These require declaration to the minister responsible for finance for statistical purposes.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.	Sales by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone to residents of the WAEMU zone require the submission of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary that handles the settlement and must be declared to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.	Personal capital transactions between residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through the BCEAO, the postal service, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless authorization is obtained from the minister of finance.
Loans	Yes.	The regulations governing securities and investments apply.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions require authorization by the minister of finance. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation without first being licensed and included on the list of approved financial institutions.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may be made freely but are subject to declaration to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes when disbursed and when repaid.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to authorization by the MOF and the BCEAO. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant anti-money-laundering and terrorism financing provisions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	Immigrants with resident status must obtain approval from the minister responsible for finance to settle debts incurred abroad when they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	These operations require authorization by the minister of finance if the value exceeds CFAF 500,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	Yes.	Foreign accounts of nonresidents of the WAEMU zone (in foreign currencies or CFA francs) who become residents of the WAEMU zone must be closed. However, they may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. New transfers to these accounts require approval by the minister responsible for finance.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	No.	These transfers are conducted freely through authorized intermediaries, subject to the presentation of supporting documents and compliance with the relevant provisions on combating money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Law on Money Laundering defines the legal framework relative to money laundering in Burkina Faso, to prevent the use of the WAEMU's economic, financial, and banking channels for laundering money or other illicitly obtained assets (Article 4). The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect September 28, 2012. Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 set the deadline (December 31, 2013) for including this law in the domestic legislation of WAMU members. It has been incorporated into Burkina Faso national law.
Borrowing abroad	No.	Loans from abroad are unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the minister responsible for finance and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions for their own account or the accounts of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements. In accordance with Regulation No. 09/2010/CM/UEMOA on the External Financial Relations of the WAEMU Member States, to cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that do not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days and (2) demand deposits that do not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency. The total amount of these assets may not exceed 5% of their clients' outstanding demand deposits. Assets in excess of foreign currency requirements must be surrendered to the BCEAO.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Commercial lending is permitted. Financial credits are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance, following BCEAO approval.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	There are no explicit regulations regarding these transactions, but minister responsible for finance authorization and BCEAO approval are required.

BURKINA FASO

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These purchases require authorization by the minister responsible for finance if their issuance has not been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.	A reserve requirement of 3% applies to WAEMU banks. Demand deposits, other deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the base for the calculation of the required reserves. The base for the calculation of the required reserves to be held with the CB includes customer foreign currency deposits.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	According to the prudential framework applicable to WAEMU banks and financial institutions that perform banking operations, the minimum standard liquid asset requirement is 75%.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Financial loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, advances to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.	Banking regulations make no distinction among resident deposit accounts, nonresident deposit accounts, and foreign deposit accounts.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Overdrafts and advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone require authorization by the minister responsible for finance and BCEAO approval.
Investment regulations	Yes.	The regulations governing direct investment apply.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may, depending on their volume, be subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance. Article 29 of the Banking Law stipulates that the investment of any person in a bank that would have the effect of changing the minority and/or the majority of voting rights requires authorization by the minister responsible for finance.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain an open foreign exchange position. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that do not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days and (2) demand deposits that do not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain an open foreign exchange position. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that do not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days and (2) demand deposits that do not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency.

On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain an open foreign exchange position. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that do not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days and (2) demand deposits that do not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Controls are imposed by the CIMA Code.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The CIMA Code allows insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest up to 50% of resources collected locally in other CIMA member countries.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	The CIMA Code allows insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest up to 50% of resources collected locally in other CIMA member countries.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	According to the CIMA Code, a minimum of 50% of resources collected in a CIMA member country by insurance companies must be invested locally.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	The CIMA Code specifies that liabilities in a given currency must be covered by assets denominated in the same currency.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, presentation, and floating of securities of any kind from foreign governments, local authorities, foreign companies, or international institutions are subject to authorization by the RCPSFM.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	With the exception of foreign securities issued or sold in WAEMU member countries with RCPSFM authorization, all investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to minister responsible for finance authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, presentation, and floating of securities of any kind from foreign governments, local authorities, foreign companies, or international institutions are subject to RCPSFM authorization.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	With the exception of foreign securities issued or sold in WAEMU member countries with RCPSFM authorization, all investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to minister responsible for finance authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally No.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition No.

Changes during 2020 and 2021

No significant changes occurred in the exchange and trade system.

BURUNDI

(Position as of June 30, 2021)

Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership September 28, 1963.

Article VIII

Article XIV Yes.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices Yes. The IMF staff report for the 2014 Article IV Consultation, Fifth Review under the Three-Year Arrangement under the Extended Credit Facility states that, as of July 29, 2014, Burundi maintained one MCP that is inconsistent with Article VIII, Section 2(a): The exchange rate used for government transactions differs by more than 2% from market exchange rates. (Country Report No. 14/293)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons Yes.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51) Yes. Burundi maintains restrictions on financial transactions and accounts of individuals and organizations associated with terrorism, pursuant to UNSC Resolution No. 1269 (1999) and the updated list of organizations associated with terrorism prepared by the U.S. Department of State.

Other security restrictions No. There are no other restrictions.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency Yes. The currency of Burundi is the Burundi franc.

Other legal tender No.

Unitary

Dual Yes. On March 1, 2013, the Bank of the Republic of Burundi (BRB) set a fluctuation margin on foreign currency purchases and sales by commercial banks and exchange bureaus of  $\pm 1\%$  of the reference rate it publishes each morning. With the replacement of the Marché des Enchères Symétriques en Devises (MESD—Symmetric Currency Auction Market) with the Marché Interbancaire des Devises (MID—Interbank Currency Exchange), calculation of the reference rate was modified to include all BRB transactions with customers on the previous day, beginning April 12, 2013. To prevent further sharp fluctuations, bank operations whose exchange rate deviates from the defined band are systematically excluded from the calculations. The exchange rate structure is dual because, according to the IMF staff report, Burundi has an MCP. The exchange rate for official transactions may deviate from the market exchange rates by more than 2%.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	ADs are allowed to determine freely their foreign exchange commissions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Banks and exchange bureaus are free to set traded market exchange rates, which they post for the clients. Banks can freely purchase and sell foreign exchange for trade and capital transactions. The BRB has set a fluctuation margin on foreign currency purchases and sales by commercial banks and exchange bureaus of $\pm 1\%$ of the reference rate, which it publishes each morning. The BRB licenses banks. Ten commercial banks operate on the spot exchange market. Licensing of exchange bureaus has been suspended since August 2016. The BRB licenses exchange bureaus, for a period of five years, renewable. However, their current business activity is severely controlled. Sixty-four licensed exchange bureaus are in operation. They may engage in foreign currency note purchases and sales with the public, but may not hold accounts abroad or make foreign exchange payments or transfers on behalf of their clients.

Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	Currently, the CB is responsible for the supervision of commercial banks, deposit-taking microfinance institutions, and foreign exchange bureaus. Control over foreign exchange transactions is vested in the BRB; the authority to carry out transactions is delegated to authorized banks. Only capital transactions abroad require BRB authorization. Export declarations for coffee, tea, and all minerals are subject to validation by the BRB.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Individuals and legal entities with gold-mining permits issued by the ministry responsible for mining may establish purchasing houses for gold in transit or mined by artisans in Burundi. Gold produced by artisans may be sold only to approved firms.
On external trade	Yes.	Exports of gold must be declared in foreign currency at the time of validation of the export declaration by the BRB. Gold exports are authorized jointly by the mining and customs departments.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.
On exports	No.
Domestic currency	No.	The exportation of Burundi franc banknotes exceeding FBU 100,000 is subject to customs declaration.
Foreign currency	No.	There are no restrictions on exports of foreign currency purchased in cash from an authorized intermediary. Foreign currency that was subject on entry to an optional customs declaration may be reexported on presentation of the declaration.
On imports	No.
Domestic currency	No.	The importation of Burundi franc banknotes exceeding FBU 100,000 is subject to customs declaration.
Foreign currency	No.	The importation of foreign currency in cash is unlimited. Optional customs declaration on importation will allow reexportation of equivalent amounts.
Resident Accounts
Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Resident individuals and legal entities may open foreign exchange accounts with local banks, which may be credited freely. Withdrawals in Burundi francs are generally unrestricted.

BURUNDI

Withdrawals and payments from resident foreign currency accounts are unrestricted for individuals only (in banknotes). For legal entities, supporting documents of foreign currency expenditures are required for foreign currency withdrawals. Foreign exchange accounts of State institutions and for State projects, as well as of nongovernmental organizations (NGOs), receiving external support have to be channeled through the CB, which makes national currency available, and all relevant existing foreign exchange accounts in commercial banks must be closed.

Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	The BRB may authorize foreign accounts for individuals and legal entities. Account holders, except residents temporarily abroad, must send monthly statements to the BRB. Balances can be freely repatriated.
Approval required	No.	The opening of foreign exchange accounts by residents is not subject to the prior authorization of the CB. All individuals and legal entities, resident or nonresident, are authorized to open foreign exchange accounts and to carry out transactions with an authorized bank in keeping with the terms and conditions of the foreign exchange regulations in force.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Any nonresident individual or legal entity may open a foreign exchange account in an authorized bank. Nonresident foreign exchange accounts may be debited and credited freely. There is a limit of US$50,000 a year on withdrawals in banknotes without supporting documents. Legal entities may only make withdrawals in banknotes with supporting documents for expenses in foreign currency.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.
Convertible into foreign currency	No.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Declarations of Intent to Import (DIIs) must be validated by commercial banks.
Domiciliation requirements	No.

BURUNDI

Preshipment inspection	Yes.	A DII must be filed. The bank that records the DII must authenticate the documents and ensure that the DII is properly completed (Article 40 of the Foreign Exchange Regulations). It must assign the DII an order number in an uninterrupted series that identifies the bank making the payment and the DII with or without provision of foreign exchange (2010 version of Foreign Exchange Regulations). Shipments of imported food, pharmaceuticals, and chemicals exceeding the equivalent of US$3,000 in c.i.f. value and of all other goods exceeding US$5,000 in c.i.f. value are subject to preshipment inspection by international supervisory and oversight agents with regard to quality, quantity, and price (Exchange Regulations of December 6, 2006, Article 39, paragraph (a)). Inspections are carried out by the Société Générale de Surveillance S.A. (SGS). All other goods with a c.i.f. value of less than said amounts are subject to a documentary check. A supplementary physical check may be carried out when the goods arrive. Goods not inspected before shipment for a valid reason may be inspected in transit or on arrival.
Letters of credit	No.	There is no obligation to settle import transactions with LCs.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	Yes.	The validation of a DII serves as an exchange authorization and gives access to foreign exchange.
Other	Yes.	Goods imported into Burundi must be insured by approved Burundi insurers; premiums must be paid in Burundi francs, unless the BRB has granted an exemption.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	The only requirement is a DII. Imports of commercial samples, personal luggage, and the personal effects of travelers, as well as all imports by diplomatic and UN missions, are exempt from the DII requirement.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	No.
Open general licenses	Yes.	Imports of commercial samples, personal luggage, and the personal effects of travelers, as well as all imports by diplomatic and UN missions, are exempt from the DII requirement.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Imports from COMESA member countries enter Burundi duty free. Burundi applies the EAC CET, which consists of three rates: 0%, 10%, and 25%. Imports of petroleum products are subject to a 20% duty.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Export proceeds for all products must be collected within 30 days of the date of shipment recorded by customs for shipment by air or within 90 days for all other shipments. Residents are required to repatriate receipts from exports of goods and services.

Monetary policy framework
Exchange rate anchor	Yes.
U.S. dollar
Euro	Yes.	The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. The Bank of Cabo Verde (BCV – Banco de Cabo Verde) collaborates with the government in defining the country’s monetary and exchange rate policy, which aims to achieve and maintain price stability. However, the implementation of monetary and exchange rate policy is done autonomously by the BCV. The operational framework for monetary policy uses the interest rate as its operational target, exchange rate stability as an intermediate objective, and the maintenance of price stability as a final objective. The (semiannual) Monetary Policy Report and the monetary policy guidelines are analyzed/discussed (bimonthly) in the MPC and approved by the Board of Directors of the BCV.

Exchange tax No.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Commercial banks may buy and sell foreign currency. They may freely negotiate exchange rates and fees for purchases and sales of all foreign currency, except the euro, which must be traded at the official rate.
Under the terms of Article 12 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, foreign exchange trading in Cabo Verde is generally done only by financial institutions expressly authorized thereto by the legal and regulatory rules governing their activity, except in specific cases of international money orders (Article 13) and manual exchange (Article 14).
On an exceptional basis, the Central Bank of Cabo Verde may authorize entities not referred to above to trade in foreign exchange and travelers' checks, provided they meet the requirements defined in an Official Notice (Aviso).
The operations of the foreign exchange market are regulated through CB Technical Instruction No. 121/2005.
There is a parallel foreign exchange market in Cabo Verde. The exchange rates practiced in this market have been close to the rates applied in the formal market.

Spot exchange market Yes. The regulation governing the spot foreign exchange market (BCV Technical Instruction No. 121/2005) dates from 2005.
As of December 31, 2020, there were two foreign exchange bureaus operating in the country. Foreign exchange bureaus can buy and sell foreign banknotes and coins and traveler's checks and may also provide money transfer services to and from abroad (under the conditions specified in Aviso No. 3/2003). Foreign exchange bureaus may maintain accounts abroad, within the framework of the liberalization promoted by Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018.
Licensed foreign exchange bureaus are authorized to conduct foreign exchange operations directly with the CB.

CABO VERDE

Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCV buys and sells escudos for euros at the announced exchange rate. There is no official bid-ask spread for euros. The BCV engages in sales and purchases of foreign currency with commercial banks and the government on demand. There are no restrictions on access to foreign currency.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Commercial banks may trade foreign currency with each other. All seven commercial banks participate in the interbank foreign exchange market, but there are virtually no interbank foreign exchange transactions. Entities authorized to trade in foreign exchange may freely negotiate the exchange rates and fees to be applied when trading in the quoted currencies, except the euro, which must be traded at the official rate because the Cabo Verde escudo is pegged to it.
Over the counter	Yes.	Banks are free to negotiate exchange rates and fees for purchases and sales of all foreign currencies, except the euro, which must be traded at the official rate.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	The regulation governing the forward foreign exchange market (BCV Technical Instruction No. 121/2005) dates from 2005. Only credit institutions are authorized to contract and engage in foreign exchange forward transactions, in Cabo Verde and abroad, for the purpose of hedging the foreign exchange risks inherent to commercial or financial transactions in foreign currency. The said institutions may enter into contracts with residents, with each other, and with nonresident credit institutions.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	No.	Most dealings in foreign exchange with the general public are conducted by seven commercial banks: (1) Banco Comercial do Atlântico, (2) Caixa Económica de Cabo Verde, (3) Banco Caboverdiano de Negócios, (4) Banco Interatlântico, (5) Banco Africano de Investimentos, (6) Ecobank, and (7) Internacional Investment Bank de Cabo Verde.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	No.	Under Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, there are no restrictions against the use of foreign exchange among residents.

Also, there are no restrictions against the use of foreign exchange between residents and nonresidents. Article 18 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that residents may reciprocally assume debts or grant credits denominated in foreign currency or in units of account used in international payments and clearing arrangements.

Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	Yes.	There are inoperative bilateral payment agreements with Cuba and Angola.
Regional arrangements	No.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions were fully liberalized, according to Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018. The BCV serves as the country's foreign exchange authority, pursuant to the terms of Article 25 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018. The June 2018 foreign exchange law fully liberalized foreign exchange transactions and economic and financial operations with entities abroad. This rendered irrelevant the prior authorization, prior verification process, and the special and prior authorization to which certain operations were previously subjected to. However, in exceptional circumstances and in consultation with the BCV, the government may impose temporary restrictions on economic, financial, and foreign exchange transactions undertaken by residents with nonresidents (Article 23 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018). Article 15 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that foreign exchange transactions must be conducted through an institution authorized to trade in foreign exchange, except in the cases identified in the decree.
Payments arrears	Yes.
Official	Yes.	External arrears are owed to Russia, for which rescheduling negotiations are under way. External arrears owed to Brazil were rescheduled and are being paid according to the new agreement.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	No.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	No.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.
On exports	No.
Domestic currency	No.	As per Legislative Decree No. 3/2018, there are no limits on exports of domestic currency.
Foreign currency	No.	As per Legislative Decree No. 3/2018, there are no limits on exports of foreign currency.

CABO VERDE

Foreign currency	No.	As per Legislative Decree No. 3/2018, there are no limits on imports of foreign currency.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Article 19 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that accounts may be freely opened and operated in national territory, thereby revoking the restrictions imposed by Article 22 of Legislative Decree No. 25/98 of June 29, 1998. Balances may be freely transferred abroad.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	Article 20 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that accounts with nonresident institutions may be freely opened and operated, thereby revoking the restrictions imposed by Article 24 of Legislative Decree No. 25/98 of June 29, 1998. The only requirement is to provide statistical data and conserve their respective elements, pursuant to Aviso No. 6/2018 of August 27, 2018.
Approval required	No.	Approval is not required.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Article 20 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that accounts with nonresident institutions may be freely opened and operated, thereby revoking the restrictions imposed by Article 24 of Legislative Decree No. 25/98 of June 29, 1998.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Article 19 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that accounts may be freely opened and operated in national territory.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Article 19 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that accounts may be freely opened and operated in national territory, thereby revoking the restrictions imposed by Article 22 of Legislative Decree No. 25/98 of June 29, 1998. Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.
Approval required	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	No.

CABO VERDE

Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	No.	Article 10 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that economic and financial transactions may be freely contracted with entities abroad, without prejudice to the provisions of Article 23. The only requirement is to provide statistical data and conserve their respective elements, pursuant to Aviso No. 6/2018 of August 27. Institutions authorized to trade in foreign exchange may, subject to their Due Diligence, the Know Your Customer principle, and the application of legislation of another nature (for example, within the scope of anti-money laundering and the financing of terrorism), request the documentation necessary to provide the service, irrespective of whether the transaction involves foreign exchange.
Domiciliation requirements	No.	Article 16 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that payments between residents and nonresidents to settle economic and financial transactions with entities abroad may be made directly through any means of payment denominated in escudos or in foreign currency. Article 20 of Legislative Decree No. 3/2018 of June 22, 2018, provides that accounts with nonresident institutions may be freely opened and operated.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	No.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Import licensing was delegated to the Chambers of Commerce in 2000 through the protocols published in Official Bulletin (B.O.) No. 1, Series II of January 3, 2000. A series of subsequent trade legislation maintained the option to delegate powers through the signing of a protocol to enable the two Chambers of Commerce existing in Cabo Verde to issue import licenses on behalf of the government.  Import licenses that are issued will be valid for one year and may be renewed for a further year.
Positive list	No.	Cabo Verde has not implemented the positive list of imported goods, so there are no import restrictions, except for goods whose importation is prohibited or subject to conditions.
Negative list	Yes.	The Report of the Working Group on the Accession of Cabo Verde to the WTO, published in the Supplement to B.O. No. 26 of June 29, 2009, contains a list of goods subject to international trade restrictions and a list of goods which may not be imported into Cabo Verde. Chapter III of the Customs Code defines prohibited goods as those whose importation or exportation is prohibited in Cabo Verde in any way or is subject to restrictions relating to quality, packaging, or special formalities. Similarly, goods whose importation or exportation is not accompanied by the appropriate specific document, legally required for this purpose, are also considered prohibited.
Open general licenses	Yes.	Import licenses are generally issued freely, with the exception of certain goods that are prohibited or restricted by law. For example, drugs are imported exclusively by the national pharmaceutical firm Empresa Nacional de Produtos Farmacêuticos – Decree-Law No. 53/79 of June 9, 1979.

With the exception of imports channeled through the small packages regime, which are of a noncommercial nature with a value of up to CVEsc 100,000 and a weight not exceeding 150 kg, as well as donations and aid to the government/municipalities and nonprofit entities that are not required to submit import licenses, all other imports are subject to licensing and/or administrative authorizations (sanitary and phytosanitary certificates, authorization to import arms, munitions, etc.).

Article 4 of Legislative Decree No. 68/2005 of October 2005 established specific products exempt of licensing:

“The following must be exempt from licensing:

- (1) Imports of merchandise without commercial value as defined by order of the member of government responsible for foreign trade;
- (2) Active and passive processing operations, temporary imports, reimporting on an as-is basis, reexporting, and transit operations;
- (3) Merchandise imports subject to special duty-free, bonded warehouse, free warehouse, and special customs warehouse systems;
- (4) Industrialized merchandise earmarked for consumption in international congresses, fairs, exhibitions, and similar events;
- (5) Imports of merchandise earmarked to supply ships and aircraft, as provided in the relevant legislation;
- (6) Merchandise that is seized, abandoned, found at sea, discarded, or salvaged from wrecks, and sold at auction; and
- (7) Imports of merchandise without foreign exchange expenditure, owned by airlines or maritime navigation companies and intended for their exclusive use.”

Licenses with quotas No.

Other nontariff measures Yes. As per Article 5 of Legislative Decree No. 68/2005 of October 2005: “The following merchandise must be subject to non-automatic licensing:
 (1) Merchandise subject to health, phytosanitary, and safety inspections;
 (2) Merchandise subject to mandatory restrictions defined by law. Applications for the importing of merchandise referred above must be accompanied with a certificate of compliance issued by the competent authorities.”

Pursuant to Article 43 of Legislative Decree No. 4/2010 of June 3, 2010:

- (1) For purposes of this Code, all merchandise for which importing or exporting is prohibited in any way or that are subject to restrictions deriving from rules applicable to quality, packaging, or special formalities will be considered prohibited merchandise.
- (2) Merchandise for which importing or exporting is not accompanied with the appropriate specific document required by law for that purpose, and more specifically a permit, license, certificate, or similar document will also be considered to be prohibited.

Import taxes and/or tariffs Yes. There are currently 13 tariff bands with a maximum rate of 55% and an unweighted average of 11%.

Import duty has been reduced in accordance with the commitments made by Cabo Verde in connection with List CLXI List appended to the Protocol of Accession of Cabo Verde to the WTO, approved under Resolution No. 73/VII/2008 of June 19, 2008, as subsequently amended under Resolution No. 99/VII/2009 of May 11, 2009, covering reductions for information and communication technology and civil aviation products that began in 2010 and ended in 2018.

The Customs Statistics Tax was established under Article 31 of Law No. 23/VIII/2012 of December 31, 2012.

In the context of providing incentives for domestic industry and fighting the use and abuse of alcohol, tobacco, and sugar products, the import duty and excise duty rates for the products listed in Article 32 of Law No. 5/IX/2016, B.O. No. 73, Series I of December 30, 2016, were increased in 2017. The taxes are applicable to all imports from third-party countries.

As a member of the ECOWAS, Cabo Verde applies the trade liberalization scheme under which originating products benefit from import duty exemptions.

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is a managed float. Given the high degree of financial dollarization, the National Bank of Cambodia (NBC) intervenes in the foreign exchange market to accommodate demand for riel and maintain exchange rate stability. The NBC publishes intervention data twice a year, in semiannual reports and annual reports of the NBC in Khmer language, which will be published on the NBC website with 1–2-month lag. There are also English versions of annual reports but published with a time lag of around 3–5 months. Since June 2020, the exchange rate stabilized within a 2% band against the US dollar. Therefore, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to “stabilized” from

Official exchange rate

Yes. The official exchange rate is based on the average daily market rate of the previous day, which is adjusted by taking into account liquidity conditions in the market. The official rate is used for banks' and financial institutions' accounting, customs valuation purposes, and foreign exchange transactions with the government. The NBC's Official Exchange Rate Determination Committee meets every morning to set the official daily exchange rate, with approval from the director general of Central Banking.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Commercial banks and money changers are free to set the exchange rate in transactions with their clients. The ADs are allowed to determine freely foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

Spot exchange market Yes. There is no formal spot exchange market. Commercial banks may buy and sell foreign exchange at their own rates. Money changers may also buy and sell banknotes and traveler's checks at their own rates. The NBC licenses commercial banks and other foreign exchange agents (money changers). Foreign exchange dealers may conduct foreign exchange business, maintain accounts abroad, and buy and sell banknotes and traveler's checks. There were 26 licensed money changers and 2,856 authorized money changers as of December 31, 2020. Licensed money changers can directly transact with the NBC, and they are able to make foreign currency payment and transfer on behalf of the clients.

Operated by the central bank Yes. The NBC intervenes in the foreign exchange market through purchases and sales of US dollars to maintain a stable exchange rate to achieve price stability. The NBC holds foreign exchange reserves in US dollars, euros, pounds sterling, Australian dollars, and other currencies in accordance with the guidelines of the Investment Committee. The NBC interacts with the market using three channels: (1) auction; (2) bilateral transaction with money changers and banks; and (3) direct transaction with the government. The current format of NBCs' interaction with market participants appears to be managing riel liquidity (demand for Cambodian riel (KHR) tax payment, etc.) rather than managing exchange rate volatility. On bilateral basis, the

CAMBODIA

Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	NBC uses the official quote. The NBC buys and/or sells US dollars and Cambodian riel (KHR) to manage the supply of foreign and the local currency to the market. The NBC also buys and sells US dollars and Cambodian riel directly to the government and public entity, except the Electricité Du Cambodge (EDU). The NBC sells Cambodian riels to market according to market conditions. Since 2012, the NBC has ceased to sell US dollars to market.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	Auction takes place occasionally, depending on the deviation of exchange rate from its normal trend. The NBC provides guidance on rates and announces amounts in advance. There is a minimum bid rate, but there is no limit on amounts. There are some penalties for those who do not settle on time. There are no restrictions on the use of currency obtained at auction, but the NBC requests information beforehand on the intended use of local currency purchased. Banks and licensed money changers may participate and are not required to submit information on the intended use of the foreign currency exchange on a transactional or an aggregate basis. Auction results are regularly disclosed to the public.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	The interbank foreign exchange market is still at an early stage of development, with the operation taking place on a retail customer basis. Banks conduct transactions among each other through NBC platform (NBCP). There is no limit on the bid-ask spread and commission fee. The number of banks participating in the interbank foreign exchange market as of December 31, 2020, is 37. The NBC grants licenses to banks, and foreign exchange is one of the businesses that they can operate under bank license. There are a few number of money changers who are the market makers. Money changers are not allowed to participate in the platform. They can trade with the NBC and banks, but not through NBCP, because they do not possess current accounts at NBC. However, NBC is considering the possibility to include money changers via various means of payment options.
Over the counter	Yes.	The informal interbank market may operate over the counter, and there are no brokers.
Brokerage	No.	Foreign exchange market does not operate based on a brokerage system.
Market making	Yes.	There is no exact year when the market-making activities emerged. There are a few money changers who are the market makers, yet the operations are not under control of the CB. The CB also proposes its own quotes to market participants through NBCP. Money changers are not allowed to participate in the NBCP where banks conduct transactions among each other.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Forward exchange market exists among commercial banks. The CB does not participate in the forward foreign exchange market. There is no exact year when the forward exchange market was formed.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Conventional peg	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the CAMU is a conventional peg. Cameroon participates in the CAMU and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement (MCA) between CEMAC member countries and France is based on three principles: (1) a common CB; (2) fixed parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee. Article 16 empowers the finance ministers of signatory countries (Joint Monetary Committee) to amend the MCA. Article 17 permits signatories to renounce the agreement. Article 18 specifies that the expulsion of a member country from the BEAC automatically results in that country's renunciation of the MCA.

Yes. The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Exchange tax	Yes.	Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding the turnover tax (VAT) and any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market and not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries, after the consent of the CB. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct exchange transactions with their customers. Licensed intermediaries consisted of 25 exchange bureaus and 14 banks, as of December 31, 2019. The BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes and 5% for other currencies, not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler's checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin. All the 14 banks are allowed to participate to the interbank market.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. They are required to adhere to the limits of foreign holdings allowed by the Banking Commission.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency.
Payments arrangements	Yes.

CAMEROON

Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	Yes.
Administration of control	Yes.	Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the CB, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the MOF, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.
Payments arrears	No.	Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers' payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.	CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.
On external trade	Yes.	Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million. During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler's checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).

CAMEROON

Foreign currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 5 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million.
Foreign currency	No.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC.
Held abroad	Yes.	Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive issued in June 2019.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident CFA franc accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for nonresidents, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.
Convertible into foreign currency	No.

CAMEROON

Approval required No.

Blocked accounts No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget No. The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.

Financing requirements for imports No. Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.

Minimum financing requirements No. There are no financing requirements.

Advance payment requirements No.

Advance import deposits No.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports Yes. For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents.

Domiciliation requirements Yes. Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary.

Preshipment inspection Yes. There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In Cameroon, imports with an f.o.b. value exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 2 million are subject to inspection by the Société Générale de Surveillance.

Letters of credit No. The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses No. Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade, as defined in the Compilation Guide. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.

Other Yes. For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures Yes. In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply. In Cameroon, importers are required to file an import declaration with the Société Générale de Surveillance when the value of the imported goods exceeds the equivalent of CFAF 5 million. The import of certain goods on the list issued by the Ministry of Industrial and Commercial Development (MINDIC) each year requires licenses.

Positive list No.

CAMEROON

Negative list	Yes.	Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.
Open general licenses	Yes.	There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level. However, in Cameroon this system applies mainly to long-term supply contracts. In addition, imports are subject to declaration.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	In Cameroon, quotas apply to container imports.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately, through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of collection.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.	Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings immediately after collection, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Guarantees	No.	No guarantees are required. However, export companies applying for VAT refund should submit proof of repatriation of export earnings signed by the MOF.
Domiciliation	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In Cameroon, exports, whatever their destination, are subject to Société Générale de Surveillance inspection.
Other	Yes.	In Cameroon, a health certificate is required prior to shipment for exports of fresh foods (such as fruits and vegetables).

CAMEROON

Export licenses	No.
Without quotas	No.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.	Export taxes established by the budget laws are levied by the Customs Directorate or via licensed intermediaries.
Collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and fees established in the law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
Other export taxes	Yes.	In Cameroon, a tax of 17.5% is levied on exports of lumber; the rate applicable to exports of semi-worked wood is 12.5%.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.
Trade-related payments	Yes.	There are no exchange restrictions on service-related transactions. Payments for such transactions are subject to the same requirements as the underlying commercial transactions.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	All service-related expenditures must be declared, and amounts exceeding CFAF 5 million must also be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary. Supporting documents must be provided, and amounts exceeding CFAF 100 million must be settled through licensed intermediaries.
Investment-related payments	Yes.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Amounts owed by nonresidents for services and all income from foreign assets earned outside the CEMAC must be collected through a licensed bank and repatriated immediately.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currency must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied indiscriminately to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc area countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which went into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that “when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the CB must also be obtained.” The article also states that “the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF.”
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated, immediately after collection.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days after receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities (shares and bonds issued by foreign enterprises) whose value exceeds CFAF 50 million are subject to CB approval. Under CEMAC exchange regulations, transactions in capital market securities are treated in the same way as simple borrowing and lending operations, as opposed to direct investments, when the shares or equity held by the individual or legal entity represent less than 10% of the enterprise’s total equity. Borrowing and lending are not regulated by type of instrument or maturity.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported 30 days before the transaction when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the transaction is subject to prior CB approval.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities abroad by residents. Transactions must be declared 30 days before the transaction when the amount is less than CFAF 20 million.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2020.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Canada imposes sanctions, which may include exchange restrictions and restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions, for the preservation of national or international security against the following: (1) under the Special Economic Measures Act (SEMA): the Islamic Republic of Iran, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK), Myanmar, Nicaragua, Russia, South Sudan, Syria, Ukraine, Venezuela, and Zimbabwe; (2) under the UN Act (UN Act), to implement UNSC decisions, pursuant to Articles 25 and 103 of the Charter of the UN, with respect to Al-Qaida and the Taliban, the Central African Republic, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Iran, Iraq, DPRK, Lebanon, Libya, Mali, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan, and Yemen. Sanctions under the UN Act also affect certain individuals and entities in connection with terrorist activities under the Regulations Implementing the UNs Resolutions on the Suppression of Terrorism; and (3) On June 20, 2018, the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (Sergei Magnitsky Law) (S.C. 2017, c. 21) was established and authorizes the government to place controls on the movement of currency to individuals suspected of contributing to acts of significant corruption and/or gross human rights violations. Foreign nationals from Myanmar, Russia, Saudi Arabia, South Sudan, and Venezuela are currently listed pursuant to this Act. Canada may also implement exchange restrictions and restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions under other mechanisms, including the Criminal Officials Act, against specific individuals, groups, and entities but not against entire jurisdictions or economic sectors in Tunisia and Ukraine. The Regulations Amending the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Regulations (SOR/2018-259) have amended the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Regulations (SOR/2017-233) to include 17 foreign nationals from Saudi Arabia, who, in the opinion of the Governor in Council, are responsible for or complicit in gross violations of internationally recognized human rights, particularly the torture and extrajudicial killing of Saudi journalist Jamal Khashoggi. These individuals were listed pursuant to the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act (S.C. 2017, c. 21).
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Canada may also implement exchange restrictions and restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions under other mechanisms, including the Criminal Code and the Freezing

Assets of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act, against specific individuals, groups, and entities but not against entire jurisdictions or economic sectors in Egypt, Tunisia, and Ukraine.

Canada imposes sanctions, which may include exchange restrictions and restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions, for the preservation of national or international security against the following under the SEMA: Belarus (effective September 28, 2020) and the People’s Republic of China (effective March 21, 2021).

Free floating Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating, with the exchange rate of the Canadian dollar determined by supply and demand. However, under an intervention policy established by the government in close consultation with the Bank of Canada (BOC), the BOC may intervene in the foreign exchange market on behalf of the government. The current policy is to intervene on a discretionary, rather than systematic, basis and only in exceptional circumstances. The last time the BOC intervened was as part of the concerted intervention with authorities in Europe, Japan, the United Kingdom, and the United States to counter an excessively strong yen following the March 2011 earthquake in Japan. Previously, the BOC intervened in September 1998 to influence movements in the Canadian dollar. Interventions are announced on the BOC’s website, and the amount of intervention is published in the government’s monthly official press release on international reserves. The amount of any BOC intervention in foreign currency markets is published in the monthly release of the government’s official international reserves. This release is generally published three

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The BOC publishes on its website the exchange rate for 26 currencies vis-à-vis the Canadian dollar. The foreign exchange rates are published once a day, at 16:30 ET (Eastern Time), in the form of a single indicative rate for each currency pair that is based on an average of rates observed during the business day. They may differ from the rates of financial institutions and other market sources. The BOC exchange rates are released for informational purposes only and are not intended to be used as the benchmark rate for executing foreign exchange trades. The BOC does not guarantee the accuracy or completeness of these rates.

Government and Central Bank	Yes.	The inflation target is set jointly by the BOC and the federal government. The BOC and the government have renewed the inflation-control target framework six times since its adoption in 1991—most recently in October 2016 for five years to the end of 2021. The target aims to keep the total CPI inflation at the 2% midpoint of a medium-term target range of 1%–3%. The BOC raises or lowers its policy interest rate to achieve the target, typically within six to eight quarters—the time usually needed for policy action to work its way through the economy and have its full effect on inflation. Decisions are made on a consensus basis.

CPI	Yes.	The inflation target is expressed as the year-over-year (y-o-y) increase in the total CPI. The bank also monitors a set of “core” inflation measures. The BOC’s preferred core inflation measures are CPI-trim, CPI-median, and CPI-common. CPI-trim (trimmed mean): a measure of core inflation that excludes CPI components whose rates of change in a given month are located in the tails of the distribution of price changes. CPI-median (weighted median): a measure of core inflation corresponding to the price change located at the 50th percentile (in terms of CPI basket weights) of the distribution of price changes in a given month. CPI-common (common component): a measure of core inflation that tracks common price changes across categories in the CPI basket. CPI is published by Statistics Canada.

Policy rate	Yes.	The BOC raises or lowers its policy interest rate (overnight rate) to achieve the inflation target, typically within six to eight quarters—the time usually needed for policy action to work its way through the economy and have its full effect on inflation.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The BOC operates a system to make sure that trading in the overnight market stays within the operating band. Generally, the band is one-half of a percentage point wide and has the target for the overnight rate at its center. For example, if the target rate is 2.50%, the operating band would be 2.25% to 2.75%. The upper band (2.75%) is the bank rate – the interest rate that the Bank charges on one-day loans to the large value transfer system. The lower bound of the band (2.25%) is the deposit rate – the interest rate that the Bank pays on any surplus funds that participating institutions leave on deposit at the bank overnight. However, effective March 27, 2020, the BOC lowered the target rate by 50 basis points to 0.25% and set the lower and upper bounds of the operating band at 0.25% and 0.5%, respectively, thereby setting the deposit rate at the same level as the target rate.

Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	Yes.	Assets of certain entities and individuals may be frozen or their accounts blocked through prohibition against dealing in the property of designated persons under Canadian economic sanctions. These entities and individuals are identified in the relevant regulations listed in Section II.B.1 above. For example, after the Regulations Implementing the UN Resolutions on Libya went into effect, in 2013, accounts and property belonging to designated persons affiliated with the Qadhafi family were frozen in Canada. Permits can be granted by the Minister of Foreign Affairs, on an exceptional basis, in respect of activities that are prohibited under the SEMA. Authorization for activities prohibited under the UN Act regulations requires a certificate from the Minister of Foreign Affairs and, if required by the regulation in question, approval from the UNSC.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Import permits are required (under various laws) for a broad range of items, including certain endangered species of flora and fauna, natural gas, material and equipment for the production or use of nuclear energy, and certain internationally controlled drugs. Under Canada's Export and Import Permits Act, import permits are also required for products that are included on the Import Control List, including certain small arms, large-caliber armaments or weapons, military products, chemicals, and a number of other textiles and apparel, agricultural, and metal products. In addition, Health Canada does not permit the importation of unregistered drugs. Imports of used motor vehicles (less than 15 years old) are generally prohibited for reasons of safety and environmental standards. Exceptions are generally available for vehicles imported from the United States and Mexico. Some regulations listed in Section II.B.1 above include import restrictions. Imports prohibited under UN Act regulations require a certificate from the Minister of Foreign Affairs and, if required by the regulation in question, approval from the UNSC Imports prohibited under SEMA regulations require a permit from the Minister of Foreign Affairs under the related Permit Authorization Order. The exemptions for used vehicles originating from Mexico (which began to be phased in on January 1, 2009) are entirely phased.
Open general licenses	Yes.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Measures consistent with international trade obligations are in effect. Measures are imposed, taking into consideration competition policy factors and other economic costs, as appropriate.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	On average, import tariffs are low. Canada's trade-weighted average tariff rate for all goods, including agricultural goods, has been less than 1% since 1998, largely as a result of duty-free access for imports from the US under preferential trade terms. Canada actively seeks to liberalize trade through bilateral and regional FTAs and currently has FTAs in place with its North American trade partners (Canada-US-Mexico Agreement), the EU, the UK, the Asia-Pacific region (Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership (CPTPP) currently implemented between Canada, Australia, Japan, Mexico, New Zealand, Singapore, and Vietnam, and by Peru (effective September 19, 2021), South Korea, Chile, Colombia, Peru, Costa Rica, Honduras, Panama, the EFTA countries, Ukraine, Israel, and Jordan. Canada is also engaged in ongoing negotiations with the MERCOSUR trade bloc (Argentina, Brazil, Paraguay, and Uruguay), the UK's accession to the CPTPP, and negotiations recently launched with Indonesia. Canada maintains three unilateral tariff preference programs (General Preferential Tariff, Least Developed Country Tariff, and Commonwealth Caribbean Countries Tariff) providing additional preferential access for most goods from developing countries. Canada also continues to unilaterally reduce its MFN tariffs applicable to all members of the WTO. Since 2009, Canada has eliminated more than 2,470 MFN tariffs, including on both imported machinery and equipment and industrial manufacturing inputs (making Canada a tariff-free zone for industrial manufacturers), and a broad range of goods used as agri-food processing ingredients. The highest MFN tariffs apply to a limited number of over-quota, supply-managed agricultural goods (dairy, poultry, and eggs). Canada's other sectors with higher-than-average MFN tariffs include textile products and apparel, footwear, and ships.

In 2020, Canada implemented two unscheduled temporary changes to its tariff regime in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, which will remain in effect for as long as warranted by COVID-19. Both remain in effect. Effective March 16, 2020, imported goods for emergency medical use by public health bodies (for example, hospitals) and first responders became eligible for relief from tariffs and sales taxes. Effective April 6, 2020, relief was extended to emergency goods imported for use at public and private care residences, such as seniors' residences, retirement homes, nursing homes, and shelters.

Effective May 5, 2020, imports of certain medical supplies, including personal protective equipment, became eligible for tariff relief. These include diagnostic test kits, face and eye protection, gloves, protective garments, disinfectants/sterilization products, medical devices, thermometers, wipes, and medical consumables. Relief is available to all importers such as businesses, distributors, and individual Canadians.

Without quotas Yes. The Export Control List identifies goods and technologies controlled under the Export and Import Permits Act. This list includes all items identified in the various international export control regimes in which Canada participates. In addition, certain items are controlled to ensure the orderly export marketing of certain products subject to import limitations by other countries, to implement bilateral agreements, to ensure adequate supply and distribution, and for nonproliferation purposes (that is, chemical, biological, and nuclear weapons and their delivery systems). The Automatic Firearms Country Control List is a positive list of destinations to which Canadians may apply for permits to export prohibited firearms, weapons, or devices (as defined in the Criminal Code). The export of these prohibited items to countries that are not listed on the Automatic Firearms Country Control List is not allowed. The Area Control List includes countries to which the exports of all items are controlled. At present, only North Korea is on this list. Permits are required for the exportation of controlled goods and technologies to all countries except, in most cases, the United States, as well as for the export of all items destined for countries on the Area Control List. Acts and Regulations listed in Section II.B.1 above contain export restrictions, excluding the Freezing Assets of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act. Exports prohibited under UN Act regulations require a certificate from the Minister of Foreign Affairs and, if required by the regulation in question, approval from the UNSC. Exports prohibited under SEMA regulations require a permit from the Minister of Foreign Affairs under the related Permit Authorization Order.

With quotas	Yes.	Certain items are controlled to ensure orderly export marketing of products subject to import limits by other countries and to implement bilateral and FTAs and/or ensure adequate supply and distribution. Canada administers export quotas and issues export permits or certificates for textiles and apparel goods exported under NAFTA, for high sugar and sugar-containing products, processed food, dog and cat food, and vehicles exported under Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement (CETA), and for peanut butter, sugar, and sugar-containing products exported to the United States.

including bonds, loans, debentures, extensions of credit, loan guarantees, LCs, bank drafts, bankers' acceptances, discount notes, treasury bills, commercial paper or similar instruments in relation to designated persons listed in Schedule 3, the property of those persons, or interests and property of those persons.

Effective September 28, 2020, the Special Economic Measures (Belarus) Regulations prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from, directly or indirectly, dealing in transferable securities and money market instruments, including treasury bills, certificates of deposit and commercial papers but not including instruments of payment, issued by Belarus, certain listed entities, or a person acting on behalf of or at the direction of Belarus or such listed entities. It is also prohibited to, directly or indirectly, transact in, provide financing for or otherwise deal in debt of longer than 90 days' maturity, including bonds, loans, debentures, extensions of credit, loan guarantees, letters of credit, bank drafts, bankers' acceptances, discount notes, treasury bills, commercial paper and other similar instruments in relation to Belarus, certain listed entities, or a person acting on behalf of or at the direction of Belarus or such listed entities.

Similarly, regulations made under the UN Act, SEMA, and the Justice for Victims of Corrupt Foreign Officials Act restrict all financial services to designated individuals, including capital transactions.

Measures under the SEMA were also imposed with respect to the People's Republic of China effective March 21, 2021.

SOR/2014-60 was amended June 29, 2015, to prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from making an investment in the Crimea region of Ukraine that involves a dealing in any property located in the Crimea region of Ukraine. The Minister of Foreign Affairs may exempt any prohibited action by the issuance of a permit under the Special Economic Measures (Ukraine) Permit Authorization Order. In addition to the limitations on debt and equity financing, the Special Economic Measures (Russia) Regulations (SOR/2014-58) place limitations on the provision of financial services associated with property and oil exploration. The Special Economic Measures (Iran) Regulations (SOR/2010 165) were amended February 5, 2016. Persons in Canada and Canadians abroad are prohibited from dealing in property, entering into transactions, or providing financial or related services to persons listed in Schedule 1 of the Regulations or to a person acting for the benefit of a listed person. The broad prohibition against financial services was lifted following the February 5, 2016, amendments. The Minister of Foreign Affairs may exempt any prohibited action by the issuance of a permit under the Special Economic Measures (Iran) Permit Authorization Order. The Special Economic Measures (Syria) Regulations (SOR/2011-114) prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from investing in Syria if the investment involves property, wherever located, held by or on behalf of Syria, a person in Syria, or a Syrian who does not ordinarily reside in Canada. Persons in Canada and Canadians abroad are also prohibited from providing or acquiring financial or other related services to, from, or for the benefit of or at the direction or order of Syria or any person in Syria for the purpose of such an investment. The Minister of Foreign Affairs may exempt any prohibited action by the issuance of a permit under the Special Economic Measures (Syria) Permit Authorization Order. The Special Economic Measures (DPRK) Regulations (SOR/2011-167) prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from investing in any entity in the DPRK that involves dealing in property, wherever located, held by or on behalf of the DPRK, any person in the DPRK, or a DPRK national who does not ordinarily reside in Canada. The regulations also prohibit the provision or acquisition of financial services—including those that are intended to facilitate an investment in any entity—to, from, or for the benefit of or at the direction or order of the DPRK or persons in the DPRK. Provision of such financial services requires a permit from the Minister of Foreign Affairs under the Special Economic Measures (DPRK) Permit Authorization Order.

Inward direct investment

Yes.

There are controls on direct investment by nonresidents in (1) activities related to Canada's cultural heritage and national identity, in particular (a) publication, distribution, and sale of books, magazines, periodicals, and newspapers in print or machine readable form, but not including solely printing or typesetting any of the above; (b) production, distribution, sale, and exhibition of film and video recordings; (c) production, distribution, sale, and exhibition of audio and video music recordings; (d) publication, distribution, and sale of music in print or machine readable form; and (e) radio communication intended for direct reception by the general public; radio, television, and cable broadcasting companies; and satellite programming and broadcast network services; (2) air transport—foreign ownership of Canadian common carriers is limited to 49% and no more than 25% of the voting interests can be owned directly or indirectly by any single non-Canadian and no more than 25% of the voting interests can be owned by one or more non-Canadians authorized to provide air services in any jurisdiction, and only Canadians (as defined in the Canada Transportation Act) may register an aircraft as Canadian and obtain an operator certificate for the following commercial air services: (a) domestic air services; (b) scheduled international air services reserved for Canadian carriers under air services agreements; (c) nonscheduled international air services reserved for Canadian carriers under the Canada Transportation Act; and (d) specialty air services; (3) maritime transport; (4) telecommunications—foreign investment in a facilities-based telecommunications service supplier is restricted to 20% direct investment and 33.3% indirect investment. Restrictions do not apply to satellite and sub-sea facilities and do not apply to providers with less than a 10% revenue share of the telecommunications market; (5) uranium—51% minimum Canadian ownership requirement in individual uranium mining properties at the first stage of production unless the project is controlled by Canadian nationals, as defined in the Investment Canada Act (ICA); the Cabinet may grant exemptions if Canadian partners cannot be found; and (6) fish harvesting. Under the ICA, significant acquisitions of control of Canadian businesses by non-Canadian investors are subject to net benefit review. The thresholds for direct acquisitions of control by WTO members and trade agreement partners are adjusted annually by a formula to reflect changes in nominal gross domestic product. The new thresholds become effective January first of each year.

Effective January 1, 2020, the review thresholds are: Can$1.075 billion (previously Can$1.045 billion) in enterprise value for private sector WTO investments, Can$1.613 billion (previously Can$1.568 billion) in enterprise value for private sector trade agreement investments, and Can$428 million (previously Can$416 million) for state-owned enterprise (SOE) WTO investments. Effective January 1, 2021, the review thresholds are: Can$1.043 billion in enterprise value for private sector WTO investments, Can$1.565 billion in enterprise value for private sector trade agreement investments, and Can$415 million for SOE WTO investments. The trade agreements that offer this private sector trade agreement investment threshold are: the Canada-United Kingdom Trade Continuity Agreement (effective April 1, 2021), the CPTPP (in force in Peru effective September 19, 2021), Canada-European Union CETA, Canada-United States-Mexico Agreement (effective July 1, 2020), Canada-Chile Free Trade Agreement, Canada-Peru Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act, Canada-Colombia Free Trade Agreement, Canada-Panama Free Trade Agreement, Canada-Honduras Free Trade Agreement, Canada-Korea Free Trade Agreement. Effective January 1, 2021, until April 1, 2021, UK private investors were not privy to the private sector trade agreement threshold, as a result of the exit from the EU (and applicability of the CETA) and before coming into force of the Trade Continuity Agreement. The review threshold for non-WTO investments is Can$5 million for direct acquisitions and Can$50 million for indirect acquisitions. For all non-Canadian investors, acquisitions of Canadian cultural businesses are also reviewable at these thresholds (that is, Can$5 million and Can$50 million), except for (1) (e) of the paragraph above, for which non-cultural business thresholds apply. Under the guidelines on the acquisition of control of major investments in Canada by SOEs, the governance and commercial orientation of SOEs are examined as part of the net benefit review of those investments. In addition, in December 2012, the government issued a policy that SOE applications for the control of a Canadian oil-sands business will be approved only in an “exceptional circumstance.” An SOE includes entities influenced directly or indirectly by a foreign government. A direct acquisition occurs when a non-Canadian directly acquires a Canadian business. An indirect acquisition occurs when a non-Canadian acquires a business outside Canada and that business has a subsidiary in Canada. Decisions to allow an investment are based on “likely net benefit” to Canada. The net benefit factors are set out in Section 20 of the ICA. Decisions regarding investments by non-Canadians into non-cultural industries are made by the Minister of Innovation, Science and Industry. The Minister of Canadian Heritage makes decisions on investments related to cultural businesses. A list of cultural businesses is given in Schedule IV of the Investment Canada Regulations. Ministers have 45 days to make a decision on a reviewable investment. The review period may be extended by 30 days, and beyond only with the agreement of the Minister and the investor. Investments by non-Canadians in the cultural sector (below threshold value acquisitions and establishments of new Canadian businesses) that are only subject to a notification under the Act may be subject to a review if the Governor General in Council orders it, based on the belief that it is in the public interest to do so and the investment is related to Canada's national identity and cultural heritage. Foreign investments of any size are reviewable for national security.

Temporary COVID-19-related measures were taken. Effective April 18, 2020, the government issued a Policy Statement on Foreign Investment Review and COVID-19. Under this policy, the government will apply enhanced scrutiny under the ICA to foreign direct investments of any value, controlling or non-controlling, in Canadian businesses that are related to public health or involved in the supply of critical goods and services to Canadians or to the Government; or by state-owned investors or private investors assessed as being closely tied to or subject to direction from foreign governments.

Effective July 31, 2020, the Minister of Innovation, Science and Industry issued a Ministerial Order pursuant to the Time Limits and Other Periods Act (COVID-19). This Order lengthened the initial review period and the extended initial review period of the national security review timeline for any investments for which an application or notification had been certified as of the date of the Ministerial Order, July 31, 2020, up to effective December 31, 2020. The Ministerial Order also extended the deadline for the Minister to take action under Part IV.1 for investments that are subject to the ICA but do not require a filing. For these investments, the relevant period continued to be determined from the date of implementation of the investment. Effective March 24, 2021, the government issued updated Guidelines on the National Security Review of Investments, supportive of continued transparency in the review process. This update specifically addresses national security concerns relating to investments involving potentially sensitive technologies, sensitive personal data and the security of critical mineral supply chains. The Regulations implementing the UN Resolutions on Iran (SOR/2007-44) were amended February 5, 2016. The UN Resolutions on Iran prohibit financial or related services or the facilitation of any transaction related to uranium mining in Canada, or to the production or the use of nuclear materials and technologies listed in Information Circular INFCIRC/254/Rev.

Ontario has a 15% nonresident speculation tax (NRST) on the purchase or acquisition of an interest in residential property located in the Greater Golden Horseshoe (GGH) by individuals who are not citizens or permanent residents of Canada or by foreign corporations ("foreign entities") and taxable trustees. The NRST applies to the transfer of land which contains at least one and not more than six single-family residences. Examples of land containing one single-family residence include land containing a detached house, a semi-detached house, a town house or a condominium unit. In a situation involving the purchase of multiple condominium units, each unit would be considered land containing one single-family residence. Examples of land containing more than one single-family residence that are subject to the tax include land containing duplexes, triplexes, fourplexes, fiveplexes, and sixplexes. The NRST does not apply to other types of land such as land containing multi-residential rental apartment buildings with more than six units, agricultural land, commercial land, or industrial land. The NRST applies on the value of the consideration for the residential property. If the land transferred includes both residential property and another type of property, the NRST applies on the portion of the value of the consideration attributable to the residential property. For example, if the purchase price of the transaction is $1,000,000 and contains one single-family residence with a value of the consideration of $400,000, and commercial land with a value of the consideration of $600,000, the 15% NRST would apply to only the $400,000 portion. An additional 20% property transfer tax applies to foreign entities or taxable trustees on transfers of residential property located in the Greater Vancouver Regional District. The tax applies in relation to purchases or gaining interest in a property.

Effective June 1, 2020, the Regulations Implementing the UN Resolutions on the DPRK were amended to prohibit any person in Canada or any Canadian outside Canada to knowingly sell or lease or otherwise make available real property to the DPRK, to a national or to any person acting on behalf or at the direction of the DPRK or a national.

Abroad by banks	No.	There are no limits on investments abroad. Banks, trust companies and loan companies may make investments abroad in financial sector entities, subject to the prudent person test, and are required in some instances to obtain approval.
In banks by nonresidents	No.	No controls are placed on the ownership of banks that specifically preclude nonresident ownership. The shares of large banks must remain widely held, and fit and proper investors may own up to 20% of voting shares and 30% of any class of nonvoting shares, provided no single shareholder or group of shareholders controls the bank. Medium banks, trust companies and loan companies, may have individual shareholdings of up to 65% with a public offering of at least 35% of the voting shares (ministerial approval may exempt a medium financial institution from this public offering requirement). Small banks, trust companies and loan companies, may be 100% closely held. Residents and nonresidents may set up or acquire a smaller bank, trust company or loan company, subject to ministerial approval.

Pension funds	No.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	There are no limits specific to nonresidents. Pension plans in Canada are generally subject to the prudent portfolio rule, which governs the overall reasonable level of risk and the appropriate level of diversification. There are also quantitative investment limits, which are set out in the Federal Pension Benefits Standards Act and its accompanying regulations. Most provinces in Canada have adopted the federal pension investment rules. The investment rules limit pension funds to owning no more than 30% of a company's voting shares to elect directors. Based on the market value of a pension fund's assets, the pension fund may invest a maximum of 10% in any one entity. There are certain exemptions to the quantitative limits such as investment in real estate corporations, resource corporations, and investment corporations. There is also an exemption to the 10% maximum investment in any one entity limit for securities or funds composed of mortgage-backed securities issued or fully guaranteed by the Government of Canada, the government of a province, or any agency thereof.

Inflation-targeting framework

Operating target (policy rate)

Target corridor band 03/27/2020 The Bank of Canada lowered the target rate by 50 basis points to 0.25% and set the lower and upper bounds of the operating band at 0.25% and 0.5%, respectively, thereby setting the deposit rate at the same level as the target rate.

Imports and Import Payments

Import taxes and/or tariffs 03/16/2020 Imported goods for emergency medical use by public health bodies (for example, hospitals) and first responders became eligible for relief from tariffs and sales taxes. The measure will remain in effect for as long as warranted by COVID-19.

04/06/2020 Relief from tariffs and sales taxes was extended to emergency goods imported for use at public and private care residences, such as seniors' residences, retirement homes, nursing homes, and shelters. The measure will remain in effect for as long as warranted by COVID-19.

05/05/2020 Imports of certain medical supplies, including personal protective equipment, became eligible for tariff relief. These include diagnostic test kits, face and eye protection, gloves, protective garments, disinfectants/sterilization products, medical devices, thermometers, wipes, and medical consumables. Relief is available to all importers such as businesses, distributors, and individual Canadians. The measure will remain in effect for as long as warranted by COVID-19.

09/19/2021 The Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership, of which Canada is a member, went into force in Peru.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions 09/28/2020 The Special Economic Measures (Belarus) Regulations prohibit persons in Canada and Canadians abroad from, directly or indirectly, dealing in transferable securities and money market instruments, including treasury bills, certificates of deposit and commercial papers but not including instruments of payment, issued by Belarus, certain listed entities, or a person acting on behalf of or at the direction of Belarus or such listed entities. It is also prohibited to, directly or indirectly, transact in, provide financing for or otherwise deal in debt of longer than 90 days' maturity, including bonds, loans, debentures, extensions of credit, loan guarantees, letters of credit, bank drafts, bankers' acceptances, discount notes, treasury bills, commercial paper and other similar instruments in relation to Belarus, certain listed entities, or a person acting on behalf of or at the direction of Belarus or such listed entities.

CANADA

01/01/2020	The review threshold for direct acquisition of control is Can$1.613 billion (previously Can$1.568 billion) in enterprise value for private sector trade agreement investments.
04/18/2020	As a temporary COVID-19-related measure, the government issued a Policy Statement on Foreign Investment Review and COVID-19. Under this policy, the government will apply enhanced scrutiny under the Investment Canada Act to foreign direct investments of any value, controlling or non-controlling, in Canadian businesses that are related to public health or involved in the supply of critical goods and services to Canadians or to the Government; or by state-owned investors or private investors assessed as being closely tied to or subject to direction from foreign governments.
07/01/2020	The Canada-United States-Mexico Agreement went into force.
07/31/2020	As a temporary COVID-19-related measure, the Minister of Innovation, Science and Industry issued a Ministerial Order pursuant to the Time Limits and Other Periods Act (COVID-19). This Order lengthens the initial review period and the extended initial review period of the national security review timeline for any investments for which an application or notification has been certified as of the date of the Ministerial Order, July 31, 2020, up to December 31, 2020. The Ministerial Order also extends the deadline for the Minister to take action under Part IV.1 for investments that are subject to the Investment Canada Act but do not require a filing. For these investments, the relevant period continues to be determined from the date of implementation of the investment.

Date of membership		July 10, 1963.
Article VIII	Yes.	Date of acceptance: June 1, 1996.
Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2020.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	For security reasons, the Central African Republic (CAR) supports UNSC Resolution No. 1373 to combat money laundering and terrorism financing (Regulation No. 01/03/CEMAC/UMAC/CM of April 4, 2003).

Exchange Arrangement

Conventional peg	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the CAMU is a conventional peg. The CAR participates in the CAMU and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement (MCA) between CEMAC member countries and France is based on three principles: (1) a common CB; (2) fixed parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee. Article 16 empowers the finance ministers of signatory countries ("Joint Monetary Committee") to amend the MCA. Article 17 permits signatories to renounce the agreement. Article 18 specifies that the expulsion of a member from the BEAC automatically results in that member's renunciation of the MCA.

Official exchange rate Yes. The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Exchange tax	Yes.	Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding the turnover tax (VAT) and any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market and not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct foreign exchange transactions with their customers. The BEAC's OTC foreign exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.

CENTRAL AFRICAN REPUBLIC

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes and 5% for other currencies, not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler's checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts up to a limit of CFAF 100 million on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. For amounts over CFAF 100 million, requests for forward exchange contracts must be made to the BEAC so that their purpose may be verified.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.

CENTRAL AFRICAN REPUBLIC

Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	Yes.
Administration of control	Yes.	Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.
Payments arrears	No.	Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers' payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.
On external trade	Yes.	Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million. During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler's checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).
Foreign currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 1 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.

On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million.
Foreign currency	No.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC.
Held abroad	Yes.	Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted. Previously, these accounts were not permitted except within the CEMAC.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident CFA franc accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for nonresidents, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.
Convertible into foreign currency	No.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.	The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.
Financing requirements for imports	No.	Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.
Minimum financing requirements	No.	There are no financing requirements.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legally registered legal entities and declared or certified professionals may be exempt from the requirement to produce supporting documents, provided they submit an annual estimate of imports corroborated by a business forecast.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In the CAR, imports exceeding CFAF 1 million or the equivalent are subject to mandatory preshipment inspection.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade, as defined in the Compilation Guide. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.
Other	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.
Open general licenses	No.	There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level.
Licenses with quotas	No.

CENTRAL AFRICAN REPUBLIC

Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately, through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of collection.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.	Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings within a month of the payment due date, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Guarantees	n.r.
Domiciliation	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank.

Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	There are no restrictions on transfers of capital income outside the CEMAC in the form of profits, dividends, interest, royalties, etc., payable to nonresidents, provided the underlying transaction was authorized or is not subject to authorization. Supporting documents on the decision to distribute income (profits and dividends), the repayment schedule, and the debt security involved (loans contracted and granted) must be provided.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Indicative limits are established for OTC foreign exchange allocations to residents traveling outside the CEMAC. A single indicative threshold of CFAF 5 million is set for all travels. However, all substantiated requests must be granted, regardless of the amount. Licensed intermediaries must serve their customers' foreign currency needs, to the extent that funds are available to them, and check supporting documentation, including, as applicable, a valid travel document and ticket, a mission order, a health evacuation authorization, or a certificate of registration at a school or university, and report to the appropriate authorities.
Personal payments	Yes.	Transfers are unrestricted, on submission of supporting documentation.

		advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied indiscriminately to countries in the CFA franc zone, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc zone countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which entered into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that “when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained.” The article also states that “the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF.”
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated immediately after collection.

Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities (shares and bonds issued by foreign enterprises) whose value exceeds CFAF 10 million are subject to MOF approval. Under CEMAC exchange regulations, transactions in capital market securities are treated in the same way as simple borrowing and lending operations, as opposed to direct investments, when the shares or equity held by the individual or legal entity represent less than 10% of the enterprise’s total equity. Borrowing and lending are not regulated by type of instrument or maturity.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported 30 days before the transaction when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the transaction is subject to prior CB approval.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million. Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities abroad by residents. Transactions must be declared 30 days before the transaction when the amount is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, it requires prior CB approval.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. Prior approval by the Banking Commission is required in all occasions.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.

Yes. The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Exchange tax	Yes.	Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding the turnover tax (VAT) and any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market and not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct foreign exchange transactions with their customers. The BEAC's OTC foreign exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries. Commercial banks may also acquire euro notes at 1.5% from the CB. There are eight authorized foreign exchange bureaus in Chad.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries. Commercial banks may also acquire euro notes at 1.5% from the CB.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.

Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes and 5% for other currencies, not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler's checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin. All banks approved by COBAC and authorized by the Monetary Authority to operate in the country are automatically eligible to participate in the interbank market. Only participation in BEAC intervention requires the approval of the governor after COBAC's consent. There are eight authorized banks, all of which participate in the interbank market.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. They are required to adhere to the limits of foreign holdings allowed by the Banking Commission.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency.
Payments arrangements	Yes.

CHAD

Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	Yes.
Administration of control	Yes.	Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.
Payments arrears	No.	Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers' payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.	CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.
On external trade	Yes.	Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million. During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler's checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).

Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 1 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million.
Foreign currency	No.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, and instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC.
Held abroad	Yes.	Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019. Previously, although the principle underlying foreign currency transactions was the systematic repatriation and surrender of foreign exchange to the BEAC and residents were not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad, the opening of such accounts was not explicitly regulated by law.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.
Approval required	No.

Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.	The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.
Financing requirements for imports	No.	Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.
Minimum financing requirements	No.	There are no financing requirements.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legally registered legal entities and declared or certified professionals may be exempt from the requirement to produce supporting documents, provided they submit an annual estimate of imports corroborated by a business forecast.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In Chad, imports with an f.o.b. value exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 2 million are subject to preshipment inspection.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade, as defined in the Compilation Guide. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.
Other	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply.

Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.
Open general licenses	No.	There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately, through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of collection.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.	Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings within a month of the payment due date, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Guarantees	n.r.
Domiciliation	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. Surrender to authorized dealers No.

Restrictions on use of funds No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc area countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which went into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that “when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained.” The article also states that “the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member country, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF.”
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated immediately after collection.

Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities (shares and bonds issued by foreign enterprises) whose value exceeds CFAF 10 million are subject to MOF approval. Under CEMAC exchange regulations, transactions in capital market securities are treated in the same way as simple borrowing and lending operations, as opposed to direct investments, when the shares or equity held by the individual or legal entity represent less than 10% of the enterprise’s total equity. Borrowing and lending are not regulated by type of instrument or maturity.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported 30 days before the transaction when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the transaction is subject to prior CB approval.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	n.r.	There is no derivatives market in the CEMAC.
Purchase abroad by residents	No.	Licensed banks are free to deal in derivatives, subject to compliance with the prudential rules issued by the Banking Commission, which is responsible for supervision of the banking system.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	n.r.	There is no derivatives market in the CEMAC.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	There are no specific regulations on borrowing and lending by instrument type or by maturity.
Commercial credits	Yes.	Borrowing directly related to the financing of commercial transactions and borrowing and lending contracted or granted by resident licensed banks are unrestricted and must be reported to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and then execute commercial credits granted to nonresidents, except when the customer’s total outstanding debt exceeds CFAF 100 million, in which case such credits must be reported to the MOF and BEAC for approval 30 days before the transaction. The repayment of borrowing and lending subject to such approval must also be reported within 30 days of the transaction. Supporting documents for such borrowing and lending include the repayment schedule and a copy of the debt security.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	Only banks are authorized to verify and then execute commercial credits received by residents, which they must declare to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction.
Financial credits	Yes.	Loans contracted or granted by resident licensed banks are unrestricted and must be reported to the appropriate MOF and BEAC departments within 30 days of each transaction. Banks may verify and execute borrowing and lending transactions for their customers, as well as their repayment, except when the customer’s total outstanding debt exceeds CFAF 100 million, in which case they must be reported to the MOF and BEAC for approval 30 days before the transaction. The repayment of borrowing and lending subject to such approval must also be reported within 30 days of the transaction. Floating
Free floating	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangements is free floating. The Central Bank of Chile (BCCH) reserves the right to intervene in the foreign exchange market, in exceptional circumstances, to keep the currency near its equilibrium value to avoid costly future reversals. These interventions take the form of transparent, well-founded measures, including explicit definitions of the periods and amounts involved and clearly explained reasons for the intervention. The BCCH usually announces the amount of foreign exchange it intends to buy or sell in its monthly bulletin. It publishes its auction results daily and its reserves weekly. On November 28, 2019, the BCCH announced a preventive program aimed at facilitating the management of liquidity in the financial system in dollars and pesos, together with a program to sell foreign currency aimed at reducing excessive volatility in the exchange rate. This program was implemented to sell up to US$20 billion in foreign currency, which would be in effect up until May 29, 2020, according to the following plan: sale of up to US$10 billion in the spot market and sale of up to US$10 billion in exchange hedging instruments.

However, the initial announcement of this program did not specify the daily or weekly amounts. Instead such details were announced at the end of each week for the daily amounts sold the following week. Given that the initial November 28, 2019, announcement lacked sufficient detail, each subsequent weekly announcement was counted as an intervention. The weekly announcements occurred each week for interventions starting December 2, 2019. Under the program US$2.55 billion was sold in the spot market and was suspended on January 3, 2020. And only the stock of forwards in effect on that date, equivalent to US$4.5 billion, would be renewed.

On April 8, 2020, the BCCH announced the extension of the foreign exchange sales program until January 9, 2021.

On June 3, 2020, the CB started a gradual reduction of its operations for the sale of exchange hedging instruments.

On January 13, 2021, the Board of the BCCH announced a program for replenishment and expansion of international reserves.

Given that there are less than 3 interventions from June 4, 2020, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to free floating from floating, effective June 4, 2020.

Official exchange rate

Yes.

The exchange rate in the Formal Exchange Market (MCF) is the rate freely agreed by the participants. The BCCH publishes daily exchange rates of the foreign currencies generally accepted in international exchange markets in the Official Gazette, based on the previous day's transactions in the MCF and, where appropriate, on reports on transactions in international markets. The Law of the CB specifically states that the exchange rate in the MCF is the one freely agreed by the intervening parties. Nevertheless, the Law of the CB also requires it to authorize "adjustment systems" ("sistemas de reajuste") for credit operations in local currency of banks and cooperatives (Article 35.9), and the US dollar and other foreign currencies have been authorized as one of those "adjustment systems." Only for those specific transactions (credit operations in local currency of banks and cooperatives), the exchange rates published in the Official Gazette are mandatory.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks may freely set their exchange rates in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Only institutions licensed by the BCCH may conduct foreign exchange transactions, which must be carried out through the MCF. As of December 31, 2020, 19 banks and 9 nonbank entities (8 stock exchange brokers and 1 securities dealer) are authorized institutions. Under Article 39 of the LOC of the BCCH, anyone may freely engage in foreign exchange operations. Without prejudice to that provision, Article 42 of that law authorizes the BCCH to limit execution of certain operations to the MCF. The MCF comprises all banking institutions; the BCCH may authorize other entities and individuals, provided they meet the requirements in Chapter III of the Compendium of Foreign Exchange Regulations (CNCI). A list of these entities is given in the annex to Chapter III. Chapter II also lists operations that must be conducted exclusively through the MCF, executed in the MCF, and reported to the BCCH, and those that need only be reported. Therefore, exchange bureaus may operate in the exchange market, except for transactions that must be executed exclusively through the MCF. At present, no exchange bureaus participate in the MCF, although they are not legally barred from requesting authorization to do so if they meet the CNCI requirements.

Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	Foreign financial investments by commercial banks are subject to prudential regulations.
In banks by nonresidents	No.	The incorporation of a bank in Chile requires, among other things, that the company be incorporated in the country as a corporation. In addition, the founding or controlling shareholders are required to comply with a set of fit and proper requirements, but none concerning nationality (Articles 27 and 28 of the General Banking Law, LGB). In addition, Article 29 of the LGB regulates how financial institutions incorporated abroad can significantly participate in the creation or acquisition of shares of a Chilean bank: "A financial institution incorporated abroad that requests to take a significant part in the creation or acquisition of shares of a Chilean bank or to establish a branch in accordance with Article 32 may only be authorized if, in the country in which its head office operates, there is supervision that allows adequate monitoring of the risk of its operations and, in addition to complying with the provisions of the previous article, if it has prior authorization from the supervisory authority of the country in which its head office is incorporated. Additionally, to grant authorization, the supervisory bodies of both countries must be able to exchange relevant information on these institutions on a reciprocal basis. In the case of investment holdings or other types of companies incorporated abroad, they must assure the Financial Market Commission, in whatever manner the latter deems necessary, that the provisions of the foregoing paragraph are permanently complied with if they hold or subsequently acquire a significant interest in a bank or financial institution in the country in which they are incorporated or in another country. As for the companies referred to in the previous paragraph, which are incorporated in a country that applies the rules of the Basel Committee, the preceding paragraphs are not applicable, if they are

		obliged to deliver, in the manner and within a time frame determined by the Board, reliable financial information regarding said companies and their subsidiaries, it being understood that such information emanates from the supervisory bodies. When these companies are not subject to the supervision of a body or are not required to provide such information to the body, the information must be endorsed by internationally recognized external auditors. To grant the corresponding authorization to these companies, they must assure the Board, in the manner it determines, that the provisions of this paragraph will be permanently complied with when they hold or subsequently acquire a significant interest in a bank or financial institution in the country in which they are incorporated or in another country. In the event of non-compliance with the provisions of this article, the provisions of the second and final paragraphs of Article 36 of this law apply. For the purposes of this article, a significant shareholding in a Chilean bank is considered to be one which, according to the rules of Article 36, requires authorization from the Board.”
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	Banks are required to observe a limit on interest rates and currency risk exposure.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	Chapter III B. 2 of the Compendium of Financial Standards of the BCCH states that the difference between payables, in the liabilities and expenditure accounts, and receivables, in the assets and revenue accounts, that have different maturities—the so-called maturity mismatch—must comply with the following: (1) The sum of the 30-day maturity mismatches denominated in domestic and foreign currency may not exceed core capital. (2) The 30-day maturity mismatches denominated in foreign currency may not exceed core capital. (3) The sum of the 90-day maturity mismatches denominated in domestic and foreign currency may not exceed twice the core capital.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	Chapter III B. 2 of the Compendium of Financial Standards of the BCCH states that the difference between payables, in the liabilities and expenditure accounts, and receivables, in the assets and revenue accounts, that have different maturities—the so-called maturity mismatch—must comply with the following: (1) The sum of the 30-day maturity mismatches denominated in domestic and foreign currency may not exceed core capital. (2) The 30-day maturity mismatches denominated in foreign currency may not exceed core capital. (3) The sum of the 90-day maturity mismatches denominated in domestic and foreign currency may not exceed twice the core capital.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Limits apply to purchases of foreign securities by insurance companies that would cause foreign assets to exceed 25%, and 30% of technical provisions and risk capital reserves. Foreign financial derivative products purchased or exchanged for other assets may not exceed 3% of insurance companies’ technical reserves or risk assets.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Limits apply to lending abroad by insurance companies that would cause foreign assets to exceed 25%, and 30% of technical provisions and risk capital reserves.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	A degree of consistency between asset and liability flows, both in terms of currency and maturity, must be maintained.

CHILE

Pension funds	Yes.	There are five types of pension funds: A, B, C, D, and E.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Pension funds of types A, B, C, and D may invest up to 1% of their assets in equity shares issued by foreign capital investment funds and may invest no more than 1% of their assets in the equity shares of a single foreign capital investment fund. Limits apply to the purchase of foreign securities by managers of DL 3500 pension funds, Retirement Bonus Fund of Law 19882 funds, and Unemployment Fund of Law 19728 funds that would cause foreign assets to represent an amount greater than the limits established for them in DL 3500, as amended in 2008.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Limits apply to investment abroad by managers of DL 3500 pension funds, Retirement Bonus Fund of Law 19882 funds, and Unemployment Fund of Law 19728 funds that would cause foreign assets to represent an amount greater than the limits established for them in DL 3500, as amended in 2008. The sum of investments in foreign securities of A, B, C, D, and E funds managed by the same pension fund manager plus the amount of their investments abroad through mutual fund and national investment shares may not exceed 80% of the total value of the funds.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	The limits on foreign currency investments without hedging applicable to A, B, C, D, and E funds are, respectively, 50%, 40%, 35%, 25%, and 15% of the total value of the fund.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	No.	Investment funds must state their investment policies in their regulations and must stay within the limits they are free to set.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.

Crawl-like arrangement	Yes.	China officially maintains a de jure managed floating exchange rate arrangement with a view to keeping the RMB exchange rate stable at an adaptive and equilibrium level based on market supply and demand with reference to a basket of currencies to preserve the stability of the Chinese economy and financial markets. The floating band of the RMB's trading prices is 2% against the US dollar in the interbank foreign exchange market—that is, on each business day, the trading prices of the RMB against the US dollar in the market may fluctuate within a band of $\pm 2\%$ around the midrate released that day by China's Foreign Exchange Trading System (CFETS). The People’s Bank of China (PBC) announced that the RMB’s floating range would be expanded in an orderly manner, based on the developments of the foreign exchange market and economic and financial situation. Based on the market demand and their pricing capacity, banks can determine their quotes of RMB against other currencies. There is no limit on the purchasing and selling prices of spot exchange and cash, which are determined by market supply and demand (PBC No. 2014/188).

The CFETS publishes exchange rate indices based on the Bank for International Settlements currency basket and the SDR currency basket, and an exchange rate index against a basket of the currencies listed on CFETS (the CFETS RMB Index). Since July 2020, the CFETS RMB Index has been rising, with a total increase in the second half of 2020 of 3.8%. To ensure that CFETS basket remains representative, CFETS reviews the currency basket for the RMB Index annually and adjusts the composition and the weightings of the currencies as necessary. In December 2020, the CFETS recalculated the weightings for the currencies in the RMB Index basket, applying a trade weighting methodology that considers re-export factors. Since July 2020, the exchange rate of the RMB has followed an appreciating trend within a 2% band against the basket of 24 currencies in the CFETS index, with one realignment in December 2020. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to crawl-like from other managed, effective July 31, 2020.

Official exchange rate

Yes.

The PBC authorizes the CFETS to publish the daily midrates for the RMB against the Australian dollar, Canadian dollar, Danish krone, euro, Hong Kong dollar, Hungarian forint, Japanese yen, Korean won, Malaysian ringgit, Mexican peso, New Zealand dollar, Norwegian krone, Polish zloty, pound sterling, Russian ruble, Saudi Arabian riyal, South African rand, Singapore dollar, Swedish krona, Swiss franc, Turkish lira, UAE dirham, Thai baht, and the US dollar at 9:15 a.m. each working day to serve as the day’s midrates for the interbank spot foreign exchange market (including the OTC method and the bid-offer method). At the same time, the CFETS also publishes the daily reference rate (similar to the midrate) of the RMB against Kazakhstani tenge, Mongolian tögrög, and Cambodian riel. For bank’s counter transactions (that is, bank customer transactions), banks can determine their RMB quotes against other currencies. There is no limit on the purchasing and selling prices of spot foreign exchange and cash, which are determined by market supply and demand.

The method for determining the RMB–US dollar midrate is as follows: The CFETS, before the daily interbank foreign exchange market opening quote, asks for quotes from all market makers in the interbank foreign exchange market and uses their quoted prices as the calculation sample for the RMB–US dollar midrate. The quotes for the US dollar must refer to the closing price of the previous day and take into account foreign exchange supply and demand and changes in the exchange rates of the main international currencies. After eliminating the highest and lowest quotes, it takes the weighted average of the remaining market makers’ quotes and obtains the daily

RMB–US dollar midrate. The weighting is determined by the CFETS based on indicators including the transaction volume of the quoting parties in the interbank foreign exchange market and the circumstances of the quotes.

The method for determining the midrate of the RMB against the Australian dollar, Canadian dollar, Danish krone, euro, Hungarian forint, Japanese yen, Korean won, Malaysian ringgit, Mexican peso, New Zealand dollar, Norwegian krone, Polish zloty, pound sterling, Russian ruble, Saudi Arabian riyal, South African rand, Singapore dollar, Swedish krona, Swiss franc, Turkish lira, UAE dirham, and Thai baht is as follows:

The CFETS, before the daily interbank foreign exchange market opens, asks for quotes from market makers of the corresponding currencies in the interbank foreign exchange market, eliminates the highest and lowest quotes, takes the average of the remaining market makers’ quotes, and obtains the daily RMB midrates against the corresponding currencies. The midrate against the Hong Kong dollar is determined by the CFETS through cross-rates based, respectively, on the day’s midrate of the RMB against the US dollar and the exchange rate for the US dollar against the Hong Kong dollar on international foreign exchange markets at 9:00 a.m.

The regional trading reference rates for the Kazakhstani tenge, Mongolian tögrög, and Cambodian riel are determined by the CFETS by asking for quotes from quoting banks before the opening quote and then taking a simple average of the quotes. The CFETS publishes its exchange rate index, and other RMB indices based on the Bank for International Settlements currency basket and the SDR currency basket. The number of currencies included in the CFETS RMB currency basket was increased from 13 to 24 in 2017. The new currencies account for about 21% of the new basket and are included as they have become directly traded in the onshore foreign exchange market in 2016.

Monetary aggregate target

Yes.

The Law of the People’s Republic of China on the PBC stipulates that “the aim of monetary policies must be to maintain the stability of the value of the currency and thereby promote economic growth.” The current reality in China requires that monetary policy take into account multiple objectives such as inflation, growth, employment, balance of payments, and also set aside space for financial stability and financial reforms. Therefore, in developing and implementing monetary policies, the PBC needs to consider multiple factors such as currency stability and economic growth and to properly adjust the weights of each objective according to key tasks of economic management.

In recent years, the PBC has continued to refine the modern monetary policy framework in pursuit of the ultimate goal of a stable currency. It explicitly maintains the intermediate objective of matching the growth in money supply and total social financing to the nominal economic growth rate; continues to refine the policy rate system involving a short-term rate (open market operations rate) and a medium-term rate (medium-term lending facility rate). This provides guidance to the market interest rates, which float around the pivotal policy rates. Together with robust mechanisms for the formation and transmission of market interest rates, and refined mechanisms for adjustments in money supply, these PBC systems form an organic whole, providing a positive monetary and financial environment for high-quality economic growth.

The trading prices of the RMB against the South African rand and the Thai baht float within a  $\pm 10\%$  range of their respective midrates on the current trading day. In regional trading, the price of the RMB against the Kazakhstani tenge, the Mongolian tögrög, and the Cambodian riel floats within a 10% range of the respective reference rates.

Spot exchange market Yes. As of the end of 2020, 516 banks were qualified to engage in spot foreign exchange settlement and sales operations. Of these, 115 are qualified to initiate forward and swap transactions for their customers. Banks may determine their RMB exchange rates to the US dollar with their clients without any limit on the spread, based on market supply and demand. In August 2008, the State Administration of Foreign Exchange (SAFE) launched a pilot project to license institutions to provide foreign currency conversion services to individuals. As of the end of 2020, there were 65 institutions across the country licensed to provide such services. These institutions are only permitted to handle banknote conversion transactions for individuals; they are not permitted to handle foreign currency payments and transfers, maintain accounts abroad, or engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the PBC. The licensed institutions may freely determine the currencies they trade unless otherwise required by the State, and set their exchange rates according to relevant regulations of the PBC and SAFE regarding banks' exchange rates.

Foreign CBs (monetary authorities) and other reserve management institutions, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may enter the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market and initiate various types of foreign exchange transactions, including forward, swap, and option, through one or more of the following three avenues: through the PBC as their agent, through a Chinese interbank foreign exchange market member as their agent, and by directly becoming a foreign member of the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market. Transaction methods include OTC and price-matching, without limits on the amount. Foreign banks can apply for membership of the CFETS and can then participate directly in the foreign currency interbank market; or they may apply for Financial institutions (including finance companies) that sell foreign exchange forward to their clients must deposit foreign exchange risk reserves. Effective October 12, 2020, the risk reserve ratio was reduced from 20% to 0%. The calculation should be based on the amount of contracted forward foreign exchange sales of the previous month, and the reserves should be deposited in dollars with the PBC. The holding period of the foreign exchange risk reserve is one year, and the interest rate is tentatively set at 0.

Domestic institutions approved by the SAFE for derivatives business of RMB against foreign exchange for customers are allowed to handle foreign exchange derivatives business for foreign institutional investors if they meet the conditions for settlement agents in the interbank market set out in the Announcement No. 3 of the PBC [2016].

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Pursuant to the Regulations of the People's Republic of China on the Administration of Foreign Exchange, for all cross-border trade (including border trade), there are no restrictions on the foreign currencies that can be used. In cross-border transactions, contractual parties may agree to use freely convertible currencies or RMB. When transnational trading companies carry out cross-border trade with foreign trading agencies, they may value and settle accounts in freely convertible currencies, the currency of the neighboring country, or RMB.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.
For current transactions and payments	No.	Enterprises and individuals in all regions of China may settle cross-border transactions for current account items using RMB because the deregulation of personal cross-border receipts and payments of renminbi under current accounts became complete under Yin Fa [2018] No. 3.
For capital transactions	Yes.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	RMB may be used for both outward and inward FDI. Eligible institutions outside mainland China may invest in China subject to conditions. Qualified investors that meet the conditions listed in PBC Announcement [2016] No. 3, including financial institutions legally registered and established outside China, such as commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, sell investment products to clients according to law and in compliance with rules and regulations, and other medium- and long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may engage in bond and spot bond trading approved by the PBC on the interbank bond market. All types of foreign institutional investors can also carry out transactions such as bond lending, bond forwards, forward interest rate agreements, and interest rate swaps based on hedging needs, without investment limits. RMB clearing banks may participate in the domestic interbank lending market. Foreign RMB clearing banks and foreign participating banks may carry out bond repo business in the interbank bond market. Foreign CBs or monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may conduct interbank market transactions permitted by the PBC, such as spot bond trading, bond repos, or bond lending without restriction on the amounts. The financing ratio of domestic correspondent banks with respect to the renminbi accounts of foreign participating banks must not exceed 3% of the domestic correspondent bank's total renminbi deposits at the end of the previous year.

Effective November 1, 2020, China Securities Regulatory Commission (CSRC), PBC, and SAFE Decree No. 176 and CSRC Announcement [2020] No. 63 expanded the range of financial instruments qualified foreign institutional investor (QFII) and RMB QFII (RQFII) can invest in. QFIIs/RQFIIs may invest in domestic securities and futures markets, including: shares, depository receipts, bonds, bond repo, and bonds with warrants traded or sold on securities exchanges; shares and other securities on the National Equities Exchange and Quotations (NEEQ); products on the interbank bond markets in which the PBC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to invest; bond, interest rate, and foreign exchange derivatives; publicly traded investment funds; financial futures traded on Chinese financial futures exchanges; commodity futures contracts traded on futures exchanges approved by the CSRC; options traded on exchanges approved by the State Council or the CSRC; foreign exchange derivatives for hedging purposes that the CSRC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to trade; and other financial instruments as permitted by the CSRC.

Domestic banks, securities, and insurance institutions may invest in external capital markets as qualified domestic institutional investors (QDIIs) or RMB QDIIs (RQDIIs). QDIIs have an overall total limit on the size of their investments (currently US$180 billion), but RQDIIs have no size limit. However, they need to invest in security products denominated in RMB. As of June 30, 2021, a total of 173 QDIIs had obtained limits totaling US$147.32 billion.

On April 30, 2018, the PBC published Yin Ban Fa [2018] No. 81, perfecting and clarifying that QDIIs can use RMB to invest in offshore financial products valued in RMB. On May 2, 2018, the Shanghai headquarters of the PBC published the supporting Shanghai Headquarters Notice (2018) No. 1, clarifying requirements related to macroprudential management and information disclosures of RQDIIs.

Hong Kong institutions and individuals may invest in domestic A shares through Hong Kong brokerage agencies and institutions (northbound Shanghai stock connect and Shenzhen stock connect), and domestic institutions and individuals may invest in Hong Kong shares through domestic securities companies (southbound HK stock connect). The Shanghai–Hong Kong and Shenzhen–Hong Kong stock connects have a daily cap on investments, and there are regulations on the scope of investments.

Legal person financial institutions and enterprises in China can freely carry out cross-border financing in RMB or in foreign currencies within the limit determined by their capital and net assets. They do not need to get the approval from the PBC or SAFE in advance. Domestic branches of foreign banks (including banks in Hong Kong SAR, Macau SAR, and Taiwan Province of China) may freely conduct domestic and foreign currency cross-border financing within the limit determined by their tier 1 capital or working capital, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	requirement. To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in addition to the QDII scheme, since 2013, the SAFE has also launched qualified domestic investment enterprise (QDIE) pilots in Shenzhen and qualified domestic limited partnership (QDLP) pilots in Shanghai, Beijing, Hainan, Chongqing, Jiangsu, Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen), and Qingdao. These programs enable domestic investors who meet qualifications to raise funds domestically and invest them abroad in securities, private equity, commodities, and real estate. The QDLP/QDIE schemes are currently pilot operations; the SAFE exercises regional quota controls, and the competent local financial administrative authorities have led the formation of joint review teams charged with managing the qualifications of qualified institutions and individual institution quotas within the pilot regions. The total approved QDLP/QDIE quota is currently US$54 billion. In December 2019, US$5 billion was increased for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Beijing. In November 2020, US$5 billion was separately increased for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Shenzhen, Shanghai, and Beijing. In December 2020, US$5 billion was separately increased for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Hainan and Chongqing. In March 2021, US$5 billion was separately increased for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen) and Jiangsu, and US$3 billion for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Qingdao. Credit operations	Yes.	RMB cross-border lending by domestic institutions must be registered with the local foreign exchange regulator. The sum of their offshore RMB and foreign currency loans should not exceed 30% of shareholder's equity as indicated by the audited financial statements of the previous year. Additional requirements on the loan's objectives, funding sources, lending period, usage, withdrawal, etc., are also in place. Domestic correspondent banks may offer RMB financing accounts to banks participating in foreign RMB operations within certain limits and maturities. Domestic enterprises and financial institutions may, subject to macroprudential policies, attract RMB funds from abroad. Domestic parent banks or head offices may provide RMB liquidity support to foreign RMB clearing banks. Within the present institutional framework of foreign debt and foreign lending, resident enterprises may use RMB to manage cross-border credit business. (1) Effective January 5, 2021, the macroprudential adjustment parameter for overseas loans by domestic enterprises was increased from 0.3 to 0.5. (2) Effective February 4, 2021, the regulation of renminbi-denominated overseas loans has been simplified. Loans repaid ahead of schedule are not counted in the loan quota for domestic companies making overseas renminbi loans; the currency conversion factor has been adjusted to 0.5. (3) Effective February 4, 2021, refinements have been made to the regulation of renminbi-denominated overseas borrowing by domestic enterprises. Domestic enterprises may open multiple renminbi accounts if required to handle a single renminbi loan borrowed overseas; they may also use a single renminbi account to handle receipts and payments connected to multiple overseas renminbi loans.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The use of foreign exchange for pricing or settlement of transactions among residents is prohibited.
Payments arrangements	Yes.	As of June 30, 2021, the PBC has signed or renewed bilateral local currency swap agreements with CBs or the monetary authorities of 40 countries or regions, of which 25 are currently in effect.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.

CHINA

Regional arrangements	No.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	The PBC has established RMB clearing arrangements with the CBs or monetary authorities of 25 countries and regions: Argentina, Australia, Canada, Chile, France, Germany, Hong Kong SAR, Hungary, Japan, Korea, Luxembourg, Macao SAR, Malaysia, Philippines, Qatar, Russia, Singapore, South Africa, Switzerland, Taiwan Province of China, Thailand, UAE, the United Kingdom, the United States, and Zambia.

Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.	Domestic gold transactions are organized on a market basis. Enterprises and individuals may transact in gold spot and spot-deferred products on the Shanghai Gold Exchange, gold futures products on the Shanghai Futures Exchange, and OTC gold products at commercial banks.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.	Enterprises with a business registration may independently produce, process, or engage in the production, processing, sale, or resale of gold products. The government protects individuals' holdings of legitimately obtained gold or silver.
On external trade	Yes.	Imports of gold require PBC approval. Individuals may carry gold in and out of the country for their own use, subject to a reasonable limit.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Individuals may not take out more than Y 20,000 from China.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Foreign currency cash not exceeding the amount declared on the most recent entry may be taken out without a foreign currency holding certificate (FCHC). Customs clearance is required for larger amounts or in the absence of a record as follows: (1) Foreign currency cash not exceeding the equivalent of US$5,000 may be taken out without an application for an FCHC and customs clearance. (2) Foreign currency cash exceeding the equivalent of US$5,000 up to and including the equivalent of US$10,000 may be taken out with an FCHC issued by a bank. Customs clearance is subject to an FCHC stamped by a bank. Under special circumstances established by law and regulations, application for an FCHC may be made at the local SAFE office.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents may bring into China up to RMB 20,000.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Persons entering China with foreign currency cash equivalent to more than US$5,000 must declare it in writing to customs, except those going and returning several times on the same day or within a short period of time.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

CHINA

Held domestically	Yes.	Resident institutions setting up foreign exchange accounts for current account transactions and resident individuals setting up foreign exchange savings accounts, etc., do not need to register with or be approved by the SAFE. Resident individuals may, with valid identification documents, open foreign exchange savings accounts and, in accordance with the related SAFE regulations, purchase foreign exchange and deposit it in foreign exchange savings accounts up to the amount equivalent to US$50,000 a year at banks on the basis of personal identification. Cumulative withdrawals of foreign currency by individuals not exceeding the equivalent of US$10,000 a day can be transacted directly at banks. If the cumulative total withdrawals exceed this amount, the transactions must be filed in advance with the bank's local foreign exchange bureau, based on information including the individual's valid identification document and an explanation of the purpose of the cash withdrawals.
Approval required	Yes.	Mainland institutions opening foreign exchange accounts for capital account transactions must register with or be approved by the SAFE. Generally, mainland institutions open an account for current account trading directly with the bank. Only a small number of special business current accounts (foreign currency cash accounts and offshore foreign exchange accounts) require SAFE approval. To borrow and raise external debt, a domestic bank may directly open the necessary accounts in domestic or foreign banks and follow the procedures of drawing and repaying external debt.
Held abroad	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Export enterprises may open foreign exchange accounts abroad to deposit proceeds from bona fide and legitimate export transactions with SAFE registration. To deposit the foreign exchange export revenues abroad, enterprises should meet the following requirements: (1) Export revenues must be legally-compliant and accurately reported; they must have a genuine need to make payments overseas in compliance with relevant regulations. (2) They must not have violated the foreign exchange management rules in the past two years. To deposit foreign exchange revenues abroad, services and trade enterprises should meet the following requirements: (1) Foreign currency revenues from services or trade must be legally-compliant and accurately reported; they must have a genuine need to make payments overseas in compliance with relevant regulations. (2) They must not have violated the foreign exchange management rules in the past two years. Domestic group companies in compliance with the conditions above may nominate a single corporate entity to manage all overseas receipts and payments for other domestic group members that make overseas deposits. This entity may be a domestic subsidiary involved in the overseas deposits, or the group parent company. Other resident entities that meet the following requirements may open foreign currency accounts abroad with SAFE approval: (1) The institution receives recurrent and sporadic proceeds abroad and needs a foreign currency account abroad to pool such proceeds before repatriating them. (2) The institution makes recurrent and sporadic payments abroad and needs a foreign currency account abroad. (3) The institution engages in project contracting abroad and needs a foreign currency account abroad. (4) The institution issues foreign-currency-denominated securities abroad and needs a foreign currency account abroad. (5) The institution has special operational requirements abroad and needs a foreign currency account abroad.

		Resident entities must submit regular reports to the SAFE regarding changes in funds in their foreign currency account abroad.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Resident entities may deposit their RMB proceeds received from RMB cross-border transactions in their offshore accounts without SAFE approval/registration.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	When making external payments, institutions and individuals must present valid evidence and commercial documents to designated foreign exchange banks to convert domestic currency to foreign currency. Current account transactions do not require permission, but capital account transactions require permission or registration; cross-border payments for direct investment require registration with SAFE or a bank. The registration serves information collection and statistical purposes. For cases subject to registration, institutions need only to comply with the relevant laws and regulations. Because approval involves market access, the authorities have the discretion to grant approval (for example, QDII quota). Facilitated exchange annual quota controls are in place for the settlement of foreign exchange by individuals and the purchase of foreign exchange by domestic individuals. The annual facilitated quota is the equivalent of US$50,000 an individual a year. Within the annual facilitated quota, these transactions can be completed at the bank based on valid identification; for current accounts, transactions that do not use the facilitated quota can be completed at the bank based on valid identification and documentation of the existence of a trading quota; under capital accounts, such transactions are completed in accordance with the relevant regulations concerning individual foreign exchange controls for capital accounts.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Foreign individuals with valid identification documents may open foreign exchange savings accounts in banks. Domestic banks that open foreign exchange accounts for foreign institutions should verify the documents provided such as their proof of legal registration abroad. Pursuant to the Notice of the SAFE Concerning Questions Related to the Administration of Foreign Exchange Accounts of Foreign Institutions, without approval, funds in the domestic foreign exchange accounts of foreign institutions (as referred to in this document—institutions legally registered and established outside China (including the Hong Kong, Macau, and Taiwan regions)) must not be directly or covertly used for foreign exchange settlements. Foreign institutions in free trade zones are permitted to settle foreign exchange using their domestic foreign exchange accounts. Where RMB is remitted onshore for use after settlements of foreign exchange, domestic banks must first review the valid commercial documents and vouchers of domestic institutions and domestic individuals concerned before processing the transactions, in accordance with the relevant provisions on cross-border transactions.
Approval required	Yes.	On registration by SAFE or a bank, foreign investors may establish foreign exchange accounts to retain foreign exchange related to direct investment.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Hong Kong and Macao RMB business clearing banks may open RMB clearing accounts with the PBC; other RMB clearing banks may open RMB clearing accounts at their China head office or at branches designated by their China head offices. Domestic correspondent banks may open RMB interbank current accounts for foreign participating banks and act as agents for foreign participating banks to carry out cross-border RMB payments. Account financing is also available on correspondent bank accounts. Foreign participating banks may use RMB funds from RMB cross-border trade and investment business including RMB funds in domestic interbank current accounts to invest in China's interbank bond market subject to conditions.

		Nonresidents who engage in cross-border RMB business settlements may open RMB bank settlement accounts domestically. Foreign CBs and similar institutional investors investing in the interbank bond and foreign exchange markets may open special RMB deposit accounts at the PBC or at commercial banks.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Foreign individuals may convert and transfer abroad RMB (1) obtained from their legitimate current transactions in China and (2) originally converted but not yet completely used, in accordance with the relevant SAFE regulations. Nonresident enterprises may convert to foreign exchange RMB funds deposited on settlement accounts in domestic banks and transfer abroad. Domestic correspondent banks and nonresident clearing banks may process trade of goods and services and direct investments for nonresident participating banks and enter China's interbank foreign exchange market to clear their positions.
Approval required	Yes.	Foreign institutions issuing RMB bonds in China may follow rules and open nonresident RMB accounts to deposit proceeds from bond issuance.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	No.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	Yes.	The positive list is for goods that can be imported freely.
Negative list	Yes.	The negative list includes goods for which imports are prohibited or restricted. Goods prohibited for import include tiger bones, rhinoceros' horns, opium, asbestos, carbon tetrachloride, old clothing, asphalt macadam, urban garbage, coin-operated electronic game machines, used cathode ray tube (CRT) glass bulbs, and used overheated boilers (for details, see the Index of Prohibited Imports). In addition, the importation of the following items is prohibited: weapons; ammunition and explosives; manuscripts; printed and recorded materials; and films that are deemed detrimental to Chinese political, economic, cultural, or moral interests. Goods for which imports are restricted may be imported if a permit is obtained.

Open general licenses	Yes.	Such licenses are applicable to certain categories of old electrical products.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Such licenses apply to substances that deplete the ozone layer.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	China implements inspections, quarantines, and certifications with regard to import products according to the law. An import quarantine approval system is applied to high-risk plants and animals, and related products.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Based on the Regulations of the People's Republic of China on Import and Export Tariffs, import tariffs may follow the MFN rates, agreed rates, preferential rates, regular rates, quota rates, or provisional rates. MFN duty rates apply to imported goods originating in WTO member countries that are subject to the MFN clause, import goods originating in countries or regions with which China has bilateral trade agreements for reciprocal MFN treatment, and goods originating in the customs territory of China. Agreed duty rates apply to imported goods originating in countries or regions with which China has regional trade agreements that include preferential duty clauses. Special preferential duty rates apply to imported goods originating in countries or regions with which China has trade agreements that include special preferential duty clauses. General duty rates apply to imported goods originating in countries or regions other than those with MFN rates, agreed rates, and preferential rates and to imported goods of undetermined origin. Import tariff quota controls are in effect for wheat, corn, rice, sugar, cotton, wool, wool top, and chemical fertilizer, and within the tariff quota, the tariff quota duty rate applies to imported goods subject to tariff quotas. (The tariff rate for imports subject to tariff quota depends on quantity imported. A lower tariff rate applies to imports below a certain threshold volume and a higher tariff applies to imports above the threshold volume. There are no quantitative restrictions.) Provisional rates may be applied to imported goods subject to MFN rates, agreed rates, preferential rates, and tariff quota rates for specified time periods.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	Yes.	In accordance with the relevant laws, regulations, and China's WTO accession protocol, state trading is in effect for importing activities involving the following products: grain (wheat, corn, rice), crude oil, oil products, sugar, tobacco, chemical fertilizers, and cotton.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Foreign exchange proceeds of resident entities may be repatriated to China or deposited abroad; the conditions and terms for deposit abroad are regulated by the SAFE based on the international balance of payments status and foreign exchange management needs. Domestic entities with bona fide and legitimate export revenues and external payment needs in line with foreign exchange regulations, and which have not violated the foreign exchange regulations in the past two years, may open accounts abroad and deposit the proceeds from bona fide and legitimate transactions after registration with SAFE. The registration needs to be revised in case the total funds deposited abroad annually exceed the amount of funds originally registered with SAFE. Resident entities may freely determine the period for keeping their deposit abroad, except when SAFE requires the repatriation of the funds because the entity violated the regulations. The RMB revenue of resident entities and individuals may be repatriated to China or deposited externally without PBC or SAFE approval.

Surrender requirements	No.	Resident entities may retain foreign exchange revenue from current account transactions in foreign exchange demand deposit accounts.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Other	Yes.	The SAFE registers and maintains a list of resident institutions that have trade receipts and payments in foreign currencies and publishes the list through an electronic information platform for financial institutions. Institutions registered at the SAFE on this list may sell their foreign-currency-denominated export proceeds for RMB or deposit them in foreign exchange settlement accounts.
Export licenses	Yes.
Without quotas	Yes.	Foreign trade operators exporting goods including live cattle (to markets other than Hong Kong or Macau), live pigs (to markets other than Hong Kong or Macau), live chickens (to markets other than Hong Kong), beef, pork, or chicken meat, natural sand (including standard sand), bauxite, phosphate rock, magnesia sand, talc lump (powder), fluorite (fluorspar), rare earth, tin and tin products, tungsten and tungsten products, molybdenum and molybdenum products, antimony and antimony products, coke, refined oil (lubricating oil, lubricating grease, base oil for lubricating oil), paraffin, some metals and metallic products, disodium sulfate, silicon carbide, substances that deplete the ozone layer, citric acid, silver, platinum (exported using the processing trade method), indium and indium products, motorcycles (including all-terrain vehicles) and their engines and frames, automobiles (including knocked-down kits) and their chassis must apply for and obtain export permits according to regulations.
With quotas	Yes.	Exporters of the following products may apply for an export license only if they have documentary evidence of a quota allocation: live cattle (to Hong Kong/Macau), live pigs (to Hong Kong/Macau), live chickens (to Hong Kong/Macau), wheat, maize, rice, wheat flour, maize flour, rice flour, cultivated Ephedra sinica for medicinal use, coal, crude oil, refined petroleum products (excluding lubricating oil, lubricating grease, and lubricating base oil), sawn timber, cotton; exporters of the following products may apply for an export license only if they have documentary evidence of a successful bid for a quota allocation: licorice and licorice products, mat rush and mat rush products.
Export taxes	Yes.	Export duty rates have been established for the taxation of exports. Provisional duty rates may be applied to export goods for a specified time period.

Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	Export rebates are standard international practice, conform to WTO rules and requirements, and do not constitute an export subsidy. If the legally prescribed VAT rate is not exceeded, China implements full tax rebates for the majority of export cargo; at the same time, to promote environmental protection, tax rebates are not offered for certain export products, to reflect the environmental pollution caused by the products in the cost of exporting them. China continues to refine its export rebate policy to deliver higher quality growth in international trade. Effective March 20, 2020, export rebates for export of goods are offered at three levels: 13%, 9%, and 0%.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	Regulations for nontrade payments are the same for foreign-owned and domestically owned enterprises. There are separate rules for individuals. Facilitated exchange annual quota controls are in place for the settlement of foreign exchange by individuals and the purchase of foreign exchange by domestic individuals. The annual facilitated quota is the equivalent of US$50,000 an individual a year. Within the annual facilitated quota, such transactions can be completed at the bank based on valid identification; for current accounts, transactions that do not use the facilitated quota can be completed at the bank based on valid identification and documentation of the existence of a trading quota.
Trade-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Payments in foreign exchange can be made directly through authorized banks by presenting valid proof and commercial bills. No transaction evidence is needed for trade-related RMB cross-border payments. On the basis of the three principles of “know your customer,” “know your business,” and “conduct due diligence,” banks may effect current account RMB cross-border settlement according to the payment or receipt instructions submitted by domestic enterprises.

Receipts may be repatriated or deposited overseas. When a single service trade transaction (including transport, travel, communication, building installation, labor contracting, insurance, financial, computer and information, exclusive right to use and franchise sports, cultural and entertainment services, other commercial services, government services) exceeds the equivalent of US$50,000, the resident payer must submit a “Taxation Filing Form for Foreign Payments under Trade in Services and Other Items” to the financial institution making the transfer. Effective June 29, 2021, when multiple overseas payments are required for a single contract, domestic organizations and individuals need only file before the first payment.

The Taxation Filing Form does not need to be completed or submitted for the following foreign payments with foreign exchange by domestic institutions and individuals:
(1) Travel, conference, product exhibition, and other expenses

CHINA

- incurred overseas by domestic institutions;
- (2) Office expenses incurred by the overseas representative offices of domestic institutions and project payments for projects contracted overseas by domestic institutions;
- (3) Import and export trade commissions, insurance premiums, and compensation paid overseas by domestic institutions;
- (4) International transportation payments that overseas institutions obtain under import trade;
- (5) Insurance premiums, insurance benefits, and other relevant expenses under the insurance item;

(3) Investment may take place in installments; the percentage of shares obtained on completion of the first installment may not be less than 10% of the company's shares issued and outstanding, with the exception of special industries with specific requirements or with approval of the relevant authority. (4) A shares of the listed company may not be transferred for three years. (5) Investors' shareholdings may not exceed the limits stipulated by law or regulations, and investment is not allowed in listed companies in areas prohibited by law or regulations. (6) Shareholders of government-owned shares in listed companies must comply with the relevant regulations.

Since November 2014, investors from the Mainland and Hong Kong SAR can invest in Hong Kong and Shanghai stock markets, respectively (SH–HK stock connect), under certain conditions and within the limit jointly published by the CSRC and the Hong Kong Securities and Futures Commission. Since December 2016, when certain conditions are met, investors from the Hong Kong SAR may invest in the Shenzhen stock market and vice versa (SZ–HK stock connect). The overall quota for the SH–HK stock connect was abolished in August 2016, while SZ–HK stock connect was established without overall limits, but both schemes have daily quotas: for the Shanghai and Shenzhen component RMB 52 billion and for the Hong Kong component RMB 42 billion.

Foreign investors may complete foreign exchange fund exchange and foreign exchange risk hedging operations at Hong Kong renminbi clearing banks or participating banks, incorporated into renminbi purchase and sales operations.

Global Depository Receipts (GDR): Based on the objective of hedging risk, domestic securities companies engaged in cross-border

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	conversion operations may buy and sell underlying stocks corresponding to depositary receipts in accordance with the requirements of the relevant competent authorities. The first GDR was issued by Huatai Securities on June 17, 2019, and has been eligible for cross-border conversion since October 17, 2019. The Measures for the Administration of the Cross-Border Funds for Depositary Receipts (Provisional) (PBC and SAFE Announcement [2019] No. 8) were published on May 27, 2019. The CSRC launched a pilot program in March 2018 for the issuance of Chinese Depositary Receipts (CDRs) by innovative enterprises, making arrangements for the issuance, public offering, and trading of CDRs, setting forth the basic conditions and procedures for CDR offerings, and producing the general requirements for the use of CDRs to engage in refinancing. Subsequently, the PBC and the SAFE issued regulations concerning the administration of cross-border funding of depositary receipts. In October 2018, the CSRC published the Regulatory Provisions of the CSRC on the Interconnection Depositary Receipt Business of the Shanghai Stock Exchange (SSE) and the London Stock Exchange (LSE) (Provisional) (CSRC Announcement [2018] No. 30), clarifying the institutional arrangements related to CDRs under the terms of Shanghai–London connect, including review and approval of offerings, listing and trading, information disclosures, cross-border exchange, and registration and clearing. The Shanghai–London stock connect was formally launched to enable issuance of CDRs domestically in China on the SSE by qualified issuers of foreign underlying securities listed on the LSE, based on an interconnectivity mechanism between the SSE and the LSE.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Capital raised by foreign issuers of domestic CDRs based on new securities can be remitted abroad in renminbi or foreign currencies and may also be retained for use domestically. In accordance with the dividends and allotments distributed by a foreign issuer, the domestic depository trustee of CDRs may provide corresponding services to the holders of CDRs and process the receipts, payments, and currency conversions of the related funds. Overseas-listed companies controlled by foreign shareholders may repurchase their overseas-listed and traded shares, provided the SAFE verifies the source of the funds and approves payment abroad. Insurance companies may invest overseas subject to approval. The aggregate balance of insurance companies' overseas investment may not exceed 15% of the insurance company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total amount of actual investment must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. Effective July 17, 2020, a solvency-based differentiated proportional supervision policy has been instituted for the book value of insurance companies' investments in equity-type assets (previously no more than 30% of the company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter), and the book value of major equity investments must not exceed the company's net assets at the end of the previous quarter; the book value does not include investments in insurance enterprise stock made using the insurance company's own funds. The book values of investments in single fixed-income assets, equity-type assets, fixed assets, and other financial assets must not exceed 5% of the company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Single-asset investments refer to investments in single, specific investment varieties among the major investment asset categories. For investment varieties issued in installments, the book value of single-asset investments is the total amount invested in each installment period. A single investment in a single legal entity may not exceed

20% of the insurance company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Insurance fund offshore investment in equity-type assets includes equity instruments or products such as common stock, preferred stock, global depositary receipts, American depositary receipts, and equity of unlisted enterprises. When insurance institutions invest in foreign shares, the shares should be traded on the main board of the securities exchange in a specified country or region, or on the Hong Kong ChiNext board. Direct investments in the equity of unlisted enterprises are limited to equity of enterprises in the financial services, pension, health care, energy, resources, automotive services, and modern agriculture sectors. On approval, qualified fund management firms and other securities management organizations may, within limits, combine foreign exchange funds and RMB funds of resident entities and individuals and use the funds to engage in portfolio investment, including in stocks. QDIIs, including banks, fund management firms, securities companies, and insurance companies, may use foreign exchange to purchase stock and other investment instruments as permitted by regulations abroad within their respective SAFE-approved investment quotas and regulatory limits. As of June 30, 2021, a total of 173 QDIIs had obtained limits totaling US$147.32 billion. Under the RQDII system, foreign investments in RMB are not subject to quotas, overall limits, and internal limits on the financial instruments acquired and must be invested in RMB denominated products in foreign financial markets.

The market value of securities issued by the same institution (except governments and international financial organizations) held by a single fund or collective plan may not exceed 10% of the net value of the fund or collective plan; funds and collective schemes must not buy securities with the intention to control or influence the institution that issues the security or its management. The entire fund or collective plan managed by the same domestic institutional investor may not hold more than 10% of the total volume of the same institution's voting securities. Index funds may not be subject to these restrictions.

On registration with the SAFE, domestic employees of domestic affiliates of foreign listed companies may participate in these companies' equity incentive programs and purchase shares or options under the terms of such programs.

China mainland and Hong Kong investors may invest in the Hong Kong stock market and Shanghai/Shenzhen stock markets, respectively, under certain conditions and subject to limits.

Yin Ban Fa [2018] No. 81 further standardized matters related to the investment products, use of funds, macroprudential management, and information reporting for foreign securities investments of qualified renminbi investors.

To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in addition to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched QDIE pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai, Beijing, Hainan, Chongqing, Jiangsu, Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen), and Qingdao since 2013. QDLP/QDIE programs enable domestic investors who meet qualifications to raise funds domestically and invest them abroad in securities, private equity, commodities, and real estate. The total approved QDLP/QDIE quota is currently US$54 billion. In December 2019, US$5 billion was increased for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Beijing. In November 2020, US$5 billion was separately increased for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Shenzhen, Shanghai, and Beijing. In December 2020, US$5 billion was separately increased for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Hainan and Chongqing. In March 2021, US$5 billion was separately increased for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen) and Jiangsu, and US$3 billion for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Qingdao. In June 2021, US$1 billion was increased for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Ningbo.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Approval by the CSRC and registration with the SAFE are required for the issuance of shares or depositary receipts abroad by resident enterprises. Funds originating from such issuance are not subject to the restrictions required for repatriation, but may be converted to RMB and used in China. Renminbi capital raised by domestic enterprises by issuing stocks abroad can be remitted into and used in China.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Foreign RMB clearing banks and foreign participating banks may carry out spot bond trading and bond repo business on the interbank bond market. Foreign CBs or monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may conduct other interbank market transactions permitted by the PBC, such as spot bond trading, bond repos, bond loans, bond forward and interest rate swaps, and forward rate agreements without restriction on the amounts. Various types of financial institutions legally registered and established outside China, such as commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, the investment products issued by the aforementioned financial institutions to clients in compliance with rules and regulations, and other medium- and long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may conduct spot bond trading on the interbank bond market, and can also carry out transactions such as bond lending, forward bond, forward rate agreements, and interest rate swaps based on their hedging needs, with no investment limit. Effective November 1, 2020, CSRC, PBC, and SAFE Decree No. 176 and CSRC Announcement [2020] No. 63 expanded the range of financial instruments QFII and RQFII can invest in. QFIIs/RQFIIs may invest in domestic securities and futures markets, including: shares, depositary receipts, bonds, bond repo, and bonds with warrants traded or sold on securities exchanges; shares and other securities on the NEEQ; products on the interbank bond markets in which the PBC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to invest; bond, interest rate, and foreign exchange derivatives; publicly traded investment funds; financial futures traded on Chinese financial futures exchanges; commodity futures contracts traded on futures exchanges approved by the CSRC; options traded on exchanges approved by the State Council or the CSRC; foreign exchange derivatives for hedging purposes that the CSRC permits QFIIs/RQFIIs to trade; and other financial instruments as permitted by the CSRC. These investors may also apply to participate in new stock offerings, convertible bond offerings, additional share offerings, allotments of shares, and other similar type investments. Such investments are subject to the upper limits on individual institutions.  Foreign CBs (monetary authorities) and other reserve management institutions, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may participate in all listed transactions without limits on the amounts through one or more of the following three avenues: through the PBC as their agent, through a commercial bank with international clearing qualifications and clearing agent qualifications, and through direct investment.

Foreign participating banks of RMB purchasing and selling business, after applying to the CFETS, can become members of the interbank foreign exchange market. They have access to all listed transaction products with no quota limits, but the transaction context is limited to the RMB purchasing and selling business. The arrangement of foreign RMB clearing banks was at the beginning a supportive arrangement for the RMB business in Hong Kong SAR and Macau SAR in 2003. In 2009, with the pilot program of cross-border RMB business, the arrangement was expanded. As has been gradually developed since 2016, direct investment can be made by foreign investors in the interbank bond market.

Indirect investment can be made in the domestic bond market by foreign investors through the bond market connect, with subject bonds comprising all bond types that can be traded and circulate on the domestic interbank bond market. This arrangement allows investors from mainland China and overseas to participate in each other's bond markets. Currently, only the northbound trading has commenced, allowing investors from Hong Kong and other regions to invest in the China interbank bond market, while southbound trade has not been activated.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes.

Foreign governmental institutions, international development institutions, foreign financial institution corporations, and non-financial enterprise corporations can all issue RMB bonds on China's bond market. Of these, foreign financial institution corporations issuing bonds on the national interbank bond market should be approved by the PBC; foreign governmental institutions and international development institutions issuing relevant bonds on the national interbank bond market, and foreign non-financial enterprise corporations issuing non-financial corporate debt financing instruments on the national interbank bond market should apply to register with the National Association of Financial Market Institutional Investors.

The National Association of Financial Market Institutional Investors issued guidelines that apply to issuances of renminbi bonds by foreign non-financial institutions.

On December 2015, the CSRC launched the pilot program to issue Panda Bonds on the exchange bond market; foreign institutions can issue Panda Bonds on the exchanges.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes.

QDIIs, which include banks, fund management firms, securities companies, and insurance companies, may purchase bonds abroad, within their respective SAFE-approved foreign exchange quotas and regulatory limits.

For QDIIs, the net amount of funds remitted abroad by banks, securities dealers, and insurance companies for investment in securities may not exceed their approved investment limits.

Insurance companies may invest overseas subject to approval. The aggregate balance of insurance companies' overseas investment may not exceed 15% of the insurance company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter, and the total amount of actual investment must not exceed the investment payment limit approved by the SAFE. The book values of investments in single fixed-income assets, equity-type assets, fixed assets, and other financial assets must not exceed 5% of the company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter. Single-asset investments refer to investments in single, specific investment varieties among the major investment asset categories. For investment varieties issued in installments, the book value of single-asset investments is the total amount invested in each installment period. A single investment in a single legal entity (whether domestic or foreign) may not exceed 20% of the insurance company's total assets at the end of the previous quarter.

When insurance funds make offshore investments in fixed income products such as government bonds, government-backed bonds, international financial institution bonds, corporate bonds, or convertible bonds, the currency of denomination need not be a major international currency; bonds should have a BBB- or BBB-equivalent rating from an internationally-recognized ratings agency. In the event that an issue is exempt from credit rating requirements in accordance with regulations, the issuer should have a credit rating not less than this bond credit rating requirement. Bonds issued abroad by the Chinese government are not subject to credit rating restrictions. Convertible bonds should be listed and traded on the required main board market of national or regional securities exchanges. As of June 30, 2021, a total of 173 QDIIs had obtained limits totaling US$147.32 billion.

Under the RQDII system, foreign investments in RMB are not subject to quotas, overall limits, and internal limits on the financial instruments acquired. RMB funds cannot be remitted offshore to purchase foreign exchange.

of hedging risk, based on hedge trading objectives, QFIIs and RQFIIs may invest in domestic stock index futures and engage in foreign exchange risk hedging. Foreign CBs (monetary authorities) and other reserve management institutions, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may enter the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market and initiate various types of foreign exchange transactions, including forward, swap, and option, through one or more of the following three avenues: through the PBC as their agent, through a Chinese interbank foreign exchange market member as their agent, and by directly becoming a foreign member of the Chinese interbank foreign exchange market. Transaction methods include OTC and price-matching, without limits on the amount. Foreign banks can apply for membership of the CFETS, and can then participate directly in the foreign currency interbank market; or they may apply for membership of the CFETS and then participate in the market through an agent. Foreign nonbank financial institutions can apply for membership of the CFETS and can then participate in the foreign currency interbank market through an agent. Foreign CBs, monetary authorities, international financial organizations, and sovereign wealth funds may initiate bond forwards and interest rate swaps, forward interest rate agreements, and other interbank market transactions approved by the PBC. Qualified institutional investors that meet the requirements of PBC Announcement [2016] No. 3, including all types of financial institutions legally registered outside China, such as commercial banks, insurance companies, securities companies, fund management companies, and other asset management institutions, and the investment products legally issued to clients by said financial institutions, as well as other medium- to long-term institutional investors approved by the PBC, such as pension funds, charitable funds, and endowment funds, may initiate spot trading on the interbank bond market, and may engage in bond lending, bond forward, forward interest rate agreement, and interest rate swap transactions.

Financial institutions (including finance companies) that sell foreign exchange forward to their clients must deposit foreign exchange risk reserves. Effective October 12, 2020, the risk reserve ratio was reduced from 20% to 0%. The calculation should be based on the amount of contracted forward foreign exchange sales of the previous month and the reserves should be deposited in dollars with the PBC. The holding period of the foreign exchange risk reserve is one year and the interest rate is tentatively set at 0.

Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	In 2014, the Ministry of Commerce amended the Administrative Measures on Overseas Investment, implementing an administrative model that “primarily relies on a filing system and is supported by approvals” for enterprises investing and incorporating overseas. With the exception of overseas investments in sensitive countries and regions and sensitive industries, for which an approval system is in place, all other overseas investments are administered using a filing system. Countries for which approvals are required refer to countries that have no diplomatic relationship with the People’s Republic of China and countries that are subject to UN sanctions; when necessary, the Ministry of Commerce may additionally announce a list of other countries for which approval management is required. Industries for which approvals are required are those that involve the export of products and technologies with export restrictions placed by the People’s Republic of China, and industries that affect more than one country’s (region’s) interests. At present, 99% of overseas investment matters are administered using the filing system. According to the Administrative Measures on Overseas Investment, for overseas investors that fall under administration by the filing system, state-owned key enterprises submit filings to the Ministry of Commerce, and local enterprises submit filings to the local provincial-level regulatory authority for commerce.

Domestic legal entities may make direct outward investments after filing a record. Outward investments in nonsensitive industries are subject to record management. More specifically, outward investments carried out by enterprises managed by the central government, as well as those with funding from Chinese sources exceeding US$300 million or its equivalents in RMB and carried out by local enterprises, should be recorded at the NDRC; outward investment with funding from the Chinese sources below US$300 million or its equivalents in RMB and carried out by local enterprises should be recorded at the provincial authorities. As of March 1, 2018, NDRC Decree No. 9 governing outbound investment by Chinese companies was replaced by Decree No. 11. The NDRC revised the list of sensitive industries by delisting some of the industries, including operation of telecommunication; infrastructures; large-scale land development; main power transmission lines and power grids, and adding some other industries, including R&D, manufacturing and maintenance of weapons and military equipment; real estate; hotels; movie studios; entertainment; sports clubs; and equity funds or investment platforms established overseas without specific real-economy projects. Similar to Decree No. 9, any amount of investment in sensitive industries requires NDRC approval. Per Decree No. 11, approval requirement for outward FDI above US$1 billion in non-sensitive industries was abolished.

As of March 1, 2018, overseas investment by domestic natural persons through foreign companies or Hong Kong, Macau, or Taiwan companies under their control, which was outside the scope of Decree No. 9, is subject to regulations specified in Decree No. 11. Specifically, NDRC approval is required for investment in sensitive industries, and for investments in nonsensitive projects that exceed US$300 million or its equivalent in RMB, the NDRC must be informed of the basic project information, but no review or approval is required.

Outward direct investment should also be registered at banks. Banks may process such operations as opening accounts and remitting funds for enterprises on the basis of the three principles of “know your customer,” “know your business,” and “conduct due diligence.”

Domestic institutions may use a variety of legitimate asset sources for outward direct investment, including their own foreign exchange funds, foreign currency loans obtained domestically in accordance with regulations, foreign exchange purchased using RMB, or tangible or intangible assets, and such profits as are kept abroad. During the preparatory stage of formal startup of a foreign project, resident entities may remit funds overseas in an amount not to exceed the smaller value of US$300 million and 15% of the Chinese investor’s total investment.

To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in addition to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched QDIE pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai, Beijing, Hainan, Chongqing, Jiangsu, Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen), and Qingdao since 2013. QDLP/QDIE programs enable domestic investors who meet qualifications to raise funds domestically and invest them abroad in securities, private equity, commodities, and real estate. The total approved QDLP/QDIE quota is currently US$54 billion. In December 2019, US$5 billion was increased for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Beijing. In November 2020, US$5 billion was separately increased for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Shenzhen, Shanghai, and Beijing. In December 2020, US$5 billion was separately increased for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Hainan and Chongqing. In March 2021, US$5 billion was separately increased for the QDLP/QDIE pilots in Guangdong (exc. Shenzhen) and Jiangsu, and US$3 billion for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Qingdao. In June 2021, US$1 billion was increased for the QDLP/QDIE pilot in Ningbo.

Yes.

Outward direct investment by state-owned enterprises (SOEs) and private enterprises should be filed with or approved by the NDRC and Ministry of Commerce. Except for setting up foreign special-purpose entities, domestic individuals are not allowed to make direct outward investment.

Foreign investment projects in China are divided into four categories: encouraged, permitted, restricted, and prohibited. Because the Foreign Investment Law and the corresponding implementation regulations went into effect, China has implemented a pre-establishment national treatment plus negative list administration system for foreign investors. Restricted and prohibited projects are included on the negative list; encouraged projects are listed in List of Industries in Which Foreign Investment is Encouraged; and permitted projects are all those not listed in either the negative lists or List of Industries in Which Foreign Investment is Encouraged. Foreign investors are not permitted to invest in fields listed on the negative list as prohibited. To invest in fields listed on the negative list as restricted, foreign investors must comply with the relevant restrictive investment requirements, including the holdings requirements on the negative list, and restrictions on senior managers. Foreign investment in fields not contained in the access negative list is administered in accordance with the principle of equal treatment for domestic and foreign capital. Nonresidents may invest in China, provided they are in compliance with the requirements of laws and regulations concerning foreign investment and other laws and regulations. Foreign enterprises and individuals that establish a partnership enterprise in China must apply for registration of the enterprise to the local administrative department for industry and commerce authorized by the State Administration for Industry and Commerce; approval of the Ministry of Commerce is not required in such cases. Partnership enterprises whose main business is investment are subject to additional government provisions. Conversion of the invested funds from foreign exchange to RMB may be carried out as determined by the enterprise. FDI should also be registered at banks.

Effective July 23, 2020, the “Special Administrative Measures (Negative List) for Foreign Investment Access (2020 Edition)” and the “Special Administrative Measures (Negative List) for Foreign Investment Access in Free Trade Pilot Areas (2020 Edition)” entered into force. They were issued by the NDRC and the Ministry of Commerce on June 24, 2020.

The 2020 versions of the negative lists for foreign investment access have been further reduced. Among them, the national negative list was reduced from 40 to 33 items, and 2 sectors were partially opened; the negative list of pilot free trade zones was reduced from 37 to 30 items, and 1 sector was partially opened.

Specifically, the 2020 negative lists have three main changes:

(1) Accelerate the process of opening up key areas of the service industry. In the financial sector, the restrictions on foreign shareholding ratios in securities companies, securities investment fund management companies, futures companies, and life insurance companies have been removed. In the field of infrastructure, the requirement that the construction and operation of water supply and drainage pipeline networks in cities with a population of more than 500,000 must be controlled by Chinese shareholders is cancelled. In the field of transportation, the regulations prohibiting foreign investment in air traffic control have been cancelled, and the regulations on civil airports have been adjusted.

(2) Relaxation of access to manufacturing and agriculture. In the manufacturing sector, restrictions on foreign shareholding in commercial vehicle manufacturing have been lifted, and regulations prohibiting foreign investment in radioactive mineral smelting, processing, and nuclear fuel production have been lifted. In the field of agriculture, the requirement that the selection of new wheat varieties and the production of seeds must be controlled by Chinese shareholders was relaxed to not less than 34% must be held by Chinese shareholders.

(3) Continue to carry out pilots in the Pilot Free Trade Zone. In the field of medicine, the prohibition on foreign investment in Chinese herbal medicine decoction pieces is abolished. In the field of education, wholly foreign-owned enterprises are allowed to set up vocational education institutions.

The aggregate balance of medium- and long-term foreign debt and outstanding short-term foreign debt of foreign-invested enterprises may not exceed the difference between total investment and registered capital. "Total investment" means the sum of construction funds and working capital required for production as stipulated in joint investment contracts and enterprise articles of association. Within this scope, preapproval is not required to borrow from nonresidents; however, the borrower must complete the SAFE registration procedures. Converting such funds to RMB does not require SAFE approval.

Foreign investors currently are not subject to restrictions in investing in the B shares of domestically listed companies.

Foreign investors may make strategic investments in A shares of domestically listed companies, but are subject to the following restrictions. (1) Investors must (a) be legally incorporated and operating foreign legal entities or other organizations that are financially sound and have good credit and mature management experience; (b) have actual offshore assets totaling no less than US$100 million or actual offshore assets under management totaling no less than US$500 million, parent company actual offshore assets totaling no less than US$100 million, or actual offshore assets under management totaling no less than US$500 million; (c) have a sound governance structure and good internal control systems with standardized operations; and (d) have received no material penalties from domestic or foreign regulatory agencies in the past three years (including parent company). (2) A shares of the listed company must be acquired through acquisition under contract or acquisition through targeted issuance of new shares by the listed company or by other means set forth in national laws and regulations. (3) Investment may take place in installments; the percentage of shares obtained on completion of the first installment may not be less than 10% of the company's shares issued and outstanding, with the exception of industries with specific requirements or approval of the relevant authority. (4) A shares of the listed company may not be transferred for three years. (5) Investors' shareholdings may not exceed the limits stipulated by law or regulation, if such limits are in place for specific industries, and investment is not allowed in listed companies in areas prohibited by law or regulation. (6) Shareholders of government-owned shares in listed companies must comply with the relevant regulations. Foreign investors may engage in direct investment activities in China using RMB legally obtained abroad. Legitimately obtained RMB includes RMB obtained by foreign investors from (1) cross-border trade settlement in RMB; (2) mainland China in the form of profits and earnings from equity swaps, reduction of invested capital, clearing, and advance recovery of investment; and (3) the issuance of bonds and shares denominated in RMB abroad and other ways. Banks may settle inward direct investment transactions in RMB on the basis of the three principles of “know your customer,” “know your business,” and “conduct due diligence,” relying on the income and payment instruction submitted by the enterprises. Profit of less than US$50,000 from direct investments may, following a bona fide test by the bank, be repatriated without documentary proof. For the repatriation of profits above US$50,000, banks must verify documents related to the current profit repatriation, including the board of directors’ resolutions on the distribution of profits (or the partners’ resolution on the distribution of profits), originals of tax filing forms, and audited financial reports.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment	Yes.	“A” shares of listed companies may not be transferred for three years. Premature liquidation before expiration of the term of operations requires approval of the original reviewing and approving authority or a judicial decision. On liquidation, after registering with the relevant bank, a foreign investor may purchase foreign currency and initiate repatriation of funds. RMB funds obtained from liquidation by foreign investors may be remitted abroad by banks, with no need for PBC approval.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.	The regulations governing direct investment apply.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Purchases of real estate abroad by resident entities are conducted similarly to direct investment abroad. Insurance companies may invest overseas subject to approval. The aggregate balance of insurance companies’ overseas investment may not exceed 15% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. A single investment in equity and fixed-income assets may not exceed 5%, and investments in a single legal entity may not exceed 20% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. The balance of foreign and domestic real estate investments may not exceed 30% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. The total balance does not include real estate purchased with insurance companies’ own funds for their own use, the balance of which may not exceed 50% of their total net assets at the end of the previous quarter. A single investment in real estate may not exceed 5% of the insurance company’s total assets at the end of the previous quarter. To support competent domestic institutions in carrying out various types of outbound investments, in addition to the QDII scheme, the SAFE has launched QDIE pilots in Shenzhen and QDLP in Shanghai, Beijing, Hainan, Chongqing, Jiangsu, Guangdong (exc. Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	In accordance with China's WTO accession, foreign financial institutions may establish wholly owned subsidiary banks, Chinese-foreign joint venture banks, or branches of foreign banks in China. Pursuant to the Regulations on the Administration of Foreign-
--	------	---

Funded Banks amended and announced in October 2019, foreign banks may simultaneously establish a wholly owned subsidiary bank and a foreign bank branch, or simultaneously establish a Chinese–foreign joint venture bank and a foreign bank branch. The restriction requiring foreign sole or major shareholders planning to establish Chinese–foreign joint venture banks to “present year-end total assets of not less than US$10 billion for the year preceding the application to establish” was eliminated, and the restriction requiring foreign banks planning to establish branches to “present year-end total assets of not less than US$20 billion” was eliminated. Branches of foreign banks may accept time deposits from resident Chinese citizens for individual deposits in amounts not less than RMB 500,000.

A subsidiary of a foreign-owned bank or a foreign bank branch can engage in renminbi operations immediately on startup; no separate review and approval are needed.

Business entities of a foreign-owned banks engaged in renminbi operations as set forth in Article 29 or Article 31 of the Regulation within their scope of operations should make preparations and complete the following tasks during the preparation period: A subsidiary of a foreign-owned bank or a foreign bank making its first application to engage in RMB operations should meet the following requirements: (1) allocate an appropriate number operating personnel who meet business development needs; (2) produce important business vouchers and forms for use with the public; (3) outfit themselves with security facilities approved by the competent authorities; (4) establish internal control systems and operational procedures for renminbi operations; and (5) if a business entity of a foreign-owned bank needs to increase registered capital or working capital to engage in renminbi operations, it should retain a certified public accounting firm registered in China to verify capital, and submit the capital verification certificate to the local office of the CBIRC.

Hong Kong and Macau banks that establish wholly owned banks, joint venture banks, and branches on the mainland must satisfy the relevant requirements of the Regulations on the Administration of Foreign-Funded Banks.

Borrowing abroad

Yes.

Commercial banks and other financial institutions borrowing loans abroad with maturities in excess of one year must apply in advance to file and register them with the NDRC.

All foreign borrowing must be registered with the SAFE. Chinese-funded commercial banks issuing bonds must obtain the permission of the CBIRC. Domestic financial institutions may issue RMB bonds abroad with PBC approval. Legal person financial institutions and enterprises in China can freely carry out cross-border financing in RMB or in foreign currencies within the limit determined by their capital and net assets. They do not need to get the approval from the PBC or SAFE in advance.

Domestic branches of foreign banks (including banks in Hong Kong SAR, Macau SAR, and Taiwan Province of China) may freely conduct domestic and foreign currency cross-border financing within the limit determined by their capital or net asset, without being subject to PBC and SAFE advance review and approval requirement. To promote the smooth linkage and transition of policies, in accordance with national treatment principles, the “cross-border financing leverage ratios” for Chinese and foreign-invested enterprises were uniformly increased. The leverage ratio for cross-border financing of bank type corporate financial institutions and branches of foreign banks is 0.8 (for enterprises the leverage ratio is 2 and for nonbank financial institutions it is 1). Effective March 12,

CHINA

		2020, the macroprudential adjustment parameter for enterprises and financial institutions was increased from 1 to 1.25. It was lowered to 1 for financial institutions and enterprises on December 11, 2020, and January 7, 2021, respectively.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Banking financial institutions may, within the approved scope of operations, directly provide commercial loans abroad. There are no quota and no requirement for approval for RMB loans. For domestic institutions other than commercial banks carrying out cross-border lending business, their overseas loan balance, in RMB and in foreign currencies combined, should not exceed 30% of shareholder's equity as indicated by the audited financial statements of the previous year.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Banks must comply with provisions of the Commercial Banking Law of China concerning asset–debt ratio management. SAFE registration and permission are not required for residents who borrow foreign exchange from domestic Chinese financial institutions to repay principal. However, creditors must submit regular loan registrations and report the principal and interest repayment status to the SAFE.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	The PBC enforces different deposit reserve rates for differing types of financial institutions for RMB deposits. Effective January 6, 2020, the PBC lowered financial institutions' deposit reserve ratio on RMB deposits by 0.5 percentage point. Deposit reserve rates of 12.5% and 10.5% are, respectively, in force for large banks and medium and small banks, and for those institutions which meet prudential management requirements and for which loans in inclusive finance areas meet certain percentages, the reserve rate can be further reduced by 0.5 to 1.5 percentage points compared to institutions of the same type. Deposit reserve rates of 7% are in force for rural commercial banks, rural cooperative banks, rural credit cooperatives, and village and town banks. Effective April 15, 2020, and effective May 15, 2020, the PBC reduced the deposit reserve ratio on RMB deposits for medium and small banks on each day by 0.5 percentage point and also for rural commercial banks, rural cooperative banks, rural credit cooperatives, and village and town banks. As a result, deposit reserve rate of 9.5% (previously 10.5%) for medium and small banks and 6% (previously 7%) is in force for rural commercial banks, rural cooperative banks, rural credit cooperatives, and village and town banks. For the latter four types of institutions, if a certain proportion of new deposits is used for local lending, their reserve rate can be reduced by an additional 1 percentage point. Effective July 15, 2021, the PBC reduced the reserve requirement ratio for all banks by 0.5 percentage point.
		The reserve requirement for foreign exchange deposits was increased to 7% from 5%, effective June 15, 2021. The PBC announced targeted reductions in the reserve requirement for inclusive finance, reducing the reserve requirement by 1 percentage point for joint-stock commercial banks that meet the conditions, effective March 16, 2020. Since this reduction, major banks and joint-stock banks have been operating with deposit reserves of 11% and 9%, respectively.

Floating

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. All foreign exchange transactions are conducted at the market-determined exchange rate.

During 2020, the majority of currencies of countries in the region have declined in value against the dollar. At the beginning of the year, the currencies weakened against the backdrop of a significant increase in the perception of risk at the global level as a result of the emergence of COVID-19 and concerns about the magnitude and duration of the global economic impact of the virus. In addition, the Colombian peso weakened in the first quarter in line with the drop in oil prices, given the negative impact that this has on the country's fiscal accounts and revenues in dollars. Subsequently, this trend was partially reversed, consistent with the global weakening of the dollar, the partial recovery of crude oil prices, the gradual reopening of some of the economies, and news on progress in vaccine development.

In the first half of 2021, the majority of currencies of the countries in the region declined in value against the dollar given an increase in the perception of risk at the global level at the beginning of the year with the increase in the number of new cases of COVID-19, the appearance of new strains, uncertainty about the vaccination process (especially in emerging countries), the rise in U.S. Treasury rates, and idiosyncratic factors. The Colombian peso declined in value as a reflection of the greater perception of risk and changes in some local factors, such as: (1) some restrictions on mobility; (2) concerns about the vaccination process in the country and the tax situation; (3) the uncertainty associated with the discussion of tax reform in Congress and its subsequent withdrawal; (4) the demonstrations and road blockades in several parts of the country; and (5) the incorporation of the expectations and subsequent materialization of the downgrading of the country's credit rating to below investment grade, which had a major impact.

The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating. The Banco de la República (Bank of the Republic – BR) publishes daily data on interventions on the exchange market. The BR publishes the date, amount, and mechanism. When an intervention involves options, the information is published on the day that the option is exercised. Each month (on the fifth business day), the BR publishes a press release indicating the amount purchased or sold in the previous month (aggregate monthly amount).

Free floating

Official exchange rate

Yes. The representative market rate (RMR) is the economic indicator of the peso–US dollar exchange rate; it is not an official exchange rate. It is used as a reference for the quotation and settlement of foreign exchange transactions, for transactions indexed to the US dollar, and for the conversion of accounts in foreign currency to local currency. The RMR is the weighted average amount of US dollar buy/sell operations in exchange for Colombian legal tender, for settlement in both currencies on the same day, conducted by exchange market intermediaries (EMIs) during the hours of operation established by the BR in its general regulations. To calculate the RMR, derivative operations must be excluded, as well as operations conducted by EMIs with entities other than those supervised by the Office of the Financial Superintendence of Colombia (Superintendencia Financiera de Colombia – SFC) and with the State-Ministry of Finance and Public Credit. Also excluded are operations by EMIs with the following entities supervised by the SFC: foreign financial entities, foreign reinsurers, foreign financial entities with no trade offices, and representative offices of the foreign securities market. (External Regulatory Circular DODM-146 of May 25, 2018). The RMR is calculated daily and certified by the SFC (not by the CB) based on available information, in accordance with the methodology established by BR in the DODM External Regulatory Circular.

Publication of minutes	Yes.	Effective May 28, 2021, the Board of Directors approved a change in the day of publication of the minutes of meetings at which monetary policy decisions are adopted to facilitate their preparation, review, and translation. As of that meeting, the minutes are published on the second business day following the meeting (Internal Resolution No. 3 of August 30, 2019, as amended by Internal Resolution 3 of May 28, 2021). Previously, the minutes were drafted as part of the agenda of the session of the Board of Directors and they were published on the next business day after meetings at which decisions on monetary policy were adopted (Internal Resolution No. 3 of August 30, 2019, which rescinded Internal Resolution No. 1 of 2007).
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	Section 2 of the Report on Monetary Policy (previously called the Report on Inflation) contains forecasts and the balance of inflation risks. This report, on the basis of which the technical team makes its monetary policy recommendation, is published on the next business day following the meeting of the Board of Directors for the months of January, April, July, and October, on the same day that the minutes are published. Likewise, an Excel annex is published detailing the specific forecasts of the main variables of the macroeconomic forecast. Inflation forecasts are quarterly for a two-year horizon.

Effective April 1, 2021, FINDETER, FINAGRO, ICETEX, ENTerritorio, and the FNA are authorized as EMIs. Effective February 28, 2020, ICETEX also requires that the Office of the Financial Superintendence issue prudential rules that are applicable to it to perform authorized exchange operations (R.E. 1 of February 28, 2020, as amended by R.E. 25 of October 30, 2020).

The BR Board of Directors determines the foreign exchange transactions that EMIs are authorized to carry out, based on the type of entity and its capital, with regard to EMIs referred to in Article 8, paragraphs 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, of R.E. 1 of 2018. In the case of EMIs referred to in Article 8, paragraph 6, of R.E. 1 of 2018, the level of capital is not taken into account.

EMIs may freely determine their foreign exchange buying and selling rates and commissions.

As of December 31, 2020, there were 40 EMIs registered with the BR (20 banking institutions, 2 financial corporations, 3 finance companies, 9 stock brokerage companies, 1 financial cooperative, BANCOLDEX, the FDN, the Foreign Exchange Clearinghouse, and 2 SICSFES).

and participates in a foreign exchange trading system must be cleared through an authorized foreign exchange clearing and settlement system or a CCP. Effective February 28, 2020, spot foreign exchange transactions performed by FINDETER, FINAGRO, ICETEX, ENTerritorio, and the FNA are exempt from this requirement if these entities are not participants in foreign exchange trading systems (R.E. 1 of 2020).

The submission of spot foreign exchange transactions to CCPs was authorized by R.E. 23 of September 25, 2020, and its operational implementation became effective February 1, 2021, which means that the performance of spot foreign exchange transactions in the trading systems will be blind when the central counterparty clearinghouse is involved in the clearing and settlement of these transactions.

In addition, residents may engage professionally in the purchase and sale of foreign exchange and traveler’s checks, provided they are registered in advance in the trade register and in the register of professional foreign exchange dealers established by the National Tax and Customs Directorate (DIAN). Residents who engage professionally in buying and selling foreign exchange may not carry out foreign exchange transactions directly with the BR.

Residents may also make foreign exchange purchases and sales on the unregulated market with other residents, provided they do not do so habitually or in a professional capacity. If they do so habitually, they must comply with the requirements applicable to professionals who buy and sell foreign exchange and traveler’s checks.

As of December 31, 2020, there were 40 EMIs registered with the BR (20 banking institutions, 2 financial corporations, 3 finance companies, 9 stock brokerage companies, 1 financial cooperative, BANCOLDEX, the FDN, the Foreign Exchange Clearinghouse, and 2 SICSFES).

Operated by the central bank Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility No.

Allocation No.

The BR may intervene in the foreign exchange market to regulate financial market liquidity and the normal functioning of the domestic and external payments of the economy, to prevent undesirable exchange rate fluctuations, and to increase and reduce international reserves, in accordance with the directives of the Board of Directors, through spot or forward foreign exchange purchases or sales, to or from banking institutions, financial corporations, finance companies, financial cooperatives, the FDN, BANCOLDEX, stock brokerage companies, companies that manage pensions and severance benefits (effective March 18, 2020), foreign exchange clearing and settlement systems, and CCPs (effective September 25, 2020, as well as the State-Ministry of Finance and Public Credit, as long as they are registered with the BR as EMIs and have permanent instructions from the BR.

The authorization to participate depends on the intervention mechanism, as explained below.

The BR may conduct intervention operations through various systems and mechanisms.

The authorized intervention operations are as follows:

- (1) Direct uniform price auction sales of put or call options at market rates;
- (2) Direct uniform price auctions at market rates (with three minutes of bids) or discriminatory price auction sales of foreign exchange (with three minutes of bids);
- (3) Spot sales of foreign exchange and forward purchases of dollars at rates set by the BR, by means of foreign exchange swap contracts with delivery in auctions and OTC transactions.
- (4) Effective March 12, 2020, forward dollar sales at market rates through forward contracts, by means of the auction mechanism (R.E. 4 of March 12, 2020).

The auction quotas of the different mechanisms are announced in advance in the invitations to bid. The amount of the direct purchase/sale intervention in the trading systems is not announced in advance, but the exchange intervention carried out over a month is reported on the fifth business day of the following month through a press release.

Delays, incompleteness of intervention operations, and errors in the price of auctions by authorized agents are subject to sanctions. The sanction regime does not apply to: (1) direct foreign currency purchase or sale operations with the national government – the Ministry of Finance and Public Credit; (2) dollar purchase or sale operations that are cleared and settled through foreign currency clearance and settlement systems; and (3) effective June 30, 2020, NDF contracts that are cleared and settled through a CCP (R.E. 17 of June 30, 2020).

1) Option auctions:

May be conducted with banks, financial corporations, finance companies, and financial cooperatives (provided they are authorized as EMIs by the SFC), FDN, and BANCOLDEX whose capital equals the minimum amount required for the establishment of a financial corporation, as well as the State-Ministry of Finance and Public Credit. Stock brokerages whose capital equals the minimum amount required for the establishment of a financial corporation may also be counterparties.

The entities must be registered with the BR and must maintain permanent instructions with the BR. The BR may intervene in the foreign exchange market through options to increase or reduce international reserves and control exchange rate volatility. The BR sells put or call options in uniform price auctions. The participants must offer the option premium (bid price expressed in pesos per US$1,000), as well as the amount of the bid in dollars. In the auction, the bids are arranged in strict descending order based on the amount of the premium, and all bids with a premium equal to or exceeding the premium at which the auction limit is met (hereinafter the cutoff premium) are approved. All approved bids must pay the cutoff premium. The BR may partially approve bids it believes could give rise to an unacceptable concentration. The BR reserves the right to approve a put or call options auction below the announced amount or to declare the auction void. The general terms and conditions of auctions are announced in an invitation to bid on the immediately preceding business day. Options may be exercised only when the option exercise conditions established by the BR are satisfied.

- (a) Options to increase or reduce international reserves:

The BR may auction put options to increase international reserves. The call option to reduce international reserves has been discontinued since May 27, 2016.

In accordance with the regulations, put options may be exercised only when the RMR is below its recent average (average for the preceding 20 business days). The amount of the auctions is announced in the invitation. The participants must pay a premium established by means of the uniform price auction mechanism. The exercise price for options is the RMR in effect the day the option is exercised. Entities that complied with the provisions of Regulatory Circular DODM 143 (now DOAM-143, DOAM refers to the Market Operations and Analysis Department) participated in this program.

(2) Purchase or sale of foreign exchange at market rates:

The BR may buy and sell US dollars directly in auctions or through other systems and mechanisms established for interbank foreign exchange operations. Banks, financial corporations, finance companies, and financial cooperatives (provided they are authorized as EMIs by the SFC), FDN, and BANCOLDEX may participate. Stock brokerages whose capital equals the minimum amount required for the establishment of a financial corporation and the State-Ministry of Finance and Public Credit may also participate. The entities must be registered with the BR and must maintain permanent instructions with the BR.

The BR buys and sells dollars in uniform price auctions (with 3 minutes of bids) or discriminatory price auctions (depending on what is announced in the invitation to bid). The BR announces to the agents the quota of dollars to be auctioned. Participants offer the exchange rate (bid price expressed in pesos per dollar) at which they would be prepared to sell or buy dollars to or from the BR, as well as the amount in dollars. Each agent may submit only one offer in an amount that does not exceed 80% of the auction quota, which may be altered in the first three minutes of the auction. The BR reserves the right to approve an auction to buy or sell dollars below the announced amount or to declare the auction void. Foreign exchange trading systems must grant access to the BR on special terms when it intervenes to implement exchange policy. These terms must be defined in the regulations governing the operation of such systems.

(3) Foreign exchange swap contracts at rates set by the BR through auction or over-the-counter mechanisms: The BR may also intervene through foreign exchange swap contracts, under which a spot sale of dollars by the BR and a forward purchase of dollars in the amount traded are transacted simultaneously. The swap contracts are offered through auctions (uniform price) or over the counter. The auction may be held with banking institutions, financial corporations, finance companies, financial cooperatives (once they have been authorized as EMIs by the SFC), the FDN, and BANCOLDEX, whose capital reaches the minimum amount required for the establishment of a financial corporation, as well as the State-Ministry of Finance and Public Credit. Companies that manage pension funds and severance benefits, on their own account or for third parties or managed funds, may also be counterparties (R.E. 5 of March 18, 2020), whereas only foreign exchange clearing and settlement systems and CCPs that clear peso-dollar spot purchase and sale contracts may participate in over-the-counter transactions (this applies to the latter pursuant to R.E. 24 of September 25, 2020). In the auction, participants offer the exchange rate (bid price expressed in pesos per US dollar) at which they would be willing to sell dollars to the BR on the maturity of the operation, as well as the amount in dollars to be exchanged. They may submit as many bids as they wish for a total not to exceed the total amount of the auction. The BR will announce the total amount of the auction. They may be conducted at 30, 60, 90, 180, or 365 calendar days. They are forward delivery transactions. Spot dollar sales are carried out by the BR on the day of the auction, and forward dollar purchases on the maturity date of the foreign exchange swap contract.

OTC participants offer the amount in dollars to be exchanged. Ten minutes prior to the OTC operation, the BR announces the initial and forward exchange rates.

4) Non-delivery forward (NDF) sale contracts at market rates.

The BR may execute forward contracts in which it negotiates the future sale of dollars. These are non-delivery contracts. Forward contracts for the sale of dollars are offered through auctions. The same entities authorized for option auctions may participate, but stock brokers may perform these operations only when the contracts are cleared and settled through a CCP (External Regulatory Circular DOAM-143 of August 14, 2020). Forward contracts for the sale of dollars are offered through a uniform price auction. The participants offer the exchange rate (the offer price expressed in pesos per dollar) at which the dollars are available to the BR for purchase on maturity of the contract, as well as the amount of the bid in dollars. The general terms and conditions of the auction are announced through an invitation on the previous business day. Each authorized agent may present as many bids as it wishes and in a total amount that does not exceed the auction quota. In the process of the auction, the bids are arranged in strict descending order by the offer price and all bids that contain a price that is greater than or equal to the cut-off at which the auction quota is met (the cut-off price) are approved. All of the approved bids pay the cut-off price. The BR may partially approve bids which in its opinion give rise to an unacceptable concentration of the forward contracts. The BR reserves the right to approve an auction below the announced quota or to declare it void. Forward contracts for the sale of dollars may be performed for 30 calendar days. The plan for the performance of bilateral operations or operations through a CCP is announced in an invitation through the means available. The BR intervention operations that are performed through a CCP are subject to the terms and conditions set forth in the operating regulations of the given clearinghouse. The BR's sanctions scheme is not applicable to operations that are cleared and settled through a CCP (R.E. 17 of June 30, 2020). Performance of bilateral operations or operations through a CCP was established by R.E. 18 of June 30, 2020, and an amendment to External Regulatory Circular DOAM-143, effective August 14, 2020.

There are no restrictions on the use of resources that agents acquire in BR auctions.

Measures adopted by the Board of Directors in response to the crisis caused by COVID-19:

Effective March 12, 2020, at an extraordinary session, against the backdrop of extreme global volatility, the Board of Directors decided among other measures to establish a new foreign exchange hedging mechanism through NDF contracts for the sale of dollars at a future date under the following conditions: (a) mechanism: uniform price auction; (b) amount: US$1 billion; (c) forward price: to be determined in the auction; (d) term: 30 days, which may be renewed; and (e) counterparties: eligible intermediaries in the foreign exchange market and the national government – Ministry of Finance and Public Credit. This mechanism sought to facilitate trading in foreign currency by market participants in the context of the inflation-targeting scheme with a flexible exchange rate (R.E. 4 of March 12, 2020).

Effective March 18, 2020, at an extraordinary session, the Board of Directors decided to auction dollar swaps (foreign exchange swaps) in the amount of US$400 million, in which the BR would perform a spot sale of dollars and a forward purchase of dollars (in 60 days). The aim of this measure was to provide temporary liquidity in dollars to a broad group of entities including not only traditional intermediaries in the foreign exchange market, but also companies that manage pensions and severance benefits in terms of their own position and the funds managed by them, with the aim of easing pressure in the foreign exchange market.

At an ordinary session held on March 27, 2020, the Board of Directors adopted the following measures to strengthen liquidity in dollars: (a) Hold a new auction of dollar swaps (foreign exchange swaps) effective March 30, 2020, in the amount of US$400 million, in which the BR would perform a spot sale of dollars and a forward purchase of dollars (in 60 days). The amounts not awarded at auction on one day would be auctioned on the next day until the quota is exhausted or until the remaining amount is less than US$25 million. This measure is intended to provide temporary liquidity in dollars to a broad group of financial institutions with the aim of easing possible restrictions on external financing and pressure in the foreign exchange market. (b) Expand the foreign exchange hedging mechanism through a new auction effective March 30, 2020, of NDFs in the amount of US$1 billion for 30 days. The amounts not awarded at auction on one day would be auctioned on the next day until the quota is exhausted or until the remaining amount is less than US$25 million. In addition, the maturities of the NDFs that were offered before May 1, 2020, would be added to the daily quotas of the NDF auction. These measures expand the hedge against the risk of depreciation in an environment characterized by great uncertainty and high volatility of the exchange market. Thus, the balance of foreign exchange swaps would reach US$800 million and the balance of NDFs would reach US$2 billion.

- Effective April 30, 2020, at an ordinary session the Board of Directors decided: (i) To increase the amount of the foreign exchange hedge by holding a new dollar sale auction through NDF transactions in an amount of up to US$1 billion. (ii) To renew the NDFs those are maturing before May 30, 2020. (iii) To continue holding foreign exchange swap auctions up to US$400 million.

- Effective May 29, 2020, at an ordinary meeting the Board of Directors decided to renew through auctions the foreign exchange hedging instruments (NDFs) that would be maturing in the month of June. It also decided to continue auctioning the unawarded amount of the authorized operations (NDFs and swaps).

- Effective June 30, 2020, at its ordinary session with regard to liquidity in foreign currency the Board of Directors decided that the BR: (i) Would continue to offer in July NDF contracts through auctions in amounts equivalent to the maturities of contracts in force that are recorded each day; (ii) Would not continue the auctions of foreign exchange swaps given that the external liquidity had improved and that these auctions were not in demand. These contracts would be offered again when deemed necessary.

- Effective July 31, 2020, at its ordinary session, the Board of Directors decided that the BR would renew in August the maturities of NDF contracts for the sale of dollars through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.

COLOMBIA

- Effective August 31, 2020, at its ordinary session, as a measure to strengthen liquidity in dollars, the Board of Directors of the BR decided that the BR would renew up to September 25 the maturities of NDF contracts for the sale of dollars through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.

- Effective September 25, 2020, at its ordinary session, the Board of Directors of the BR decided that the BR would renew up to October 30, 2020, the maturities of NDF contracts for the sale of dollars through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.

- Effective October 30, 2020, at its ordinary session, the Board of Directors of the BR decided that the BR would renew up to November 27, 2020, the maturities of NDF contracts for the sale of dollars through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.

- Effective November 17, 2020, as delegated by the Board of Directors of the BR, the Monetary and Exchange Intervention Committee at its ordinary session, decided that the BR would renew the maturities of NDF contracts for the sale of dollars in December 2020 through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.

- Effective December 2, 2020, the BR purchased from the government US$1,500 million at the current RMR, thereby boosting the level of the country's international reserves in line with its long-term external risk management policy.

- Effective December 14, 2020, as delegated by the Board of Directors of the BR, the Monetary and Exchange Intervention Committee at its ordinary session, decided that the BR would renew the maturities of NDF contracts for the sale of dollars in January 2021 through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.

- Effective January 18, 2021, as delegated by the Board of Directors of the BR, the Monetary and Exchange Intervention Committee at its ordinary session, decided that the institution would renew the maturities of NDF contracts for the sale of dollars in February 2021 through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.

- Effective February 15, 2021, as delegated by the Board of Directors of the BR, the Monetary and Exchange Intervention Committee at its ordinary session, decided that the institution would renew the maturities of NDF contracts for the sale of dollars in March 2021 through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates. Accordingly, US$90.9 million, corresponding to the renewal of the maturities of the remaining balance of these operations, was offered at auction on March 20, 2021; however, no bids were submitted.

Interbank market Yes. Almost all operations on the spot interbank market are carried out through foreign exchange trading systems. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads or on the commissions of market participants. As of December 31, 2020, there were 40 EMIs registered with the BR (20 banking institutions, 2 financial corporations, 3 finance companies, 9 stock brokers, 1 financial cooperative, BANCOLDEX, FDN, the foreign exchange clearinghouse, and 2 specialized exchange intermediation and financial services companies).

The BR may buy and sell US dollars directly through auctions or other systems and mechanisms through which interbank foreign currency operations are performed.

Over the counter Yes. Foreign exchange transactions may be conducted through trading systems or on the OTC market.

Brokerage Yes. Authorized purchases and sales of foreign exchange by stock brokerage companies may be conducted through their proprietary position or under commission contracts.

Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Trades of non-standardized foreign exchange derivatives may be carried out through trading systems or other trading platforms used by the market (OTC market). Entities supervised by the SFC, the State, and foreign agents may participate in the trading systems. EMIs must record all non-standardized financial derivatives transactions daily in a foreign exchange transaction register. Entities supervised by the SFC, other than EMIs, that engage in foreign exchange derivatives transactions with foreign agents on the OTC market must record those transactions in an authorized foreign exchange transaction register. This recording is mandatory for application of close-out netting. The EMIs referred to in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018 may carry out transactions in financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset with authorized foreign agents with which they have signed a framework contract. They may also contract financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset denominated in foreign currencies with any other resident EMI. EMIs may carry out transactions in commodity derivatives with authorized foreign agents and contract commodity derivatives denominated in foreign currencies with residents and with other EMIs. The stock brokerage companies referred to in Article 8(3) of R.E. 1/2018 (EMIs) may offer their clients foreign exchange rate derivatives only when they are cleared and settled through a central counterparty clearinghouse authorized by the SFC. Residents (other than the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018) may carry out transactions in financial derivatives on any type of underlying asset with authorized foreign agents that have carried out financial derivatives transactions in the immediately preceding calendar year amounting to more than US$1 billion or with the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018. The BR also authorizes residents (other than EMIs) to carry out commodity-price derivatives transactions in foreign currency, provided they are carried out with authorized foreign agents. Entities supervised by the SF may enter into credit derivatives with authorized foreign agents exclusively in the form of credit default swaps (CDS). These instruments are no longer restricted to portfolio hedging, do not require the prior authorization of the SF, but must be issued by foreign issuers. Effective March 12, 2020, the BR may intervene in the exchange market through forward contracts in which the future sale of dollars is negotiated. These are non-delivery contracts. Forward contracts for the sale of dollars are offered through uniform price auctions, in which the participants offer the exchange rate (bid price expressed in pesos per dollar) at which they would be prepared to buy dollars from the BR on the maturity of the contract, as well as the amount of the bid in dollars.

Article 1 of Decree No. 2153 of December 26, 2016, under which Colombia adopts customs tariffs and other provisions, establishes:

1. Duties:

The duties referred to in this Decree include ad valorem duties, which must be paid in the country's legal tender.

The tariff rates in Colombia are subject to the tariff classification of each of the goods to be imported, and range between 0%, 5%, 10%, 15%, 20%, 25%, 30%, and 35%.

2. There are variable tariffs in place to protect agricultural products. Decree No. 547 of January 31, 1995.

Total tariffs of the Andean Price Band System (APBS).

Bi-weekly circular issued by the DIAN.

These are ad valorem duties applicable to reference agricultural products, their substitutes, agro-industrial products, or by-products.

3. Article 16(1) of Decree No. 1165 of 2019 establishes the following:

“Article 16. TAXABLE BASE. The customs charges arising from imports shall be paid as follows:

For customs duties, the taxable base shall be the customs value of the imported goods, determined in accordance with the provisions governing customs valuation.”

In accordance with the above, customs charges (Duty + VAT) are paid on imports of goods based on the rules governing the determination of the customs valuation, regardless of the quantities of the goods.

4. OTHER TAXES. According to Article 512-3 of the Tax Law. Tax on consumption: 8%. FOB value less than or equal to US$30,000. For imports of transport equipment classified under tariff headings 87.03/87.04/88.01/88.02.

With certain exceptions, imports are subject to the CET of the Andean Community. The weighted average tariff rate for 2021 between January and June was 4.55%.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.

Borrowing from abroad by EMIs is governed by R.E. 1/2018.

The EMIs specified in Article 8(1) and (2) of R.E. 1/2018 may obtain financing denominated in Colombian legal currency from nonresidents (effective May 28, 2021, pursuant to R.E. 4 of 2021, the restriction that nonresidents natural persons could not grant financing to residents and IMCs was eliminated) or through the placement of securities on international capital markets for the purpose of carrying out lending operations denominated in Colombian legal currency. When this financing is disbursed in a foreign currency, the EMI must make the deposit required pursuant to Article 47 of R.E. 1/2018. As long as the resources are used in authorized operations in Colombian legal currency, they may be held in foreign currency assets.

As of April 1, 2021, the EMIs specified in Article 8(1) and (2) of R.E. 1/2018 may obtain financing denominated in foreign currency from nonresidents, from EMIs, or through the placement of securities on international capital markets exclusively for the purpose of carrying out the following activities:

- (1) Lending operations, directly or through rediscounting, denominated in foreign currency in the same currency in which the financing was obtained, with a term equal to or less than that of the financing obtained.

(2) Lending operations, directly or through rediscounting, denominated in Colombian legal currency, with a term equal to or less than that of the financing obtained. The financing in foreign currency must be covered by a foreign currency derivative effective from the date the financing is disbursed until it reaches maturity, or it must be designated by the competent body of the EMI as a hedging instrument for the investments controlled abroad, in compliance with the hedge accounting requirements of the IFRS. As long as the resources are used for authorized operations in Colombian legal currency, they may be held in foreign currency assets.

(3) Operations carried out in their capacity as local suppliers of foreign currency liquidity to foreign exchange clearing and settlement systems and CCPs in accordance with operating rules of the system or clearinghouse, as the case may be. These operations must have a shorter term than that of the financing obtained.

The financing obtained by these EMIs must be reported to the BR in accordance with the form and within the deadlines determined by the latter and is subject to the deposit referred to in Article 47 of this resolution. No deposit is required in some cases (R.E. 1 of February 28, 2020, as amended by R.E. 25 of October 30, 2020). The authorization to perform export leasing operations was removed from R.E. 1/18 given that they are already considered to be part of authorized lending operations.

The EMIs specified in Article 8(6) of R.E. 1/2018 may obtain financing denominated in Colombian legal currency from nonresidents other than individuals or through the placement of securities on international capital markets for the purpose of carrying out lending operations, directly or through rediscounting, denominated in Colombian legal currency. This financing must be reported to the BR in accordance with the form and within the deadlines it has determined.

When the financing is disbursed in foreign currency, the EMI must provide a deposit referred to in Article 47 of this resolution. As long as the resources are used in authorized operations in Colombian legal currency, they may be held in foreign currency assets.

Financing disbursed in Colombian legal currency by nonresidents in accordance with the provisions of Article 45(2) of this resolution is not subject to the deposit requirement provided for under Article 47 of R.E. 1/18. (R.E. 1 of February 28, 2020, as amended by R.E. 25 of October 30, 2020).

Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	EMIs are allowed to maintain accounts abroad.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.	Residents and EMIs (Article 8(1) of R.E. 1/2018) may grant credits to nonresidents, regardless of the currency of denomination, disbursement, or payment.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	The specified EMIs may obtain financing in foreign currency from nonresidents (effective May 28, 2021, pursuant to R.E. 4 of 2021, the restriction requiring that this financing be obtained from nonresidents other than individuals was eliminated), from EMIs, or through the placement of securities on international capital markets, to be used exclusively for specific purposes, including foreign currency lending

Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	Entities subject to SF inspection and supervision may make capital investments abroad in accordance with the Organic Law on the Financial System, as well as financial investments abroad. EMIs in general are authorized to make financial investments abroad. Financial institutions supervised by the SF that wish to directly make or increase their capital investments in financial institutions, the securities market, insurance and reinsurance companies, and branches and agencies domiciled abroad must obtain prior authorization from the SF. Such authorization is also required if they intend to make such investments indirectly through their affiliates and subsidiaries abroad, provided the investment is made through one or more transactions within a period of one year and in compliance with any of the materiality criteria indicated in the regulation, namely: (1) the amount of the investment: when the initial investment is no less than 10% of the subscribed and paid-up capital of the entity making the investment and the increase in the investment is no less than 5% of the subscribed and paid-up capital of the entity making the investment. For purposes of calculating the initial investment, it will be understood that, in addition to the first operation, the initial investment will include the investment increases made within the 12 months following the first operation; and (2) coordination between the supervisors: when the financial supervisor in the location where the investment is to be made does not have a MoU with the SF. Capital investments or increases that do not meet the above criteria must be reported to the SF before the operation is carried out.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	The acquisition of 10% or more of the subscribed shares of entities subject to SF inspection or an increase in that percentage requires prior approval by the SF.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The proprietary position in foreign currency (the difference between the balance-sheet and off-balance-sheet claims and liabilities denominated in foreign currency) excludes the value of investments controlled abroad and derivatives and other obligations designated by the EMI as hedging instruments for these investments. The three-business-day arithmetic mean of EMI's own foreign currency position may not exceed the equivalent in foreign currency of 20% of the EMI's capital, and the position may be negative, but the absolute value of the negative position may not exceed the equivalent in foreign currency of 5% of capital. Moreover, EMIs are required to meet the limits on the following consolidated indicators: (1) positive exchange risk indicator (IRC+) (sum in dollars of proprietary positions per currency that are greater than 0); the three-business day average of the IRC+ may not be less than 40% of the EMI's capital; (2) negative exchange risk indicator (IRC-) (sum in dollars of proprietary positions per currency that are less than 0); the three-business-day average of the IRC- may not be less than 40% of capital; and (3) short-term exposure indicators. The "Individual Short-Term Exposure Indicator" (the sum of (1) the EMI's net surpluses per currency, adjusted by a foreign exchange haircut, and (2) the EMI's net shortfalls per currency; net surpluses or shortfalls per currency are the difference between liquid assets per currency and net liquidity requirements per currency) will be calculated for periods of 7 and 30 calendar days and must be greater than 0. The "Consolidated Short-Term Exposure Indicator" (the sum of (1) the EMI's "Individual Short-Term Exposure Indicator," considering significant currencies at the consolidated level, and (2) the Individual Short-Term Exposure Indicators calculated by country, where their affiliates are established, provided they are less than 0) will be calculated for a period of 30 calendar days and must be greater than 0.

(4) The position in investments controlled abroad (PICE) (the difference between the value of investments controlled abroad and the value of derivatives and other obligations designated by the EMI as hedging instruments for these investments). Since July 31, 2019, the PICE may not exceed the equivalent in foreign currency of 150% of capital for controlled investments. (Before the PICE was introduced, these items were part of the global foreign currency position).

On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The limits apply to all the positions denominated in foreign currency.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The limits apply to all the positions denominated in foreign currency.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Insurers and savings investment companies (sociedades de capitalización) may invest up to 40% of their technical reserves in securities or holdings of external issuers (indicated in numeral 2 of Article 2.31.3.1.2) and in demand deposits in banks abroad. The securities of issuers abroad that are part of the holdings in collective investment funds of authorized national issuers will be calculated for the purposes of that limit.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Insurers and savings investment companies may invest up to 40% of their technical reserves in securities or holdings of external issuers (indicated in numeral 2 of Article 2.31.3.1.2(2)) and in demand deposits in banks abroad.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Total unhedged foreign currency investments in the portfolio backing the technical reserves may not exceed 35% of the value of the portfolio.
Pension funds	Yes.

COLOMBIA

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The limits on investments in instruments, securities, or holdings of external issuers (indicated in Article 2.6.12.1.2(2)) and in demand deposits in banks abroad are 40%, 60%, and 70% for conservative, moderate, and higher-risk funds, respectively.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	The limits on investments in instruments, securities, or holdings of external issuers (indicated in numeral 2 of Article 2.6.12.1.2(2)) and in demand deposits in banks abroad are 40%, 60%, and 70% for conservative, moderate, and higher-risk funds, respectively.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	The maximum limits for the unhedged foreign currency position of pension funds are 15%, 35%, and 50% for conservative, moderate, and higher-risk funds, respectively.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	No.	Collective investment funds or families of collective investment funds must first define their investment policy in the prospectus and regulation, which must contain the investment plan, the parameters for the management of money market operations, the policy on deposits in current or savings accounts, the risk profile of the fund, the risk management policy, and other aspects determined by the SF.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	Management companies may include in investment fund portfolios any economic asset or claim, including securities issued by banking institutions located abroad; securities issued by foreign companies in the real sector whose stocks are registered in internationally recognized stock markets; bonds issued by multilateral credit institutions or foreign governments; and shares in foreign investment funds or funds that mirror national or foreign indexes.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.

Foreign exchange market

	02/28/2020	To perform authorized exchange operations, the Colombian Institute of Educational Credit and Technical Studies Abroad also requires that the Office of the Financial Superintendence issue prudential rules that are applicable to exchange market intermediaries.
	04/01/2021	Financial Corporation for Territorial Development, Agricultural Sector Financing Fund, Colombian Institute of Educational Credit and Technical Studies Abroad, National Corporation for Promotion of Territorial Development, and the National Savings Fund are

Spot exchange market	02/28/2020	authorized to intermediate in foreign exchange market. Spot foreign exchange transactions performed by Financial Corporation for Territorial Development, Agricultural Sector Financing Fund, Colombian Institute of Educational Credit and Technical Studies Abroad, National Corporation for Promotion of Territorial Development, and the National Savings Fund are exempt from the requirement to be cleared through an authorized foreign exchange clearing and settlement system or a central counterparty risk clearinghouse if these entities are not participants in foreign exchange trading systems (R.E. 1 of 2020).
	09/25/2020	Central counterparty risk clearinghouses may perform clearing and settlement of peso-dollar spot transactions (R.E. 22 of 2020).
	02/01/2021	The submission of spot foreign exchange transactions to central counterparty risk clearinghouses became operational, which means that the performance of spot foreign exchange transactions in the trading systems will be blind when the central counterparty clearinghouse is involved in the clearing and settlement of these transactions.
	Operated by the central bank
Auction	03/12/2020	The Banco de la República may conduct intervention operations using forward dollar sales through forward contracts, by means of the auction mechanism (R.E. 4 of March 12, 2020).
	03/12/2020	The Board of Directors decided among other measures to establish a new foreign exchange hedging mechanism through Non-Delivery Forward contracts for the sale of dollars at a future date under the following conditions: (1) mechanism: uniform price auction; (2) amount: US$1 billion; (3) forward price: to be determined in the auction; (4) term: 30 days, which may be renewed; and (5) counterparties: eligible intermediaries in the foreign exchange market and the national government – Ministry of Finance and Public Credit. This mechanism sought to facilitate trading in foreign currency by market participants in the context of the inflation-targeting scheme with a flexible exchange rate.
	03/18/2020	The Board of Directors decided to auction dollar swaps (foreign exchange swaps) in the amount of US$400 million, in which the Bank of the Republic would perform a spot sale of dollars and a forward purchase of dollars (in 60 days).
	03/18/2020	Companies that manage pension funds and severance benefits were included as entities authorized to participate in foreign exchange auctions.
	03/30/2020	The Board of Directors implemented the following measures to strengthen liquidity in dollars: (1) Held a new auction of dollar swaps (foreign exchange swaps) in the amount of US$400 million, in which the Bank of the Republic would perform a spot sale of dollars and a forward purchase of dollars (in 60 days). The amounts not awarded at auction on that day would be auctioned on the next day until the quota is exhausted or until the remaining amount is less than US$25 million. This measure is intended to provide temporary liquidity in dollars to a broad group of financial institutions with the aim of easing possible restrictions on external financing and pressure in the foreign exchange market. (2) Expanded the foreign exchange hedging mechanism through a new auction of Non-Delivery Forwards (NDFs) in the amount of US$1 billion for 30 days. The amounts not awarded at auction on that day would be auctioned on the next day until the quota is exhausted or until the remaining amount is less than US$25 million. In addition, the maturities of the NDFs that were offered before May 1, 2020, was added to the daily quotas of the NDF auction. These measures expanded the hedge against the risk of depreciation in an environment characterized by great uncertainty and high volatility of the exchange market.

04/30/2020	The Board of Directors decided: (1) to increase the amount of the foreign exchange hedge by holding a new dollar sale auction through non-delivery forward (NDF) transactions in an amount of up to US$1 billion; (2) to renew the NDFs those are maturing before May 30, 2020; (3) to continue holding foreign exchange swap auctions up to US$400 million.
05/29/2020	The Board of Directors decided to renew through auctions the foreign exchange hedging instruments non-delivery forwards (NDFs) that would be maturing in the month of June. It also decided to continue auctioning the unawarded amount of the authorized operations (NDFs and swaps).
06/30/2020	The Board of Directors decided that the Bank of the Republic: (1) would continue to offer in July non-delivery forward contracts through auctions in amounts equivalent to the maturities of contracts in force that are recorded each day; (2) would not continue the auctions of foreign exchange swaps given that the external liquidity has improved and that these auctions were not in demand. These contracts will be offered again when deemed necessary.
06/30/2020	The sanctions regime for violating auction rules does not apply to non-delivery forwards contracts that are cleared and settled through a Central Counterparty Risk Clearinghouse.
07/31/2020	The Board of Directors decided that the Bank of the Republic would renew in August the maturities of non-delivery forward contracts for the sale of dollars through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.
08/14/2020	Performance of bilateral operations or operations through a Central Counterparty Risk Clearinghouse regarding non-delivery forwards contracts was established by an amendment to Market Operations and Analysis Department-143.
08/31/2020	The Board of Directors decided that the Bank of the Republic would renew up to September 25, 2020, the maturities of non-delivery forward contracts for the sale of dollars through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.
09/25/2020	Central counterparty risk clearinghouses were included as entities authorized to participate in foreign exchange auctions.
09/25/2020	The Board of Directors decided that the Bank of the Republic would renew up to October 30, 2020, the maturities of non-delivery forward contracts for the sale of dollars through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.
10/30/2020	The Board of Directors decided that the Bank of the Republic would renew up to November 27, 2020, the maturities of non-delivery forward contracts for the sale of dollars through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.
11/17/2020	The Board of Directors decided that the Bank of the Republic would renew the maturities of non-delivery forward contracts for the sale of dollars in December 2020 through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.
12/02/2020	The Board of Directors decided that Bank of the Republic purchase from the government US$1,500 million at the current representative market rate, thereby boosting the level of the country's international reserves in line with its long-term external risk management policy.
12/14/2020	The Board of Directors decided that the Bank of the Republic would renew the maturities of non-delivery forward contracts for the sale of dollars in January 2021 through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.

COLOMBIA

	01/18/2021	The Board of Directors decided that the institution would renew the maturities of non-delivery forward contracts for the sale of dollars in February 2021 through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates.
	02/15/2021	The Board of Directors decided that the institution would renew the maturities of non-delivery forward contracts for the sale of dollars in March 2021 through the auction mechanism on the maturity dates. Accordingly, US$90.9 million, corresponding to the renewal of the maturities of the remaining balance of these operations, was offered at auction on March 20, 2021.
Forward exchange market	03/12/2020	The Banco de la República (BR) may intervene in the exchange market through forward contracts in which the future sale of dollars is negotiated. These are non-delivery contracts. Forward contracts for the sale of dollars are offered through uniform price auctions, in which the participants offer the exchange rate (bid price expressed in pesos per dollar) at which they would be prepared to buy dollars from the BR on the maturity of the contract, as well as the amount of the bid in dollars.

Conventional peg	Yes.	The Comoros participates in the franc zone area. The Comorian franc is pegged to the euro at the fixed rate of CF 491.96775 per euro; the value of other currencies is based on the exchange rates of these currencies in the foreign exchange markets. The exchange rate arrangement is established by the following documents: (1) the monetary November 23, 1979, cooperation agreement between the Comorian and French governments; (2) the November 23, 1998, decision by the European Council of Ministers authorizing France to maintain its monetary arrangements with the CFA area countries and the Comoros; and (3) the January 14, 1999, order of the governor of the Central Bank of Comoros (CBC) on euro–Comorian franc parity. Decree No. 87-005/PR, Regulating Financial Relations between the Comoros and Other Countries and its regulations apply. The government of either the Comoros or France may change the exchange rate arrangement after notification to the other party.

Official exchange rate Yes. The Comorian franc is officially pegged to the euro at the fixed rate of CF 491.96775 per euro. The official exchange rate is used for accounting and valuation. The government of either the Comoros or France may change the exchange rate arrangement after notification to the other party to the monetary cooperation agreement.

Monetary policy framework

U.S. dollar

Euro Yes. The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. The terms of government borrowing directly from the CB are defined under Article 22 of the CBC charter. The discount rate is indexed to the euro zone interbank market rate, that is, the Euro Short-Term Rate (€STR), which succeeded EONIA in the Euro area as of October 2019. Effective November 1, 2020, the CBC adopted this new reference rate, which it applies to all its operations previously referring to EONIA.

While the external anchoring of the Comorian currency is clearly defined through the rules of fixed parity between the euro and the Comorian franc and the external hedging of the national currency (the ratio of external assets to the CBC's demand deposits must remain at least 20%), the objective of monetary stability stipulated in Article 6 of the CBC's charter is not accompanied by an explicit inflation indicator or target. However, the Comoros is subject to multilateral convergence criteria in the framework of regional cooperation in Africa (COMESA, SADC, ABCA, etc.). Among these criteria is the inflation rate, which is currently set at a maximum of 7% in the ABCA zone and a maximum of 5% in COMESA and SADC. This inflation norm is set at 3% in the other communities of the Africa-France Monetary Cooperation (CMAF).

Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership		September 28, 1963.
Article VIII	Yes.	Date of acceptance: February 10, 2003.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the Staff-Monitored Program and Request for Disbursement Under the Rapid Credit Facility states that as of December 5, 2019, the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) maintained one exchange rate restriction subject to IMF approval arising from an outstanding net debt position against other contracting members under the inoperative regional payments' agreement with the Economic Community of the Great Lakes Countries. (Country Report No. 19/388)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	No.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	No.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	Yes.	The currency of the DRC is the Congo franc (CDF).
Other legal tender	No.	In the DRC, the CDF is the only legal tender. No other currency has ever been accepted as legal tender in the DRC. However, the Central Bank of the Democratic Republic of the Congo (BCC) publishes, on a daily basis, exchange rates for certain currencies listed and admitted on the national territory by the foreign exchange regulation.

Conventional peg
Stabilized arrangement
Crawling peg
Crawl-like arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The exchange rate of the Congo franc is determined by supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. The BCC intervenes through auction, which is the only operational framework for the BCC's transactions with the market. From May 2020, the exchange rate increased its flexibility while still being managed, and then, it has followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar since August 2020. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified twice: (1) to other managed from crawl-like, effective May 18, 2020, and (2) to crawl-like from other managed, effective August 7, 2020. The BCC does not publish data on interventions. However, the BCC uses its weekly, monthly, semiannual, and annual publications to report its various interventions on the foreign exchange market.

Exchange tax Yes. A charge of 0.02% is levied by the BCC on all payments entering or leaving the country, regardless of the nature of the originator or the beneficiary.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes.

Spot exchange market Yes. The foreign exchange market is regulated by an agreement signed in 2003 between the BCC and the licensed banks. Participants in the exchange market are the BCC, the licensed banks, and all other licensed financial intermediaries (for example, exchange bureaus) that accede to the agreement. As of December 31, 2020, there were 16 active commercial banks. Market participants are free to determine their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commission. There is also a parallel market with a fairly large number of participants for which the volume of transactions is difficult to estimate. The daily spread between the official rate and parallel rate averaged 1.77% in 2019 and 3.45% in 2020. Any Congolese legal entity wishing to engage in activity as an exchange bureau must be licensed by the BCC. There are currently 38 authorized foreign exchange bureaus. The exchange bureaus cannot execute foreign exchange transactions directly with the BCC. Exchange bureaus are authorized to buy and sell foreign currencies for local currency in cash and to buy and sell foreign currencies for other currencies in cash. Exchange bureaus may not (1) maintain accounts abroad. They are required to maintain accounts in domestic currency and/or foreign-currency-denominated accounts opened in the Congolese banking system or (2) conduct foreign exchange transactions in excess of US$10,000 or the equivalent in other foreign currencies a person a day. The exchange bureaus may not execute transfers with the rest of the world, import or export banknotes, or hold deposits for their customers.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	The CB has been holding bilateral auctions since May 15, 2015, twice a week, on Mondays and Thursdays; in exceptional cases, depending on the monetary policy requirements, it may organize bilateral auctions on the other days of the week. Only commercial banks and the CB are authorized to participate in bilateral foreign exchange auctions, which are multiple rate auctions. The auctions are subject to rate limits. There is a mechanism to ensure that the accepted bid buying and selling exchange rates remain within plus or minus 2% of the marginal auction rate. Accordingly, buying (selling) bids greater than (less than) 102% (98%) of the marginal auction rate are honored at the maximum (minimum) auction exchange rate. There is no limit to the amount. The auction amount is not announced in advance. The BCC organizes two auctions per week in strict compliance with the schedule. Banks that fail to honor their commitments deriving from auction operations are penalized in accordance with the tariffs and conditions of the BCC of December 2003. The BCC publishes the auction results at its website and in its information system, or through other means of communication (duly signed letter, e-mail, fax, and swift messages) using a standard form. In addition, a confirmation message for the purchase or sale of foreign exchange is sent to each accepted bank.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Operations in the interbank foreign exchange market take place over the counter or by bilateral auction. No charges or commissions are assessed. Only commercial banks and the BCC participate in this market. There are currently 16 authorized commercial banks in the interbank market. Market participants are free to determine their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commission. As of December 31, 2020, almost all banks participated in the interbank market. The BCC purchases US dollars sporadically at the banks' initiative. In 2020, the BCC was a net seller of US dollars.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign currency transactions are executed over the counter at prices determined by supply and demand.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	A forward exchange market exists and is regulated by the same institutional mechanism as the spot market.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.
For current transactions and payments	No.	Domestic transactions between residents and nonresidents may be expressed and carried out in domestic currency. Except as otherwise provided in the Exchange Regulations, transactions may also be denominated and settled in one of the foreign currencies quoted by the BCC, by agreement of the parties. For current transactions, there are no restrictions on the use of domestic currency. International transactions are frequently expressed and settled in foreign currencies.
For capital transactions	No.	Domestic transactions between residents, and between residents and nonresidents, are expressed and settled in domestic currency. Except as otherwise provided in the Exchange Regulations, transactions may also be denominated and settled in one of the foreign currencies listed by the BCC, by agreement of the parties. For capital transactions, there are no restrictions on the use of domestic currency. International transactions are frequently expressed and settled in foreign currencies.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.	International and domestic capital transactions between residents and between residents and nonresidents are expressed in the currency agreed between the parties. For capital and money market transactions, there are no restrictions on the use of domestic currency. Money market instruments are expressed and settled in national currency. However, the government may issue Treasury bills in foreign currency.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.	Money market instruments are expressed and settled in national currency. For derivatives transactions, there are no restrictions on the use of domestic currency.
Credit operations	No.	Capital transactions between residents and nonresidents are expressed and settled in national currency or any other currency quoted by the BCC. For credit operations, there are no restrictions on the use of domestic currency.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The domestic currency and foreign currencies are in circulation. However, residential rent, education, and health-related expenditures and the cost of domestic water and electricity consumption are set and paid for only in domestic currency when the transactions are between residents.
Payments arrangements	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions initiated in the context of international accords are settled in accordance with the provisions of the foreign exchange regulations in force.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	Yes.	There is an inoperative bilateral payments agreement with Zimbabwe.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	The DRC is a member of COMESA, the SADC, the CEPGL, and the Economic Community of Central African States.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	Within the CEPGL, the DRC has payments agreements that use the clearing mechanism. Payments are made through SDR-denominated accounts among the CBs of Burundi, the DRC, and Rwanda. These agreements are inoperative.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.

DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC OF THE CONGO (DRC)

Administration of control	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions must take place through the BCC or authorized intermediaries. The BCC also supervises authorized banks and nonbank intermediaries and regulates the foreign exchange positions of banks. Supporting documentation is required for operations involving (1) revenue transfers for exports of goods and services, imports of services, and imports of goods exceeding the equivalent of US$2,500 and (2) current transfers, capital movements, and international payments exceeding US$10,000.
Payments arrears	Yes.
Official	Yes.	LAC-Air Zimbabwe Partnership; SNCC-NRZ Partnership.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Only Congolese may purchase, transport, sell, or hold gold in areas not covered by exclusive mining concessions. Foreign individuals and legal entities may do so only on behalf of authorized marketing agencies.
On external trade	Yes.	Gold from artisanal production may be exported only by authorized marketing agencies and does not require BCC authorization. However, they must comply with the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme and require, in addition to an export declaration made through a licensed bank, an appraisal certificate from the Centre for Evaluation, Expertise and Certification (CEEC) and a certificate of origin. In addition to pre-financing, the repatriation of proceeds from exports of gold must be effected within 20 days of the date of shipment.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	No.
Foreign currency	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the possession of foreign currency in the DRC. Travelers exiting the country may carry foreign exchange not exceeding US$10,000 or its equivalent in other currency, unless they are in transit internationally or on a service mission. Travelers must declare the amount of foreign exchange carried. Transfers of amounts exceeding US$10,000 must be made through a bank. The transfer abroad of foreign banknotes representing part of the foreign exchange position of a licensed bank requires authorization by the BCC. The bank must apply to the BCC online, specifying in foreign currency the amounts to be exported and the name and address of the recipient correspondent bank abroad.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	No.
Foreign currency	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the possession of foreign currency in the DRC. The amount of foreign cash that may be held on entering or leaving the national territory must be less than US$10,000 or the equivalent in other foreign currencies. Larger amounts must be transferred via bank transfer. For their operations, licensed banks are authorized to physically export and import foreign-currency-denominated banknotes, which are, in their entirety, deemed to be part of the bank's exchange position, based on BCC authorization requested online.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Licensed banks are authorized to open foreign-currency-denominated accounts for residents (“Résident en Monnaies Etrangères” accounts, or RME) without prior authorization from the CB. These accounts may (1) be demand or time deposits; (2) bear interest; (3) be credited or debited without restriction; and (4) record domestic transfers between RME accounts, subject to the signature of exchange documents. Balances in foreign exchange accounts held domestically may be transferred abroad freely subject to the provision of a description and supporting documentation.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	In accordance with the foreign exchange regulations, licensed banks are permitted to open bank accounts with foreign correspondents to execute transactions for their customers or themselves. Companies holding mining rights are permitted to hold foreign bank accounts with reputable international banks and report those accounts to the BCC. Accounts designated as “Principal Account” may be used to manage funds the company is permitted to hold outside the national territory, and other accounts to manage funds transferred from the principal account to service foreign debt, and for provisions and statutory, legal, and discretionary reserves.
Approval required	Yes.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Holdings in domestic currency are converted freely by agreement between the account holder and the commercial bank.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Licensed banks are authorized to open foreign-currency-denominated accounts for nonresidents (“Non-résident en Monnaies Etrangères” accounts, or NRME) without prior authorization from the CB. These accounts may (1) be demand or time deposits; (2) bear interest; (3) be credited or debited without restriction; and (4) record domestic transfers between NRME accounts, subject to the signature of exchange documents. Balances in foreign exchange accounts held domestically may be transferred abroad freely subject to the provision of a description and supporting documentation.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Licensed banks may open domestic currency accounts for nonresidents without BCC approval. These accounts may be demand or time deposit accounts.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Balances in domestic currency accounts originating from legitimate international transactions may be converted and transferred.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.	Transactions may be freely conducted on these accounts.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
--------------------------------	-----

DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC OF THE CONGO (DRC)

Financing requirements for imports	No.	Importer payments to nonresident suppliers must be accompanied by a declaration to which the goods and services contract, the invoice, and/or any other supporting documentation are attached. The importer is required to pay the invoice through an intervening bank.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	With the exception of border trade, all transactions relating to the import of goods, irrespective of the form of financing, require the prior filing of a model IB declaration for imports of goods with a resident commercial bank.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	Imports are subject to preshipment inspection. The amount, invoice price, and quality of imports must be verified and approved by the foreign agent of the Office of Congolese Control. Verification certificates are not required for imports of up to the f.o.b. equivalent of US$2,500 a shipment.
Letters of credit	Yes.	Regulations on import payments follow generally accepted international payment methods.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	An import declaration validated by a licensed bank constitutes authorization to import and/or make payments to a foreign supplier and does not limit the amount of the transaction.
Other	Yes.	Written authorization from the relevant government department is required for certain goods, such as coins, commemorative coins, banknotes, weapons, and ammunition.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	Yes.	All products are authorized, except certain goods that require the consent of the relevant government department.
Negative list	No.
Open general licenses	Yes.	The following may be imported without an exchange document, provided they are not intended for resale: (1) commercial samples without value; (2) newspapers, periodicals, and magazines for personal use and by subscription; (3) baggage and personal articles; (4) goods for the resupply of oil platforms carried from abroad aboard aircraft, ships, and other domestic means of transport; and (5) articles whose total value, including freight and insurance, does not exceed US$2,500 a shipment (cargo splitting is prohibited).
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The tax and customs services determine and collect import taxes and duties.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	The BCC charges an exchange control fee of 0.02% on payments made abroad by the banks to cover import expenses and on imports for which no foreign currency is purchased.
State import monopoly	Yes.	Military materials are subject to a state import monopoly.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	With the exception of gold and diamonds produced by artisanal miners, for which the amount must be received at the bank no later than 20 days from the date of exit, export or reexport receipts from all other products of any nature must be repatriated no later than 60 calendar days from the date (1) the goods exit the national territory for a final destination or (2) the goods are shipped from an African country to a final destination.

The exporter is required to transmit the transport document for shipped goods to the intervening bank for certification of the shipment date. In the case of exports on consignment, the export proceeds must be repatriated as soon as the merchandise has been sold and not later than the end of the validity period of the EB declaration form. As the sales progress, the exporter is required to receive a consignment accounting statement along with the relevant payment when the exporter must repatriate the proceeds.

For companies holding mineral rights, export receipts from mining products must be received in the primary foreign account within 45 calendar days of the date the goods exited the national territory, for an African country, and from shipment from an African country, unless the sales contract includes special provisions governing the payment period.

Mineral rights holders are authorized to keep 40% of export receipts in the primary account. Only mineral rights holders that have provided the bank references and regularly report activity in the primary account to the BCC may keep a portion of export or pre-financing receipts abroad. The 60% of export receipts required to be repatriated must be deposited to an account opened with the intervening bank within 15 days of the deposit of funds in the primary foreign account. The repatriated portion of export receipts must be used to cover domestic expenses payable to residents and may not be used to finance imports or any other international payment.

Accounts opened with the national banking system must also be credited with pre-financing and miscellaneous resources and obligations related to the firm's operations.

Every mineral rights holder is required to transmit to the CB, no later than the 15th day of each month, a declaration indicating the previous month's activity in its principal foreign account together with the corresponding bank statement.

The BCC reserves the right to verify the propriety of the transaction recorded in the primary foreign accounting of a mineral rights holder, after providing written notice to the account holder in advance.

To that end, the mineral rights holder must be required to acknowledge receipt and provide the BCC with a notarized letter to its banker authorizing verification of the transactions in its primary account within 30 days of receipt of the BCC correspondence.

For petroleum production companies, export receipts from petroleum products must be received in the primary foreign account within 45 calendar days of the date the goods exited the national territory, for an African country, and of shipment from an African country, unless the sales contract includes special provisions governing the payment.

Every petroleum exploration and production company must be required to transmit to the CB, no later than the 15th day of each month, a declaration indicating the previous month's activity in its principal foreign account together with the corresponding bank statement.

The BCC reserves the right to verify the propriety of the transaction recorded in the primary foreign accounting of a petroleum exploration and production company, after providing written notice to the account holder in advance.

To that end, the petroleum exploration and production company must be required to acknowledge receipt and provide the BCC with a Surrender requirements	No.	Exporters are not required to surrender their export proceeds to banks or to the BCC. If they do surrender them, the terms, conditions, and arrangements must be agreed to by the bank and its customers.

Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Except for border trade, any export of goods, regardless of the mode of financing, requires the advance signature of a model EB declaration for exports with a licensed bank or any other representative designated by the BCC for that purpose. A model EB declaration may cover the export of goods of different tariff positions, provided the applicable commercial contract is concluded with a single customer and the goods have the same destination. If that condition is not met, a declaration must be signed for each customer and for each destination. A duly validated model EB declaration evidences the signatory's intent to export, and in case of export, the intervening bank is required to receive the full value of the export within the time period defined in the regulations.
Letters of credit	Yes.	Export regulations respect generally accepted international modes of payment.
Guarantees	Yes.	These are required in the case of temporary exports of goods for rental, maintenance, custom work, etc.
Domiciliation	No.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	Exports of goods require inspection certificates ascertaining quality, quantity, and price. EB declaration forms must be submitted with the following documents: lot ready for export report, quality certificate (coffee), appraisal certificate (precious materials), and certificate of origin (precious materials).
Other	Yes.	Written authorization from the relevant government department is required for certain goods, such as coins, commemorative coins, banknotes, weapons, and ammunition.
Export licenses	No.	Export declarations are required for statistical purposes only.
Without quotas	No.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	Yes.	The BCC imposes an exchange control fee of 0.02% on export proceeds surrendered to banks and on exports for which no foreign currency proceeds have been repatriated.
Other export taxes	Yes.	The tax and customs services collect export taxes and duties.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	Payments from abroad for invisible transactions (services) and outward transfers in connection with primary or secondary income are permitted on submission of an exchange document, depending on the case, the IS declaration for services of any amount and the income and capital (RC) declaration for primary and secondary income for any amount equal to or exceeding US$10,000 or its

Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	For financial operations, the signing of an RC Declaration Form with a commercial bank for statistical purposes is a prerequisite, regardless of the amount. Profits, dividends, interest, rental income, and other such income earned in the DRC must be transferred through licensed banks according to contractual provisions.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents entering or leaving the country may bring foreign banknotes and coins of an amount less than US$10,000 or the equivalent in other foreign currencies. Amounts in excess of this ceiling at the time of entering or leaving the national territory must be transferred via bank transfer.
Personal payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Any payment of the amount of US$10,000 or more requires the filing of a model RC declaration and must be compliant with the anti-money-laundering law in the DRC.
Foreign workers' wages	Yes.	Foreign workers' income and wages earned in the DRC may be transferred through licensed banks.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Any sending or receiving of primary or secondary income and capital having a value of US$10,000 or more or equivalent in other foreign currencies requires the prior signing of an RC Declaration Form with a licensed bank.
Credit card use abroad	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	The issuer is responsible for defining the overall transaction limits a mechanism a day. In practice, commercial banks cap the withdrawal between US$500 and US$1,500. As a COVID-19 measure, this ceiling was increased to US$2,500 to promote the use of electronic money effective April 30, 2020.

Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	The daily limit depends on the type of card.
Other payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	For transfers or deposits to an account of a nonresident with a resident bank, any payment greater than or equal to US$10,000 is subject to the signing of an RC Declaration Form.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Payments to and from other countries for invisible transactions and current transfers are permitted with an IS or RC exchange document from a licensed bank (for statistical purposes). Payment of a current transfer of less than US$10,000 does not require an RC. Licensed banks must produce a statement of receipts in foreign currency. Licensed banks must complete a statement of receipts in foreign currency for proceeds from exports of services. Exporters must obtain payment from foreign buyers of services based on an export of services declaration and repatriate payments through a licensed bank. A stamped export of services from a licensed bank authorizes exportation of services on payment of the amount invoiced. The proceeds of exports of services must be repatriated no later than 30 calendar days from the date the services were rendered.
Surrender requirements	No.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Inward and outward capital transactions are permitted on submission of an RC declaration form. The capital involved must represent the proceeds of lawful transactions.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.
Surrender requirements	No.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Individuals and legal entities must inform the BCC in writing of their intention to raise funds through any of the following activities: (1) exports for sale; (2) offers for sale; (3) offers for subscription; (4) offers for swap or purchase; and (5) swaps and issuance of (a) shares, securities, and founders' shares, directly or indirectly representing partners' rights in companies; (b) savings or capitalization bonds; (c) bonds and other securities, regardless of the identity of the borrower; (d) certificates or shares in joint investment funds; (e) other financial claims and similar financial instruments; and (f) any documentation evidencing such assets.

Conventional peg	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the CEMAC is a conventional peg. The Republic of Congo participates in the CEMAC and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement (MCA) between CEMAC member countries and France is based on three principles: (1) a common CB; (2) fixed parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee. Article 16 empowers the finance ministers of signatory countries (Joint Monetary Committee) to amend the MCA. Article 17 permits signatories to renounce the agreement. Article 18 specifies that the expulsion of a member country from the BEAC automatically results in that country's renunciation of the MCA.

Official exchange rate Yes. The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at a fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rate is fixed by Article 12 of the MCA of November 23, 1972, between the BEAC and France, which states that the par value may be modified following consultation among the signatory countries (BEAC members and France), taking into account the demands of the economic and financial situation of the member countries. Exchange transactions in euros between the BEAC and commercial banks are made at this rate. Buying and selling rates for certain other foreign currencies are also listed officially based on the fixed rate for the euro and the rates for these foreign currencies prevailing in the Paris foreign exchange market. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation.

Exchange tax	Yes.	Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding the turnover tax (VAT) and any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may effect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct foreign exchange transactions with their customers. The BEAC's OTC foreign exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Allocation	No.

REPUBLIC OF CONGO (CONGO)

Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes and 5% for other currencies, not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler's checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts up to a limit of CFAF 100 million on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. For amounts over CFAF 100 million, requests for forward exchange contracts must be made to the BEAC so that their purpose may be verified.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.

REPUBLIC OF CONGO (CONGO)

Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	Yes.	In the Republic of Congo, under production-sharing and investment contracts, clearing accounts used to make import payments from export receipts are held abroad under the control of MOF and BEAC departments.
Administration of control	Yes.	Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.
Payments arrears	No.	Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers' payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.
On external trade	Yes.	Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million. During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler's checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).

REPUBLIC OF CONGO (CONGO)

Foreign currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 1 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million.
Foreign currency	No.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC. Previously, authorizations were granted by the MOF after consulting the BEAC.
Held abroad	Yes.	Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019. Previously, although the principle underlying foreign currency transactions was the systematic repatriation and surrender of foreign exchange to the BEAC and residents were not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad, the opening of such accounts was not explicitly regulated by law.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted. Previously, these accounts were not permitted except within the CEMAC.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.

Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident CFA franc accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for nonresidents, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.
Convertible into foreign currency	No.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.	The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.
Financing requirements for imports	No.	Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.
Minimum financing requirements	No.	There are no financing requirements.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legally registered legal entities and declared or certified professionals may be exempt from the requirement to produce supporting documents, provided they submit an annual estimate of imports corroborated by a business forecast.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In the Republic of Congo, imports valued at CFAF 3 million or more are subject to inspection by the trade inspection company COTECNA.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.
Other	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply. In the Republic of Congo, an import program is established each year for five separate zones: (1) CEMAC member countries, (2) France, (3) other operations accounts countries, (4) EU countries other than France, and (5) all other countries. Under this program, imports of nine products require licenses and all others are subject to ex post declaration.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.
Open general licenses	Yes.	There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level. However, in the Republic of Congo, imports of cement, forest products, oil products, and some staples require a license. In addition, imports are subject to declaration.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	In the Republic of Congo, licenses with quotas apply to imports of cement, wheat flour, and sugar.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	In the Republic of Congo, imports of commercial goods must be insured through licensed insurance companies.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry. In the Republic of Congo, a surcharge of 30% applies to imports of goods previously subject to quantitative restrictions. This surcharge is to be eliminated in three to six years, with the longer period applying to certain agricultural products and textiles.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately, through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of collection.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.	Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings within a month of the payment due date, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.

Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Guarantees	n.r.
Domiciliation	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard. In the Republic of Congo, the Société Générale de Surveillance (SGS) and COTECNA handle preshipment inspections.
Other	No.
Export licenses	No.
Without quotas	No.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.	Export taxes established by the budget laws are levied by the Customs Directorate or via licensed intermediaries.
Collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and fees established in the law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
Other export taxes	Yes.	In the Republic of Congo, export taxes of up to 13% apply to certain products.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Amounts owed by nonresidents for services and all income from foreign assets earned outside the CEMAC must be collected through a licensed bank and repatriated immediately.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currency must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied indiscriminately to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc area countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which went into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that “when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained.” The article also states that “the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF.”
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated immediately after collection.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days after receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.

REPUBLIC OF CONGO (CONGO)

On capital market securities	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities (shares and bonds issued by foreign enterprises) whose value exceeds CFAF 10 million are subject to MOF approval. Under CEMAC exchange regulations, transactions in capital market securities are treated in the same way as simple borrowing and lending operations, as opposed to direct investments, when the shares or equity held by the individual or legal entity represent less than 10% of the enterprise's total equity. Borrowing and lending are not regulated by type of instrument or maturity.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Crawl-like arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed floating, on February 2, 2015, under Article 5 of the legal act adopted during session 5677-2015 of the Board of Directors of the BCCR held January 30, 2015. Under this arrangement: (1) the BCCR allows the exchange rate to be freely determined by foreign currency supply and demand, but it may participate in the market to meet its own foreign currency requirements and those of the nonbank public sector (NBPS) and, at its discretion, to prevent drastic fluctuations in the exchange rate, in such a way that these actions will not interrupt the trend determined by the macroeconomic variables of that price (stabilization interventions); (2) the BCCR may carry out direct operations or use foreign currency trading instruments that it deems appropriate, in accordance with current regulations.

During 2020, the behavior of the exchange market was influenced by two factors: The first was linked to seasonal aspects, which were exacerbated by the COVID-19 pandemic, and the second to the uncertainty associated with fiscal tensions, which became more significant from September onwards.

Although the public health measures implemented by the authorities to try to contain the pandemic began in the second half of March, their impact on the foreign exchange market began to manifest itself towards the end of the first quarter. During this period, the foreign currency surplus generated by the private sector (transactions by the public with foreign exchange intermediaries) was greater than in previous years and made it possible to meet the demand of the NBPS. In this environment, the value of the colón appreciated.

From the second quarter of 2020 onwards, there was moderate upward pressure on the exchange rate, as the seasonal behavior of the market (less abundance of foreign currency) was reinforced by the paralysis of productive activities that generate foreign currency (such as tourism) and by the uncertainty of economic agents regarding the duration of the pandemic and the effects that the public health measures would have on the productive sector.

In the third quarter, even though the economy was in a gradual process of opening and recovery, there were tensions in the exchange market as a result of uncertainty about the viability of possible fiscal adjustment measures.

In short, in 2020 there was a surplus in the private foreign exchange market, but it was smaller compared to the previous year. Thus, the average daily surplus of foreign exchange purchase and sale operations carried out by the public through exchange intermediaries (windows) was US$6.0 million, about US$2.7 million less than their respective value in 2019.

As of July 31, the accumulated surplus in 2021 of operations by foreign exchange intermediaries with the public amounted to US$1,430 million, with a daily average of US$9.8 million (US$1,236 million and US$8.4 million, respectively, in the same period of the previous year).

In this context, the CB purchased US$1,408 million in the Foreign Exchange Market (MONEX) to meet the demand in the NBPS. In the first seven months of 2021, the net demand of the NBPS was US$1,988 million (compared to US$1,126 million in the same period of 2020). The higher demand in the NBPS is because of an increase in the payment of the oil bill and the maturity of the MOF's debt in foreign currency.

At the end of July 2021, the year-on-year change in the exchange rate was 5.5% and the cumulative change was 1.0% with respect to the value recorded at the end of 2020. The trend in the exchange rate this year required practically no interventions by the BCCR to limit abrupt movements (stabilization sales amounted to US$6.6 million). The BCCR publishes its intervention data on a daily basis right after the MONEX trading session closes. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as crawl-like.

Yes.

Costa Rica does not have an official exchange rate; however, for the liquidation of instruments, contracts, and obligations denominated in foreign currency, Article 48 of the Organic Law of the BCCR provides that, at the debtor's option, the latter may be paid in colones at an amount equivalent to the actual market value.

The actual market value is determined by using the buying and selling benchmark exchange rate, which is calculated daily by the BCCR pursuant to Article 9 of the Regulation on Spot Exchange Operations (ROCC). Benchmark exchange rates will be used, as applicable, for all purposes set forth by the various laws, regulations, rules, and general provisions.

The buying and selling benchmark exchange rates for each day will be calculated by the BCCR based on online information submitted to the CB by each entity authorized to participate in the foreign exchange market.

The benchmark exchange rates are calculated as follows pursuant to Article 9 of the ROCC: The benchmark exchange rates (buying and selling) for day  $t$  are the average (weighted by amount) of the exchange rates of the foreign currency (buying and selling) transactions between foreign exchange dealers and the public on day  $t-1$ , during the period defined by agreement of the Board of Directors of the BCCR.

The exchange rate is a reference for the market; its use is not mandatory.

Inflation-targeting framework

Yes.

The Board of Directors of the BCCR, under Article 5 of the legal act adopted, during session 5813-2018 of January 31, 2018, an inflation-targeting framework.

In the context of the 2020–2021 Macroeconomic Program, and its July 2020 revision, the BCCR upheld the institutional commitment to the domestic stability of the colón embodied in an inflation target of 3%, with a tolerance range of  $\pm 1$  percentage point (pp). This commitment was maintained under the same terms in the 2021-2022 macroeconomic program and its respective revision in July 2021.

Policy rate	Yes.	The policy rate is defined as the BCCR target interest rate used as a benchmark to bring the cost of overnight operations in the integrated liquidity market within a band consisting of interest rates for its standing deposit and credit facilities. It is determined by the Board of Directors of BCCR.
		In 2021, the CB has maintained the expansionary and countercyclical stance of the monetary policy it adopted in March 2019 and deepened with the pandemic. This policy seeks to contribute to the economic recovery process and ensure the stability of the financial system. Thus, the CB has lowered its monetary policy rate by 450 basis points (b.p.) between March 2019 and July 2021. As of December 31, 2019, the rate was 2.75%, as of June 18, 2020, it is 0.75%, the standing deposit facility rate is 0.01% and the standing credit facility rate is 1.50%.
Target corridor band	Yes.	This band is determined by the Board of Directors. The upper value of the band is the standing credit facility interest rate and the lower value the standing deposit facility interest rate. As of June 18, 2020, the standing deposit facility interest rate was 0.01% and the standing credit facility interest rate, 1.5%.

Exchange tax	Yes.	In accordance with Article 97 of the LOBCCR and Article 5 of the ROCC, foreign exchange dealers are charged a participation fee equivalent to 25% of the foreign exchange dealing spread on all their foreign exchange operations.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Article 2 of the ROCC authorizes the BCCR, financial institutions supervised by the General Superintendency of Financial Entities (SUGEF), stock brokers, and exchange houses to participate in the exchange market on their own account and at their own risk. Foreign exchange dealers may set the buying and selling exchange rate for their operations with the public, and as a result, the effective foreign exchange margin is determined by the operations they carry out in the market.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	For the purchase and sale of currencies, the foreign exchange market has: platforms for the trading of foreign exchange by dealers with the general public (including both physical and electronic "windows," automated teller machines (ATMs), and Internet banking), the MONEX, and operations between foreign exchange dealers outside MONEX. MONEX is a foreign exchange market organized and operated through an electronic platform of the BCCR. Participants in the market include foreign exchange dealers, the BCCR, and nondealers (individuals and legal entities). Outside MONEX, foreign exchange dealers may engage in foreign exchange transactions among themselves by means of transfers. As of December 31, 2020, foreign exchange dealers authorized to engage in foreign exchange operations with the public (pursuant to Article 2 of the ROCC) consisted of 14 commercial banks, 2 exchange bureaus, 9 credit and savings unions, 4 financial enterprises, 2 mutual savings and loan associations, and 5 brokerage firms.  For exchange houses, Chapter VI of the ROCC (Article 15) states that: “Exchange houses may make spot foreign exchange purchases and sales in notes, bank drafts, checks, transfers to and from other countries, and other payment instruments, on their own behalf and at their own risk.” Currently, their only operations in Costa Rica are foreign exchange swaps.

Operated by the central bank	No.	According to the foreign currency management strategy for the NBPS, the BCCR has the obligation to: (1) directly meet the net daily foreign currency requirements by drawing on the sale of its international reserves and (2) replenish the foreign currency used to meet the net requirements of the NBPS through participation in MONEX on the basis of the prevailing conditions in the foreign exchange market. Currently, the CB does not have a foreign exchange allocation mechanism; there is no foreign exchange auction or any exchange rate fixing mechanism. The BCCR operates in the foreign exchange market as any market participant, in response to three reasons:            (1) The purchase or sale of foreign exchange to meet the net requirements of the NBPS.            (2) Purchase and sale operations for stabilization with the aim of limiting abrupt movements in the exchange rate.            (3) Its own transactions associated with financial hedging.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.	The BCCR does not buy or sell foreign exchange at the request of commercial banks, nor does it deal directly with the government and other public entities.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Pursuant to Articles 2 and 3 of the ROCC, the Board of Directors of the BCCR is the body entrusted with authorizing entities to act as intermediaries in the foreign exchange market. Financial intermediaries supervised by the SUGEF are authorized to carry out foreign exchange intermediation operations and, by extension, to participate in MONEX. Foreign exchange dealers may set the buying and selling exchange rate for their operations with the public, and as a result, the effective foreign exchange margin is determined by the market. These exchange rates should take into account any surcharges for commissions or other additional costs, so that the exchange rate reported corresponds to the final amount that the customer will receive or pay for the currency traded. Therefore, BCCR does not establish limits on exchange rates or on the effective margin. As of December 31, 2020, foreign exchange dealers authorized to engage in foreign exchange operations with the public (pursuant to Article 2 of the ROCC) consisted of 14 commercial banks, 2 exchange bureaus, 9 credit and savings unions, 4 financial enterprises, 2 mutual savings and loan associations, and 5 brokerage firms. In MONEX, foreign exchange dealers may freely publish the exchange rates at which they buy and sell dollars. Exchange dealers must pay a fee of 0.02% on the amount traded.

The BCCR trades in foreign currency in MONEX directly like any other participant, but does not do so in the form of market makers. It does so to prevent undue fluctuations in the exchange rate and to meet its own needs (Article 87 of the Organic Law of the BCCR) as well as to meet the foreign currency requirements of the NBPS (Article 89 of the Organic Law of the BCCR).

Over the counter	Yes.	In addition to MONEX, foreign exchange dealers may engage in foreign exchange transactions among themselves (outside of MONEX) by means of transfers.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.	Foreign exchange dealers may offer buying and selling rates to other participants in the MONEX. The role of market makers is not taken into consideration in the Costa Rican exchange regulations.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	The Regulation on the Use of Derivatives in Foreign Currency and the Regulation on Operations with Foreign Exchange Derivatives were repealed at meeting 5973-2020 of the BCCR Board of Directors on November 25, 2020, effective December 16, 2020. Article 5 from this same session approved the Regulation on Derivatives in Foreign Currency.
Official cover of forward operations	No.	The BCCR does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market; however, to ensure compliance with the limit established for the daily change in the foreign currency position of foreign exchange dealers, it receives information from these institutions regarding their foreign exchange derivative transactions.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	No.	Pursuant to Law No. 7558, Article 42, the colón is the national currency and legal tender. Pursuant to Article 48 of the same law, acts, contracts, and obligations in foreign currency are valid, effective, and executable but may be paid, at the debtor’s election, in colones, based on the actual exchange value of the currency in question on the date of payment. There are no international treaties or conventions that limit or restrict the use of domestic or foreign currency in making or receiving payments. The National Electronic Payments System (SINPE) was created on the basis of Law No. 7558 of the BCCR to offer a secure and efficient payment system. Services for administering and managing funds and securities were implemented on the platform. This treaty aims to promote legal certainty, the development and strengthening of payments and securities settlement systems of systemic importance in Central America and the Dominican Republic, and stronger CB control over payment systems.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	Outward payments (PEX): The SINPE service was used to establish an interconnection with the payments system for Central America and the Dominican Republic (SIP) to offer customers the possibility of sending and receiving funds within the region.  In addition, the inclusion of regional partners is allowed, which enables them to access funds mobilization services for third parties using the same SINPE platform. Currently, Banco Internacional de Costa Rica (BICSA), located in Panama, already operates in SINPE as a regional partner and carries out immediate payment transactions with Panama.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The exchange market regulations are the responsibility of the BCCR. The SUGEF is responsible for supervising foreign exchange bureaus and financial intermediaries authorized to participate as foreign exchange brokers. Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.	There are controls only on the gold trade for national archeological treasures.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	The country has controls regarding the ownership of the so-called archaeological assets made of gold.

The National Archaeological Heritage Law No.6703, Article 1, establishes that furniture or real estate produced by indigenous cultures previous or contemporary to the establishment of the Hispanic culture in national territory, among which figures, coins, and gold tokens may be considered as national archaeological heritage.

According to Law 7 of 1938 and 6703 of 1982, the only possessor of archaeological objects is the State. However, individuals who already had this type of objects were given the possibility to become custodians, by registering in the Heritage Registry Archaeological of the National Museum.

Regarding the commercialization of gold within the country, Article 15 bis, of Law No. 7786, states that individuals or legal entities whose activity consists of being merchants of metals and precious stones must (1) register with the SUGEF, (2) be subject to supervision by the SUGEF regarding prevention of money laundering, terrorist financing and the financing of the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, and (3) be subject to the prudential regulations established by the National Financial System Supervision Council, as well as to the sanctioning regime established in Article 81 of the aforementioned law.

On external trade	Yes.	The Mining Code 6797 of October 4, 1982, and Executive Decree No. 29300-Minae of February 8, 2001, provide the procedures for the extraction and export of metals. This activity requires authorization from the Directorate of Geology and Mines, which issues the technical export note required for its commercialization abroad.

SINPE has controls on the movement of funds; both the origin and destination of the funds must be identified for each transaction in the system.

Likewise, a service was designed to strengthen the work of the Compliance Officers in accessing transactions processed in SINPE by the same customer, according to identification number.

In addition, there is a service called the Single Account Registry (Padrón Único de Cuentas, or PUC), which centralizes the information from all customer fund accounts opened with all financial institutions in the country. Compliance Officers, the General Superintendence of Financial Institutions, and the Costa Rican Drug Institute (ICD) have access to this registry for the prevention of money laundering and terrorist financing.

Approval required No.

Held abroad Yes. The management and transfer of funds from such accounts are subject to the law of the land and to the regulations of the entity in which they are opened. A service was designed in SINPE for requesting and moving funds to and from abroad through an automatic interface between SINPE and SWIFT.

Approval required No.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad Yes. Resident agents may freely hold accounts in colones in nonresident financial institutions.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency Yes. Domestically, financial institutions may convert collections or payments received. However, this is not a regulation imposed by the BCCR, and it is an added benefit. When payment is received from a source in a particular currency, it may be converted to an open currency of the recipient. If the institution does not offer this service, the transaction is returned to the originator.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Approval required Yes. A valid identity document is required. Foreign nonresident individuals located in the national territory may only use a valid passport and up-to-date authorization to be in the country. Foreign persons are not authorized to open any financial services or products unless they meet all the required immigration requirements authorizing their regular stay in the country. Financial institutions may limit the type or quantity of services they provide taking into account customer risk classifications.

Domestic currency accounts Yes.

Convertible into foreign currency Yes. Each financial institution is responsible for compliance with the Law on Narcotics, Psychotropic Substances, Unauthorized Drugs, Related Activities, Money Laundering, and the Financing of Terrorism (Law No. 8204 of the General Regulations Governing the Law on Drug Trafficking, Related Activities, Money Laundering, the Financing of Terrorism, and Organized Crime and SUGEF Agreement 12-10 Implementing Regulations for Law No. 8204).

Approval required No.

These permits are required for both the importation and transit of goods.
Negative list	Yes.	There is a list of prohibited imports (including, among other things, ozone-depleting substances, used tires, and weapons of war).
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	There are import quotas for dairy and poultry products (WTO); pork, refined sugar (Canada); chicken thighs, dairy products, potatoes, onions, hulled or unhulled rice (United States); pork, palm oil, tomato sauce (Panama); pork, black beans (China); beef (Peru); bacon and ham, cheese, powdered milk, prepared pork (EU); fish food (Colombia).
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	The Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock may impose nontariff measures of a phytosanitary nature, and the Ministry of Economy, Industry and Trade establishes technical regulations.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	There is no uniform rate; customs tariffs on most goods vary: up to 15% in the manufacturing sector and up to 151% for certain agricultural products. The following taxes are also levied on imports: (1) a VAT of between 1% and 13% was applied to a list of goods and services, from which certain essential items are exempt, and (2) selective consumption taxes at rates ranging from 0% to 95%.
		Trade defense measures: a 3.67% antidumping duty is applied to imports of refined sugar from Brazil. This measure will take effect until February 2022.
		Effective August 19, 2020, an additional tariff was implemented for a safeguard measure on imports of refined sugar (tariff paragraph 170199.00.00) of 27.68%. This measure will be in effect for 3 years.
		Effective December 24, 2020, the importation of 50,061 metric tons of rice in bulk with a 0% tariff is authorized because of a shortage. This authorization will be in force until December 31, 2021. Executive Decree No. 42765-MAG-MEIC-COMEX.

Taxes collected through the exchange system No.

State import monopoly Yes. Imports of fuel are handled by the Costa Rican Petroleum Refinery (RECOPE).

Repatriation requirements No.

Surrender requirements No. There is no surrender requirement. However, in Section V Temporary Instruments of the LOBCCR, Article 83 states that “when, in the opinion of the Board of Directors of the BCCR, there is a balance of payments disequilibrium which cannot be dealt with using the instruments specified in this Law, the Board of Directors may establish that any individual or legal entity that has obtained foreign exchange proceeds from exports of goods and services, must sell all or part of such foreign exchange to institutions authorized to operate on that market, within such periods of time as the Board may specify. This measure may not be established for a period of longer than 1 year.”

Surrender to the central bank No.

Surrender to authorized dealers No. Section V of the Organic Law of the Central Bank (Articles 77 through 84) addresses the use of temporary policy instruments and the conditions governing their use. In particular, Article 83 indicates that, in the event that the Board of Directors of the BCCR determines that there is an imbalance in the balance of payments that cannot be redressed using the instruments designated by law, it may, as a temporary measure, oblige any individual or legal entity to sell, in part or in full, the foreign currency it has obtained through exports of goods and services. This measure may be enforced for a maximum period of one year. Because the LOBCCR was enacted in 1995, the temporary instrument established under Article 83 has not been used by the BCCR.

Financing requirements No.

Documentation requirements Yes.

Letters of credit No.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

COSTA RICA

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Yes. Paragraphs (h), (i), and (j) of Article 49 of the Organic Law of the Central Bank state that debt instruments or securities, foreign currency deposits, and loans disbursed in foreign currency may be agreed to and must be paid in foreign currency, all corresponding to entities subject to oversight by SUGEF.

The Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 86, states that only the CB, institutions supervised by SUGEF, and other institutions authorized by the CB may deal in foreign exchange. The latter two categories must meet a series of requirements established in the article.

The Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 88, authorizes the CB to regulate the limits on own-account operations by supervised institutions, with respect to their transactions in foreign currencies.

The Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 90, authorizes the CB to regulate forward or futures transactions and other similar transactions in foreign currencies.

The ROCC regulates foreign exchange dealing by authorized institutions as provided under the Organic Law of the Central Bank.

The regulations governing operations in foreign exchange derivatives regulate operations in foreign exchange derivatives by institutions supervised by SUGEF, SUGEVAL, and Superintendency of Pensions (SUPEN).

The LOSBN, in Article 3(1), establishes collaboration in the execution of monetary, exchange, credit, and bank policy as a core banking function.

Article 75 of the LOSBN stipulates that “All operations carried out in foreign currency by commercial banks, as well assets and liabilities held abroad in foreign currency, are subject to the provisions of the LOBCCR and to the attendant resolutions and recommendations approved by the Board of Directors of the Central Bank.”

There is a limit on the direct and indirect lending operations that financial intermediaries may engage in with a given individual or legal entity, amounting to 20% of the subscribed and paid-in capital plus non-redeemable reserves, as provided for in Article 135 of the Organic Law of the Central Bank. This limit applies regardless of the currency of the operations.

Borrowing abroad

Yes. Commercial banks and financial institutions supervised by the SUGEF must inform the BCCR in advance when contracting credit abroad. Effective December 2, 2020, the requirement of BCCR approval for credit and saving unions was eliminated.

Maintenance of accounts abroad

No. Article 75 of the LOSBN stipulates that “All operations carried out in foreign currency by commercial banks, as well assets and liabilities held abroad in foreign currency, are subject to the provisions of the LOBCCR and to the attendant resolutions and recommendations approved by the Board of Directors of the Central Bank.” This Article allows the CB to establish controls on the maintenance of accounts abroad; however, in practice, this authority has never been exercised and commercial banks may maintain accounts abroad without any type of controls.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)

Yes. Article 74 of the LOSBN stipulates that “Commercial banks may carry out all operations in foreign currency that, in accordance with relevant bank practices and technical principles.” Law No. 8204 on Narcotics, Psychotropic Substances, Unauthorized Drugs, Related Activities, Money Laundering, and the Financing of Terrorism and SUGEF Agreement 12-10 “Implementing Regulations for Law 8204” state that financial entities must maintain detailed information on their customers (know-your-customer policy), including those to whom they have extended credit.

Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	In practice, there are no specific requirements for lending to nonresidents. Articles 74 and 75 of the LOSBN state that financial intermediaries may issue loans in foreign currency. Law No. 8204 on Narcotics, Psychotropic Substances, Unauthorized Drugs, Related Activities, Money Laundering, and the Financing of Terrorism and SUGEF Agreement 1210 “Implementing Regulations for Law No. 8204” state that financial entities must maintain detailed information on their customers (know-your-customer policy), including those to whom they have extended credit.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.	However, the Borrower Rating Regulation (SUGEF Agreement 105) requires financial entities that extend credit in foreign currency to borrowers who do not generate foreign exchange to perform an additional generic estimate. There are no specific requirements for entities’ credit operations with nonresidents. Chapter III of the Macprudential Policy Database document contains further details. In 1992, the Board of Directors of the CB stipulated the following during its sessions 4554 and 4555 in Gazette 48 of March 9, 1992: “State-owned banks may, on their own account and risk, receive current account, savings, and term deposits...denominated in foreign currency. All banks in the National Banking System, except those classified in category C and followed by the BCCR, and other financial entities regulated by the Office of the Auditor General of Financial Entities, which must be authorized in advance by the BCCR, may, also on their own account and risk, issue investment certificates denominated and payable in foreign currencies and may freely sell them in the national territory or abroad.”  The Office of the Auditor General of Financial Entities subsequently became the SUGEF.  Paragraph (i) of Article 49 of the LOBCCR establishes, from November 3, 1995, that “...the following may be agreed to in foreign currency and, in such cases, shall be paid in the said currency: (i) foreign currency deposits with entities subject to oversight by the General Superintendency of Financial Entities.”  Article 75 of the LOSBN states that: “Commercial banks may carry out all operations involving foreign exchange, which, in accordance with the applicable banking practices and technical principles, are usually carried out by such institutions, provided they were authorized in accordance with the Organic Law of the Central Bank to act as agents and for the account of the Central Bank in the corresponding operations and business activities.”

Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.	According to the laws on money laundering, terrorism financing, and organized crime, financial institutions may limit the type or amount of services they offer to nonresident foreign individuals, taking into account customer risk classifications. Pursuant to Article 16 of Law No. 8204, financial institutions must require the following: Maintenance of registered accounts – they may not maintain anonymous accounts, encrypted accounts, or accounts under fictitious or imprecise names. In the case of legal entities classified as risky according to the parameters established by the National Council of Supervision of the Financial System, financial institutions must require that the legal and nonlegal representatives of a company be notarized. This must be verified especially when commercial relationships are established, in particular the opening of new accounts, the issuance of deposit passbooks, the creation of trust transactions, the rental of safe deposit boxes, or the execution of transactions, including inward or outward transfers in domestic or foreign currency, in amounts equal to or greater than US$10,000 or its equivalent in other currencies. The purpose of these regulations is to prevent money laundering and the financing of terrorism, which is why they do not relate to exchange rate controls.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Paragraph (C) of Title III of the Monetary Policy Regulations established a minimum reserve requirement differentiated for deposits and liabilities according to currency. The minimum reserve requirement for deposits and liabilities denominated in domestic currency is 12%, while the minimum reserve for deposits and liabilities denominated in foreign currency is 15%. Minimum reserve requirements differentiated by nature of deposit-taking instruments are not considered. Reserve requirement rates in both national and foreign currency apply uniformly to deposit accounts regardless of whether their owners are residents or nonresidents. Financial intermediaries do not receive any remuneration for deposits in the CB in consideration of the minimum legal reserve.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	There is a limit to the active, direct and indirect operations that financial intermediaries can carry out with individuals or legal entities, of 20% of the subscribed and paid capital plus non-redeemable equity reserves. This is established by provision of the Organic Law of the Central Bank, Article 135; but this limit applies regardless of the currency of the operations, so it is not a differentiated treatment for banks abroad or with nonresidents.

Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The Foreign exchange position (FXP) as a proportion of core capital must be within the range of <math>\pm 100\%</math>. The average monthly ratio of the FXP to core capital expressed in dollars must be equal to the value defined by the institution as desirable, with no objection by the BCCR management. The tolerance range for compliance with the monthly average of this indicator is between <math>-3</math> pp and <math>+1</math> pp of the ratio. The daily change in the FXP ratio to core capital for foreign exchange operations may not exceed <math>\pm 3\%</math> of the value of core capital expressed in US dollars. The National Financial System Supervision Council, pursuant to Article 10 of the legal act adopted during session 1340-2017 of June 13, 2017, approved specific rules for financial intermediaries to improve their management of market, interest rate, and exchange rate risk in a manner that is consistent with their risk profile, systemic importance, and macroeconomic conditions. The agreement is based on the fact that a neutral FXP protects the financial intermediary's income statement from fluctuations in the exchange rate, but not necessarily its capital adequacy ratio; therefore, it was requested that: quantitative restrictions be determined for the FXP for "trading" and "nontrading" transactions. The formula for calculating the capital adequacy indicator was changed, in particular the capital requirement component associated with exchange risk, such that greater exposure to exchange risk results in higher capital requirements.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	There are no absolute limits on open positions in foreign exchange. However, changes in these positions are subject to the conditions indicated in Article 4 of the Regulations for Exchange Operations. There are limits on changes in the foreign currency positions of foreign exchange dealers; however, no distinction is made between resident and nonresident positions.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	There are no absolute limits on open positions in foreign exchange. However, there are limits on the FXP with respect to capital, average monthly capital levels, and daily changes in capital, subject to the provisions of Article 4 of the ROCC.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.	On February 7, 2014, amendments were made to Agreement SGV-A-61 requiring entities to communicate relevant information to the markets and to Agreement SGV-A-75 relating to periodic reporting of information.
Insurance companies	No.	Article 25 of the Regulations on the Solvency of Insurers and Reinsurers only sets forth general principles regarding investment policies. Specific provisions for the investments backing the technical reserves of insurance companies are set out in Article 23 of the Regulations on the Solvency of Insurers and Reinsurers. Although at least 40% of these securities must be instruments meeting the requirements of Article 27 of this chapter, for example, having at least one investment grade rating, investment in other types of instruments is not restricted. For derivative instruments (Articles 28 and 32 of the Regulations), entities can carry out only interest rate, price, and foreign exchange risk hedging operations.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.

Pension funds	Yes.	On November 2, 2018, the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets, a comprehensive overhaul of the Regulations Governing Investments by Authorized Entities, was published in the Official Gazette.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Authorized entities may invest in securities issued in the foreign market up to 25% of the asset administered by the fund, which proportion may be increased up to 50%, provided it can be demonstrated, in accordance with the provisions set forth in “Title II. Governance of Investments” of the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets, that the limit increase complies with Article 62 of the Law on Worker Protection.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Article 67 of General limits: Funds must comply with the following maximum limits: Securities issued by the same issuer or its subsidiaries and affiliates, up to 10%. Up to 10% for each external investment manager. Article 68 of the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets established limits by type of instrument. Funds must comply with the following maximum limits: (1) Debt securities. (a) Up to 5% in each of the following instruments: repos, securities lending, structured notes with protected capital, and level III standardized debt. (2) Securities representative of ownership: (a) Up to 25% in level I instruments. (b) Up to 10% in level II instruments. (c) Up to 5% in level III instruments. Article 17 of the Regulation Governing the Management of Assets defines the types of instruments by level: Level III standardized debt: the risk ratings corresponding to these instruments must be within the top two ratings of the scale below investment grade. Level I securities representative of ownership: Shares, ADRs, and units in funds or special-purpose vehicles (financial, debt, equity, mixed, or index funds as well as ETFs that replicate financial indexes. Funds that in their investment strategies use derivative instruments whose purpose is different from the efficient portfolio handling criterion, defined by the UCITS, are exempt). Level II securities representative of ownership: Units in funds or special-purpose vehicles that must meet all fund participation requirements established for Level I; however, these funds can venture into investment vehicles related to property management, real estate investment, real estate, and project development (past the feasibility stage). Level III securities representative of ownership: Units in funds or special-purpose vehicles that must meet all fund participation requirements established for Level I; however, these funds can venture into funds that invest in private equity. Article 69 of Limits by issuer: Funds must comply with a maximum investment limit of up to 10% from a single issuer of any type of securities, except the Ministry of Finance of Costa Rica, the BCCR, and issuers of international sovereign debt of countries with risk ratings within investment grade.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	The requirements are not differentiated by investment destinations. The Asset Management Regulations do not establish minimum limits. However, the Worker Protection Law (7983) in its Article 61 provides that “pension operators must invest, at least, 15% of the Compulsory Regime of Complementary Pensions (ROP) in securities with mortgage guarantee or product of mortgage securitization processes, as long as their yield generates, at the operators’ discretion, an adequate return according to the risk that these instruments present. Investment in securities issued by entities that are, at the time of making the investment, in a situation of financial irregularity, are prohibited in accordance with the provisions of the SUGEF.”
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Article 15 of the Regulation Governing the Management of assets established the following rules on permissible currencies: Securities and underlying assets in which funds invest can be denominated in any currency. The Management Body will be required to justify the use of the currencies, demonstrating that aspects such as liquidity and/or traded volume were analyzed and that hedging for exchange rate risk for these currencies is possible. The foregoing is established in “Title II. Governance of Investments.” The risks stemming from the above must be reported by the Management Body, in accordance with paragraph (f) of Article 5 of this Regulation.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	There are no specific limits, unless a limit is set in the investment fund’s prospectus.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	There are no upper limits on the investment portfolio held abroad, unless a limit is set in the investment fund’s prospectus.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	There are no lower limits on the investment portfolio held locally, unless a limit is set in the investment fund’s prospectus.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	The investment fund indicates the currency in which shares (assets) are subscribed in its prospectus.

Changes during 2020 and 2021

Exchange Arrangement

Foreign exchange market

Forward exchange market	12/16/2020	The Regulation on the Use of Derivatives in Foreign Currency and the Regulation on Operations with Foreign Exchange Derivatives were repealed at meeting 5973-2020 of the Central Bank of Costa Rica Board of Directors. Article 5 from this same session approved the Regulation on Derivatives in Foreign Currency.

Imports and Import Payments

Import taxes and/or tariffs	08/19/2020	An additional tariff was implemented for a safeguard measure on imports of refined sugar (tariff paragraph 170199.00.00) of 27.68%. This measure will be in effect for 3 years.
	12/24/2020	The importation of 50,061 metric tons of rice in bulk with a 0% tariff is authorized because of a shortage. This authorization will be in force until December 31, 2021.

The Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAEMU member countries and France was concluded December 4, 1973. It was maintained after the French franc was replaced by the euro by the EC decision of November 23, 1998. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common issuing institution, (2) fixed parity with the euro, and (3) a guarantee of unlimited convertibility.

Official exchange rate Yes. The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro at the fixed exchange rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The exchange rates between the CFA franc and other currencies are automatically inferred based on the rates between those currencies and the euro. The Conference of Heads of State and Government may vote to modify the monetary cooperation accord between the WAMU member countries and France. Legally, the permanence of monetary cooperation accords is guaranteed by the November 23, 1998, decision of the EC concerning exchange matters relating to the CFA franc and the Comorian franc (Decision No. 98/683/CE).

However, they can charge a commission of up to 2% of the transaction amount. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU applies.
Exchange tax	Yes.	The commission rate charged on transfers to all countries that are not members of the WAEMU area is 0.6%. This commission must be surrendered to the National Treasury and is a portion of its tax revenue.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The entities authorized to conduct nonelectronic foreign currency transactions are authorized intermediary banks and individuals or companies authorized to conduct nonelectronic transactions by decision of the minister of finance, with the consent of the BCEAO. Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect concerning the financial conditions for engaging in nonelectronic exchange operations with euro banknotes and issue a transaction receipt for any operation with a customer. In addition, to ensure that customers have satisfactory information, authorized intermediaries must (1) post at their windows, at all times, the rates effectively applied for the various currencies and (2) post a notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions based on the requestor's identity document.

As of December 31, 2020, there were 28 banks and 109 exchange bureaus in Côte d'Ivoire. Exchange bureaus are dealers authorized, on the approval of the Minister of Economy and Finance (MEF), to transact in foreign exchange with the public. Exchange bureaus may conduct transactions in foreign currencies (except euros) with the CB. Registered banknote exchange houses may not make transfers or payments in foreign currencies with other countries or maintain accounts abroad.

In their transactions with customers, these authorized intermediaries (licensed intermediary banks and licensed exchange dealers) freely set the buying and selling rates for foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed parity of CFAF 655.957 and may give rise to a commission of a maximum of 2.0%.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at the rates published on the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of 655.957 per euro. The nonelectronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals). However, no commission is charged for the following operations: (1) OTC foreign banknote exchanges conducted by state entities, government employees of WAEMU members on mission abroad, and officials of the CB and their beneficiaries and (2) payments made by banks and financial institutions.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are permitted. There is no foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU. As of December 31, 2020, 19 banks participated in the interbank market in domestic currency.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions on the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps. Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, or options to sell foreign currency purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.

Authorized intermediary banks are required to simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur with respect to derivative instruments traded with their customers.

The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or direct foreign investment in a resident company.

All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions (both current and capital transactions) outside the WAEMU.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions outside the WAEMU.
For capital transactions	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require MEF authorization.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following derivatives operations with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward foreign exchange contract and (2) foreign exchange swaps and options. Authorized transactions in foreign exchange derivatives can be carried out between two foreign currencies or between the CFA franc and a foreign currency with the exception of the euro or a currency whose issuing body has a transaction account with the French Treasury.
Credit operations	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone are not permitted to use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.

CÔTE D'IVOIRE

	Yes.	An operations account is maintained with the French Treasury that links operations account countries. All purchases or sales of foreign currencies or euros against CFA francs are ultimately settled through a debit or credit to the operations account.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	There is a multilateral netting agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS member countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone) as part of the WAMA. All payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be made under the netting agreement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO went into effect April 1, 2010, with the adoption of the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Côte d'Ivoire for the purposes of preparing the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and physical exportation of means of payment and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Côte d'Ivoire are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfers with other countries must be made through registered intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	Gold imports and exports from and to foreign countries require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (gold-lined or gold-plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA franc (XOF) banknotes may be exported freely by travelers from one WAEMU member country to another. Shipments of banknotes issued by the BCEAO between any WAEMU resident individual or legal entity other than the BCEAO and its banking or commercial correspondents located outside WAEMU member countries are prohibited.
Foreign currency	Yes.	The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; the reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They may carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler's checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler's checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.

On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone travelers may freely import domestic currency. However, resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from receiving banknotes in domestic currency.
Foreign currency	No.	Resident travelers may freely import CFA franc area banknotes or foreign-currency-denominated means of payment. Means of payment must be declared if the amount exceeds CFAF 5 million. Resident travelers are required to surrender foreign banknotes or other foreign-currency-denominated means of payment exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 500,000 to an authorized intermediary within eight days of their arrival in the national territory. Nonresident travelers may freely import CFA franc area banknotes or foreign-currency-denominated means of payment. Nonresident travelers must declare in writing all means of payment exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 5 million on arriving in and exiting the national territory.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.
Held abroad	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Individual who are residents of the WAEMU and temporarily staying or traveling outside of the WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts valid for up to one year. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad No.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Approval required Yes. Intermediaries authorized in the WAEMU are authorized to open accounts in euros for the benefit of nonresidents, subject to proof of their status and actual residence. Nonresident accounts denominated in foreign currency other than euros are subject to BCEAO authorization. Nonresident foreign currency accounts are valid for a renewable period of two years. In the event of a failure to obtain renewal (through a new BCEAO authorization for foreign exchange other than the euro), these accounts must be closed. The balances of these accounts may be freely transferred abroad after verification.

Domestic currency accounts Yes.

Convertible into foreign currency Yes. Authorized intermediaries may open nonresident accounts in CFA francs and in euros, under their own responsibility, depending on the status and actual residence of the applicant. These accounts may be debited for spot purchases of foreign exchange.

Approval required No.

Blocked accounts No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget No.

Financing requirements for imports Yes.

Minimum financing requirements No.

Advance payment requirements Yes. Advance payments for imports require authorization, and importers may not acquire foreign exchange until the date of payment specified in the contract.

Advance import deposits No.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports Yes. Importers may purchase foreign exchange for import payments after establishing bank payment order accounts and submitting supporting documents, but no earlier than eight days before shipment if a documentary credit is opened, or on the due date of payment if the products have already been imported.

Domiciliation requirements Yes. Import transactions from outside the CFA franc area exceeding CFAF 10 million must be effected through an authorized bank.

Preshipment inspection Yes. Inspection for quality and price is required for imports exceeding CFAF 3 million; imports valued at less than CFAF 3 million may be subject to random inspection.

CÔTE D'IVOIRE

Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	Exchange authorization, final original invoice, certificate of release for consumption, import declaration, bill of lading, and export-import card are required.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	Yes.	Imports are classified into three categories: (1) goods requiring authorization of ministries, (2) goods whose import is subject to quantitative or other restrictions and requires a license issued by the Foreign Trade Promotion Directorate, and (3) freely importable goods.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of certain goods, such as narcotics, are prohibited regardless of origin.
Open general licenses	No.	Import licenses for a short list of controlled products are issued by the Directorate of External Trade Promotions in the Ministry of Commerce.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Quantitative restrictions may be applied to products for public health and security reasons.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The WAEMU CET consists of four tariff rates (0%, 5%, 10%, and 20%). Imports are also subject to a statistical fee of 1%. A community solidarity levy of 0.8% is applied to the c.i.f. value of non-WAEMU imports. In addition, a 1% ECOWAS levy is applied to the c.i.f. value of non-ECOWAS imports. A cyclical import tax (taxe conjoncturelle à l'importation) and a regressive protection tax (taxe dégressive de protection) may be charged on some products during a given period. Only the former of these two taxes had been applied as at end-2018. Imports from countries that are not ECOWAS members are subject to a 0.5% community levy (CL/ECOWAS). A 0.2% levy is applied to the c.i.f. value of non-WAEMU imports and (with the same import tax base) was introduced to help finance the African Union's budget.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Resident economic operators are required to collect and repatriate within one month of the payment due date the entire amount of sales of goods abroad in the country of origin with the bank with which the transaction is domiciled. The payment due date is specified in the trade agreement and normally falls within a period of 120 days after the goods are dispatched.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	The domiciling bank is responsible for the repatriation via the accounts of foreign correspondents of the BCEAO of at least 80% of the export proceeds received. For purposes of coverage of its current foreign currency needs, the domiciling bank may hold up to 20% of its export proceeds as owned foreign exchange resources. However, it must ensure that the sum of the foreign exchange resources it has to cover its requirements does not exceed 5% of total customer demand deposits; otherwise, the surplus must be surrendered to the BCEAO.

		The authorized intermediary bank surrenders foreign currencies to the CB immediately.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Exporters must collect and surrender to an authorized intermediary bank total earnings from sales of goods abroad within 30 days following the payment due date as stipulated in the sales contract, which in principle should be within a maximum of 120 days after the shipment of goods. Authorized intermediaries must then surrender the foreign exchange to the BCEAO by transfer through the issuing bank. Sales of foreign exchange by exporters to ADs other than the domiciling bank are authorized, provided the domiciling bank provides the necessary supporting documents to verify domiciliation.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Export transactions require a customs declaration.
Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	Yes.	Export transactions of more than CFAF 10 million, except those between WAEMU countries, must be domiciled with an authorized intermediary bank.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.
Other	No.
Export licenses	Yes.
Without quotas	Yes.	Exports are permitted on the basis of a simple authorization from the Directorate of Foreign Trade, which issues certificates of origin, as needed. Exports of diamonds, gold, and precious metals, however, require MEF authorization, with the exception of articles with a small gold content, traveler's personal effects weighing less than 500 grams, and coins (fewer than 10 pieces, irrespective of their face value or denomination).
With quotas	Yes.	Exports of lumber are subject to quantitative quotas allocated through an auction.
Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	Exports of cocoa and coffee are subject to export tax and may be effected only by exporters authorized by the Authority for the Regulation of Coffee and Cocoa.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	Payments and transfers for current transactions with WAEMU and non-WAEMU countries may be made freely through authorized intermediaries. Transfers exceeding CFAF 500,000 are subject to documentary requirements. Payments and receipts of foreign ships on stopovers in WAEMU countries or by WAEMU ships abroad are considered current transactions.
Trade-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.

CÔTE D'IVOIRE

Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Payments abroad relating to freight and insurance (including transfers of insurance not related to commercial transactions), unloading and warehousing costs, administrative costs, commissions, and customs duties and fees are permitted in general, subject to the presentation of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	Payments for depreciation of direct investments require MEF authorization, because this type of depreciation is not specifically mentioned in the regulations.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Outward transfers of proceeds from the liquidation of investments may be made by authorized banks, subject to presentation of supporting documents. Similarly, interest and dividends, shares and profits of corporations or partnerships, mortgages or real estate interests, rents and leases, operating profits of companies, pensions and annuities from life insurance contracts as well as any other periodic remuneration of a corporation may be executed on a voluntary basis by approved intermediaries subject to the submission of supporting documentation.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling for tourism or business purposes to non-WAEMU countries may take out banknotes other than CFA franc notes up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person a trip; amounts in excess of this limit may be taken out in the form of traveler's checks, certified checks, or other means of payment.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Resident travelers must present a travel document and a valid passport or a national identity card to an authorized intermediary bank or exchange bureau before foreign exchange will be issued.
Personal payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.

Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	As a general rule, payments abroad in amounts greater than CFAF 500,000 are subject to the presentation of supporting documentation.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be repatriated. Residents of the WAEMU zone are required to surrender to an authorized intermediary all revenues and income in foreign currency collected abroad or received from a nonresident within one month after the payment due date.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	All proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be surrendered to an AD within one month of the due date. Resident travelers must surrender to an authorized intermediary, within eight days of their date of entry into the national territory any foreign banknotes and other means of payment denominated in foreign currency valued in excess of the equivalent of CFAF 500,000. The BCEAO may, in monitoring banks' external positions, request the surrender of foreign currency held abroad by ADs.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require MEF authorization, except in the case of (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans granted to finance industrial and commercial operations, (2) payments required on foreign exchange derivatives transactions or on raw material or commodity derivatives transactions, and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries, however, are generally permitted.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone's investments abroad must be repatriated within one month through a registered intermediary, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.

Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of WAEMU residents' investments abroad must be repatriated and surrendered within one month to an AD, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	RCPSFM (Regional Council on Public Savings and Financial Markets) authorization is required for the following operations: (1) issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. Soliciting the public of the WAEMU by nonresident entities is subject to authorization by the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority responsible for regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, these purchases are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MEF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MEF authorization. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these transactions result in foreign control over resident entities, the foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MEF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.

CÔTE D'IVOIRE

Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. There is no minimum holding period.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization to be submitted to the MEF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MEF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in a Côte d'Ivoire institution, the foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MEF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes. Issuance of securities to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone constituting a loan must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MEF for statistical purposes.
On money market instruments	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, a declaration for statistical purposes must be filed for such purchases.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance and sale of money market instruments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization by the RCPSFM, with the authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of money market instruments resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of money market instruments by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization to be submitted to the MEF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation (Article 7 of Regulation No. 09/10/CM/UEMOA).
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign money market instruments by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MEF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign money market instruments whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local money market instruments abroad. The sale of money market instruments to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue money market instruments abroad, unless they constitute a loan.

On collective investment securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization to be submitted to the MEF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MEF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these transactions result in foreign control over Ivoirian establishments, the foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MEF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, unless the securities constitute a loan.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge exchange risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial or financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services by a resident; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Residents of the WAEMU zone are not authorized to purchase raw materials or commodities on foreign markets for delivery within the framework of a derivatives transaction in raw materials or commodities. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, non-WAEMU resident) credit institution.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the MEF.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods. The date on which payment falls due is specified in the contract (in principle not later than 120 days after the date of shipment).
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These credits require MEF approval. Outward transfers necessary to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the MEF and substantiated by documentation. However, authorized intermediaries are permitted to grant the following credits to their foreign correspondents: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted and must be done through intermediaries in all cases where the money borrowed is made available to the borrower in the country. These loans must be declared to the Directorate of External Finance and to the BCEAO for statistical purposes. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. The repayment of any foreign loan must be reported for statistical purposes to the Directorate of External Finance and to the BCEAO and must be made through an approved intermediary.

Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The granting of guarantees and sureties requires the authorization of the minister of finance. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require the issuance of an exchange authorization, subject to MEF approval and the submission of supporting documents.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered to be direct investments and therefore require declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.	Investment implying control of a company or enterprise is considered to be direct investment. A simple investment is not considered a direct investment if it does not exceed 10% of the capital stock of a company. All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of residents of Côte d'Ivoire and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in Côte d'Ivoire, requires MEF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU member countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	FDI, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the MEF for statistical purposes. A share is not considered a direct investment unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MEF and the CB for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of liquidation proceeds is subject to MEF authorization. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted but must be reported to the MEF and the CB for statistical purposes.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These purchases require MEF authorization.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company are allowed. They require declaration to the MEF for statistical purposes.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.	Sales by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone to residents of the WAEMU zone require the submission of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary that handles the settlement and must be declared to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.	Personal capital transactions between residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through the BCEAO, the postal service, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless authorization is obtained from the MEF.

Loans	Yes.	The regulations governing securities and investments apply.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions require MEF authorization. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation without first being licensed and included on the list of approved financial institutions.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may be made freely, but are subject to declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes when disbursed and when repaid.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to MEF and BCEAO authorization. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant anti-money-laundering and terrorism financing provisions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	Immigrants with resident status must obtain MEF authorization to settle debts contracted abroad while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	These operations require authorization by the minister of finance if the value exceeds CFAF 500,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	Yes.	Foreign accounts (in foreign currencies or CFA francs) of nonresidents of the WAEMU zone who become residents of the WAEMU zone must be closed. However, they may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. New transfers to these accounts require MEF approval.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	No.	These transfers are conducted freely via an authorized intermediary subject to presentation of supporting documentation, as long as Anti-Money Laundering/Combating the Financing of Terrorism provisions are complied with.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect September 28, 2012. Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 sets the deadline (December 31, 2013) for including this law in the domestic legislation of the WAMU member countries. It was integrated into Côte d'Ivoire's domestic legal framework in March, 2014 (Law No. 2014-135 of March 24, 2014).
Borrowing abroad	No.	Loans from abroad are unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the minister responsible for finance and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions for their own account or the accounts of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements.

CÔTE D'IVOIRE

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Commercial lending is allowed. Financial loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to MEF authorization, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which are subject to special monitoring.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	There are no explicit regulations regarding these transactions, but MEF authorization is required with BCEAO approval.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These purchases require authorization by the MEF if their issuance has not been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.	The rate of reserve requirement on domestic currency accounts and foreign currency accounts is the same. A reserve requirement of 3% applies to WAEMU banks. Demand deposits, other deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the base for the calculation of the required reserves. The base for the calculation of the required reserves to be held with the CB includes customer foreign currency deposits.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	According to the prudential framework applicable to WAEMU banks and financial institutions that perform banking operations, the minimum standard liquid asset requirement is 75%.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Financial loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, advances to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization by the minister responsible for finance, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.	Banking regulations make no distinction among resident deposit accounts, nonresident deposit accounts, and foreign deposit accounts.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Overdrafts and advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone require MEF authorization and BCEAO approval.
Investment regulations	Yes.	The regulations governing direct investment apply.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may, depending on their volume, be subject to authorization by the minister of finance. The banking law stipulates that the investment by any person in a bank that would have the effect of changing the minority and/or majority voting rights requires authorization by the minister of finance.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts to assist in the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries:

		(1) demand deposits that do not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days and (2) demand deposits that do not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts to assist in the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that do not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days and (2) demand deposits that do not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts to assist in the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that do not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days and (2) demand deposits that do not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Controls are imposed by the CIMA Code of the CFA franc area members.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The CIMA Code allows insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest up to 50% of resources collected locally in other CIMA member countries.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	The CIMA Code allows insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest up to 50% of resources collected locally in other CIMA member countries.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	According to the CIMA Code, a minimum of 50% of resources collected in a CIMA member country by insurance companies must be invested locally.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	The CIMA Code specifies that liabilities in a given currency must be covered by assets denominated in the same currency.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, presentation, and floating of securities of any kind by foreign governments, local authorities, foreign companies, or international institutions are subject to authorization by CREPMF (Conseil Régional de l'Épargne Publique et des Marchés Financiers – Regional Council for Public Savings and Financial Markets).
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	With the exception of foreign securities issued or sold with CREPMF authorization in WAEMU member countries, all investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MEF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on	No.

assets/liabilities composition

Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, presentation, and floating of securities of any kind from foreign governments, local authorities, foreign companies, or international institutions are subject to CREPMF authorization.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	With the exception of foreign securities issued or sold in WAEMU member countries with CREPMF authorization, all investment abroad by WAEMU residents is subject to MEF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.

At end-2020, all 20 banks, one branch of a foreign bank, and 3 housing savings banks are licensed by the CNB to deal in foreign exchange with the public.

In addition to banks, as of June 30, 2021, 1,164 foreign exchange bureaus were licensed by the CNB to deal in foreign exchange.

Foreign exchange bureaus may be legal persons, sole traders, or craftspeople and may only buy foreign cash and checks denominated in foreign currency and sell foreign cash in exchange for kuna cash and may not engage in foreign exchange transactions with the CNB. They may buy and sell foreign cash only to natural persons – that is, they may not enter into foreign exchange transactions with legal persons, sole traders, or craftspeople. Foreign exchange bureaus must

Auction	Yes.	Effective July 13, 2020, the CNB can conduct ERM II interventions intra-marginal and at the margin to maintain the exchange rate within the standard fluctuation band of $\pm 15\%$ of the central rate of 1 euro = 7.53450 kuna. Previously, there was no predetermined target level or range or fluctuation band, and the CNB occasionally intervened at its discretion to ensure the stability of the kuna and to provide liquidity for payments domestically and abroad. Access to foreign exchange auctions is granted only to banks. Three auction models are in use: (1) a differentiated exchange rate model (multiple price auction) – the amount to be distributed is allocated to bidders from lowest to highest for purchases and from highest to lowest for sales; (2) a uniform exchange rate set by the CNB based on the bidders' rates; and (3) a fixed exchange rate set by the CNB in advance. The auction is announced to the banks by the Refinitiv, Bloomberg, and telephone. Banks are informed of the success or failure of their bids immediately and aggregate results are published on the CNB website the day of the auction. The minimum bid is €300,000/US\$300,000.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Capital transactions must be reported to the CNB for statistical purposes and are regulated by the Foreign Exchange Act and Capital Market Act (CMA). Under the Foreign Exchange Act, capital transactions are not restricted. Nevertheless, payments and collections in the Republic of Croatia in foreign exchange between residents and nonresidents are not allowed in the case of purchase and sale of real estate in the Republic of Croatia, stakes in companies headquartered in the Republic of Croatia, and securities listed or issued in the Republic of Croatia, irrespective of their denomination in kuna or in foreign exchange, except securities issued in the Republic of Croatia which are listed in another country. In other words, according to the Foreign Exchange Act and CMA, nonresidents are not allowed to pay directly in foreign exchange but are allowed to convert foreign exchange to kuna freely for purchases of real estate, company stakes, and securities. Following Croatia's entry into the EU in 2013, Articles 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, subparagraphs 2, 3, and 4, and 385 of the CMA, regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, and the provisions of Article 384, subparagraphs 1 and 4, and Articles 391, 392, 393, and 394 of the CMA were repealed. Provisions of the CMA that have been changed relate to regulated sales or issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales or issues abroad by residents for shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments. The CMA was amended in 2015 with the Act on Amendments to CMA (Official Gazette No. 18/15) with a view to harmonization with provisions of the Directive 2014/59/EU establishing a framework for the recovery and resolution of credit institutions and investment firms, Directive 2014/51/EU in respect of the powers of the European Supervisory Authority (European Insurance and Occupational Pensions Authority) and the European Supervisory Authority (European Securities and Markets Authority (ESMA)) and to facilitate implementation of the Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012 on OTC derivatives, central counterparties, and trade repositories concerning definition of legal basis for services that provides central counterparties, opening of an insolvency procedure of one or more clearing members and risk control mechanisms enabling measuring and management of exposure. The new CMA, which came into force July 27, 2018, has beside abovementioned regulations implemented Directive 2014/65/EU, Regulation (EU) No. 600/2014, and Regulation (EU) No. 596/2014.

Act on Amendments to the CMA in 2020 fully implemented Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 14, 2017, on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market, and repealing Directive 2003/71/EC. Given that from July 21, 2019, Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 is fully directly applicable in the territory of the Republic of Croatia, provisions transposing the provisions of Directive 2003/71/EC into the Croatian legal system had to be deleted, and replaced by the provisions of Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129. It was also necessary to prescribe the competencies of the Croatian Financial Services Supervisory Agency (hereinafter: Hanfa), and misdemeanor provisions related to violations of the provisions of Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129.

These regulations are also implemented in Capital Market Law No. 65/18. When it comes to prospectus obligation in cases of issuance and/or admission of securities to trading on a regulated market in the Republic of Croatia, major changes were represented by the Act on Amendments to the CMA in 2020 that fully implemented Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 14, 2017, on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market, and repealing Directive 2003/71/EC.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.	Pursuant to approval from the Croatian Financial Services Supervisory Agency (Hanfa), the Zagreb Stock Exchange is the market operator of the regulated market and multilateral trading facility. Trading of shares or other securities is prescribed by the CMA and rules of the stock exchange. The stock exchange manages the regulated market, which consists of the regular market, the official market, and the prime market, according to its rules. Securities may be admitted to the regular and official markets in accordance with the provisions of the CMA and Regulation (EU) No. 600/2014. Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2017/568 and the rules of the stock exchange concerning the number of shares available to the public or the number of shares available in the near future that the stock exchange considers sufficient. Securities may be admitted to the prime market, the highest segment of the regulated market, in accordance with the rules of the stock exchange. Admission to trading must be approved by the stock exchange. When it comes to prospectus obligation in cases of issuance and/or admission of securities to trading on a regulated market in the Republic of Croatia, major changes were represented by the Act on Amendments to the CMA in 2020 that fully implemented Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 14, 2017, on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market, and repealing Directive 2003/71/EC. of the stock exchange. Following Croatia's entry into the EU in 2013, Articles 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, subparagraphs 2, 3, and 4, and 385 of the CMA, regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, and the provisions of Article 384, subparagraphs 1 and 4, and Articles 391, 392, 393, and 394 of the CMA were repealed. Provisions of the CMA that have been changed relate to regulated sales or issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales or issues abroad by residents for shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments.

Effective February 22, 2020, Act on Amendments to the CMA raises the current threshold for the obligation to publish a prospectus for public offerings of securities from the existing EUR 5,000,000 to EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent, with the obligation to prepare an information document on the offer for all offers of securities between EUR 4,000,000 and EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent.

This change represents an administrative relief for issuers (the approval of the prospectus by Hanfa is now required only for offers of securities which exceed the total consideration of EUR 8,000,000 in kuna equivalent calculated over a period of 12 months) and makes it cheaper to issue securities, and at the same time, investors receive through the information document uniform and relevant information on the basis of which they can make an investment decision.

No.

Residents may freely purchase securities abroad.

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes.

If Croatia is the issuer's home country, Hanfa, at the issuer's request or at the request of the person drawing up the prospectus, must notify the relevant EU host member authority and provide (1) a certificate of approval, confirming that the prospectus conforms to the provisions of Directive 2003/71/EC; (2) a copy of the approved prospectus; and (3) a translation of the summary of the prospectus, if required by the CMA, produced by the issuer or the person responsible for drawing up the prospectus. Following Croatia's entry into the EU in 2013, Articles 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, subparagraphs 2, 3, and 4, and 385 of the CMA, regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, and the provisions of Article 384, subparagraphs 1 and 4, and Articles 391, 392, 393, and 394 of the CMA were repealed. CMA provisions that have been changed concern regulated sales and issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales and issues abroad by residents for shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments.

When it comes to "resident foreign issuance," the requirement for publication of prospectus depends on the EU member state in which issuer intends to offer securities: If it has a prospectus approved in the Republic of Croatia and wants to passport it out it can do so under Article 25 of the Prospectus Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129. If there is no prospectus previously approved in the Republic of Croatia and an issuer (Croatian resident) wants to offer securities in other Member State(s), outside Croatia, it can do so under the rules of Prospectus Regulation in relation to cross-border offerings and the national rules of that other Member State.

Bonds or other debt securities

Yes.

Bonds may be admitted to both segments (regular and official) of the regulated market in accordance with the provisions of the CMA, Regulation No. 600/2014, and the rules of the stock exchange. The following conditions apply to debt securities: Admission to particular segments of the regulated market for bonds is prescribed by the CMA. The form and content of debt securities submitted for admission to trading on the official market, which is a higher segment of the regulated market, must conform to the appropriate regulations, and the securities must be freely negotiable. However, a stock exchange may treat debt securities that are not fully paid up as freely negotiable as long as there are mechanisms to ensure that their negotiability is not restricted and the trading is transparent, thanks to publication of the appropriate data. If admission to trading on the official market is preceded by a public issue, the first admission to trading on the official market may be made only after the end of the period of subscription and payment in a public issue. This does not apply to continuous and repeated issues of debt securities whose closing date for subscription is not fixed. Application for official listing must be made equally for all debt securities. Admission to trading is approved by the stock exchange. When it comes to prospectus obligation in cases of issuance and/or admission of securities to trading on a regulated market in the Republic of Croatia, major changes were represented by the Act on Amendments to the CMA in 2020 that fully implemented Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 14, 2017, on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public or admitted to trading on a regulated market, and repealing Directive 2003/71/EC.

Marketing of UCITS established in another EU Member State within the territory of the Republic of Croatia:
Marketing of units of UCITS established in another Member State within the territory of the Republic of Croatia is regulated by Articles 137 to 143 of the Croatian Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering. Units of a UCITS established in another Member State may be marketed in the Republic of Croatia only by management companies from Croatia or another Member State which are authorized UCITS management companies pursuant to the regulation transposing the provisions of Directive 2009/65/EC into the legal system of the Member State. For the purpose of marketing units of a UCITS established in another Member State in the Republic of Croatia, a management company must ensure that facilities are available in the Republic of Croatia for: making payments to UCITS unit-holders, issuing and redeeming units of the UCITS, making available documents and information related to the UCITS and communicating all relevant documents and information to investors who have purchased units in the Republic in Croatia, and handling investor complaints in accordance with Article 63 of the Act. Management company must submit the notification letter with its annexes concerning the commencement of marketing in the Republic of Croatia to the competent authority of UCITS home Member State. The notification letter must be prepared in accordance with the standard model prescribed by Commission Regulation (EU) No. 584/2010 in the English language and sent to the designated e-mail address published on the website of the competent authority of the UCITS home Member State. Competent authority of the UCITS home Member State must forward notification letter and its annexes to Hanfa in accordance with the rules set out in the Commission Regulation (EU) No. 584/2010. Management company may commence marketing of units of UCITS established in another Member State on the territory of the Republic of Croatia as of the date when the competent authority of UCITS home Member State informs management company that the documents referred to above have been forwarded to Hanfa. Management company must notify Hanfa when it starts marketing activity in the Republic of Croatia without delay.

Similar rules apply for marketing of AIFs with some additional conditions for AIFs distributed to professional investors whereby national private placement regime is not established.

In addition, the harmonization of regulations (Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering and AIFs) with new EU framework, specifically Directive (EU) No. 2019/1160 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 20, 2019, amending Directives 2009/65/EC and 2011/61/EU with regard to cross-border distribution of collective investment undertakings, Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1156 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 20, 2019, on facilitating cross-border distribution of collective investment undertakings and amending Regulations (EU) No. 345/2013, (EU) No. 346/2013, and (EU) No. 1286/2014, as well as Guidelines under the Regulation on cross-border distribution of funds is ongoing.

Marketing of open-ended investment funds established in the third country within the territory of the Republic of Croatia:
Marketing of open-ended investment funds established in the third country is permitted in Republic of Croatia by the management company from the third country (through a branch), management company from the member state (through a branch), or by the management company from Republic of Croatia, under following conditions in addition to rules mention above: level of protection of the investors in the fund is at least the same as the one prescribed for UCITS funds and the assets of the fund are invested in accordance with the risk diversification principle; the company has acquired permission for establishing a branch from the CFSSA; the company has acquired permission for marketing of the fund from the CFSSA.

If Croatia is the issuer's home country, Hanfa must, at the issuer's request or at the request of the person drawing up the prospectus, notify the relevant authority of the host EU member country and provide (1) a certificate of approval of the prospectus, confirming that it conforms to the provisions of Directive 2003/71/EC; (2) a copy of the approved prospectus; and (3) a translation of the summary of the prospectus, if required by the CMA, produced by the issuer or the person responsible for drawing up the prospectus. Management companies may operate in the EU through branches or directly, in accordance with the regulations of the respective EU member. Designated authorities supervise business operations of management company branches in EU members and direct business of the management company in member countries. Management companies may also manage funds outside the EU through branches, which require approval from the supervisory authority. Following Croatia's entry into the EU in 2013, Articles 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, subparagraphs 2, 3, and 4, and 385 of the CMA, regarding cross-border transactions, went into effect, and the provisions of Article 384, subparagraphs 1 and 4, and Articles 391, 392, 393, and 394 of the CMA were repealed. Provisions of the CMA that have been changed relate to regulated sales or issues of securities locally by nonresidents and sales or issues abroad by residents for shares or other securities of a participating nature, bonds and other debt securities, money market instruments with maturity of more than 12 months, collective investment securities, and derivatives and other instruments.

If there is no prospectus previously approved in the Republic of Croatia and an issuer (Croatian resident) wants to offer securities in other Member State(s), outside Croatia, it can do so under the rules of Prospectus Regulation in relation to cross-border offerings and the national rules of that other Member State.

Marketing units of UCITS established in the Republic of Croatia within the territory of another Member State:

In general, and without a detailed presentation of all provisions that are timely compliant to the relevant EU legislation, UCITS established in Croatia may market their units in EEA member countries other than Croatia in accordance with the notification procedure (Regulation (EU) No. 584/2010) and Articles 150–154 of the Croatian Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering. The management company managing the UCITS submits the notification letter, relevant documents, and their translations to the Croatian Financial Services Supervisory Agency (Hanfa). Hanfa inspects the material and submits it to the competent authority of the other EEA member country stated in the notification letter in the manner as prescribed in Regulation (EU) No. 584/2010. Hanfa sends a notice immediately to the management company when the notification letter has been sent to the competent authority of the host country. The management company may begin marketing units of the UCITS in another EEA country as of the date when Hanfa notifies the management company that the documents referred to above have been forwarded to the competent authority of the host EEA country.

Similar rules apply for marketing of AIFs with some additional conditions for AIFs distributed to professional investors whereby national private placement regime is not established.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Effective March 27, 2020, deposits in domestic and foreign currency are subject to a reserve requirement of 9% (previously 12%). The calculation period follows the calendar month. The maintenance period covers the second Wednesday of the month to the day preceding the second Wednesday of the following month. Kuna and foreign exchange components are calculated separately. Seventy-five percent of the calculated foreign exchange component of reserve requirement is included in the calculated kuna component of reserve requirement and allocated in kunas. Banks must allocate 70% of a the kuna component of reserve requirement to accounts at the CNB, while for allocating the foreign exchange component that percentage is 0. At least 2% of the foreign exchange component of the reserve requirement is to be maintained by the average daily balance of funds in bank's own foreign exchange (euro) settlement accounts in Croatian component of TARGET2 (Payments module (PM) accounts). The remaining portion of the reserve requirement may be met with the average daily balances of liquid claims. The CNB does not remunerate reserve requirement funds.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	Seventeen percent of foreign exchange liabilities (minimum required amount of foreign currency claims) must be covered by short-term foreign exchange assets with maturity of less than three months. In

Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	No.
Abroad by banks	No.
In banks by nonresidents	No.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	Banks must report daily open positions in foreign exchange relative to the bank's regulatory capital. A prudential capital requirement of 8% of a bank's own funds is imposed by Article 351 of the CRR.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.	Along with the Insurance Act, the following laws apply to institutional investors: (1) the Act on Mandatory Pension Funds and Act on Voluntary Pension Funds and (2) the Act on Open-Ended Investment Funds with a Public Offering and AIFs Act and (3) the Act on Pension Insurance Companies.
Insurance companies	No.	In accordance with the Insurance Act, the insurance supervisor was granted powers over the following: approval of ancillary own funds, classification of own funds items, undertaking specific parameters, a full or partial internal model, ancillary own funds of an intermediate insurance holding company, a group internal model, the use of the duration-based equity risk sub-module, the use of the matching adjustment to the relevant risk-free interest rate term structure, the use of the volatility adjustment to the relevant risk-free interest rate term structure, the use of the transitional measure on the risk-free interest rates, and the use of the transitional measure on technical provisions, to determine the level and scope of group supervision, to identify the group supervisor, and to establish a college of supervisors. In accordance with the Insurance Act the insurance supervisor was granted powers over the following: to decide to deduct any participation, to determine the choice of method to calculate group solvency, to make the determination on equivalence, to permit insurance and reinsurance companies to be subject of determination of the solvency capital requirement of the subsidiary, and to make determination of the equivalence in a third country and the application of transitional measures.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	The Insurance Act, which came into force in 2016, transposed provisions of the solvency regime, including rules of capital requirement, technical provisions, quantitative and qualitative requirements, reporting and public disclosure, transparency and system of governance of Directive 2009/138/EC (Solvency II).

According to the Croatian Insurance Act, investment in particular categories of assets is not required and therefore provisions on limits are not required any longer. The assets held to cover the technical provisions related to those risks are not required to be localized within the Community or in any particular Member States. Insurance and reinsurance companies are obliged to all their assets in accordance with the Insurance Act, Commission Delegated Regulation (EU) No. 2015/35, and other regulations of the European Commission which determine qualitative requirements for identification, measurement, monitoring, and control and management of the investment risks, especially taking into account the prudent person principle. Insurance and reinsurance companies are obliged to invest only in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report, and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs. All assets, in particular those covering the Minimum Capital Requirement and the Solvency Capital Requirement, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole and maintain the localization of those assets such as to ensure their availability. Insurance company should invest in derivative instruments insofar as they contribute to a reduction of risks or facilitate efficient portfolio management. Investment and assets, which are not admitted to trading on a regulated financial market, should be kept to prudent levels. Assets should be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer or group of companies, or geographical area and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole. Investments in assets issued by the same issuer, or by issuers belonging to the same group, may not expose the insurance companies to excessive risk concentration. Assets held to cover the technical provisions should also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities. Those assets should be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries taking into account any disclosed policy objective. In the case of a conflict of interest, insurance companies, or the entity which manages their asset portfolio, should ensure that the investment is made in the best interest of policyholders and beneficiaries.

headquartered in Croatia or in an EU or OECD member (or up to 20% for the period no longer than 14 days); (10) up to 5% of assets may be invested in tradeable securities and money market instruments not listed on a regulated market.

Investment of assets stemming from either mandatory or voluntary pension schemes is further limited by Ordinance on permitted investments and investment limits relating to assets covering technical provisions of the pension insurance company, as follows:
 up to 10% of single issue of debt securities;
 up to 10% of single issue of money market instruments;
 up to 10% of single issue of equities;
 up to 20% of units or shares of a single investment fund (UCITS);
 up to 10% of units or shares of a single AIF; up to 30% of regulatory capital of a single bank;
 up to 5% of single issue of tradeable securities or money market instruments not listed on a regulated market (assets stemming from voluntary pension schemes only).

Moreover, investments of total assets (both stemming from mandatory and voluntary pension schemes) of a single Pension Insurance Company is limited as follows:

up to 15% of single issue of debt securities;
 up to 15% of single issue of money market instruments;
 up to 15% of single issue of equities;
 up to 25% of units or shares of a single investment fund (UCITS);
 up to 15% of units or shares of a single AIF;
 up to 30% of regulatory capital of a single bank.

Furthermore, for both the assets stemming from mandatory and voluntary pension schemes, investments in transferable securities, money market instruments and units or shares of investment funds are limited to 5% of total assets per single issuer or 10% of total assets per issuers that are in connection. Similar limits are set for other types of assets: (1) up to 5% of assets may be invested in a deposit in a single bank or 10% of assets in deposits in banks that are in connection; (2) up to 10% of assets may be invested in a single real estate or multiple real estates that are in connection; (3) up to 5% of assets may be invested in OTC securities or up to 10% of assets in OTC securities of multiple counterparties that are in connection.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally

Yes.

The Act on Mandatory Pension Funds specifies three categories of mandatory pension funds (A, B, and C) and establishes limits on investments for each category. Mandatory pension fund assets may be invested as follows: (1) At least 30% A, 50% B, and 70% C of the fund's NAV must be invested in debt securities and money market instruments issued by Croatia, other EU member state or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD members. (2) Up to 30% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund's NAV may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments guaranteed by Croatia or an EU or OECD member; the CNB or CBs of EU or OECD members; and public international entities with one or more EU or OECD members. (3) Up to 30% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund's NAV may be invested in debt securities traded on the regulated market issued by units of local and regional self-government of Croatia or another EU or OECD member. (4) Up to 50% A, 30% B, and 10% C of the fund's NAV may be invested in debt securities and money market instruments traded on the regulated market whose issuer is headquartered in Croatia or another EU or OECD member. money market instruments of a single issuer exceeds 5% of the fund's NAV, the sum of the value of these investments for all such issuers may not exceed 40% of the fund's NAV; (2) up to 20% of the fund's NAV may be deposited with a single credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country, whereby the money in the accounts is also taken into account; (3) exposures to the counterparty in transactions with OTC financial derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of fund's NAV if the counterparty is a credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country or (b) 5% of fund's NAV if the counterparty is other legal person (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (4) limits of 40% of the fund's NAV from paragraph (1) do not apply on (a) deposits and (b) transactions with OTC financial derivatives made with other counterparties (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (5) notwithstanding the individual limits laid down in Points (1) to (4), a UCITS may not combine, where this would lead to investment of more than 20% of its assets in a single body, any of the following: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body; (b) deposits made with that body; or (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (6) exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of the fund's NAV may be invested in securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members; (7) exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of the fund's NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions with a registered office in the Republic of Croatia or in another Member State, which are, pursuant to a separate law, subject to a special public oversight for the purpose of protection of investors in these bonds. Funds raised by the issue of such bonds must be invested, pursuant to the separate law, in assets which will, until the time of bonds' maturity, allow for settling of liabilities arising from the bonds and which will, in the case of the issuer's default, primarily be used for redeeming the principal and accrued interest attaching to these bonds. If more than 5% of the fund's NAV is invested in such bonds of any single issuer, total value of such investments, accounting for more than 5% of the fund's NAV, may not exceed 80% of the fund's NAV; (8) the transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Points (6) and (7) may not be taken into account for the purpose of applying the limit of 40% referred to in Point (1); (9) the limits provided for in Points (1) to (7) may not be combined, and therefore, when the UCITS fund's assets must invest in the assets specified in Points (1) to (7), a maximum of 35% of fund's NAV may be invested in: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body, (b) deposits made with that body, and (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (10) up to 20% of fund's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments the issuers of which are persons constituting related companies, in accordance with the provisions of the legislation governing the establishment and operation of companies, in accordance with the provisions regulations governing accounting of entrepreneurs and the application of financial reporting standards, and persons who are in a close connection. These persons are considered as one person in terms of calculating the limits from Points (5) and (9) of this paragraph. Article 255 (1) Without prejudice to the limits laid down in Article 254 (1) 1 and Article 258, up to 20% of fund's NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when, according to the fund rules or instruments of incorporation, the aim of the UCITS' investment policy is to replicate the composition of a certain stock or debt securities index which is recognized by Hanfa. Index replication means replication of the underlying assets of the index, and for this purpose the use of financial derivatives is allowed. The index referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are in line with the principles risk allocations referred to in paragraphs (1) and (3) of this Article; (b) the index represents an adequate benchmark for the market to which it refers; and (c) it is published in an appropriate manner, paragraph (3); exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of fund's NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when it is absolutely necessary for replication of the index and justified by exceptional market conditions, especially in regulated markets on for which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investment up to 35% of the NAV of the fund in shares or debt securities of one issuer only allowed for one issuer. Article 256 Exceptionally out of limitation laid down in Article 254, paragraph (1), Hanfa may approve an investment up to 100% of fund's NAV in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, under the following conditions: (a) the protection of investors in such UCITS fund is equal to that of investors in a UCITS fund whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1); (b) the fund's assets consists of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of fund's NAV; and (c) the fund prospectus and any promotional material must clearly have the statement from which it is that the UCITS fund has been approved in accordance with this Article, with clearly indicated Member States, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, in whose securities and money market instruments is intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 257 (1) A maximum of 20% of the UCITS fund's NAV may be invested in units or shares of any single UCITS, on the condition that no more than 30% of the fund's NAV is invested in funds other than open-ended investment funds with a public offering. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the UCITS fund is invested are not included in the calculations of the limit referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1). (3) UCITS may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of any single issuer, (b) 10% of non-voting shares of any single issuer, (c) 10% of debt securities issued by any single issuer, (d) 25% of units in individual investment fund, and (e) 10% of money market instruments of any single issuer. The limitations laid down in Points (c), (d), and (e) may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if it is not possible at that time to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) Limitations from paragraph (1) in this Article may not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, by other Member States, units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or by a public international body of which one or more Member States are members.

Restrictions on open-ended AIF with a public offering:

Article 12 (1) The investment of an open-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be deposited with the same credit, (3) the exposure of the AIF to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, by investing in the derivative a specific investment structure or strategy is achieved (for example of a fund with a capital protection), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the NAV of the AIF and all the risks that have resulted from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy are described, (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity, (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, the same may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures arising from transactions with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point 1 of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject to special law for the purpose of protecting investors in bonds. If more than 5% of the net value of the AIF's assets is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the net value of the AIF's assets may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF, (7) the investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and accordingly investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF, (8) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies, (9) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Article 10 (2) (9) of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs and units in collective investment undertakings, (10) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in commodities traded on commodity exchange, (11) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate, (12) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if the increase is the consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate, (13) total value of borrowed funds, investments in other financial and shares in collective investment undertakings may not exceed 20% of the NAV of the AIF. Article 13 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the aim of the AIF's investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) it is published in an adequate manner. (3) Up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the NAV of AIF in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 14 Up to 100% of the AIF's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit (regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided: (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 12 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong to whose securities and money market instruments is intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 15 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. Article 16 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 15% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Restrictions on the investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering:

Article 17 (1) The investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 15% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in deposits with the same credit institution, taking into account the cash on the accounts, (3) the AIF's exposure to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, investing in a derivative achieves a specific investment structure or strategy (such as a capital protection fund), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the net value of the AIF's assets and describe any risks arising from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy, (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity, (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, it may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures arising from a transaction with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point 1 of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject in accordance with a special public law to the supervision for the purpose of protecting investors in those bonds. If more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF, (7) the investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and, therefore, investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF, (8) A maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies, (9) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in the commodities traded on commodities markets, (10) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the

AIF may be invested in real estate, (11) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if increase is a consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate. (3) If the AIFM intends to invest more than 40% of the NAV of the AIF in unlisted transferable securities, the AIF name must include the words “closed-ended AIF with a public offering to invest in unlisted transferable securities.” Article 18 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the goal of the AIF’s investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. Replication of the index means the replication of the underlying assets of the index, and the use of financial derivatives is permitted for this purpose. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) index is published in an adequate manner. (3) By way of derogation from paragraph 1 of this Article, up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the net value of AIF assets in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 19 Up to 100% of the AIF’s net assets may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit (regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 17 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States whose securities and money market instruments are intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 20 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment fund referred, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the AIF has invested may not be included in the calculations of investment restrictions referred to in Article 12, paragraph 1. (3) A maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other collective investment undertakings. Article 21 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 25% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 25% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional (regional) self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Article 254 (1) An UCITS fund's assets are subject to the following limits:

(1) Up to 10% of fund's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments of a single issuer, on the condition that if the value of value of transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer exceeds 5% of the fund's NAV, the sum of the value of these investments for all such issuers may not exceed 40% of the fund's NAV; (2) up to 20% of the fund's NAV may be deposited with a single credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country, whereby the money in the accounts is also taken into account; (3) exposures to the counterparty in transactions with OTC financial derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of fund's NAV if the counterparty is a credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country or (b) 5% of fund's NAV if the counterparty is other legal person (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (4) limits of 40% of the fund's NAV from paragraph (1) do not apply on (a) deposits and (b) transactions with OTC financial derivatives made with other counterparties (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (5) notwithstanding the individual limits laid down in Points (1) to (4), a UCITS may not combine, where this would lead to investment of more than 20% of its assets in a single body, any of the following: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body; (b) deposits made with that body; or (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (6) exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of the fund's NAV may be invested in securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members; (7) exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of the fund's NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions with a registered office in the Republic of Croatia or in another Member State, which are, pursuant to a separate law, subject to a special public oversight for the purpose of protection of investors in these bonds. Funds raised by the issue of such bonds must be invested, pursuant to the separate law, in assets which will, until the time of bonds' maturity, allow for settling of liabilities arising from the bonds and which will, in the case of the issuer's default, primarily be used for redeeming the principal and accrued interest attaching to these bonds. If more than 5% of the fund's NAV is invested in such bonds of any single issuer, total value of such investments, accounting for more than 5% of the fund's NAV, may not exceed 80% of the fund's NAV; (8) the transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Points (6) and (7) may not be taken into account for the purpose of applying the limit of 40% referred to in Point (1); (9) the limits provided for in Points (1) to (7) may not be combined, and therefore, when the UCITS fund's assets must invest in the assets specified in Points (1) to (7), a maximum of 35% of fund's NAV may be invested in: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body, (b) deposits made with that body, and (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (10) up to 20% of fund's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments the issuers of which are persons constituting related companies, in accordance with the provisions of the legislation governing the establishment and operation of companies, in accordance with the provisions regulations governing accounting of entrepreneurs and the application of financial reporting standards, and persons who are in a close connection. These persons are considered as one person in terms of calculating the limits from Points (5) and (9) of this paragraph. Article 255 (1) Without prejudice to the limits laid down in Article 254 (1) 1 and Article 258, up to 20% of fund's NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when, according to the fund rules or instruments of incorporation, the aim of the UCITS' investment policy is to replicate the composition of a certain stock or debt securities index which is recognized by Hanfa. Index replication means replication of the underlying assets of the index, and for this purpose the use of financial derivatives is allowed. The index referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are in line with the principles risk allocations referred to in paragraphs (1) and (3) of this Article; (b) the index represents an adequate benchmark for the market to which it refers; and (c) it is published in an appropriate manner, paragraph (3); exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of fund's NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when it is absolutely necessary for replication of the index and justified by exceptional market conditions, especially in regulated markets on for which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investment up to 35% of the NAV of the fund in shares or debt securities of one issuer only allowed for one issuer. Article 256 Exceptionally out of limitation laid down in Article 254, paragraph (1), Hanfa may approve an investment up to 100% of fund's NAV in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, under the following conditions: (a) the protection of investors in such UCITS fund is equal to that of investors in a UCITS fund whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1); (b) the fund's assets consists of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of fund's NAV; and (c) the fund prospectus and any promotional material must clearly have the statement from which it is that the UCITS fund has been approved in accordance with this Article, with clearly indicated Member States, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, in whose securities and money market instruments are intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 257 (1) A maximum of 20% of the UCITS fund's NAV may be invested in units or shares of any single UCITS, on the condition that no more than 30% of the fund's NAV is invested in funds other than open-ended investment funds with a public offering. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the UCITS fund is invested are not included in the calculations of the limit referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1). (3) UCITS may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of any single issuer, (b) 10% of non-voting shares of any single issuer, (c) 10% of debt securities issued by any single issuer, (d) 25% of units in individual investment fund, and (e) 10% of money market instruments of any single issuer. The limitations laid down in Points (c), (d), and (e) may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if it is not possible at that time to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) Limitations from paragraph (1) in this Article may not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, by other Member States, units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or by a public international body of which one or more Member States are members.

Restrictions on open-ended AIF with a public offering:

Article 12 (1) The investment of an open-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be deposited with the same credit, (3) the exposure of the AIF to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, by investing in the derivative a specific investment structure or strategy is achieved (for example of a fund with a capital protection), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the NAV of the AIF and all the risks that have resulted from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy are described, (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity, (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, the same may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures arising from transactions with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point 1 of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point 1 of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject to special law for the purpose of protecting investors in bonds. If more than 5% of the net value of the AIF's assets is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the net value of the AIF's assets may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF, (7) the investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and accordingly investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF, (8) A maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies, (9) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Article 10 (2) (9) of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs and units in collective investment undertakings, (10) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in commodities traded on commodity exchange, (11) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate, (12) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if the increase is the consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate, (13) total value of borrowed funds, investments in other financial and shares in collective investment undertakings may not exceed 20% of the NAV of the AIF. Article 13 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the aim of the AIF's investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) it is published in an adequate manner. (3) Up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the NAV of AIF in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 14 Up to 100% of the AIF's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit (regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided: (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 12 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong to whose securities and money market instruments is intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 15 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. Article 16 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 15% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Restrictions on the investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering:

Article 17 (1) The investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 15% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in deposits with the same credit institution, taking into account the cash on the accounts, (3) the AIF's exposure to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, investing in a derivative achieves a specific investment structure or strategy (such as a capital protection fund), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the net value of the AIF's assets and describe any risks arising from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy, (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity, (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, it may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures arising from a transaction with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject in accordance to a special public law to the supervision for the purpose of protecting investors in those bonds. If more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF, (7) the investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and, therefore, investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF, (8) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies, (9) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in the commodities traded on commodities markets, (10) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate, (11) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if increase is a consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate. (3) If the AIFM intends to invest more than 40% of the NAV of the AIF in unlisted transferable securities, the AIF name must include the words “closed-ended AIF with a public offering to invest in unlisted transferable securities.” Article 18 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the goal of the AIF’s investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. Replication of the index means the replication of the underlying assets of the index, and the use of financial derivatives is permitted for this purpose. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) index is published in an adequate manner. (3) By way of derogation from paragraph 1 of this Article, up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the net value of AIF assets in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 19 Up to 100% of the AIF’s net assets may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit ( regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided: (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 17 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States whose securities and money market instruments are intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 20 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment fund referred, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the AIF has invested may not be included in the calculations of investment restrictions referred to in Article 12, paragraph 1. (3) A maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other collective investment undertakings. Article 21 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 25% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 25% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional (regional) self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally

Yes.

Article 254 (1) An UCITS fund's assets are subject to the following limits:

(1) Up to 10% of fund's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments of a single issuer, on the condition that if the value of value of transferable securities or money market instruments of a single issuer exceeds 5% of the fund's NAV, the sum of the value of these investments for all such issuers may not exceed 40% of the fund's NAV; (2) up to 20% of the fund's NAV may be deposited with a single credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country, whereby the money in the accounts is also taken into account; (3) exposures to the counterparty in transactions with OTC financial derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of fund's NAV if the counterparty is a credit institution headquartered in Croatia, another EU member or in a third country or (b) 5% of fund's NAV if the counterparty is other legal person (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (4) limits of 40% of the fund's NAV from paragraph (1) do not apply on (a) deposits and (b) transactions with OTC financial derivatives made with other counterparties (subject to prudential supervision and belongs to the categories prescribed by Hanfa); (5) notwithstanding the individual limits laid down in Points (1) to (4), a UCITS may not combine, where this would lead to investment of more than 20% of its assets in a single body, any of the following: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body; (b) deposits made with that body; or (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (6) exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of the fund's NAV may be invested in securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members; (7) exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of the fund's NAV may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions with a registered office in the Republic of Croatia or in another Member State, which are, pursuant to a separate law, subject to a special public oversight for the purpose of protection of investors in these bonds. Funds raised by the issue of such bonds must be invested, pursuant to the separate law, in assets which will, until the time of bonds' maturity, allow for settling of liabilities arising from the bonds and which will, in the case of the issuer's default, primarily be used for redeeming the principal and accrued interest attaching to these bonds. If more than 5% of the fund's NAV is invested in such bonds of any single issuer, total value of such investments, accounting for more than 5% of the fund's NAV, may not exceed 80% of the fund's NAV; (8) the transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Points (6) and (7) may not be taken into account for the purpose of applying the limit of 40% referred to in Point (1); (9) the limits provided for in Points (1) to (7) may not be combined, and therefore, when the UCITS fund's assets must invest in the assets specified in Points (1) to (7), a maximum of 35% of fund's NAV may be invested in: (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by that body, (b) deposits made with that body, and (c) exposures arising from OTC derivative transactions undertaken with that body; (10) up to 20% of fund's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments the issuers of which are persons constituting related companies, in accordance with the provisions of the legislation governing the establishment and operation of companies, in accordance with the provisions regulations governing accounting of entrepreneurs and the application of financial reporting standards, and persons who are in a close connection. These persons are considered as one person in terms of calculating the limits from Points (5) and (9) of this paragraph. Article 255 (1) Without prejudice to the limits laid down in Article 254 (1) 1. and Article 258, up to 20% of fund's NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when, according to the fund rules or instruments of incorporation, the aim of the UCITS' investment policy is to replicate the composition of a certain stock or debt securities index which is recognized by Hanfa. Index replication means replication of the underlying assets of the index, and for this purpose the use of financial derivatives is allowed. The index referred to in paragraph (1) of this Article must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are in line with the principles risk allocations referred to in paragraphs (1) and (3) of this Article; (b) the index represents an adequate benchmark for the market to which it refers; and (c) it is published in an appropriate manner, paragraph (3); exceptionally out of limitation laid down in paragraph (1) in this Article, up to 35% of fund's NAV may be invested in shares or debt securities issued by the same body when it is absolutely necessary for replication of the index and justified by exceptional market conditions, especially in regulated markets on for which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investment up to 35% of the NAV of the fund in shares or debt securities of one issuer only allowed for one issuer. Article 256 Exceptionally out of limitation laid down in Article 254, paragraph (1), Hanfa may approve an investment up to 100% of fund's NAV in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, under the following conditions: (a) the protection of investors in such UCITS fund is equal to that of investors in a UCITS fund whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1); (b) the fund's assets consists of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of fund's NAV; and (c) the fund prospectus and any promotional material must clearly have the statement from which it is that the UCITS fund has been approved in accordance with this Article, with clearly indicated Member States, or units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third-country, or public international bodies of which one or more Member States are members, in whose securities and money market instruments are intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 257 (1) A maximum of 20% of the UCITS fund's NAV may be invested in units or shares of any single UCITS, on the condition that no more than 30% of the fund's NAV is invested in funds other than open-ended investment funds with a public offering. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the UCITS fund are invested is not included in the calculations of the limit referred to in Article 254, paragraph (1). (3) UCITS may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of any single issuer, (b) 10% of non-voting shares of any single issuer, (c) 10% of debt securities issued by any single issuer, (d) 25% of units in individual investment fund, and (e) 10% of money market instruments of any single issuer. The limitations laid down in Points (c), (d), and (e) may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if it is not possible at that time to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) Limitations from paragraph (1) in this Article may not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, units of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, by other Member States, units of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or by a public international body of which one or more Member States are members.

Restrictions on open-ended AIF with a public offering:

Article 12 (1) The investment of an open-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be deposited with the same credit, (3) the exposure of the AIF to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, by investing in the derivative a specific investment structure or strategy is achieved (for example of a fund with a capital protection), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the NAV of the AIF and all the risks that have resulted from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy are described, (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity, (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, the same may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures

arising from transactions with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point 1 of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject to special law for the purpose of protecting investors in bonds. If more than 5% of the net value of the AIF's assets is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the net value of the AIF's assets may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF, (7) the investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and accordingly investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF, (8) A maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies, (9) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other transferable securities and money market instruments referred to in Article 10 (2) (9) of the Ordinance on Types of AIFs and units in collective investment undertakings, (10) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in commodities traded on commodity exchange, (11) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate, (12) A maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if the increase is the consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate, (13) total value of borrowed funds, investments in other financial and shares in collective investment undertakings may not exceed 20% of the NAV of the AIF. Article 13 (1)

Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the aim of the AIF's investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) it is published in an adequate manner. (3) Up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the NAV of AIF in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 14 Up to 100% of the AIF's NAV may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit ( regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided: (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 12 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong to whose securities and money market instruments is intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 15 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. Article 16 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 10% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 15% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Restrictions on the investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering:

Article 17 (1) The investment of a closed-ended AIF with a public offering is subject to the following restrictions: (1) a maximum of 15% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments of one issuer, (2) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in deposits with the same credit institution, taking into account the cash on the accounts, (3) the AIF's exposure to counterparty risk in transactions with OTC derivatives may not exceed: (a) 10% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is a credit institution, (b) 20% of the NAV of the AIF at the time of acquisition, if all of the following conditions are met: the other counterparty is a credit institution, it is the only OTC derivative in the AIF, the AIF may not lose more than the amount paid on the initial acquisition of the derivative, investing in a derivative achieves a specific investment structure or strategy (such as a capital protection fund), and the prospectus and/or rules of the AIF explicitly provide for the possibility of investing in OTC derivatives up to 20% of the net value of the AIF's assets and describe any risks arising from such investment and the specific investment structure or strategy, (c) 5% of the NAV of the AIF, if the other counterparty is another legal entity, (4) notwithstanding the individual restrictions prescribed in Items (1) to (3) of this paragraph, it may not be combined and a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the fund may be invested in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) a deposit with that person, or (c) exposures arising from a transaction with OTC derivatives concluded with that person, (5) by way of derogation from Point (1) of this paragraph, a maximum of 35% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities or money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a unit of local and regional self-government of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, (6) by way of derogation from Point 1 of this paragraph, a maximum of 25% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in covered bonds issued by credit institutions having their registered office in the Republic of Croatia or another Member State which are subject in accordance to a special public law to the supervision for the purpose of protecting investors in those bonds. If more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF is invested in such bonds of one issuer, the total value of such investments constituting more than 5% of the NAV of the AIF may not exceed 80% of the NAV of the AIF, (7) the investment restrictions referred to in Points (1) to (6) of this paragraph may not be combined and, therefore, investments in: (a) transferable securities or money market instruments issued by one and the same person, (b) deposits with that person, and (c) financial derivatives issued by that person and OTC derivatives concluded with that person, executed in accordance with Items (1) to (6) of this paragraph, may not exceed a total of 35% of the NAV of the AIF, (8) A maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in transferable securities and/or money market instruments issued by persons forming affiliated companies, (9) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in the commodities traded on commodities markets, (10) a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in real estate, (11) a maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in one property (land or building) at the time of acquisition, and the total exposure to that property may be increased to a maximum of 20% of the NAV of the AIF if increase is a consequence of rising investment values. Real estate that is adjacent to or located in the immediate vicinity of real estate from AIF assets is considered to be one real estate. (3) If the AIFM intends to invest more than 40% of the NAV of the AIF in unlisted transferable securities, the AIF name must include the words “closed-ended AIF with a public offering to invest in unlisted transferable securities.” Article 18 (1) Notwithstanding other restrictions, up to 20% of the NAV of AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer, if the goal of the AIF’s investment strategy is to replicate a particular stock index or bond index recognized by Hanfa. Replication of the index means the replication of the underlying assets of the index, and the use of financial derivatives is permitted for this purpose. (2) The index must meet the following conditions: (a) its composition is sufficiently diversified in such a way that the components of the index are harmonized with the principles of risk distribution, (b) it represents an adequate reference value of the market to which it refers, and (c) index is published in an adequate manner. (3) By way of derogation from paragraph 1 of this Article, up to 35% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in shares or debt securities of one issuer when strictly necessary for index replication and justified by exceptional market conditions, in particular regulated markets in which a particular transferable security or money market instrument is highly dominant. Investing up to 35% of the net value of AIF assets in shares or debt securities of one issuer is allowed for only one issuer. Article 19 Up to 100% of the AIF’s net assets may be invested in transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia or a local and regional unit ( regional) self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State or a unit of local and regional self-government of a Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States belong, provided: (a) the protection of investors in such AIF is equal to that of investors in AIF whose assets are invested in accordance with the restrictions referred to in Article 17 (1), (b) the assets of the AIF consist of at least six different securities or money market instruments, but the value of any single security or money market instrument does not exceed 30% of the net value of the assets of the AIF, and (c) the prospectus and promotional materials of the AIF clearly indicate the Member States, local and regional self-government units of the Member State, a third country or a public international body to which one or more Member States whose securities and money market instruments are intended to invest more than 35% of the NAV of the fund. Article 20 (1) A maximum of 30% of the NAV of an AIF may be invested in units or shares of a single investment fund referred, provided a maximum of 40% of the NAV AIF may be invested in investment funds. (2) The assets of the investment fund in which the AIF has invested may not be included in the calculations of investment restrictions referred to in Article 12, paragraph 1. (3) A maximum of 10% of the NAV of the AIF may be invested in other collective investment undertakings. Article 21 (1) AIF with a public offering may acquire a maximum of: (a) 25% of voting shares of one issuer, (b) 15% of non-voting shares of one issuer, (c) 25% of debt securities of one issuer, (d) 30% of the share of an individual investment fund, (e) 15% of money market instruments of one issuer, and (f) the restrictions referred to in Points (c), (d), and (e) of this paragraph may be disregarded at the time of acquisition if at that time it is not possible to calculate the total number or value of instruments in circulation. (2) The restrictions referred to in paragraph 1 of this Article do not apply to transferable securities and money market instruments issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Croatia, a unit of local and regional self-government of the Republic of Croatia, another Member State, a unit of local and regional (regional) self-government of a Member State, a third country or public international bodies to which one or more Member States belong.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition

Yes.

Investment of a fund's assets must take into account the liability maturity of the fund. If the sum of an investment firm's overall net foreign exchange position exceeds 2% of its total own funds, the investment firm must calculate an own funds requirement for foreign exchange risk according to Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 26, 2013, on Prudential Requirements for Credit Institutions and Investment Firms.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Nine local banks and three money transfer companies have been licensed by the Central Bank of Curaçao and Sint Maarten (CBCS) to deal in foreign exchange with the public. For transactions exceeding NA f. 25,000, the banks may determine the buying and selling rates themselves and for transactions up to NA f. 25,000, the official rates published by the CBCS have to be used. The banks can freely determine their foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

Spot exchange market Yes. Foreign exchange bureaus are permitted to operate in Curaçao and Sint Maarten, conditioned on the terms of the license. However, no foreign exchange bureau is active yet. Foreign exchange bureaus cannot make foreign exchange transactions directly with the CB; they are required to have a local or foreign bank account. Foreign bank accounts must be established in a jurisdiction with membership of the FATF or Caribbean FATF and sufficiently comply with their recommendations. The types of transactions they can affect are limited to currency exchange services. Foreign currency payments and transfers are done by banks and money transfer companies. Foreign exchange bureaus are not allowed to determine freely their bid-ask spread. In accordance with Article 9 sub 8 of the National Ordinance on the Central Bank, the CBCS fixes the exchange rates for foreign exchange transactions.

Operated by the central bank Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility Yes. The CBCS buys and sells US dollars and other officially published currencies from/to foreign exchange banks, the government, and other parties. Other parties are institutions with accounts at the CBCS (for example, the public pension fund and the Social Security Bank). The buying and selling rates of US dollars are NA f. 1.7895/1.7905 for foreign exchange banks, NA f. 1.78/1.8018 for the government, and NA f. 1.78/1.82 for other parties.

Changes during 2020 and 2021

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

Held domestically	03/20/2020	Because of the potential negative impact of the COVID-19 crisis on foreign exchange reserves, the Central Bank of Curaçao and Sint Maarten introduced a capital restriction implying that no foreign exchange license will be granted for outward transaction amounts of NA f. 150,000 or higher until further notice. Previously, there were no restrictions on these accounts.
Held abroad	03/20/2020	Because of the potential negative impact of the COVID-19 crisis on foreign exchange reserves, the CBCS introduced a capital restriction, implying that, until further notice, no foreign exchange license will be granted for outward transaction amounts of NA f. 150,000 or higher including for transfers to own foreign bank account by legal entities as well as transfers by individuals to their private foreign bank account. In addition, no foreign exchange license will be granted, until further notice, for exceeding the limit of NA f. 250,000 per year of the sum of the transfers by individuals to their private foreign bank account. Previously, a foreign exchange license for transfers abroad was required for mentioned transactions in amount exceeding NA f. 150,000 and NA f. 250,000, respectively.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2020.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.	In accordance with the relevant regulations of the EC and solely for the preservation of national or international security, Cyprus maintains restrictive measures (sanctions) related to Afghanistan, Belarus, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Burundi, Central African Republic, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Guinea (Conakry), Guinea-Bissau, Haiti, the Islamic Republic of Iran (as amended), Iraq, Democratic People's Republic of Korea (as amended), Lebanon, Libya, Mali, Myanmar, Russia, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan, Syria, groups associated with terrorism (foreign organizations associated with terrorism, including Al-Qaida and ISIL (Da'esh)), Tunisia, Ukraine, Venezuela, Yemen, Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro), and Zimbabwe. Effective March 16, 2021, Council Regulation (EU) No. 2021/445 of March 12, 2021, repealed Regulation (EU) No. 270/2011 concerning restrictive measures directed against certain persons, entities, and bodies in view of the situation in Egypt.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Restrictive measures against the proliferation and use of chemical weapons are in force, pursuant to Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1542. These measures are in line with UNSC Resolutions No. 1540 (2004), 2118 (2013), 2209 (2015), 2235 (2015), and 2325 (2016). The measures include freezing of financial assets and economic resources of persons, entities, or bodies that are listed in Annex I of Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1542 after having been identified by the Council of the EU as being responsible for, providing support for, or being otherwise involved in the manufacturing, acquiring, possessing, developing, transporting, stockpiling, transferring, using, or preparing for the use of chemical weapons. Nine natural persons and one legal person, entity, or body were listed in Annex I. Regulation (EU) No. 2019/796 is in force on EU sanctions to deter and respond to cyberattacks constituting an external threat to the EU or to EU countries, including cyberattacks against non-EU countries or international organizations where action is deemed necessary to achieve EU's common foreign and security policy objectives. Sanctions include freezing of financial assets and economic resources of persons, entities, or bodies that are responsible for cyberattacks or attempted cyberattacks, or provide support for such attacks, or are otherwise involved, as identified by the Council of the EU and listed in Annex I of Regulation (EU) No. 2019/796. Effective July 30, 2020, six natural persons and three legal persons, entities, or bodies were listed in Annex I.

Restrictions concerning the situation in Nicaragua are in force, pursuant to Council Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1716: freezing of financial assets and economic resources of persons, entities, or bodies listed in Annex I after having been identified by the Council of the EU as being responsible for serious human rights violations or repression of civil society or democratic opposition; or undermining democracy and the rule of law in Nicaragua. Effective May 4, 2020, six natural persons were listed in Annex I.

Restrictions concerning Turkey's unauthorized drilling activities in the Eastern Mediterranean are in force, pursuant to Council Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1890 in view of Turkey's unauthorized drilling activities: freezing of financial assets and economic resources of persons, entities, or bodies listed in Annex I after having been identified by the Council of the EU as being responsible for, involved in, or supporting drilling activities that have not been authorized by the Republic of Cyprus, within its territorial sea or in its exclusive economic zone or on its continental shelf. Effective February 27, 2020, two natural persons were listed in Annex I.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty of the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Union with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Union.” These include “sustainable development,” “balanced economic growth,” “full employment,” and “a high level of protection and improvement of the quality of the environment.” Effective July 7, 2021, price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term. (Previously, it was defined as inflation rate below, but close to, 2% over the medium term.)

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	A mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more was introduced by the EU Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005, for the purpose of preventing money laundering. Effective June 3, 2021, Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672 replaced Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005 and extended the definition of cash, so as to include gold and prepaid cards, in addition to banknotes, coins, and bearer-negotiable instruments (for example, traveler’s checks). Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 in cash are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be detained by administrative order. The EU regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders. Under national law, individuals traveling within the EU who enter or leave Cyprus must also declare banknotes and gold equal to or in excess of €10,000 or its equivalent. Failure to declare the banknotes and/or gold is punishable by a fine.

Free floating	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The exchange rate of koruna is solely determined by supply and demand in the interbank foreign exchange market, in which the Czech National Bank (CNB) might participate. Data on CNB's foreign exchange operations are published on the CNB's web page with a monthly frequency. However, the CNB is legally allowed to conduct foreign exchange interventions to influence the koruna exchange rate and moderate excessive exchange rate volatility in exceptional situations. Also, the CNB might in the future renew its program of sales of a part of the CNB's investment income on international reserves. Because the CNB has not intervened since April 2017, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as free floating.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The CNB declares foreign exchange market rates on the basis of its monitoring the movement of currencies in the interbank foreign exchange market. The CNB publishes daily rates for 33 currencies against the koruna for customs and accounting purposes. The published exchange rates correspond to rates for individual currencies on the foreign exchange market at 2:15 p.m. local time. Under the Act on Accounting and other legal norms, the exchange rates are used for nontrading purposes (that is, for valuing assets and liabilities, tax and customs proceedings, etc.).

	Yes.
Point target
Target with tolerance band	Yes.	The target is headline inflation of 2% with a tolerance band of $\pm 1$ percentage points.
Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.	The target for inflation is set as year-on-year (y-o-y) growth in consumer prices. Although the CNB strives to keep future inflation at the 2% target all the time, actual inflation deviates from this value because of unexpected shocks. Although monetary policy reacts to these shocks and aims to ensure that the point target is achieved in the future, it is unable to return inflation to 2% immediately. This uncertainty is illustrated by a tolerance band of one percentage point in either direction.
CPI	Yes.	The target is set for headline CPI. In practice, the CNB concentrates on the “monetary policy-relevant inflation,” which excludes from the headline inflation first-round effects of indirect tax changes.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	The monetary policy horizon is 12–18 months.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	There is no numerical interest rate target. Interest rates are used as the monetary policy instrument, and their changes correspond to the relevant macroeconomic forecasts and their risks. The main CNB instrument is the two-week repo rate. In some situations, the CNB may use other instruments at its disposal. For instance, it may conduct foreign exchange interventions to influence the koruna exchange rate and moderate excessive exchange rate volatility. The CNB was using foreign exchange interventions from November 2013 till April 2017 as part of its exchange rate commitment with the aim of providing the required monetary policy easing in a situation where monetary policy interest rates have reached “technical zero.”

Other	No.
Accountability	Yes.
Open letter	No.
Parliamentary hearings	Yes.	Parliamentary hearings are held at least twice a year.
Other	No.
Transparency	Yes.	The CNB promotes the importance of having a credible and transparent monetary policy to effectively anchor inflation expectations and thereby maintain price stability and overall macroeconomic stability in the Czech Republic.
Publication of votes	Yes.	Voting ratio is published at the press conference on the day of decision. Individual votes on interest rates are published in the minutes of the Board meeting eight days after the meeting.
Publication of minutes	Yes.	Attributed minutes with opinions of individual board members are published eight days after the meeting.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	Forecasts are conducted and published in detail four times a year, including endogenous interest rates and exchange rate outlooks.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks and bureaux de change set their own exchange rates.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	There are two types of nonbank foreign exchange institutions in the Czech Republic: (1) foreign exchange institutions authorized only for cash transactions (bureau-de-change activity—880 registration holders as of December 31, 2020) and (2) noncash foreign exchange institutions—128 as of December 31, 2020. Under the national legislation (Act No. 370/2017 Coll. on Payments) implementing the Payment Services Directive 2 (No. 2015/2366/EC, PSD 2), noncash spot currency exchange transactions are permitted only within the framework of payment transactions, and a payment institution license or a small payment institution license (as defined in Article 32 of the PSD 2) is required. Therefore, all noncash foreign exchange institutions must have a new payment institution license or a small payment institution license. There were 84 small payment institutions and 23 payment institutions as of December 31, 2020 (not all of them necessarily engaged in the spot exchange market, though). Under Directive No. 2009/110/EC on the taking up, pursuit, and prudential supervision of the business of electronic money institutions (EMD), electronic money institutions and small electronic money institutions may carry out this activity. There were 1 electronic money institution and 20 small electronic money institutions as of December 31, 2020. (Not all of them necessarily engaged in the spot exchange market, though.) The CNB issues these licenses. Foreign cash foreign exchange bureaux must be licensed. The licensing requirements for foreign entities are similar to those for Czech entities. Payment institutions in an EU member state may operate in the Czech Republic under the European passport regime under Article 28 of the PSD 2. Electronic money institutions can also operate in the Czech Republic under the European passport regime. The operation of cash foreign exchange bureaux is governed by Act No. 277/2013 Coll. on Foreign Exchange Activities. This law sets out the reporting requirements to the CNB, registration of business premises, and information for customers about exchange rates and fees and requirements. Cash foreign exchange bureaux may maintain accounts abroad and may purchase and sell only banknotes, coins, and checks. They may not make payments on behalf of their clients. Noncash foreign exchange operations are governed by the Payments Act implementing the PSD 2 and the EMD, EC delegated, and implementing regulations and decrees of the CNB. Foreign exchange services within the scope of Article 18(1)a of the PSD 2, which also apply to electronic money institutions under Article 3 of the EMD, may be provided in addition to the payment services listed in the annex to the PSD 2, including transfers on behalf of clients. Under Article 10 of the PSD 2 and Article 22 of the Payments Act, noncash foreign exchange institutions may have accounts in credit institutions in an EU member country or a third country with banking supervision similar to that of the CNB. The same rules apply to electronic money institutions under Article 80 of the Payments Act. All institutions must comply with measures for the prevention of money laundering and terrorism financing under the Anti-Money-Laundering Directive (No. 2015/849) and implementing Czech legislation (Act No. 253/2008 Coll.). Under Act No. 136/2011 Coll., on the circulation of banknotes and coins, as amended, employees handling foreign currency of cash and noncash foreign exchange

Interbank market	Yes.	All banks and other institutions with valid licenses may operate in the local interbank market, but not all are active market makers. For example, according to the results of the Bank for International Settlements Triennial Survey, in 2019 only three banks represented 75% of the total turnover of the local market. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads, which depend only on the current liquidity conditions in the market. There are no special commissions; only a brokerage fee is paid to brokers.
Over the counter	Yes.	The majority of foreign exchange transactions are made over the counter. Koruna futures contracts are traded on stock exchanges abroad, but these transactions are negligible.
Brokerage	Yes.	The majority of transactions take place via electronic or voice brokers, although bilateral direct trades are also conducted.
Market making	Yes.	Market makers provide prices continuously based on supply and demand without CNB or any other interference.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Currently, the CNB is not active on the local derivatives market but uses derivatives in other major currencies mainly for reserve management purposes.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Administration of control	Yes.	On October 18, 2016, the Foreign Exchange Act. No. 219/1995 Coll. was repealed by Act No. 323/2016 Coll. Act No. 323/2016 Coll. does not replace the Foreign Exchange Act as most foreign exchange activities have been already regulated by Foreign Exchange Activities Act No. 277/2013 Coll. and the remaining provisions by the Crisis Management Act No. 240/2000 Coll. The Czech government is authorized to apply restrictions during the state of emergency only. To resolve the state of crisis, the Czech government must discuss with the CNB measures that are within the scope of the activity of the above bank. Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	In accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 2018/1672 of the European Parliament and the Council of October 28, 2018, on controls of cash entering or leaving the EU, cash controls have been implemented by National Act No. 253/2008 Coll. on Selected Measures against Legitimization of Proceeds of Crime and Financing of Terrorism in the Czech Republic. Cash controls are based on a mandatory declaration system. Natural persons must declare to the customs authorities in writing imports and exports of currency of the Czech Republic or another country in the amount of €10,000 or more on entry into the Czech Republic from a non-EU third country and on exit to any such territory. The customs authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to the financial intelligence unit. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler does not make a declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the national law, the customs authorities have the right to check natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. Cash may be confiscated in the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation. The national law allows penalties up to CZK 10 million or a forfeiture of the items for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, the customs authorities may exchange information with the appropriate authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. Because the Czech Republic has no external borders with third countries, cash controls are applied only at international airports and in respect to the international post. The Czech Republic does not apply cash controls to cross-border movements of cash within the EU. Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation harmonizes the system only for

At the request of the CNB, legal entities with branches in the Czech Republic and natural persons with permanent residence in the Czech Republic must report accounts and balances on accounts or other forms of deposit abroad, including money entrusted for deposit. Foreign legal entities and natural persons may be asked to fulfill this requirement for their business in the Czech Republic. Prudential limits apply to pension companies (that administer third pillar transformed and participation funds) and other institutions. Controls apply to transformed fund deposits in nonresident institutions by the pension companies unless the nonresident institution is a bank with a registered office in the Czech Republic, a branch of a foreign bank in the Czech Republic, or a bank with a registered office in an OECD member. Pension companies may invest assets in pension/participation funds (third pillar) in deposits that are freely redeemable or time deposits whose maturity does not exceed two years of a bank headquartered in the Czech Republic, a foreign bank headquartered in another EU member, or a bank headquartered in another foreign country whose prudential rules the CNB considers equivalent to those of the EU. The Solvency II regulatory regime was introduced September 23, 2016, and second pillar pension funds were abolished January 1, 2016, and liquidated by December 31, 2017.

Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	No.	In the Czech Republic, investments of insurance and reinsurance companies are regulated by the Insurance Act (Act No. 277/2009 Coll.). The Solvency II Directive was transposed into the Insurance Act September 23, 2016. Since then, rules for investments of insurers and reinsurers have not changed. The rules are based on the prudent person principle. There are no legal quantitative limits; nevertheless, insurance and reinsurance companies must follow stipulated principles, for example: (1) Investments are only possible in assets whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control and report, and take them into account appropriately in the assessment of its overall needs. All assets must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole. (2) The assets intended to settle liabilities must be invested in a manner adequate to the nature and duration of insurance/reinsurance obligations and in the best interests of all policyholders and beneficiaries. (3) Investments must be diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive dependence on a particular asset, issuer, or group of persons or geographical area and to avoid excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole. Moreover, the relevant insurance/reinsurance company has to set the rules for its investments according to the above-mentioned principles.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	No legal quantitative limits on securities issued by nonresidents are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the description in XII.B.1.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	No legal quantitative limits on investment portfolio held abroad are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the description in XII.B.1.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	No legal quantitative limits on investment portfolio held locally are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the description in XII.B.1.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	In terms of currency matching, no legal quantitative rules on assets/liabilities composition are stipulated. Generally, the rules for investments are based on the prudent person principle. See the description in XII.B.1.
Pension funds	Yes.	In the Czech Republic, the pension companies and pension funds are regulated by the Supplementary Pension Savings Act No. 427/2011 Coll., also known as third pillars of the National Pension Scheme. Pension funds and pension companies are supervised by the CNB, and the law prescribes their prudential rules on eligible assets, including investment limits. These limits vary, depending on the kind of fund and its strategy. There is only a limited prescribed strategy for third pillar funds, except for the conservative plan, which must comply with the portfolio composition and investment limits. Transformed pension funds (third pillar): In 2013, pension funds

		were changed from self-management to transformed pension plans managed by pension companies, and clients' and shareholders' assets are now separate. There is now a guarantee of zero plus yields for which the pension company must hold sufficient funds (or decrease its own funds). General robust prudential rules apply to the management of pension funds. The law prescribes eligible assets and investment limits—for example, 10% in instruments issued by the same entity, except government bonds; 10% in real estate; and 50% in assets in the currency of liabilities to beneficiaries and use of derivatives only for hedging. Pension funds and pension companies are authorized and supervised by the CNB under Act No. 42/1994 Coll. on State-Contributory Supplementary Pension Insurance Act. Supplementary pension savings (third pillar): In 2013, the law adopted in 2011 established a new third pillar based on UCITS principles. Pension funds are managed by a pension company authorized and supervised by the CNB under UCITS-like prudential rules. Pension savings are in individual pension plans that allow investment in a broader array of participation funds (type of common fund). Employers are encouraged by tax law to contribute. Savings are supported by a direct government contribution. The conservative fund for the participation pension funds (third pillar) is the only mandatory fund. Similarly to the UCITS rules, the law prescribes eligible assets. The investments may consist only of transferable securities; risk management is required, and techniques and instruments for efficient portfolio management are allowed. The conservative plan (third pillar) may invest only in bonds, money market instruments, money market funds, and deposits. Investment limits are 30% for private bonds and money market instruments. Limits for a single issuer are 5%–100% for public bonds with a qualified rating. Other plans must invest in UCITS-like transferable securities. Limits for collective investment schemes are 5%–35%. IORP—second pillar: Domestic IORP are prohibited. EU-IORP are permitted if the contributing employer is in the Czech Republic.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	For transitional-transformed pension funds, bonds and other debt securities are not allowed unless they are issued by governments and CBs of OECD members; guaranteed by such governments; or issued by the EIB, EBRD, or IBRD (Article 33 of the Act on Pension Funds). For supplementary pension savings (third pillar), up to 100% may be in bonds and money market instruments issued by governments and CBs of OECD members with a qualified rating. Limits for other single issuers are 5%–20%. The limit for other financial instruments is 30% (conservative fund).
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	Safekeeping of assets is provided by depository banks located in the Czech Republic; deposits abroad are allowed only under an agreement with the depository bank.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	At least 50% of assets must be denominated in the currency of pension fund liabilities to beneficiaries for plans in the transitional-transformed pension fund. Only assets in the conservative fund for supplementary pension savings (third pillar) must be fully hedged against currency risk.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.	Act No. 240/2013 Coll. on Investment Companies and Investment Funds replaced Act No. 189/2004 Coll. on Collective Investments in 2013. The law prescribes prudential rules for management of collective investment in accordance with the UCITS directive. Conventional peg Yes. The exchange rate arrangement is a conventional peg. The formal framework for the Danish fixed exchange rate policy is the ERM II. Denmark participates in the ERM II with a central rate of DKr 746.038 per €100. The central rate is a conversion of the central rate vis-à-vis the deutsche mark before the third stage of the EMU and was last adjusted in January 1987. Denmark has entered into an agreement with the ECB and the euro area member countries on a narrower fluctuation band of  $\pm 2.25\%$ . In recent years, the Danmarks Nationalbank (DN) has consistently maintained a stable krone within less than 1% of the central rate. The DN's net purchase or sale of foreign currency during a month is published at 4:00 p.m. on the second working day of the following month in the Foreign Exchange and Liquidity press release. The agreement on Denmark's fixed exchange rate policy vis-à-vis the euro within a narrow fluctuation band of  $\pm 2.25\%$  around the central rate in ERM II was concluded at

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	Effective June 3, 2021, Regulation (EU) 2018/1672 replaced Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005, extending the definition of cash, so as to include gold and prepaid cards, in addition to banknotes, coins, and bearer-negotiable instruments (for example, traveler's checks), and making a distinction between accompanied and unaccompanied

cash. In accordance with Regulation (EU) No. 1672/2018, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for accompanied cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Natural persons entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the competent authorities of the member state through which they enter or leave the EU. Further to this, the Danish Customs Act, Section 10 c(1) applies to cross-border transportation from Denmark to another EU member state and from another EU member state to Denmark for accompanied cash with a value of €10,000 or more. For unaccompanied cash of a value of more than €10,000, the sender or the recipient of the cash may be required to make a disclosure declaration within a deadline of 30 days. The cash may be detained until the disclosure declaration has been made according to the EU regulation Article 4 and the Danish Customs Act, Section 10d(2). The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national financial intelligence unit. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the person makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to carry out controls on natural persons, their luggage, and their means of transport. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EU regulation requires member states to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member state may exchange information with authorities in other member states. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member state to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purpose of the regulation; the regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders.

Until June 30, 2021, public entities had accumulated DJF 2,197 billion in guaranteed debt service. These maturities are because of the African Development Bank, the Abu Dhabi Fund, China, the KFAED, the Islamic Development Bank, and OPEC.

Direct debt reached a total of DJF 1,593 billion, which will fall because of the African Development Bank, the Islamic Development Bank, OPEC, the EIB, IDA, and IFAD.

Status of direct external debt arrears:
The stock of the government's external debt arrears (not including Iran, Exim Bank India, the Saudi Fund for Development, and Exim Bank China) at June 30, 2021, amounted to DJF 394 million, comprised of unpaid maturities with the African Development Bank and the Islamic Development Bank.

DJIBOUTI

A debt rescheduling arrangement is still pending for payments in arrears with Iran amounting to DJF 837 million.

As regards the debt with bilateral creditors, including Exim Bank India, the FSD, and Exim Bank China, discussions are ongoing and no agreement has been signed to date for the implementation of the debt service suspension initiative.

Status of guaranteed external debt arrears:

The stock of external debt arrears guaranteed by the State as of June 30, 2021, amounted to DJF 4,282 billion.

The arrears of the PORT and Société Immobilière de Djibouti and the Port of Djibouti are, respectively, DJF 1,753 billion (41%) and DJF 1,218 billion (29%). The remaining stock of external debt arrears amounting to DJF 1,311 billion is held by Electricité de Djibouti (the electricity board of Djibouti) (17%), the Fonds de Développement Economique de Djibouti (a public financial institution) (13%) and Arulos (a housing fund) (1%) and ONEAD (the water board of Djibouti) (7.02%).

Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Most rates are ad valorem. Dominica applies the fourth phase of the CARICOM CET. The maximum tariffs on most CARICOM agricultural and nonagricultural products are 40% and 20%, respectively. Lower rates apply to machinery (0% to 15%) and some essential foodstuffs (0% to 15%), whereas higher rates apply to import-substituting domestic appliances (20%–35%) and motor vehicles (10%–40%). Specific taxes are applied to some goods. These include an excise tax levied on (1) motor vehicles, (2) alcohol, (3) petroleum products, and (4) tobacco and tobacco substitutes at the rates set out in the Excise Tax Regulations (SRO 5) of 2006. Certain imports are exempt. A VAT is levied, and legislation designates certain zero-rated items and exempt imports. Imports are subject to a 1.5% environmental surcharge in addition to the 3% customs service charge. An environmental surcharge of EC$3,000 is payable on vehicles more than five years old. Vehicles less than five years old are subject to a rate of 1.5%, but a concessionary rate of 1% is extended to returning residents.

Classification
No separate legal tender
Currency board
Conventional peg
Stabilized arrangement
Crawling peg
Crawl-like arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed float. The Central Bank of the Dominican Republic (CBDR) aims to increase gradually the flexibility of the exchange rate alongside the implementation of the inflation-targeting framework formally adopted in 2012. The CBDR does not pursue a particular fixed exchange rate level, but rather seeks to manage a pathway around its long-term equilibrium value, consistent with the fundamentals of the Dominican Republic economy and its inflation target. The CBDR intervenes in the foreign exchange market to avoid instances of excessive exchange rate volatility that might affect the inflation target given that the exchange rate pass-through remains high.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

The CBDR publishes data on foreign exchange sales and purchases in the foreign exchange market by different institutional actors (financial intermediaries and remittance/foreign exchange agents). The data are published on a gross (all transactions) basis and a net basis (excluding interbank operations). The CBDR does not disclose data on its volume of foreign exchange transactions with financial intermediaries. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a crawl-like arrangement.

Target measure	Yes.
CPI	Yes.	The target is set on the basis of the year-on-year (y-o-y) change in the CPI, and it is expressed in terms of the average annual rate of inflation.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	The horizon over which the inflation target must be met is two years (24 months).
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The CBDR holds a monthly Monetary Policy meeting to analyze internal and external risks in relation to meeting the inflation target. A Monetary Policy Communiqué is published after this meeting on the CBDR website containing the decision taken on the Policy Rate, a summary of the reasons behind it, and a reference interest rate for daily expansion and contraction operations. As of August 2021, the policy rate was 3.0%.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The target corridor band is set at $\pm 0.5\%$ for one-day standing expansion and contraction facilities.

Publication of minutes	No.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	The forecasts are published in the Monetary Policy Report, which is published on a half-yearly basis.
Other monetary framework
Exchange tax	No.	Monetary Board Resolution No. 17 of January 24, 1991, established the collection of a foreign exchange commission fee. Between 1991 and 2006, the level was adjusted on several occasions, before the collection was abolished as of July 1, 2006, pursuant to Revenue Budget and Public Expenditure Law No. 17-06.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Authorized foreign exchange intermediaries are free to set their exchange rates and foreign exchange commission in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The CBDR licenses financial institutions and exchange agents to operate in the foreign exchange market. As of August 18, 2021, the 81 authorized financial and foreign exchange entities comprise 17 full-service banks, 14 savings and loan banks, 10 savings and loan associations, and 40 foreign exchange agents and remittance/foreign exchange agents. The CBDR buys and sells foreign exchange through authorized foreign exchange intermediaries. Operating in the foreign exchange market is defined as "exchange intermediation”: This term comprises the act of buying and selling currencies regularly (currency notes and currencies of foreign countries, irrespective of their denominations or characteristics, and regardless of the means of payment used to make such purchases and sales), including but not limited to bills of exchange, checks, payment orders, promissory notes, bank drafts, and transfers.

Operated by the central bank	No.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	Settlements within the LAIA (ALADI) framework must be made in US dollars. Transactions are carried out through the Federal Reserve and are settled in US dollars. Other transactions between residents and nonresidents may be made in any currency. Sums owed will be paid in the agreed currency and, if no explicit agreement exists, in the domestic currency. The foreign exchange regime will be based on the free convertibility of the domestic currency with other currencies. Economic agents will be able to perform transactions in foreign currencies based on terms entered into freely in compliance with general contract regulations. Under no circumstances may the CB require certain foreign currency operations to be carried out exclusively with the CB or according to terms that do not guarantee the free determination of prices on the market.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.
For capital transactions	Yes.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.
Credit operations	Yes.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The second paragraph of Article 24 of the Monetary and Financial Law establishes that “cash debts must be paid in the currency agreed or, in the event there is no express agreement, in the domestic currency.”
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.	Agreements have been entered into with Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Mexico, Peru, Uruguay, and Venezuela.
Operative	Yes.	The agreements with Argentina, Brazil, and Peru are operative. In accordance with Article 18 of the ALADI Reciprocal Payments and Credit Agreement: “The rights and obligations that ensue from their participation in the ‘Agreement’ must remain in effect until they are fully extinguished.”
Inoperative	Yes.	There are inoperative agreements with Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Mexico, Uruguay, and Venezuela.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	The CBDR manages an interconnected payments system for Central America and the Dominican Republic and an electronic payments system for electronic funds transfers to bank customers in Costa Rica, the Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	Settlements with Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Mexico, Peru, Uruguay, and Venezuela may be made through two accounts established under reciprocal credit agreements within the ALADI framework. Imports (debits) and exports (credits) are recorded in these accounts, and all payments must be invoiced in US dollars. Funds transfers in the form of remittances, import payments, invoice payments, etc., are settled through the Federal Reserve.
Barter agreements and open accounts	Yes.	Settlements take place under reciprocal credit agreements with Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Mexico, Peru, Uruguay, and Venezuela. For interconnected payments system operations, participating CBs maintain accounts in the CBDR, with real-time gross settlement (RTGS) debits and credits via SWIFT messages. Deposits and withdrawals take place through a correspondent bank account. The Dominican Republic is a signatory to the PetroCaribe Agreement with Venezuela, which includes barter arrangements as part of the overall credit framework.
Administration of control	Yes.	Exchange rate policy is determined by the Monetary Board and administered by the CBDR. The Exchange Regulation of the Monetary and Financial Law, adopted February 5, 2004, applies as amended.

Positive list	Yes.	Imports of all animal and plant products are authorized, except for those indicated in the “list of unauthorized categories” (next section). It should be noted that imports of animal or plant products are conditional on the importer’s first obtaining a health and/or plant health import permit, as appropriate.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of articles or living beings that could pose an environmental risk, such as live animals; seeds; plants; fruits; plant and animal products that are unhealthy, decomposing, or infected with germs or parasites; and substances harmful or injurious to human, plant, or animal health are prohibited.  In addition, other prohibited products include: firearms, their parts and munitions; used domestic electrical appliances; pesticides and insecticides; cocoa plants, fruits, seeds, and any part thereof; musaceous plants (bananas) and any part thereof; used clothing; right-hand drive vehicles; damaged vehicles; light-weight vehicles that are over five years old, and heavy-weight vehicles that are over 15 years old.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Products included in the Technical Rectification to Schedule XXIII of Tariff Concessions of the Dominican Republic under the WTO rules are subject to tariff rate quotas (rice, garlic, refined sugar, brown sugar, chicken meat, onion, beans, milk, and corn). No imports of agricultural products are subject to quantitative restrictions (for example, quotas); tariff quotas are applied only to a specific list of products, within the framework of the WTO or trade agreements. Under the WTO, the Dominican Republic applies tariff quotas to imports of chicken, corn, beans, onions, powdered milk, rice, and sugar. Under the Central American-Dominican Republic Free Trade Agreement (CAFTA-DR) tariff quotas are applied to imports from the US for the following products: beef, cuts of pork, lard, chicken thighs, turkey meat, powdered milk, mozzarella cheese, cheddar cheese, ice cream, yogurt, husked rice, semi-whitened or whitened rice, beans, and glucose. Quotas are applied to Nicaragua for the following products: chicken breasts, onions and shallots, beans. Quotas are applied to Costa Rica for chicken breasts and powdered milk. Under the Caribbean Forum-EU Economic Partnership Agreement (EPA), the Dominican Republic applies a tariff quota to powdered milk originating from the EU. The import of radio transmitters/receivers and radio communications, radio broadcasting or television equipment or appliances listed under section 85.25 and section 85.26 are subject to the approval and issue of a trade license (Oficio de Autorización) by INDOTEL.
Other nontariff measures	No.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	In the Dominican Republic, there are five tariff rates: 0%, 3%, 8%, 14%, and 20%, which apply to the temporary duty- and tax-free import system for certain goods reexported within 18 months of being processed, prepared, or repaired. A zero rate applies to imports of raw materials, machinery, and equipment to be used in the textile, agriculture, and tourism (within poles under development) sectors. The Customs Duty of the Dominican Republic, Law No. 146-00 and amendments proclaimed on May 4, 2007, provide for a 100% exemption from import duties for inputs, fertilizers, equipment, and machinery to be used in the agricultural industry, as well as a 100% exemption from payment of the Tax on the Transfer of Industrialized Goods and Services (Impuesto sobre Transferencia de Bienes Industrializados y Servicios – ITBIS). In addition, Law No. 158-01 as amended promotes the execution of new projects intended to develop the country’s tourist destinations (polos turísticos). The FTA between the Dominican Republic, Central America, and the USA (CAFTA-DR) allows duty-free entry for goods from the USA in respect of 97.1% of customs duty; only 2.9% of the customs duty, limited to agricultural products characterized by high production sensitivity, will be subject to tariff relief phased in over the next nine years. Under the Caribbean Forum-EU EPA, there are 19 tariff rates: 0%, 2%, 3%, 4%, 5%, 6%, 7%, 8%, 9%, 10%, 11%, 12%, 14%, 15%, 17%, 18%, 20%, 36%, and 37%. The Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market is currently preparing the Regulation on Public Offering Trusts and Securitization Companies and the Securitization Process, as required by Law No. 249-17 (Transitional Provision Three of the Law on the Securities Market).

Law No. 163-21 on Promotion of the Placement and Trading of Publicly Offered Securities in the Dominican Republic Securities Market was approved in 2021; it is aimed at promoting the placement and trading of publicly offered securities in the Dominican Republic securities market. The Law states that the promotion and development of the public offering of securities as a financing mechanism for investment projects, enterprises, and commercial companies to contribute to the stimulation of various sectors of the national economy is of national interest. The Law deals with tax measures aimed at promoting the development of listed companies in the Dominican Republic by establishing a capital gains tax exemption for listed companies for a period of three years from the enactment of the Law. Likewise, it lowers the capital gains tax rate for the seller of shares of a listed company, which must be reported in the annual tax return. It should be mentioned that this tax rate is valid for a period of three years from the enactment of the Law. In addition, it grants a special liability regime to the purchasers of shares listed in the Stock Market Registry, which are subscribed or traded in the stock market and which are part of a public offering, so that they are not considered to have joint and several liability for the tax obligations of the seller or of the issuing listed company. This special liability regime is not applicable to those shareholders who, directly or indirectly, participate in the management of the company in which investments are made or exercise, directly or indirectly, control over the administration and management of the company in the manner provided by Law No. 249-17 of December 19, 2017, on the Securities Market of the Dominican Republic and its implementing regulations. On the other hand, it grants the National Securities Market Council powers to offer temporary differentiated regulatory treatment for compliance with corporate governance provisions, for a period of three years from the enactment of the Law. For investment funds, Law No. 163-21 grants an extension of an additional three years to the time period established in Law No. 249-17, that is, six years for the real estate transfer tax.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature Yes.

Traded in our securities market are fixed income securities of corporate issuers, and both fixed income and variable income securities (of a participating nature) issued against autonomous assets, that is, investment funds and publicly offered trusts, and separate securitization assets.

Purchase locally by nonresidents No.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes.

Public offerings by foreign issuers are governed by the Law on the Securities Market and effective March 1, 2020, the Regulation on Public Offerings, which was published on October 29, 2019. Likewise, pursuant to Law No. 163-21, in addition to the requirements applicable to domestic issuers, there is a requirement that documents be translated into Spanish and be duly authenticated by the competent authorities in the home country and by consular officials of the Dominican Republic in that country. As well, they must comply with the provisions of Article 8 of the General Law on Commercial Companies No. 479-08, as amended, requiring them to register their domicile in the entry that they make in the Commercial Registry of the jurisdiction of that domicile.

Under paragraph III of Article 30 of the Regulation on Public Offerings, if the issuer is not domiciled in the Dominican Republic, local representation will be required for receiving communications and for dialogue with the Office of the Superintendent regarding any matters affecting its supervision as the issuer of a public offering, particularly any requirement that the Office of the Superintendent or the representative of the body of bondholders may establish for fixed income.

It should be clarified that the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market regulates activities, operations, and transactions on the securities market of the Dominican Republic, including publicly offered securities that are offered or traded in the national territory. Only publicly offered securities that are promoted by a securities intermediary registered in the Registry and that meet the requirements established in the regulations and in the internal bylaws of the securities markets and the centralized securities depository may be listed in the foreign securities trading system. Foreign securities issued by issuers entitled to differential treatment may be registered and promoted by their issuer or by a securities intermediary. The regulations will establish the details for the registration and trading of foreign securities publicly offered within the country, for which the approval of the Monetary Board is required.

No.

The Regulation for Securities Intermediaries creates the position of “intermediary/introducer,” defined as follows: “the securities intermediary making a referral and providing assistance to a client in order for the latter to establish a contractual relationship with another domestic or foreign securities intermediary and to assist with opening and maintaining securities brokerage accounts on the client’s behalf.”

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes.

Residents who are participants in the securities market for the issue of publicly offered securities abroad must report, as market sensitive information, the authorization to carry out the public offering, pursuant to Article 12 regarding the classification of market sensitive information established in Resolution R-CNV-2015-33-MV. Under the latter resolution, securities issuers and participants subject to this regulation are required to inform the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market of authorizations for a public offering of securities on the domestic market or abroad.

Notification of the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market regarding the aforementioned market sensitive information is not required for residents who are not participants in the securities market.

Residents who are not participants in the securities market are defined as legal persons not registered in the Securities Market Registry and therefore not subject to supervision by the Office of the Superintendent.

Bonds or other debt securities

Yes.

The issuance of publicly offered securities in the Dominican Republic requires the prior authorization of the Office of the Superintendent of the Securities Market. Certain issuers, such as the CB, the government, and multilateral agencies, and the securities they issue, are governed by their own laws and are exempt from the authorization of the Office of the Superintendent for public offerings. They must submit the legal basis for each issuance and the description of the essential characteristics of the securities for purpose of entry in the Registry. The issuance of publicly offered securities in the Dominican territory is applicable to both residents and nonresidents. Participants in the securities market that issue abroad must comply with the provisions of Article 12 of the Regulation on Market Sensitive Information. If they are not

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Intermediary financial institutions are not allowed to (1) obtain short-term foreign funds in an amount greater than 30% of their paid-up capital, (2) invest more than 20% of their paid-up capital in foreign financial institutions, and (3) open current accounts in foreign currency for their clients. Full-service banks (bancos multiples) may grant loans in US dollars for up to 100% of their available resources obtained in foreign currency and held in the form of savings or time deposits. Eighty-five percent of these loans must be directed to individuals or legal entities that generate foreign exchange. The foreign-currency financing limit does not apply to financial resources in US dollars to be used for the importation, distribution, and promotion of the use of natural gas as an alternative fossil fuel for the power generation sector and public transportation. The CBDR is authorized to phase out the amount of resources full-service banks are required to hold with the CBDR to meet the investment ratio, provided this authorization is stipulated under the legal reserve requirement policy set forth by the Monetary Board.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Financial intermediaries are not allowed to (1) obtain short-term foreign funds in an amount greater than 30% of their paid-up capital, (2) invest more than 20% of their paid-up capital in foreign financial institutions, and (3) open current accounts in foreign currency for their clients. Full-service banks may obtain financing abroad on a short-term basis, subject to a limit of 30% of their paid-up capital and reserves.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	The regulations do not discriminate in this regard. Full-service banks and credit institutions may extend direct or indirect loans and guarantees or securities to a single resident or nonresident individual, legal entity, or risk group for up to 10% of their paid-up capital and reserves, or up to 20% if such operations are secured with first-ranking mortgages or real guarantees.

		distribution, and promotion of the use of natural gas as an alternative fossil fuel for the power generation sector and public transportation.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Full-service banks, savings and loan banks, and savings and loan associations may acquire, assign, or transfer bills of exchange, securities, and other instruments representing obligations, as well as enter into repurchase agreements with them.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.	Foreign-currency-denominated current accounts are not allowed. The opening of current accounts in a foreign currency is not included in the list of operations or services that can be carried out or provided by financial intermediaries pursuant to the Monetary and Financial Law No. 183-02, Articles 40, 41, 42, 43, and 75.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Foreign currency reserve requirements, applicable to full-service banks and for the purpose of monitoring liquidity and imposing penalties, are calculated daily and weekly, respectively, at a ratio of 20% on liabilities subject to reserve requirements. Domestic currency reserve requirements of full-service banks are calculated daily, for the purposes of liquidity monitoring and penalty imposition.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	Requirements to maintain liquid assets to mitigate liquidity risk apply equally to all currencies. Nevertheless, these requirements do differ based on reserves, which are determined by reserve requirements. Given that reserve requirements differ based on currency, this differentiation indirectly affects liquid asset requirements. Intermediary financial institutions must have liquid assets equal to or greater than 80% of their short-term liabilities at terms of up to 30 days and equal to or greater than 70% of their short-term liabilities at terms of up to 90 days.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Full-service banks and credit institutions may extend direct or indirect loans and guarantees or endorsements to a resident or nonresident individual, legal entity, or risk group for up to 10% of their paid-up capital and reserves, and up to 20% of capital and reserves if such operations are secured with first-ranking mortgages or real guarantees. Restrictions apply to the extension of direct or indirect loans to related persons or institutions in excess of certain percentages of paid-up capital.

Failure to comply with this provision will be punishable as a serious infraction in accordance with said Code.

Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.

The economy of Ecuador is dollarized, and therefore, there are no foreign exchange markets other than the dollar, except on a marginal basis. Accordingly, the CBE does not engage in any operations or practices with currencies other than the US dollar with the national financial system.

The functions of the CBE include the administration of resources abroad, for which it has the Policy for the Investment of International Investment Assets and which entail the authorization to conduct swap operations solely with the gold portfolio.

At present, there are no portfolios in other foreign currencies for "Contingent State." There are only minimum balances in euro and yen, which are the currencies with the highest movement. To keep accounts abroad active, the cash management unit acquires other foreign currencies to fulfill specific obligations, as required by the Payments System Directorate.

Official cover of forward operations No.

ECUADOR

Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	Yes.	Payment arrangements exist with Cuba and Hungary but are currently inactive.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	Ecuador is a member of the LAIA and of the SUCRE, which are now in operation.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	The LAIA Reciprocal Payments and Credits Agreement is a multilateral payment clearing mechanism. The SUCRE is based on direct payments in virtual currency (the sucre, in lowercase) between CBs, in which the surplus and deficit balances will be cleared during a semiannual clearing period. In the case of Ecuador, US dollars are received.

ECUADOR

Approval required	Yes.	Public and private financial institutions require approval for accounts denominated in currencies other than US dollars. The CBE may open accounts in currencies other than US dollars on behalf of public sector entities for funds received as grants or loans. There are no restrictions on transferring funds from these accounts abroad.
Held abroad	Yes.	Residents may open and maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad. There are no restrictions on balances transferred to Ecuador; however, the 5% ISD is payable on all capital transferred abroad.
Approval required	No.	Approval is not required for private sector entities. However, the Monetary and Financial Policy and Regulation Board approves the opening and maintenance of accounts abroad for use by public sector entities, subject to approval from the Ministry of Economy and Finance and the CBE.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	The US dollar is used as domestic currency, and no distinction is made between accounts in US dollars held domestically and those held abroad. Transfers abroad are subject to a 5% tax, except for the outflows relating to bank loans of over one year for specific sectors identified in the Productive Code (for example, housing and microfinance).

ECUADOR

Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Inspection documents are required for agricultural, medical, arms, and psychotropic imports. In addition, EP Petroecuador (the state-owned oil company) may, without a license, import supplies, materials, and equipment during emergencies. Consideration is being given to introducing import license requirements on a range of goods. COMEX is responsible for issuing rules on import procedures other than customs procedures, such as registrations, authorizations, prior control documents, and licenses. It also determines what goods are prohibited. The reshipment of goods whose importation is prohibited is mandatory, except for clothing, perishable goods, and educational material, which will be donated to the Ministry in charge of social policy (Organic Code of Production, Commerce and Investment (COPCI) Regulation). Most of the import prohibitions are maintained for sanitary, plant protection, and environmental reasons and to comply with international agreements.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Ecuador prohibits imports of certain products (221 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of the Harmonized System (HS)), regardless of origin. The bans mostly affect organic chemicals (71 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 29 of the HS) and the other products of the chemical industry (56 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 38 of the HS), followed by nuclear reactors (35 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 84 of the HS), and fish and crustaceans, mollusks, and more aquatic invertebrates (34 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of Chapter 3 of the HS). In addition, Ecuador prohibits the importation of other products (692 tariff lines at the 10-digit level of the HS) according to the origin of the products for phyto-zoosanitary reasons and to implement, among others, the resolutions of the UNSC, and other international agreements in which Ecuador is a party.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Five percent of the import quotas for “cotton not carded or combed” with a zero tariff is distributed to textile manufacturers not affiliated with the Association of Textile Industries of Ecuador. There are also import quotas for vehicles, parts for vehicle assembly, and for cell phones.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Measures include safeguards, quotas, and contingencies. Plant protection and animal healthcare certificates are required, as are quality certificates for imports of certain products. A set of technical standards applies to imports of certain goods for consumer, health, and environmental protection. Ecuador uses various pre-import control documents, including importer registration, permits, prior import authorizations, the certificate of inspection or classification verification issued at origin, the customs destination document, certificates of recognition, and automatic and non-automatic licenses. In addition, some of the products subject to technical regulations issued by the Ecuadorian Standardization Service (INEN) require a “Certificate of Recognition” as a supporting document for importation, and products subject to phyto-zoosanitary requirements need the relevant certificates. The type of prior control may vary for the same product depending on the circumstances. Therefore, the requirements may vary or one type of permit may be replaced by another. Thus, the “Product Registration” has been replaced by the “Authorization for the Importation of Pesticides and Related Products for Agricultural

Use” or by the “Sanitary Authorization for Veterinary Products”; or the “Importer Registration” by the “Phytosanitary Import Permit” or “Zoosanitary Import Permit”; the pre-import control documents called “Registro Sanitario” and “Permiso de importación” have been replaced by the document “Licencia de importación no automática.”

In 2012, COMEX established an import license, of a general and non-discriminatory nature, for imports under any customs regime or destination. This license is a necessary requirement to clear goods and COMEX must determine the requirements, terms and conditions that importers must comply with to obtain non-automatic licenses. In the case of non-automatic import licenses for basic foodstuffs, which are granted by the Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock, the Ministry issued an instruction for importers to obtain the licenses. However, for the issuance of any type of license, a final order or judgment is required.

Import taxes and/or tariffs

Yes.

In 2018, the Ecuador Tariff contained 7,997 tariff lines at the 10-digit HS 2017 level. Ecuador applies both ad valorem and compound tariffs. Compound tariffs apply to 5% of tariff lines (418 HS lines at the 10-digit level) and mostly tax apparel (322 HS61, HS62, and HS63 lines).

The MFN tariff of Ecuador consists of 42 rates ranging from 0% to 85.5%, including tariffs resulting from the application of the price band, but excluding estimates of ad valorem equivalents. In 2018, 98.5% of the tariff lines were subject to tariff rates lower than 30%; 37.3% applied a tariff equal to 0%; and only 1.6% of the total tariff lines had a tariff higher than 30%.

Imports are also subject to other charges that include: the customs tax (until 2018), foreign currency transfers abroad (ISD), the VAT, the special consumption tax (ICE), and the contribution to the Development Fund for Children (FODINFA).

In addition to specific tariffs, Ecuador continues to apply the Andean Price Band System (SAFP) to 189 tariff lines at the HS 2017 10-digit level (approximately 2.5% of the tariff universe). Products subject to the SAFB are meat and edible meat offal; milk and milk products (HS04); cereals (HS10); milling products (HS11); oil seeds and oleaginous fruits (HS12); animal or vegetable fats and oils (HS15); preparations of meat, fish or crustaceans (HS16); sugars and sugar confectionery (HS17); cereal-based preparations (HS19); residues and waste from the food industries; starch products (HS35) and miscellaneous products of the chemical industries. The lines to which the SAFB applies have two components: a fixed ad valorem component and a variable component. The duties resulting from the application of the SAFB vary according to the international price of the products in question. The purpose of this measure is to stabilize the domestic price of these products.

Effective October 14, 2020, in response to COVID 19 pandemic, Resolution-COMEX-019-2020, dated September 2020, approved the commercial policy of incentives for productive development in Ecuador, which consists of the temporary deferral of the total payment of tariffs, which may be accessed only by natural persons, legal entities or commercial trusts that carry out business activities or operate an ongoing business; they must comply with certain requirements established in sections I, II, III, and III of the Annex I of the Resolution.

The measure contemplates 667 products: 590 will have a zero tariff;

30 will be taxed at 5%; 20 at 10%; and the remaining 27 between 15% and 25%. Among the sectors most benefited by the reform are those related to agriculture, technology, manufacturing, and automotive. As for agribusiness, almost half of the items will affect this sector, reducing the import tax on machinery and equipment.

In addition, to boost competitiveness, the Government issued Executive Decree No. 68, effective June 9, 2021, entitled “Decree for the Facilitation of Trade and Production, the Simplification of Procedures and the Competitiveness Agenda” to eliminate obstacles to productive activities and national and international trade and to consolidate the policy of quality, competitiveness and productive reactivation.

The government decision establishes a period of 30 days for the Ministry of Production, Foreign Trade, Investment and Fisheries (MPCEIP); the Ministry of Environment, Water and Ecological Transition; the National Customs Service of Ecuador (SENAE); the National Standardization Service (INEN); the Health Regulation and Control Agency (Arcsa); the Agency for Regulation and Phytosanitary and Zoosanitary Control (Agrocalidad); and the Internal Revenue Service (SRI) present an action plan to facilitate, through digital tools, or eliminate procedures, permits, licenses, certifications, technical regulations, and registrations that reduce national competitiveness.

Payments made for ISD on the import of raw materials, inputs and capital goods included in the list established by the Tax Policy Committee may be considered as a tax credit for the payment of income tax (or its advance payment) for the year in which such payments were made, as well as for the following four years. This list was established in 2012, but may be modified in each tax year.

Some transactions are exempt from ISD, such as payments for imports for the consumption of electric and induction stoves, their parts and pieces; pots and pans designed for use in induction stoves; and electric water heating systems for domestic use, including electric showers. Payments made abroad by administrators and operators of Special Economic Development Zones (ZEDE) for imports of goods and services related to their activity are also exempt. Payments for the importation of goods used to execute a public project, regardless of the import regime used, and the acquisition of services for the execution of the public project are also exempt.

In the case of exports of goods and services, if the foreign currency corresponding to the payment of such exports does not enter Ecuador, ISD will be incurred.

Taxes collected through the exchange system      Yes.

All transfers abroad are subject to the 5% ISD, barring certain exemptions. The Law for Productive Development, Investment Attraction, and Employment Generation and its Regulation exempts the payment of the ISD for new productive investments that sign investment contracts for the import of capital goods and raw materials necessary for the development of the project, up to the amounts and terms established in the aforementioned contract.

State import monopoly      No.

Domiciliation	Yes.	Exporters must register with the Internal Revenue Service, after having obtained a digital certificate for their electronic signature and authentication from the CBE or from Security Data company, and after having registered on the ECUAPASS portal. The National Council for Foreign Trade (COMEX) requires that exporters also register with the Ministry of Production, Trade, Investment, and Fishing for: Exports of scrap and ferrous and non-ferrous metal waste. Resolution No. 402 of September 13, 2007, published in the Official Register Supplement No. 222 of November 29, 2007.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	Prior to shipment, the SENA E authorizes exporters to begin the export process, with no charge from customs. The export customs declaration (DAE) is required, along with a pro forma invoice, previous authorizations, and an electronic preshipment certificate of origin.
Other	Yes.	The International Coffee Organization Certificate of Origin, issued by the National Coffee Board (COFENAC), has been added to customs documentation requirements for coffee exporters.

The declarant must manage the accompanying and/or supporting documents to be attached to the DAE. These documents include the commercial invoice, packing list, prior authorization (if applicable), certificate of origin (if applicable) and phytosanitary certificate (if applicable). The export process begins with the transmission of the DAE. Once the DAE is received, the export entry report (IIE) of the merchandise is registered in the primary zone through which it will be exported. Once the IIE is registered, the ECUAPASS computer system automatically assigns the gauging channel for the goods, which may be automatic, documentary or intrusive physical.

If the assigned gauging channel is automatic, the exit of the goods from Ecuadorian customs territory is authorized (Authorized Exit); otherwise, the gauging act is performed, and if there are no observations, the responsible operator technician registers the closing of the gauging in the ECUAPASS system, and the status of "Authorized Exit" is assigned to the DAE. If there are any new developments in the gauging process, the technician operator records the observations so that they can be justified or corrected by the declarant within a period of one day. With the authorized departure from the DAE, the goods can be shipped. If necessary, the declarant may correct the DAE. Once the goods have been shipped, the declarant can regularize the DAE with SENAE, which completes the definitive export process.

Export licenses	Yes.	Exports of some products require licenses.
Without quotas	Yes.	The export prices of bananas, cocoa and finished products, coffee, and fish are subject to minimum f.o.b. reference prices.
		The Foreign Trade Committee (COMEX) is responsible for issuing regulations on export requirements, other than customs formalities, such as registrations, authorizations, prior control documents and licenses.
		In 2018, Ecuador prohibits definitive exports and temporary exports for outward processing in respect of certain products (480 HS tariff lines at the 10-digit level). The prohibitions mostly affect metal products and their manufactures, tools and implements, nuclear reactors, and automobiles.
		Ecuador guarantees the free export of goods, with the exception of those that could affect public health, the preservation of the environment, animal and plant health, and cultural heritage. Exports may also be restricted to comply with the commitments assumed by Ecuador within the framework of the various international agreements to which it is a signatory, such as the Montreal Protocol.
		Likewise, COMEX may regulate and/or restrict exports to ensure the supply of raw materials for national production and thus promote the incorporation of added value, in execution of the National Industrial Development Plan. These controls may be imposed ex officio or at the request of an industry.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.	Ecuador does not impose taxes on exports; however, in the case of exports of goods and services, if the money corresponding to the payment for such exports did not enter Ecuador, they would be subject to ISD.

Changes during 2020 and 2021

Imports and Import Payments

Import taxes and/or tariffs	10/14/2020	In response to COVID-19 pandemic, Resolution-COMEX-019-2020, dated September 2020, approved the commercial policy of incentives for productive development in Ecuador, which consists of the temporary deferral of the total payment of tariffs, which may be accessed only by natural persons, legal entities or commercial trusts that carry out business activities or operate an ongoing business; they must comply with certain requirements established in sections I, II,
------------------------------------	------------	--

III, and III of the Annex I of the Resolution.

The measure contemplates 667 products: 590 will have a zero tariff; 30 will be taxed at 5%; 20 at 10%; and the remaining 27 between 15% and 25%. Among the sectors most benefited by the reform are those related to agriculture, technology, manufacturing, and automotive. As for agribusiness, almost half of the items will affect this sector, reducing the import tax on machinery and equipment.

The IMF staff report for the 2017 Article IV Consultation Second Review Under the Extended Arrangement Under the Extended Fund Facility, and Request for Modification of Performance Criteria with Egypt states that, as of December 11, 2017, Egypt maintained one exchange restriction subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII, Sections 2(a) and 3 arising from a net debtor position under an inoperative bilateral payments arrangement with Bulgaria. (Country Report No. 18/14)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Banks have been instructed to freeze accounts and assets of listed individuals and organizations associated with terrorism, in accordance with the relevant UNSC resolutions. Further, in 2002, the authorities established the Egyptian Money Laundering Combating Unit (EMLCU), which is the Egyptian financial intelligence unit responsible for combating money laundering and terrorism financing. The EMLCU receives reports of suspicious transactions from financial institutions and takes the necessary examination and investigation measures in coordination with the appropriate authorities. The EMLCU receives reports of suspicious transactions from financial institutions and designated nonfinancial businesses and professions concerning transactions suspected of being proceeds of a crime or involving money laundering or terrorism financing or attempts to conduct such transactions. The EMLCU takes the necessary examination and investigation measures in coordination with the appropriate authorities. Anti-Money Laundering/Combating the Financing of Terrorism (AML/CFT) Law No. 80 of 2002 was amended in May 2014, to address deficiencies in Egypt's AML/CFT regime, including with regard to international standards on combating money laundering/financing of terrorism and proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. Egypt exited from the follow-up process at the Middle East and North Africa Region Financial Action Task Force (MENAFATF). In accordance with the amendments, the EMLCU will carry out Egypt's commitment under international conventions, treaties, and charters with respect to terrorism financing and financing of the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction.

Stabilized arrangement Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. On November 3, 2016, the Central Bank of Egypt (CBE) announced its decision to move, with immediate effect, to a liberalized exchange rate regime to quell any distortions in the domestic foreign currency market. Pursuant to the above, banks and other market participants are at liberty to quote and trade at any exchange rate. Bid and ask exchange rates are determined by forces of demand and supply. The CBE uses the prevailing market rate for any transactions it undertakes. In light of the unprecedented blow to the global financial markets arising from the coronavirus epidemic spread, which resulted in the sharpest portfolio flows reversal on record from emerging markets, including the Egyptian market, the CBE intervened in the foreign exchange market in March and April 2020 consistent with its mandate to preserve financial stability and maintain domestic confidence. This was communicated to the market through a press statement with the announcement of the Reserves Figures in March and April 2020. The statements are available on the CBE website. From March 2020, the exchange rate increased its flexibility but stabilized from October 2020. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified twice: (1) to other managed from crawl-like, effective March 17, 2020, and (2) to stabilized from other managed, effective October 7, 2020.

Publication of inflation forecasts

Other monetary framework	Yes.	Monetary policy is in transition to a flexible inflation-targeting regime, where policy tools are utilized to anchor inflation expectations, to contain demand-side pressures and second-round effects of supply shocks to achieve inflation targets over the medium term. Policy tools include a corridor of overnight deposit and lending standing facilities, open market operations, and reserve requirements. The monetary policy rate is set by the CBE's MPC, which has six members comprising of the governor of the CBE, two deputy governors, and three other members of the Board of Directors. The MPC convenes every six weeks to decide on appropriate actions with respect to key policy rates. The MPC's decisions are communicated to the market through a monetary policy press release that gives an analysis of the committee's decision, which is published on the CBE's website following each MPC meeting. In May 2017, the CBE announced for the first time in its history its inflation target of 13% (+/-3%) on average by the fourth quarter of 2018. In December 2018, the new target was set at 9% (+/-3%) on average by the fourth quarter of 2020. Effective December 22, 2020, the target was lowered to 7% (+/-2%) on average by the fourth quarter of 2022. The Central Agency for Public Mobilization and Statistics (CAPMAS) is the entity responsible for calculating and publishing the headline CPI every month, which the CBE uses to derive the core CPI index as an indicative index for research purposes only. The transition from the direct-quantity target to targeting short-term interest rates was made in June 2005. The CBE adopted a corridor system using an overnight lending facility as the ceiling rate and an overnight deposit facility as the floor rate. The CBE employs open market operations as a monetary policy tool to achieve its operational target to ultimately attain its intermediate target. Open market operations achieve that by regulating the supply of reserves in the banking system. The CBE main operation could be deposit auctions or reverse repo depending on the market liquidity condition.
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The CBE allows market participants to freely decide the client and interbank bid and ask rates.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The CBE licenses nonbank foreign exchange dealers (foreign exchange bureaus, bazaars, and duty-free markets). As of December, 30, 2020, there were 81 licensed foreign exchange bureaus, 80 bazaars, and 9 duty-free markets. Foreign exchange bureaus may buy and sell domestic and foreign means of payment (banknotes and traveler's checks) on their own behalf. These transactions are conducted in cash. Foreign exchange bureaus may not make transfers into or out of Egypt and must sell all working-day foreign currency exceeding their authorized operating balance to commercial banks. Almost all banks licensed to operate in Egypt (currently 38) are involved in foreign exchange transactions.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	Banks are required to manage and maintain their positions in foreign currencies through the interbank market on a daily basis without breaching their authorized net positions. The CBE does not buy commercial banks' foreign currency balances exceeding their authorized net open position.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.

EGYPT

Auction	Yes.	The multiple-price auction mechanism, which allows the CBE to buy and sell foreign exchange (exclusively in US dollars), follows these rules: (1) The CBE sets the amounts (not the price). (2) Each bank may submit up to three bids, for which the total amount submitted is determined by the quota assigned to the bank by the CBE, based on its commercial utilization and previous sales in the interbank market. (3) On the auction day, the CBE announces the auction amount one hour before the auction. (4) Banks authorized by the CBE may participate. (5) Auction results are announced to the public through several data service providers, such as Reuters and Bloomberg, as well as on the CBE website. No auctions have been conducted since November 3, 2016.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Banks (currently 38) that are members of the interbank convention on foreign exchange trading buy and sell foreign exchange at freely determined rates.
Over the counter	Yes.	Dealers may participate in the interbank foreign exchange market through an electronic dealing system during regular dealing hours.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Authorized commercial banks are permitted to conduct forward foreign exchange transactions on their own behalf. The banks are free to determine the rates for forward transactions and conduct forwards and swaps on behalf of their customers strictly for business needs. The CBE does not participate in the forward foreign exchange market. In practice, the CBE permits authorized commercial banks to conduct forward foreign exchange and swap transactions to cover five genuine needs: supplier payments, LCs, transfer collections, dividend payments, and export proceeds.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	For countries with indemnity agreements concerning compensation for nationalized property, certain settlements are made through special accounts in pounds with the CBE. The balances in these accounts are minimal. Suez Canal dues are expressed in SDRs and may be settled in any foreign currency. Settlements with Sudan are made in accordance with the terms of a bilateral agreement.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	No.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	No.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Bank deposits in foreign currencies (held by either Egyptian or foreign nationals) are subject to a 10% reserve requirement, which must be deposited with the CBE and is remunerated. The reserve requirement for deposits in Egyptian pounds (excluding CDs for individuals with maturities of three years or more and loans to small and medium enterprises) is 14% and is not remunerated.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	Liquidity regulation issued in July 2016 on NSFR and LCR as per Basel III applies. The requirements for the liquidity ratio in foreign currencies and Egyptian pounds are 25% and 20%, respectively.
Interest rate controls	Yes.	A regulation regarding interest rate risk in the banking book (IRRBB) classifies deposits in domestic and foreign currency as follows: (1) Regarding interest rate sensitive items on the liability side for domestic and foreign currency deposits: (a) For deposits of individuals and small and micro enterprises with no maturity dates (demand and saving deposits with and without interest), 10% of the balance of demand deposits is slotted in the first time bucket (following day) and 90% of the outstanding balance is distributed equally to the time buckets from less than one month to 4–5 years, and 30% of the balance of saving deposits is slotted in the first time bucket (following day) and 70% of the outstanding balance is distributed equally to the time buckets from less than one month to 4–5 years; (b) for corporate deposits and deposits of medium enterprises with no maturity dates (demand and saving deposits with and without interest), 50% of the balance of deposits is slotted in the first time bucket (following day) and 50% of the outstanding balance is distributed equally to the time buckets from less than one month to 4–5 years; (c) accrued interest on term deposits or callable deposits (with fixed interest rates) is slotted according to the residual periods until their maturity dates, while the principle is slotted in the residual period until its maturity date; and (d) for deposits with variable interest rates, the interest is slotted in the time bucket prior to the repricing date according to the residual periods until the maturity dates, while the principle is slotted according to the residual period until the repricing date. (2) Regarding interest rate sensitive items on the asset side: (a) For CBE reserves in foreign currency with interest, interest is slotted in the time buckets prior to the repricing date according to the residual periods until the maturity dates, while the reserves balance (the principle) is slotted according to the residual period until the repricing date; (b) for accrued interest on CBE deposits with fixed interest rate, the accrued interest is slotted according to the residual periods until the maturity dates for these interests, while the principle is slotted in the residual period until its maturity date; and (c) for CBE deposits with variable interest rates, the interest is slotted in the time bucket prior to the repricing date according to the residual periods until the maturity dates, while the principle is slotted according to the residual period until the repricing date.

Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	Banks' maximum exposure abroad is calculated by country, financial institution, and group, taking into consideration a specific methodology. The CBE sets exposure limits to countries, financial institutions, and financial groups, related mainly to the bank's capital base, countries' ratings, and their gross domestic product. The regulation sets concentration limits to high-risk exposures and does not specify exposure limits to each type of borrower as follows: The total high-risk exposure for each country should not exceed 40% of the concentration limit of that country. The total high-risk exposures for all countries should not exceed 100% of the bank's capital base. The total high-risk exposures for non-investment grade countries should not exceed 20% of the bank's capital base. The unutilized portion of the high-risk exposure limit may be directed to low-risk exposures, but not vice versa.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Investments in banks are subject to "fit and proper" tests: Shares held by residents or nonresidents in a bank in Egypt exceeding 5% of the issued capital must be reported to the CBE. Shares exceeding 10% require CBE approval.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The net long or short position in any foreign currency of a bank operating in Egypt, including branches of foreign banks, may not exceed 10% of the capital base, the long or short position in all currencies may not exceed 20% of the capital base, and the long or short position in local currency (that is, in an opposing position) may not exceed 10% of the capital base.

On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The net long or short position in any foreign currency of a bank operating in Egypt, including branches of foreign banks, may not exceed 10% of the capital base, the long or short position in all currencies may not exceed 20% of the capital base, and the long or short position in local currency (that is, in an opposing position) may not exceed 10% of the capital base.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Pursuant to Law No. 10 of 1981 (as amended), if an individual or entity owns more than 5% of the total shares of an insurance or reinsurance company, the company must notify the FRA within two weeks on the appropriate form. No individual—except by inheritance—or corporate entity may own 10% or more of the issued capital of an insurance or reinsurance company, except with the approval of the prime minister. The approval requirement applies to residents and nonresidents.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	By law, insurance and reinsurance companies must allocate funds in Egypt at least equal to the value of their technical reserves for business carried out in Egypt. Companies must maintain the funds of life insurance completely separate from the funds of property and liability insurance. Cash and securities that form part of these funds must be deposited in one of the banks registered at the CBE. Therefore, by law, investments may not be held abroad.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Insurance and reinsurance companies must invest their allocated funds with respect to life insurance plans as follows: (1) at least 25% in government securities or guaranteed certificates; (2) a maximum of 20% in bonds, provided the amount invested in bonds of a single issuer does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds, 20% of the capital of the entity issuing the bonds, or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (3) a maximum of 20% in stocks and investment funds, provided the amount invested in stocks and investment funds of a single issuer does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds, 20% of the capital of the entity issuing these stocks, 20% of the total issued instruments of the investment fund, or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (4) a maximum of 10% of paid-up capital in bonds, stocks, and investment funds of a single issuer; (5) a maximum of 30% in real estate in Egypt that is registered by notarization or recorded with the relevant notary public office, provided the value of the real estate does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (6) loans guaranteed by insurance policies within 90% of their recovered value, which is determined at the end of the financial year according to the company's actuarial certificate; (7) a maximum of 20% in mortgage loans, provided the loans do not exceed 5% of total allocated funds, 60% of the market value of the real estate, or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (8) a maximum of 50% in bank deposits or savings or certificates of deposit issued by the CBE or registered banks; and (9) a maximum of 20% in other investments approved by the FRA. Insurance and reinsurance companies must invest their allocated funds with respect to property and liability insurance plans as follows: (1) at least 20% in government securities or guaranteed certificates; (2) a maximum of 15% in bonds, provided the amount

		invested in bonds of a single issuer does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (3) a maximum of 25% in stocks and investment funds, provided the amount invested in stocks and mutual funds of a single issuer does not exceed 5% of the total allocated funds, 20% of the capital of the entity issuing these stocks, 20% of the total issued instruments of mutual funds, or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (4) a maximum of 10% of paid-up capital in bonds, stocks, and mutual funds of a single issuer; (5) a maximum of 30% in real estate in Egypt that is registered by notarization or recorded with the appropriate notary public office, provided the value of the real estate does not exceed 10% of the total allocated funds or 10% of the paid-up capital of the insurance or reinsurance company, whichever is less; (6) a maximum of 50% in bank deposits or savings or certificates of deposit issued by the CBE or registered banks; and (7) a maximum of 20% in other investments approved by the FRA.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	FRA procedures govern currency matching on the composition of insurance companies' assets and liabilities. According to these procedures, an insurance company must define its requirements for personal and property operations in foreign currencies and pounds to be sure it satisfies currency-matching requirements for assets and liabilities composition.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Private pension funds are not allowed to invest in foreign securities or assets abroad.

		aggregates, precursors, medications for human consumption, and controlled substances.
Positive list	Yes.	Licenses issued by the MOF are required for authorized imports of ethyl alcohol, whether denatured or not, and authorization is required to import refined or raw cane sugar. The minister of health issues permits for ethyl alcohol, except when raw materials for various food industries are involved. Authorization by the Ministry of Defense is required for imports of weapons and explosives. An environmental permit is also required for imports of chemicals, either from the Ministry of Environment and Natural Resources, the Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock, or from the Ministry of Health. Importation of regulated industrial products requires registration with the Ministry of Health. The National Directorate of Medications is the regulatory agency for the import of pharmaceutical products, medical inputs, cosmetics, hygiene products, drugs and psychotropic products, and aggregates.
Negative list	Yes.	El Salvador prohibits imports of the following products for reasons of health, security, public morality, or environmental protection: subversive material or teachings contrary to the political, social, and economic order; obscene materials; unethical or indecent films; abortion-related products; opium containing less than 9% morphine; opium residue and ash; devices for smoking opium; unstamped cigarette paper; counterfeit coins and banknotes; plain silver coins; and slot machines. Imports of coffee in a form that can be used as seeds for planting and imports of coffee bushes are prohibited. Also prohibited are lightweight passenger and freight motor vehicles more than 8 years old and heavy passenger and freight vehicles more than 15 years old (except collector's items and vehicles donated to the government or to public service or charitable organizations; those used exclusively by physically challenged persons; those providing a specific service, such as agricultural, earth-moving, or industrial work; and those connected with power generation plants, well drilling, and water purification units). Effective May 28, 2021, the importation of used electric or hybrid automotive vehicles more than 3 years old is prohibited.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	The Ministry of Economy grants import permits or licenses for products that are subject to some form of agricultural quota under the United States FTA, meaning that a given quantity may be imported with a 0 tariff, including beef, pork, milk in liquid or powdered form, other dairy products, yellow or white corn, sorghum, chicken parts, and rice. A cheddar cheese quota is granted under the WTO commitments. Under the Partnership Agreement between Central America and the EU, licenses are granted for products subject to agricultural quotas, such as whey, cured and streaky hams, prepared and preserved pork, milk powder, and cheese. Finally, an import quota is granted on a "first-come, first-served" basis to access the cheese quota negotiated in the FTA with Panama and for the yellow corn quota under the FTA between Central America and Mexico. It is important to clarify that these are not limits on imports but rather quotas with preferential tariffs. In addition to these set amounts, importers are free to import any amount subject to payment of the corresponding tariff.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Sugar intended for the domestic market must be fortified with vitamin A. The importation of dairy products prepared with reconstituted milk is prohibited.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The Central American Import Tariff has the following base rates: 0% on raw materials and intermediate and capital goods not produced in the CACM, 5% on raw materials produced in the CACM, 10% on intermediate and capital goods produced in the CACM, and 15% on finished goods. El Salvador also has trade agreements with Bolivia (signed on November 16, 2018, pending ratification), Chile, Colombia, South Korea (effective January 1, 2020), Cuba (Partial Scope Agreement), Ecuador (Partial Scope Agreement), the United States, Mexico, Panama, Taiwan Province of China, the EU (Association Agreement with 27 countries), the Association Agreement with the United Kingdom (effective January 1, 2021), and the Dominican Republic, under which certain products included in tariff elimination programs are duty free. All goods originating in Central American countries may be traded without restriction within the region, except for those defined in Annex A to the General Treaty on Central American Economic Integration.

The average of the applied tariffs of El Salvador is 6.0%, the agricultural average is 11.8%, and the nonagricultural average is 5.1%. The minimum tariff is 0% and the maximum 164%.

Effective March 20, 2020, certain foodstuffs, pharmaceuticals, and personal protective equipment were temporarily eliminated of the Central American Import Tariff (Harmonized System Chapters 04, 07, 10, 11, 19, 20, 21, 28, 30, 34, 38, 40, and 96), because of the COVID-19 pandemic. Some products are also exempt from VAT.

Effective June 13, 2021, the tax exemptions applicable to all imports of raw materials, machinery, and equipment for newspaper printing were eliminated pursuant to the provisions of Legislative Decree No. 6 of May 5, 2021, which amends the Printing Law.

Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.

Preshipment inspection	Yes.

The relevant directorate of the Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock conducts preshipment inspections of exports of basic foods such as beans, rice, sorghum, fresh loroco, and fresh papayas before exportation; agricultural precertification is also required. Dairy products require authorization from a quality control laboratory. All products of animal origin are subject to inspection. All products containing wood or packed in wooden crates or pallets require inspection and fumigation by the Organismo Internacional

EL SALVADOR

Other	Yes.	Regional de Sanidad Agropecuaria (OIRSA, The International Regional Organization for Plant and Animal Health). Exports must pass through a nonintrusive inspection system conducted by the customs authorities prior to shipment. All exporters must be registered with the Import/Export Processing Center (CIEX El Salvador), before making any exports. The legislative decree established the CIEX El Salvador to centralize, expedite, and simplify the established legal procedures for the registration, authorization, and issuance of documents by various institutions and/or dependencies of the country involved in import and export operations in conformity with their respective responsibilities. The Integrated Foreign Trade System (SICEX) is used for exports, and if the transaction destinations are Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua, the operation is recorded in the exit customs of El Salvador and the entry customs of the relevant importing Central American country; the amount of taxes payable is reported by the Internet. This process allows exporters to obtain the three authorizations through a single, integrated procedure. A software tool, the Foreign Trade Facilitation System (SFCE), allows importers and exporters to register and pay for the nonintrusive inspection service, and also to register ground transportation documents for international cargo. There are service charges for obtaining prior processing for imports, covering the services of the Ministry of National Defense, the Ministry of Health, and the National Directorate of Medications. The system allows payment to be made electronically via seven banks of the financial system, thus facilitating the handling of prior processing for imports through the SFCE, which is administered by the CIEX El Salvador. There is one-stop electronic invoicing (facturación única) on behalf of third parties, which allows using a single tax number for various services provided by government institutions, registered in the CIEX El Salvador. The electronic payment system was also implemented for the product registry, the mutual recognition registry, and the updating of the product registry; these three services, which cover food products, thus simplify compliance with the required procedures for importing such products that fall within the purview of the Ministry of Health, which participates in the foreign trade one-stop window.
Export licenses	Yes.	Exporters must be registered with the CIEX before exporting any products. Exports are authorized via the Internet through the SICEX, which is designed exclusively for that purpose. El Salvador has signed the CITES agreement, which is currently in force and prohibits exports of endangered plant and animal species, cultural heritage goods, as well as products, such as red beans that suffer domestic shortages. Other export products require authorization by other institutions before processing at the SICEX and the CIEX because of quota controls—for example, for cane sugar; agrochemicals; biological products; drugs and food for veterinary use (which also require registration); wildflowers and plants; basic foods such as beans of domestic origin, rice, sorghum, fresh loroco, and fresh papayas (which also require preshipment inspection); dairy products (which also require laboratory testing); meat; fish products (which may not be harvested without a permit); foodstuffs for human consumption; coffee (including roasted and ground); machinery; maquila textiles and garments subject to quotas; diesel fuel; propane; and butane gas. Ferrous and nonferrous products require authorization by the Directorate General of Customs. Exports of waste products from melting ferrous and nonferrous products included in tariff items 7204.10.00, 7204.29.00, and 7404.00.00 are prohibited. Citizens, foreigners, and legal entities are exempt from this provision if they are registered with the Directorate General of Customs and the waste products originate directly from their industrial processes.

Without quotas	Yes.
With quotas	Yes.	Exports of sugar require the approval of the Salvadoran Sugar Council (CONSAA) and are administered under two arrangements. The portion traded with the United States, which is called the American quota or preferential market, is subject to preferential treatment that consists of a negotiated quantity of metric tons to be exported. Exporters are free to export the remaining sugar production to any country. In addition, under CAFTA-DR, quotas have been allocated for other products, such as beef, dairy products, ethanol, and peanuts. A reciprocal tariff quota arrangement with Panama has been introduced to protect the monetary value of certain types of cheeses. Under the Association Agreement with the EU, export tariff quotas are negotiated for garlic, cassava starch, sweet corn, mushrooms, sugar including organic sugar and products with a high sugar content, rice, beef, bulk rum, tuna loin, plastics, electrical harnesses and conductors, certain clothing products, and articles made of aluminum. An export quota for cheese was negotiated in the FTA with Panama.
		Effective January 1, 2021, the Association Agreement between Central America and the United Kingdom entered into force. Through this trade agreement export tariff quotas were negotiated for garlic, cassava starch, sweet corn, mushrooms, sugar, including organic sugar and products with high sugar content, rice, beef, and rum in bulk.

In that regard, in October 2012, the CRB approved the “Minimum guidelines for operations with the forward foreign exchange derivative financial instrument to be fulfilled by banks in order to offer them in the local market.” According to these guidelines, banks that offer their clients forward foreign exchange services must request and obtain prior authorization from the CRB.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Under Article 45 of the Banking Law, banks’ cash reserves may be invested abroad, deposited in first-tier banks rated and authorized for this purpose by the Superintendency, or invested in highly negotiable low-risk securities. Insurance companies may invest abroad up to 20% of investments of net technical reserves.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.
Commercial credits	No.
By residents to nonresidents	No.
To residents from nonresidents	No.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Loans granted by banks to nonresidents or for investment abroad may not exceed 10% of the creditor bank’s equity capital. Total loans in this category may not exceed 150% of a bank’s equity capital. Loans in excess of 75% of the equity capital require authorization subject to documentation requirements. Specific provisions apply to these loans, ranging from a minimum of 0% to 100%, depending on the risk rating of the country in which the assets are held.
To residents from nonresidents	No.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	No.
By residents to nonresidents	No.

		businesses owned by foreign residents and those with foreign resident shareholders. Foreign individuals and legal entities may invest in El Salvador and enjoy the same rights and obligations as national investors and corporations. The constitution restricts foreign investment in the following activities: trade; industry; and small-scale services—specifically, coastal fishing—which are reserved for Salvadorans. The subsoil belongs to the government, which may grant concessions for its exploitation. Investments in shares of banks, finance companies, and exchange bureaus are subject to applicable laws.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	Foreign investors may transfer abroad funds related to their investments without delay. Such transfers include net profits and dividends generated by their investments, proceeds from partial or total disposal of investments, and proceeds from the transfer of investments to third parties. As part of the 2012 amendments to the Law on Income Tax, Title VII Chapter III of Article 7 now includes a section titled “Income Tax on Distribution of Profits,” which requires income tax withholding of 5% of profits paid by domiciled taxpayers, parent companies, subsidiaries, branches, agencies, and other permanent establishments to partners, shareholders, associates, trustees, members, investors, and beneficiaries not domiciled in El Salvador.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.	Foreign individuals and legal entities may purchase real estate. Rural real estate may be acquired by foreigners only if there is a reciprocal arrangement with their home country. (An exception is allowed for industrial establishments.) A single individual or legal entity may not own more than 245 hectares of rural land. This limit does not apply to rural cooperative or community associations, which are subject to special provisions.
Purchase abroad by residents	No.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Foreign individuals and legal entities may purchase real estate. Rural real estate may be acquired by foreigners only if there is a reciprocal arrangement with their home country. (An exception is allowed for industrial establishments.) A single individual or legal entity may not own more than 245 hectares of rural land. This limit does not apply to rural cooperative or community associations, which are subject to special provisions.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.
Controls on personal capital transactions	No.	For the CRB’s statistical purposes, authorized banks and exchange bureaus must obtain from their customers foreign exchange export and import forms for all transactions equal to or larger than US $5,000. The anti-money- and anti-asset-laundering law requires institutions subject to the law to report transactions and multiple transactions by a single user or individual on the same day or within a period of one month of sums exceeding US$10,000 or the equivalent in foreign currency, if there is evidence to suggest they are irregular or if required by the financial intelligence unit of the office of the prosecutor general.

By residents to nonresidents	No.
To residents from nonresidents	No.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	No.
By residents to nonresidents	No.

To residents from nonresidents	No.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	No.
Transfer of assets	No.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	No.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	No.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	No.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Financial System Supervision and Regulation Act modified the financial sector regulatory and supervisory architecture through (1) creation of the Financial Supervision and Regulation System, consisting of the CB and the SSF; (2) establishment of a single superintendency for banking, insurance, securities, pensions, and other financial intermediaries; and (3) transfer of regulatory authority over the financial system to the CB. The Law against Usury defines usury and sets the maximum rate of interest on loans obtained by individuals. This law applies to individuals and legal entities, financial institutions, commercial firms, savings banks, merchants engaged in the delivery of goods and services, pawn merchants, and in general, any person or entity who lends money, regardless of the manner used to record, conceal, or hide the operation. The CRB sets maximum rates based on the simple average of the effective interest rate on loans, expressed as a percent and published semiannually.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	External borrowing by financial institutions is subject to a reserve requirement. As a result of the Pandemic Emergency, effective March 27, 2020, the BCR Standards Committee issued the “Temporary Technical Regulations for Calculating the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Liabilities,” to temporarily reduce the Liquidity Reserve requirement, so that financial institutions have more financial resources to tackle the COVID-19 crisis; therefore, the Liquidity Reserve requirement was temporarily reduced to 3% from 5%. The validity of these regulations is 180 days, which will be extended for an equal period of time if the underlying circumstances persist. Effective June 23, 2021, the BCR’s Standards Committee issued the Technical Standards for the Calculation and Use of the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Obligations (NRP-28), to provide the parameters for the calculation of the Liquidity Reserve requirement to be maintained by regulated entities, as well as the provisions for its use. These standards repealed the Standards for the Calculation and Use of the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Obligations (NPB3-06) and replaced the Temporary Technical Regulations related to liquidity issued in the context of the COVID-19 pandemic. As of June 30, 2021, the above-mentioned reserve requirement remains at 3%.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Loans granted by banks to nonresidents or for investment abroad may not exceed 10% of the creditor bank’s equity capital. Total loans in this category may not exceed 150% of a bank’s equity capital. Loans in excess of 75% of the equity capital require authorization subject to documentation requirements. Specific provisions apply to these loans, ranging from a minimum of 0% to 100%, depending on the risk rating of the country where the assets are held.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Loans granted by banks to nonresidents or for investment abroad may not exceed 10% of the creditor bank's equity capital. Total loans in this category may not exceed 150% of a bank's equity capital. Loans in excess of 75% of the equity capital require authorization subject to documentation requirements. Specific provisions apply to these loans, ranging from a minimum of 0% to 100%, depending on the risk rating of the country where the assets are held.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	No.	There is no distinction in the treatment of loans in local currency and in foreign currency.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	No.	There is no distinction in the treatment of deposits in local currency and in foreign currency.
Reserve requirements	No.	In El Salvador, the term reserve requirement ( encaje legal ) is not used. The term liquidity reserve ( reserva de liquidez ) is preferred. There are no specific reserve requirements on foreign (nondollar) currencies. The average reserve requirement is currently about 22% of deposits but would vary as it depends on the maturity of deposits. Effective March 19, 2020, however, as a result of the Pandemic Emergency, the BCR Standards Committee issued the "Temporary Technical Regulations for Calculating the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Liabilities," to temporarily reduce the Liquidity Reserve requirement. So, after making the corresponding calculation, the current liquidity reserve is approximately 10% of deposits and the liquidity reserves actually held by the institutions is approximately 17% of deposits (previously about 22%).

On the other hand, the Standards Committee of the CRB approved, during Session No. CN-01/2019, the extension of the Temporary Measures for the Calculation of the Liquidity Reserve (Medidas Temporales para el Cálculo de la Reserva de Liquidez—MTL) to February 23, 2023. These measures reduced the liquidity reserve by 10% of the productive credit granted by financial institutions. However, in response to the emergency caused by the Pandemic, these measures were repealed as of March 19, 2020, and replaced by the "Temporary Technical Regulations for the Granting of Loans," effective March 19, 2020, for a period of 180 days, which also reduce the liquidity reserve based on the increase in the loan balance of certain economic sectors.

The Technical Standards for the Calculation and Use of the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Obligations (NRP-28), which are intended to provide the parameters for the calculation of the Liquidity Reserve requirement to be maintained by regulated entities, entered into force effective June 23, 2021. These standards repealed NPB3-06.

The aforementioned standards establish that during the phase-in period, which began on June 23, 2021, and ends on June 21, 2022, the liquidity reserve requirement will be subject to discounts related to:

(1) A percentage of the average balance that the entities subject to the Temporary Technical Standards for the Calculation of the Liquidity Reserve (NPBT-04) used for the calculation of the Liquidity Reserve requirement in the 14-day periods from March 31 to May 11, 2021 (approximated to two decimal places) and

		(2) A percentage of the amount that the entities subject to the Temporary Technical Standards to Encourage Lending (NPBT-05) reported as a discount for the calculation of the Liquidity Reserve requirement in the 14-day period from June 9 to June 22, 2021 (approximated to two decimal places).
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.	The Law against Usury defines usury and sets the maximum rate of interest on loans obtained by individuals, without establishing differential treatment of foreign currency. This law applies to individuals and legal entities; financial institutions; commercial firms; savings banks; merchants engaged in the delivery of goods and services; pawn merchants; and in general, any person or entity who lends money, regardless of the manner used to record, conceal, or hide the operation. The CRB sets maximum rates based on the simple average of the effective interest rate on loans, expressed as a percent and published semiannually.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.	There is no distinction between residents and nonresidents.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	Under Article 45 of the Banking Law, banks' cash reserves may be invested abroad, deposited in first-tier banks rated and authorized for this purpose by the Superintendency, or invested in highly negotiable low-risk securities.
In banks by nonresidents	No.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The limit on the net open foreign exchange positions of commercial banks is 10% of capital and reserves. Regulations governing banks' foreign currency borrowing and lending operations limit the difference between the institution's total foreign-currency-denominated assets and future and contingent rights and its total foreign-currency-denominated liabilities and future and contingent obligations to 10% of equity. Since the Monetary Integration Act went into effect January 2001, the volume of foreign currency managed by financial intermediaries declined considerably.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The regulations make no distinction between resident and nonresident.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The regulations make no distinction between resident and nonresident.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Insurance companies are permitted to invest abroad up to 20% of investments of net technical reserves.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Insurance companies are permitted to invest abroad up to 20% of investments of net technical reserves.

EL SALVADOR

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Pension funds	Yes.	The Savings System Law for Pensions was reformed in September 2017, modifying, among other aspects, the investment regime of the pension funds. The definition of foreign securities and the respective limits were amended. Within the limits established by law, the maximum limits are still set by the Risk Committee, which is comprised of the Superintendent of the Financial System, Deputy Superintendent of the Pension System, Deputy Superintendent of Securities Market, President of the CRB, and representatives of the workers and employers.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Pursuant to Decree Law No. 787 of September 28, 2017, under Article 91(o) of the Law on the Pension Savings System, pension funds may invest between 10% and 30% in foreign securities and foreign investment fund participation certificates. Additionally, differentiated limits may be established for investment in these instruments, depending on whether they are open funds or closed funds.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Under Article 18, letter (d), of the Investment Rules for the Pension Savings System, pension funds may invest up to 10% of fund assets in foreign securities recorded in the SSF public stock exchange register, excluding securities issued by regional and international financial organizations of which the government or the CRB is a member. All instruments in which the fund may invest must be registered with a national stock exchange, except for banks' deposits and pension obligations. Pursuant to Decree Law No. 787 of September 28, 2017, under Article 91(o) of the Law on the Pension Savings System, pension funds may invest between 10% and 30% in foreign securities and foreign investment fund participation certificates. Additionally, differentiated limits may be established for investment in these instruments, depending on whether they are open funds or closed funds.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Under Article 223-A of the Law on the Pension Savings System, pension funds must buy social security investment certificates that are part of the Annual Issue Program of the Social Security Bonds Trust, provided the total stock purchased does not exceed 45% of the pension fund's assets, as provided for in Article 91(m) of the Law on the Pension Savings System (amended by Legislative Decree No. 1036 of March 29, 2012). Under Article 91(a)–(n) and (p) of the Law on the Pension Savings System, pension funds may invest in the following: (1) Securities issued by the Directorate General of the Treasury of El Salvador, traded either on a Salvadoran securities exchange or on organized international securities markets, between 20% and 50%; (2) Securities issued by the CRB of El Salvador, between 20% and 30%; (3) Securities issued or guaranteed by state-owned enterprises and official autonomous institutions, except those of Banco de Desarrollo de El Salvador and the Social Housing Fund, between 5% and 20%; (4) Securities issued by Banco de Desarrollo de El Salvador, between 20% and 30%. Issues of social security investment certificates by this bank in the capacity of trustee should not be included in the calculation of this limit; (5) Marketable bonds having a maturity of more than one year issued by Salvadoran companies, between 30% and 40%; (6) Shares and convertible bonds of Salvadoran companies, between 20% and 45%; (7) Salvadoran investment fund participation certificates, between 5% and 40%, with the possibility of establishing differentiated limits for investment in the certificates of participation, depending on whether the funds are open or closed; (8) Certificates of deposit and securities issued or guaranteed by Salvadoran banks, between 30% and 40%; (9) Mortgage-backed or collateralized securities for housing financing purposes, including those issued by the Social Housing Fund, between 30% and 40%. In any case, investment in securities issued by a single entity may not exceed 10%; (10) Financial instruments of the insured mortgage system or insured mortgage certificates, between 15% and 20%; (11) Publicly offered securities issued by Salvadoran securitization companies and trust participation certificates, between 10% and 20%; (12) Other publicly offered instruments, including securities registered with a national securities exchange, between 10% and 30%; (13) Social security investment certificates issued by the Social Security Bonds Trust for the payment of services for members of the Public Pension System, a maximum investment limit of 45%; (14) Securities issued for the financing of real estate, infrastructure, or development projects such as roads, ports, and other works, between 5% and 15% of the managed fund's assets. With the backing of multilateral organizations, governments, or first-line reinsurers, between 10% and 30% of the managed fund's assets; and (15) Distributions traded on local markets, up to 5% of the pension fund's assets, provided the collateral security meets the criteria specified in the regulation.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.	The Investment Funds Law approved by Legislative Decree No. 776 of the Legislative Assembly in its August 21, 2014, session and published in Official Gazette No. 173, Volume No. 404, applies.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The Securities Market Law requires that these funds be invested in securities issued by the CRB or the government, in bank deposits, and in publicly offered securities registered with the Superintendency. The investments made by Investment Funds in securities issued by foreign issuers may not exceed 80% of the Fund's assets.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	The Securities Market Law requires that these funds be invested in securities issued by the CRB or the government, in bank deposits, and in publicly offered securities registered with the Superintendency. The investments made by Investment Funds must be made on a Salvadoran Securities Exchange, except for investments in shares of local and foreign open investment funds.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	There are no minimums, only maximum limits.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Borrowing abroad

03/27/2020 As a result of the Pandemic Emergency, the BCR Standards Committee issued the “Temporary Technical Regulations for Calculating the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Liabilities,” to temporarily reduce the Liquidity Reserve requirement, so that financial institutions have more financial resources to tackle the COVID-19 crisis; therefore, the reserve requirement was temporarily reduced to 3% from 5%. The validity of these regulations is 180 days, which will be extended for an equal period of time if the underlying circumstances persist.

06/23/2021 The BCR’s Standards Committee issued the Technical Standards for the Calculation and Use of the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Obligations (NRP-28), to provide the parameters for the calculation of the Liquidity Reserve requirement to be maintained by regulated entities, as well as the provisions for its use. These standards repealed the Standards for the Calculation and Use of the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Obligations (NPB3-06) and replaced the Temporary Technical Regulations related to liquidity issued in the context of the COVID-19 pandemic. As of June 30, 2021, the Liquidity Reserve requirement remains at 3%.

Reserve requirements

03/19/2020 The BCR Standards Committee issued the “Temporary Technical Regulations for Calculating the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Liabilities,” to temporarily reduce the Liquidity Reserve requirement. So, after making the corresponding calculation, the current liquidity reserve is approximately 10% of deposits and the liquidity reserves actually held by the institutions is approximately 17% of deposits (previously about 22%).

03/19/2020

The extension of the Temporary Measures for the Calculation of the Liquidity Reserve (Medidas Temporales para el Cálculo de la Reserva de Liquidez) to February 23, 2023, approved during Session No. CN-01/2019, which would reduce the liquidity reserve by 10% of the productive credit granted by financial institutions, was repealed and replaced by the “Temporary Technical Regulations for the Granting of Loans.”

06/23/2021

The Technical Standards for the Calculation and Use of the Liquidity Reserve on Deposits and Other Obligations (NRP-28) which are intended to provide the parameters for the calculation of the Liquidity Reserve requirement to be maintained by regulated entities establish that during the phase-in period, which began on June 23, 2021, and ends on June 21, 2022, the liquidity reserve requirement will be subject to discounts related to:

(1) A percentage of the average balance that the entities subject to the Temporary Technical Standards for the Calculation of the Liquidity Reserve (NPBT-04) used for the calculation of the Liquidity Reserve requirement in the 14-day periods from March 31 to May 11, 2021 (approximated to two decimal places) and

(2) A percentage of the amount that the entities subject to the Temporary Technical Standards to Encourage Lending (NPBT-05) reported as a discount for the calculation of the Liquidity Reserve requirement in the 14-day period from June 9 to June 22, 2021 (approximated to two decimal places).

Exchange tax	Yes.	Transfers of funds with the rest of the world are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market but not exceeding 1%, excluding the turnover tax (VAT) and any other special tax. Licensed intermediaries may affect transfers with the rest of the world through the BEAC. Within the CEMAC, transfers of funds are subject to transfer fees determined freely by the market and not exceeding 0.25%, excluding the VAT and any other special tax.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Licensing of exchange bureaus is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC member countries. Their operations are limited to OTC transactions. Licensed intermediaries, who set their own exchange rates with their customers for currencies other than the euro, may freely conduct foreign exchange transactions with their customers. The BEAC's OTC foreign exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	Within the limits of available stocks, the BEAC's OTC exchange transactions are conducted exclusively with national public accountants and treasuries.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.

EQUATORIAL GUINEA

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are no restrictions on interbank foreign exchange transactions within the CEMAC. Exchange transactions are OTC transactions. The BEAC does not intervene in exchange transactions within the CEMAC. These transactions are freely conducted by operators licensed by the MOF with the approval of the Central African Banking Commission (COBAC). A fee of no more than 3% for CFA franc area notes and 5% for other currencies, not including the VAT and any other specific tax, is collected by licensed intermediaries on transactions in foreign banknotes and traveler's checks. This fee covers all charges on OTC transactions and the intermediation margin.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions are conducted on an OTC basis.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	There is no forward foreign exchange market in the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may enter into forward exchange contracts up to a limit of CFAF 100 million on presentation of supporting documentation (invoices, debt repayment schedules, or other foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments) and must report such activities to the BEAC. For amounts over CFAF 100 million, requests for forward exchange contracts must be made to the BEAC so that their purpose may be verified.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	Within the CEMAC, the CFA franc is used freely for payments and receipts relating to current and capital transactions and payments. Settlements with all countries other than CEMAC members must be made through correspondent banks in one of the currencies of the two parties or in any other currency agreed on by the two parties to the transaction.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The monetary unit is the CFA franc, which is the sole official currency and legal tender in all CEMAC member countries. Consequently, transactions among residents must be settled in domestic currency.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.

EQUATORIAL GUINEA

Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account links all the countries with the French Treasury. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros in exchange for CFA francs are ultimately settled by a debit or credit to the operations account. Governments may maintain foreign currency deposits related to oil reserves at commercial banks and use them to meet their external debt service obligations. Exchange regulations in the CEMAC member countries are harmonized.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	Yes.
Administration of control	Yes.	Administration of the foreign exchange regulations is the responsibility of the MOFs of the CEMAC countries, which may delegate all or a portion of their authority to the BEAC, the COBAC, and licensed intermediaries. For example, authority is delegated to licensed intermediaries to carry out transactions with the rest of the world. They must verify the validity of transactions, collect statistics, and report these activities to the monetary authorities. However, certain types of transactions may not be delegated. The BEAC supervises the exchange regulations; evaluates foreign exchange hedging operations; reviews requests for approval of opening of foreign exchange accounts by some resident legal entities; and monitors the repatriation of export proceeds. The COBAC ensures that licensed intermediaries comply with certain provisions of these regulations, especially to prevent weakening of the CEMAC banking system.
Payments arrears	No.	Licensed intermediaries may freely execute their customers' payment orders. The related transfers may, at their request, be made through the BEAC. In this context, the MCA with France serves to guarantee the convertibility of the CFA franc. No payment arrears are allowed on the grounds that insufficient foreign exchange is available.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	CEMAC residents are free to hold, purchase, and sell gold in any form within the CEMAC.
On external trade	Yes.	Except in the case of manufactured articles containing small quantities of gold, CEMAC gold imports and exports are subject to approval by the appropriate authorities. The national treasuries and the BEAC are exempt from this requirement.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents traveling from one country to another within the CEMAC may take with them an unlimited amount of CEMAC banknotes and coins.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be exported to countries outside the CEMAC. However, departing resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million. During their trips outside the CEMAC, travelers must use payment instruments other than BEAC banknotes (foreign currency, traveler's checks, bank drafts, transfers, etc.).
Foreign currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on exit, declare any foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities. Nonresident travelers leaving the CEMAC may take with them foreign currency valued at up to the amount they declared on entering the CEMAC. If they made no declaration on entry or if they are carrying sums exceeding those they brought into the CEMAC, they must explain the source of the amount in excess of CFAF 1 million. Supporting documents include pay slips and work permits (wage income), student cards (parental assistance for students and trainees), and notarized instruments (donations), among others.

On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs issued by the BEAC may not be imported from countries outside the CEMAC. However, arriving resident travelers may have in their possession up to CFAF 5 million.
Foreign currency	No.	Resident and nonresident travelers crossing CEMAC borders must, on entry, declare foreign currency, securities, or instruments valued at more than CFAF 5 million to the customs authorities.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may not open foreign exchange accounts in local banks. However, the BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow certain resident legal entities to open foreign exchange accounts. These accounts may not be credited with CFA francs or with debits from CFA franc accounts. The authorization to open bank accounts in foreign currency is granted by the BEAC.
Held abroad	Yes.	Resident legal entities, except credit institutions, are prohibited from opening foreign currency bank accounts outside the CEMAC in accordance with Regulation No. 02/18/CEMAC/UMAC/CM. However, the BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019.
Approval required	Yes.	The BEAC may allow a resident legal entity to open a foreign currency account outside the CEMAC in accordance with the terms and conditions set out in a BEAC directive in June 2019.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Accounts in domestic currency held abroad are permitted.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident foreign exchange accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for any nonresident, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the opening of nonresident CFA franc accounts within the CEMAC. Licensed intermediaries may open such accounts for nonresidents, on request, provided they inform the monetary authorities. Such accounts may not be overdrawn.
Convertible into foreign currency	No.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.	The exchange regulations do not limit access to foreign exchange. Payments for imports must be made regularly through licensed intermediaries.
Financing requirements for imports	No.	Economic agents may freely enter into commercial contracts with their partners abroad. These contracts are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations.
Minimum financing requirements	No.	There are no financing requirements.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license. Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legally registered legal entities and declared or certified professionals may be exempt from the requirement to produce supporting documents, provided they submit an annual estimate of imports corroborated by a business forecast.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	Imports valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a resident licensed intermediary.
Preshipment inspection	No.	There are no specific provisions for inspections at the CEMAC level. The member countries may freely apply their own regulations in this regard.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	Import licenses are not used in the CEMAC countries to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade, as defined in the Compilation Guide. When such licenses exist, they are used for trade policy purposes.
Other	Yes.	For import payments of less than CFAF 100 million, the licensed intermediary must obtain a pro forma or original invoice, a bill of lading, or the commercial contract, along with the most recent tax receipt or a professional license (registration number, professional ID card, extract from the commercial registry, or tax clearance). Payments of more than CFAF 100 million must be settled through a licensed intermediary, which must check the supporting documents. Legal entities and certified professionals can no longer use annual estimates of imports and must produce all supporting documents to carry out transactions.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	In general, CEMAC countries no longer use quantitative restrictions as a means of protecting local production. Merchandise originating from all countries may be freely imported, with the exception of gold, to which special regulations apply.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of some products may be prohibited, restricted, or require national authorization for humanitarian, security, or health reasons.
Open general licenses	No.	There is no system of OGLs at the CEMAC level.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.

EQUATORIAL GUINEA

Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The CEMAC CET applies to imports from non-CEMAC countries, at four rates: 5% for staple goods, 10% for raw materials and capital goods, 20% for intermediate goods, and 30% for consumer goods. The taxes are imposed by the national customs administration in CFA francs at the merchandise point of entry.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	Licensed intermediaries are responsible for withholding all taxes and related fees established by law and surrendering them to the monetary authority.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Export-related transactions must be reported to the appropriate administrative authorities, and all those exceeding CFAF 5 million must be domiciled at a licensed CEMAC bank. Export proceeds originating in non-CEMAC countries must be collected and repatriated immediately, through the domiciling bank, with the BEAC acting as intermediary.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC within 3 days of collection.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Financing requirements	No.	Economic agents and their partners abroad may enter freely into commercial contracts, which are executed through the banking system, subject to compliance with the exchange regulations. There are no financing requirements.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Transactions related to exports to non-CEMAC countries valued at more than CFAF 5 million must be domiciled with a local licensed bank. Each domiciliation file must contain an export contract, a foreign exchange declaration under which the exporter agrees to repatriate all export earnings within a month of the payment due date, and a customs export certificate duly signed by a customs officer.
Letters of credit	No.	The use of LCs by economic agents for the settlement of transactions is allowed but optional.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	The exchange regulations, including the section on capital flows within the CEMAC, do not apply to transactions between CEMAC member countries. There are no restrictions on most capital flows between CEMAC and non-CEMAC countries, provided they comply with the laws and regulations prohibiting drug financing and trafficking. Certain loans, direct investments, and the issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities within the CEMAC are subject to administrative controls and require approval from the appropriate authorities. Controls on these transactions are applied indiscriminately to countries in the CFA franc area, other than CEMAC member countries, and all non-CFA franc area countries. Moreover, Article 61 of the General Regulations of the Central African Financial Market Supervisory Commission (COSUMAF), which entered into effect January 15, 2009, specifies that “when a nonresident legal entity plans a public offering on the Central African regional financial market, it must prepare a disclosure document and submit it to COSUMAF for approval prior to dissemination. The prior approval of the exchange control authority in the various countries concerned must also be obtained.” The article also states that “the issuer must appoint a correspondent (securities dealer) established in a CEMAC member state, where it elects domicile. This correspondent must be responsible for: (1) receiving correspondence from COSUMAF and (2) forwarding to COSUMAF all documents and information required under the laws and regulations or requested by COSUMAF.”
---	------	---

EQUATORIAL GUINEA

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	In the context of the centralization of foreign exchange reserves, foreign currency collected from capital transactions must be repatriated immediately after collection.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Amounts collected in foreign currencies must be surrendered to the BEAC no later than 3 days after receipt.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of foreign securities (shares and bonds issued by foreign enterprises) whose value exceeds CFAF 10 million are subject to MOF approval. Under CEMAC exchange regulations, transactions in capital market securities are treated in the same way as simple borrowing and lending operations, as opposed to direct investments, when the shares or equity held by the individual or legal entity represent less than 10% of the enterprise’s total equity. Borrowing and lending are not regulated by type of instrument or maturity.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities by nonresidents. Transactions must be reported 30 days before the transaction when the transaction is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, the transaction is subject to prior CB approval.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, advertisement, and sale of securities within the CEMAC are subject to CB approval when the amount involved exceeds CFAF 50 million. Transactions must be reported to the BEAC within 30 days.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment for purchases of securities abroad by residents. Transactions must be declared 30 days before the transaction when the amount is less than CFAF 20 million. Above this amount, it requires prior CB approval.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may verify and make payment abroad for the sale or issuance of securities by residents. Transactions must be reported within 30 days. Prior approval by the Banking Commission is required in all occasions.

Free floating	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Estonia participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. The published exchange rates, which are the average of the sale and purchase rates, reflect the market conditions prevailing at the time of the concertation. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates (ECB reference rates) is around 4:00 p.m. Central European Time. The publication regime reinforces the concept of the ECB foreign exchange rate as a purely informative one.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community.” These include a “high level of employment” and “sustainable and non-inflationary growth.” Effective July 7, 2021, price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term (previously, it was defined as inflation rate below but close to 2% over the medium term). For the Bank of Estonia (BOE), the price stability as the primary objective is set down by the BOE Act, Section 2(1).
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Transactions in convertible currencies are effected by commercial banks, which are free to quote their own exchange rates.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	According to the Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing Prevention Act (MLTFPA), foreign exchange bureaus are required to have authorization by the FIU, a governmental authority in the area of government of the MOF, which is autonomously engaged in regulatory enforcement. Foreign exchange bureaus are supervised by the FIU.

Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	Yes.	Estonia has bilateral agreements with Armenia, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Kazakhstan, the Kyrgyz Republic, Latvia, Lithuania, Moldova, Russia, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, Ukraine, and Uzbekistan. Euro balances held by the CBs of these countries in their correspondent accounts are fully convertible without delay. No swing credits or overdraft facilities are provided by these arrangements. These agreements were concluded at the end of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics as an ad hoc measure, to regulate bilateral obligations with the former Soviet Republics after the demise of the central authority. For now, all these agreements have been inoperative for a very long time.
Regional arrangements	No.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The BOE issues and enforces foreign exchange regulations. The MOF controls and monitors imports and exports. Official	Yes.	All settlement issues with Russia pertain to official debt.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Registration with the Ministry of Economic Affairs and Communications is required before companies may trade in precious metals (including gold).
On external trade	Yes.	Exports and imports of gold are subject to registration requirements administered by the Ministry of Economic Affairs and Communications.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	In accordance with Regulation (EC) No 2018/1672, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EU regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders.
On exports	No.
Domestic currency	No.	In accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 2018/1672, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more.

Blocked accounts	Yes.	In the event of suspicion of money laundering or terrorism financing, the FIU may issue an instruction to suspend transactions for up to 30 days after the percept is issued and impose restrictions on disposal of the proceeds of an account or other property constituting the object of the transaction, official operation, or official service or other suspect assets or property (MLTFPA, Section 57(1)). Within the term specified in this section of the MLTFPA, transactions may take place or restriction of disposal of an account or other property may be waived only with written consent of the FIU. During the restriction period, the credit institution or financial institution may not execute any account debit requests by the account holder. In addition to the provisions of this section of the MLTFPA, the FIU may, on the basis of an instruction, restrict the use of property for up to 60 days if (1) during verification of the origin of the property there is suspicion of money laundering and the owner or possessor of the property fails to submit evidence certifying a legal origin of the property to the FIU within 30 days of the suspension of the transaction or as of the imposition of restrictions or (2) the property is suspected to be used for terrorism financing. The Tax and Customs Board may block accounts used to enable illegal gambling through issuance of an order to the relevant bank instructing it to block the account and freeze the assets. The Tax and Customs Board specifies a period during which anyone who has transferred funds to this account may apply for a refund. The application must be accompanied by evidence (proof of transaction). After investigation, but no more than 30 days later, the Tax and Customs Board decides whether the application is substantiated and the refund should be granted. Seizure of any assets held in an account with a credit or financial institution means imposition of such restrictions on the use of the account during which the credit institution or financial institution does not comply with any account debiting instructions to the extent of the assets seized.

The International Sanctions Act (2020) regulates the internal imposition, implementation, and supervision of international sanctions of the UN, EU, other international organizations, and the Estonian government. It imposes obligations, including to block accounts and notify the FIU of possible international financial sanctions. International sanctions are imposed with regard to a state, territory, territorial unit, regime, organization, association, group or person by a resolution of the UNSC, a decision of the EC or any other legislation imposing obligations on Estonia. International sanctions imposed by a resolution of the UNSC must be implemented with regard to the subjects of the international sanctions listed by the committee established on the basis of the resolution until the regulation of the EC is updated or adopted.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	EU legislation applies (Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 26, 2013, on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms and amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012 text with EEA relevance). There is no differentiation on the basis of currency or residence. For example, interest rate restriction (annual percentage rate restriction for consumer credits) applies to all consumer credit contracts. Also, credit institutions have liquidity requirements, which do not depend on currency. Effective February 10, 2021, the Estonian Financial Supervision Authority recommended financial sector institutions be conservative in paying out dividends to soothe the impact of COVID-19. The introduced recommended limits for the distribution of profits by credit institutions, insurance companies, and investment firms were introduced until the end of September 2021.
Borrowing abroad	No.	There is no restriction on borrowing from abroad.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	Commercial banks may open correspondent accounts with commercial banks worldwide, including in Russia and other CIS countries. Restrictions according to the MLTFPA apply.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.	Regulations regarding lending do not differentiate on the basis of nonresidents and residents. Regulations covering lending provisions are the same for all.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	No.	There is no restriction on currencies. Contracting parties can agree

Abroad by banks	No.
In banks by nonresidents	No.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	Article 351 of the CRR (EU) No. 575/2013 applies to credit institutions and investment firms.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	No.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	According to the EU legislation (Directive 2009/138/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of November 25, 2009, on the taking up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance (Solvency II)), prudent person principle applies and there is no differential treatment of securities issued by nonresidents or residents.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	EU legislation applies. There are no specific limits on investment portfolios held abroad just as there are no limits on investment portfolios held locally.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	There are no currency-matching regulations on the composition of assets and liabilities.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	A pension fund may invest up to 100% of its assets in foreign securities traded in regulated markets of Estonia or other countries, as specified in the fund rules. Pension funds may also invest their assets in money market instruments and units or shares of funds that are not traded in regulated markets. The investment portfolio must be diversified. Assets of a conservative pension fund (mandatory

		pension fund) may be invested in bonds (1) with at least an investment grade rating from a rating agency registered in accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1060/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council on credit rating agencies (OJ L 302, November 17, 2009, pp. 1–31—hereinafter in this section “rating agency”); (2) whose issuer has at least an investment grade rating from a rating agency, if the bonds have no rating; (3) whose issuer, if the parent company is a credit institution, has at least an investment grade rating from a rating agency, if the bonds and their credit institution issuer have no credit rating; and (4) guaranteed by a contracting country or an OECD member with at least an investment grade rating from a rating agency. If the specified rating agencies have issued different credit ratings, the management company must take the lowest current credit rating into consideration. Effective November 6, 2020, up to 20% of the market value of the assets of a conservative pension fund may also be invested in other assets not listed above. Previously, up to 10% of the market value of the assets of a conservative pension fund could also be invested in unrated securities issued by a company of a contracting country or an OECD member or by a company in which a public sector entity of such a country has a majority holding or that is under the dominant influence of a public sector entity of such a country, if the country has at least an investment grade credit rating from a rating agency and the company meets at least one of the requirements specified in Subsection 91(2) of the Authorized Public Accountants Act.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	The total net position of investments in securities denominated in foreign currency may not exceed 25% of assets of the fund for a conservative pension fund. Effective June 12, 2021, there is no ceiling for other mandatory funds (previously 50%).
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Conservative pension funds’ overall net open position of investments in securities denominated in foreign exchange may not exceed 25% of the assets of a conservative pension fund. Effective June 12, 2021, there is no ceiling for other mandatory funds (previously 50%). Effective November 6, 2020, assets of the conservative pension fund must be invested at least to the extent of 80% in total in: (1) deposits; (2) bonds and other equivalent debt obligations; (3) money market instruments if they have been admitted to trading on a regulated market; (4) units or shares of such funds which assets are mainly invested in deposits or bonds; (5) derivative instruments which underlying assets are the assets specified above.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	All investment funds may invest up to 100% of their assets in foreign securities. In general, the assets of UCITS and other open-end public funds must be invested in securities that are freely transferable and traded in regulated markets of Estonia and EEA members or other countries, as specified in the fund rules. As a general rule, no more than 10% of investment fund assets may be invested in transferable securities (including covered bonds) issued by the same body. However, UCITS may invest up to 25% of their assets in covered bonds of a single body if the bonds are issued by an EU credit institution.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on	No.

Exchange tax No.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes.

Spot exchange market Yes. The CBE conducts foreign exchange transactions with four ADs (commercial banks), three bureaux – ADs with limited authority – and the government; and issues licenses. Foreign exchange bureaux may engage in the purchase and sale of foreign exchange with travelers and other ADs. Three bureaux are currently licensed and they report to the CBE.

Operated by the central bank Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility Yes. The CBE buys and sells rand at the official exchange rate with no commission charged. The CBE conducts foreign exchange transactions with four ADs (commercial banks), three bureaux – ADs with Limited Authority, and with the government.

Allocation No.

Auction No.

Fixing No.

Interbank market Yes. There is an interbank foreign exchange market, but the transaction volume is low. High-volume transactions in foreign exchange are conducted between local commercial banks and commercial banks based in South Africa. There are four banks participating in the interbank market.

CBE does intervene directly in the market to:
 (1) Provide ZAR liquidity by buying and selling against the local currency (SZL), with the four local commercial banks.
 (2) Buy foreign currency export proceeds from local commercial banks in spot market.

Over the counter Yes.

Brokerage No.

Market making No.

Forward exchange market Yes. The CBE permits ADs to engage in forward exchange operations.

The forward exchange rates are market determined.

Since May 2018, CBE has actively participated in the local market by buying foreign currency export proceeds from the local commercial banks. Currently CBE trades only with three banks in these operations. This is for both spot and outright forward transactions. No swaps are traded.

Official cover of forward operations No.

ETHIOPIA

November 2019, the exchange rate increased its flexibility but then followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar since February 2020. There were two realignments, one in June 2020 and a second one in August 2020, each within a 6-month period. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified twice: (1) retroactively to other managed from crawl-like, effective November 18, 2019, and (2) to crawl-like from other managed, effective February 3, 2020. The NBE publishes the exchange rates and the amount traded in the interbank market on its periodical publications. Currently, the NBE intervenes in the foreign exchange market an amount of US$50,000 on daily basis to determine the indicative exchange rate. The intervention data is publicly available on monthly basis in the quarterly and annual bulletins of the Bank. After one-month lag of each quarter and fiscal year, the intervention information is available to the public.

To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Commercial banks may issue guarantees on behalf of foreign banks to resident companies.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	Residents may not invest abroad.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	Effective April 2, 2020, Investment Proclamation No. 1180/2020 introduced a new framework to register and administer foreign direct investment. It included provisions for a minimum capital amount per project a foreign investor must invest ranging from US$50,000 to US$200,000 depending on the type of investment being undertaken. Effective September 2, 2020, the new Investment Regulation (No. 474/2020) entered into force. Both the Investment Proclamation and Regulation ease regulations for FDI companies through recognizing the increasing role of the private sector to leverage foreign capital. According to the regulation, five sectors are reserved for joint investment with the government, thirty-two sectors exclusively reserved for domestic investors, and seven sectors for a joint venture with domestic investors. All sectors that are not listed in these categories are open for foreign investment. Any investor (foreign or domestic) may only invest in the following sectors jointly with the government: defense industries, import & export of electrical energies, international air transport services, bus rapid transit and postal services excluding courier services. Investment Regulation (No. 474/2020) lists sectors which are reserved for only domestic investors. These include investments in finance sector except capital goods finance, the transmission and supply of electricity through the Integrated National Grid System as well as whole sale & retail trades, health services, export of raw coffee, khat, oil seeds, pulses, minerals, hides and skins, products of natural forests, chicken and livestock, and hospitality industries. In addition, a foreign investor may jointly invest with a domestic investor in freight forwarding and shipping agency services, domestic air transport services, and cross-country public transport using buses having a capacity of more than 45 seats, advertisement, audiovisual, accounting and auditing services. In such cases, foreign investor(s) can own up to a maximum of 49% of share capital. Previously, investment only in the telecommunications and defense industries was allowed in partnership with the government. Investment in the postal service (except courier service), the transmission and supply of electricity through the Integrated National Grid System, and air transport services using aircraft that seat more than 50 passengers was reserved for the government. All investment (except expansion of air transport services, the generation or transmission or distribution of electric power, and the provision of communications services) must be approved and certified by the Ethiopian Investment Commission (EIC). However, the issuance, renewal, amendment, substitution, replacement and cancellation of investment permits, and the issuance of investment expansion or upgrading permits for air transport services, the generation or transmission or distribution of electric power, and the provision of communications services must be carried out by the Ethiopian Civil Aviation Authority, the Ethiopian Energy Authority, and the Ethiopian Communications Authority, respectively, representing the commission. Income tax exemptions are granted for up to six years for new projects in manufacturing and agro-industry that export at least 50% of production or for which at least 75% of production is used in the production of export items. Expansion and upgrading of existing projects are also eligible for exemption from income tax for two years if the expansion or upgrade increases production value by 25% and if 50% of the production is for export. Investment activities that export less than 50% of their production and produce exclusively for the local market receive up to three years of income tax exemption. Imports of investment goods and inputs for such ventures are also eligible for exemption from customs duties and other specified import levies. The new investment incentives as well as the type and amount of investment incentives must be determined by a Regulation to be enacted by the Council of Ministers. There is no new enacted incentive regulation yet, but the incentives of the former regulation (270/2012) are still applicable.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment	Yes.	EIC authorization is required for repatriation of capital. Registration of capital inflows with the EIC establishes the evidence of inflows required for authorization. All recognized and registered foreign investment may be terminated on presentation of documents regarding liquidation and on payment of all taxes and other liabilities. Subject to appropriate documentation, foreign investors may transfer their capital without limitation on final departure from Ethiopia. All foreign investors may also transfer abroad in convertible currency payments for debts, fees, or royalties with respect to technology transfer agreements.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.

ETHIOPIA

Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	All ownership rights to land are vested in the state; private ownership is not allowed. Land user rights may be acquired through certificates or lease arrangements. Foreign investors may not own land, but may obtain access to land through lease arrangements with the government.
Sale locally by nonresidents	Yes.	All ownership rights to land are vested in the state; private ownership is not allowed.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.
Loans	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	No person may enter into a foreign loan contract without the prior consultation with the NBE in the case of the government and approval by the NBE in all other cases.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	No person may enter into a foreign loan contract without the prior consultation with the NBE in the case of the government and approval by the NBE in all other cases.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.

Previously, only foreign nationals of Ethiopian origin were allowed to invest, and implementation modalities had not been put in place.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The overall foreign currency position of each bank at the close of business each Friday may not exceed 15% of its capital. Commercial banks' holdings of foreign currency notes are limited to 5% of paid-up capital. The overall open foreign currency position is computed as follows: First, the difference between assets and liabilities in each foreign currency is determined and categorized either as a long or as a short position. Second, open positions in each foreign currency as determined and categorized under the first step are converted to their birr equivalents using the buying rate at the close of business on Friday. Third, the birr equivalents of open positions in each foreign currency obtained under the second step are added up to arriving at the total long and short positions. Fourth, the greater of the total long or short position determined under the third step is divided by the bank's total capital to obtain the ratio. Last, the ratio obtained under the fourth step is compared with the limit on the overall open foreign currency position.

Conventional peg	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement is a conventional peg vis-à-vis a currency composite. The Reserve Bank of Fiji (RBF) does not publish intervention data. The power to establish the fixed exchange rate arrangement is provided in the RBF Act. A change in the exchange rate arrangement may be proposed by the RBF and approved by the minister for economy. The exchange rate weights at the latest weight review are as follows: US dollar 39.8%, Australian dollar 29.3%, New Zealand dollar 21.9%, Japanese yen 4.8%, and euro 4.2%. The weights are published in the RBF's annual reports.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The external value of the Fiji dollar is officially determined on the basis of a weighted basket of currencies comprising the Australian dollar, Japanese yen, New Zealand dollar, euro, and US dollar. The relative weights are based on three-year moving averages of Fiji's direction of trade and are reviewed annually. The exchange rate of the Fiji dollar vis-à-vis the US dollar, the intervention currency, is fixed daily by the RBF on the basis of quotes for the US dollar and other currencies in the basket. The spread is 5 basis points (bps) on either side of the midrate. The official exchange rate is used for accounting and valuation purposes.

Monetary policy framework

Exchange rate anchor

Yes.

U.S. dollar

Euro

Composite

Yes. The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis a composite. The fixed exchange rate regime, combined with capital controls, allows some autonomy in monetary policy. The main policy instrument is the overnight policy rate. Its target corridor comprises a 25 bps band around the overnight rate, with the repurchase rate at the upper bound and the deposit rate at the lower bound. While the current system targets interest rates through monetary operations, the bank continues to monitor monetary aggregates such as liquidity/bank demand deposits, which serve as indicators and cross-checks.

Exchange tax No.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. The RBF determines the maximum spreads of the currencies in the basket within which commercial banks may deal with their customers. These are 170 bps for the US dollar, 120 bps for the euro, 300 bps for the Japanese yen, 250 bps for the Australian dollar, and 330 bps for the New Zealand dollar. ADs may freely determine their foreign exchange commissions with their clients.

Spot exchange market Yes. Six commercial banks and ten foreign exchange dealers are licensed by the RBF. They may make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients and maintain foreign exchange accounts with domestic commercial banks. Their transaction limits are based on their total paid-up capital. Foreign exchange dealers may deal only among themselves and not with the RBF. Money changers may deal only in travel-related transactions and the purchase and sale of banknotes.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The RBF buys and sells US dollars at the official buying and selling rates. It deals—with commercial banks—once a day and with selected account holders. The width of the spread is F$0.0005 on either side of the midrate.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	ADs are allowed to trade among themselves. The RBF deals only with commercial banks and selected account holders at its own quoted rates. There are six banks participating in the interbank market.
Over the counter	Yes.	The market operates over the counter.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Forward exchange facilities are provided by banks. Each authorized bank may write net forward sales contracts up to F$50 million. The RBF does not participate actively in the forward foreign exchange market.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Although no specific requirements exist, settlements between entities from two countries must be made in convertible currencies acceptable to both countries.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	There are controls on the use of domestic currency and on foreign exchange that may be remitted offshore for the settlement of international current and capital transactions. ADs may transfer up to certain delegated limits without RBF approval, depending on the type of payment, as specified in the Exchange Control regulation.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2020.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Finland maintains exchange restrictions imposed by EU Council regulations referred to below and does so solely for the preservation of national and international security. Accordingly, various restrictions apply with respect to Afghanistan, Belarus, Burundi, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, the Central African Republic, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Eritrea, Guinea-Bissau, Guinea (Conakry), Haiti, the Islamic Republic of Iran, Iraq, Libya, Mali, Moldova, Myanmar, Nicaragua, Russia, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan, Syria, Tunisia, Ukraine, Venezuela, Yemen, the former Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Bosnia and Herzegovina, Serbia and Montenegro), and Zimbabwe and to certain individuals and groups involved in terrorism. Effective March 16, 2021, Council Regulation (EU) No. 2021/445 of March 12, 2021, repealed Regulation (EU) No. 270/2011 concerning restrictive measures directed against certain persons, entities, and bodies in view of the situation in Egypt.
Other security restrictions	No.

Floating

Free floating Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Finland participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Official exchange rate Yes. Euro foreign exchange reference rates are based on a regular daily concertation procedure between CBs across Europe and worldwide, which normally takes place at 2:15 p.m. Central European Time. On July 1, 2016, the ECB changed the publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates (ECB reference rates) from around 2.30 p.m. Central European Time to around 4.00 p.m. Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates. The publication regime aims to reinforce the distinction between exchange rate fixings used as benchmarks for transaction purposes and the ECB reference rates that are published for information purposes only.

Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EU regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders.

Other monetary framework                      Yes.      To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). “Without prejudice to the objective of price stability,” the Eurosystem will also “support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community.” These include a “high level of employment” and “sustainable and non-inflationary growth.” Effective July 7, 2021, price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term. Previously, it was defined as inflation below but close to 2% over the medium term.

Exchange tax    No.

Exchange subsidy                                      No.

Foreign exchange market                      Yes.      ADs may freely set their exchange rates and commissions in foreign exchange transactions with their clients. Registered banks in France and Monaco, which may also act on behalf of banks abroad or in Operations Account countries, are permitted to deal spot or forward in the foreign exchange market in France. Registered banks may also deal spot or forward with their correspondents in foreign markets in all currencies.

Spot exchange market                              Yes.      Currency exchange offices (“changeurs manuels”) are allowed to operate in France; they must obtain a license from the Autorité de contrôle prudentiel et de résolution (ACPR—Prudential Control Authority and Resolution) before starting their activity. As of December 31, 2018, 179 currency exchange offices were registered in France. They are authorized to conduct foreign exchange activities following Article L524-1 of the Monetary and Financial Code: “A money-changing transaction entails the immediate exchange of bills or banknotes denominated in different currencies. The fact of accepting, in exchange for cash delivered to a client, a settlement via another means of payment, also constitutes a money-changing transaction, provided it is denominated in a different currency.” To conduct money transfer activities, companies must either obtain a license to operate as a credit, electronic money, or payment institution or be an agent of an authorized credit, electronic money, or payment institution. The ACPR is in charge of on-site and off-site control of currency exchange offices’ compliance with the Anti-Money Laundering/Combating the Financing of Terrorism regulations. Accounts in foreign countries are not prohibited. Currency exchange offices submit to the ACPR their total foreign currency sales and purchases annually.

Interbank market	Yes.	There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants. As of June 30, 2021, there were five major French banking groups active in the interbank foreign exchange market in France. In addition, subsidiaries of foreign banks provide quotes for foreign exchange transactions. The CB intervenes directly with market participants at their quoted rates.
Over the counter	Yes.	The foreign exchange market operates over the counter.
Brokerage	Yes.	Brokerage is used marginally.
Market making	Yes.	The interbank foreign exchange market operates on the basis of a market-making agreement, under which participants commit to a maximum spread and a minimum amount to trade.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	All residents, including private persons, may purchase and sell foreign exchange forward without restriction. Forward sales of foreign currency are not restricted, whether or not they are for hedging purposes. The Bank of France participates in the foreign exchange market on its own account. Under Article L151-2 of the Monetary and Financial Code, the government may, in the national interest, by decree subject to authorization, control, or declaration regulate exchange operations between France and foreign countries.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	No.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	No.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.	In accordance with EU Regulation No. 1889/2005, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash (domestic or foreign currency) entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national financial intelligence unit. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EU regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	No.
Foreign currency	Yes.	At the request of Algeria, Morocco, and Tunisia, banknotes issued by these countries may not be exchanged in France. For Algeria and Morocco, the importation/exportation of currency is possible with limit, while for Tunisia, it is generally forbidden.

and introduced major changes to the FDI review process. Effective May 1, 2020, biotechnology was added to the list of critical technologies subject to the foreign investment screening procedure. Effective July 23, 2020, in the specific context of COVID-19 crisis, the voting rights threshold in sensitive companies which triggers screening procedure was lowered from 25% to 10%, only for listed companies and according to a special procedure. EU and EEA investors are exempted from this measure, which is set to end on December 31, 2021, but may be extended until the end of 2022. Effective October 11, 2020, the FDI screening regulation adopted in March 2019 established an EU-wide framework in which the European Commission and the Member States can coordinate their actions on foreign investments.
