Effective July 20, 2020, in connection with the easing of liability measures with respect to participants in foreign economic activity for violation of the repatriation requirement, which reduces the number of grounds on which residents may face administrative liability, residents may credit to foreign accounts funds from nonresidents that are subject to repatriation to an account with an authorized bank on the condition that these funds are subsequently transferred within 45 days to an account at an authorized bank.

Residents fulfill the repatriation requirement if they have arranged for: (1) receipt in their bank account of payment under a contract insuring against a nonresident's failure to fulfill obligations under a foreign trade contract as specified in Federal Law No. 164-FZ of December 8, 2003, on the Principles of Government Regulation of Foreign Trade Activity, for activities related to insuring export loans and investments against business and/or political risks, provided the ratio in the insurance contract between the insurance amount and the insured value (level of indemnification) equals or exceeds the value established by law; (2) receipt in their bank accounts opened at authorized banks and/or bank accounts that have been opened at authorized banks by a resident who is the beneficiary, of foreign currency or Russian Federation currency under a transaction ensuring the fulfillment of a nonresident's obligations under a foreign trade agreement (contract) and provided for by the procedure established by the Russian Federation government in accordance with Federal Law No. 164-FZ of December 8, 2003, on the Principles of Government Regulation of Foreign Trade Activity for the performance of activities related to insuring and securing export credits and investments against business and/or political risks, on the condition that the monetary amount received is equal to or greater than the value established by said procedure, in line with the procedure and deadlines provided for by the relevant transaction.

A resident who is a recipient of funds in accordance with the terms of a transferable letter of credit, when performing settlements under a foreign trade agreement (contract) concluded with a nonresident for goods transferred to the nonresident, work performed for him, services provided to him, information and intellectual property transferred to him, including exclusive rights thereto, is considered to have fulfilled the repatriation requirement if he has ensured, within the deadlines specified by the given agreement (contract), in accordance with the terms of the transferable letter of credit from a bank located outside the territory of the Russian Federation or from the authorized bank to which the instruction was given to transfer the transferable letter of credit (the executing bank), the receipt of foreign currency and/or Russian Federation currency in his bank accounts at authorized banks and/or in bank accounts at authorized banks of the second resident recipient of funds (or second resident recipients of funds) to whom the execution of the transferable letter of credit is to be performed in accordance with the terms of the agreement concluded between the resident recipient of the funds and the second recipient(s) of the funds.

Foreign exchange operations related to settlements in foreign currency within the framework of financing agreements concluded between residents against the assignment of a monetary claim (factoring), under which monetary claims in foreign currency or rubles owed to residents by nonresidents on foreign trade contracts are assigned to residents who are financial agents (factors), are performed without restriction. For the purpose of ensuring compliance with the obligation on the part of residents to repatriate funds when performing foreign trade activity, a resident who has entered into a foreign trade contract with a nonresident and who has assigned the monetary claim under the contract to a resident factor, is required to ensure that funds are received from the nonresident according to the general rule – within the time period specified by the foreign trade contract. Monitoring of residents' compliance with the repatriation requirement is carried out within the framework of monitoring performed in accordance with BR Instruction No. 181-I of August 16, 2017, on the Procedure for the Submission of Supporting Documents and Information by Residents and Nonresidents to Authorized Banks in the Performance of Foreign Exchange Operations, on Standard Accounting and Reporting Forms for Foreign Exchange Operations, and the Procedure and Deadlines for their Submission.

counterclaims on obligations arising from agreements on the provision of international telecommunications services, including international roaming services, are offset between a nonresident and a resident that are international telecommunications operators, including situations in which settlements between them are performed through specialized settlement organizations registered within member states of the International Telecommunication Union; and (9) when foreign currency or currency of the Russian Federation is credited to accounts opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation by Russian public higher education institutions and their branches located outside the territory of the Russian Federation, under education contracts with nonresident individuals that provide for the delivery of educational services outside the territory of the Russian Federation; (10) effective February 17, 2021, in the event of the posting of funds to their own accounts at authorized banks in the form of insurance payments from resident insurance companies under insurance contracts to cover the risk of default by a nonresident on obligations under foreign trade export contracts; (11) effective June 28, 2021, in the event of the posting of funds to their own accounts at authorized banks under a bank guarantee issued to nonresidents in favor of residents to secure fulfillment of a nonresident's obligations under a foreign trade contract.

The foreign currency credited in accordance with Items (1) and (3) to the accounts of residents or third parties with banks abroad must be used to meet the residents' obligations as specified under said items or transferred to accounts with authorized banks.

Effective July 20, 2020, in connection with the easing of liability measures with respect to participants in foreign economic activity for violation of the repatriation requirement, which reduces the number of grounds on which residents may face administrative liability, residents may credit to foreign accounts funds from nonresidents that are subject to repatriation to an account with an authorized bank on the condition that these funds are subsequently transferred within 45 days to an account at an authorized bank.

Residents fulfill the repatriation requirement if they have arranged for (1) receipt in their bank account of payment under a contract insuring against a nonresident's failure to fulfill obligations under a foreign trade contract as specified in Federal Law No. 164-FZ of December 8, 2003, on the Principles of Government Regulation of Foreign Trade Activity for activities related to insuring export loans and investments against business and/or political risks, provided the ratio in the insurance contract between the insurance amount and the insured value (level of indemnification) equals or exceeds the value established by law; (2) receipt in their bank accounts opened at authorized banks and/or bank accounts that have been opened at authorized banks by a resident who is the beneficiary, of foreign currency or Russian Federation currency under a transaction ensuring the fulfillment of a nonresident's obligations under a foreign trade agreement (contract) and provided for by the procedure established by the Russian Federation government in accordance with Federal Law No. 164-FZ of December 8, 2003, on the Principles of Government Regulation of Foreign Trade Activity for the performance of activities related to insuring and securing export credits and investments against business and/or political risks, on the condition that the monetary amount received is equal to or greater than the value established by said procedure, in line with the procedure and deadlines provided for by the relevant transaction. A resident who is a recipient of funds in accordance with the terms of a transferable letter of credit, when performing settlements under a foreign trade agreement (contract) concluded with a nonresident for goods transferred to the nonresident, work performed for him, services provided to him, information and intellectual property transferred to him, including exclusive rights thereto, is considered to have fulfilled the repatriation requirement if he has ensured, within the deadlines specified by the given agreement (contract), in accordance with the terms of the transferable letter of credit from a bank located outside the territory of the Russian Federation or from the authorized bank to which the instruction was given to transfer the transferable letter of credit (the executing bank), the receipt of foreign currency and/or Russian Federation currency in his bank accounts at authorized banks and/or in bank accounts at authorized banks of the second resident recipient of funds (or second resident recipients of funds) to whom the execution of the transferable letter of credit is to be performed in accordance with the terms of the agreement concluded between the resident recipient of the funds and the second recipient(s) of the funds.

Foreign exchange operations related to settlements in foreign currency within the framework of financing agreements concluded between residents against the assignment of a monetary claim (factoring), under which monetary claims in foreign currency or the currency of the Russian Federation owed to residents by nonresidents on foreign trade contracts are assigned to residents who are financial agents (factors), are performed without restriction. For the purpose of ensuring compliance with the obligation on the part of residents to repatriate funds when performing foreign trade activity, a resident who has entered into a foreign trade contract with a nonresident and who has assigned the monetary claim under the contract to a resident factor, is required to ensure that funds are received from the nonresident according to the general rule – within the time period specified by the foreign trade contract. Monitoring of residents' compliance with the repatriation requirement is carried out within the framework of monitoring in accordance with BR Instruction No. 181-I of August 16, 2017, on the Procedure for the Submission of Supporting Documents and Information by Residents and Nonresidents to Authorized Banks in the Performance of Foreign Exchange Operations, on Standard Accounting and Reporting Forms for Foreign Exchange Operations, and the Procedure and Deadlines for their Submission.

On capital market securities Yes.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents Yes.

The Federal Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation and Foreign Exchange Control does not restrict the purchase of shares or other equity-based securities by nonresidents (either from nonresidents or from residents).

Special restrictions are in place for the banking and insurance sectors. There is 50% quota for the participation of foreign capital in the Russian banking system (Federal Law No. 395-1 of December 2, 1990, "On Banks and Banking Activities"). The quota for the participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies is set at 50% (Article 6 of Russian Federation Law No. 4015-1 of November 27, 1992, on the Organization of the Insurance Business in the Russian Federation).

The level of participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated as the ratio of foreign investments of nonresidents in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations to the total authorized capital of said credit institutions. The calculation of foreign investments in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations does not include foreign investments:

(1) made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations and financed by the profits earned by said credit institutions in the Russian Federation or repatriated to the Russian Federation from abroad;

(2) made by credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations that are subsidiaries of foreign banks in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations, and all subsequent investments by said institutions in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;

(3) made before January 1, 2007, in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;

(4) made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations that were privatized after August 22, 2012;

(5) representing 51% or more of the shares (equity stakes) in the authorized capital of a credit institution licensed to perform banking operations and made after January 1, 2007, provided these shares (equity stakes) have been owned by the investor for 12 years or more, unless the BR has made a decision on expiration of said period to continue including said investments in the calculation and has published this decision. The procedure for the adoption of said decision by the BR and for its publication is established by the BR. The amount of participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated by the BR following the procedure it has established as of January 1 of each year. Information about the amount of participation of foreign capital in the total authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations and the indicators used to calculate it are published in the Bulletin of the BR, the official publication of the BR, and they are also posted on the official website of the BR no later than February 15 of the current year.

For the purposes of said federal law, a quota is understood to mean the maximum level of participation of foreign capital in the total authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations, which is set at 50%.

When a quota is reached, the BR takes the following steps with respect to foreign investments:

- (1) it refuses to register the credit institution with foreign investments and to issue it a license to perform banking operations;
- (2) it prohibits any increase in the authorized capital of the credit institution with foreign investments at the expense of nonresidents' funds and the transfer of shares (equity stakes) in the credit institution to nonresidents if the quota will be exceeded as a result of these actions.

Shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution that are transferred (sold) in violation of such a prohibition are not voting shares and are not taken into consideration when determining a quorum at a general meeting of the credit institution's shareholders (stakeholders) during the period that the prohibition is in effect. In the event of the performance of a transaction (or transactions) to transfer (purchase) shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution in violation of said prohibition, the BR files suit to declare the relevant transaction(s) null and void.

The measures provided for under Article 18, part 6, of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking do not apply to foreign investments referred to under paragraphs 1 and 2 of part 2 of said article. The measures provided for under paragraph 2 of part 6 of said article do not apply to foreign investments intended for the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations as defined in accordance with regulatory acts of the BR on the basis of international agreements of the Russian Federation.

The BR terminates the application of measures provided for under part 6 of said article in the event that the level of participation of foreign capital in the total authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is less than 50%.

The BR is required to publish information about the application of measures provided for under part 6 of said article, the reasons for the application of such measures, and termination of the application of such measures in the Bulletin of the BR, the official publication of the BR, and also to post it on the official website of the BR.

The procedure for the application and termination of the application of measures provided for under part 6 of said article, and the procedure for the disclosure of information about the application, the reasons for the application, and termination of the application of these measures are established by regulatory acts of the BR.

Unless otherwise provided for by international agreements of the Russian Federation, the BR has the right, in consultation with the Russian Federation government, to establish restrictions on credit institutions with foreign investments with regard to the performance of banking operations, if restrictions are applied to banks with Russian investments and branches of Russian banks in the respective foreign states with regard to their creation and activities.

The BR has the right, following the procedure established in the Federal Law on the Central Bank of the Russian Federation (BR), to establish additional requirements for credit institutions with foreign investments in terms of their reporting procedures, approval of management personnel, and the list of banking operations performed. The quota for the participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies is calculated by the BR as of January 1 following the procedure established by BR Directive No. 3386-U of September 22, 2014, on the Procedure for Calculation of the Level of (Quota for) the Participation of Foreign Capital in the Authorized Capital of Insurance Companies and Lists of Documents Needed to Obtain Approval from the BR for the Transfer of Shares (Equity Stakes in the Authorized Capital) of Insurance Companies to Foreign Investors and/or their Subsidiaries.

Insurance companies are required to obtain prior approval of the insurance supervisory authority for:

- (1) an increase in the size of their authorized capital at the expense of funds of foreign investors;
- (2) a transfer of their shares (equity stakes in their authorized capital) to foreign investors (including their sale to foreign investors), while Russian shareholders (partners) are required to obtain prior approval of the insurance supervisory authority for the transfer of shares (equity stakes in the authorized capital) of an insurance company held by them to foreign investors.

If the quota for the participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies exceeds 50%, the insurance supervisory authority refuses to grant prior approval to insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors (parent companies) or in which the equity stake held by foreign investors in the authorized capital is more than 49% or would be as a result of such transactions (Russian Federation Law No. 4015-1 of November 27, 1992, on the Organization of the Insurance Business in the Russian Federation).

An insurance company that is a subsidiary of a foreign investor (a parent company) or in which the equity stake held by foreign investors in the authorized capital is more than 49%, which has obtained a license to perform insurance activities after August 22, 2012, has the right to perform insurance activities in the Russian Federation if the foreign investor (parent company) has been an insurance company doing business in accordance with the legislation of the relevant state for at least five years (Article 6 of Russian Federation Law No. 4015-1 of November 27, 1992, on the Organization of the Insurance Business in the Russian Federation).

With the aim of putting into place a legal foundation for the commercial presence of foreign insurance companies within the territory of the Russian Federation through branches created by them and creating conditions for their operation within the Russian Federation that are comparable to those for Russian insurance companies, Federal Law No. 343-FZ on Amendments to the Russian Federation Law on the Organization of the Insurance Business in the Russian Federation and Certain Legislative Acts of the Russian Federation was adopted effective July 2, 2021. It defines conditions for the separate capitalization (a guarantee deposit) of a branch of a foreign insurance company. The minimum amount of a guarantee deposit for a branch of a foreign insurance company must be in line with the minimum amount of authorized capital of insurance companies depending on their type of business. The total value of minimum guarantee deposits of branches of foreign insurance companies is taken into account when calculating the level of participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies. Federal Law No. 343-FZ also provides for amendments to Law No. 4015-1, according to which there is no longer a requirement that an insurance company and/or its Russian partners obtain prior permission from the BR to increase the size of the insurance company's authorized capital at the expense of funds of subsidiary companies of foreign investors and/or to transfer shares (stakes) in the insurance company's authorized capital to a subsidiary of a foreign investor (including the sale thereof).

Transactions between nonresidents with domestic securities in Russia are performed under requirements set out in the antimonopoly law, the securities market law, and the Federal Law of November 21, 2011, No. 325-FZ, on organized trading.

Transactions resulting in control by a foreign investor or group of persons over business entities that are of strategic significance (that is, defense and state security) are subject to approval by the federal executive body authorized to carry out control functions over foreign investments in Russia.

Securities market law does not provide for special types of control of transactions between nonresidents involving domestic securities.

Prior or subsequent consent (approval) by the BR is required in the event of the acquisition by a legal entity or individual or group of individuals, defined in accordance with Article 9 of Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition, through the performance of one or several transactions, including those in the secondary market, of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) (including those acquired previously) in a credit institution, private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company.

Prior or subsequent consent (approval) by the BR is also required when a legal entity or individual (or group of individuals) establishes direct or indirect (through third parties) control (including acquisition in the secondary market) over shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution (private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company) that hold more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in said organization (and also with respect to a person acquiring more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in a credit organization).

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes.

Under the foreign exchange law, there are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of shares or other equity securities by nonresidents. Specific aspects of the placement and trading of securities of foreign issuers in Russia are governed by the law on the securities market (specifically Article 51.1 of Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market), according to which: (1) Foreign financial instruments may be traded in Russia as securities of foreign issuers, provided the following conditions are met simultaneously: (a) the foreign financial instruments are assigned an international securities identification code (number) and an international financial instrument classification code and (b) the foreign financial instruments are classified as securities following the procedure established by the BR. (2) Securities of foreign issuers that meet the requirements of Paragraph 1 may be placed and/or publicly traded in Russia if the issuers are: (a) foreign entities established in countries that are OECD members, members or observers of the FATF, and/or members of the Committee of Experts on the Evaluation of Anti-Money-Laundering Measures and the Financing of Terrorism of the Council of Europe (MONEYVAL), and/or members of the Common Economic Space; (b) foreign entities established in countries that have the relevant agencies (relevant organizations) with which the federal executive agency responsible for the securities market has a cooperation agreement; (c) international financial institutions included in a list approved by the Russian government; (d) the foreign governments indicated in (a) and (b) and those countries' autonomous CBs and administrative-territorial units; and (e) foreign organizations whose securities are listed on a foreign stock exchange that meets the criteria established by the BR in accordance with Paragraph 4, Article 51.1. (3) Foreign issuers' securities may be placed in Russia by a decision of the BR, provided the prospectus for these securities is registered by the BR. (4) Foreign issuers' securities that meet the requirements of Paragraphs 1 and 2 of Article 51.1 may be traded publicly in Russia based on a decision by a Russian exchange allowing for their organized trading. Such a decision may be made by a Russian exchange if the securities, other than securities of international financial institutions, are listed on a foreign exchange that meets the criteria established by the BR and no restrictions on the securities have been established by Russian law or international law. (5) International financial institutions' securities may be publicly placed and/or traded in Russia, provided the conditions for the trading of these securities do not contain any restrictions regarding their trading among an unrestricted group of persons and/or the offering of the securities to an unrestricted group of persons.

The foreign exchange law does not prohibit the purchase abroad of shares or other equity securities by residents. There are certain restrictions: (1) the share of securities of foreign issuers and Russian depositary receipts in the composition of the aggregated investment portfolio consisting of funds intended for housing for military personnel may not exceed 30% (Federal Law No. 117-FZ of August 20, 2004, on the Mortgage Savings System to Provide Housing for Military Personnel); (2) nonstate pension funds that carry out compulsory pension insurance (a) may have assets in foreign currency in their portfolios in an amount not exceeding 30% of the value of the investment portfolio and (b) may have securities of international financial organizations, as well as units (stocks, shares) of foreign index investment funds (including securities receivables and/or securities to be transferred during the second part of the repo transaction) if the share of such instruments does not exceed 20% of the value of the investment portfolio (BR Regulation No. 580-P of March 1, 2017); and (3) pension reserves intended for fulfilling obligations under voluntary insurance agreements may not have a total share exceeding 30% in sovereign securities of foreign issuers, securities of international financial organizations, shares of foreign joint-stock companies, corporate shares of foreign business entities, and shares of foreign investment funds in pension reserves (Russian Federation Government Resolution No. 63 of February 1, 2007).

Effective July 1, 2021, BR Regulation No. 710-P of January 10, 2020, on Certain Requirements for the Financial Stability and Solvency of Insurers introduced new approaches to determining the financial stability and solvency of insurers and to calculating equity (capital), and it takes into consideration the risk of a change in the value of assets and liabilities when determining capital adequacy. An insurer's equity capital is defined as the difference between the insurer's total assets and liabilities. Regulation No. 710-P establishes a uniform list of permitted assets for the investment of insurance reserve funds and equity capital and the relevant requirements with minimum restrictions in terms of quality. Paragraph 2.2 of Regulation No. 710-P states: Assets in which the equity of an insurance company and insurance reserve funds of insurers may be invested must meet the following requirements: 2.2.1. The issuers of the securities must be created in accordance with the legislation of the Russian Federation or foreign states that are members of the EAEU, the OECD, or the EU, or China, India, Brazil, or South Africa; 2.2.2. The items, other than certificated bonds and shares, must be located (physically held) within the Russian Federation. In addition to the indicator describing insurance risks assumed by an insurer (the regulatory solvency margin), a new indicator is introduced that describes the volume of risks assumed by an insurer in connection with its investment activity. An assessment of the impact of risks is performed for a one-year horizon and it is estimated as the aggregate impact of concentration risk, the risk of a change in the credit spread, the risk of a change in interest rates, the risk of a change in share value, the risk of a change in the foreign exchange rate, the risk of a change in real estate prices, credit risk, and the risk of a change in prices for other assets.

Previously, the total value of assets located outside the Russian Federation in which an insurer's equity (capital) was invested could not exceed 35% of the regulatory solvency margin or the minimum amount of authorized capital (the larger of the two indicators) (BR Directive No. 4298-U of February 22, 2017).

There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license.

Article 24 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking states that banks with a basic license have the right to perform operations and transactions, including those involving acquisition, only with securities listed on the first (highest) list of a trading organizer in whose capital the BR holds a stake, and securities that meet the requirements of the BR established in Directive No. 4979-U. Taking into consideration the requirements for the listing of securities on the first (highest) list established by Regulation No. 534-P and the stock exchange, securities of foreign issuers as well as securities denominated in foreign currency may be included in the list.

This law does not impose restrictions on: (1) the composition of counterparties of banks with a basic license in transactions with such securities, including those based on the private law of counterparties (other than transactions in which banks with a basic license act as creditors, considering the prohibition on lending to foreign persons) and (2) the possibility of the performance of transactions by banks with a basic license with such securities outside of the relevant stock exchange.

Compliance with the established requirements is evaluated by the BR within the context of banking supervision.

Banks with a universal banking license may have subsidiaries within the territory of a foreign state with the permission of the BR and in accordance with its requirements. There is no provision granting banks with a basic license the right to open a branch and/or subsidiary within the territory of a foreign state. General licenses to perform banking operations issued before June 1, 2017, remain in effect until they are replaced following the established procedure. The BR does not issue permits to establish a subsidiary in states (territories) that are classified according to the procedure defined by Russian law as states (territories) that do not participate in international cooperation in combating money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	The foreign exchange law does not prohibit the sale or issuance abroad of shares or other equity securities by residents. Under the law on the securities market, the placement and trading of securities of Russian issuers abroad require authorization by the BR.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	Rules similar to the rules governing transactions with shares or other equity securities apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	There are no restrictions on purchases of bonds or other debt securities by nonresidents from nonresidents or residents. Transactions between nonresidents with domestic securities must adhere to the requirements of the antimonopoly law and the securities market law.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Under the foreign exchange law, there are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of bonds or other debt securities by nonresidents. The BR does not issue authorization to establish subsidiaries in countries (in areas) that are included, in the manner specified by the laws of Russia, among those governments (areas) that do not participate in international cooperation in the area of combating money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Approval from the BR is required for transactions involving the acquisition of shares issued by a Russian credit institution, the placement and/or trading of which outside Russia is carried out through their placement in accordance with the foreign securities law pertaining to foreign issuers and granting rights with regard to issued securities of Russian issuers. The threshold for participation (individually or as part of a group of individuals) in Russian credit institutions without BR approval is 10%. (This restriction also applies with respect to residents of the Russian Federation.)

BR approval is also required when operations are performed that result in the establishment of control over shareholders (stakeholders) of a Russian credit institution who hold more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in the given credit institution. (This restriction also applies with respect to residents of the Russian Federation.)

In accordance with the Treaty between Russia and Belarus on the creation of the Union State, the BR has established through Regulation No. 217-P that transfers of funds in rubles and in foreign currency for participation in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks, as well as the acquisition (disposal) of shares issued by Belarusian banks and stakes in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks, are to be carried out by authorized banks in accordance with Russian legislation on banks and banking, subject to notification requirements. Authorized banks are required to notify the BR regarding participation in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks following the procedure established by regulatory acts of the BR.

Inward direct investment

Yes.

Direct investments are subject to certain limitations:

(1) Requirements have been established for foreign investors and groups of persons that include a foreign investor, for their investment in the authorized capital of business entities that are of strategic significance in providing for the national defense and state security, and/or for the completion of transactions resulting in the establishment of control over such business entities. In this connection, transactions carried out by foreign governments or international organizations or organizations under their control that result in acquisition of the right directly or indirectly to control more than 25% of the total number of votes attached to voting shares (equity stakes) constituting the authorized capital of a Russian business entity, or some other ability to block decisions of such a business entity's governing authorities, are subject to approval in accordance with the procedures specified in Articles 9–12 of the Federal Law on the Procedure for Making Foreign Investments in Business Entities that are of Strategic Significance in Providing for the National Defense and State Security, except transactions in which the participants are international financial organizations established under international treaties to which Russia is a party or international financial organizations with which Russia has entered into international treaties. The list of those international financial organizations is approved by the Russian government (Resolution No. 119-R of the Russian Federation Government of February 3, 2012).

(2) In accordance with Federal Law No. 372-FZ of December 14, 2015, on Amendments to Articles 16 and 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking, adopted on the basis of the Russian Federation's commitments in connection with accession to the WTO, the level of participation of foreign capital in the Russian Federation's banking system is taken into account when considering whether the BR will issue a permit to establish a credit institution with foreign investments. Russian Federation law does not provide for the possibility of opening branches of foreign credit institutions within the territory of the Russian Federation. In accordance with federal laws, the BR performs state accreditation of representative offices of foreign credit institutions, as well as accreditation of foreign nationals who will be working at the representative offices. The level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated as the ratio of nonresidents' foreign investments in the authorized capital of credit institutions that are licensed to perform banking operations to the aggregate authorized capital of such credit institutions.

The procedure for calculating the level of participation of foreign capital is defined under Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking and BR Directive No. 3948-U of January 28, 2016, on the Procedure for Calculating the Level of Participation of Foreign Capital in the Aggregate Authorized Capital of Credit Institutions Licensed to Perform Banking Operations (referred to hereinafter as Directive No. 3948).

The following foreign investments are not included in the calculation of foreign investments in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations (Article 18, part 2):

- (1) investments made in the authorized capital from the earnings of the credit institutions received in the Russian Federation or repatriated to the Russian Federation from abroad;
- (2) investments made in the authorized capital by subsidiary credit institutions of foreign banks licensed to perform banking operations, and all subsequent investments by said institutions in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;
- (3) investments made before January 1, 2007, in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;
- (4) investments made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations, the privatization of which was performed after August 22, 2012;
- (5) investments representing 51% or more of the shares (equity stakes) in the authorized capital of a credit institution licensed to perform banking operations, performed after January 1, 2007, on the condition that said shares (equity stakes) are held by an investor for 12 or more years, unless the BR has adopted a decision before the expiration of this time period to continue to include said investments in the calculation and has published this decision. The procedure for the adoption by the BR of such a decision and for its publication is established by the BR.

The maximum level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is 50%.

When the quota is reached, the BR performs the following measures with respect to foreign investments (Article 18, part 6):

- (1) it refuses to register a credit institution with foreign investments and to issue it a banking license;
- (2) it imposes a ban on an increase in the authorized capital of a credit institution licensed to perform banking operations using nonresidents' funds and on the conveyance of shares (equity stakes) in the credit institution in favor of nonresidents if such actions mean that the quota will be exceeded. Shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution that have been conveyed (sold) in violation of such a ban are not voting shares and are not taken into account in determining a quorum at a general meeting of shareholders (stakeholders) of the credit institution for the period that such a ban is in effect. In the event that a transaction is performed to convey (acquire) shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution in violation of the ban, the BR files a petition requesting that the relevant transaction be declared null and void.

The measures provided for under the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking are not applied with respect to foreign investments referred to under Items 1 and 2 of the second part of Article 18 of the Law on Banks and Banking.

The measures provided for under Item 2 of the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking are not applied with respect to foreign investments intended for the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations as defined in accordance with regulatory acts of the BR on the basis of international agreements of the Russian Federation.

The BR ceases to apply the measures provided for under the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking in the event that the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is less than 50%.

The level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated by the BR following the procedure it establishes as of January 1 of each year.

Information about the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations and about the indicators used for its calculation is subject to publication in the official publication of the BR, the Bulletin of the BR, and it is also posted on the official website of the BR no later than February 15 of the current year.

As of January 1, 2020, the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations was 11.79%.

(3) Restrictions have been established on the use of mineral resources by foreign investors and by legal entities in which foreign investors hold a stake.

(4) Restrictions apply on certain types of activities of insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors or have a foreign ownership stake in their authorized capital of over 49%, other than insurance companies that were subsidiaries of foreign investors on the date Federal Law No. 234-FZ of July 23, 2013, went into effect, if they were previously authorized for such activity. As of January 1, 2020, the quota for participation by foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies with an insurance license was 10.83%. A quota of 50% was set on foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies. If the level of (quota for) the participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies exceeds 50%, the insurance supervisory authority stops issuing insurance licenses to insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors (parent companies) or in which the equity stake held by foreign investors in the authorized capital is more than 49%. Insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors (parent companies), or in which the equity stake held by foreign investors in the authorized capital is more than 49%, may not provide personal life, health, or property insurance in the Russian Federation at the expense of funds allocated for these purposes from the respective budget to federal executive government authorities (insured parties); insurance related to the procurement of goods, work, and services to meet state and municipal needs; or insurance for the property interests of government and municipal organizations. These restrictions do not apply to insurance companies that were subsidiaries of foreign investors on the date Federal Law No. 204-FZ of November 20, 1999, went into effect, if they were previously authorized for such activity. Payment by foreign investors for the shares (equity stakes in authorized capital) of insurance companies held by them is performed exclusively in monetary form in the currency of the Russian Federation.

Insurance companies must obtain authorization for the following: (1) an increase in their authorized capital from funds of foreign investors and (2) transfers of shares (equity stakes in authorized capital) to a foreign investor (including for sale to foreign investors). Russian shareholders (stakeholders) must obtain authorization to transfer their shares (equity stakes) to foreign investors. The insurance supervisory authority refuses to grant prior authorization to insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors or that have a foreign ownership in their authorized capital exceeding 49% or that attain this status as a result of the transactions indicated if the established quota of 50% is not exceeded when completing such transactions. Prior or subsequent consent (approval) from the BR is required in the event that a legal entity or individual, or a group of individuals defined in accordance with Article 9 of Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition, acquires more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution, private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company (including those previously acquired) when performing one or several transactions, including transactions in the secondary market.

Prior or subsequent consent (approval) from the BR is also required when a legal entity or individual (or group of individuals) establishes direct or indirect (through third parties) control (including acquisition in the secondary market) with respect to the shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution (private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company) who hold more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of said institution.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The term “credit institution” describes participants in the Russian banking sector. According to the Russian legislation, credit institutions include banks and nonbank credit institutions that carry out certain types of banking operations. The terms “nonresident bank,” “foreign bank,” and “foreign credit institution” are used for nonresidents. All credit institutions that perform banking operations in Russia must be residents. There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. For banks with a basic license, there are restrictions with regard to the performance of

A bank with a basic license does not have the right to acquire rights of claim against, to perform leasing operations with, or to issue sureties with respect to said entities.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. A bank with a basic license may not perform the placement of funds attracted for deposit, attract for deposit and place precious metals, open and maintain bank accounts in precious metals and perform transfers with them, issue bank guarantees (the issuing of bank guarantees is not a banking operation, but it remains a bank transaction) to foreign legal entities, to foreign organizations that are not legal entities under foreign law, or to individuals who are subject to the private law of a foreign state. A bank with a basic license does not have the right to acquire rights of claim against, to perform leasing operations with, or to issue sureties with respect to said entities. The Federal Law on Banks and Banking does not establish any provisions specific to the performance of operations that involve lending to Russian citizens and legal entities in foreign currency by banks with a basic license. Banks with a basic license have the right to grant credits to Russian citizens and legal entities in foreign currency if such a right is provided for by the license to perform banking operations.

Higher risk ratios:

Over a number of years, the BR has applied higher risk ratios for operations in foreign currency with both individuals and legal entities.

Specifically, as of April 1, 2017, the risk ratio for new unsecured consumer credits in foreign currency with a total cost of credit (TCC) of 20%–25% was raised to 600%. As of May 1, 2016, the risk ratio was raised to 110% for credits (and investments in securities) in foreign currency to legal entities without a sufficient reserve of foreign currency earnings to service the debt. The risk ratio was also raised to 130% for credits to legal entities in foreign currency intended for the purchase of real estate. As of July 1, 2018, the BR raised the risk ratios for credit claims (and investments in debt securities) in foreign currency on resident legal entities that are exporters to 110%. To encourage a further decline in lending in the riskiest segment, risk ratios on credit claims for the purchase of real estate were raised to 150%. All other claims on legal entities in foreign currency are weighted with a risk ratio that was raised to 130%. There is an exception according to which the new risk ratios are not applied to credit claims with direct or indirect guarantees by the Russian Federation (specifically, credit claims in foreign currency secured by an insurance policy provided by the Russian Export Insurance Agency, or EKSAR).

Macroprudential (sectoral) surcharges:

In connection with the transition to the use of a new macroprudential regulatory mechanism, the BR Board of Directors adopted a decision to apply as of October 8, 2018, risk ratio surcharges for the purpose of calculating the capital adequacy of credit institutions (macroprudential surcharges). Macroprudential surcharges were established with respect to certain types of assets in accordance with BR Directive No. 4892-U of August 31, 2018, on Types of Assets, Characteristics of Types of Assets for Which Risk Ratio Surcharges Are Established, and the Methodology for Application of Surcharges to These Types of Assets for the Purpose of the Calculation of Capital Adequacy Ratios by Credit Institutions.

Taking into consideration the introduction of risk ratio surcharges to keep the overall level of capital requirements unchanged, the values of risk ratios for assets subject to surcharges were brought into line with their standard values provided for by Basel III. Thus, the establishment of macroprudential surcharges, including those for operations in foreign currency, did not result in an increase in the overall capital adequacy requirements for credit institutions.

At this time, surcharges established by the BR with respect to the following types of operations in foreign currencies are in effect:

- (1) credits (loans) provided in foreign currency to borrowers that are individuals and legal entities;
- (2) investments in debt securities denominated in foreign currency.

Effective March 1, 2020, for the purpose of supporting the economy in connection with the spread of the novel coronavirus infection, a decision was announced March 13, 2020, not to apply surcharges to risk ratios on foreign currency credits provided from March 1, 2020, through September 30, 2020, to companies producing medicines and materials and equipment used for medical purposes, and also on investments made during this same period in debt securities of these companies denominated in foreign currency. Effective October 1, 2020, a press release issued by the BR on August 10, 2020, extended the period until December 31, 2021.

Reserve requirements

Yes. Reserve requirements are imposed on: (1) liabilities to nonresident legal entities (including nonresident banks) in rubles and/or in foreign currency; (2) liabilities to resident and nonresident individuals in rubles and/or in foreign currency; and (3) other liabilities in rubles and/or foreign currency. For banks holding a general license and nonbank credit institutions, the reserve requirement is 4.75% for all categories of liabilities in domestic currency subject to reserve requirements (liabilities to nonresident legal entities and individuals, other liabilities). The reserve requirements for banks holding a basic license are: 4.75% for liabilities to nonresident legal entities and 1% for liabilities to individuals and other liabilities. The reserve requirement for credit institution's liabilities in foreign currency is 8%.

Liquid asset requirements

No. The BR established the quick (N2), current (N3), and long-term liquidity ratios, which are defined as the ratio of assets to liabilities, taking into consideration maturities, amounts, types of assets and liabilities, and other factors, and are calculated for operations in all currencies, and no requirements have been established for separate compliance with them in rubles and/or other currencies. Only the current liquidity ratio (N3) is specified for banks with a basic license. An LCR developed in accordance with Basel III is applicable to systemically important credit institutions (SICIs) on a consolidated basis in the event that an SICI is the main credit institution of a banking group, or on an individual basis if an SICI is not the main credit institution of a banking group as defined for regulatory purposes. The LCR is calculated in accordance with the procedure established by BR Regulation No. 421-P of May 30, 2014, on the Procedure for the Calculation of the Liquidity Coverage Indicator (LCI) (Basel III) (hereinafter referred to as Regulation No. 421-P), taking into account the specific aspects established by BR Regulation No. 510-P of December 3, 2015, on the Procedure for the Calculation of the LCR (Basel III) by SICIs (hereinafter referred to as Regulation No. 510-P). With the aim of establishing an effective liquidity risk management system, SICIs are required to perform separate calculations and forward information to the BR on the LCR values in rubles and in each significant foreign currency. In addition to deposits in rubles, only funds denominated in US dollars and euros may be treated as stable funds of individuals and small businesses with a lower outflow rate compared to funds classified as unstable, when all of the conditions for stability as defined by Basel III are met. When determining the amount of highly liquid assets, the procedure for the calculation of the LCI/LCR also provides for limiting the amount of assets denominated in certain foreign currencies to the amount of the net expected outflow of funds in the same foreign currency as established by Basel III (the outflow is calculated in accordance with Regulation No. 421-P/Regulation No. 510-P). At the same time, considering the initial shortage in the Russian banking sector of highly liquid assets defined in accordance with Basel III, Regulation No. 510-P allows for the inclusion of highly liquid assets denominated in US dollars, euros, Japanese yen, pounds sterling, and Swiss francs in the LCR numerator in an amount that exceeds the expected net outflow of funds in the same foreign currency, taking into consideration the restrictions established by Regulation No. 510-P (alternative option (Alternative Liquidity Approach (ALA)) 2). No separate standards are applied in Russian banking regulation establishing requirements for coverage by liquid assets of deposits (liabilities) attracted by credit institutions in foreign or domestic currency.

There is a structural liquidity ratio (the net stable funding ratio (NSFR)) developed in accordance with Basel III in effect for SICIs, which is applied on a consolidated basis if an SICI is the main credit institution of a banking group, or on an individual basis if an SICI is not the main credit institution of a banking group as defined for regulatory purposes. The NSFR is calculated according to the procedure established by BR Regulation No. 596-P of July 26, 2017, on the Procedure for the Calculation of the Structural Liquidity Ratio (NSFR) (Basel III) by SICIs.

No separate standards establishing requirements for calculation of the NSFR in foreign or domestic currency are applied in Russian banking regulation.

The classification of funds of individuals and small businesses into stable and unstable, including classification based on the currency, for the purpose of calculating the NSFR, is the same as that applied to the LCR as indicated above.

Interest rate controls

Yes.

In accordance with Federal Law No. 353-FZ, the BR calculates and publishes on a quarterly basis the average market value of the total cost of consumer credit (loans) (TCC) in terms of percent per annum by categories of consumer credit (loans) defined by the BR. The average market TCC values by categories of consumer credits (loans) have been published since November 14, 2014.

For consumer credits (loans), at the time a consumer credit (loan) agreement is concluded the TCC may not exceed the smaller of the following values: (1) 365% per annum or (2) the average market value of the TCC in percent per annum for the corresponding category of consumer credit in the given calendar quarter by more than one-third.

In accordance with the Federal Law on the Insurance of Bank Deposits in the Russian Federation, the BR determines and discloses to an unrestricted group of persons on a monthly basis the base rate of return on deposits (by types of deposits grouped by one or several conditions of their placement at banks of the Russian Federation on the basis of monthly information submitted by banks to the BR on the maximum rate of return on deposits attracted). The determination of the base rate of return on deposits is performed for the purpose of identifying banks that pay an additional rate or a higher additional rate for insurance contributions to the mandatory deposit insurance fund.

Pursuant to Federal Law No. 163-FZ, effective October 1, 2020, new indicators of an excess base rate of return went into effect for the purpose of identifying banks that pay an additional rate or a higher additional rate for insurance contributions. An additional rate for insurance contributions is paid by a bank in the event that:

- (1) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in the currency of the Russian Federation (with the exception of deposits in the currency of the Russian Federation certified by savings certificates, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand) or the bank has entered into an agreement to change the terms of an agreement on a bank deposit in the currency of the Russian Federation offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 2 percentage points but not more than 3 percentage points per annum;
- (2) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in foreign currency (with the exception of deposits in foreign currency certified by savings certificates, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand) or the bank has entered into an agreement to change the terms of an agreement on a bank deposit in foreign currency offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 1 percentage point but not more than 1.5 percentage points per annum;

(3) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in the currency of the Russian Federation certified by a savings certificate, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 3 percentage points but not more than 4 percentage points per annum;

(4) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in foreign currency certified by a savings certificate, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 2 percentage points but not more than 3 percentage points per annum.

A higher additional rate for insurance contributions is paid by a bank in the event that:

(1) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in the currency of the Russian Federation (with the exception of deposits in the currency of the Russian Federation certified by savings certificates, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand) or the bank has entered into an agreement to change the terms of an agreement on a bank deposit in the currency of the Russian Federation, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 3 percentage points per annum;

(2) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in foreign currency (with the exception of deposits in foreign currency certified by savings certificates, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand) or the bank has entered into an agreement to change the terms of an agreement on a bank deposit in foreign currency, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 1.5 percentage points per annum;

(3) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in the currency of the Russian Federation certified by a savings certificate, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 4 percentage points per annum; (4) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in foreign currency certified by a savings certificate, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 3 percentage points per annum.

Previously, if a bank attracted even one deposit in foreign currency, the maximum rate of return on which exceeded the base rate of return on deposits by more than 2 percentage points but not more than 3 percentage points, or by more than 3 percentage points per annum in any month of a quarter, the bank was considered to meet the criteria for the payment of an additional rate or a higher additional rate for insurance contributions, respectively. There was a similar limit for deposits in rubles.

Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.
Reserve requirements	No.	Reserve requirements are imposed on: (1) liabilities to nonresident legal entities (including nonresident banks) in rubles and/or in foreign currency; (2) liabilities to resident and nonresident individuals in rubles and/or in foreign currency; and (3) other liabilities in rubles and/or foreign currency. For banks holding a general license and nonbank credit institutions the reserve requirement is 4.75% for all categories of liabilities in domestic currency subject to reserve requirements (liabilities to nonresident legal entities and individuals, other liabilities). The reserve requirements for banks holding a basic license are: 4.75% for liabilities to nonresident legal entities and 1% for liabilities to individuals and other liabilities. The reserve requirement for credit institution's liabilities in foreign currency is 8%.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.	There is no difference in the methods for the regulation and monitoring of interest rates with regard to the accounts of residents and nonresidents.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. There are no restrictions on direct investment by resident credit institutions associated with their acquisition of stocks (stakes) of foreign entities except when leading to the establishment of subsidiaries abroad. Banks with a universal banking license may have subsidiaries (branches) abroad subject to authorization and in accordance with BR requirements. There is no provision granting banks with a basic license the right to open a branch and/or subsidiary in a foreign state. General licenses issued before June 1, 2017, to perform banking operations remain in force until they are replaced in the prescribed manner. The BR does not authorize subsidiaries in countries (areas) designated by Russian law among those that do not participate in international cooperation to combat money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

Approval from the BR is required for transactions involving the acquisition of shares and/or their receipt in trust that are issued by a Russian credit institution, the placement and/or trading of which outside Russia is carried out through their placement in accordance with the foreign securities law pertaining to foreign issuers and granting rights with regard to issued securities of Russian issuers. The threshold for participation (individually or as part of a group of individuals) in a Russian credit institution without BR consent is 10%. (This restriction applies to residents of the Russian Federation as well.)

BR approval is also required when operations are performed that result in the establishment of control over shareholders (equity stakeholders) of a Russian credit institution holding more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in the credit institution. (This restriction applies to residents of the Russian Federation as well.)

Prior or subsequent consent (approval) by the BR is required in the event of the acquisition by a legal entity or individual or group of individuals, defined in accordance with Article 9 of Federal Law No. 135FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition, through the performance of one or several transactions, including those in the secondary market, of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) (including those acquired previously) in a private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company. Prior or subsequent consent (approval) by the BR is also required when a legal entity or individual (or group of individuals) establishes direct or indirect (through third parties) control (including acquisition in the secondary market) over shareholders (stakeholders) (of a private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company) that hold more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in said organization.

In accordance with the Treaty between Russia and Belarus on the creation of the Union State, the BR has established that transfers of funds in rubles and in foreign currency for participation in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks, as well as the acquisition (disposal) of shares issued by Belarusian banks, and stakes in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks, are to be carried out by authorized banks in accordance with Russian legislation on banks and banking, subject to notification requirements. Authorized banks are required to forward information to the BR regarding participation in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks following the procedure established by regulatory acts of the BR.

In accordance with BR Instruction No. 199-I, investments by Russian banks abroad are included on a general basis in the calculation of required ratios limiting credit risk and concentration risk.

In banks by nonresidents

Yes.

The requirements established by Russian law regarding the acquisition of shares (equity stakes) in credit institutions extend to all investors regardless of their country of origin.

The acquisition and/or receipt in trust (referred to hereinafter as acquisition) of more than 1% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution resulting from the performance of one or more transactions by a single legal entity or individual, or group of persons defined in accordance with Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition, must be reported to the BR (with the exception of cases in which the shares (equity stakes) are acquired when a credit institution is being established). The threshold for participation in a Russian credit institution without BR consent is 10%. (This restriction applies to residents of the Russian Federation as well.) BR consent is also required for the establishment by a legal entity or an individual, as a result of the performance of one or more transactions, of direct or indirect (through third parties) control over shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution holding more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of the credit institution (referred to hereinafter as the establishment of control over the shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution). (This restriction applies to residents of the Russian Federation as well.)

These requirements also apply to the acquisition of more than 1% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution, more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution, and/or the establishment of control with respect to shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution by a group of persons recognized as such in accordance with Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition.

The BR has the right to refuse to give its consent for the performance of a transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution and/or at gaining control of shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution if:

- (1) the financial condition of the person performing the transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution, or at the acquisition of 10% or less of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution, and that is part of a group of persons acquiring (holding) more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution, as well as an individual or legal entity exercising control over said legal entities, and/or at gaining control of shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution, is found to be unsatisfactory;
- (2) the antimonopoly authority has not approved a petition for consent to a transaction (or transactions) submitted in accordance with Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition, if the transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition is (are) subject to controls in accordance with the antimonopoly legislation;
- (3) there is no decision regarding prior consent to a transaction or to the acquisition of control in accordance with Federal Law No. 57-FZ of April 29, 2008, on the Procedure for Making Foreign Investments in Business Entities that are of Strategic Significance in providing for the National Defense and State Security, if the transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition is (are) subject to controls in accordance with said federal law;
- (4) the person performing the transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution and/or at gaining control of shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution or their single-member executive bodies, has an unsatisfactory business reputation as established under Article 16, part 1, paragraph 5, of Federal Law No. 395-1 of December 2, 1990, on Banks and Banking;
- (5) there are other grounds provided for under federal laws and BR regulations adopted in accordance with them.

The BR refuses to consent to a transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution and/or at gaining control of shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution if a court previously found the person performing the transaction aimed at the acquisition of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution and/or at gaining control of shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution, guilty of causing losses to any credit institution in the performance of his duties as a member of the credit institution's board of directors (or supervisory board), as the sole executive officer of the credit institution or a deputy executive officer, and/or as a member of a collegial executive body (executive board, administrative board). Establishment of a Russian credit institution with the participation of foreign investments requires prior authorization from the BR.

According to the Regulation on Specific Aspects of the Registration of Credit Institutions with Foreign Investments and the Procedure for Obtaining Prior Authorization from the BR to Increase the Authorized Capital of a Registered Credit Institution Using Funds from Nonresidents (approved by BR Order No. 02-195 of April 23, 1997), prior authorization is understood to mean obtaining consent in principle from the BR for participation by a specific nonresident in the establishment of a resident credit institution.

In accordance with Federal Law No. 372-FZ of December 14, 2015, on Amendments to Articles 16 and 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking, adopted on the basis of the Russian Federation's commitments in connection with accession to the WTO, the level of participation of foreign capital in the Russian Federation's banking system is taken into account when considering whether the BR will issue a permit to establish a credit institution with foreign investments.

The level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated as the ratio of nonresidents' foreign investments in the authorized capital of credit institutions that are licensed to perform banking operations to the aggregate authorized capital of said credit institutions.

The procedure for calculating the level of participation of foreign capital is defined under Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking and BR Directive No. 3948-U of January 28, 2016, on the Procedure for Calculating the Level of Participation of Foreign Capital in the Aggregate Authorized Capital of Credit Institutions Licensed to perform Banking Operations.

The following foreign investments are not included in the calculation of foreign investments in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations:

- (1) investments made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations that are financed at the expense of earnings of said credit institutions received in the Russian Federation or are repatriated to the Russian Federation from abroad;
- (2) investments made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations by subsidiary credit institutions of foreign banks licensed to perform banking operations, and all subsequent investments by said institutions in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;
- (3) investments made before January 1, 2007, in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;
- (4) investments made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations, the privatization of which was performed after August 22, 2012;
- (5) investments representing 51% or more of the shares (equity stakes) in the authorized capital of a credit institution licensed to perform banking operations, performed after January 1, 2007, on the condition that said shares (equity stakes) are held by an investor for 12 or more years, unless the BR has adopted a decision before the expiration of this time period to continue to include said investments in the calculation and has published this decision. The procedure for the adoption by the BR of such a decision and for its publication is established by the BR.

The maximum level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is 50% (Federal Law No. 395-1 of December 2, 1990, “On Banks and Banking Activities”).

When the maximum level is reached, the BR performs the following measures with respect to foreign investments:

(1) it refuses to register a credit institution with foreign investments and to issue it a banking license;

(2) it imposes a ban on an increase in the authorized capital of a credit institution licensed to perform banking operations using nonresidents’ funds and on the conveyance of shares (equity stakes) in the credit institution in favor of nonresidents if such actions mean that the quota will be exceeded.

Shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution that have been conveyed (sold) in violation of such a ban are not voting shares and are not taken into account in determining a quorum at a general meeting of shareholders (stakeholders) of the credit institution for the period that such a ban is in effect. In the event that a transaction is performed to convey (acquire) shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution in violation of the ban, the BR files a petition requesting that the relevant transaction be declared null and void.

The measures provided for under the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking are not applied with respect to foreign investments referred to under Items 1 and 2 of the second part of Article 18 of the Law on Banks and Banking.

The measures provided for under Item 2 of the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking are not applied with respect to foreign investments intended for the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations as defined in accordance with regulatory acts of the BR on the basis of international agreements of the Russian Federation.

The BR ceases to apply the measures provided for under the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking in the event that the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is less than 50%.

The level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated by the BR following the procedure it establishes as of January 1 of each year.

Information about the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations and about the indicators used for its calculation is subject to publication in the official publication of the BR, the Bulletin of the BR, and it is also posted on the official website of the BR no later than February 15 of the current year.

As of January 1, 2020, the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations was 11.79%.

BR Regulation No. 626-P of December 28, 2017, established the procedure and criteria for assessing the financial position of individuals who perform a transaction aimed at acquiring more than 10% of shares of a credit institution and/or gaining control of shareholders of the credit institution. BR Regulation No. 625-P establishes the procedure for assessing the compliance by such persons with business reputation requirements.

Open foreign exchange position limits Yes.

On resident assets and liabilities Yes.

The absolute values of the net open foreign exchange positions of a credit institution in individual foreign currencies and precious metals and the balancing position in rubles for all foreign currencies and

		precious metals are limited to 10% of the value of the credit institution's equity (capital). The absolute value of the total of all long (short) net open foreign exchange positions of a credit institution in individual foreign currencies and precious metals is limited to 20% of the value of the credit institution's equity (capital). The limits are subject to calculation and observance on a daily basis. The calculation of the value of open foreign exchange positions includes balance-sheet assets and liabilities, as well as off-balance-sheet claims and liabilities of a credit institution, the amount (value) of which depends on changes in the exchange rates of foreign currencies against the ruble set by the BR and/or the prices for precious metals, when a foreign exchange revaluation of these assets (claims) and liabilities has a direct current or deferred impact on the amount of the credit institution's equity (capital) (regardless of the jurisdiction of the counterparty). Open foreign exchange position limits must also be observed at the level of a banking group.

Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Restrictions apply on certain types of activities of insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors or have a foreign ownership stake in their authorized capital of over 49%, other than insurance companies that were subsidiaries of foreign investors on the date Federal Law No. 234-FZ of July 23, 2013, went into effect, if they were previously authorized for such activity. Thus, said insurance companies may not provide personal life, health, or property insurance in the Russian Federation at the expense of funds allocated for these purposes from the respective budget to federal executive government authorities (insured parties); insurance related to the procurement of goods, work, and services to meet state and municipal needs; or insurance for the property interests of government and municipal organizations. A quota of 50% is set on foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies pursuant to Federal Law No. 267-FZ of December 25, 2012. If this percentage is exceeded, the insurance supervisory authority stops issuing licenses for the performance of insurance activities to insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors or have a foreign ownership stake in their authorized capital over 49%. As of January 1, 2020, the quota for participation by foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies with an insurance license was 10.83% (the BR calculates and publishes this indicator on its official website on an annual basis in accordance with Article 6, paragraph 3, of Law No. 4015-1).

Insurance companies must obtain authorization for the following: (1) an increase in their authorized capital from funds of foreign investors and/or their subsidiaries and (2) transfers of shares (equity stakes in authorized capital) to a foreign investor (including for sale to foreign investors). Russian shareholders (stakeholders) must obtain authorization to transfer their shares (equity stakes) to foreign investors and/or their subsidiaries. The insurance supervisory authority denies prior authorization to insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors or that have a foreign ownership in their authorized capital exceeding 49% that attain this status as a result of the transactions indicated if the established quota of 50% is exceeded when completing such transactions. In addition, foreign investors pay for the shares (equity stakes in authorized capital) belonging to them exclusively in monetary form in the currency of the Russian Federation.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents No.

Effective July 1, 2021, BR Regulation No. 710-P of January 10, 2020, on Certain Requirements for the Financial Stability and Solvency of Insurers introduced new approaches to determining the financial stability and solvency of insurers and to calculating equity (capital), and it takes into consideration the risk of a change in the value of assets and liabilities when determining capital adequacy. An insurer's equity capital is defined as the difference between the insurer's total assets and liabilities. Regulation No. 710-P establishes a uniform list of permitted assets for the investment of insurance reserve funds and equity capital and the relevant requirements with minimum restrictions in terms of quality. Paragraph 2.2 of BR Regulation No. 710-P states: Assets in which the equity of an insurance company and insurance reserve funds of insurers may be invested must meet the following requirements: 2.2.1. The issuers of the securities must be created in accordance with the legislation of the Russian Federation or foreign states that are members of the EAEU, the OECD, or the EU, or China, India, Brazil, or South Africa; 2.2.2. The items, other than certificated bonds and shares, must be located (physically held) within the Russian Federation. There are no limits on property rights (including noncash funds, uncertificated securities, digital rights, rights of claim against individuals and legal entities). According to the Regulation, when determining the actual amount of an insurance company's equity, the value of certain types of assets is equal to 0. In addition to the indicator describing insurance risks assumed by an insurer (the regulatory solvency margin), a new indicator is introduced that describes the volume of risks assumed by an insurer in connection with its investment activity. An assessment of the impact of risks is performed for a one-year horizon and it is estimated as the aggregate impact of concentration risk, the risk of a change in the credit spread, the risk of a change in interest rates, the risk of a change in share value, the risk of a change in the foreign exchange rate, the risk of a change in real estate prices, credit risk, and the risk of a change in prices for other assets.

Previously, the total value of assets located outside the Russian Federation in which an insurer's equity (capital) was invested could not exceed 35% of the regulatory solvency margin or the minimum amount of authorized capital (the larger of the two indicators) (BR Directive No. 4298-U of February 22, 2017).

RUSSIA

Free floating	03/09/2020	The Bank of Russia decided to suspend foreign exchange purchases by the fiscal rule for 30 days amid increased financial markets volatility. The decision applied to both regular foreign currency purchases and those postponed in 2018.
	03/10/2020	The Bank of Russia (BR) announced a shift to the forward sale of foreign currency, taking into account the actual oil price in effect under the budget rule. Because of the high degree of uncertainty associated with further development of the pandemic in Russia and around the world, the BR did not make any commitments with regard to the specific volumes and terms of the forward sales.
	03/19/2020	In addition to standard operations, within the context of the budget rule the Bank of Russia started to sell foreign currency in the domestic market as part of the transaction by the Russian Federation government to acquire a block of shares in the Sberbank Public Joint-Stock Company at the expense of funds from the National Wealth Fund. The foreign exchange sales for Sberbank deal were pre-announced February 11, 2020.
	07/24/2020	From October 1, 2020, to December 30, 2020, the Bank of Russia performed an offsetting (netting) of the remaining foreign currency to be sold under the transaction with the block of Sberbank shares, the volume of forward sales performed in March–April and purchases deferred during this period, the volume of purchases that were deferred in 2018 and had still not been carried out, and currency sales as part of the transaction involving acquisition of Aeroflot Public Joint-Stock Company shares by the Russian Federation government at the expense of the National Wealth Fund.
Official exchange rate	04/03/2020	The Bank of Russia announced that it would set the official exchange rate on non-business days announced in the Russian Federation (for example, related to quarantine), with the exception of non-business days that are weekends or official holidays.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted
Held abroad

01/01/2020	The following funds may be credited to accounts of residents opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation: funds in the currency of the Russian Federation under foreign trade agreements (contracts) concluded by such residents with nonresidents, with respect to which the repatriation requirement has been lifted; those paid by a nonresident pursuant to the requirements of the laws of a foreign state, bypassing accounts at authorized banks, in the form of income from the sale of precious metals recorded on accounts of residents opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation.
01/01/2020	Residents must notify the tax authorities on the movement of funds on accounts (deposits) at banks and other institutions in the financial market located outside the territory of the Russian Federation.
01/01/2020	Funds received from nonresidents may be credited without restriction to accounts (deposits) of resident individuals opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation on the condition that these banks are located within the territory of an Eurasian Economic Union member state or within the territory of a foreign state (territory) with which there is automatic exchange of financial information. Previously, the following funds received from nonresidents could be credited to accounts of resident individuals opened at banks in OECD or FATF member countries: (1) income from the leasing (or subletting) of the resident individual's real estate or other property located outside Russia to nonresidents; (2) funds paid in the form of accumulated interest (coupon) income provided for under the terms of an issue of foreign securities belonging to a resident individual, as well as other income on foreign securities (dividends, payments on bonds and bills, and payments when there is a reduction in the authorized capital of an issuer of a foreign security); and (3) funds paid to a resident individual in the form of income earned from the placement of funds and/or securities in trust with a nonresident trust manager.

01/01/2020	Residents may without restriction open accounts (deposits) in foreign currency and in rubles at other (nonbank) institutions in the financial market, in accordance with the private law of such institutions that have the right to provide services related to the attraction from residents and placement of funds or other financial assets for safekeeping, management, investment, and/or the performance of other transactions in the interests of a resident or directly or indirectly on the account of a resident.
04/17/2020	The crediting of funds to accounts (deposits) of residents opened at financial market institutions and the debiting of funds from such accounts (deposits) are performed in all cases without restriction.
08/11/2020	Funds paid in the form of insurance payouts by nonresident insurers may be credited to the accounts of representative offices or branches of resident legal entities opened at banks located outside the territory of the Russian Federation.
08/11/2020	The definition of funds in resident accounts abroad was clarified to include cash and other financial assets.
01/01/2021	Residents' accounts at banks outside Russia may be credited with transfers of foreign currency by resident individuals from their accounts at authorized banks to pay for goods delivered to them, work performed for them, services provided to them, information and intellectual property provided to them, including exclusive rights thereto, by resident individuals who have spent a total of more than 183 days outside the Russian Federation in a calendar year and who are engaged in entrepreneurial activity without incorporation as a legal entity in accordance with the legislation of the foreign state in which they are located, to accounts (deposits) of such individuals opened at banks located outside the Russian Federation
07/02/2021	In cases when regulatory legal acts of the Central Bank of the Russian Federation or the legislation of a foreign state or association of foreign states require the provision of security for the fulfillment of obligations under financial agreements concluded with nonresidents, the following funds from nonresidents may be credited to the accounts of resident legal entities that are qualified investors or professional participants in the securities market, which have been opened at banks located outside the Russian Federation: (1) those provided as security for the fulfillment of obligations under financial agreements; (2) those paid as a refund for funds previously paid by such residents, including the return of funds transferred in error and the return of funds when they are no longer serving as security for the fulfillment of obligations under financial agreements; (3) those paid in the form of interest, coupon income, dividends, or other income on funds or other assets offered as security for the fulfillment of obligations under financial agreements or recorded on the resident's accounts after the funds and/or other assets were posted to these accounts in accordance with this federal law; (4) those paid in the form of proceeds from the sale of security for fulfillment of obligations under financial agreements when collection action is taken; (5) those paid on securities provided as collateral for fulfillment of obligations under financial agreements or recorded on the resident's accounts after they were posted to these accounts in accordance with this federal law, in the form of redemption (or partial redemption) of securities, as well as income from the buyback of securities by their issuer, from the sale of securities on the basis of a voluntary offer, including a competitive offer, a compulsory offer, or the compulsory conveyance of securities on another basis, or from the distribution of the assets of a company undergoing liquidation among the shareholders.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	01/01/2020	The repatriation requirement for export earnings under foreign trade export contracts (non-commodity goods, work, services, and intellectual property) was lifted with regard to the entire amount of the contract if it is in the currency of the Russian Federation.
	01/01/2020	For foreign trade contracts for raw materials exports (with the exception of timber and timber materials, as well as contracts concluded by budget organizations), the repatriation requirement for Russian currency was lifted for 10% of the contract amount, with the rest scheduled to take place in stages.
	07/20/2020	In connection with the easing of liability measures with respect to participants in foreign economic activity for violation of the repatriation requirement, which reduces the number of grounds on which residents may face administrative liability, residents may credit to foreign accounts funds from nonresidents that are subject to repatriation to an account with an authorized bank on the condition that these funds are subsequently transferred within 45 days to an account at an authorized bank.
	08/11/2020	When performing foreign trade activity under contracts for which the repatriation requirement is still in place, the repatriation requirement does not apply when foreign currency is used to offset counterclaims for obligations in the event that settlements between resident and nonresident transportation entities are performed in accordance with rules adopted by international organizations in the area of international shipments, which establish the procedure for the performance of mutual settlements and related services.
	01/01/2021	For foreign trade contracts for raw materials exports (with the exception of timber and timber materials, as well as contracts concluded by budget organizations), the repatriation requirement for Russian currency was lifted to 30% from 10% of the contract amount, with the rest scheduled to take place in stages.
	02/17/2021	When performing foreign trade activity under contracts for which the repatriation requirement is still in place, the repatriation requirement does not apply in the event of the posting of funds to their own accounts at authorized banks in the form of insurance payments from resident insurance companies under insurance contracts to cover the risk of default by a nonresident on obligations under foreign trade export contracts.
	06/28/2021	When performing foreign trade activity under contracts for which the repatriation requirement is still in place, the repatriation requirement does not apply in the event of the posting of funds to their own accounts at authorized banks under a bank guarantee issued to nonresidents in favor of residents to secure fulfillment of a nonresident's obligations under a foreign trade contract.
	07/01/2021	The repatriation requirement for export earnings under foreign trade export contracts (non-commodity goods, work, services, and intellectual property) was lifted with regard to the entire amount of the contract if it is in foreign currency.

Russian Federation and Certain Legislative Acts of the Russian Federation was adopted. It defines conditions for the separate capitalization (a guarantee deposit) of a branch of a foreign insurance company. The minimum amount of a guarantee deposit for a branch of a foreign insurance company must be in line with the minimum amount of authorized capital of insurance companies depending on their type of business. The total value of minimum guarantee deposits of branches of foreign insurance companies is taken into account when calculating the level of participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies. Federal Law No. 343-FZ also provides for amendments to Law No. 4015-1, according to which there is no longer a requirement that an insurance company and/or its Russian partners obtain prior permission from the Bank of Russia to increase the size of the insurance company's authorized capital at the expense of funds of subsidiary companies of foreign investors and/or to transfer shares (stakes) in the insurance company's authorized capital to a subsidiary of a foreign investor (including the sale thereof).

Bank of Russia (BR) Regulation No. 710-P of January 10, 2020, on Certain Requirements for the Financial Stability and Solvency of Insurers introduced new approaches to determining the financial stability and solvency of insurers and to calculating equity (capital), and it takes into consideration the risk of a change in the value of assets and liabilities when determining capital adequacy. An insurer's equity capital is defined as the difference between the insurer's total assets and liabilities. Regulation No. 710-P establishes a uniform list of permitted assets for the investment of insurance reserve funds and equity capital and the relevant requirements with minimum restrictions in terms of quality. Paragraph 2.2 of Regulation No. 710-P states: Assets in which the equity of an insurance company and insurance reserve funds of insurers may be invested must meet the following requirements: 2.2.1. The issuers of the securities must be created in accordance with the legislation of the Russian Federation or foreign states that are members of the Eurasian Economic Union, the OECD, or the EU, or China, India, Brazil, or South Africa; 2.2.2. The items, other than certificated bonds and shares, must be located (physically held) within the Russian Federation.

In addition to the indicator describing insurance risks assumed by an insurer (the regulatory solvency margin), a new indicator is introduced that describes the volume of risks assumed by an insurer in connection with its investment activity. An assessment of the impact of risks is performed for a one-year horizon and it is estimated as the aggregate impact of concentration risk, the risk of a change in the credit spread, the risk of a change in interest rates, the risk of a change in share value, the risk of a change in the foreign exchange rate, the risk of a change in real estate prices, credit risk, and the risk of a change in prices for other assets.

Previously, the total value of assets located outside the Russian Federation in which an insurer's equity (capital) was invested could not exceed 35% of the regulatory solvency margin or the minimum amount of authorized capital (the larger of the two indicators) (BR Directive No. 4298-U of February 22, 2017).

An additional rate for insurance contributions is paid by a bank in the event that: <ol style="list-style-type: none"><li>(1) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in the currency of the Russian Federation (with the exception of deposits in the currency of the Russian Federation certified by savings certificates, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand) or the bank has entered into an agreement to change the terms of an agreement on a bank deposit in the currency of the Russian Federation offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 2 percentage points but not more than 3 percentage points per annum;</li><li>(2) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in foreign currency (with the exception of deposits in foreign currency certified by savings certificates, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand) or the bank has entered into an agreement to change the terms of an agreement on a bank deposit in foreign currency offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 1 percentage point but not more than 1.5 percentage points per annum;</li><li>(3) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in the currency of the Russian Federation certified by a savings certificate, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 3 percentage points but not more than 4 percentage points per annum;</li><li>(4) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in foreign currency certified by a savings certificate, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 2 percentage points but not more than 3 percentage points per annum.</li></ol>

A higher additional rate for insurance contributions is paid by a bank in the event that:

(1) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in the currency of the Russian Federation (with the exception of deposits in the currency of the Russian Federation certified by savings certificates, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand) or the bank has entered into an agreement to change the terms of an agreement on a bank deposit in the currency of the Russian Federation, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 3 percentage points per annum;

(2) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in foreign currency (with the exception of deposits in foreign currency certified by savings certificates, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand) or the bank has entered into an agreement to change the terms of an agreement on a bank deposit in foreign currency, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 1.5 percentage points per annum;

(3) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in the currency of the Russian Federation certified by a savings certificate, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 4 percentage points per annum;

(4) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in foreign currency certified by a savings certificate, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 3 percentage points per annum.

Previously, if a bank attracted even one deposit in foreign currency, the maximum rate of return on which exceeded the base rate of return on deposits by more than 2 percentage points but not more than 3 percentage points, or by more than 3 percentage points per annum in any month of a quarter, the bank was considered to meet the criteria for the payment of an additional rate or a higher additional rate for insurance contributions, respectively. There was a similar limit for deposits in rubles.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries freely set their exchange rates and commissions in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	As of December 31, 2020, there were 16 banks, including 11 commercial banks, 3 microfinance banks, and 1 cooperative bank; 20 microfinance institutions; 457 microfinance institutions including savings and credit cooperatives (SACCOs); and 85 foreign exchange bureaus licensed by the BNR. The foreign exchange bureaus do not enter into transactions with the BNR and may not open accounts abroad. They may only purchase and sell banknotes and may not make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. The minimum capital requirement for foreign exchange bureaus is FRW 50 million. The BNR placed a moratorium on licensing new foreign exchange bureaus on February 22, 2017.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.

bullion)

On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Trading is restricted to dealers approved by the relevant authorities. The approvals are granted by the Ministry of Trade and Industry. There are no controls on domestic ownership of gold (coins and/or bullion). Under anti-money-laundering legislation, gold dealers (dealers in precious stones) are considered reporting entities under the control of the Financial Investigation Unit.
On external trade	Yes.	Imports and exports of gold must be reported. Gold mining, refining, trade, and export is a regulated business that requires a license which is issued by the Rwanda Mines, Petroleum, and Gas Board (RMB) as the responsible regulatory authority, a requirement of the Mining Law. This requirement is not restricted to gold alone, but rather applicable to all other minerals as well. The RMB has two types of Mineral Export Certificates. The ICGLR Mineral Exports Certificate is governed by the Regional Certification Mechanism (RCM) to support the “Bag & Tag” system established to determine the chain of custody of the 3Ts (Tin, Tantalum, and Tungsten) to fight against illegal exploitation of these minerals in the Great Lakes region. The Rwanda Mineral Export Certificate is the national initiative to ensure proper reporting, demand due diligence, and transparency in non-3T minerals, including gold. It is issued by the RMB, and for gold, it commenced being issued effective July 1, 2020.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	No.	There are no controls with respect to resident and nonresident individuals on domestic currency. The amount of cash or the value of the negotiable instruments that a person may carry leaving the territory of Republic of Rwanda without need to make declaration is US$10,000 or equivalent in other currencies.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Commercial banks that need to export banknotes must request approval from the BNR in accordance with Regulation No. 05/2013 of October 21, 2013, Governing Foreign Exchange Operations (Article 37). There are no quantitative limits. The amount of cash or the value of the negotiable instruments that a person may carry leaving the territory of Republic of Rwanda without need to make declaration is US$10,000 or equivalent in other currencies.
On imports	No.
Domestic currency	No.	There are no controls with respect to resident and nonresident individuals on domestic currency. ### Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial      Yes.

banks and other credit institutions

Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Commercial banks' borrowing is subject to the same provisions as borrowing by natural or legal entities, provided the prudential standards are observed. Banks may freely contract loans in foreign currency from abroad, but they need to take into consideration the interest rate and ensure that the foreign exchange risk is mitigated. For statistical purposes, a copy of the loan agreement must be registered with the BNR.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Commercial banks may open accounts abroad and maintain credit balances in accordance with prudential rules established by the BNR on the limits on foreign currency holdings. For statistical purposes, licensed intermediaries authorized to transfer foreign currency must provide the BNR information on the foreign currency transferred on overseas accounts.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Pursuant to Regulation No. 004/2015 of August 18, 2015, the governor of the BNR determines through directives the conditions for granting loans in foreign currency. Pursuant to Directive 09-2018, resident banks may grant loans in foreign currency to residents and nonresidents subject to the following conditions: (1) The eligible borrower is a legal entity with a turnover of over FRW 50 million or its equivalent in foreign currency; (2) the borrower's income stream in foreign currency is derived from businesses permitted to generate foreign currency; (3) income stream generated by the business in foreign currency is not less than 150% of the annual or total installments; (4) repayment will be in the currency being borrowed until the maturity of the loan; (5) the foreign exchange risk is mitigated; (6) the collateral pledged by nonresidents is valued at 150% of the total amount of the loan; and (7) they comply with other prudential rules on related parties' transactions, credit concentration, and large exposure limits.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	The reserve requirement applies to both local and foreign currency deposits. There is no reserve requirement for foreign currency deposits. Effective April 1, 2020, the BNR lowered the reserve requirement ratio from 5% to 4% as one of the measures taken to mitigate the economic impact of the COVID-19 pandemic.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	Banks must maintain high-quality liquid assets equal to at least 100% of the net outflow for the 30-day period and for significant foreign currency on a weekly basis.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.
Reserve requirements	No.

		standards observed (foreign and local investment, exchange exposure limits, and the KYC principle).
Abroad by banks	Yes.	Regulation No. 2310/2019 – 00022 [614] of March 19, 2019, of the BNR on Major Investments and Placements of Banks applies. All major equity investments domestically and abroad require approval. A major investment is defined as a holding by a bank in an entity that represents at least 5% of the equity capital of the entity or a shareholding that exceeds 5% of the core capital of the bank. The aggregate investment in equity shares of other companies by a bank may not at any time exceed 25% of bank's core capital.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Regulation No. 05/2013 of October 21, 2013, Governing Foreign Exchange Operations and Regulation No. 2310/2019 – 00023 [614] of March 19, 2019, of the BNR on Shareholding, Acquisition, and Amalgamation of Banks apply. The approval from the CB is required, and a natural person cannot exceed 25% of the shares.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	Long and short foreign exchange positions are subject to limits of $\pm 20\%$ of banks' capital and reserves. Banks' foreign exchange positions may not exceed the limit for two consecutive business days.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	Open foreign exchange position limits apply for both resident and nonresident assets and liabilities. Long and short foreign exchange positions are subject to limits of $\pm 20\%$ of banks' capital and reserves. Banks' foreign exchange positions may not exceed the limit for two consecutive business days.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	Open foreign exchange position limits apply for both resident and nonresident assets and liabilities. Long and short foreign exchange positions are subject to limits of $\pm 20\%$ of banks' capital and reserves. Banks' foreign exchange positions may not exceed the limit for two consecutive business days.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	No.	There are no restrictions, provided they comply with Regulation No. 2310/2018 – 00014 [614] of December 27, 2018, on Licensing Conditions for Insurers and Reinsurers, and Regulation No. 12/2009 of October 13, 2009, on Market Conduct Requirements for Insurers and Insurance Intermediaries, and Regulation No. 001/2010 of October 28, 2010, relating to market capacity facilitation for foreign insurers apply.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	No applicable regulation.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	No applicable regulation.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	Regulation No. 05/2009 of July 29, 2009, on licensing requirements and other requirements for carrying out insurance business applies. Article 20 on investments operations sets limits on asset allocation for various investment classes as percentage of total assets. The regulation does not provide for a minimum investment portfolio to be held locally.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	No applicable regulation.
Pension funds	Yes.	Regulation No. 05/2016 of September 26, 2016, of the BNR established operational and other requirements for pension schemes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	A pension scheme may not invest more than 15% of the total value of its assets outside Rwanda (Regulation No. 05/2016, of September 26, 2016, Article 26).
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	A pension scheme may not invest more than 15% of the total value of its assets outside Rwanda (Regulation No. 05/2016, of September 26, 2016, Article 26).

Conventional peg	Yes.	The CBS Act of 2015 states that the Central Bank of Samoa (CBS) is responsible for setting the exchange rate. The exchange rate arrangement is a conventional peg vis-à-vis a currency composite of currencies of its major trading partners. Currencies in the Samoan tala basket are the US dollar, New Zealand dollar, Australian dollar, and euro. Annual reviews of the currency weights in the tala basket reflect the payment pattern of Samoa's trade in goods and travel receipts in the previous calendar year. The tala fluctuates with the movement of the currencies in the basket. The CBS stands ready to maintain the stability of the nominal value of the tala through a direct adjustment, if necessary and relevant. This is considered only when the authorities identify a significant adverse economic impact on the Samoan economy from any unforeseen major event (externally or domestically).

Official exchange rate

Yes. The tala continues to be pegged to a basket of the currencies of Samoa’s main trading partners—Australia, New Zealand, the United States, and the euro area. The currency weights are reviewed on an annual basis, taking into account Samoa’s distribution of trade and travel transactions between Samoa and its main trading partners. The CBS Board of Directors endorses the outcomes of these annual reviews within the first quarter of each year. A review of the 2020 currency basket weights was endorsed by the CBS Board effective February 7, 2020. A review of the 2021 currency basket weights was endorsed effective March 1, 2021. Due to the impact of COVID-19 on the foreign exchange markets, the CBS monitors foreign exchange rate developments with regard to the tala. A midyear review, undertaken for the first time, resulted in changes to the currency basket weights as endorsed by the CBS Board on June 26, 2020, and became effective July 1, 2020. Another midyear review resulted in changes to the currency basket weights as endorsed by the CBS Board on June 23, 2021, and became effective July 1, 2021. The exchange rate may be adjusted within a  $\pm 2\%$  range at the discretion of the governor; however for adjustments greater than  $\pm 2\%$ , the approval of the CBS Board is necessary. Only the CBS may decide on a change in the exchange rate arrangement, if it is deemed necessary after extensive study. The official exchange rate is used for accounting and valuation purposes.

Monetary aggregate target

Yes. The CBS primary monetary policy objective is price stability while ensuring sustained economic growth and adequate foreign exchange reserves. Operationally, the CBS targets reserve money (primarily, commercial banks’ excess reserves; i.e., commercial banks’ demand deposit balances at the CBS, private sector credit growth, and M2), using the level of CBS securities to influence liquidity. Monetary policy is implemented through open-market operations with CBS securities with tenors ranging from 14 to 365 days. But the turnover is low. There is no secondary market for CBS securities. Interbank trading in securities and foreign exchange is very limited, and the local money market remains shallow. The CBS monitors inflation (to ensure it does not exceed 3%), private sector credit growth, and foreign exchange reserves, with the exchange rate policy offering a complementary role to ensure imported inflation is contained and the competitiveness of Samoa’s external sector, where necessary, given the small size of the economy.

The CB, however, collects and monitors these data to ensure the exchange rates offered to the public are consistent with those by authorized banks.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	There were 4 commercial banks and 15 authorized foreign exchange dealers (AFEDs) as of December 31, 2020. Of the 15 AFEDs, 14 are authorized for both money exchange and money transfer services; 1 is solely a money changer authorized to purchase and sell foreign currency banknotes. Unlike those of authorized commercial banks, the types of operations authorized for money transfer operators (MTOs) and money changers are limited. Authorized MTOs may conduct some foreign exchange transactions similar to those of authorized commercial banks (for example, payments between Samoa and the rest of the world). Authorized money changers are licensed by the CBS only to buy and sell foreign currency banknotes (in exchange for tala) in Samoa. The minimum capital requirement for authorized money changers is SAT 30,000; for MTOs it is SAT 100,000 (since January 1, 2015). Authorized money exchange businesses may not conduct foreign exchange transactions directly with the CBS. Only commercial banks may buy and sell US dollars directly with the CBS. There is no capital market in foreign currencies yet.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	When dealing with commercial banks, the CBS deals at the spot exchange rate valued two days later.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The CBS sells and buys foreign currency—specifically, only US dollars currently—in the foreign exchange market at the request of commercial banks. The bid-ask spread is 20 basis points around the official mid-rate. Aside from local commercial banks, the CBS also sells and buys US dollars from World Bank finance institutions ([IBRD] and the International Development Association). The CBS also transacts with the government, as its bank: the CBS may buy foreign currency funds relating to government and sell tala in exchange and provide payment services for foreign exchange payments abroad.
Allocation	No.	The CBS does not allocate specific amounts of foreign currency to its AD banks; it buys and sells foreign exchange at the banks' request, mainly to cover short positions in the banking system. For foreign exchange reserves management, the CBS generally asks commercial banks the purpose and source of substantial sums of foreign exchange sold or bought. The CBS generally does not verify these major transactions—deemed normal foreign exchange flows for regular clients' large payments for imports, including for oil—according to any particular conditions. However, if a major transaction includes a CBS-approved overseas capital payment, it is verified by reference to the Exchange Control approval, if any. Overseas capital payments sometimes have a set payment date, so the actual timing and occurrence of these flows may be verified. However, most overseas capital payments, including dividend repatriation (to parent companies or headquarters offices abroad), may be made anytime within 30 days of CBS approval, so timing and occurrence cannot be verified. Commercial banks may sometimes service these flows with their own foreign currency holdings rather than by purchasing US dollars from the CBS. Some flows (for example, forward exchange contracts) are expected to be self-sourced and do not require US dollar purchases from the CBS.

Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Commercial banks may buy and sell foreign exchange among themselves. If they cannot obtain or sell their foreign exchange in the interbank market, they may buy from or sell (US dollars only) to the CBS. Interbank market participants are the four licensed commercial banks (ANZ Bank, Bank of South Pacific, National Bank of Samoa, Samoa Commercial Bank). The CBS does not impose limits on the bid-ask spread for foreign exchange trade in the interbank market.
Over the counter	Yes.	Among themselves, commercial banks deal on the spot and settle/value the deal two days later.
Brokerage	No.	Commercial banks deal directly with each other in the interbank market; there is no broker between the buyer and seller.
Market making	Yes.	The interbank market operates under an arrangement whereby the transacting participants mutually agree to a single exchange rate at which they may trade foreign exchange. For instance, commercial banks might agree to use the CBS mid-rate for US dollars to buy or sell US dollars among themselves.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks are permitted to make forward exchange contracts. The CBS does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The domestic use of foreign currency is subject to CBS approval.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	Samoa participates in PACER Plus, PICTA, and the South Pacific Regional Trade and Economic Cooperation Agreement. Samoa is a member of the WTO.
Clearing agreements	No.

Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The CBS has overall responsibility for the administration of foreign exchange control: it delegates some authority to AD banks and selected foreign exchange dealers. In principle, all capital payments to nonresidents require CBS approval; however, commercial banks and foreign exchange dealers (MTOs) may approve most current payments without limits, with supporting documentation, usual due diligence, and compliance with anti-money-laundering requirements. There is no limit on money transfer companies' transfers for current payments. Banks and money transfer companies may transfer unlimited amounts for advance payments and import payments, with documentation. Other current transactions are still subject to specified limits. For example, AFEDs and commercial banks may purchase and sell foreign exchange cash equivalent to up to SAT 20,000 an individual for travel purposes. Larger amounts to be hand carried during travel abroad require CBS approval.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	No.	The CBS is permitted to trade in gold under the CBS Act 2015.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.	The CBS Act 2015 permits the CB to buy, sell, and deal in gold coins and/or bullion, but it does not regulate domestic ownership and/or trading of gold.
On external trade	No.	The CBS Act 2015 does not regulate external trade in gold.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	CBS Exchange Control approval is required for any amount of domestic currency to be exported.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Through AFEDs, residents may hand carry the equivalent of SAT 20,000 in foreign currency a person a trip for overseas travel. Higher amounts require CBS approval. Nonresidents may export as much foreign currency as they brought into Samoa. Commercial banks and authorized money changers require CBS approval to export excess foreign currency banknotes.
On imports	No.	Customs declaration is required for amounts exceeding SAT 20,000.
Domestic currency	No.
Foreign currency	No.	Amounts in excess of the equivalent of SAT 20,000 must be declared at the port of entry.
Resident Accounts
Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Subject to CBS approval, residents who earn foreign exchange may open a foreign currency deposit account if there is a need to settle overseas commitments.
Held domestically	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Residents who earn foreign exchange in the normal course of their business may open, with CBS approval, foreign currency deposit accounts with one of the four AD banks. CBS approval is granted, subject to appropriate documentation, only to those who are genuine earners of foreign exchange and have a genuine need to settle overseas commitments with foreign exchange.

CBS approval is required for the transfer of funds abroad for capital transactions and some current payments (namely, management fees, dividends to foreign shareholders, insurance and/or reinsurance premiums of CBS-licensed institutions). A balance of payments (BOP) form authorized by the CBS must be submitted to the commercial banks and/or MTOs for processing of payment. If funds are moved for current payments (e.g., imports), CBS-delegated AD banks and MTOs may effect payment and complete foreign exchange payment details on their respective telegraphic transfer form, for later submission electronically through the foreign exchange payments report to the CBS with the appropriate supporting documentation at the beginning of the next month (i.e., within five working days of the beginning of the next month).

Held abroad	Yes.	If foreign exchange accounts held abroad are for the purpose of investments in those countries, CBS approval is required as part of Exchange Control regulations relating to capital payment transactions. In the case of residents with dual citizenship, however, this can be difficult to monitor or ascertain. Resident individuals and businesses may freely establish bank accounts abroad.
Approval required	Yes.	CBS approval is required to hold foreign exchange accounts abroad mainly if they relate to investments overseas by residents.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.	Exports of domestic currency are subject to Exchange Control regulations. However, there is no specific clause in the regulations indicating whether accounts denominated in tala may or may not be held abroad.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	CBS approval is required to convert funds from domestic currency accounts to foreign currency only in the case of capital payment transactions. In other cases, funds from a domestic currency account in Samoa may be converted to foreign currency as authorized for AD banks.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Nonresidents who earn foreign exchange may open a foreign currency deposit account with any of the commercial banks without CBS approval. Funds from these accounts may be freely transferred abroad for any current international transaction. CBS approval is required only when foreign exchange accounts of nonresidents held in Samoan banks are closed and funds are requested to be transferred overseas. Transfers up to the equivalent of SAT 50,000 from a closed foreign exchange account of a nonresident may be authorized and processed by commercial banks. Larger amounts require CBS approval.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	External accounts are accounts in tala with authorized banks under Exchange Control purposes held by individuals, organizations, or entities regarded as nonresident. Domestic currency accounts do not require CBS approval, but there are restrictions on the types of funds in tala that may be credited to these accounts. External accounts may be credited with funds from the following: (1) interest on the account; (2) payments from other external accounts; (3) payments by residents of Samoa permitted either under authority delegated to the banks in an Exchange Control notice or specifically by the CB; (4) proceeds of sale of foreign currency by the account holder sourced externally or remaining from travel funds; (5)

proceeds of tala notes received from an account holder leaving Samoa after a temporary visit, provided the bank is reasonably satisfied that the notes were obtained in Samoa by the sale of foreign currency or by debiting an external account or were brought into the country by the traveler; (6) salaries and wages from employment in Samoa.

External accounts may be debited with (1) payments to residents of Samoa; (2) payments to other external accounts; (3) payments in cash in Samoa; (4) the cost of foreign exchange facilities for travel purchased in accordance with EC Notice 9; (5) the cost of foreign currency purchased by the account holder in accordance with EC Notice 5; and (6) payments in foreign currency to nonresidents. Banks may debit an external account without limits within their delegated authority, except for capital transactions, which require CBS approval. An Exchange Control BOP2 form is to be completed at all times, as required by the CBS. There is an exemption from these exchange control requirements for official accounts of diplomatic corps (for example, embassies, delegations, consulates, and offices of high commissioners, UN agencies).

Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Balances may be freely converted for current international transactions. For capital transactions, they are referred to the CBS.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	No.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	The following documents are required before a bank or MTO may process an import payment. For goods already arrived and cleared by Samoa Customs, original suppliers' invoices stating the value of imported goods, an original bill of lading or airway bill with details of the current shipment/cargo, and relevant original customs documents on receipt of goods in Samoa. There is no limit on the amount. For advance import payments, prior to shipment of goods, a pro forma invoice from the supplier requesting payment prior to shipment of goods and original Customs Single Administrative Data documents to be stamped within 30 days of arrival of goods in Samoa. There is no limit on the amount.
Letters of credit	Yes.	Commercial banks may accept invoices from importers in addition to LCs.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	No.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.

SAMOA

Positive list	Yes.	There are some restrictions on the importation of meat and meat products from Asia, alcohol, cigarettes, some equipment used with animals/fish/plants, chemicals, and selected fresh/dried fruits. The importation of any pornographic material, drugs and firearms, narcotics, and unlawful weapons is also restricted. The importation of selected types of lights, air-conditioning units, and refrigeration appliances is now in place with the commencement of the Samoa Energy Efficiency Act 2017 as of December 21, 2017. The energy efficiency regulation took effect at various times for different products. Household refrigerators and freezers imported into Samoa must meet minimum energy performance standards (MEPS) and carry standard energy labels. The test standards, MEPS, and energy labeling rules are set out in the regulations. Air conditioners imported into Samoa must meet MEPS and carry standard energy labels. The test standards, MEPS, and energy labeling rules are set out in the regulations. Lighting products (incandescent lamps, fluorescent lamps, and ballasts) imported into Samoa must meet MEPS. The test standards and MEPS rules are set out in the regulations.
Negative list	Yes.	The importation of some products is prohibited or restricted for reasons of security or health or as a result of trade agreements. Importation of refrigerators that use chlorofluorocarbons is prohibited for environmental reasons. Honey is also prohibited for reasons of biosecurity and the protection of the local industry. Single-use plastics are banned or prohibited from importation. There are prohibitions on the type of packaging that imported goods need to comply with such as for certain food items (such as tinned/canned fish and tinned/canned corned beef) consistent with government directives from time to time. Since August 1, 2019, imports of 24-packs of 12 ounce corned beef cans are prohibited. Effective March 1, 2020, imports of 12-tin boxes of fish are prohibited; only 8-tin boxes are allowed. Previously, imports of 24-tin boxes of fish were prohibited and only 12-tin boxes were allowed. Effective March 1, 2020, the maximum package size allowed for imports of 3 pound corned beef cans was reduced from 4-pack to 2-pack.
Open general licenses	Yes.	Imports of meat, meat products, livestock, and plants and plant products in commercial consignments are usually covered under OGLs. Private consignments are limited, but flexible, depending on why an applicant requests more than necessary for private individual consumption.
Licenses with quotas	No.	Most licenses for general imports do not have quantitative limits. The government may allow importers to bring in goods up to a certain value free of duty. Imports exceeding this value are subject to the usual duty rates.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Imports of motor vehicles more than 10 years old are prohibited, as are imports of eggs without expiration dates on their carton. For regulated imports (for example, eggs, meat, meat products, livestock, plants, plant products), the exporting country must comply with Samoa Quarantine Service requirements. Regulated imports of meat and meat products must have a health certificate from the exporting country to obtain a Samoa Quarantine Service import permit. For plants and plant products, a phytosanitary certificate is required.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Import duties are levied on an ad valorem basis on the c.i.f. value. There are four general rates of duty—0%, 5%, 8%, and 20%. Duty on machinery and agricultural imports is 8% and 5%, respectively;

there is no longer duty on motor vehicles, but an excise tax is imposed according to the vehicle's manufacture year and engine capacity. In addition, there is an import excise tax on imports of alcohol, soft drinks, tobacco, and petroleum. Companies that produce for export may receive full or partial exemption from duty and excise taxes on inputs and capital equipment.

Amendments to the Customs Act of 1977 have been passed to ensure compliance with WTO requirements and for other related purposes.

A value-added goods and services tax of 15% applies both to imported and locally produced goods and services and is added to the price of taxable goods and services. Businesses with annual turnover of SAT 78,000 or more from taxable activities must register with the Ministry for Revenue to pay the tax and submit tax returns at regular intervals.

An excise tax was placed on foodstuff with high sugar, salt, and fat content effective January 1, 2020. These products include, among others, sugar, syrup, snacks, noodles, meat products (pork and lamb), chocolate, and bubble gum.

Taxes collected through the exchange system No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements Yes. Export proceeds (of individuals or businesses) must be received no later than two months from shipment date if exporting to countries other than American Samoa, and within one month of shipment date if going to American Samoa.

All export proceeds must be realized through an AFED (i.e., authorized commercial bank or MTO).

Export proceeds may not, for any purpose, be used and/or retained abroad for an extended period, without CBS approval. The CBS allows exporters (individuals, businesses) to credit their foreign currency accounts with export proceeds and to debit them to make import payments and meet other business-related commitments as approved by the CB at the time of application for such accounts. Exporters may sell to the banks any foreign currency from their accounts for tala.

Confirmation of receipts of export proceeds may be in the form of a bank statement from the authorized bank stating credit of proceeds or receipt of funds received through an MTO.

Surrender requirements No.

Surrender to the central bank No.

Surrender to authorized dealers No.

Documentation requirements Yes.

Letters of credit Yes. In addition to LCs, commercial invoices, certificates of value and origin, and bills of lading are now accepted by commercial banks for documentation requirements.

Guarantees No.

Domiciliation No.

Preshipment inspection Yes. The Customs Division of the Ministry of Customs and Revenue examines export documents. The Samoa Quarantine Service may inspect and certify items for export if a phytosanitary or a health certificate is required by the country to which the goods are exported.

Other	No.
Export licenses	Yes.
Without quotas	Yes.	Exporters must be registered with the CBS prior to any shipments departing from Samoa. Exports of certain agricultural products may be prohibited by the minister of agriculture and fisheries (MAF) for low quality or by order of the head of state to alleviate domestic shortages or for any reasons deemed necessary from time to time. An MAF quarantine export license has been issued (and renewed annually) to commercial exporters of agricultural products since July 1, 2010. This does not apply to private/individual exporters of agricultural products.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	No.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	No.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	CBS approval is required for certain current transaction payments abroad for services. These include payments overseas of management fees, insurance/reinsurance premiums by CBS-licensed institutions (e.g., banks, MTOs, insurance companies), and dividends.
Trade-related payments	Yes.	ADs may approve these payments, provided applicants submit relevant documentary proof.
Prior approval	Yes.	Remittance of a freight company's excess receipts/income (from operations in Samoa) to their overseas head office requires CBS approval for amounts exceeding SAT 1.0 million. Lesser amounts are delegated to the AFEDs.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	Delegated limits for the remittance of a freight company's excess receipts/income to their head office are SAT 1.0 million; larger amounts require CBS approval.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Applicants must submit documentary proof.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	There may be limits on the amount that may be remitted abroad, subject to prevailing liquidity and economic conditions in Samoa. Resident individuals or companies remitting investment-related payments abroad must obtain CBS approval and provide documentary proof for the amount of such payments. Single transactions large enough to severely affect the CB's level of foreign reserves must be made in installments. Approval for transfer abroad of investment funds withdrawn by individuals from local nonbank financial institutions (e.g., investments with the Unit Trust of Samoa, contribution funds with the Samoa National Provident Fund; as part of migration overseas) is delegated to commercial banks and MTOs for amounts up to SAT 30,000. Larger amounts require CBS approval.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	There are no indicative limits, and approval is granted if documentation requested by the CB is provided. Single transactions large enough to severely affect the CB's level of foreign reserves must be made in installments.

Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	Amounts exceeding SAT 20,000 (equivalent in foreign currency) a person a trip may be purchased with CBS approval, if travelers are hand carrying the foreign funds while crossing borders. No prior approval is required if travel funds are to be transferred through the banks or MTOs.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	Residents and expatriates traveling overseas may purchase from commercial banks foreign currency equivalent to SAT 20,000 a person a trip. Larger amounts may be purchased with CBS approval if travelers are hand carrying the foreign funds across borders.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Valid travel documents, such as a return airline ticket, passport, and visa, are required.
Personal payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	Approval is required only if payment for family support exceeds SAT 100,000 an applicant a year. Family support refers to assistance with daily living expenses for family overseas. It does not cover family alimony/maintenance. Effective August 1, 2021, medical payments are fully delegated to the AFEDs, in part due to COVID-19. No further delegated limits nor CBS approval is needed for the remittance of funds relating to payment for medical services abroad. Relevant supporting documents must be submitted to the AFEDs.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	Payment for family support up to SAT 100,000 an applicant a year does not require CBS approval. CBS approval is required for higher amounts. Family support refers to assistance with daily living expenses for family overseas. It does not cover family alimony/maintenance. Effective August 1, 2021, medical payments are fully delegated to the AFEDs, in part due to COVID-19. No further delegated limits nor CBS approval is needed for the remittance of funds relating to payment for medical services abroad. Relevant supporting documents must be submitted to the AFEDs.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	There is no specific limit on costs for study abroad, but the amount requested must be supported by documentary evidence that the beneficiary is enrolled at an educational institution abroad and that the costs are in line with the prevailing costs in the country of study.
Foreign workers' wages	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	Expatriate workers with local contracts of one year and longer are considered residents; however, they are not required to obtain CBS approval if they wish to repatriate their net earnings during their contract period. Earnings not repatriated during the contract period may be repatriated at the end of the contract period. Regulations on nonresident domestic currency accounts apply. Prior CBS approval is required when foreign exchange accounts of nonresidents held in Samoan banks are closed (for example, at the end of a foreign worker's contract) and funds are requested to be transferred overseas. Transfers up to the equivalent of SAT 50,000 from a closed foreign exchange account of a nonresident may be authorized and processed by the commercial banks. Amounts in excess of SAT 50,000 equivalent require prior CBS approval.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Foreign workers who wish to remit wages abroad must confirm to the AD banks that they are expatriates and provide supporting documents, such as an employment permit or visa, confirmation of the salary earned, other employment documents that verify the legitimacy of the source of the income, or documents to support the purpose of the remittance abroad.

Credit card use abroad	No.	The CBS does not regulate the use of credit cards, which is typically up to commercial banks.
Prior approval	No.	If a credit card were used for a foreign capital payment, CBS approval would be required. However, because of known limits on credit cards, it is unlikely that a credit card would be used for capital payments.
Quantitative limits	No.	The CBS places no quantitative limits on credit card use abroad. However, because AD banks issue credit cards, it is their responsibility to ensure that their use complies with the foreign exchange limits on outward transfers under the Exchange Control regulations.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	No.	Verification of the use of credit cards is the responsibility of the commercial banks that issue them.
Other payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.	These are delegated to AD banks and MTOs to process and do not require prior CBS approval.
Quantitative limits	No.	There are no quantitative limits. However, the applicant must satisfy the CBS' request for relevant supporting documentation.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	There are no specific limits on subscriptions and membership fees; amounts requested must be supported by documentary evidence.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	There is no specific deadline for repatriation to Samoa of proceeds from invisible transactions and transfers. Generally, exports of services require the receipt of funds into the Samoan banking system immediately after the service is rendered. Otherwise, the rules for exports of goods apply. Specifically, export proceeds must be received no later than two months from shipment for exports to countries other than American Samoa and within one month of shipments to American Samoa. The CBS allows exporters (individuals or businesses) to credit their foreign currency accounts with export proceeds and to debit them to meet import payments and other business-related commitments as approved by the CB at the time of application for such accounts. Exporters may sell to banks any foreign currency from their accounts in tala.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	On their return, resident travelers must sell to banks all unused foreign exchange they bring into Samoa. There is no deadline for the sale of unused foreign exchange by resident travelers.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Most capital transfers and payments require CBS approval. Local money markets remain shallow. There is currently no capital market in foreign currencies in Samoa.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	There is no deadline for the repatriation of proceeds from capital transactions abroad by a resident. However, any potential dividend flows from the approved capital investment abroad are expected to

Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	No.
By residents to nonresidents	No.
To residents from nonresidents	No.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	The Ministry of Commerce, Industry and Labour exercises control over inward FDI and registers and monitors these investments.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.
Sale locally by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.
Loans	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval. Approval of regular repayments of overseas debts by resident individuals (for example, overseas student loans, preexisting debts while resident in other countries) is delegated to authorized commercial banks and MTOs, subject to documentation requirements. The following exceptions apply and still require CBS approval: (1) payment for the settlement of an overseas loan; (2) refinancing of an overseas debt or mortgage; (3) repayment of foreign currency loans with local banks; and (4) new external loans while resident of Samoa.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval where amounts exceed the delegated limits. Payments by individuals for gifts remitted to another individual abroad up to SAT 20,000 an applicant a calendar year have been delegated to the AFEDs since August 1, 2019. Higher amounts require CBS approval.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.

SAMOA

Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	No.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	Individuals must provide documentary proof of the source and destination of funds. Remittance of any amount requires CBS approval because all capital transactions require approval.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.	The CBS does not impose reserve requirements, liquid asset requirements, or interest on foreign exchange deposit accounts at commercial banks and credit institutions. However, approval from the CBS is required for residents intending to open and hold domestically any foreign currency account, as well as in the case of foreign currency loans by residents.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	The CBS does not impose reserve requirements on foreign exchange deposit accounts at commercial banks and credit institutions, but it imposes a 4.5% reserve requirement on commercial banks' domestic currency deposit accounts.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	The liberalization of the financial sector led to the elimination of all direct CBS controls on credit operations. Commercial banks now implement and monitor their own credit operations. However, prior CBS approval is required in the case of foreign currency loans by residents.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	All domestic currency deposit accounts are captured in the 4.5% reserve requirement imposed by the CBS on commercial banks' domestic currency deposit accounts, even if an account holder is a nonresident. However, foreign currency accounts of nonresidents are not included in the 4.5% reserve requirement.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.	The liberalization of the financial sector led to the elimination of all direct CBS controls on credit operations. Commercial banks must now regulate and monitor their own credit operations.

SAMOA

Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions are subject to CBS approval.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	Commercial banks generally set their own limits on open foreign exchange positions for each currency; however, these limits must be approved by the CBS. Commercial banks do not have different limits for resident and nonresident assets and liabilities.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	The Insurance Act, 2007, authorizes the CBS to carry out prudential supervision of insurance companies.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	These limits are not specifically defined. However, investment involving the outflow of foreign exchange is subject to the Exchange Control Regulations, 1999, and may therefore require CBS approval and documentation.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Although the Insurance Act, 2007, does not specify a maximum for insurance companies' investments held abroad, any investment involving the outflow of foreign exchange is subject to the Exchange Control Regulations, 1999, and may therefore require CBS approval and documentation.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	These limits are not specifically defined. However, investment involving the outflow of foreign exchange is subject to the Exchange Control Regulations, 1999, and may therefore require CBS approval and documentation.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Investments held abroad require CBS approval under the Exchange Control Regulations, 1999. Documentation is required.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.	There are no limits on these investments, but they are subject to CBS exchange control regulations.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	These limits are not specifically defined. However, investment involving the outflow of foreign exchange is subject to the Exchange Control Regulations, 1999, and may therefore require CBS approval and documentation.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	These limits are not specifically defined; however, how much these investment firms may hold in portfolios abroad depends on prevailing liquidity conditions in the financial system and is subject to CBS exchange control regulations.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.

Date of membership		September 23, 1992.
Article VIII	Yes.	Date of acceptance: September 23, 1992.
Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2020.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	In accordance with EU regulations and the relevant UNSC resolutions, San Marino maintains exchange and/or payment restrictions for the preservation of national or international security.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Law No. 92 of June 17, 2008, and subsequent amendments, adopted in compliance with the international obligations assumed by San Marino to combat money laundering, terrorism, financing of terrorism, and activities that threaten international peace and security, provides for the adoption of restrictive measures conforming to the resolutions of the UNSC or one of its committees. The restrictive measures include the following: (1) the freezing of funds and economic resources held or controlled, directly or indirectly, by persons, entities, or groups included in the list drawn up by the appropriate UN committee; (2) commercial restrictions, including commercial restrictions on imports or exports, and arms embargoes; (3) restrictions of a financial nature, including financial restrictions or financial assistance and prohibition against providing financial services; and (4) restrictions of any other nature, including restrictions on technical assistance, flight prohibitions, prohibition against entry or transit, diplomatic sanctions, the suspension of cooperation, and the boycotting of sporting events.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	Yes.	The currency of San Marino is the euro.
Other legal tender	Yes.	Although the gold scudo is legal tender, it is not used in transactions because its numismatic value exceeds its defined legal value of €37.50 per scudo. Euro collector coins and gold scudi are not used in transactions because their numismatic value exceeds their nominal value.
Exchange rate structure
Unitary	Yes.
Dual
Multiple
Classification
No separate legal tender	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement is an exchange arrangement with no separate legal tender. On March 27, 2012, San Marino signed a monetary agreement with the EU repealing the previous monetary agreement of November 29, 2000. The agreement authorizes San Marino to use the euro as its official currency, grant legal tender status to euro banknotes and coins, and issue limited quantities of euro coins. San Marino is committed to adopting the relevant EU legislation (on euro banknotes and coins; combating fraud and counterfeiting; banking and financial legislation, including the prevention of money laundering and statistical reporting requirements) within the time specified by that agreement. The list of legal acts to be implemented and the time limits for their transposition are reviewed each year by a “Joint Committee” as provided by Articles 8 and 11 of the Monetary Agreement.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.	The CBSM is the sole agency entitled to carry out transactions in unrefined gold. The CBSM may authorize operators to buy unrefined gold for manufacturing purposes under the necessary controls. Currently, there is no unrefined gold trade in San Marino.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	The CBSM may authorize operators to buy unrefined gold for manufacturing purposes under the necessary controls. Once authorized, operators must report periodically to the CBSM details on the manufacturing activity.
On external trade	Yes.	San Marino economic operators may be authorized to purchase unrefined gold only for goods manufacturing purposes. Statistical reporting to the CBSM is requested. No economic operators have yet been authorized.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	To combat money laundering, transactions in cash or bearer securities when the value of the transaction, even fractional, is equal to or higher than €10,000 must be made through banks. Moreover, a declaration system applies to the cross-border transportation of cash and similar instruments. Travelers, banks, and other financial institutions are required to declare the importation and exportation of banknotes and coins in euros and foreign currency in amounts greater than €10,000 or the equivalent value. Import and export control at the borders is generally handled by the police forces in conjunction with routine control operations. Banks must ask for the customers' declarations of cross-border transportation, if they deem that the cash is of cross-border origin.
On exports	No.
Domestic currency	No.	Exports exceeding the amount of €10,000 of cash and similar instruments must be declared.
Foreign currency	No.	Exports of foreign banknotes or coins or similar instruments when the amount exceeds €10,000 or the equivalent value must be declared.

SAN MARINO

Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Customs duties on imports from outside the EU are collected by EU customs authorities on behalf of San Marino. A tax is levied by San Marino on imports at the time of entry. The structure of this tax corresponds closely to the Italian VAT, but the average effective rate is about 5% lower. Taxes levied on imports are rebated when the goods are reexported. Aircraft registered in San Marino are exempt from import duties or VAT if their maximum takeoff weight exceeds 5,700 kg. Ships over 10 meters long owned by foreign entities and stationed outside the territorial waters of countries with which San Marino has stationing and port usage agreements are not subject to import tax.

Purchase abroad by residents	No.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	The granting of financial credit to a person or a company is subject to the provisions of the banking law as well as to those of the CBSM. Under these provisions, banks and other credit institutions are required to periodically submit information on credit operations to the CBSM. This provision applies to all types of credit operations. In addition, the average interest rates applied by the financial system are monitored, and maximum rates are established to prevent usury (Article 207 of the Penal Code). Loans and guarantees granted by banks, financial companies, and loan funds, as well as collateral received, should be reported to the Central Credit Registry held by the CBSM.
Commercial credits	Yes.

To residents from nonresidents	No.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	No.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents may not establish companies in some specific economic sectors without the government's approval. Decree No. 176/2018 (December 2018), ratified March 26, 2019, by Decree No. 50/2019, abolished the preliminary nonimpediment ("nulla osta") of the Congress of State (Government) for authorizations by the supervisory authority, or changes in its authorization, for the exercise of reserved activities related to activities in Sections A (banking), C (fiduciary activity), D (investment services), E (collective investment services), G (insurance), and H (reinsurance) of Attachment 1 of Law No. 165/2005. The following sectors are also regulated and subject to specific authorization by the government or the authorities: (1) gambling (including entrepreneurial activities); (2) socio-healthcare activities; (3) the economic and commodity sectors in accordance with Delegated Decree No. 116 of December 12, 2007, as amended and completed (Delegated Decree No. 17 of February 12, 2009, and Delegated Decree No. 122 of August 31, 2009), whose entrepreneurial activities are subject to government authorization.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	No.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Purchases by domestic companies and foreign citizens (residents and nonresidents) no longer require approval of the Council of Twelve (Delegated Decree No. 105/2019). The number of real estate assets that can be purchased without Council of Twelve approval is limited to 2 for physical persons and 10 for companies. Exclusions apply to real estate companies and purchases of properties classified as having "monumental value." Foreign companies are not allowed to buy real estate assets.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.
Loans	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	San Marino regulations do not preclude loans to nonresidents. Sammarinese banks and financial companies may grant loans to nonresidents. However, San Marino banks and financial companies may carry out and offer financial services only within the territory of San Marino. This means that San Marino banks and financial companies may grant loans to nonresidents only if nonresidents approach the bank or financial company on their own initiative. CBSM Regulation No. 2007-07 and CBSM Regulation No. 2011-03 govern, respectively, the collection of savings and banking activities and the financing operations of financial companies.

To residents from nonresidents No.

Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies Yes.

By residents to nonresidents Yes. Foreign citizens (residents and nonresidents) in some cases are not allowed to accept real estate by inheritance, endowment, or legacy without approval of the Council of Twelve, according to Article 25 of Law No. 118/2010. However, the liberalization introduced by Delegated Decree No. 105/2019 also applies in some cases. Council of Twelve approval is not necessary if a foreigner, direct descendant, or foreign spouse of a San Marino citizen or of a deceased resident alien is an heir by legitimate or testamentary succession, as provided by Article 25 of Law No. 118/2010.

To residents from nonresidents No.

Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants No.

Transfer of assets No.

Transfer abroad by emigrants No.

Transfer into the country by immigrants No.

Transfer of gambling and prize earnings No.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions Yes. CBSM Regulation No. 2007-07 governs the collection of savings and banking activities.

Decree No. 162/2009 establishes requirements on liquidity reserves for banks. Operations for the protection of savings and tools to protect savings and banking system stability in case of banks' compulsory liquidation are established by law. Deposits in banks under suspension of payment are also protected under the law. The Oversight Committee, at the behest of the commissioners and with the approval of the CBSM's Supervision Committee, may permit banks in extraordinary administration whose payments are suspended to allow depositors to withdraw cash and/or make payment arrangements to satisfy essential and urgent needs.

Regulation No. 2012-01, titled Regulation No. 2007-07, Update III – Regulation No. 2011-03, Update I, revised certain prudential rules by (1) extending the deadline for the sale of property acquired for debt collection, taking into account the actual date of release of the goods; (2) repealing the risk weight of 200% for nonperforming loans and keeping the weight of 150%, except for leases already weighted at 50%, which, if nonperforming, are weighted at 100%; (3) defining restructured loans for reporting and budget purposes; (4) removing reference to the constraints of employment, with the secretary of labor; (5) simplifying requirements for periodic review of credit with a regular repayment plan; (6) extending the deadline to comply with the new standards of prudential supervision for companies with limited operating powers to December 21, 2012; and (7) extending to December 21, 2012, the deadline for financial companies to adopt the new prudential supervision provisions when granting credit. Regulation No. 2012-02, titled Regulation No. 2007-07, Update IV – Regulation No. 2011-03, Update II, updated the definition of nonperforming loans to reflect the notion of restructured loans introduced by Regulation No. 2012-01.

CBSM Regulation No. 2012-03 on miscellaneous measures reviewed the supervisory provisions currently in force. It (1) introduced the concept of “adjusted regulatory capital” by adjustments to the calculation of total regulatory capital and prudential limits at the group level; (2) simplified the use of centralization forms for certain intragroup business functions, in view of recent aggregation between financial intermediaries; and (3) harmonized regulations on the professional requirements of corporate banking and financial officers to facilitate integration between the financial systems of San Marino and Italy through mutual transfer of expertise.

Circular No. 2012-01 introduced a new obligation to detect changes in cash at banks exceeding the limit subject to registration in the Anti-Money-Laundering Computer Archive.

Regulation No. 2013-05 for entry into the Single Euro Payments Area (SEPA) aims to harmonize the national payment system with rules introduced at the EU level for SEPA implementation. SEPA’s goal is to provide services within the EU payment area that are secure, competitively priced, easy to use, and reliable through the introduction of common technical and business requirements for credit transfers and direct debits in euros. This regulation introduced rules governing the rights and obligations of the parties with regard to payment services, adopting European Directive 2007/64/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of November 13, 2007.

CBSM Regulation 2016-02 on the annual accounts and consolidated accounts of banks and other financial institutions.

Law No. 102 of June 14, 2019, “Bank Resolution Law” (following the principles of the Bank Recovery and Resolution Directive, but with bail-out criteria combined with a selective bail-in).

Regulation No. 2020-01 on miscellaneous measures aimed at reviewing the current supervisory provisions, which, among other things, regulates fit and proper requirements for banks’ corporate managers, implementing the provisions of Article 91 of CRD-IV.

Regarding COVID-19, the government introduced the following measures regarding the financial system (in addition to other specific measures aimed at supporting household income and firms’ revenues):

Decree-Law No. 91/2020 (ratification of Decree-Law No. 63/2020): measures to support households, enterprises, the self-employed, and freelancers in order to address the COVID-19 emergency (state guarantee on loans by banks to households and firms), in force from April 2020 through June 30, 2021.

Decree-Law No. 66/2020 (ratification of Decree-Law No. 62/2020): urgent measures to contain and to manage the COVID-19 emergency (moratorium on loan repayments for households and firms plus provisions for state guarantees on loans by the CBSM, in force from April 2020 through April 30, 2021 (firms) and May 31, 2021 (households).

On the same matter, the CBSM took the following additional measures: (1) As of April 2020, banks could transfer financial instruments from the trading book to the Held-to-Maturity portfolio with the market values recorded January 31, 2020. (2) As of December 2020, the CBSM permitted banks to make an exceptional transfer from the Held-to-Maturity portfolio to the trading book or an exceptional sale on the market (to be realized by June 2021). Profits (realized or unrealized) will be counted for future recapitalization by allocating net profits to an unavailable capital reserve. As a consequence, no dividends may be paid until the reserve is fully funded with an amount equivalent to profits realized as a result of such transfer.

Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Regardless of the borrower's residence, limits apply to lending. In particular, pursuant to Part VII, Title IV, Article 2, of Regulations No. 2007-07 and 2011-03, (1) banks and other credit institutions (financial companies) may not lend to any counterparty or group of related counterparties more than 25% of their regulatory capital (individual limit) and (2) such exposure may not exceed eight times regulatory capital.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Pursuant to Part VII, Title IV, Article 2, of Regulations No. 2007-07 and 2011-03, (1) banks and other credit institutions (financial companies) may not lend to any counterparty or group of related counterparties more than 25% of their regulatory capital (individual limit) and (2) such exposure may not exceed eight times regulatory capital. These limits apply regardless of the currency denomination of the lending. Lending activity in foreign exchange is not significant.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	No.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.	A protocol, Parliament Decree No. 7 of January 22, 2016 – Ratification of the Protocol, amending the agreement between the European Community and the Republic of San Marino providing for measures equivalent to those in Council Directive 2003/48/EC on taxation of savings income in the form of interest payments is in force. Accordingly, there is no withholding tax on EU residents' account holder interest income.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.

SAN MARINO

Investment regulations	Yes.	The acquisition of shares in the capital of a bank or financial company above certain thresholds requires CBSM authorization.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	The purchase of securities of a participating nature exceeding 10% in foreign financial or nonfinancial companies by Sammarinese banks and financial companies must be authorized by the CBSM.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Regardless of the investor's residence, the purchase of securities of a participating nature exceeding 2% of a Sammarinese bank's capital or 5% of a Sammarinese financial company's capital must be authorized by the CBSM.
Open foreign exchange position limits	No.
On resident assets and liabilities	No.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	No.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Insurance companies are regulated under CBSM Regulation No. 2008-01, which provides the general regulatory framework for life insurance business. Currently, it is not possible to conduct non-life-insurance or reinsurance business in San Marino.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	There are no limits on the aggregate amount of investments in securities issued by nonresidents. CBSM Regulation No. 2008-01 provides limits for specific categories of securities.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Financial assets representing technical provisions must be kept in a bank authorized by the CBSM to carry out banking activity in San Marino. The CBSM may allow insurance companies to hold investment portfolios abroad on request. These restrictions do not apply to portfolios that do not make up technical provisions (Article 83, CBSM Regulation No. 2008-01).
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Financial assets representing technical provisions must be kept in a bank authorized by the CBSM to carry out banking activity in San Marino. The CBSM may allow insurance companies to hold investment portfolios abroad on request (Article 83 of CBSM Regulation No. 2008-01).
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Exchange risk exposure must be reported to the CBSM.
Pension funds	No.	Private pension funds are not regulated under Sammarinese law, so no Sammarinese private pension funds are active in San Marino. However, foreign private pension funds may be placed in San Marino. Law No. 191/2011 (on Reforming Social Security) established a mandatory public complementary pension fund.  The public pension fund has an internal regulation defined by the administrative body. The mandatory public complementary pension fund is regulated by the abovementioned law, which defines a specific limit, but this limit is related to the asset class of the investment (e.g., shares, corporate bonds, etc.) and not to the residency of the issuer.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Investment firms and collective	Yes.	Law No. 165/2005 provides for specific rules for investment firms, investment funds		but these have not been issued yet.

		Collective investment services are regulated under CBSM Regulation No. 2006-03.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Collective investment services are not limited in holding securities issued by nonresidents. CBSM Regulation No. 2006-03 determines limits on the allowed investments and diversification. These limits depend on the type of fund and do not discriminate with respect to the residence of the issuer. Other limits may be autonomously established by fund rules approved by the CBSM.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Assets and securities of a collective investment service must be kept in a bank authorized by the CBSM. The depository bank must be a fully authorized bank in San Marino or an authorized bank in an OECD country that complies with the requirements in CBSM Regulation No. 2006-03. Other limits may be autonomously established by the fund rules approved by the CBSM.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Assets and securities of a collective investment service must be kept in a bank authorized by the CBSM. The depository bank must be a fully authorized bank in San Marino or an authorized bank in an OECD country that complies with the requirements in CBSM Regulation No. 2006-03. Other limits may be autonomously established by fund rules approved by the CBSM.

*(Position as of June 30, 2021)Status under IMF Articles of Agreement*Date of membership September 30, 1977.Article VIII*Article XIV Yes.Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices Yes. The IMF staff report for the First Review under the Extended Credit Facility and Request for Augmentation of Access, Rephasing of Access, and Financing Assurances Review for Sao Tome and Principe states that, as of July 20, 2020, São Tomé and Príncipe continues to avail itself of the transitional arrangements under Article XIV, but it does not maintain restrictions under Article XIV. However, it maintains restrictions subject to IMF approval under Article VIII. One exchange restriction regarding limitations on the transferability of net income from investment arises from Article 3(g) and Article 18 of the Investment Code (Law No. 19/2016). This restriction results from the requirement that taxes and other obligations to the government have to be paid/fulfilled as a condition for transfer, to the extent the requirement includes the payment of taxes and the fulfillment of obligations unrelated to the net income to be transferred. The second exchange restriction arises from limitations on the availability of foreign exchange through rationing of foreign exchange by Bank of São Tomé and Príncipe (BCSTP). This exchange restriction also gives rise to a MCP as the rationing has channeled bona fide current transactions to the parallel market where the exchange rate is at a spread of more than 2% from the exchange rate in the formal market. (Country Report No. 2020/232)

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The official exchange rate is Db 24.50 per euro, and the CB is committed to maintaining the peg of the dobra to the euro. Rates for other currencies are based on cross-rates between the euro and the currencies concerned in international markets (Article 2(2) of NAP No. 05/2017 – Regulations on the Foreign Exchange Coverage). The official euro–US dollar cross-rate is based on the ECB reference rate of the previous day. The official exchange rate is used for accounting and valuation. The official exchange rate of dobra against euro is also used to purchase and sell euro.

Foreign exchange market Yes. When commercial banks purchase and sell euro in transactions with their customers, they must use the fixed exchange rate published by the BCSTP (official exchange rate). In case of euro purchases, the charging of any commission is prohibited, while in case of euro sales, banks are allowed to charge a commission up to 2%. Purchase and sale by banks of other foreign currencies in transactions with their customers may be carried out at the exchange rates set by commercial banks, with the condition that the spread between buying and selling rates does not exceed 4%. In case of euro purchase from the public, exchange bureaus must use the fixed exchange rate published by the BCSTP, with no commission permitted to be charged. The BCSTP regulation does not impose any rule for exchange bureaus with regard to setting of selling exchange rate for euro, as well as buying and selling exchange rates for other foreign currencies, except for the requirement to include all commissions in the exchange rates. In its sale transactions in euro with financial institutions, the BCSTP charges a 1.5% commission, while on its purchases of euros with financial institutions, the BCSTP charges a 0.5% commission.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	De jure there is only one foreign exchange bureau authorized to deal in foreign exchange under NAP No. 24/2009, regulating foreign exchange bureaus. In practice however, there are several foreign exchange bureaus and unregulated agents dealing in foreign exchange in the country without special and prior authorization from the CB, as required under Article 7(1) of Decree-Law No. 32/99, the Foreign Exchange Law. Under the terms of Article 12 of NAP No. 24/2009, foreign exchange bureaus can engage in the following transactions: purchase and sale of foreign exchange; foreign currency trading, purchase and sale of traveler's checks, purchase and sale of banknotes and coins with the CB for foreign exchange transactions or the transfer of foreign exchange surpluses; and purchase and sale of banknotes and coins with commercial banks. Article 13 of the same NAP prohibits foreign exchange bureaus from transferring foreign exchange abroad and from all other transactions not specified in Article 12.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	Under NAP No. 05/2017 – Regulations on Foreign Exchange Coverage, the BCSTP applies a foreign exchange allocation system. Under Article 18(2) of the Foreign Exchange Law, the BCSTP purchases and sells foreign exchange “to the State” as its financial agent.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	Yes.	Under Article 18 of Decree-Law No. 32/99, the Foreign Exchange Law, the BCSTP may purchase and sell foreign exchange from and to commercial banks indiscriminately, depending on the external situation and need to control money supply, provided the latter cumulatively fulfill the requirements for applying for foreign exchange cover and eligibility specified in Articles 6 and 7 of NAP No. 05/2017 – Regulation on Exchange Coverage. Foreign exchange is made available to commercial banks for customer's external payments through foreign exchange coverage provided by the BCSTP via two modalities laid down by the BCSTP regulations (1) through selling foreign exchange after customers' import payments already made and (2) through direct foreign exchange coverage that means selling foreign exchange for making current international payments. The BCSTP finances current international transactions at the official exchange rate only after verification of the bona fide nature of the bank's request. These include only completed goods' import transactions fulfilling the specified requirements. Access to foreign exchange is limited to financial institutions whose net position in the transaction currency is less than 12% of their qualified capital and the net position in all foreign currencies is less than 25% of qualified capital. Financial institutions must be in compliance with the CB's regulations on bank liquidity and capital adequacy. Financial institutions may have access to the CB's facilities regardless of the above conditions (direct foreign exchange coverage) if the foreign exchange is for importation of goods during a crisis or for the importation of fuel.

On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	No.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers are entitled to remove dobra banknotes and coins up to the limit of 5 examples of each denomination up to a total of 1,944 in new dobras, and 944,692.50 in old dobras. Amounts in excess of these limits must be seized by the competent authority and handed over to the CB. This rule is valid for all travelers. The export of banknotes is subject to a special authorization from the BCSTP.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Residents traveling abroad are allowed to carry or transport with them foreign currency (in banknotes and coins) in an amount corresponding to Db 245,000, that is equivalent to € 10,000. Nonresidents leaving the country with more than Db 245,000 that is equivalent of € 10,000 in foreign currency or other foreign means of payment, except credit cards, payment cards, bank checks, or traveler's checks issued abroad in their name, must, if and when asked to do so by the competent authorities, provide evidence that they entered the country with the same amount or higher. Evidence must be provided in the form of the original declaration, duly filled in on entry into the country, or in the form of a certificate of origin issued by a national financial institution in compliance with the existing legislation.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	No.
Foreign currency	Yes.	In accordance with Decree No. 11/2014, Approving the Declaration of Values Models.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Pursuant to Article 16 of Decree-Law No. 32/99, the Foreign Exchange Law, deposit accounts in dobras or any foreign currency can be freely opened and operated, both by residents and by nonresidents, without restriction, subject to fulfillment of the legal procedures defined in NAP No. 10/11, on opening and operating accounts in foreign currency. Although the Foreign Exchange Law requires that transfers be authorized by the BCSTP, in practice the current system allows the free movement of capital.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents may maintain bank accounts denominated in both domestic and foreign currency in São Tomé and Príncipe and abroad and may freely transfer amounts from their accounts abroad.
Approval required	No.	Even though the Foreign Exchange Law requires authorization by the BCSTP for transfers, in practice the system currently permits free movement.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Even though the Foreign Exchange Law requires authorization by the BCSTP for transfers, in practice the system currently permits free movement. Residents and nonresidents may maintain bank accounts denominated in domestic and foreign currency in São Tomé and Príncipe and abroad and may freely transfer amounts from their accounts abroad.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency Yes.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes. These accounts may be opened freely and credited or debited, including for transfers abroad, as long as they are demand deposit accounts (Article 16 of Decree-Law No. 32/99, the Foreign Exchange Law).

Approval required No.

Domestic currency accounts Yes.

Convertible into foreign currency Yes. These accounts may be converted and credited or debited, including for transfers abroad, as long as they are demand deposit accounts.

Approval required No.

Blocked accounts No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget Yes. The BCSTP determines its foreign exchange budget on the basis of information obtained in collaboration with the Treasury and major economic agents.

Financing requirements for imports No.

Minimum financing requirements No. Pursuant to Article 12(2) of Decree-Law No. 32/99, the Foreign Exchange Law, the BCSTP guarantees the convertibility and transfer abroad of the foreign exchange needed to pay for imports, provided the importer has the funds needed to cover the corresponding amount in the commercial banks.

Advance payment requirements No.

Advance import deposits No. The advance deposit requirement involving the opening of an LC depends on what was agreed between the bank and the importer. Normally an advance deposit is not required.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports Yes.

Domiciliation requirements No.

Preshipment inspection No.

Letters of credit No.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses No.

Other Yes. Foreign exchange is made available to commercial banks for customer's import payments through foreign exchange coverage provided by the BCSTP via two modalities laid down by the BCSTP regulations (1) through selling foreign exchange after customers' import payments already made and (2), in case of fuel imports and other imports of goods in period of crisis, through direct foreign exchange coverage that means selling foreign exchange for making current international payments. A bank application for foreign exchange cover must be supported by the following: (1) listing of the amounts of imports for which the foreign exchange is required; (2) documentary evidence of the money transfer (MT); (3) documentary justification of the operation, namely: (a) definitive invoices with dates no older than six months from the date of the application for foreign exchange cover; (b) documentary evidence of the shipment from point of origin or unloading of the merchandise from the national customs territory; (4) date of transfer request, by the client, and effective date of the operation; and (5) any other documents if the BCSTP considers they are necessary.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	No.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Import licenses are granted freely by the General Directorate of Commerce. Certification of timely payment of tax liabilities must also be requested from the Ministry of Planning and Finance. Pursuant to Paragraph 2 of Article 13A of Decree-Law No. 11/2011, regulating commercial activity and its licensing, all private firms or collective entities that export and/or import merchandise, specified in Tables A1 and A2 of this instrument, are exempt from the requirement to register in the Commerce Department. Paragraph 3 of the same article establishes a requirement for licenses or endorsements for other commercial activities. Also, pursuant to Paragraph 3 of Article 13A of Decree-Law No. 11/2011, the reexportation of products that incorporate minerals, environmental reserves, and national security requires a license to be obtained from the Commerce Department.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Imports are unrestricted; however, entry into the national territory is subject to customs procedures as envisaged under current law (Decree-Law No. 39/2009, the Customs Code).
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.

Engaging in the securities business must be authorized by the CMA, unless the business is exempted pursuant to the Securities Business Regulations. Under the CMA Authorized Persons Regulations, applicants for authorization to engage in dealing, managing, or custodial business must be established in Saudi Arabia and be either (1) a subsidiary of a local bank, (2) a joint-stock company, (3) a subsidiary of a Saudi joint-stock company engaged in the financial services business, or (4) a subsidiary of a foreign financial institution licensed under the Banking Control Law issued by Royal Decree No. M/5 of 22/2/1386H (of June 11, 1966). Applicants for authorization to engage in advisory or business arrangement services may be of any legal type established in Saudi Arabia.

Purchasing securities locally by nonresidents is subject to the

For direct investment in these securities: (1) The Rules for Qualified Foreign Financial Institutions Investment in Listed Securities (Qualified Foreign Investor (QFI) Rules) issued by the CMA Board on May 4, 2015, set out the procedures, requirements, and conditions for qualifying foreign investors to invest in listed securities in the Saudi market and specify their obligations and the obligations of authorized persons in this regard. The required minimum for assets under management or custody is $500 million (SR 1.87 billion). Affiliates of QFIs or foreign portfolio managers and their managed funds do not need to submit separate applications. The requirements for the CMA's review and approval of the qualification application and for investor experience have been removed. (2) Nonresident foreign investors may invest directly in the parallel equity market (Nomu).

For non-direct investment in these securities: (1) Nonresident foreigners, either institutions or individuals, may invest in such securities through access products ("swap agreements"), with authorized persons, which transfer economic benefits but not legal title, subject to the conditions and requirements set out in the CMA's Board Resolution of August 17, 2008. The limit on the percentage of foreign investments via swap agreements in the Saudi capital market is 10% of the shares of the issuer whose shares are listed or convertible debt instruments of the issuer. The 10% limit is not calculated as an aggregate limit on the foreign investor and any affiliates together, that is, an affiliate of a foreign investor may invest to the 10% limit regardless of the investment of the foreign investor. Swap holders may open a QFI account while retaining the swap account for a grace period of one year, providing foreign investor with choice of channel for trading.

(2) Nonresident foreigners may also hold units in mutual funds, including exchange-traded funds (ETFs), which may invest in Saudi listed securities. (3) Nonresident GCC citizens are treated equal to residents in Saudi Arabia and allowed to invest directly in the Saudi Stock Exchange.

The CMA Board issued the Investment Accounts Instructions of April 3, 2016, to regulate the opening and operation of investment accounts held by authorized persons licensed by the CMA (dealing, managing, or custody) and to define the related investment accounts controls and supervisory rules. The requirement to provide copies of identification documents of the owner of the QFI to open an investment account for foreign investors has been removed. Complementary to the QFI rules, the CMA implements the "Instructions for the Foreign Strategic Investors' Ownership in Listed Companies." They are aimed at foreign legal persons who intend to own a strategic shareholding in listed companies, and for which the aim is to promote the financial or operational performance of the listed companies in the long term. Among the most prominent features of the Instructions is that foreign strategic investors are excluded from all requirements of QFI rules, including the investment limits stipulated in Article 14 of the QFI Rules that the maximum proportion of the shares of any issuer whose shares are listed or convertible debt instrument of the issuer that may be owned by all foreign investors in aggregate is 49%. However, foreign strategic investors may not dispose of any of the shares they own in accordance with the Instructions within a period of two years after the date of ownership of such shares, and limits by other regulators or a company's own rules still apply. In addition, the procedures for opening accounts and owning shares through authorized persons were eased.

SAUDI ARABIA

		For investments in banks by nonresidents, there is a limit of 60% of capital, and permission of the authorities is required. There is no overall limit for foreign strategic investor ownership in listed companies, and they require SAMA's approval for acquiring 50% or more of a bank's capital. However, foreign strategic investors may not dispose of any of the shares they own within a period of two years after the date of acquisition of such shares, and limits by other regulators or a company's own rules still apply.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Issuances and offerings of securities are under the CMA's jurisdiction and require its approval or notification depending on the offer type. Foreign issuers must comply with the Exchange Listing Rules and any foreign listing requirements that the CMA may issue in the future, which will detail the requirements that are imposed on the foreign issuers. All issuances and offerings must be conducted through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia. As per the amended CMA Board Rules on the Offer of Securities and Continuing Obligations (OSCO), foreign issuers are allowed to cross-list their shares on the Saudi Stock Exchange. Foreign issuers may offer securities by way of private placement to selected investors in Saudi Arabia as per Part 3 of the Rules on the OSCO. In this regard, foreign issuers are not required to comply with the Listing Rules if such securities are not to be listed in the Saudi Stock Exchange.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	No restrictions apply, except that insurance companies may not invest more than 20% in foreign securities unless approved by the SAMA. In addition, a limit of 10% applies to foreign-currency-denominated investments. However, this limit may be changed according to the investment policy submitted by the insurance company and approved by the SAMA. SAMA approval is required for Saudi Arabian banks to acquire shares in foreign companies. However, any security issued abroad may only be advertised in Saudi Arabia through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia and subject to the provisions of Part 3 of the Securities Business Regulations.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	There are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of securities abroad by residents, which are subject to the laws where the sale or issuance takes place. However, pursuant to paragraph a/6 of Article 6 of the Capital Market Law, the CMA has the power to approve, cancel, or suspend the listing of Saudi issuers' securities traded on the Saudi Stock Exchange on stock exchanges abroad. Only authorized persons may conduct securities business in Saudi Arabia, unless exempt.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	Rules on the OSCO describe the requirements for issuance and offering of bonds and other debt securities either through public offering or through private placement. The OSCO Rules also contain provisions regulating the issuance and trading of securities through a special purpose entity (SPE). The Rules for SPEs issued by the CMA Board regulate the establishment, licensing, and activities of the SPE that is responsible for issuing debt instruments.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Effective August 12, 2020, the CMA Board issued a resolution allowing residents and nonresident foreigners to invest directly in listed and non-listed debt instruments. Specifically, (1) All foreign legal and natural persons may invest directly in debt instruments. (2) A nonresident foreign person may not invest in the market as a direct investor in listed debt instruments and as a QFI or an ultimate beneficiary in swap agreements at the same time. (3) A foreign person who invests directly in debt instruments may not convert such instruments into shares listed in the Main Market, unless such person is among the categories of investors who are allowed to invest directly in the shares listed in the Main Market, or becomes an ultimate beneficiary in a swap agreement in accordance with the

		provisions of the Authority's instructions on swap agreements. Previously, purchasing securities locally by nonresidents was subject to the following. For direct investment in these securities: (1) The Rules for Qualified Foreign Financial Institutions Investment in Listed Securities (QFI Rules) issued by the CMA Board on May 4, 2015, set out the procedures, requirements, and conditions for qualifying foreign investors to invest in listed securities in the Saudi market and specified their obligations and the obligations of authorized persons in this regard. (2) Nonresident foreign investors could invest directly in the parallel equity market (Nomu). For non-direct investment in these securities: (1) Nonresident foreigners, either institutions or individuals, could invest in such securities through access products ("swap agreements"), with authorized persons, which transfer economic benefits but not legal title, subject to the conditions and requirements set out in the CMA's Board Resolution of August 17, 2008. (2) Nonresident foreigners could also hold units in mutual funds, including ETFs, which may invest in Saudi listed securities. (3) Nonresident GCC citizens were treated equal to residents in Saudi Arabia and allowed to invest directly in the Saudi Stock Exchange. The CMA Board issued the Investment Accounts Instructions of April 3, 2016, to regulate the opening and operation of investment accounts held by authorized persons licensed by the CMA (dealing, managing, or custody) and to define the related investment accounts controls and supervisory rules. There are no controls on portfolio investment in government securities by foreign nationals. There is no minimum holding period requirement for such bonds.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance and sale of securities, including debt securities, are under the jurisdiction of the CMA and require its approval or notification depending on the offer type. In all cases, foreign issuers must comply with the Exchange Listing Rules and any foreign listing requirements that the CMA may issue in the future, which will detail the requirements that are imposed on the foreign issuers. The issuer must be a Saudi joint-stock company, except where the provisions of Article 14 "cross listing" of the listing rules apply. All issuances and offerings must be conducted through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia. As per the amended CMA Board Rules on the OSCO, foreign issuers are allowed to cross-list their shares on the Saudi Stock Exchange. Foreign issuers may offer securities by way of private placement to selected investors in Saudi Arabia as per Part 3 of the Rules on the OSCO. In this regard, foreign issuers are not required to comply with the Listing Rules if such securities are not to be listed in the Saudi Stock Exchange.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	No restrictions apply, except that insurance companies may not invest more than 20% in foreign securities unless approved by the SAMA. In addition, a limit of 5% applies to foreign government bonds and bonds issued by foreign companies. However, any security issued abroad may only be advertised in Saudi Arabia through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia and subject to the provisions of Part 3 of the Securities Business Regulations.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	There are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of securities abroad by residents, which are subject to the laws where the sale or issuance takes place. SAUDI ARABIA

		Capital Market Law, the CMA has the power to approve, cancel, or suspend the listing of any Saudi security of any Saudi issuer traded on the Saudi Stock Exchange on any stock exchange abroad. Only authorized persons may conduct securities business in Saudi Arabia unless exempt.
On collective investment securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The Capital Market Law defines investment funds as collective investment schemes (CIS). There is no distinction between CIS. Nonresidents may invest in CIS funds, including ETFs. The CMA Board of Commissioners issued the Real-Estate Investment Traded Funds Instructions, covering offering requirements, unitholders' consent on the fundamental changes, unitholder meetings, disclosure requirements, trading halt and cancelation of listing, and termination of the Real-Estate Investment Traded Fund. Banks operating in the Kingdom are allowed to distribute CIS in accordance with the CMA's circular that governs the contractual relationship between the bank and the authorized person.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Public offering of CIS investment is restricted to persons authorized by the CMA to conduct managing activities. However, foreign funds may offer units in foreign funds through a distributor (with a dealing as an agent activity license) as a private offer. All issuances and offerings must be conducted through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia and in accordance with the Investment Funds Regulations issued by the CMA (as amended). Foreign issuers may offer securities by way of private placement to selected investors in Saudi Arabia as per Part 3 of the Rules on the OSCO. In this regard, foreign issuers are not required to comply with the Listing Rules if such securities are not to be listed in the Saudi Stock Exchange.
Purchase abroad by residents	No.	There are no restrictions on the purchase of securities abroad by residents. However, any security issued abroad may only be advertised in Saudi Arabia through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia and subject to the provisions of Part 3 of the Securities Business Regulations.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	There are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of securities by residents abroad.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	The derivatives market was launched effective August 30, 2020.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The Saudi Stock Exchange (Tadawul) launched the derivatives market effective August 30, 2020. The only traded derivative product is SF30 Index Futures Contract, which is based on the MSCI Tadawul 30 (MT30) Index. The QFIs and ultimate beneficiary in swap agreement may invest in listed derivatives.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Issuance and sale of securities, including derivatives and other instruments, in Saudi Arabia are under the jurisdiction of the CMA and require its approval or notification depending on the type of offer. In all cases, rules for residents and nonresidents are the same, unless such securities will be listed on the Saudi Stock Exchange, in which case the issuer must be a Saudi joint-stock company, except where the provisions of Article 10 "cross listing" of the Exchange listing rules apply. All issuances and offerings must be conducted through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia.
Purchase abroad by residents	No.	There are no restrictions on the purchase of securities abroad by residents. However, any security issued abroad may only be advertised in Saudi Arabia through a person authorized in Saudi Arabia and subject to the provisions of Part 3 of the Securities Business Regulations.

SAUDI ARABIA

Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	There are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of securities, including derivatives and other instruments, abroad by residents, which are subject to the laws where the sale or issuance takes place. However, pursuant to paragraph a/6 of Article 6 of the Capital Market Law, the CMA has the power to approve, cancel, or suspend the listing of Saudi securities of Saudi issuers traded on the Saudi Stock Exchange on stock exchanges abroad. Only authorized persons may conduct securities business in Saudi Arabia unless exempt.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Saudi Arabian banks and finance companies must obtain permission from SAMA.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	SAMA permission is required for riyal-denominated loans made through Saudi Arabian banks. SAMA approval is required for banks and finance companies to borrow abroad except for interbank transaction. Pursuant to Article 68 of the Implementing Regulation of the Law on the Supervision of Finance Companies, a SAMA non-objection letter is required for finance companies to obtain foreign loans or loans in a currency other than the Saudi riyal.
Financial credits	Yes.	SAMA permission is required for all financial credit operations.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	SAMA permission is required for loans made through Saudi Arabian banks. Saudi Arabian banks and finance companies require a SAMA non-objection letter to lend to nonresidents, except for interbank transactions and commercial credits.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	SAMA permission is required for riyal-denominated loans made through Saudi Arabian banks. Pursuant to Article 68 of the Implementing Regulation of the Law on the Supervision of Finance Companies, a SAMA non-objection letter is required for banks and finance companies to borrow abroad, except for interbank transactions.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.	Pursuant to Article 12 of the Law on the Supervision of Finance Companies, finance companies may not extend any financing without guarantees, subject to certain exceptions, or finance or grant facilities guaranteed by its shares. Pursuant to Article 60 of the Implementing Regulation of the Law on the Supervision of Finance Companies, finance companies may grant financing without guarantee when the following conditions are met: (1) The total amount of granted finance does not exceed 100,000 riyals based on the beneficiary's credit record; (2) the beneficiary does not have any unresolved indebtedness, unresolved dispute, credit standing claim, insolvency, bankruptcy, or liquidation claim, in the previous ten years; and (3) the beneficiary is not a related party.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	SAMA permission is required.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	SAMA permission is required.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	SAMA approval is required for Saudi Arabian banks to acquire shares in foreign companies.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	The Foreign Investment Law allows foreign investors to invest directly in most economic sectors—with or without local participation, subject to sectoral limits—and imposes a tax rate of 20% on most foreign company profits, with two exceptions: (1) An

85% tax rate applies to profits of investment in the oil and hydrocarbon sector. (2) A basic tax rate of 30% applies to profits of investment in the natural gas sector as long as the internal rate of return of the project does not exceed 8%. For investments with an internal rate of return exceeding 8%, a sliding scale with higher tax rates applies, up to 85% for an internal rate of return exceeding 20%. Approved foreign investment enjoys the same privileges as domestic capital. There is a list of economic sectors in which foreign investors may not invest. The negative list includes the following:

(1) Industrial Sector: (a) Oil exploration, drilling, and production, except the services related to the mining sector listed as CPC 5115+883 in international classification codes; (b) Manufacturing of military equipment, devices, and uniforms; (c) Manufacturing of civilian explosives. (2) Service Sector: (a) Catering to military sectors; (b) Security and detective services; (c) Real estate investment in Makkah and Madinah; (d) Tourist orientation and guidance services related to Hajj; (e) Printing and publishing, except for the following activities: Pre-printing services (internationally classified as CPC 88442), Printing Presses (CPC 88442), Drawing and calligraphy (CPC 87501), Photography (CPC 875), Radio and Television Broadcasting Studios (CPC 96114), Foreign Media Offices and Correspondents (CPC 962); Promotion and Advertising (CPC 871), Public Relations (CPC 86506), Publication (CPC 88442), Press Services (CPC 88442), Production, selling, and renting of computer software (CPC 88), Media consultancies and studies (CPC 853), Typing and copying (CPC 87507 + 87904), Motion picture and video tape distribution services (CPC 96113); (f) Commission agents (CPC 621); and (g) Fisheries.

Effective July 6, 2021, the following sectors were opened to foreign investors: Tourist orientation and guidance services related to Umrah; services provided by midwives, nurses, physical therapy services, and quasi-doctoral services; and poison centers, blood banks, and health quarantines.

To attract FDI, administrative procedures have been simplified including (1) Foreign investment license requirements amounting to two documents; (2) an instant license and renewal system; (3) automated post services (license renewal, company activities amendment, adding branches), shorter time to issue new licenses (less than 3 hours). The validity of foreign investment licenses is five years.

For investments in banks by nonresidents, there is a limit of 60% of capital, and permission of the authorities is required. There is no overall limit for foreign strategic investor ownership in listed companies, and they require SAMA's approval for acquiring 50% or more of a bank's capital. However, foreign strategic investors may not dispose of any of the shares they own within a period of two years after the date of ownership of such shares, and limits by other regulators or a company's own rules still apply.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment No.

Controls on real estate transactions Yes. Effective October 2, 2020, a tax of 5% is levied on the total disposal value of real estate, whatever its condition, shape, or use at the time of disposal.

Purchase abroad by residents No.

Purchase locally by nonresidents Yes.

In principle, the purchase of, and investment in, real estate is restricted to Saudi Arabian nationals, corporations, and institutions and nationals and institutions of GCC members. The Regulation allows foreign investors to purchase real estate as needed for their business, including housing for their staff. Further, with an appropriate foreign investment license, foreign investors may purchase real estate for investment purposes in all cities except Mecca and Medina, provided the investment is at least 30 million SR and the real estate is developed within five years of purchase. Non-Saudi natural persons legally residing in Saudi Arabia are allowed to acquire real estate by inheritance and acquire real estate for their private residence, following permission from the Ministry of Interior. Investment in Mecca and Medina is restricted to Saudi Arabian nationals, corporations, and institutions. Foreign residents may own real estate.

Purchase locally by nonresidents 08/12/2020

The CMA Board issued a resolution allowing residents and nonresident foreigners to invest directly in listed and non-listed debt instruments. Specifically, (1) All foreign legal and natural persons may invest directly in debt instruments. (2) A nonresident foreign person may not invest in the market as a direct investor in listed debt instruments and as a qualified foreign investor (QFI) or an ultimate beneficiary in swap agreements at the same time. (3) A foreign person who invests directly in debt instruments may not convert such instruments into shares listed in the Main Market, unless such person is among the categories of investors who are allowed to invest directly in the shares listed in the Main Market, or becomes an ultimate beneficiary in a swap agreement in accordance with the provisions of the Authority's instructions on swap agreements. Previously, purchasing securities locally by nonresidents was subject to the following. For direct investment in these securities: (1) The Rules for Qualified Foreign Financial Institutions Investment in Listed Securities (QFI Rules) issued by the CMA Board on May 4, 2015, set out the procedures, requirements, and conditions for qualifying foreign investors to invest in listed securities in the Saudi market and specified their obligations and the obligations of authorized persons in this regard. (2) Nonresident foreign investors could invest directly in the parallel equity market (Nomu). For non-direct investment in these securities: (1) Nonresident foreigners, either institutions or individuals, could invest in such securities through access products ("swap agreements"), with authorized persons, which transfer economic benefits but not legal title, subject to the conditions and requirements set out in the CMA's Board Resolution of August 17, 2008. (2) Nonresident foreigners could also hold units in mutual funds, including exchange-traded funds, which may invest in Saudi listed securities. (3) Nonresident GCC citizens were treated equal to residents in Saudi Arabia and allowed to invest directly in the Saudi Stock Exchange.

Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized nonelectronic exchange dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which must be traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The commission on foreign exchange transactions may not exceed 2%. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU applies.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The entities authorized to conduct nonelectronic foreign currency transactions are authorized intermediary banks and individuals or companies authorized to conduct nonelectronic transactions by decision of the minister of finance, with the consent of the BCEAO. Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect on the financial conditions for executing banknote foreign exchange transactions that involve foreign currencies and issue a transaction slip for all transactions with a client. Moreover, to provide satisfactory information to clients, they are required to (1) permanently post at their windows the rates actually charged for the different currencies and (2) post notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions on presentation of the requestor's identity document. They are authorized to accept travelers' checks denominated in foreign currencies from their customers and to sell them to licensed intermediaries. Licensed exchange dealers are not authorized to make payments or transfers in foreign currencies abroad or to hold accounts abroad. In their operations with customers, authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized OTC dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957, and may be subject to a maximum commission of 2.0%.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BCEAO supplies at the official rate the foreign currency that each authorized intermediary needs to make payments abroad.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs on commercial banks' demand at the rates published on the international markets, without commission, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of 655.957 per euro. The nonelectronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals). However, no commission is charged for the following operations: (1) OTC foreign banknote exchanges conducted by state entities, government employees of WAEMU Member States on mission abroad, and officials of the CB and their beneficiaries and (2) the CB purchases foreign exchange in exchange for CFA francs at the daily rate, without a commission, at the request of commercial banks that present such foreign exchange at its windows, for purposes of their payments.

Interbank market	Yes.	Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are allowed. However, there is no regulated interbank foreign exchange market in the WAEMU.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions in the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps.
		Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, or options to sell foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAEMU or from a foreign credit institution. Authorized intermediary banks are required to simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur in respect of derivative instruments traded with their customers. The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or direct foreign investment in a resident company. All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for the payment of current international transactions or capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for the payment of current international transactions with countries outside the WAEMU.
For capital transactions	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require Ministry of Economy and Finance (MEF) authorization.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following operations on derivatives and other instruments with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward contract, (2) foreign exchange swaps, and (3) options. When the transaction is backed by an operation other than the importation of goods and services, the CFA franc is the counterparty currency of the foreign exchange spot forward, foreign exchange option, or foreign exchange swap operation.
Credit operations	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone may not use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.
Payments arrangements	Yes.

SENEGAL

Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account is maintained with the French Treasury that links operations account countries. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies or euros against CFA francs are settled through a debit or credit to the operations account.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	There is a multilateral clearing agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS member countries (Cabo Verde, the Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone) as part of the WAMA. All payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be made under the clearing agreement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO establishes the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. Exchange control is administered jointly by the minister of finance and the BCEAO. Most of the authority to supervise foreign exchange transactions is delegated to authorized banks, which are required to report these operations to the minister of finance. The BCEAO is also authorized to collect – either directly or through banks, financial institutions, the postal administration, or judicial agents – information necessary to compile balance of payments statistics. Customs officers monitor outflows of foreign exchange and confirm imports and exports of goods. All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Senegal for the purposes of preparing the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and physical exports of means of payment and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Senegal are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfers with other countries must be made through registered intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers may freely export CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from one

SENEGAL

Foreign currency	Yes.	WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals (that is, from a WAEMU member country) and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc (XOF) banknotes issued by the BCEAO. Reexports of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers are allowed up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; reexports of foreign banknotes above this ceiling require documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Nonresident travelers must declare to customs foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 1 million on exit. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They are allowed to carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Amounts in excess of this ceiling may be exported in the form of traveler's checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler's checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issue of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident travelers may freely import domestic currency (CFA franc – XOF). However, WAEMU resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from receiving banknotes in domestic currency.
Foreign currency	No.	There are no restrictions on resident and nonresident travelers' importation of foreign-currency-denominated means of payment, which must be declared to customs authorities if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 5 million. Resident travelers must surrender foreign banknotes and other foreign-currency-denominated means of payment exceeding CFAF 500,000 to an authorized intermediary within eight days of arrival in any WAEMU member country.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	The term "residents" refers to the residents of the WAEMU zone.
Held domestically	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.
Held abroad	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Individuals who are residents of the WAEMU temporarily staying or traveling outside of WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Approval required Yes. Intermediaries authorized in the WAEMU are authorized to open accounts in euros for the benefit of nonresidents, subject to proof of their status and actual residence. Nonresident accounts denominated in foreign currency other than euros are subject to BCEAO authorization. Nonresident foreign currency accounts are valid for a renewable period of two years. In the event of a failure to obtain renewal (through a new BCEAO authorization for foreign exchange other than the euro), these accounts must be closed. The balances of these accounts may be freely transferred abroad after verification.

Domestic currency accounts Yes.

Convertible into foreign currency Yes. Authorized intermediaries may open nonresident accounts in CFA francs and in euros, under their own responsibility, depending on the status and effective residence of the applicant. These accounts may be debited for spot purchases of foreign exchange. Accounts opened on behalf of nonresidents may not be replenished through payments in banknotes issued by the BCEAO or an issuing institution with a transaction account in the French Treasury.

Imports from countries other than WAEMU area countries are also subject to a 1% statistical tax and a 0.8% community solidarity levy. Moreover, a cyclical import tax ( taxe conjoncturelle à l'importation ) and a degressive protection tax ( taxe dégressive de protection ) may at certain times be charged on some products. Only the first of these two taxes was applied as at end-2018. Imports from non-ECOWAS members are subject to a 0.5% community levy (CL/ECOWAS).
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Resident economic operators are required to collect and repatriate within one month of the payment due date the entire amount of sales of goods abroad in the country of origin with the bank with which the transaction is domiciled. The payment due date is specified in the trade agreement and normally falls within a period of 120 days after the goods are dispatched.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries must surrender their customers' foreign currency receipts to the BCEAO by transfer via the bank of issue. For purposes of covering its current foreign currency requirements, an authorized intermediary bank may hold a maximum of 20% of export receipts as own foreign exchange resources. However, it must ensure that its total foreign exchange resources to cover its requirements do not exceed 5% of total customer demand deposits; otherwise, the surplus must be surrendered to the BCEAO.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds must be surrendered to authorized banks within 30 days of the payment due date. The export revenue may be surrendered to authorized intermediaries other than those with whom the

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be repatriated. Residents of the WAEMU zone are required to surrender to an authorized intermediary bank all foreign currency income or proceeds collected abroad or remitted by a nonresident. Resident economic operators are required to liquidate and repatriate all proceeds from the sale of merchandise abroad at the bank issuing payment within one month of the payment date.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	All proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be surrendered to an AD within one month of the due date. Resident travelers must surrender to an authorized intermediary, within eight days of their arrival in Senegal, foreign banknotes and other means of payment denominated in foreign currency worth more than the equivalent of CFAF 500,000.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require minister of finance authorization, except (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans to finance industrial and commercial operations, (2) payments required on foreign exchange derivatives transactions or raw material or commodity derivatives transactions, and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries are generally permitted.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone's investments abroad must be repatriated within one month through a registered intermediary, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. However, all foreign exchange assets in excess of these requirements must be immediately surrendered to the BCEAO. Moreover, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.

SENEGAL

Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone's investments abroad must be repatriated and surrendered within one month through a registered intermediary, except if the resident does have a reinvestment authorization. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	RCPSFM authorization is required for the following operations: (1) issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. Soliciting the public of the WAEMU by nonresident entities is subject to authorization by the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority responsible for regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, nonresidents are required to report these operations for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization from RCPSFM, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the minister of finance for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to minister of finance authorization. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad must be declared to the minister of finance for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, except for those constituting a loan. Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone, unless otherwise specified by the minister of finance, must be carried out through authorized intermediaries for all cases in which the sums borrowed are made available to the resident. All foreign borrowing must be declared to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.

SENEGAL

Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. There is no minimum holding period.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the minister of finance for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation (Article 8, Rule No. 09/10/CM/UEMOA).
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to minister of finance authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries is authorized by the RCPSFM.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of resident entities, foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MOF. The sale of securities for liquidation of an investment abroad must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes. Issuance of securities constituting a loan by residents of the WAEMU zone to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.
On money market instruments	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to declaration for statistical purposes only.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance and sale of money market instruments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of money market instruments resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. 		the minister of finance for statistical purposes.
On collective investment securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the minister of finance for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to minister of finance authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of resident entities, foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MOF. The sale of securities for liquidation of an investment abroad must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes. Issuance of securities constituting a loan by residents of the WAEMU zone to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial or financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services by a resident; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using derivatives. They must be backed by the residents of the WAEMU zone's imports or exports of raw materials and commodities. Residents of the WAEMU zone are not authorized to purchase raw materials or commodities on foreign markets for delivery within the framework of a derivatives transaction in raw materials or commodities.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	The purchase of derivatives by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone on the domestic market is treated as a loan contracted by a resident with a nonresident. As such, it is permitted. The purchase must be executed through an authorized intermediary and must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign exchange derivatives from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the minister of finance.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods. The date on which payment falls due is agreed to in the contract (in principle no later than 120 days after the date of shipment).
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These credits require minister of finance approval. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to approval of the minister of finance and substantiated by documentation.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The granting of guarantees and sureties is subject to minister of finance approval. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require the issuance of an exchange authorization, subject to minister of finance approval and the submission of supporting documents.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered to be direct investments and therefore require declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.	Direct investment implies control of a company or enterprise. Mere participation is not considered direct investment unless it exceeds

SENEGAL

		10% of the capital of a company. All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to minister of finance authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Inward direct investment	No.	FDI, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the minister of finance for statistical purposes. A share is not considered a direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MOF and the CB for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the proceeds of liquidation is subject to MOF authorization. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted but must be reported to the MOF and the CB for statistical purposes.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These purchases require minister of finance authorization.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company are allowed. They require a declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.	Sales by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone to residents of the WAEMU zone require the submission of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary that handles the settlement and must be declared to the minister of finance.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.	Personal capital transactions between residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through the BCEAO, the postal service, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless authorization is obtained from the minister of finance.
Loans	Yes.	The regulations governing securities and investments apply.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions require minister of finance authorization. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation without first being licensed and included on the list of approved financial institutions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions may be made freely but are subject to declaration for statistical purposes to the MEF and the BCEAO when disbursed and when repaid.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to MOF and BCEAO authorization. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant anti-money-laundering and terrorism financing provisions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Settlement of debts abroad by	Yes.	Immigrants with resident status must obtain minister of finance

SENEGAL

immigrants		authorization to settle debts contracted abroad, while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	These transactions are subject to minister of finance authorization if the value exceeds CFAF 500,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	Yes.	Foreign accounts (in foreign currencies or CFA francs) of nonresidents of the WAEMU zone who become residents of the WAEMU zone must be closed. However, these residents may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired, while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. New transfers to these accounts require minister of finance approval.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	These transfers are conducted freely through authorized intermediaries, subject to the presentation of supporting documents and compliance with the relevant provisions on combating money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect September 28, 2012. Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 sets the deadline (December 31, 2013) for including this law in the domestic legislation of the WAMU members. The National Assembly of Senegal adopted Uniform Act No. 2014-01 on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU, which was enacted January 6, 2014. The Uniform Act No. 2014-12 governing disputes over violations of the regulations on external financial relations of WAEMU Member States was enacted February 28, 2014.
Borrowing abroad	No.	Foreign borrowing is unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the minister of finance and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions for their own account or the accounts of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements. In accordance with Regulation No. 09/2010/CM/UEMOA on the External Financial Relations of the WAEMU Member States, to cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency. The total amount of these assets may not exceed 5% of the clients' outstanding demand deposits. Assets in excess of foreign currency requirements must be surrendered to the BCEAO.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Commercial lending is allowed. Financial credits are subject to minister of finance authorization following BCEAO approval.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	These operations are properly provided for in the laws and regulations and are subject to the approval of the minister of finance following the approval of the BCEAO.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These purchases require minister of finance authorization if their issuance was not approved by the RCPSFM.

SENEGAL

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	A reserve requirement of 3% applies to WAEMU banks on March 16, 2017. Demand deposits, other deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the base for the calculation of the required reserves. The base for the calculation of the required reserves to be held with the CB includes the following four items: demand deposits; short-term loans; gross claims abroad, including customer foreign currency deposits; medium- and long-term loans. Reserve requirements are therefore established on a standard and/or settlement and/or securities account based on eligibility for calculation of reserves allocated by the MPC.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	The Basel II/Basel III liquidity requirements are yet to be transported to the WAEMU. The 75% minimum liquidity standard and the standard for minimum 50% for banks to fund their activities with more stable sources of funding on an ongoing basis are temporarily maintained.
Interest rate controls	Yes.	The wear rate in WAEMU member countries is set at 15% for banks and at 24% for decentralized financial systems.
Credit controls	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to minister of finance authorization, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.	Banking regulations make no distinction among resident deposit accounts, nonresident deposit accounts, and foreign deposit accounts.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Any overdraft or advance granted to a nonresident requires authorization by the minister of finance with the approval of the BCEAO.
Investment regulations	Yes.	The regulations governing direct investments apply.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	The banking law stipulates that investment by any person in a bank that would have the effect of changing the minority and/or majority voting rights requires authorization by the minister of finance. This applies to resident and nonresident investors.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Banks may not maintain open foreign exchange positions because of the surrender requirement. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries assets to be allocated to current customer operations, listed as follows: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand

Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Controls are imposed by the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code).
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation and Second Review under the Policy Coordination Instrument with Serbia states that as of June 28, 2019, Serbia maintained a system free of restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions, except with respect to blocked pre-1991 foreign currency savings deposits (IMF Country Report No. 02/105). (Country Report No. 19/238)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	In accordance with the revised IMF classification system of exchange rate arrangements, the de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The current Decision on the Dinar Exchange Rate Regime stipulates “managed floating.” Since the introduction of this exchange rate regime in 2001 and in accordance with its commitment to liberalization of the foreign exchange market, the National Bank of Serbia (NBS) has tried to reduce its participation in the foreign exchange market and to adjust the features of the existing exchange rate regime in the direction of soft managed floating. This exchange rate regime enables the NBS to balance, when necessary, foreign exchange demand and supply and moderate excessive daily fluctuation of the exchange rate in either direction (appreciation or depreciation) that may occur under the influence of external or internal shocks to the national economy. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as stabilized.

On January 1, 2020, the NBS changed the practice of publishing data on its activities in the interbank foreign exchange market from publishing daily data at the end of the day to publishing aggregated monthly data on the net purchase or net sale. Aggregated monthly data on the NBS net purchase/net sale are published in the regular press release on foreign exchange Reserves and Interbank Foreign Exchange Market Movements, which is published in the first half of the following month (usually between 10th and 15th). The NBS also publishes (1) a spreadsheet once in every quarter when the Inflation Report is published, with aggregated monthly data on the NBS net purchase/net sale in the interbank foreign exchange market, as part of the statistics related to the Inflation Report, and (2) aggregated monthly data on its purchase and sale in the interbank foreign exchange market (purchased plus sold), as part of the statistical set of data, approximately with the three-week time lag (there is a Release Calendar available on the same page).

Yes.

The official middle exchange rate of the dinar against the euro is calculated at the end of each business day as the weighted average of the exchange rates applied in all individual euro transactions in the interbank spot foreign exchange market and in all individual euro transactions in the interbank foreign exchange market with a settlement date earlier than the spot value date (concluded from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.), including transactions between the NBS and the banks (interventions). To ensure that the official middle exchange rate of the dinar against the euro reflects, as much as possible, the real trends in foreign exchange market, the NBS has precisely defined the time frame – from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., for transactions which are included in calculation of the official middle exchange rate of the dinar against the euro. The NBS publishes information on the official middle rate of the dinar against the euro by 6:00 p.m. to take effect at 8:00 a.m. on the following business day. Since January 2015, five currencies are included in the list of currencies against which the official middle exchange rates of the dinar are quoted in the NBS list of official exchange rates and with which banks, public postal operators, and exchange bureaus may trade – the Chinese renminbi (since January 2015), Turkish lira (since December 2017), Bulgarian lev (since February 2018), Romanian leu (since February 2018), and Belarusian ruble (since September 2019). The public postal operator may perform exchange operations, so as to expand the scope of money exchange market to include even the territories where no exchange bureaus and banks operate, which may increase the level of competition in this segment of the foreign exchange market and result in more favorable buying/selling rates of exchange for citizens. The official middle exchange rates are used for bookkeeping, statistics, and calculation of customs duty and other import fees, as provided by Article 41 of the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations. Exchange rates of the dinar against 22 currencies quoted in the NBS list of foreign exchange rates are used in trade between the NBS and residents with foreign exchange accounts at the NBS. According to Article 36 of the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, resident beneficiaries of budget funds, beneficiaries of funds of mandatory social insurance organizations and local government budgets, and other public funds beneficiaries included in the consolidated treasury account system may have foreign exchange accounts only within the consolidated treasury account system maintained by the NBS, unless otherwise stipulated by a special law or international agreement. Transactions between the NBS and the Treasury Administration are performed through the consolidated treasury account system for foreign exchange funds. Exchange rates of the dinar against three currencies quoted in the NBS exchange rate list for foreign cash are used in cash trade between the NBS and banks. The NBS trades only in cash euros, US dollars, and Swiss francs. The NBS does not conduct foreign exchange cash operations with resident and nonresident natural persons or with foreign exchange bureaus. Exchange rates for foreign cash are also used for calculation and payments of foreign cash to residents with foreign exchange accounts with the NBS in connection with official travel. The Decision on Operating Terms and Procedures in the Foreign Exchange Market allows the NBS to publish by 2:00 p.m. each business day information on the indicative exchange rate of the dinar against the euro based on banks' reported data on direct spot trade and trade with execution dates before spot currency dates of euros with other banks concluded from 9:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Central Bank Board
Other
Government and Central Bank	Yes.	Inflation targets will be set by the NBS, in cooperation with the government, on the basis of an analysis of current and expected macroeconomic movements and the medium-term plan of changes in prices under direct or indirect regulation of the government. In principle, the NBS has operational freedom to set the target, on consulting the government. The decision within the Executive Board can be taken by majority vote, but in practice, they are reached by consensus.
Inflation target	Yes.
Target number	Yes.
Point target
Target with tolerance band	Yes.	The inflation target is set at 3% with a tolerance band of $\pm 1.5$ percentage points (pps). The target is for now set at that level until end-2023.
Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.
CPI	Yes.	Inflation targets will be set for several years ahead as point targets with a tolerance band and defined in terms of the annual percentage change in the CPI (NBS's Memorandum on Inflation Targets until 2023 adopted by the NBS Executive Board in 2020).
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	The target is continuous, meaning it is set for every month of the monetary policy horizon.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.	Key policy rate is the main monetary policy instrument applied in the main open market operations which are currently one-week reverse repo transactions (liquidity absorbing operations). Auctions are held once a week by the variable multiple rate method with the key policy rate as a maximum rate which can be offered by banks.
Policy rate	Yes.	The policy rate is the interest rate on (reverse) repo transactions with a one-week maturity. The key policy rate is a maximum rate which can be offered by banks on the one-week reverse repo auctions, and it has been currently fixed at 1.00% as of December 10, 2020.
Target corridor band	Yes.	Effective December 10, 2020, the corridor width was narrowed from $\pm 1$ to $\pm 0.9$ pps. The lower bound of the band is the rate on (overnight) deposit standing facilities (currently set at 0.10%: reference rate – 0.90 pps). Upper bound of the band is the rate on (overnight) credit standing facilities (currently set at 1.90%: reference rate + 0.90 pps).
Other	No.
Accountability	Yes.
Open letter	No.
Parliamentary hearings	No.
Other	Yes.	If the projected inflation deviates from the target, the NBS undertakes measures to bring it back to the target in the medium term. If the departure of inflation from the set target tolerance bands (below 1.5% or above 4.5%) lasts for six consecutive months, the

SERBIA

		NBS is obliged to notify the government about the reasons for such departure, measures to be taken, and the time needed for inflation to return to the target level.
Transparency	Yes.
Publication of votes	n.a.	Decisions of the Executive Board as a whole are published, without specifying individual votes or number of votes in favor of or against the decision. Typically, decisions are made by consensus.
Publication of minutes	No.	The NBS does not publish minutes.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	Inflation forecasts are published quarterly in the Inflation Reports. The Inflation Report contains information on the current and expected inflation, analysis of underlying macroeconomic developments, explanation of the reasoning behind the decisions of the Executive Board, and an assessment of the monetary policy efficiency as implemented during the previous quarter. Integral parts of this report are inflation projection for eight quarters ahead, assumptions on which such projection is based, and an analysis of the basic risks involved in the achievement of target inflation.
Other monetary framework
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.	Exchange subsidies have been removed.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	As of December 31, 2020, there were 2,487 foreign exchange dealers licensed by the Tax Administration and the NBS, which perform activities at 3,550 exchange points, in addition to the currently 26 banks licensed by the NBS and one public postal operator which performs foreign exchange activities based on a separate law governing its activities. The NBS undertakes the activities of supervising exchange offices and issuing and revoking authorizations for the performance of exchange operations as well as the activities of supervising the foreign exchange operations of residents and nonresidents, as stipulated by the Law on Amendments and Supplement to the Law on Foreign Exchange operations. As of December 31, 2020, there are 26 banks and as of June 30, 2021, there were 25 banks licensed by the NBS. Once a day, at the start of each business day, banks freely set and announce their exchange rates for foreign exchange and foreign cash based on cross-currency relations in foreign markets. Banks apply the rates that fall within the range of the quoted buying and selling rates for foreign exchange and/or foreign cash in trade with residents and nonresidents. Public postal operator and licensed foreign exchange dealers also freely set their foreign exchange rate lists at the start of each business day in line with the foreign exchange rate lists applicable to foreign cash of the bank and/or banks with which they entered into an agreement. They purchase and sell foreign cash by applying current buying and selling rates specified in their foreign exchange rate list, but they may not exceed the quoted range. In the exchange rate list of the public postal operator and authorized exchange dealer, the buying rate per unit of foreign currency – the euro – cannot be lower than the official middle rate of the dinar against the euro applicable on that day by more than 1.25%, and/or selling rate per unit of foreign currency – the euro – cannot be higher than the official middle rate of the dinar against the euro applicable on that day by more than 1.25%. This $\pm 1.25\%$ range around the official middle rate of the dinar against the euro applies only to postal operators and authorized exchange dealers transacting with natural persons, while it is not prescribed for commercial banks.

When the public postal operator and authorized exchange dealers purchase foreign cash from natural persons, their commission may not exceed 1% of the value of undamaged banknotes from natural persons, and/or circulating banknotes within the meaning of the provisions of Decision on Terms and Manner of Performing Exchange Operations.

The following lists are specified in RS Official Gazette Nos. 3/2018 and 65/2019: (1) list of foreign exchange and foreign cash that banks may trade with, (2) list of foreign cash that licensed exchange dealers and the public postal operator, which has entered into an agreement on the performance of exchange operations with a bank and/or several banks, may buy and sell, (3) list of foreign exchange that the NBS may buy and sell, and (4) list of foreign cash that the NBS may buy and sell.

To improve the bank's reporting system and raise the efficiency of monitoring the foreign exchange market, banks were obliged to submit data on the nonresidents' dinar accounts. To further improve the bank's reporting system, banks were obliged to submit data on payment card transactions impacting the bank's foreign exchange position (transactions under payment cards issued abroad and used for dinar payments in the country and transactions under payment cards issued in the country and used for foreign exchange payments abroad). To further improve the bank's reporting system, the NBS obliged banks to submit data on foreign exchange-indexed loans and deposits.

Effective May 8, 2020, in relation to the COVID-19 pandemic, the NBS applies the official middle exchange rate of the dinar as specified in the current exchange rate list when buying and selling foreign exchange and foreign cash from and to residents who have foreign exchange accounts with the NBS. Previously, the provision was limited to specific accounts for disaster assistance and applied to commercial banks as well.

Spot exchange market

Yes.

In the spot exchange market, the purchase or sale of foreign currency in exchange for dinars takes place two business days following the day of conclusion of the purchase or sale agreement.

As of December 31, 2020, 26 banks participated in the spot foreign exchange market. As of June 30, 2021, the number was 25 banks.

The spot foreign exchange market involves: transactions between commercial banks (excluding the NBS transactions) and transactions between banks and clients – residents and nonresidents.

As of December 31, 2020, there were 2,487 foreign exchange bureaus and one public postal operator which perform foreign exchange activities based on a separate law governing its activities which may purchase from and sell to natural persons only foreign cash. They may not have accounts abroad or make foreign currency payments or transfers on behalf of their clients. The period during which exchange bureaus must transfer any excess amount of dinars to their current account with a bank is seven working days. The threshold that determines the excess amount of dinars exchange bureaus must transfer to their current account with a bank is triple the average daily amount of dinars used for the purchasing of foreign cash in the month with the highest purchase in the preceding 12 months. If the foreign exchange dealer works less than a month, the triple average daily amount of dinars is determined according to the week with the highest purchase.

Resident humanitarian organizations may receive funds and donations for humanitarian purposes from abroad, which takes place through the electronic money issuer.

The NBS may participate in the interbank foreign exchange market in different ways: by selling and purchasing foreign exchange bilaterally (through Refinitiv foreign exchange Trading platform) and by organizing spot auction sales and purchases. Also, the NBS organizes, in accordance with its calendar of regular euro/Serbian dinar swaps, auctions of swap sale, and purchase of euros for dinars with maturity of three months and two weeks. Only the banks can participate in these auctions.

SERBIA

Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	With the beginning of the international financial crisis and market disruptions, the NBS introduced spot auctions in December 2009 as a way of participating in the interbank foreign exchange market. Following its commitment to liberalize the foreign exchange market and decrease its market participation, the NBS organizes spot auctions only when necessary to stabilize the foreign exchange market. Spot auctions were organized as variable price auctions with the NBS purchasing/selling foreign exchange at the multiple rate – exchange rates offered by the banks whose bids are accepted at the auction or at the single rate – at the same exchange rate from each bank whose bid was accepted at the auction. The NBS last organized auctions in 2012. According to the regulation, the NBS still has the possibility to organize them, and the available methods for organizing them also stayed the same: fixed rate auctions and variable rate auctions. Variable rate auctions may be organized as multiple rate auctions and as single rate auctions. To encourage development of the interbank swap market and support euro and dinar liquidity management of the banks, the NBS organizes weekly swap auction sales and purchases of foreign exchange for dinars with maturity of three months (from March 2011, every Tuesday) and two weeks (from March 2013, every Friday). The regular swap auctions are organized in the variable method – with multiple swap points. However, effective March 31, 2020, until the end of May 2020, the NBS organized them in the fixed method with preannounced fixed swap points at favorable rates to give support to the domestic financial system in the conditions of COVID-19.
Fixing	No.	With amendments to the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, the NBS has abolished the possibility of organizing the fixing sessions. The NBS has not intervened by organizing fixing sessions since February 2009.
Interbank market	Yes.	Banks are free to set their own buying and selling rates for foreign exchange based on supply and demand but must observe the cross-rates prevailing in the international market. Banks may buy and sell foreign exchange on the interbank market at mutually agreed rates. The NBS generally intervenes by selling or purchasing foreign exchange as a price taker, at the best-quoted rate of market participants through the Refinitiv foreign exchange – Trading. There is no brokerage or market-making system. As of December 31, 2020, there were 26 banks that participated in the interbank foreign exchange market. As of June 30, 2021, the number was 25 banks. The interbank foreign exchange market involves transactions between banks (excluding the NBS transactions) – transactions with value date shorter than spot, spot, forward, and swap transactions.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.

SERBIA

Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Forward purchases and sales of foreign exchange are permitted, provided their terms of delivery are longer than spot dates. Forward and swap foreign exchange interbank markets are not developed and banks rarely conclude forward and swap transactions. The forward and swap foreign exchange market involves: transactions between banks and transactions between banks and clients – residents and nonresidents, excluding the NBS transactions. Banks conclude forward sales to residents (such as importers) in higher amounts than forward purchases from residents (such as exporters) in the forward market. Also, banks have important clients among nonresident banks, and they trade mostly through large numbers of foreign exchange swap transactions. The NBS participates in swap transactions. In early March 2011, the NBS reinstated its three-month foreign exchange swap auctions as a regular instrument for supplying foreign exchange/dinar liquidity. These weekly auctions are conducted under market conditions and without preannounced limits of quantities of liquidity, aim to bolster interbank swap trading and the development of foreign exchange hedging instruments. Further, in March 2013 the NBS started to organize weekly two-week foreign exchange swap auctions to supply additional euro and dinar liquidity.

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	Payments for current international transactions in Serbia may be made and received in dinars under the conditions prescribed by the decision of the NBS on the conditions and manner of conducting international payment transactions.
For capital transactions	Yes.	Payments in Serbia may be made and received in dinars for all capital transactions allowed by the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, under the conditions prescribed by the decision of the NBS on the conditions and manner of conducting international payment transactions.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.
Credit operations	Yes.	Credits in dinars granted by resident banks to nonresidents and borrowing in dinars by residents from international financial organizations, development banks, and financial institutions founded by foreign states are considered foreign credit transactions and may be carried out as prescribed by the NBS. Banks may grant credits in dinars to nonresident legal entities and natural persons by crediting a payment card account with a bank in Serbia and by crediting the account of a resident seller and/or lessor to whom the nonresident owes payment under current or capital transactions permitted by the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations. Banks may also grant credits in dinars to an international financial organization and development bank or a financial institution founded by a foreign state without any limitation on the maturity. Dinar loans by international financial organizations, development banks, and financial institutions founded by foreign states to residents may be granted without a foreign currency clause and with maturity longer than one year; credits for agricultural financing or export financing may have a shorter term

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.	Exports and imports of dinars and foreign currency are allowed under the conditions prescribed by the decision on personal and physical transfer of means of payment to and from abroad. Banks may freely export and import dinars and foreign currency.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident natural persons may freely take out of Serbia dinars in amounts up to the equivalent of €10,000 a person. In addition, resident natural persons may take out of Serbia up to three sets of dinars for numismatic purposes. Additionally, residents may take out dinars from the Republic of Serbia for the purpose of testing automated teller machines (ATMs) with NBS approval issued on the basis of elaborated request submitted by the evidence of using such machines in the performance of a registered activity and along with the guarantee of foreign company that the dinars so received will be returned after the testing but not later than three months from the day they were received. Exportation of NBS-issued commemorative coins by residents requires written NBS permission, and foreigners may take these commemorative coins out from the Republic based on a certificate issued by an authorized seller certifying that such coins have been purchased in the Republic, or based on a certificate issued by the customs authority certifying that such coins have been brought into the Republic. Banks may freely take dinars out of Serbia for sale to foreign banks on the condition that they submit to the customs authority two copies of the payment order, one of which is retained for supervision purposes.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Resident natural persons may freely take abroad foreign currency and checks up to €10,000. Emigrants may freely take abroad foreign cash up to €10,000; for an amount exceeding €10,000, evidence of emigration is required. A nonresident natural person may freely take abroad foreign cash in the amount of up to €10,000. If a nonresident takes dinars and foreign cash abroad at the same time, the sum of these must not exceed €10,000. Nonresident natural persons may take abroad more than €10,000 foreign cash if the amount was declared on entering Serbia, if the amount was withdrawn from a foreign exchange account or foreign exchange passbook in a local bank, or if the amount was acquired by selling dinars obtained through the use of a payment card in Serbia as evidenced by prescribed documents. Authorized banks may freely export foreign currency for replenishing their accounts with foreign correspondent banks. ### Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Resident natural persons, legal entities, entrepreneurs, and branches of foreign legal entities may hold current and deposit foreign exchange accounts freely and perform all kinds of current and permitted capital transactions abroad. In addition to a current and deposit foreign exchange account, a bank may open other foreign exchange accounts for a resident for specific purposes. Additionally, resident legal entities and natural persons may open joint current accounts in terms of the law governing payment services, while natural persons may open joint deposit accounts too. Pursuant to the Decision on the Conditions of Opening and Manner of Maintaining Foreign Exchange Accounts of Residents and Dinar and Foreign Exchange Accounts of Nonresidents, a bank after closing the foreign exchange account issues the account closing certificate, including the information that all obligations toward the bank in relation to opening, maintaining, and closing the account were settled. Banks must submit to the NBS data on foreign exchange accounts of residents' legal entities, entrepreneurs as well as natural persons. The NBS uses these data for a single register of accounts, which is published on its website, while data on foreign exchange accounts of natural persons are not publicly available. Resident beneficiaries of the budget funds of Serbia, of funds of mandatory social insurance organizations, and of local government budgets, as well as other public funds beneficiaries included in the consolidated treasury account system, must hold their foreign exchange accounts with the Treasury Administration within the consolidated treasury account system maintained by the NBS, unless stipulated otherwise by a separate law or an international agreement, and they may sell to the NBS foreign exchange and foreign cash generated by their operations. As an exception, these residents may open a foreign exchange account with an authorized bank, with MOF approval, for payments that cannot take place through the NBS, or perform individual foreign payment operations through an electronic money issuer or payment institution, provided specific characteristics of the beneficiary's activities make this necessary. Banks may hold foreign currency only with other authorized banks and the NBS. According to the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, and the NBS Decision on the Manner of Performing Transactions Between the NBS and the Treasury Administration Through the Consolidated Treasury Account System for Foreign Exchange Funds (RS Official Gazette No. 78/2015), the NBS must perform foreign exchange operations, on behalf of the Treasury Administration, through the consolidated Treasury account system for foreign exchange funds – for the public funds beneficiaries of Serbia.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	Banks may, without any restrictions, keep foreign exchange in bank accounts abroad. Other residents may hold foreign currency in accounts with foreign banks freely in certain cases prescribed by the NBS. These residents are: diplomatic, consular, and other representative offices of the Republic of Serbia abroad and domestic nationals employed in these representative offices, persons sent abroad for professional training and education; persons appointed to work in a government mission abroad; persons emigrating from

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Nonresident natural persons and legal entities may hold foreign exchange accounts with authorized banks as current, deposit, and other accounts opened for a specific purpose. Nonresident natural persons and legal entities may open joint current accounts, while natural persons may open joint deposit accounts too. Deposit accounts may be demand or time deposit accounts. Deposits may be held in currencies traded on the domestic foreign exchange market. Deposits to foreign exchange accounts of nonresident legal entities may be made by transfers; deposits to foreign exchange accounts of nonresident natural persons may be made by transfers or in cash. Account holders may use the foreign exchange in their accounts to make dinar payments in Serbia, transfer foreign exchange abroad, and make foreign exchange payments abroad or domestically, in accordance with existing regulations. Domestic payments, collections, and transfers in foreign currency involving these accounts are permitted only in cases specified in the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations. At the request of a nonresident, banks may purchase dinars from the nonresident's dinar account and transfer foreign exchange to a nonresident's foreign exchange account abroad based on proof of competent tax authorities that all tax liabilities to the Republic have been settled, except in case when banks transfer foreign exchange from deposit accounts of nonresidents, natural persons when the proof on the settlement of tax liabilities to the Republic of Serbia is not conditioning for this transfer. Per the Decision on the Conditions of Opening and Manner of Maintaining Foreign Exchange Accounts of Residents and Dinar and Foreign Exchange Accounts of Nonresidents, bank after closing the foreign exchange account issues the account closing certificate, including the information that all obligations toward the bank in relation to opening, maintaining, and closing the account were settled. Citizens of Serbia who have resided abroad for more than one year are considered nonresidents.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Nonresidents may hold domestic currency acquired through authorized transactions in current, deposit, or other accounts with authorized banks. Nonresidents may hold joint current, while nonresident natural persons may hold joint deposit accounts, too. Nonresidents may open accounts based on a written request, a contract with a bank, and prescribed documentation which has been simplified. Per the Decision on Amendments and Supplements to the Decision on the Conditions of Opening and Manner of Maintaining Foreign Exchange Accounts of Nonresidents, bank after closing the dinar nonresident account issues the account closing certificate, including the information that all obligations toward the bank in relation to opening, maintaining, and closing the account were settled.

On money market instruments	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Pursuant to the Law on Amendments and Supplement to the Law on Foreign Exchange, nonresidents with a head office and/or permanent residence in EU member states may make or receive payments for the purpose of buying and selling short-term securities in Serbia, in accordance with the law governing the capital market.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions are not explicitly controlled, but related payments are regulated.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may freely make or receive payment based on the purchase and sale of short-term securities issued by the EU as well as EU and OECD member states, international financial organizations and development banks or financial institutions in which EU and OECD member states participate, as well as those issued by legal entities with a head office in these states. Per the Law on Amendments and Supplement to the Law on Foreign Exchange, resident legal entities, entrepreneurs, and natural persons may make or receive payment for the purpose of buying and selling short-term securities issued by the EU, EU member states, international financial organizations and development banks or financial institutions in which EU member states participate, as well as those issued by legal entities with a head office in these states. Resident investment and voluntary pension funds and insurance companies may invest in foreign short-term securities in accordance with their own regulations, adopted according to sector legislation (laws and bylaws). Insurance companies may invest assets covering technical reserves in EU or OECD countries' government or CB securities, or securities issued by international institutions, as well as in shares of foreign legal entities listed on the financial market, up to 25%, and of one issuer, up to 5% for life insurance and non-life insurance, but also in investment funds, only for unit-linked products. An insurance company may invest insurance funds abroad, observing the following limitations: (1) that assets acquired abroad cannot be acquired under the same or more favorable terms in the Republic of Serbia (an insurance company cannot invest in assets abroad if the same type of assets already exists in the Republic of Serbia and if it would be the same or more favorable to invest in it in the Republic of Serbia than abroad); (2) that assets are not acquired in countries whose credit rating was degraded over the last year by Standard & Poor's, Fitch IBCA, or Moody's to a level equal to or lower than the credit rating awarded to the Republic of Serbia by the same agencies.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	These transactions are prohibited.

SERBIA

On collective investment securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions are permitted according to the Law on Open-Ended Investment Funds Subject to Public Offering, the Law on AIFs, and the Voluntary Pension Fund Law.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents must be registered according to the Law on Open-Ended Investment Funds Subject to Public Offering, the Law on AIFs, and the Voluntary Pension Fund Law to issue collective investment securities. Sale of these securities is permitted according to the Law on Open-Ended Investment Funds Subject to Public Offering, the Law on AIFs, and the Voluntary Pension Fund Law.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Resident legal entities, entrepreneurs, and natural persons may effect payments for purchase abroad of collective investment securities only through resident investment firms and investment fund management companies, according to the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations. Insurance companies may invest assets covering technical reserves in EU or OECD countries' government or CB securities, or securities issued by international institutions, as well as in shares of foreign legal entities listed on financial market, up to 25%, and of one issuer, up to 5% for life insurance and non-life insurance, but also in investment funds, only for unit-linked products. An insurance company may invest insurance funds abroad, observing the following limitations: (1) that assets acquired abroad cannot be acquired under the same or more favorable terms in the Republic of Serbia (an insurance company cannot invest in assets abroad if the same type of assets already exists in the Republic of Serbia and if it would be the same or more favorable to invest in it in the Republic of Serbia than abroad); (2) those assets which are not acquired in countries whose credit rating was degraded over the last year by Standard & Poor's, Fitch IBCA, or Moody's to a level equal to or lower than the credit rating awarded to the Republic of Serbia by the same agencies.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	The Law on Open-Ended Investment Funds Subject to Public Offering and the Law on AIFs regulate the issuance of collective investment securities only in Serbia. The listed laws do not regulate the issuance of the investment units abroad by residents; hence, it is nor forbidden nor explicitly approved. As it is not forbidden, the issuance of investment units abroad by resident investment funds can be undertaken. The Law on Foreign Exchange Operations prescribes that residents legal entities, entrepreneurs, and natural persons may make collection under investment into foreign investment funds through intermediation of resident investment companies and investment fund management companies, within the meaning of the law governing the capital market. The Law on Foreign Exchange Operations does not prescribe rules or conditions for the establishment of investment funds abroad.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Controls on derivatives and other instruments traded on regulated markets and multilateral trading facilities are under the supervision of the SC. Payments on financial derivatives transactions are regulated by the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations and the NBS Decision on Performance of Financial Derivatives Transactions. Banks and other residents may effect payments on financial derivatives transactions abroad under the conditions prescribed by the NBS. Financial derivatives transactions between nonresidents and local banks in the OTC market are unrestricted. Derivatives transactions are allowed for other residents for hedging against specific risks prescribed by the NBS without restriction. The regulations are provided for a master agreement on financial transactions, netting, and detailed reporting on these transactions.

Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may freely effect payments for the purpose of purchasing financial derivatives that are standardized and traded in regulated markets and/or multilateral trading facilities as well as for transactions outside these markets with local banks.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may sell and issue standardized derivatives and other instruments in accordance with the Law on the Capital Market.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Banks may perform financial derivatives transactions freely. Residents may freely effect payments for purchases of financial derivatives in regulated markets and multilateral trading facilities abroad, as well as transactions outside these markets to hedge against risk as prescribed by the NBS in accordance with the foreign payment regulations. An insurance company may invest insurance funds abroad, observing the following limitations: (1) that assets acquired abroad cannot be acquired under the same or more favorable terms in the Republic of Serbia (an insurance company cannot invest in assets abroad if the same type of assets already exists in the Republic of Serbia and if it would be the same or more favorable to invest in it in the Republic of Serbia than abroad); (2) those assets which are not acquired in countries whose credit rating was degraded over the last year by Standard & Poor's, Fitch IBCA, or Moody's to a level equal to or lower than the credit rating awarded to the Republic of Serbia by the same agencies.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Issuance of derivatives abroad by residents is regulated by Law on the Capital Market and therefore can be undertaken. The Law on the Capital Market regulates capital market in the Republic of Serbia and does not establish any control/limitation for the sale or issue of derivatives abroad by residents.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Under the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, foreign credit transactions include borrowing and lending by residents in foreign currency and in dinars. Resident banks, legal entities, and entrepreneurs may borrow in dinars from international financial organizations and development banks or financial institutions founded by foreign states under terms and conditions specified by the NBS. Resident banks may lend in dinars to nonresident legal entities and natural persons, as well as to international financial organizations and development banks or financial institutions founded by foreign states under terms and conditions specified by the NBS. Foreign loans in foreign currency and dinars are reported to the NBS.
Commercial credits	No.
By residents to nonresidents	No.	Resident legal entities and entrepreneurs may grant commercial credits in foreign currency and dinars to nonresidents without restrictions. Banks may also grant commercial credits to nonresidents in dinars under conditions specified by the NBS. Exports of goods or services not collected for more than one year and goods and services paid in advance but not imported for more than one year are considered foreign commercial credits. These transactions are reported to the NBS only if their value is above the prescribed threshold (individual value over 100,000 dinars and/or its equivalent in another currency or aggregate value a resident a quarter over 1.5 million dinars). Compensation deals and vendor tooling are exempt from reporting. These transactions are reported to the NBS quarterly, on an aggregate basis, by direct electronic submission of data. Claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions may be transferred between residents (except natural persons), nonresidents, and residents (except natural persons) and nonresidents, while resident public enterprises and legal entities with state-owned capital require government consent. Offsetting of claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions in foreign exchange may be performed by resident banks, legal entities, entrepreneurs, and branches of foreign legal entities in the manner prescribed by the NBS.

To residents from nonresidents	No.	Resident legal entities and entrepreneurs may obtain commercial credits in foreign currency and dinars from nonresidents without restrictions. Banks, resident legal entities, and entrepreneurs may borrow in dinars from international financial organizations and development banks or financial institutions founded by foreign states under the terms and conditions specified by the NBS. Imports of goods and services not paid for more than one year after the import date and goods and services not exported within one year of advance payment are considered foreign commercial credits. These transactions are reported to the NBS only if their value is above the prescribed threshold (individual value over 100,000 dinars and/or its equivalent in another currency or aggregate value a resident a quarter over 1.5 million dinars). Compensation deals are exempt from reporting. These transactions are reported to the NBS quarterly, on an aggregate basis, by direct electronic submission of data. Claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions may be transferred between residents (except natural persons), nonresidents, and residents (except natural persons) and nonresidents, while public enterprises and legal entities with state-owned capital require government consent. Offsetting of claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions in foreign exchange may be performed by resident banks, legal entities, entrepreneurs, and branches of foreign legal entities as prescribed by the NBS.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Resident legal entities other than banks may grant financial loans in foreign currency to nonresidents in accordance with the provision of the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, which stipulates the NBS may prescribe conditions and manner of performing these operations which may be subject to limitations justified on grounds of public policy and macrofinancial stability, and the NBS bylaw was adopted which prescribes these limitations in cases where they are assessed as justified (case-by-case assessment principle) and taking into account the fulfillment of the objectives of the limitations (targeting principle) and that limitations are proportional. A resident legal entity other than a bank may grant a financial loan to a nonresident debtor with the seat in an EU member state. A resident legal entity may also grant a financial loan to a nonresident debtor without the seat in an EU member state provided the resident is the majority owner of the nonresident debtor. When granting the financial loan to a nonresident, a resident legal entity contracts and obtains collateral instruments from a nonresident. Banks may grant financial loans in foreign currency to nonresidents without any restrictions, provided they contract and acquire collateral instruments for the payment from a nonresident. Banks may also grant dinar loans to an international financial organization, a development bank, or a financial institution founded by a foreign state without any limitation. Claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions may be transferred between residents (except natural persons), nonresidents, and residents (except natural persons) and nonresidents, while resident public enterprises and legal entities with state-owned capital require government consent. Offsetting of claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions in foreign exchange may be performed by resident banks, legal entities,

To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	entrepreneurs, and branches of foreign legal entities as prescribed by the NBS. Resident banks, legal entities, and entrepreneurs may borrow in foreign currency for purposes other than imports of goods and services and financing construction works abroad (settlement of obligations in the local currency, bank liquidity, etc.) in the manner and under the conditions specified by the NBS. The maturity of such loans to residents other than banks must exceed 12 months (with an obligatory grace period of six months) from each disbursement, except for loans intended for agriculture financing and for export financing, which may have a maturity exceeding three months from each disbursement. Funds from nonresidents may also be borrowed for direct investment abroad. Banks may borrow short-term financial loans in foreign currency from nonresidents. Resident legal entities and entrepreneurs may borrow short-term financial credits and loans from nonresidents with the head office and/or permanent residence in an EU member state. Resident branches of foreign legal entities may borrow from a nonresident founder in foreign currency at maturities longer than a year, provided the loans are disbursed to a foreign exchange account with a domestic bank. Resident branches of foreign legal entities may borrow from a nonresident founder with the head office in an EU member state at maturities shorter than a year, provided the loans are disbursed to a foreign exchange account with a domestic bank. Resident natural persons may borrow from nonresidents financial loans at maturities longer than a year for imports of goods and services and other purposes, provided the loans are disbursed to a foreign exchange account with a domestic bank. Resident natural persons may borrow from nonresidents with the head office and/or permanent residence in an EU member state at maturities shorter than a year, provided the loans are disbursed to a foreign exchange account with a domestic bank. Resident banks, legal entities, and entrepreneurs may borrow dinar loans from international financial organizations, development banks, and financial institutions founded by foreign states without a foreign currency clause and with maturity longer than one year except for loans for agriculture financing or for export financing, which may have a maturity of more than three months. Dinar loans may be granted with the possibility of prepayment and change of currency in accordance with the lending program/business standards of an international financial organization whose articles of agreement or an agreement regulating its activities in Serbia has been ratified. Dinar loans may be granted from the proceeds of current and capital transactions, including the proceeds of the primary sale of long-term dinar debt securities, issued by a foreign creditor. Banks report on drawdown and repayment under residents' foreign borrowing to the NBS in electronic format. Claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions may be transferred between residents (except natural persons), nonresidents, and residents (except natural persons) and nonresidents, while resident public enterprises and legal entities with state-owned capital require government consent. Offsetting of claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions in foreign exchange may be performed by resident banks, legal entities, entrepreneurs, and branches of foreign legal entities as prescribed by the NBS. Banks are subject to minimum reserve requirements on foreign borrowing (credits and deposits).
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Guarantees and sureties deemed to be foreign credit transactions in line with the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations are reported to the NBS. Resident banks, legal entities, and entrepreneurs may issue warranties and other means of collateral under credits granted by nonresidents to residents without any restrictions. Resident legal entities other than banks may issue warranties and other means of collateral under credit operations between nonresidents abroad in accordance with the provision of the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, which stipulates the NBS may prescribe conditions and manner of performing these operations which may be subject to limitations justified on grounds of public policy and macrofinancial stability, and the NBS bylaw was adopted which prescribes these limitations in cases where they are assessed as justified (case-by-case assessment principle) and taking into account the fulfillment of the objectives of the limitations (targeting principle) and that limitations are proportional. A resident legal entity other than a bank may issue warranties and provide other collaterals in favor of a nonresident creditor under credit operations between nonresidents with the seat in an EU member state. A resident legal entity may also issue warranties and provide other collaterals in favor of a nonresident creditor under credit operations between nonresidents without the seat in an EU member state provided the resident is the majority owner of the nonresident debtor. When issuing warranties and providing other collaterals in favor of a nonresident creditor under credit operations between nonresidents, a resident legal entity contracts and obtains collateral instruments from a nonresident. Banks may issue guarantees to nonresidents under credit operations between nonresidents abroad without any restrictions, provided they contract and acquire collateral instruments for the payment from a nonresident. In addition to guarantees and warranties, which are considered foreign credit transactions, banks and resident legal entities are allowed to issue guarantees and warranties not deemed to be foreign credit transactions. In that sense, banks may issue guarantees, sureties, warranties, and other means of collateral in accordance with banking regulations. Resident legal entities founded by the Republic of Serbia by a separate law for export financing purposes may perform guarantee operations in accordance with that separate law. A resident legal entity may issue a guarantee to a nonresident against claims from another resident in connection with imports of goods and services, as well as to a nonresident performing construction work in Serbia. A resident public enterprise and legal entity with government-owned capital or a legal entity in the process of restructuring or privatization may issue a guarantee to a nonresident under these operations only under the terms and conditions prescribed by the government.

To residents from nonresidents

No.

Nonresidents may issue guarantees and sureties to residents under credits granted by residents to nonresidents. Nonresidents may also issue guarantees and sureties to other nonresidents under credits granted by nonresidents to residents. These transactions are deemed to be foreign credit transactions and reported to the NBS. In addition to these guarantees, banks and resident legal entities may obtain guarantees and warranties, which are not deemed to be foreign credit transactions. In that sense, banks may obtain guarantees, sureties, warranties, and other means of collateral in accordance with banking regulations. A resident legal entity may obtain guarantees and warranties from a nonresident against claims from another nonresident in connection with exports of goods and services and construction work abroad, as well as against claims arising from the operations between that resident and another resident legal entity in Serbia.

Pursuant to the Law on Amendments and Supplement to the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, a resident legal entity may obtain

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Bylaws and other regulations in effect include provisions on the classification of balance sheet assets and off-balance-sheet items, capital adequacy, risk management (including a more detailed definition of bank compliance risk), preliminary approvals for bank founding and subsequent issuing of full operating licenses, approvals for acquiring bank shares, bank resolution, details regarding the conditions and manner of conducting bank supervision by the NBS, and regulations on external bank audits. The NBS Executive Board implemented the following decisions (published in the RS Official Gazette No. 103/2016) which introduce Basel III standards in the Republic of Serbia: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Decision on Capital Adequacy of Banks.</li> <li>• Decision on Disclosure of Data and Information by Banks.</li> <li>• Decision on Reporting on Capital Adequacy of Banks.</li> <li>• Decision Amending the Decision on Reporting Requirements for Banks.</li> <li>• Decision on Liquidity Risk Management by Banks.</li> <li>• Decision Amending the Decision on Risk Management by Banks.</li> </ul> In addition to ensuring alignment with relevant acquis communautaire in the field of banking, implementation of Basel III standards introduced significant and numerous novelties, in terms of both capital adequacy and the liquidity ratio. In accordance with the Decision on the Classification of Bank Balance Sheet Assets and Off-Balance Sheet Items (RS Official Gazette Nos. 94/2011, 57/2012, 123/2012, 43/2013, 113/2013, 135/2014, 25/2015, 38/2015, 61/2016, 69/2016, 91/2016, 101/2017, 114/2017, 103/2018, and 8/2019), the requirements on the classification of banks' balance sheet assets and off-balance-sheet items (1) harmonize the specifications and conditions for the recognition of prime and adequate collateral with the Decision on Capital Adequacy; (2) minimize the prescribed indicators of financial condition as criteria for classification, with a required commitment to banks' internal policies and procedures, and define the criteria for assessing the financial condition and method of classification into Categories A through E based on that assessment; and (3) set the materially significant threshold for determining the delay in settlement of obligations of debtors at 1% of the individual claims of the debtor's legal entity (the same level as for individuals). According to Section 461 of the Decision on Capital Adequacy of Banks (RS Official Gazette No. 103/2016), a bank may assign, until the date of its accession to the EU, the weight of the risk of exposures to the Republic of Serbia and the NBS, including exposures to EU member

states and their CBs which are expressed and settled in the currency of any member state, in the same manner as it assigns the weight of the risk of exposures to these persons which are expressed and settled in their national currencies. In this regard, Paragraph 3 of Section 41 of this Decision stipulates that exposures to the Republic of Serbia, the NBS, and central governments and CBs of EU member states denominated and funded in their domestic currency must be assigned a risk weight of zero. Banks may assign receivables from a legal entity, entrepreneur, and farmer to another bank. Exceptionally, to reduce distressed assets, a bank may assign the following receivables from a legal entity, entrepreneur, and farmer also to another legal entity: – due receivables; – receivables not yet due but considered non-performing within the meaning of the decision governing the classification of bank balance sheet assets and off-balance sheet items, and classified as non-performing exposures on the cutoff classification date which immediately precedes the submission of the notification. Banks may assign receivables from a natural person – financial services consumer in accordance with the law governing the protection of financial services consumers. Banks are required to notify the NBS of a planned receivable assignment at least 30 days before conclusion of the assignment contract and to assess the effects of the planned assignment on the bank’s credit risk-weighted assets, reserves for estimated losses, and capital adequacy ratio; – the amount and structure of the bank’s NPLs, within the meaning of the decision on reporting requirements for banks; – the bank’s expenses and financial result; (Decision on Risk Management by Banks (RS Official Gazette Nos. 45/2011, 94/2011, 119/2012, 123/2012, 23/2013 – other decision, 43/2013, 92/2013, 33/2015, 61/2015, 61/2016, 103/2016, 119/2017, 76/2018, 57/2019, 88/2019, 27/2020, and 67/2020). On August 13, 2015, the government adopted the national NPL Resolution Strategy and on the same day, the NBS Executive Board adopted Decision on the adoption of Action Plan for Implementation of the NPL Resolution Strategy to fulfill strategic objectives. The Decision Amending the Decision on Risk Management by Banks (RS Official Gazette No. 61/2016) was adopted to regulate money laundering and the financing of terrorism risk, as well as to implement Action Plan for Implementation of the NPL Resolution Strategy, by introducing the concept of bad assets and regulation of risk management relating to the management of bad assets, and with the aim of complying with Law on Payment Services. For the purpose of implementing the Action Plan for Implementation of the NPL Resolution Strategy, on June 29, 2016, the NBS Executive Board implemented the Decision Amending the Decision on the Classification of Bank Balance Sheet Assets and Off-Balance-Sheet Items (RS Official Gazette No. 61/2016) which has changed the definition and treatment of the restructured receivables, taking into account definitions and treatment of the forborne receivables as envisaged by the European Banking Authority’s implementing technical standard on supervisory reporting on forbearance and non-performing exposures. The Decision envisages the introduction of new definitions of non-performing (NPE), performing, and forborne exposure (in line with technical standards published by the European Banking Authority), prescribes additional requirements for classification for the purpose of additional monitoring of asset quality, so that banks would be obliged in addition to assigning exposures into categories (A, B, C, D, E), to mark the exposures as non-performing, performing, and forborne exposure, with no impact on the calculation of the amount of required reserves for estimated losses, and defines the conditions and the time required for the transition of receivables from one category to another. The Decision Amending the Decision on the Classification of Bank Balance Sheet Assets and Off-Balance-Sheet Items (RS Official Gazette No. 69/2016) introduced the model of reducing the amount of required reserve, which is conditional on the level of NPL ratio, earlier than Basel III standards implementation date (applied as of January 1, 2019) to have a longer implementation period for this model and thus to give banks stronger incentive to reduce the level of NPLs and/or increase the lending activity. Given that the adopted amendments to the Decision on the Classification of Bank Balance Sheet Assets and Off-Balance-Sheet Items, among others, envisage that banks, which had an NPL ratio of non-state and non-financial sector equal to or lower than 10% on June 30, 2016, and they still have this ratio equal to or lower than 10% on reporting date, can calculate their required reserve, treated as deductible from regulatory capital and credit-risk-weighted assets, to the level of zero. With additional aim to stimulate banks to increase lending activity, the adopted amendments to the Decision on the Classification of Bank Balance Sheet Assets and Off-Balance-Sheet Items prescribe possibility for the banks to change the percentage from 2% to 0% applicable to the base for the calculation of reserves for estimated losses for the receivables classified in category B which were created on the basis of contracts signed after September 30, 2016, provided their aim is not refinancing or restructuring. NBS Executive Board implemented the Decision Amending the Decision on the Classification of Bank Balance Sheet assets and Off-Balance-Sheet Items (RS Official Gazette No. 91/2016) to equalize the treatment of bank refinanced exposure to borrower (forborne exposure on earlier valid solution), and the treatment of “refinancing” exposure of another legal entity other than a bank to whom the receivable from that borrower was assigned to (which was not treated as forborne exposure on earlier valid solution). The Decision Amending the Decision on Consolidated Supervision of Banking Group (RS Official Gazette No. 58/2017) enabled introduction of Basel III standards on consolidated basis with simultaneous harmonization with Basel III standards implemented on individual level. The minimum prescribed level of capital adequacy ratio of the banking group is reduced from 12% to 8%, which is equal to the requirement for individual banks. Capital requirement for other risks has been introduced (capital requirement for credit valuation adjustment (CVA) risk and a capital requirement for large exposures for each member of the banking group). Obligations for the ultimate parent company to establish a system for liquidity risk management at the level of the banking group are stipulated, as well as the obligation to calculate the LCR and accordingly apply the appropriate restrictions relating to a bank’s exposure to liquidity risk. Guidelines for the identification of default (RS Official Gazette Nos. 69/2017 and 149/2020) were adopted in July 2017. The maturity of the exposures is specified in such a way that, for the purposes of determining that status, the bank considers the exposure to be past due if any amount of the principal amount, interest, or fees was not paid at due date, and that the counting of days past due for exposures with changed terms of repayment is based on the changed repayment schedule. Guidelines also prescribe the manner of calculating a materially significant amount, indications of unlikelihood to pay, conditions for return to a non-defaulted status and the new occurrence of default, application of the definition of default, monitoring the fulfillment of conditions for classification into non-defaulted status, the risk management process as well as requirements regarding the principles of management for banks applying the internal ratings-based (IRB) approach. Provisions that regulate the manner of calculating a materially significant amount must apply as of January 1, 2019. Decision on the accounting write-off of bank balance sheet assets (RS Official Gazette No. 77/2017) applies as of September 30, 2017. In accordance with this decision, banks are obliged on direct write-off of NPLs which are fully impaired if the calculated amount of loan impairment recorded by the bank in favor of allowances equals 100% of its gross book value. In February 2018, the Decision on Guidelines for the Application of the Provisions of the Law on the Prevention of Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing for Obligors Supervised by the NBS (RS Official Gazette Nos. 13/2018, 103/2018, 57/2019, 137/2020, and 49/2021) is introduced. These Guidelines regulate the manner in which an obligor supervised by the NBS carries out an analysis of the money laundering and terrorism financing risk, the procedure to determine whether the customer or the beneficial owner of the customer is an official, as well as the manner of applying other provisions of the law regulating the prevention of money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

Decision on Measures for Preserving Stability of the Financial System in the Context of Foreign Currency-Indexed Loans (RS Official Gazette Nos. 21/2015 and 51/2015).

In view of the need to preserve and further strengthen financial system stability amid potential risks caused by the emergency health situation in the country because of COVID-19, the Decision on Temporary Measures for Preserving Financial System Stability (RS Official Gazette No. 33/2020) was adopted effective March 18, 2020, imposing the first moratorium on debt payments. The moratorium was envisaged for all resident debtors who wish to apply it (natural persons, farmers and entrepreneurs, corporates) and implied a suspension of debt payments for at least 90 days. Banks were obliged to offer to borrowers a suspension of debt payments (moratorium) within three days from the day of entry into force of the Decision. Effective July 28, 2020, an additional suspension in the settlement of liabilities was prescribed by the Decision on Temporary Measures for Banks for the Purpose of Mitigating the Consequences of COVID-19 Pandemic in Order to Preserve Financial System Stability (RS Official Gazette No. 103/2020). Resident borrowers were offered one more suspension in the settlement of their liabilities to banks maturing in the period between August 1, 2020, and September 30, 2020, as well as a suspension in the payment of liabilities that matured in July 2020, and which the borrower has not settled.

Further, the Decision on Temporary Measures for Banks to Facilitate Access to Financing for Natural Persons (RS Official Gazette No. 108/2020) effective August 28, 2020, prescribes three sets of temporary measures that should facilitate access to housing loans for citizens, and thus provide support to the real sector, through faster turnover of assets, the possibility of extension of housing loan repayment periods for maximum five years, and temporary relaxation of the approval procedure for household short-term dinar loans up to a certain amount, and banks will be able to apply these measures until December 31, 2021.

Effective December 19, 2020, the NBS adopted the Guidelines Amending the Guidelines for the Identification of Default (RS Official Gazette No. 149/2020), postponing the application of the Guidelines for the Identification of Default, in such a manner that instead of January 1, 2021, it will apply from January 1, 2022 (except the provisions of item 10 of the Instruction which refers to the manner of determining the materially significant amount and already applies since January 1, 2019), to more accurately assess the effects of the macroeconomic situation caused by COVID-19 on the level of NPLs, and to prevent the growth of NPLs that could occur because of a change in the methodological approach prescribed by the Guidelines.

Effective December 15, 2020, the NBS adopted new measures by the Decision on Temporary Measures for Banks to Enable Adequate Credit Risk Management (RS Official Gazette Nos. 150/2020 and 21/2021), prescribing the measures and activities to be applied by banks to ensure adequate credit risk management, which implies timely identification of debtors faced with potential difficulties and taking of appropriate steps. Debt repayment facilities are provided for natural persons, farmers, entrepreneurs, and companies. Debt repayment facilities are provided for the settlement of liabilities on the basis of loans, credit cards and current account overdraft, provided the debtor was orderly in settling liabilities to the bank in the relevant period before the pandemic (as of February 29, 2020, and in the 12-month period before that date, a borrower did not default on its liabilities to such bank and neither of the claims on such borrower in respect of the loans and other loan products – credit cards and current account overdrafts was classified as a NPL in such bank). A request for facilities may be filed with banks until April 30, 2021, and the bank’s deadline for making a decision was within 30 days of receiving the request.

Furthermore, the Decision Amending Decision on Temporary Measures for Banks to Enable Adequate Credit Risk Management amid COVID-19 Pandemic effective March 13, 2021, provided regulatory solution where the borrower is entitled to facilities (providing prior orderliness in settling its liabilities to the bank) if as of February 28, 2021, was more than 30 days past due in a materially significant amount on any obligation to the bank arising from products to which this Decision applies. Thus, the scope of borrowers who were entitled to facilities in accordance with the Decision was expanded.

Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Credit agreements concluded by banks with nonresidents in foreign currency and dinars must meet the requirements set by the regulations governing banking operations and foreign credit transactions. Banks may borrow short-term financial loans in foreign currency from nonresidents and may also borrow in dinars from international financial organizations, development banks, and financial institutions founded by foreign states under conditions specified by the NBS. Borrowing from nonresidents in dinars and foreign currency is deemed a foreign credit transaction and reported to the NBS. Claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions may be transferred between residents (except natural persons), nonresidents, and residents (except natural persons) and nonresidents, while resident public enterprises and legal entities with state-owned capital require government consent. Offsetting of claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions in foreign currency may be performed by resident banks, legal entities, entrepreneurs, and branches of foreign legal entities as prescribed by the NBS.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Authorized banks may hold foreign currency abroad only in accounts with banks.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Banks may grant credits in dinars to nonresidents in the manner and under the conditions specified by the NBS. Banks may grant commercial credits in foreign currency to nonresidents and short-term bank credit facilities as well as short-term bank deposits in foreign currency to foreign banks without any restrictions and may also grant financial loans in foreign currency to nonresidents, provided they contract and acquire from a nonresident payment collateral instruments. Banks may also grant dinar loans to an international financial organization, a development bank, or a financial institution founded by a foreign state without any limitation; other dinar lending by banks to nonresidents is subject to conditions specified by the NBS. Lending to nonresidents in dinars and foreign currency is deemed a foreign credit transaction and reported to the NBS. Claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions may be transferred between residents other than natural persons, nonresidents, and residents other than natural persons and nonresidents, except for resident public enterprises and legal entities with state-owned capital, which requires government consent. Offsetting of claims and liabilities under foreign credit transactions in foreign currency may be performed by resident banks, legal entities, entrepreneurs, and branches of foreign legal entities in the manner prescribed by the NBS.

Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Banks may extend to resident legal entities and entrepreneurs credits in foreign currency for payment for imports of goods and services from abroad and to resident natural persons for the purchase of real estate in the country. Banks may approve loans to natural persons that are indexed to a foreign currency, provided the currency is the euro and the borrower has made a down payment or deposit of at least 30% of the loan amount. Banks may approve a mortgage to a natural person, provided the loan amount does not exceed 80% of the value of the property (reduced by the amount of other receivables secured by the first-rank mortgage on the same property). This requirement does not apply to loans in dinars that are not indexed to foreign currency. Banks were required to treat the amount overcharged by unilateral raising of variable indefinable elements of the interest rate as early loan repayment and notify each borrower with a modified loan repayment schedule within 30 days. With respect to Cooperative Housing Foundation-indexed housing loans, banks were required to offer their borrowers, within 30 days, four sample annex proposals containing modified terms of loan repayment while keeping the existing loan collateral. Borrowers must be given at least three months to decide on the offer and may accept it at any time before the deadline. Banks may not offer conversion, under any of the modalities envisaging such an option for the extension of euro-indexed loans if such terms are less favorable than the terms applied on December 31, 2014, and may not charge any fees for undertaking these measures and carrying out these activities nor obtain compensation for costs related to such measures and activities (NBS Decision on Measures for Preserving Stability of the Financial System in the Context of Foreign Currency-Indexed Loans). The NBS Executive Board adopted the Decision Amending Decision on the Classification of Bank Balance Sheet Assets and Off-Balance-Sheet Items (RS Official Gazette No. 25/2015), with the aim of aligning with the Decision on Measures for Preserving Stability of the Financial System in the Context of Foreign Currency-Indexed Loans, by providing more precise conditions for the calculation of default in accordance with the subsequently agreed maturity date. The Executive Board of the NBS adopted the Decision on Intra-Group Financial Support.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Purchases of locally issued debt securities are permitted in accordance with the Law on the Capital Market.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Banks are subject to a minimum reserve requirement on sources of banking funding. Local currency (dinar) liabilities are treated differently from foreign currency liabilities. There is no reserve

		requirement for local currency (dinar) liabilities with maturity of more than two years and on banks' dinar and foreign currency liabilities from international financial institutions, governments, and financial institutions of foreign states through intermediation of the governments as the main debtor and/or owner of these funds or received directly. When banks reinvest these funds, the loan margins must be lower than the average margins on loans approved by the bank from other sources of funds. A 5% reserve ratio applies to local currency liabilities with maturity of up to two years. A 100% reserve requirement ratio applies to the portion of the foreign exchange base composed of liabilities under foreign-exchange-indexed dinar liabilities regardless of the maturity. The mandatory reserve requirement ratio on foreign currency liabilities differs according to maturity. The reserve requirement ratio on foreign currency liabilities is 20% on liabilities with maturity of up to two years and 13% on liabilities with maturity of more than two years. A portion of the required reserves must be allocated in foreign exchange. The allocation differs according to maturity: 62% of the reserve requirement must be allocated in foreign exchange for debt with maturity of up to two years and 70% for debt with maturity of more than two years.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	Liquidity ratios are transferred in the Decision on Liquidity Risk Management by Banks (RS Official Gazette No. 103/2016), which must be applied as of that day. The Decision on Liquidity Risk Management by Banks introduced the liquidity coverage ratio. In accordance with this decision, the bank must maintain the LCR ratio at a level of at least 100%. According to provisions of this Decision, the liquid assets are the sum of level 1 liquid assets and level 2 liquid assets whereby level 1 liquid assets mean assets of extremely high liquidity and credit quality and level 2 liquid assets mean assets of high liquidity and credit quality comprising level 2A liquid assets and level 2B liquid assets. Level 1 liquid assets must include assets prescribed in Section 26 of this Decision, assets which could be included in Level 2A liquid assets are stipulated in Section 28 of this Decision and Section 30 determines what Level 2B liquid assets consist of.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.
Reserve requirements	No.	Local currency (dinar) liabilities are treated differently from foreign currency liabilities; the differential treatment of liabilities depends on currency and maturity, not on residential/nonresidential status.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	NBS approval is required and issued under the conditions set forth in the decision on the granting of approval for capital investment in banks abroad.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	NBS approval is required for the acquisition of 5%–20%, 20%–33%, 33%–50%, and more than 50% of voting rights. NBS procedures for processing applications for bank founding permits and acquisition of ownership have been simplified. Criteria for the assessment of

		solvency of a potential founder/acquirer of ownership that is a legal entity with an investment grade credit rating are the same as for banks, and if the potential founder/acquirer is a special-purpose vehicle, the assessment of solvency is made for the persons financing the special-purpose vehicle's investment in the bank's capital rather than for the special-purpose vehicle itself. The NBS must assess the business reputation of the bank founders, the acquirer of participation in the bank, or the persons nominated for membership in the management bodies of the bank when granting licenses or approvals.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The definition of total net open foreign exchange position is the higher of the absolute value of the total long or total short foreign exchange position. A bank's total net open foreign exchange position (including the absolute value of its net open position in gold) limit is 20% of its capital. In accordance with the Decision on Bank Capital Adequacy (Section 368, Paragraph 2), foreign exchange assets and liabilities include all foreign exchange assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currency, assets and liabilities denominated in dinars with a currency clause, where the currency clause is a contractual provision indexing the agreed amount to some other currency.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	There are no specific open foreign exchange limits on resident assets and liabilities; the only limit is the one described in Point 9 above.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	There are no specific open foreign exchange limits on resident assets and liabilities; the only limit is the one described in Point 9 above.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.	Securities transactions by institutional investors are regulated in accordance with the Law on the Capital Market, which has been applied since November 2011 and bylaws of the SC.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Insurance companies as institutional investors are regulated by the Insurance Law. The Insurance Law of December 26, 2014, and its amendments introduced in May 7, 2021, and the bylaw of June 27, 2015, and its amendments introduced in December 2017 and December 2020 are respectively in effect.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Insurance companies may invest technical reserves in EU or OECD countries' government or CB securities, or securities issued by international institutions, as well as in shares of foreign legal entities listed on financial market, up to 25%, and of one issuer, up to 5% for life insurance and non-life insurance, but also in investment funds, only for unit-linked products. In addition, these securities must fulfill certain qualitative criteria.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Insurance companies may deposit and invest up to 25% of prescribed core capital abroad, with prior approval of the NBS.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Technical provisions may be invested in types of assets designated in Article 131 of the Law, separately for life insurance and non-life insurance, while observing the following limitations: (1) Securities and money market instruments issued by Serbia, member states of the EU or OECD, CBs of member states of the EU or OECD, and securities and money market instruments underwritten by any of the above – without limitation; (2) Securities issued by international financial organizations in which Serbia is a member of – without limitation; (3) Debt securities issued by autonomous provinces and local self-government units, as well as debt securities underwritten by any of the above – up to 35% of technical provisions and in securities of the same issuer – up to 10% of technical provisions; (4) Debt securities traded in the securities market in compliance with law where the issuer is a legal person with the head office in Serbia – up to 35% of technical provisions and in securities of the same issuer – up to 5% of technical provisions; (5) Debt securities not traded in the securities market if issued by a legal person having the head

office in Serbia – up to 3% of technical provisions and in securities of the same issuer – up to 0.5% of technical provisions; (6) Shares traded in the securities market in compliance with law – up to 25% of technical provisions and in securities of the same issuer – up to 5% of technical provisions; (7) Shares not traded in the securities market if issued by a legal person whose head office is in Serbia – up to 5% of technical provisions and in securities of the same issuer – up to 1% of technical provisions; (8) Equity interests of companies having the head office in Serbia – up to 5% of technical provisions and in equity interests in one legal entity – up to 1% of technical provisions; (9) Investment units of investment funds – up to the level of technical provisions calculated for a class of life insurance referred to in Article 8, item (5) of the Law, and in investment units of a single investment fund – up to 50% of those technical provisions; (10) Immovable property and other proprietary rights on immovable property – if entered in the land registry or other public register in Serbia, if they bring income, if their purchase price is determined in accordance with valuation by a certified appraiser, and if they are not encumbered by a lien – up to 30% of technical provisions of life insurance and/or 20% of technical provisions of non-life insurance, provided not more than 10% of technical provisions of life insurance and/or 7% of technical provisions of non-life insurance is invested in one and/or several spatially connected immovable properties which make up one whole. Up to 20% of technical provisions of life and/or non-life insurance may be deposited with banks having a head office in Serbia, provided no more than 5% of those technical provisions are deposited with a single bank. Technical provisions may be held as cash in the insurance company’s cash box or in its bank account, in the amount of up to 7% of technical provisions of life insurance and/or 10% of technical provisions of non-life insurance, provided the sum of deposits and funds in the accounts of one bank does not exceed 5% of technical provisions of life and/or non-life insurance. Other types of assets that may be acquired using technical provisions, apart from those specified in Articles 131 and 133 of the Law must be the following: (1) unearned premium reserves, outstanding claims reserves, and other technical provisions charged to coinsurer, reinsurer, and retrocessioner, up to the level of their book value, determined by taking into account the creditworthiness of the coinsurer, reinsurer, and retrocessioner; (2) unearned premium receivables under unexpired non-life insurance, coinsurance, and reinsurance – up to 10% of technical provisions of non-life insurance (until December 31, 2022). Up to 20% of mathematical reserves of life insurance may be invested in prepayments (loans on policies) up to the amount of the total surrender value of concluded life insurance contracts.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition

Yes.

Assets and liabilities of an insurance company must be considered currency matched if the insurance company’s total assets in all currencies equal its total liabilities in all currencies and the difference between assets and liabilities in any currency does not exceed 20% of the value of the assets and/or liabilities.

Pension funds

Yes.

Pension funds are regulated by the Law on Voluntary Pension Funds and Pension Schemes. Investment limits are regulated by a supplementary regulation on more detailed conditions and maximum amounts of voluntary pension fund assets investment and the manner of investment of such assets abroad. Each pension fund must establish an investment policy statement that defines investment limits within the regulatory framework.

Changes during 2020 and 2021

Exchange Arrangement

Monetary policy framework

Inflation-targeting framework

Operating target (policy rate)

12/10/2020

The corridor width was narrowed from  $\pm 1$  to  $\pm 0.9$  percentage points.

Foreign exchange market

05/08/2020

In relation to the COVID-19 pandemic, the National Bank of Serbia (NBS) applies the official middle exchange rate of the dinar as specified in the current exchange rate list when buying and selling foreign exchange and foreign cash from and to residents who have foreign exchange accounts with the NBS. Previously, the provision was limited to specific accounts for disaster assistance and applied to commercial banks as well.

Operated by the central bank

Auction	03/31/2020	From this date until the end of May 2020, the National Bank of Serbia organized fixed-method swap auctions with preannounced fixed swap points at favorable rates to give support to the domestic financial system in the conditions of COVID-19. The regular swap auctions are organized in the variable method with multiple swap points.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted
Held abroad

Approval required	02/22/2020	Residents may hold foreign exchange abroad subject to approval of the National Bank of Serbia on two new grounds: (1) making collections based on the refund of funds invested in a company established abroad (the sale of a company, wind-down of a company, profit from investment in a company, etc.) if regulations of the foreign state prescribe that holding foreign exchange in a bank account abroad is a condition for such collections, and (2) for settlement of liabilities abroad arising in relation to the resident's balance responsibility as a participant in the energy transport system – based on an excerpt from the regulation of the relevant country envisaging that these liabilities can be settled only through the account with a bank in that country and the document proving this liability.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

03/18/2020	In view of the need to preserve and further strengthen financial system stability amid potential risks caused by the emergency health situation in the country because of COVID-19, the Decision on Temporary Measures for Preserving Financial System Stability (RS Official Gazette No. 33/2020) was adopted imposing the first moratorium on debt payments. The moratorium was envisaged for all resident debtors who wish to apply it (natural persons, farmers and entrepreneurs, corporates) and implied a suspension of debt payments for at least 90 days. Banks were obliged to offer to borrowers a suspension of debt payments (moratorium) within three days from the day of entry into force of the Decision.
07/28/2020	An additional suspension in the settlement of liabilities was prescribed by the Decision on Temporary Measures for Banks for the Purpose of Mitigating the Consequences of COVID-19 Pandemic in Order to Preserve Financial System Stability (RS Official Gazette No. 103/2020). Resident borrowers were offered one more suspension in the settlement of their liabilities to banks maturing in the period between August 1, 2020, and September 30, 2020, as well as a suspension in the payment of liabilities that matured in July 2020, and which the borrower has not settled.
08/28/2020	The Decision on Temporary Measures for Banks to Facilitate Access to Financing for Natural Persons (RS Official Gazette No. 108/2020) came into force and prescribed three sets of temporary measures that should facilitate access to housing loans for citizens, and thus provide support to the real sector, through faster turnover of assets, the possibility of extension of housing loan repayment periods for maximum five years, and temporary relaxation of the approval procedure for household short-term dinar loans up to a certain amount, and banks will be able to apply these measures until December 31, 2021.
12/15/2020	The National Bank of Serbia adopted new measures by the Decision on Temporary Measures for Banks to Enable Adequate Credit Risk Management (RS Official Gazette Nos. 150/2020 and 21/2021), prescribing the measures and activities to be applied by banks to ensure adequate credit risk management, which implies timely identification of debtors faced with potential difficulties and taking of appropriate steps. Debt repayment facilities are provided for natural persons, farmers, entrepreneurs, and companies. Debt repayment facilities are provided for the settlement of liabilities on the basis of loans, credit cards, and current account overdraft, provided the debtor was orderly in settling liabilities to the bank in the relevant period before the pandemic (as of February 29, 2020, and in the 12-month period before that date, a borrower did not default on its liabilities to such bank and neither of the claims on such borrower in respect of the loans and other loan products – credit cards and current account overdrafts was classified as a NPL in such bank). A request for facilities may be filed with banks until April 30, 2021, and the bank's deadline for making a decision was within 30 days of receiving the request.

The National Bank of Serbia adopted the Guidelines Amending the Guidelines for the Identification of Default (RS Official Gazette No. 149/2020), postponing the application of the Guidelines for the Identification of Default, in such a manner that instead of January 1, 2021, it will apply from January 1, 2022 (except the provisions of item 10 of the Instruction which refers to the manner of determining the materially significant amount and already applies since January 1, 2019), to more accurately assess the effects of the macroeconomic situation caused by COVID-19 on the level of NPLs, and to prevent the growth of NPLs that could occur because of a change in the methodological approach prescribed by the Guidelines.

The Decision Amending Decision on Temporary Measures for Banks to Enable Adequate Credit Risk Management amid COVID-19 Pandemic provided regulatory solution where the borrower is entitled to facilities (providing prior orderliness in settling its liabilities to the bank) if as of February 28, 2021, was more than 30 days past due in a materially significant amount on any obligation to the bank arising from products to which this Decision applies. Thus, the scope of borrowers who were entitled to facilities in accordance with the Decision was expanded.

The COVID-19 pandemic led to the imposition of travel restrictions in many countries, which resulted in a near collapse of the global tourism and travel industry in 2020. Thus, the main pillar of the domestic economy, tourism, was also severely affected. Foreign exchange inflows converted into rupees fell from a normal daily average of US$3.0 million to about US$1.0 million due to the supply-side shock. The adjustment in the external value of the domestic currency was observed in April, immediately following the supply shock. Against the US dollar, the rupee, which traded at an average of SR 14.06 in the first quarter of 2020, weakened to SR 16.73 before temporarily stabilizing just above SR 18.00 in the months that followed.

Because the country relies heavily on imports, such a foreign exchange supply shock called for policy action to ensure the orderly functioning of the market. To ensure that the country's payments were guaranteed, the CBS Board approved support for the market in the form of direct sales for fuel and basic commodities, as well as support to clear unmet demand by selling foreign exchange to commercial banks through an auction process. Nevertheless, taking note of the uncertain environment, the CBS assistance was strategized to ensure that international reserves remained available over the longest possible time frame.

In 2020, the CBS purchased US$11 million and sold US$29 million to the market through foreign exchange auctions to ease the demand pressure. US$22 million was used for the importation of fuel and essential commodities, as mentioned above.

From an average of SR 14.03 to the US dollar in 2019, the rupee depreciated by SR 3.59 (26 percent) to SR 17.62 in 2020. The domestic currency also depreciated by SR 4.51 (29 percent) relative to the euro and by SR 4.71 (26 percent) vis-à-vis the British pound, primarily due to the aforementioned factors.

The trade balance worsened in 2020 because of a decrease in oil reexports.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks and exchange bureaus are free to set their exchange rates in transactions with their clients. The aforementioned ADs are also free to determine their foreign exchange commissions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The spot foreign exchange market comprises commercial banks and bureaux de change (BDCs). These financial institutions are licensed and regulated by the CBS. There are two classes of BDCs: (1) Class B may engage only in purchases and sales of foreign currency in the form of banknotes, coins, and traveler's checks. (2) Class A may also engage in the purchase and sale of foreign currency without the limitation that applies to a Class B BDC. However, Class A BDCs may engage in services of money transfer and remittances if they have a payment service provider license in accordance with the National Payment System Act of August 18, 2014. As of December 31, 2020, there were 28 institutions licensed under the Financial Institutions Act of 2004 to deal in foreign exchange with the public: 8 commercial banks and 12 Class A and 8 Class B BDCs. Only commercial banks may engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the CBS. BDCs and commercial banks must comply with the Anti-Money Laundering Act of 2006 and Prevention of Terrorism Act of 2004 and report transactions to the CBS. BDCs may open local and international bank accounts for themselves.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.

Auction	Yes.	The multiple price foreign exchange auction allows the CBS to buy and sell foreign exchange (US dollars, euros, and British pounds only) as part of its foreign exchange and monetary operations. Auctions are held as necessary in the context of foreign exchange and monetary policies as well as reserves management. The CBS determines and announces the amount of foreign exchange to be purchased or sold on the day of the auction through its web portal. Financial institutions that are liable to reserve requirements of the CB or as prescribed in the monetary policy framework are eligible to participate in the auction. Successful bidders pay the price they bid. The Monetary Policy Technical Committee/Investment Committee may rule on the bids according to guidelines based on price and amount (buying or selling). Auctions are announced through an online portal with all relevant information (e.g., auction date, time frame, reference number, foreign currency to be purchased or sold, amount intended to be purchased or sold by the CBS, and value and settlement date of the rupee equivalent). Auction results are sent via the web portal. If payment is delayed, the CBS imposes a fine as indicated in the penalty clause of the monetary policy framework.

SEYCHELLES

		There are no restrictions on the use of the foreign exchange purchased at the auction. Auction rules are included in the monetary policy framework's operational guidelines and procedures for foreign exchange auctions. Bids may not breach the MCP rule stipulated in the guidelines.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	The CBS and eight commercial banks licensed under the Financial Institutions Act of 2004, excluding those that do business only with nonresidents, participate in the foreign exchange interbank market. Banks may trade among themselves. Currently, participation in the interbank market is less prominent. There are no limits on the bid-ask spread and commission of market participants. According to the interbank market regulations, the CBS may either intervene directly at the participants' quoted rates or make its own quote (one-sided). The interbank market in Seychelles was inactive in 2020.

Brokerage	No.
Market making	Yes.	The following policies guide market operations through the Seychelles Interbank Foreign Exchange Market. The eight commercial banks provide two-way quotes (i.e., buying and selling rates) at regular intervals through an interbank blog administered and maintained by the CBS. Foreign exchange transactions may be concluded via telephone, but a written confirmation of each deal must always be sent by both parties to the counterparty immediately after conclusion of the transaction. The netting and settlement process is then undertaken by the CBS, and the rupee settlement is executed across the participants' demand deposit accounts with the CBS on a T+0 basis (same-day settlement). The seller undertakes delivery transfer using a correspondent banking arrangement on a T+0 basis.

Yes.

The BSL official exchange rate is market-determined. The BSL determines the exchange rate used in official transactions, including transactions for customs valuation purposes. The official exchange rate is based on the weighted average of commercial banks' and foreign exchange bureaus' purchase transactions during the preceding five business days. The weighted average exchange rate derived is the BSL mid-rate, to which a  $\pm 1\%$  spread is applied to determine the selling and buying rates. The daily official BSL exchange rate is published on the BSL website and the Thomson Reuters platform.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks are free to determine their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commissions with their clients. Commercial banks' dealings represent the majority of foreign exchange transactions in the foreign exchange market. Foreign exchange bureaus are licensed to undertake retail cash spot transactions only. Foreign exchange bureaus are not allowed to participate in the interbank foreign exchange market and do not deal directly with the BSL; they may hold foreign exchange accounts with commercial banks used solely for their operations. Foreign exchange bureaus are permitted to undertake inward money transfer transactions.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	There are 14 commercial banks licensed as ADs by the BSL to deal in foreign exchange with the public and 66 foreign exchange bureaus licensed to undertake retail cash spot transactions. Foreign exchange bureaus are permitted to undertake inward money transfer transactions. Foreign exchange bureaus are not allowed to participate in the interbank foreign exchange market and do not deal directly with the BSL; they may hold foreign exchange accounts with commercial banks used solely for their operations.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	The BSL conducts auctions of foreign exchange with the commercial banks to smooth excess volatility. The amount put on offer is always announced via the print and electronic media one day before the auction is held. Commercial banks are free to determine the exchange rate they want to bid at and free to sell to their customers for the importation of goods. There is no restriction or limit to the exchange rates banks are to bid at. The maximum amount commercial banks are allowed to bid for is always announced.

The frequency of the foreign exchange auction is based on the monetary policy stance of the BSL, and it is conducted on approval by the executives. Foreign exchange auctions take place primarily to smooth out volatility in the market and to mop up excess leone liquidity.

There are no restrictions on the use of funds obtained at the auction. Auction funds are primarily to support importation of goods. Auction participants, which are commercial banks, have demand deposit accounts with the BSL. Settlement of the leone leg of foreign exchange transactions is done on a same-day T+0 basis. The auction results are published in print and electronic media and on the BSL website. The results are also broadcast on the Reuters auction platform.

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Commercial banks may trade freely among themselves and with the BSL. There are 14 commercial banks that are participating in the interbank foreign exchange market. There are no limits on the bid-ask spread or commissions of market participants. Foreign exchange bureaus are not allowed to participate in the interbank foreign exchange market. Market participants are guided by the Sierra Leone Foreign Exchange Interbank Market Guidelines. As a result of liquidity and other structural constraints, the foreign exchange interbank market was inactive in 2020.
Over the counter	Yes.	Licensed commercial banks may deal directly with each other in the foreign exchange market. With the introduction of the Thomson Reuters trading and dealing platform, the interbank foreign exchange market was automated, which enhanced the deepening and improvement of the foreign exchange interbank market. When trading foreign exchange among themselves, banks must use the Thomson Reuters trading platform and may not trade outside of it.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Forward transactions are limited to imports and exports undertaken with a commercial bank by an institution dealing in the underlying imports or exports. Forward transactions are capped at US$100,000 a transaction. The BSL may participate in the forward foreign exchange market.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Stabilized arrangement

Yes.

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is other managed. The authorities manage the exchange rate as an intermediate target of monetary policy, with the objective of maintaining price stability as a sound basis for sustainable economic growth. The Singapore dollar is allowed to fluctuate within a targeted policy band and is managed against a basket of currencies of the country's major trading partners. Currencies in the basket are assigned weights in accordance with the importance of the countries in Singapore's trade relations with the world. The exchange rate policy is announced every six months in the Monetary Policy Statement, typically in terms of changes to the slope, central rate, and width of the policy band. In response to changing macroeconomic conditions, the policy parameters may also be adjusted outside the regular biannual cycle. The US dollar is the intervention currency. Over the past few years, the Singapore dollar's nominal effective exchange rate has remained broadly stable. In addition, at its regular semi-annual policy review, MAS shifted, effective March 30, 2020, to a policy stance of 0% appreciation of the targeted policy band. Since February 2020, the exchange rate stabilized within a 2% band against the nominal effective exchange rate. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to stabilized from crawl-like, effective February 14, 2020. The MAS intervenes through agents and since April 2020 has published data on its foreign exchange intervention operations. The data comprise MAS' net purchases of foreign exchange from its intervention operations on a six-month aggregated basis, and with a three-month lag from the end of the period.

Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks freely set their exchange rates and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Money-changing and cross-border money transfer service providers are licensed by the MAS under the Payment Services Act. As of August 25, 2021, there are 248 and 162 licensed payment institutions providing money-changing and cross-border money transfer services, respectively.
Operated by the central bank	No.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	No exchange control formalities or approvals are required for payments or capital transfers under MAS Notice No. 754 of May 1978. The MAS intervenes through agents at market rates. All licensed banks can operate in the interbank foreign exchange market (that is, there is no specific license for operating in the interbank market).
Over the counter	Yes.	Banks are free to purchase or sell foreign exchange to each other in the OTC foreign exchange market.
Brokerage	Yes.	The foreign exchange market generally operates via brokers, with no restriction on bid-ask spreads or commissions.
Market making	Yes.	There is no designated market maker.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Banks may hedge their exchange rate risk through forward foreign exchange transactions. MAS participates in the foreign exchange swaps market as part of its money market operations to manage banking system liquidity. In March 2020, the US Federal Reserve announced the extension of a US$60 billion liquidity swap line to nine additional jurisdictions, including Singapore.
Official cover of forward operations	No.	The MAS covers its own forward positions fully; however, forward positions of other entities in the interbank foreign exchange market are managed without official cover.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	No.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	No.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	Singapore has implemented measures intended to detect and monitor the movement of physical currency and bearer negotiable instruments (collectively referred to as CBNI) into and out of Singapore. The threshold for reporting of cross-border movements of CBNI is S$20,000. Any person who moves CBNI exceeding S$20,000 or its equivalent in a foreign currency into or out of Singapore must submit a report. Any person who receives CBNI exceeding the prescribed amount from outside Singapore is also required to report it within five business days. These measures are set forth in the CDSA. This is intended as an anti-money-laundering and counterterrorism financing measure in line with the FATF standards (see Recommendation 32) and is not an exchange control measure. There are no restrictions on the type or amount of CBNI that may be moved into or out of Singapore.
On exports	No.

Developers who meet certain conditions may qualify for a refund from the government of the ABSD of 25%.
Sale locally by nonresidents	Yes.	There are no specific restrictions for foreigners on the sale of nonlanded private property. However, the seller stamp duty (SSD) was introduced in February 2010 for all residential property and residential land sold within one year of purchase. Currently, the holding period for SSD stands at three years, and the SSD rates are 12%, 8%, and 4% for residential property sold in the first, second, or third year of purchase, respectively. Foreigners who buy landed private property with approval may not sell it before five years from the date of purchase—if the property is under construction, or before five years from the issuance of the temporary occupation permit or certificate of statutory completion, whichever is earlier. Lending locally in foreign exchange      No.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange      No.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange      Yes.

Reserve requirements      Yes.

Foreign currency deposits accepted by banks in Singapore are not subject to reserve requirements. Banks must, during each two-week maintenance period, maintain in its Current Account and Custody Cash Account, an aggregate average minimum cash balance of at least 3% of its average Qualifying Liabilities computed during a two-week computation period. On a daily basis, banks' end-of-day aggregate cash balance should not be below 2%, while aggregate cash balances in excess of 4% are disregarded when computing the average aggregate cash balance requirement of 3%.

Liquid asset requirements      Yes.

The liquid asset requirements for banks incorporated and headquartered in Singapore were revised, after January 1, 2015, in line with the global implementation of the LCR rules. For all other banks in Singapore, the requirements came into force January 1, 2016. Banks in Singapore must comply either with the LCR or with the minimum liquid assets (MLA) requirement. Banks complying with the LCR must ensure that they hold sufficient high-quality liquid assets in any currency to meet their expected net cash outflow in any currency. In addition, banks must ensure that they hold sufficient high-quality liquid assets in Singapore dollars to meet their expected net cash outflow in Singapore dollars. The expected net cash outflow also includes outflows expected from deposits.

As of January 1, 2019, banks incorporated and headquartered in Singapore must maintain at all times a Singapore dollar LCR of at least 100% and an all-currency LCR of at least 100%. Any other bank notified by MAS that it is a domestic systemically important bank, or a bank that elects to comply with the LCR framework, must maintain at all times a Singapore dollar LCR requirement of 100% and an all-currency LCR requirement of 50%.

Any bank that has been notified by MAS that it is an internationally active bank must also maintain at all times a Singapore dollar LCR of at least 100% and an all-currency LCR of at least 100%. In addition, any bank that is not a domestic systemically important bank or an internationally active bank may choose to comply with either the MLA or the LCR requirement, regardless of whether the bank is incorporated and headquartered in Singapore.

SINGAPORE

Banks complying with the MLA requirement must ensure that they hold sufficient liquid assets in any currency amounting to no less than 16% of the value of their qualifying liabilities (a subset of the bank's liabilities) in any currency. In addition, banks must ensure that they hold sufficient liquid assets in Singapore dollars amounting to no less than 16% of the value of their qualifying liabilities in Singapore dollars. Qualifying liabilities include, among others, amounts due to nonbank customers such as deposits.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents No.

Reserve requirements No.

Liquid asset requirements No.

Interest rate controls No.

Credit controls No.

Investment regulations Yes.

Abroad by banks No.

In banks by nonresidents Yes.

There are no specific restrictions on investments in banks by nonresidents. Although investments in banks are subject to prudential limits and approvals, the provisions are not exchange related. These requirements also apply to all individuals, regardless of their residency or citizenship status, and to all bodies corporate and unincorporated, whether operating in Singapore or not.

The requirements state that no person may become a substantial shareholder (that is, 5%), 12% controller, 20% controller or indirect controller of (1) a bank incorporated in Singapore or (2) a financial holding company without approval of the minister. The minister may approve the application, if the authority is satisfied that (1) the person is a fit and proper person; (2) under the likely influence of the person, the designated financial institution will or will continue to conduct its business prudently and comply with the provisions of the law; and (3) if the minister is satisfied that the acquisition is in the national interest.

Open foreign exchange position limits No.

No limits are set by the MAS, but it reviews the internal control systems of banks to ensure that adequate limits and controls are established for treasury activities.

On resident assets and liabilities No.

SINGAPORE

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Risk requirements apply. Insurers are required to maintain sufficient financial resources to meet the total risk requirements at adjusted fund level and for the company as a whole. Effective March 31, 2020, the total risk requirement includes a risk requirement of 12% (previously 8%) on the foreign currency mismatch risk, which is calculated as the aggregate of net foreign currency open positions of the insurer minus 10% (or 20%) of the total value of assets in the insurance fund for Singapore policies (or for offshore policies). Foreign currency assets that match foreign currency liabilities are excluded from the calculation of the foreign currency mismatch risk. Insurers are required to fulfill a concentration risk requirement if the foreign currency mismatch exceeds 40% of total assets.

Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. The Slovak Republic participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. The reference rates are usually updated around 16:00 Central European Time on every working day, except on TARGET (Trans-European Automated Real-time Gross Settlement Express Transfer) closing days. They are based on a regular daily concertation procedure between CBs across Europe, which normally takes place at 14:15 Central European Time. Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community." These include a "high level of employment" and "sustainable and non-inflationary growth." Effective July 7, 2021, price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term. Previously, it was defined as inflation below but close to 2% over the medium term.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	The EU has the exclusive responsibility for applying the common commercial policy, including import licenses and other nontariff measures. The Slovak Republic accepted and fully implemented the EU regulations on common trade and agricultural policies on the date of its accession to the EU. Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1148 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 20, 2019, on the marketing and use of explosives precursors, amending Regulation (EC) No. 1907/2006 and repealing Regulation (EU) No. 98/2013, is in force.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	No.
Open general licenses	Yes.	Act No. 392/2011 Coll. on Trading with Defense Industry Product and on amendments and supplements to certain acts.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	The EU import licensing system is in place to manage imports of specific products subject to quantitative restrictions, safeguard measures, or import surveillance. The EU currently maintains more than 130 tariff quotas, mostly on agricultural products, which allow certain goods to be imported into the EU at a lower level of duty than would usually apply. These quotas are administered through import licenses and apply to imports of certain items under the EU Common Customs Tariff related to beef, sheep, goats, chicken, turkey, fish, milk, eggs, potatoes, fruit and vegetables, wheat, barley, rice, maize, mushrooms, sausages, sugar, fruit juice, chocolate, pasta, and wine. The EU's common licensing system and quotas apply to imports of textiles from the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and wood from Russia. Commission Implementing No. 498/2012 on the allocation of tariff-rate quotas for imports of wood in the categories spruce or silver fir and pine is in effect (Annex I). The Commission allocates tariff quotas based on whether an importer is "traditional" or "new," and the allocation of tariff quotas depends on when the importer submitted its application. Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2016/2148 of December 7, 2016, laying down rules for the management and distribution of textile quotas was established for the year 2017 under Regulation (EU) No. 2015/936 of the European Parliament and of the Council. Regulation (EU) No. 2015/936 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 9, 2015, on common rules for imports of textile products from certain third countries not covered by bilateral agreements, protocols, or other arrangements, or by other specific Union import rules is in effect.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Certain measures are imposed for environmental, health, safety, sanitary, and phytosanitary reasons. Moreover, the EU imposes trade and economic sanctions in accordance with resolutions of the UNSC.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The EU Common Customs Tariff system, including preferential tariffs, applies; the EU GSP applies to imports from developing economies. The availability and scope of tariff preferences within the GSP depend on the arrangement with the beneficiary country. The following arrangements are available under the GSP: (1) a general arrangement, (2) a special incentive arrangement for sustainable development and good governance, and (3) a special arrangement for the least developed countries. Imported goods are subject to VAT and excise duties (mineral oil, alcoholic beverages, tobacco products, Tariffs are based on Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2019/1776 – Common Customs Tariff for 2020 and Council Regulation (EU) No. 1387/2013 as amended. Effective May 15, 2020, the system of prior surveillance of imports of certain aluminum products (introduced by Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 2018/640) was abolished.

In general, the sale or purchase of financial instruments in the Slovak Republic falls, if certain conditions are met, under the category of provision of investment services, which is a regulated activity. Nonresidents are allowed to provide investment services in the Slovak Republic, if they are granted a license issued by the NBS or after notification from another EEA member, if they are granted a license in that particular EEA member country. The provision of investment services in another EEA member country, by residents licensed by the NBS, is subject to notification from the NBS to that particular EEA member. The issuance of securities in the Slovak Republic is, as a general rule, regulated, whether this activity is carried out by residents or nonresidents.

On collective investment securities	Yes.	The units of alternative investment funds, EU alternative investment funds, and non-EU alternative investment funds may be marketed in Slovenia only to professional investors (according to Directive 2011/61/EU). They may also be marketed to retail investors if the terms and conditions of the Investment Funds and Management Companies Act have been satisfied (option from Directive 2011/61/EU). The Act on Alternative Investment Fund Managers (Uradni list Republike Slovenije, No. 32/15, May 23, 2015) implemented Directive 2011/61/EU on alternative investment fund managers, which aims at establishing common requirements governing the authorization and supervision of alternative investment fund managers to provide a coherent approach to the related risks and their impact on investors and markets in the Union. The current Investment Funds and Management Companies Act (Uradni list Republike Slovenije, Nos. 31/15, 81/15, and 77/16) implements provisions of Directive 2009/65/EC on the coordination of laws, regulations, and administrative provisions relating to UCITS, Directive 2013/14/EU regarding amendments of Directive 2009/65/EC regarding overreliance on credit ratings by credit rating agencies, and Directive 2014/91/EU regarding depository functions, remuneration policies, and sanctions.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The following may sell investment coupons to retail investors: (1) Slovene mutual funds; (2) mutual funds from EU member countries, if the company that manages the mutual fund in the member country is authorized to sell units of the mutual fund in Slovenia; and (3) Slovene alternative mutual funds.
Purchase abroad by residents	No.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	No restrictions apply to sales of investment coupons in the EU. Domestic management companies may provide services for the management of investment funds (including marketing of investment funds and selling of investment coupons and/or investment fund shares) either through their branches or a person authorized by the management company to manage investment funds or directly, if the management company meets the conditions stipulated in the Crawl-like arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is a conventional peg. The Solomon Islands dollar (SBD) is pegged to an invoice-based weighted basket of currencies consisting of the US dollar (with the weight of 58%), the Australian dollar (AUD) (32%), the New Zealand dollar (5%), the Japanese yen (3%), and the British pound (2%). The Central Bank of Solomon Islands (CBSI) sets the exchange rate vis-à-vis the US dollar as to maintain the value of the basket constant in SBDs given the movements of currencies in the basket relative to each other. The exchange rate is allowed to move along the exchange rate basket and market fundamentals with no fixed band imposed on the basket movement.

From October 2019, the exchange rate has increased its flexibility but followed an appreciating trend within a 2% band against the invoice-based weighted basket of currencies from June 2020. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified twice: (1) retroactively to other managed from a conventional peg arrangement, effective October 10, 2019, and (2) to crawl-like from other managed, effective June 8, 2020.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The SBD per US dollar value is the value of the index multiplied by the SBD per US dollar value on the day the basket peg was introduced. The exchange rate (midrate) is expressed in SBDs per US dollar and is determined by the total index of the basket multiplied by the initial base rate expressed in SBDs. The midrate is then announced as the official rate. Commercial banks can exchange the SBD against other currencies and are free to set the bid-ask spread for all currencies, except the US dollar and AUD on which there is a spread limit of  $\pm 20$  and  $\pm 25$  basis points (bps), respectively. In addition, the CB maintains a standing facility through which it will buy and sell foreign exchange with commercial banks and the government at spot offer and sell rates. Customs uses a monthly average of commercial banks' exchange rates for valuation of imports and exports.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	The monetary aggregate target is mainly domestic price stability with limited monetary policy tools such as liquid asset ratios, CB bills, and the exchange rate policy/regime.
Exchange tax	Yes.	A tax of SI$3 is levied on sales of foreign exchange exceeding SI $3,000.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The commercial banks are the main players in facilitating the foreign exchange market trading. Commercial banks may freely determine their bid-ask spread for all currencies (except the US dollar and AUD, for which a spread limit of $\pm 20$ and $\pm 25$ bps, respectively, around the midpoint applies) and foreign exchange commissions with their clients. The CBSI has also issued classified restricted foreign exchange licenses to legitimate money transfer services and money exchange providers (for example, Western Union, Money Gram).
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Currently, four commercial banks, three money transfer companies, and nine subagents for money transfer are licensed by the CBSI to deal in foreign exchange with the public. They can effect foreign currency transactions on behalf of their clients. The CBSI has licensed ten companies as exchange bureaus for banknotes only. The four commercial banks may trade directly with the CBSI. Foreign exchange bureaus are not allowed to maintain accounts abroad, and they do not transact directly with the CBSI. Their operation is limited to purchase and sell of banknotes only. Money transfer companies and their subagents can do foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The CBSI's foreign exchange standing facility allows commercial banks and the government to buy and sell foreign exchange at the spot rate (CBSI offer and sell rates).
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The CBSI provides a standing foreign exchange facility to the commercial banks and the government at official spot buying and selling rates with a margin of $\pm 12$ bps around the midpoint. The same spot rate is applied to both the government and the commercial banks foreign exchange deals.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There is an interbank foreign exchange market in which commercial banks may trade among themselves. All ADs (four) are authorized and licensed for interbank foreign exchange trading with each other. These banks may freely set their exchange rates for all foreign currencies except the AUD and the US dollar, for which the CBSI sets the limits. The US dollar and AUD spread limit on commercial banks' foreign exchange transactions is $\pm 20$ bps for the US dollar and $\pm 25$ bps for the AUD around the midpoint. The spread limit applies to interbank transactions as well as transactions with clients. The interbank market is generally active, and the CBSI can also provide foreign exchange to the commercial banks. During 2021, all four banks participated actively in the interbank foreign exchange market among themselves and with the CBSI.
Over the counter	Yes.	The market operates over the counter at times by commercial banks.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	Yes.	The operation of market making exists among all four commercial banks for interbank trading. Most interbank foreign exchange trading on a daily basis is done by market makers.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks may enter into forward contracts with resident clients in any foreign currency but subject to CBSI approval if the deal is in US dollars and AUDs. The CBSI, however, does not participate nor provide guarantees in foreign exchange in the market for foreign exchange derivatives.
Official cover of forward operations	No.	The CBSI does not provide official cover.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Contractual commitments in a foreign currency to nonresidents may be met by payments only in the currency specified in the contract. Exports are normally priced in foreign currency as agreed to between exporters and buyers; therefore, export proceeds are bought by commercial banks that deliver the SBD equivalent to the exporter's local account. However, exporters with approved foreign currency accounts may receive foreign currency payments in their foreign currency account.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	SBDs are used for domestic transactions only and are allowed for settling foreign exchange transaction equivalents. However, the Foreign Exchange Control Regulations restrict the exportation of banknotes except with CBSI approval. Solomon Islands notes and coins may be exported up to SI$250 without CBSI approval.

For current transactions and payments	Yes.	Domestic currency may be used to buy foreign currency to settle all trade and current transactions and payments. Commercial banks may effect without CBSI approval payments up to specified limits for personal and travel remittances and for trade and services payments. Payments for current transactions above specified limits require CBSI approval. All capital and financial repayments require CBSI assessment and approval.
For capital transactions	Yes.	Domestic currency may be used to buy foreign currency to settle foreign capital transactions only with CBSI approval. All capital and financial repayments require CBSI assessment and approval.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	The use of domestic currency to buy foreign currency requires CBSI approval.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	For transactions in derivatives, such as forwards and swaps, CBSI approval is required.
Credit operations	Yes.	Borrowing abroad requires CBSI approval. The assessment is based on prudential debt equity requirements for exchange control purposes.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	Residents may settle transactions in foreign exchange only with CBSI approval.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	The Solomon Islands participates in the Melanesian Spearhead Group Trade Agreement, PACER, and PICTA.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	Exchange Control Act is administered by the CBSI through the foreign exchange (exchange control) regulations. The CBSI delegates extensive power to commercial banks, which are appointed ADs in foreign exchange and may approve certain transactions. Commercial banks may approve applications for trade and service payments and for travel and personal remittances up to specified limits. Payments for current transactions above specified limits require CBSI approval. All capital-related payment approvals are not delegated to ADs and must be approved by the CBSI. Other legitimate requests for foreign exchange require CBSI approval.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.	Only licensed gold dealers and licensed gold producers and exporters are permitted to export and trade in gold.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Only Solomon Islands citizens may be granted a license to pan for alluvial gold. The CBSI may buy, sell, and hold gold and has participated in gold investments. A gold holding policy and trading agreement is in effect between the CBSI and the members of the London Bullion Market Association in particular Gold Corporation of Perth Mint. Commercial mining companies are licensed by the Ministry of Mines, Energy and Rural Electrification to mine gold. Controls relating to domestic ownership of gold are subject to Ministry of Mines and Energy Act and other related laws; however, the CBSI exchange control restricts offshore investment in gold without CBSI approval.

On external trade	Yes.	Commercial banks and all other residents are required to obtain a permit issued by the Ministry of Mines, Energy and Rural Electrification to mine, buy, or export gold. Residents are obliged to get CBSI approval if they decided to buy and hold gold abroad.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers may not take out more than SI$250 without the approval of the CBSI, which is not normally given. The CBSI sells banknotes to collectors abroad and, in some circumstance, exports Solomon dollar notes to authorized license money changers in the region for foreign exchange services.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Both resident and nonresident banks are obliged to get approval from the CBSI on the amount of foreign currencies to be exported. Travelers may carry with them foreign banknotes up to the equivalent of SI$50,000 without CBSI approval. Beyond this limit, travelers must provide CBSI approval evidence and explanation of the need of foreign exchange and approval can be granted.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	No.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Both resident and nonresident banks are obliged to get approval from the CBSI on the amount of foreign currencies to be imported. Nonresident travelers visiting the Solomon Islands may bring in foreign currency up to the equivalent of SI$50,000. Beyond this limit, travelers must declare and provide evidence and explanation of the need of foreign exchange. Unused foreign currency notes declared and brought into the country can be taken out of the country without CBSI approval.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	The CBSI permits eligible export companies and organizations to operate foreign currency accounts. There are 65 active foreign currency accounts of which 57 accounts are held onshore and 8 offshore, totaling about US$1,465 million as of December 31, 2020. Each account is approved with a foreign currency benchmark (maximum); it may hold at any one time within a renewable period of one year subject to CBSI approval. At present, this facility has been reviewed and further relaxed for all eligible residents and individual to hold foreign currency accounts for both onshore and offshore.
Held domestically	Yes.	Resident companies may obtain CBSI approval to hold these accounts when there is a genuine need. Exporters are allowed to hold 20% of their export proceeds in foreign exchange accounts to facilitate foreign exchange obligations abroad without CBSI approval. Such accounts may be opened in only one currency, chosen by the exporter. The balance of 80% of export proceeds must be sold to local commercial banks and the SBD equivalent deposited in a local bank account. Effective November 1, 2021, resident individuals are eligible to hold foreign exchange accounts domestically.
Approval required	Yes.	The CBSI gives approval based on its assessment for local Held abroad	Yes.	companies to hold foreign currency accounts domestically. These accounts are permitted for resident companies, but approval by CBSI is required. Effective November 1, 2021, resident individuals are eligible to hold foreign exchange accounts abroad.

Approval required	Yes.	The CBSI gives approval based on its assessment for the need for such accounts.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	These accounts are permitted, but approval is required.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	These accounts are permitted, but approval is required. CBSI approval is required for conversion of local currency to foreign currency.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	These accounts are permitted, but approval is required. Personal and corporate nonresident accounts may be used for local transactions.
Approval required	Yes.	Approvals are granted in accordance with the Exchange Control Act.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	CBSI approval is required for nonresidents to open domestic currency accounts. These accounts may be held only at licensed commercial banks or ADs. Credit and debit transactions related to work performed locally are allowed.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Balances may be converted to foreign currency and transferred abroad with the approval of the CBSI. ADs are not authorized nor delegated with approval authority to approve conversion of nonresident account balances to foreign currency. This requires CBSI approval.
Approval required	Yes.	CBSI approval is required for these accounts to be credited from Solomon Islands sources.
Blocked accounts	No.	CBSI approval is required for nonresidents to open domestic currency accounts, and any conversion of the account also requires CBSI approval. Currently, there are no blocked nonresidents accounts.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.	There is no foreign exchange budget for the allocation of a certain amount to specific imports.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	Advance payments may be made based on the contract between the supplier and the importer. There is no limit on prepayments for imports. An administrative requirement was imposed by the CBSI effective August 10, 2020, for all applicants for prepayments greater than SI$100,000 to provide documentary proof of receipt of cargoes (SIG customs document) from previous prepayment approvals. This is a temporary monitoring measure imposed during COVID-19 to ensure that trade prepayments are genuine.
Advance import deposits	No.	Banks may require advance import deposits, but under the current foreign exchange regulations, banks are not obliged to require advance import deposits.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Generally, required documents include invoices, customs clearance evidence, or a bill of lading or airway bill.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.

SOLOMON ISLANDS

Letters of credit	No.	LCs are encouraged for all trades and are frequently used. They are not mandatory for imports.

Other	Yes.	Invoices, customs clearance evidence, a bill of lading, or an airway bill must generally be submitted.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	The negative list includes prohibited goods, which may not be imported, and restricted goods, which require licenses or permits for importation, as specified in the Customs and Excise Regulation.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The maximum import duty is 20%. There is no duty on imports from Melanesian countries.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	A tax of SI$3 is levied on sales of foreign exchange exceeding SI $3,000.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds must be received within three months of the date of exportation.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds are generally paid through respective commercial banks. Banks are obliged to sell any excess of their limits to the single foreign currency open position.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Export proceeds must be sold promptly to an AD; exporters with approved foreign currency account may retain 20% of their export earnings in a foreign currency account.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	Yes.	Exportation of round logs must be financed by an LC or an up-front deposit of at least 100% of export proceeds by the buyers.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	No.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	Goods for exportation are inspected by customs officers. The Specific Authority to Export Document may be used by customs officers to inspect for correct volumes of logs and beche-de-mer before shipment.

Changes during 2020 and 2021

Exchange Arrangement

Classification

Crawl-like arrangement	06/08/2020	The de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to crawl-like from other managed.
Other managed arrangement	01/01/2020	Since October 2019, the exchange rate has increased its flexibility while still being managed against the invoice-based weighted basket of currencies. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified retroactively to other managed from a conventional peg arrangement, effective October 10, 2019. The change is reflected as of January 1, 2020, corresponding to the first day of the period covered in this year's Annual Report on Exchange Arrangements and Exchange Restrictions.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

Held domestically	11/01/2021	Resident individuals became eligible to hold foreign exchange accounts domestically.
Held abroad	11/01/2021	Resident individuals became eligible to hold foreign exchange accounts abroad.

Imports and Import Payments

Financing requirements for imports

Advance payment requirements 08/10/2020 An administrative requirement was imposed by the Central Bank of Solomon Islands for all applicants for prepayments greater than SI $100,000 to provide documentary proof of receipt of cargoes (SIG customs document) from previous prepayment approvals. This is a temporary monitoring measure imposed during COVID-19 to ensure that trade prepayments are genuine.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers

Trade-related payments

Prior approval 07/08/2021 Commercial banks may approve applications for payments of up to SI$250,000 (previously SI$100,000) or the equivalent for all trade-related payments. Central Bank of Solomon Islands approval is required for all trade-related payments exceeding SI$250,000 (previously SI$100,000).

Payments for travel

Prior approval 07/08/2021 Commercial banks may effect without Central Bank of Solomon Islands approval payments up to SI$100,000 (previously SI$30,000) for personal and travel remittances.

Personal payments

Prior approval 07/08/2021 Central Bank of Solomon Islands evaluation and approval are required for personal payments exceeding SI$100,000 (previously SI $30,000) a transaction a person a month.

Credit card use abroad

Prior approval 07/08/2021 Replenishment of credits exceeding SI$100,000 (previously SI $30,000) requires assessment and approval by the Central Bank of Solomon Islands.

Other payments

Prior approval 07/08/2021 Application of overseas payments for insurance premium up to SI $100,000 a transaction no longer requires Central Bank of Solomon Islands (CBSI) assessment and approval, but is facilitated by ADs (subject to approval by Controller of Insurance) prior to AD facilitation. All premium payments above this limit must be submitted to CBSI for approval.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions

Controls on credit operations

Commercial credits

To residents from nonresidents 07/08/2021 The overseas payments limit for “Goods imported on Credit” arrangement was increased to SI$1 million a transaction. Payments up to SI$1 million were delegated to ADs for facilitation and no longer require Central Bank of Solomon Islands (CBSI) Exchange Control assessment. All importers must provide CBSI customs documents with original invoices to the ADs for verification and facilitation. In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51) No.

Other security restrictions No.

Exchange Arrangement*Currency Yes. While the Somali shilling is the official currency, the de facto currency in use in Somalia is the U.S. dollar. All government transactions are conducted and denominated in U.S. dollars, and most financial transactions are settled in U.S. dollars. Somali shillings are used for small payments between private parties (virtually all counterfeit). Such notes are used as sub-denominations to U.S. dollar banknotes. Also, neighboring countries' currencies are used in border areas.
To combat the existing counterfeiting, restore confidence in the national currency, and support access to financial instruments, the Central Bank of Somalia (CBS) is in the process of implementing a comprehensive "Currency Exchange Project" with support of the World Bank. The CBS has completed a wide survey to assess the amount of shilling in circulation in federal member states (FMS) and Benadir, which is one of the important tasks that underpin the overall success of the project. Other important steps taken include the completion of logistic requirements project costing, establishment of National Project Steering Committee, and finalization of the Project Appraisal Document.

Other legal tender Yes. All transactions are converted to U.S. dollars.

Exchange rate structure

Unitary Yes. The Somalia exchange market is composed of private money traders. The rate is a freely determined, market clearing rate. The CBS publishes a daily average exchange rate measured in US/SOS. The CBS does not set this rate. Depending on local liquidity and demand conditions, exchanges rates can differ between Federal Member States markets. The CBS also does not conduct significant foreign exchange operations nor transactions in Somali shilling.

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2020.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	The Financial Intelligence Centre Act (Act No. 38 of 2001, as amended) (FIC Act) imposes certain duties to accountable institutions (including banks, life insurance companies, and authorized dealers in foreign exchange with limited authority (ADLAs)) to provide for the implementation of financial sanctions and to administer measures pursuant to resolutions adopted by the UNSC. Sections 26A, 26B, 26C, and 28A deal with financial sanctions by UNSC. The Prudential Authority and the Financial Surveillance Department (FinSurv) of the South African Reserve Bank (SARB) conducted banks' and ADLAs' client screening systems' examination in 2014 and again in 2017 to ensure that their screening and monitoring systems are capable of identifying persons and property listed in the UNSC lists (for example, UNSC lists 1267/1989/2253). South Africa maintains restrictions on payments and transfers to UNSC-listed persons and countries as well as on the transfer of funds to the Taliban, Al-Qaida, and ISIL in accordance with UNSC resolutions. The Bank Supervision Department (now the Prudential Authority) issued Guidance Note 8/2008 (of June 17, 2008) regarding Section 6(5) of the Banks Act of 1990 in response to the FATF call for enhanced scrutiny of transactions with certain jurisdictions and to UN sanctions in relation to the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. Because the FATF list of high-risk and non-cooperative jurisdictions was amended subsequent to Banks Act Guidance Note 8/2008, the Prudential Authority will, in addition to the aforementioned Banks Act Guidance Note, also issue a new Banks Act Guidance Note informing banks and mutual banks of the FATF list of high-risk and non-cooperative jurisdictions. Anti-money-laundering and combating the financing of terrorism on-site inspections by the Prudential Authority assess banks' compliance with UNSC resolutions to prevent business relationships with sanctioned countries, entities, and individuals and dealing in sanctioned goods, etc. In addition, anti-money-laundering and combating the financing of terrorism on-site inspections by FinSurv assess ADLAs' compliance with UNSC resolutions.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free-floating. The exchange rate of the rand is determined by market forces (that is, demand and supply) in the foreign exchange market. The SARB has a publicly announced foreign exchange policy of purchasing foreign currency in the local foreign exchange market when market conditions permit. The main objective for conducting spot purchases is to accumulate foreign exchange reserves. However, in certain exceptional cases, the SARB's involvement in the spot market is aimed at facilitating the smooth functioning of interbank foreign exchange market, for example, when there are relatively large foreign direct inflows into the country. In implementing its foreign exchange policy, the SARB does not seek to influence the level of the exchange rate. The SARB interacts with ADs as the price taker for official and commercial purposes. The market makers and brokers quote prices to other market participants; the SARB does not quote prices for market participants. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating. The SARB does not publish foreign exchange intervention data but publishes information notice on changes in official foreign reserves with explanatory statement at the end of every month. The information notice is published on a monthly basis within 7 working days of the new month.
Free floating
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The SARB publishes rand exchange rates daily against most traded currencies, such as the US dollar, euro, and pound sterling, at about 10:30 a.m. on its website (www.resbank.co.za). The rates are based on the four big banks' (Standard Bank, ABSA, FirstRand, and Nedbank) foreign exchange quotes on the Reuters electronic trading system. The SARB also calculates the nominal effective exchange rate (NEER) for the rand and publishes it at 10:30 a.m. daily. The NEER is calculated according to South Africa's largest international trading partners in manufactured goods. The NEER is currently calculated against 20 currencies: the five largest weights are euros

The NEER is also calculated and published monthly on the SARB's website, together with the real effective exchange rate (REER). Historical exchange rates are available in the SARB's quarterly bulletin. The SARB uses the US dollar–rand exchange rate at 10:30 a.m. for daily valuation.

Fixing	No.	The SARB does not conduct any ZAR fixings.
Interbank market	Yes.	Twenty-seven ADs are authorized to participate in the foreign exchange market. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads, and commissions vary between ADs and their clients. The SARB interacts with ADs as the price taker for official and commercial purposes. The market makers and brokers quote prices to other market participants; the SARB does not quote prices for market participants.
Over the counter	Yes.	Foreign exchange swaps, options, and outright forwards are the most important foreign exchange derivatives traded over the counter.
Brokerage	Yes.	The foreign exchange market operates based on a system of brokers (via brokers and electronic brokering systems).
Market making	Yes.	There is a market-making agreement between ADs and their clients.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	ADs are permitted to conduct forward exchange operations, including providing cover for transactions by nonresidents (subject to certain limitations). ADs are also permitted to provide forward exchange cover in any foreign currency to residents for firm and ascertained foreign exchange commitments and for accruals because of or from nonresidents arising from authorized trade and nontrade transactions. Forward exchange contracts may cover the entire period of the outstanding commitments or accruals. For the purpose of managing domestic money market liquidity, the SARB may conduct foreign exchange swaps in varying maturities with ADs for up to 12 months.
Official cover of forward operations	No.	The SARB does not participate in the provision of forward exchange cover to the market.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Countries outside the CMA constitute the nonresident area. The rand is legal tender in Eswatini, Lesotho, and Namibia. Lilangeni banknotes from Eswatini, loti banknotes from Lesotho, and Namibian dollar banknotes from Namibia are convertible to rand at par, but are not legal tender in South Africa.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	Rand may not be used in foreign exchange transactions; however, settlements between residents of the CMA and the nonresident area may be made in rand to and from a local nonresident account and in any foreign currency (except the currencies of Eswatini, Lesotho, and Namibia).
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	There are no restrictions on current account transactions conducted within the ambit of the Exchange Control Regulations. Rand may be used freely for current transactions and payments inside of the CMA and up to the limit of R 1 million in terms of the SDA via the Vostro system for current account payments.
For capital transactions	Yes.	Where parties wish to transact outside of the ambit of ADs, prior approval is required.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Certain types of transactions require FinSurv approval, such as outward direct investment if the total of the new investment exceeds R 1 billion a company a calendar year.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Approval is required where the instruments are issued by nonresident parties.
Credit operations	Yes.	Certain types of transactions will require FinSurv approval, for example, entities that are 75% or more nonresident owned who require to borrow funds from an AD for, for example, the purchase and sale of any securities, repurchase agreements, and any derivative transactions on securities and/or the acquisition of residential property in South Africa, where the funds that they wish to borrow exceed the 1:1 ratio.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	South African residents may invoice each other locally in foreign currency; however, settlement must be in rand.
Payments arrangements	Yes.

SOUTH AFRICA

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion) Yes.

On domestic ownership and/or trade Yes. Residents may purchase, hold, and sell gold coins for numismatic purposes as well as minted gold bars in accordance with South African regulations, but only the monetary authorities, ADs, registered gold producers, and authorized parties may purchase, hold, or sell gold in any form other than jewelry. Gold producers may elect to sell their total output to approved buyers, with clearance from the South African Diamond and Precious Metals Regulator. The South African Mint strikes gold coins, such as the Krugerrand, Natura, and Protea, which are legal tender, without face value, and these are available in limited numbers to the local market.

On external trade Yes. Exports of gold are subject to Exchange Control Regulations. Exchange Control Regulations pertaining to the repatriation of export proceeds remain applicable to gold exports. Export proceeds are required to be received not later than six months from the date of shipment. ADs may authorize South African exporters to grant credit up to a total of 12 months to foreign importers, provided the AD is satisfied that it is necessary. ADs are permitted by FinSurv to approve exports of jewelry up to an insurance value of R 200,000 constituting the personal effects of a traveler (with written declaration that it will be brought back on the traveler's return or within six months). Exports of gold jewelry by manufacturing jewelers require a written declaration that the articles are in fully manufactured form and that the gold content of each does not exceed 85% of the selling price to the ultimate consignee. Export of gold jewelry by manufacturing jewelers should be referred to the Precious Metals Act of 2005 by South African Diamond and Precious Metals Regulator. With FinSurv approval, residents may export currency coins, including certain gold coins, for sale to numismatists.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes Yes.

On exports Yes.

Domestic currency Yes. Visitors and residents may take with them up to R 25,000 a person, a trip, for incidental expenses. The amount is not considered part of the basic travel allowance, which is part of the SDA of R 1 million, an individual a calendar year. Residents who are under the age of 18 years may be accorded a travel allowance not exceeding an amount of R 200,000 a calendar year. This limit does not apply to migrant workers returning to neighboring countries, who are permitted to take with them reasonable amounts in banknotes representing their earnings in South Africa. There are no limits on the exportation of domestic currency to Eswatini, Lesotho, and Namibia. South African banknotes repatriated from Angola, Botswana, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Madagascar, Malawi, Mauritius, Mozambique, Seychelles, Tanzania, Zambia, and Zimbabwe may be remitted on submission of documentary evidence that they were not exported from South Africa in violation of the Exchange Control Regulations. The consignment of banknotes must be accompanied with confirmation by the repatriating bank that they were acquired from bona fide travelers from South Africa in amounts not exceeding R 25,000 a traveler.

Foreign currency Yes. Residents and contract workers leaving South Africa for destinations outside the CMA may take out their allowance in foreign banknotes. This allowance forms part of the SDA of R 1 million, an individual, a calendar year. Residents who are under the age of 18 years may be accorded a travel allowance not exceeding an amount of R 200,000 a calendar year. Foreign visitors leaving South Africa may take with them any amount of foreign banknotes brought into the country or obtained through the disposal of instruments of exchange brought into and converted in South Africa. CMA residents in South Africa may be accorded foreign currency at local international airports to cover unforeseen incidental costs while in transit abroad, subject to viewing an air ticket confirming a destination outside the CMA. Effective August 13, 2020, CMA residents working and residing in South Africa may be accorded foreign currency by ADs subject to proof that the value of such funds is reasonable in relation to their income generating activities in South Africa.

On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	The maximum amount of rand banknotes that may be imported from countries outside the CMA is R 25,000 an individual. There are no limits on such imports from Eswatini, Lesotho, and Namibia. FinSurv approval is required to import notes in excess of the prescribed amounts.
Foreign currency	No.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Natural persons may hold up to the equivalent of R 11 million a calendar year (R 1 million SDA and R 10 million foreign capital allowance in foreign currency deposits with ADs for foreign investment purposes, of which R 1 million a calendar year does not require a Tax Compliance Status (TCS) PIN letter, which replaced the Tax Clearance Certificate. The proceeds of other approved foreign assets may also be held in such accounts. Legal persons involved in international trade may maintain a single customer foreign currency (CFC) account for trade- and services-related payments, as well as for a wider variety of permissible transactions. As temporary measures for the COVID-19 lockdown period, ADs were allowed, effective April 14, 2020, to open CFC accounts for government-related bodies to receive donations from abroad and South Africa and to retain foreign donations in the CFC account for overseas payments of personal protection equipment (PPE). Effective April 20, 2020, the 30-day period for matured forward exchange contracts credited in CFC accounts was temporarily extended to 90 days and was effective October 23, 2020, withdrawn. Effective from August 13, 2020, institutional investors can open CFC accounts to accept foreign currency deposits emanating from disinvestment proceeds of foreign assets, pending the reinvestment of the funds offshore.
Approval required	Yes.	Transfer of funds in excess of R 11 million (R 1 million SDA and R 10 million foreign capital allowance) by resident individuals requires FinSurv approval.
Held abroad	Yes.	Businesses and individuals may hold such accounts abroad for the proceeds of permissible transactions. Only South African companies that have legal/bona fide sources of income abroad are permitted to open foreign bank accounts. All foreign credits to such bank accounts are subject to the provisions of Exchange Control Regulation 6, except in respect of foreign-earned dividends. Funds that accrue in foreign bank accounts must be in respect of transactions permissible in terms of the Manuals or a specific authority granted by FinSurv. Applicants must give written undertakings to ADs that no debits other than transfers to South Africa, debits permissible in terms of a specific authority from

SOUTH AFRICA

Approval required	No.	FinSurv or bank charges, will be passed over the account. South African companies may, without FinSurv approval, open foreign bank accounts for the proceeds of permissible transactions. South African natural persons may keep their R 10 million foreign capital allowance, income earned abroad after July 1, 1997, and authorized foreign assets in a foreign bank account, without FinSurv approval.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.	Resident rand accounts may not be held abroad but residents may open a foreign currency account offshore.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.	Resident rand accounts may not be converted to foreign currency accounts.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	ADs are required to open separate accounts on behalf of nonresident clients to distinguish between regular clearing accounts and foreign exchange trading accounts. This requirement does not affect the transferability of funds.
Approval required	No.	Foreign exchange accounts may be opened for nonresidents, and funds in these accounts may be transferred abroad without restriction. No approval is required for the opening of nonresident accounts.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	These accounts may be credited with authorized payments by residents, proceeds of sales of foreign currency to ADs, redeposits of unused rand withdrawn during visits to the CMA, and payments from other nonresident accounts. They may be debited for payments to CMA residents for any purpose (except loans), transfers to a local nonresident account, remittance to countries outside the CMA, purchases of foreign currency, rand payments for investment in local debt instruments, and rand payments to account holders during visits to the CMA.
Convertible into foreign currency	No.	A foreign currency account may be opened for a nonresident in foreign currency, but a nonresident rand account may not be converted to a foreign currency account.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.	Effective March 1, 2021, there are no more emigrant capital accounts. The concept of emigration as recognized by FinSurv has been phased out with effect from March 1, 2021, and the Form MP 336(b) used to record an emigrant's particulars has been discontinued. Previously, emigrant capital accounts were opened for emigrants and used for statistical purposes. These accounts were not blocked. Cash and proceeds from South African assets held at the time of departure and subsequently sold were credited to these accounts whereafter these funds might be transferred in amounts of R 20 million a family a calendar year or R 10 million an individual a calendar year, without FinSurv approval. Emigrants were allowed to transfer abroad funds in excess of the aforementioned limits, on application to FinSurv. Emigrants' assets were released from these accounts without paying an exit levy and ADs might release funds from these accounts for local expenditures without restriction.

The distinction between South African resident assets and nonresident assets remains extant. ADs may allow the transfer of assets abroad, provided a private individual: (1) has ceased to be a resident for tax purposes in South Africa; (2) has obtained a TCS in respect of "emigration" from South African Revenue Service (SARS); and (3) is tax compliant on verification of the TCS. In addition, private individuals may in the same calendar year that they ceased to be residents transfer via an AD up to R1 million as a travel allowance, without the requirement to obtain a TCS PIN letter. This is a once-off dispensation and cannot be used in subsequent calendar years. Private individuals ceasing to be residents for tax purposes only qualify for the aforementioned travel allowance, and may not avail of any unutilized portion of the SDA available to residents. ADs may allow the transfer of up to a total amount of R10 million per calendar year per private individual who ceases to be a resident for tax purposes in South Africa and is 18 years and older, provided the individual is tax compliant and submits the applicable TCS Application for verification. South African non-tax residents who transfer more than R10 million offshore will be subjected to a more stringent verification process by SARS as well as a subsequent approval process from FinSurv. Such transfers will trigger a risk management test that will, inter alia, include verification of the tax status and the source of funds, as well as risk assess the private individual in terms of the anti-money laundering and countering terror financing requirements, as prescribed in the FIC Act, 2001 (Act No. 38 of 2001).

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	ADs may provide foreign exchange for advance payments and/or cash-with-order requests, without FinSurv approval, to cover the cost of permissible imports, not including capital goods, on presentation of an invoice stating that payment must be made in advance. ADs do not need FinSurv approval for advance payments of up to 100% of the ex-factory cost of capital goods to be imported—up to R 10 million. Advance payment for imports of capital goods exceeding R 10 million is limited to 50% of the ex-factory cost. Any amount in excess requires FinSurv approval. For advance payments up to R 50,000, ADs are not required to review the SARS customs declaration with the movement reference number for imports to ensure that the foreign exchange was used for the stated purpose and that the goods were actually imported. As a temporary measure for the COVID-19 lockdown period, the 4-month period for paid imports to be received in South Africa was extended to seven months, effective March 30, 2020, and was withdrawn effective October 23, 2020.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	ADs must insist on the presentation to them of the prescribed SARS Customs Declaration bearing the Movement Reference Number as evidence that goods in respect of which transfers have been effected have been cleared by Customs. These documents must be presented at the time foreign currency payments for imports are made where the goods have already been cleared by Customs, or in the case of advance payments in excess of R50 000 within four months of the date of payment. The detailed information shown on these documents must be checked against the information obtained at the time payment for the relative import was made to verify that the payment made relates to the goods that have been cleared.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.

SOUTH AFRICA

Letters of credit	Yes.	Supporting or supplementary documents may include, but are not limited to, LCs.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	Importers are automatically permitted to buy foreign exchange to pay for current imports on presentation to their bank of the necessary transport and consignment documents (proof of importation) and an import permit, when required. An import verification system allows ADs to authenticate and view payment of electronic SARS customs declaration forms. Effective March 30, 2020, a temporary measure was put in place for the duration of the COVID-19 lockdown period for import transactions of corporate clients with manual/bulk documentation whose operational processes have been affected. For outward transfer payments, the ADs may rely on schedules with certain information (for example, invoice and transport document details, amounts, FinSurv approval number, etc.), subject to certain conditions. This dispensation was withdrawn effective October 23, 2020. Resident individual importers are not required to furnish import documentation for imports within their R 1 million SDA.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	Yes.	Imports from Botswana, Eswatini, Lesotho, Malawi, Namibia, and Zimbabwe that are grown, produced, or manufactured in these countries do not require a permit from the International Trade Administration Commission of South Africa (ITAC), except some categories of new goods, which are subject to import control regulations; used and secondhand goods; goods manufactured from used or secondhand goods, including waste and scrap imported from outside the SACU. New goods imported from Malawi and Zimbabwe that are grown, produced, or manufactured in Malawi or Zimbabwe are not interpreted to include new goods subject to import control regulations, used and secondhand goods, and goods manufactured from used and secondhand goods imported from outside Malawi and Zimbabwe.
Negative list	Yes.	The negative list includes most used goods, including waste and scrap; fish, crustaceans, and mollusks; mineral fuels; radioactive chemicals; new pneumatic tires; certain minerals; firearms; gambling machines; certain chemicals used in drug manufacturing; and ozone-depleting substances. All importers requiring ITAC import permits for controlled goods for trade or manufacturing purposes must be registered with the Directorate of Import and Export Control of the ITAC. Permits are valid for imports from any country.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Import quotas apply to certain agricultural and manufactured products, including clothing and textiles imported from Zimbabwe supported with a Quota and Origin Certificate issued by the Ministry of Industry and Commerce of Zimbabwe. No import quotas are administered by ITAC as a nontariff regime.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Tariff rates vary from 0% up to the WTO bound rate of 50% for commercial goods. A 15% VAT is levied on imports from Botswana, Eswatini, Lesotho, and Namibia.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Unless otherwise permitted, export proceeds must be remitted to South Africa not later than six months from the date of shipment and must be offered for sale to an AD within 30 days of receipt thereof. Exporters with CFC accounts may retain funds in such accounts without converting them to rand.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Unless otherwise permitted, export proceeds must be received within six months of the date of shipment and offered for sale within 30 days or according to the rules governing CFC accounts. Except for exports made on a cash-on-delivery basis and those for which the full proceeds are received in advance, ADs may provide exporters forward cover for their export proceeds.
Financing requirements	Yes.	ADs may permit exporters to grant credit for up to 12 months, provided the credit is necessary in that particular trade or needed to protect an existing export market or capture a new one.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Other	Yes.	Only an electronic SARS Customs Export Declaration Form (SAD 500) is required for exports. Exports are monitored through the Electronic Export Monitoring System.
Export licenses	Yes.
Without quotas	Yes.	Certain agricultural and manufactured goods exported outside the SACU require ITAC export permits. In addition to an ITAC export permit, military equipment, firearms, and ammunition require an export license issued by the Department of Defence. The exportation of certain COVID-19 essential goods, such as medicines, masks, and alcohol-based hand sanitizers, was temporarily put under control by ITAC during the national state of disaster only effective March 27, 2020. Goods listed in Schedule 4A and 4B may only be exported to SACU and SADC countries. For exports to any other country an export permit is required. Goods under Schedule 4B is exempted when exported for clinical trials or exports to private individuals on prescription.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	No.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	No.

		R 1 million may be used at the discretion of residents (natural persons) without any documentary evidence, except for an Identity Document.
Trade-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	No limits apply, but documentary evidence must be produced at the time of application for foreign currency confirming the amount involved, and ADs must be satisfied that the commission rate is customary for the particular trade. Payment for the importation of computer software and specific custom-made computer software products, including license fees, may be made by ADs against documentary evidence.
Investment-related payments	No.
Prior approval	No.	Annual reporting is required for payments to amortize loans or for depreciation of direct investments.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	No.	ADs may permit the remittance of profits and dividends, provided there is no excessive use of local credit facilities. Income earned from securities held by nonresidents is freely transferable abroad.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	South African residents traveling abroad for business or pleasure are allowed a travel allowance within the overall limit of the SDA equivalent to R 1 million a calendar year for each person 18 years and older and R 200,000 a calendar year for each person under 18, without any daily limit, regardless of the country of destination. Residents whose visits overseas extend from the current year into the following year may be accorded foreign currency in respect of the next year's facilities without returning to South Africa. Businesses qualify for a global travel allowance of R 20 million a calendar year at the discretion of the company. Residents may be allowed a cash float in foreign currency, not exceeding the equivalent of R 100,000 at any one time, if they must make cash payments related to the transportation of goods on a regular basis to nonresidents. Residents embarking on coastal cruises in South African territorial waters and cruises without a destination have access to foreign currency within the R 1 million SDA, provided a valid passenger ticket in their name has been issued in the South Africa. Exchange allowances in excess of the above limits may be provided with FinSurv approval. CMA residents in South Africa may be accorded foreign currency at local international airports to cover unforeseen incidental costs while in transit abroad, subject to viewing an air ticket confirming a destination outside the CMA. Effective August 13, 2020, CMA residents working and residing in South Africa may be accorded foreign currency by ADs subject to proof that the value of such funds is reasonable in relation to their income generating activities in South Africa.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Exchange allowances in excess of the above limits may be provided with FinSurv approval.
Personal payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.

SOUTH AFRICA

Quantitative limits	Yes.	Natural persons, who are 18 years and older, are permitted to avail of an SDA within an overall limit of R 1 million an individual a calendar year, without the requirement to obtain a TCS PIN letter, which may be used for any legal purpose (including for investment purposes abroad). This dispensation may be utilized solely at the discretion of the resident without any documentary evidence having to be produced to the AD, except for travel purposes outside the CMA where a passenger ticket needs to be produced. The resident individual must produce a valid green bar-coded South African Identity Document or Smart ID card for identification purposes and the identity number is mandatory when reporting the transaction. FinSurv approval is required for amounts in excess of the limit. An exemption from the Money-Laundering and Terrorist Financing Control Regulations, 2002, made under the FIC Act, 2001, allows residents and nonresidents to transfer or remit funds to a destination outside of South Africa up to an amount of R 5,000 a transaction, a day, within a limit of R 25,000 an individual, a calendar month, without the need for ADs and ADLAs to obtain and verify income tax numbers and residential addresses as well as exemption from various record-keeping provisions. It remains a requirement that the accountable institution still obtains, verifies, and records the names, date of birth, identity, or passport numbers as well as the transaction details.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Monthly pension payments to former residents (emigrants) are permitted, provided an individual has ceased to be a resident for tax purposes in South Africa; has obtained a TCS in respect of “emigration” from SARS; and is tax compliant on verification of the TCS. South African residents temporarily abroad may receive transfers from their retirement pensions and annuities, as well as monetary gifts and loans.
Foreign workers' wages	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Foreign nationals must complete a declaration and undertaking on taking up temporary residence in South Africa.
Credit card use abroad	Yes.
Prior approval	No.	Approval is not required with respect to travel expenditures. Residents temporarily abroad may use their local debit/credit cards within the overall SDA of R 1 million an applicant during a calendar year.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	Travel-related expenditures may not exceed 100% of the corresponding allowance.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Permissible transactions—for example, imports over the Internet—are limited. The limit for credit card payments relating to such imports is R 50,000 a transaction for individuals and resident corporates.
Other payments	No.
Prior approval	No.	ADs may permit remittance of miscellaneous payments incurred outside the CMA, with documentary evidence confirming the amount involved. ADs may grant approval for royalty payments, provided the Department of Trade and Industry has approved the relevant royalty agreement.
Quantitative limits	No.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Corporate entities are required to repatriate earnings to South Africa within 30 days of receipt. South African residents (private individuals) may retain income earned abroad after July 1, 1997, except for the sale proceeds of South African assets received from nonresidents and export proceeds.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Residents must, unless exempt, sell foreign currency to ADs within 30 days of receipt. Business travelers are exempt from selling their foreign currency to ADs when the next business trip is to occur within 90 days from returning from a business trip. As a temporary measure during the COVID-19 lockdown period, effective April 20, 2020, residents returning from abroad were allowed to convert unused foreign currency within 30 days after the lockdown. Corporate entities are permitted to retain repatriated funds in their CFC accounts without converting them to rand.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	The individual limit for investments abroad without FinSurv approval is R 11 million a calendar year (R 1 million SDA and R 10 million foreign capital allowance). Residents temporarily abroad may avail of the R 1 million SDA and the R 10 million foreign capital allowance a calendar year without returning to South Africa.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Residents must, unless exempt, sell foreign currency to ADs within 30 days of becoming entitled thereto. As a temporary measure during the COVID-19 lockdown period, effective April 20, 2020, the conversion period was extended to within 30 days after the lockdown. Corporate entities may keep repatriated funds in a CFC account without the obligation to convert them to rand.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	There are several exchanges in addition to the Johannesburg Stock Exchange (JSE) Limited such as 4AX, ZAR X, A2X, and Equity Express Securities Exchange.
On capital market securities	Yes.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Approval is required for foreign entities to list shares on a South African exchange. The funds raised by the issuer are freely transferable. All inward-listed shares on a South African exchange traded and settled in rand are classified as domestic for the purpose of trading on the exchange and are included on the indices; institutional investors and ADs may invest in such shares without affecting their prudential limits.

SOUTH AFRICA

Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The individual limit for investments abroad without FinSurv approval is R 11 million an individual a calendar year (R 1 million SDA and R 10 million foreign capital allowance) or from the proceeds of any authorized foreign asset. The requirement that South African companies investing outside the CMA must obtain at least 10% of the foreign target entity's voting rights was abolished during the 2018 Budget Speech.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Approval is not required for the sale of authorized foreign assets. For the issue of instruments abroad, FinSurv approval is required, depending on the type of instrument to be issued. Unlisted technology, media, telecommunications, exploration, and other research and development companies may apply to FinSurv for approval for primary listing abroad or to raise loans abroad and operating capital. Such offshore companies may in turn hold investments and/or make loans into South Africa and the intellectual property must remain registered in South Africa but may be assigned offshore, subject to appropriate tax treatment. Companies listed on a South African exchange may have a secondary listing and/or list depository receipt programs on foreign exchanges to facilitate local and FDI expansion.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These instruments may be held for an indefinite period.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Approval is required for foreign entities to list bonds or other debt instruments on a South African exchange. The funds raised by the issuer are freely transferable. These instruments are classified as foreign. Investments in these instruments by institutional investors and ADs affect their prudential limits.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The individual limit for investments abroad without FinSurv approval is R 11 million (R 1 million SDA and R 10 million foreign capital allowance), a calendar year or from the proceeds of any authorized foreign asset.

On collective investment securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Approval is required for foreign entities to list collective investment securities on a South African exchange. The sale of such securities by nonresidents does not require approval. The funds raised by the issuer are freely transferable. The classification of collective investment securities issued or sold locally by nonresidents depends on the reference assets and may be classified as domestic or foreign.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The individual limit for investments abroad without FinSurv approval is R 11 million an individual a calendar year (R 1 million SDA and R 10 million foreign capital allowance) or from the proceeds of any authorized foreign asset.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Approval is not required for the sale of authorized foreign assets. For the issue of instruments abroad, FinSurv approval is required, depending on the type of instrument to be issued.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Currency and commodity derivatives as well as derivative instruments with a foreign underlying asset are included on the list of instruments that may be listed on a South African exchange. South African companies, trusts, partnerships, and individuals may participate without restriction in approved inward-listed instruments. Institutional investors and ADs may participate in currency and commodity derivatives as well as derivative instruments with a foreign underlying asset up to the applicable prudential limits. South African companies may obtain forward cover for up to 75% of budgeted import commitments or export accruals for the forthcoming financial year without reference to FinSurv. Zambian Grain Referenced Derivatives Contracts: The Johannesburg Stock Exchange Limited informed the SARB in November 2020 that it had decided to terminate the initiative.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Nonresidents may freely purchase derivative instruments, options, and futures on the local formal market.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Approval is required for foreign entities to issue derivative and other instruments on a South African exchange. These instruments are classified as foreign. Investments in these instruments by institutional investors and ADs affect their prudential limits.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents who wish to hedge directly with an offshore counterparty require FinSurv approval.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Approval is not required for the sale of authorized foreign assets. For the issue of instruments abroad, FinSurv approval is required, depending on the type of instrument to be issued.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Export credits may be granted for up to six months. ADs may, under certain circumstances, allow a further extension of six months. Longer-term credit requires approval of FinSurv. With respect to services, payment must be received under the terms of the contract between the parties within a reasonable period after the service is rendered.
To residents from nonresidents	No.

		approval, except within the annual discretionary limit—that is, R 1 million a resident lender to nonresident individuals and South African residents temporarily abroad. Foreign investors may borrow domestically, without restriction, to finance FDI. Nonresidents who use the funds for financial transactions and/or to acquire residential property in South Africa must adhere to the 1:1 ratio that currently applies to these transactions. Nonresidents living and working in South Africa may be granted local financial assistance in respect of the acquisition of residential property, in terms of normal lending criteria. Loans to emigrants or for the acquisition of residential property by nonresidents or affected persons and other financial transactions, such as portfolio investments by nonresidents, securities lending, hedging, and repurchase agreements, are limited to 100% of assets brought into South Africa.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Approval is required and is generally granted, subject to specific criteria. Companies may borrow abroad to finance approved offshore investments using their South African balance sheets as collateral. Effective October 29, 2020, Companies (excluding State Owned Companies) may borrow offshore by way of bond and/or note issuances with recourse to South Africa (for example, guarantee form South Africa and issuance of shares in South African entity), without prior approval from FinSurv. Unlisted technology, media, telecommunications, exploration, and other research and development companies may apply to FinSurv for approval to raise loans abroad and operating capital.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Guarantees and sureties for financial loans require FinSurv approval, except for trade transactions. Performance bonds may be issued.
To residents from nonresidents	No.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	Approval is not required for outward FDI, if the total of such new investment does not exceed R 1 billion a company a calendar year. Investment exceeding the limit is subject to approval. Firms' requests are considered in light of national interest—for example, according to the benefit to South Africa's international reserves as a result of exports of goods and services. Effective December 31, 2020, South African companies may make bona fide new outward FDI outside their current line of business and may acquire equity and/or voting rights without limitations, in a foreign target entity that may hold investments and/or make loans to CMA countries. Previously, South African companies could make bona fide new outward FDI outside their current line of business and acquire up to 40% equity and/or voting rights. The requirement that South African companies investing outside the CMA must obtain at least 10% of the foreign target entity's voting rights was abolished during the 2018 Budget Speech, as of February 21, 2018.
		Companies with headquarters in South Africa may also make outward FDI into companies, branches, and offices outside the CMA that are outside their current line of business if the total cost does not exceed R 1 billion a company in a calendar year. FinSurv approval is required for re-domiciliation, that is, moving its base of operations from South Africa. HoldCos are designated Domestic Treasury Management Companies (DTMCs). Entities listed on a South African exchange may authorize transfers from the parent company to the DTMC up to R 3 billion a calendar year. Up to this amount, there is no restriction on transfers in and out of the DTMC, provided such transfers are not undertaken to avoid tax. Additional amounts of up to 25% of the listed company's market capitalization are considered on application to FinSurv, provided there are demonstrated benefits to South Africa. Unlisted entities may establish one DTMC for African and foreign operations, which is not subject to exchange control restrictions. Unlisted entities on a South African exchange may authorize transfers from the parent company to the DTMC up to R 2 billion a calendar year. The DTMC dispensation extends also to the financial services sector (that is, registered banks and insurance companies). Unlisted technology, media, telecommunications, exploration, and other research and development companies may apply to FinSurv for approval for primary listing abroad or establishment of an offshore company to raise loans abroad and operating capital. Offshore companies mentioned above may in turn hold investments and/or make loans into South Africa and the intellectual property must remain registered in South Africa but may be assigned offshore, subject to appropriate tax treatment. Companies listed on a South African exchange may have a secondary listing and/or list depository receipt programs on foreign exchanges to facilitate local and FDI expansion. Treasury outsourcing companies (TOCs) and foreign exchange brokers (FEBs) in the domestic foreign exchange market must obtain FinSurv approval to conduct foreign exchange business. Such business must be conducted through an AD. The transfer of South African-owned intellectual property by way of sale, assignment, or cession, and/or the waiver of rights in favor of related nonresident parties in whatever form, directly or indirectly, is not allowed without the prior approval of FinSurv. ADs may, however, approve the outright sale, transfer, and assignment of intellectual property by South African residents, excluding mandated state-owned companies as defined in Schedule 2 of the Public Finance Management Act, 1999 (Act No. 1 of 1999), to unrelated nonresident parties at an arm's length and a fair and market-related price, provided ADs view the sale, transfer, or assignment agreement and an auditor's letter or intellectual property valuation certificate confirming the basis for calculating the sale price. The above-mentioned dispensation excludes sale and leaseback agreements.

ADs may approve the licensing of intellectual property by South African residents to nonresident parties at an arm's length and a fair and market-related price for the term of the agreement, provided ADs view the license agreement and an auditor's letter confirming the basis for calculating the royalty or license fee.

The sale, transfer, assignment, and/or licensing of intellectual property is subject to appropriate tax treatment. Exemption from Regulation 10(1)(c) is, however, granted to institutions as defined in terms of the Intellectual Property Rights from Publicly Financed Research and Development Act, 2008 (Act No. 51 of 2008). Such institutions may transfer copyrighted material to an international publishing house when publishing an article in an international journal and/or transfer material in terms of a material transfer agreement, provided the value of the transaction does not exceed R 50,000. ADs must refer transactions in excess of the stipulated amount to FinSurv. The maximum individuals may, without FinSurv approval, invest abroad or deposit in a foreign exchange account in South Africa for natural persons 18 years and older is R 11 million an individual a calendar year (R 1 million SDA without a TCS PIN letter and R 10 million foreign capital allowance). There are no restrictions on the type or use of investment funds. Applications to transfer more than the current R 10 million foreign capital allowance an individual a calendar year may be submitted to FinSurv. The application must be accompanied by a TCS PIN letter from the SARS.

Effective December 31, 2020, resident individuals with authorized foreign assets may invest in South Africa, provided that, where South African assets are acquired through an offshore structure (loop structure), the investment is reported to an AD as and when the transaction is finalized as well as the submission of an annual progress report to the FinSurv via an AD. The aforementioned party also has to view an independent auditor’s written confirmation or suitable documentary evidence verifying that such transaction is concluded on an arm’s length basis, for a fair and market related price. Previously, individuals were permitted to individually or collectively to acquire up to 40% equity and/or voting rights, whichever was the higher, in a foreign target equity, which was then allowed in turn to hold investments and/or make loans into any CMA country (loop structure).

South Africans’ income earned abroad and foreign capital brought into South Africa on or after July 1, 1997, may be retransferred abroad with supporting documentation that the income and/or capital was previously converted to rand. ADs may allow private equity funds to apply for annual approval from FinSurv to invest in Africa.

Inward direct investment

No.

The International Headquarters (IHQ) Company rules eliminated the requirement for approval, adopted a reduction in shareholding to 10%, and streamlined reporting. IHQ shares and/or debt can be listed on a South African exchange and directly or indirectly held by a shareholder with shares or debt listed on a South African exchange. IHQ companies may raise and deploy capital abroad without Exchange Control approval, but must register with FinSurv for reporting purposes. The IHQ dispensation applies for nonresident companies. Listed entities on a South African exchange may establish one subsidiary in South Africa for African and offshore operations. This subsidiary is not subject to foreign exchange restrictions. This dispensation is extended to unlisted entities. Entities listed on a South African exchange may authorize transfers from the parent company to the “DTMC” up to R 3 billion a calendar year. Up to this amount, there is no restriction on transfers in and out of the DTMC, provided such transfers are not undertaken to avoid tax. Unlisted entities on a South African exchange may authorize transfers from the parent company to the DTMC up to R 2 billion a calendar year.

Nonresidents living and working in South Africa may be granted local financial assistance in respect of the acquisition of residential property in terms of normal lending criteria.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.	The individual limit for investments abroad without FinSurv approval is R 11 million an individual a calendar year (R 1 million SDA and R 10 million foreign capital allowance). Applications to transfer more than the current R 10 million foreign capital allowance an individual a calendar year may be submitted to FinSurv. Such an application must be accompanied by a SARS TCS PIN letter.
Loans	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Residents may lend to nonresidents through ADs within their overall discretionary limit of R 1 million an individual a calendar year. South African corporates may advance shareholders loans to approved subsidiaries within the FDI limits.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	ADs may approve applications by residents to avail of inward foreign loans and foreign trade finance facilities from any nonresident, subject to certain criteria and the reporting of the loans to FinSurv. Any loan application that falls outside of the specific criteria or any amendments to approved loans must be submitted to FinSurv.
		Effective October 29, 2020, ADs may approve requests for foreign bond and note issuances by corporates with recourse to South Africa, for example, a guarantee from South Africa and the issuance of shares in the South African entity, without prior approval from FinSurv. Previously, prior approval from FinSurv was required.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	ADs may allow the transfer of monetary gifts, including donations to missionaries, maintenance transfers, and travel allowances, within an overall discretionary limit of R 1 million a calendar year to a person 18 years and older. Cash bequests and the cash proceeds of legacies and distributions from resident estates may be remitted abroad subject to the Liquidation and Distribution Account bearing a Master of the High Court reference number. In cases where the total assets of the resident estate are less than R 250,000, cash bequests and the cash proceeds of legacies because of nonresident legatees, including South African private individuals who have ceased to be residents for tax purposes in South Africa (emigrants), may be remitted abroad, provided the Last Will and Testament and Letter of Executorship/Authority have been viewed.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Any foreign asset received by a resident from a nonresident as a gift or donation is not exempt from the provisions of Regulations 6 and 7 and must be declared and repatriated to South Africa. Alternatively, a fully motivated application to retain the assets abroad must be submitted to FinSurv.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	ADs may provide immigrants with foreign exchange to repay loans received in their previous country of domicile, provided documentary evidence of the debt is available and the immigrant is not in possession of foreign currency to repay the debt.
Transfer of assets	Yes.

Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	Emigrants—ADs may allow the transfer of up to a total amount of R10 million per calendar year per private individual who ceases to be a resident for tax purposes in South Africa and is 18 years and older, provided the individual is tax compliant and submits the applicable TCS Application for verification. South African non-tax residents who transfer more than R10 million offshore will be subjected to a more stringent verification process by SARS as well as a subsequent approval process from FinSurv. Such transfers will trigger a risk management test that will, inter alia, include verification of the tax status and the source of funds, as well as risk assess the private individual in terms of the anti-money laundering and countering terror financing requirements, as prescribed in the FIC Act, 2001 (Act No. 38 of 2001). In addition, household and personal effects up to an amount of R1 million per family unit may be exported under a SARS Customs Declaration form within the same calendar year that the individual ceases to be a resident for tax purposes provided such assets have been declared on the relevant forms. Transactions of this nature will be treated similar to cash. For amounts in excess of R1 million and up to R10 million, the individual must be tax compliant and submit the applicable TCS Application for verification. For household and personal effects above R10 million per family unit, a more stringent verification process by SARS as well as a subsequent approval process from the FinSurv will apply. Such transfers will also trigger a risk management test by FIC.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	No.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	South African residents may not participate in any gambling activities not authorized by the National Gambling Act of 2004. Residents may not participate in lotteries organized abroad, which is prohibited by Lotteries Act No. 57 of 1997.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	ADs may approve applications by residents to borrow abroad, subject to specific criteria and provided the loans are reported to FinSurv using the Loan Reporting System. Any application that falls outside of the specific criteria must be referred to FinSurv for approval. Effective October 29, 2020, ADs may approve requests for foreign bond and note issuances by corporates with recourse to South Africa, for example, a guarantee from South Africa and the issuance of shares in the South African entity without FinSurv prior approval. Previously, prior approval from FinSurv was required.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	ADs may open nostro accounts at their discretion.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Foreign investors are allowed to borrow domestically, without restriction, to finance FDI. Affected persons and nonresidents who use the funds for financial transactions and/or to acquire residential property in South Africa are subject to the 1:1 ratio that currently applies to these transactions. Local financial assistance to South African private individuals who have ceased to be residents for tax purposes in South Africa (emigrants) remains subject to the 1:1 ratio. Nonresidents living and working in South Africa may be granted local financial assistance in respect of the acquisition of residential property in terms of normal lending criteria.

SOUTH AFRICA

Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	These transactions are subject to specific FinSurv approval.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	There are no securities denominated in foreign exchange in South Africa. As an exception to the rule, nonresidents may, however, apply to issue debt instruments on a South African exchange in foreign currency.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	No.
Reserve requirements	No.	The minimum reserve requirement applies to deposit accounts held by residents and nonresidents denominated in rand or foreign currency. The requirement is 2.5% of total average liabilities, as adjusted for (1) amounts owed by banks, branches, and mutual banks in South Africa (including loans granted in connection with resale agreements); (2) funding received under repurchase agreements with a term of 31 days or less, with government securities, Treasury bills, and reserve bank securities qualifying as level one high-quality liquid assets as underlying security; (3) liabilities related to derivative contracts; and (4) amounts owed by banks rated investment grade or better located abroad in countries rated investment grade or better.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	All banks are required to hold 5% of their total average liabilities, adjusted for (1) in the case of branches of foreign institutions for funding received from the head office or from other branches within the same group; and (2) amounts owed by banks, branches, and mutual banks in South Africa (including loans granted in terms of resale agreements), in level one high-quality liquid assets (as defined in the Banks Act, 1990).
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.

Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.	A bank that invests money in immovable property or shares of a company—or lends or advances money to its subsidiaries whose principal objective is acquisition and holding or development of immovable property—must manage its transactions in such investments, loans, or advances in such a way that the sum of the amounts does not at any time exceed the bank's qualifying common equity Tier 1 capital and reserve funds, additional Tier 1 capital and reserve funds, and Tier 2 capital and reserve funds related to risks other than market risk. A bank must manage its business so that the aggregate amount of (1) its investments in debentures or preference shares of its associates, excluding subsidiaries whose main objective is the acquisition and holding or development of immovable property, a bank, or mutual bank whose debentures or preference shares are not convertible to ordinary shares; plus (2) advances to any such associates; plus (3) guarantees and/or other instruments related to its associates' liabilities or contingent liabilities; minus (4) excess qualifying common equity Tier 1 capital and reserve funds, additional Tier 1 capital and reserve funds, and Tier 2 capital and reserve funds envisaged above does not at any time exceed 10% of the bank's aggregate deposits, current accounts, and amounts owed to other creditors. Banks and their associates may not, without the Prudential Authority's written approval, jointly or individually acquire or hold shares in a registered long-term insurer or in a registered short-term insurer as to the extent to which the nominal value exceeds 49% of the nominal value of all the insurer's issued shares. Bank controlling companies investing money (a) in enterprises other than banks, institutions that conduct business similar to the business of a bank in a country other than South Africa, controlling companies or companies whose main objective is holding or developing property used or intended to be used mainly for the business of a bank or (b) in fixed property not used or intended to be used mainly for the purpose of conducting the business of a bank, or providing loans and advances to (a) enterprises other than banks, institutions that conduct business similar to the business of a bank in a country other than South Africa, controlling companies or companies whose main objective is holding or developing property used or intended to be used mainly for the business of a bank or (b) in fixed property not used or not intended to be used mainly for the purpose of conducting the business of a bank, must manage transactions in such investments and loans and advances in such a way that the aggregate amount of such investments and loans and advances does not at any time exceed 40% of the aggregate amount of the share capital and reserve funds of the controlling company, calculated on a consolidated basis as prescribed. Branches of foreign institutions must ensure that the value of their unencumbered assets as defined never amounts to less than 60% of their total reported liabilities in South Africa. "Foreign member funds" are not subject to the macroprudential limit on the amount that may be invested abroad. These funds, however, must be domiciled, managed, and tax compliant in South Africa and are subject to registration with FinSurv as well as with the Financial Sector Conduct Authority. ADs may participate in foreign syndicated loans regardless of whether the borrower is a resident, provided they are within their macroprudential limit.

Abroad by banks

Yes.

A bank may not, without written approval of the Prudential Authority and as determined by the Prudential Authority (1) establish or acquire a subsidiary within or outside South Africa or enter into an agreement leading to a company becoming its subsidiary within or outside South Africa; (2) invest in a joint venture within or outside South Africa if the investment, or the investment together with one or more previous investments by the bank in that joint venture, results in exposure to more than 5% of its capital and reserves. If a bank is exposed to the aforementioned extent, approval must be obtained whenever it seeks to make a further investment in that joint venture; (3) open or acquire a branch office outside South Africa; (4) acquire an interest in an enterprise whose registered office or principal place of business is outside South Africa; (5) establish or acquire outside of South Africa a trust of which the bank is a major beneficiary or establish or acquire a financial or other business enterprise under its direct or indirect control; (6) establish or acquire a representative office outside South Africa; or (7) establish or acquire a division within or outside South Africa under an arrangement or agreement with a person with the effect that such a person conducts/does business through or by means of that division. In addition to the current macroprudential limit of 25%, ADs may invest 5% of their total liabilities, for expansion in Africa.

In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Approval is not required if the investment in shares amounts to less than 15% of the total nominal value or total voting rights with respect to all the bank's issued shares. ADLAs are classified into four categories; Section III. Exchange Arrangement specifies the four types.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The effective net open foreign currency position of a reporting bank (difference between total foreign currency assets and liabilities and commitments to purchase minus commitments to sell foreign currency in any one foreign currency and in all foreign currencies taken together) may not exceed 10% of the net qualifying capital and reserve funds of the reporting bank.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The effective net open foreign currency position of a reporting bank (difference between total foreign currency assets and liabilities and commitments to purchase minus commitments to sell foreign currency in any one foreign currency and in all foreign currencies taken together) may not exceed 10% of the net qualifying capital and reserve funds of the reporting bank.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.	There is a system of quarterly reporting and monitoring of foreign exposures. South African institutional investors may invest in rand-denominated instruments issued abroad and in instruments issued by South African entities in the foreign market, subject to the respective prudential limits.
Insurance companies	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The non-linked business of life insurers may transfer up to 30% of total retail assets under management to acquire foreign portfolio investments. The linked business of life insurers may transfer up to 40% of total retail assets under management to acquire foreign portfolio investments. Institutional investors may invest an additional 10% of their total retail assets under management in Africa directly by acquiring foreign-currency-denominated portfolio assets in Africa through foreign currency transfers from South Africa or indirectly through approved inward-listed investments, excluding inward-listed shares, listed on a South African exchange and classified as African. All inward-listed shares on a South African exchange traded and settled in rand are classified as domestic for the purpose of trading on the exchange and inclusion on the indices; institutional investors and ADs may invest in such shares without affecting their permissible prudential limits.

Changes during 2020 and 2021

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes

On exports

Foreign currency 08/13/2020 CMA residents working and residing in South Africa may be accorded foreign currency by ADs subject to proof that the value of such funds is reasonable in relation to their income generating activities in South Africa.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

Held domestically

04/14/2020 As a temporary measure for the COVID-19 lockdown period, ADs were allowed to open customer foreign currency (CFC) accounts for government-related bodies to receive donations from abroad and South Africa and to retain foreign donations in the CFC account for overseas payments of personal protection equipment.

04/20/2020 As a temporary measure for the COVID-19 lockdown period, the 30-day period for matured forward exchange contracts credited in customer foreign currency accounts was temporarily extended to 90 days.

08/13/2020 Institutional investors can open customer foreign currency accounts to accept foreign currency deposits emanating from disinvestment proceeds of foreign assets, pending the reinvestment of the funds offshore. Previously, this was not permissible.

10/23/2020 The period for matured forward exchange contracts credited in customer foreign currency account was reduced again to 30 days after having been temporarily extended to 90 days as part of the policy response to COVID-19.

Nonresident Accounts

Blocked accounts

03/01/2021 Emigrant capital accounts are no longer used. Previously, emigrant capital accounts were opened for emigrants and used for statistical purposes. These accounts were not blocked. Cash and proceeds from South African assets held at the time of departure and subsequently sold were credited to these accounts whereafter these funds might be transferred in amounts of R 20 million a family a calendar year or R 10 million an individual a calendar year, without Financial Surveillance Department (FinSurv) approval. Emigrants were allowed to transfer abroad funds in excess of the aforementioned limits, on application to FinSurv. Emigrants' assets were released from these accounts without paying an exit levy and ADs might release funds from these accounts for local expenditures without restriction.

Imports and Import Payments

Financing requirements for imports

Advance payment requirements	03/30/2020	As a temporary measure for the COVID-19 lockdown period, the 4-month period for paid imports to be received in South Africa was extended to seven months.
	10/23/2020	The period for paid imports to be received in South Africa was reduced back to four months after having been temporarily extended to seven months as part of the policy response to COVID-19.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports

Other	03/30/2020	A temporary measure was put in place for the duration of the COVID-19 lockdown period for import transactions of corporate clients with manual/bulk documentation whose operational processes have been affected. For outward transfer payments, the ADs may rely on schedules with certain information (for example, invoice and transport document details, amounts, Financial Surveillance Department approval number, etc.), subject to certain conditions.
	10/23/2020	A temporary COVID-19 measure was withdrawn regarding import transactions of corporate clients with manual/bulk documentation whose operational processes have been affected and ADs could rely in schedules with certain information for outward transfer payments.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Export licenses

Without quotas	03/27/2020	The exportation of certain COVID-19 essential goods, such as medicines, masks, and alcohol-based hand sanitizers, was temporarily put under control by International Trade Administration Commission of South Africa during the national state of disaster only.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers

Payments for travel

Quantitative limits	08/13/2020	CMA residents working and residing in South Africa may be accorded foreign currency by ADs subject to proof that the value of such funds is reasonable in relation to their income generating activities in South Africa.
----------------------------	------------	---

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements

Surrender requirements

Surrender to authorized dealers	04/20/2020	As a temporary measure during the COVID-19 lockdown period, residents returning from abroad were allowed to convert unused foreign currency within 30 days after the lockdown. Previously, residents were required to sell foreign currency to ADs within 30 days of receipt, with business travelers being allowed to convert within 90 days from returning from a business trip.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions

Repatriation requirements

Surrender requirements

Surrender to authorized dealers      04/20/2020      As a temporary measure during the COVID-19 lockdown period, the conversion period was extended to within 30 days after the lockdown. Previously, it was 30 days of becoming entitled thereto.

Financial credits

To residents from nonresidents      10/29/2020      Companies (excluding State Owned Companies) were allowed to borrow offshore by way of bond and/or note issuances with recourse to South Africa (for example, guarantee from South Africa and issuance of shares in South African entity), without prior approval from Financial Surveillance Department (FinSurv). Previously, prior approval from FinSurv was required.

Controls on direct investment

Outward direct investment

12/31/2020      Resident individuals with authorized foreign assets may invest in South Africa, provided that, where South African assets are acquired through an offshore structure (loop structure), the investment is reported to an AD as and when the transaction is finalized as well as the submission of an annual progress report to the Financial Surveillance Department via an AD. The aforementioned party also has to view an independent auditor's written confirmation or suitable documentary evidence verifying that such transaction is concluded on an arm's length basis, for a fair and market related price. Previously, individuals were permitted to individually or collectively to acquire up to 40% equity and/or voting rights, whichever was the higher, in a foreign target equity, which was then allowed in turn to hold investments and/or make loans into any CMA country (loop structure).

12/31/2020      South African companies may make bona fide new outward FDI outside their current line of business and may acquire equity and/or voting rights without limitations in a foreign target entity that may hold investments and/or make loans to CMA countries. Previously, South African companies could make bona fide new outward FDI outside their current line of business and acquire up to 40% equity and/or voting rights.

Controls on personal capital transactions

Loans

To residents from nonresidents      10/29/2020      ADs may approve requests for foreign bond and note issuances by corporates with recourse to South Africa, for example, a guarantee from South Africa and the issuance of shares in the South African entity, without prior approval from Financial Surveillance Department (FinSurv). Previously, prior approval from FinSurv was required.

SOUTH SUDAN(Position as of June 30, 2021)Status under IMF Articles of Agreement*Date of membership April 18, 2012.Article VIII*Article XIV Yes.Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices Yes. The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with South Sudan, states that as of May 15, 2019, South Sudan maintained exchange restrictions and a MCP under the transitional arrangements of Article XIV. The exchange restrictions arise from: imposing absolute ceilings on the availability of foreign exchange for certain invisible transactions (travel, remittances for living expenses of students and families residing abroad, and transfers of salaries by foreign workers). The MCP, which also gives rise to an exchange restriction because of extra burden, arises from the spread of more than 2% between the parallel market exchange rate and the formal commercial exchange market rate. South Sudan also maintains the MCPs and exchange restriction subject to IMF's approval under Article VIII. The MCPs arise from the spread larger than 2% between (1) the official (indicative) rate and commercial banks' (market) rate and (2) between the official (indicative) rate and the parallel market rate. The exchange restriction arises because of prioritization of foreign exchange allocation by the Bank of South Sudan (BSS) for external government payments and payments for certain essential commodities. (Country Report No. 19/153)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons No.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51) No.

Other security restrictions No.

Exchange Arrangement*Currency Yes. The currency of South Sudan is the South Sudanese pound.

Other legal tender No.

Unitary

Dual Yes. The exchange rate structure is considered dual because of the spread of more than 2% between the parallel market exchange rate and the formal commercial exchange market rate.

Crawl-like arrangement

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The BSS supplies foreign exchange to commercial banks in auctions, and an indicative market rate is determined from the auction rate and the rate charged by commercial banks. All government transactions are carried out using the indicative market rate. The exchange rate followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar during 2020. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a crawl-like arrangement.

Free floating

Yes. There is an “indicative rate” for foreign exchange purchases derived by averaging on daily basis, volumes, and rates of foreign exchange transactions from commercial banks returns. The indicative rate is applicable for official government transaction at the BSS.

Effective August 19, 2020, special accounts were revoked by Circular No. DCB/2/2020. These accounts were intended for all the foreign diplomatic missions, UN agencies, and offices of other organizations established by international and regional treaties, International Non-Governmental Organizations (INGOs), Oil & Mining companies, and the accounts of projects funded by international and regional partner bodies. For the special account holders, the indicative rate (from the day before) was used, while for all other transactions, banks are free to set any rate. Effective April 20, 2021, BSS introduced Reference rate for all foreign exchange ADs. It is derived by calculating the weighted averages of all commercial banks volumes, and it is strictly used by financial institutions, while the government transactions use the daily exchange rates.

Exchange Arrangement

Official exchange rate	08/19/2020	Special accounts were revoked by Circular No. DCB/2/2020. These accounts were intended for all the foreign diplomatic missions, UN agencies, and offices of other organizations established by international and regional treaties, International Non-Governmental Organizations, Oil & Mining companies, and the accounts of projects funded by international and regional partner bodies. For the special account holders, the indicative rate (from the day before) was used, while for all other transactions, banks are free to set any rate.
	04/20/2021	Bank of South Sudan introduced Reference rate for all foreign exchange ADs. It is derived by calculating the weighted averages of all commercial banks volumes, and it is strictly used by financial institutions, while the government transactions use the daily exchange rates.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2020.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Spain maintains certain exchange restrictions in accordance with EU regulations solely for the preservation of national and international security. These measures include the provision (directly or indirectly) of financing or financial assistance or the freeze of funds and economic resources of certain individuals, groups, companies, and entities in several countries. Besides, it also includes the freezing of funds and economic resources of certain other persons, groups, and entities with a view to combating terrorism. Effective March 16, 2021, Council Regulation (EU) No. 2021/445 of March 12, 2021, repealed Regulation (EU) No. 270/2011 concerning restrictive measures directed against certain persons, entities, and bodies in view of the situation in Egypt.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Spain maintains certain exchange restrictions in accordance with EU regulations solely for the preservation of national and international security. These measures include the freezing of funds and economic resources of certain individuals, groups, companies, and entities in several countries. Restrictive measures were amended on certain persons and entities associated with Al-Qaida and the Taliban and certain other persons, groups, and entities with a view to combating terrorism.

Free floating

Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Spain participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs across Europe, which normally takes place at 14:15 Central European Time (CET). The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is usually updated around 14:30 CET to around 16:00 CET on every working day, except on TARGET closing days. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community." These include a "high level of employment" and "sustainable and non-inflationary growth." Price stability is defined as an inflation rate below but close to 2% over the medium term.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	In accordance with EC Regulation No. 1889/2005, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of EU regulation. Nonetheless, the regulation foresees that member countries may also decide to implement a declaration obligation related to movements of cash within the EU. According to Article 34 of Act No. 10/2010 on the prevention of money laundering and terrorism financing, a declaration must be made in any cross-border movement (both with EU and non-EU countries) of means of payment of €10,000 or more or its equivalent in foreign currency. This declaration is also mandatory for movements within the national territory of means of payment of €100,000 or more. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national financial intelligence unit. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance, customs authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash is seized. Under Spanish legislation, there are administrative sanctions for those who fail to comply with the obligation to declare the movements of means of payment, under the terms of Article 34. The penalty for non-compliance with the obligation to declare cash movements above specific thresholds ranges from €600 (minimum fine) to 50% of the value of the means of payment. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, the authorities of one member country may exchange information with the authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries.

Floating

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating since its introduction by the Central Bank of Sri Lanka (CBSL) on January 23, 2001. The exchange rate, which remained relatively stable prior to the domestic spread of the pandemic and the initial lockdown, came under significant pressure in March–April 2020, and during the latter part of 2020. The Sri Lankan rupee depreciated significantly during the period from mid-March to mid-April 2020, reaching a peak of Rs. 199.75 per US dollar on April 9, 2020. The depreciation pressure that prevailed during this period necessitated active intervention by the Central Bank in the domestic foreign exchange market through supply of foreign exchange. However, the situation reversed from mid-April and the exchange rate remained stable until November 2020. Driven by speculative market behavior because of Sovereign rating downgrades and the gradual increase in imports, a buildup of pressure on the exchange rate was observed since end-November 2020. Accordingly, the Sri Lankan rupee depreciated by 2.6% against the US dollar by end-2020. The Central Bank purchased US$282.5 million on a net basis during 2020. The Sri Lanka rupee which depreciated significantly in the first four months of 2021 because of limited liquidity in the domestic foreign exchange market remained stable thereafter. During 2021 up to end-June, the Sri Lankan rupee depreciated by 7.3% against the US dollar. Because the exchange rate increased its flexibility since March 2020, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to floating from stabilized, effective March 10, 2020. The CBSL intervention data in the foreign exchange market is published on a monthly basis with a two-week lag.

Free floating

Official exchange rate

Yes. The CBSL computes the volume-weighted average interbank rate on a daily basis based on the US dollar/LKR spot transactions executed in the interbank market on the previous working day. This official exchange rate is used for legal, accounting, customs purposes, tender processes, etc. Effective June 1, 2020, onward, CBSL interventions in the spot market are also included in the calculation of the volume-weighted average interbank rate. The official exchange rate for other foreign currencies is determined based on the above calculated rate and the cross-rates obtained from Reuters trading platform at 8.00 a.m. in the morning on each working day.

Effective April 8, 2020, there were introduced SDAs in Sri Lanka rupees. Funds from such accounts can be freely convertible and repatriable outside Sri Lanka on the maturity of the term deposits.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

The types of foreign exchange accounts are amalgamated and categorized based on the purpose of maintaining such accounts, irrespective of the residential status of the person eligible to open such foreign exchange accounts, for simplification under the new FEA No. 12 of 2017.

PFCAs: Individuals of Sri Lankan origin including minors who are resident outside Sri Lanka or non-nationals either on temporary visit to Sri Lanka or intending to visit Sri Lanka may open and maintain PFCAs in the form of current (without check drawing facility), savings, or term deposit accounts in any designated foreign currency. PFCAs maintained by individuals may be held as sole or joint accounts with another eligible person.

These accounts may be credited with the following: (1) inward remittances; (2) unutilized foreign currency obtained by the account holder for travel purpose; (3) foreign currency brought into the country by the account holder on appropriate declaration; (4) effective March 22, 2021, funds transferred from other PFCAs, BFCAs, IIAs, or accounts maintained in the OBU of the same account holder (previously, transfers from PFCAs, BFCAs or accounts maintained in OBU were permitted irrespective of the account holder); (5) effective March 22, 2021, transfers from DFCA or a PFCA or an account maintained in the OBU of a person resident outside Sri Lanka, in respect of a current transaction; (6) effective March 22, 2021, where the account holder is a resident outside Sri Lanka transfers from other PFCAs or accounts maintained in the OBU of persons resident outside Sri Lanka; (7) unutilized balance remaining in the FTC up to the amount that FTC had been loaded from the PFCA; (8) capital, capital gains, and other receipts arising from investments made in Sri Lanka in foreign currency, if the original transfer had been made by debiting the PFCA; (9) transfers from employer's Sri Lanka rupee account as monthly salary, employment, and other related benefits and amounts in Sri Lanka rupees authorized by the CBSL for remittance abroad converted at the rate of exchange obtained on the day of credit; and (10) interest payments on the accounts.

Holders of PFCAs are allowed for the following debits: (1) effective March 22, 2021, to make any outward remittances outside Sri Lanka of persons resident outside Sri Lanka; (2) any outward remittances made outside Sri Lanka in respect of current transactions of the account holder and/or immediate family members who are persons resident in Sri Lanka and in respect of capital transactions of persons resident in Sri Lanka; (3) to withdraw in foreign currency notes up to, effective March 19, 2020, US$5,000 (previously $10,000) or equivalent for travel purpose; (4) for disbursements in Sri Lanka in Sri Lanka rupees; (5) to transfer funds for uploading FTC; (6) effective March 22, 2021, to transfer of funds for making investments in SLDBs in foreign currency utilizing funds in PFCAs; (7) to transfer funds to other PFCAs or accounts maintained in the OBU of persons resident outside Sri Lanka; (8) to withdraw foreign currency, where the account holder is a non-national resident outside Sri Lanka who is on temporary visit to Sri Lanka; and (9) to transfer funds to an IIA of the same account holder who is a resident outside Sri Lanka.

IIAs: Accounts opened and maintained for the purpose of channeling funds for capital transactions in Sri Lanka by nonresidents are titled as IIAs which can be held either in Sri Lanka rupees or in any designated foreign currency in the DBUs of LCBs. IIAs maintained by individuals may be held as sole or, effective March 18, 2021, joint accounts with another eligible person who is an immediate family member, that is, parents, grandparents, spouse, and children (previously, IIAs were allowed to be held as joint accounts with persons who are not members of the immediate family).

Effective March 22, 2021, the following persons are eligible to open IIAs: (1) non-national residents in or outside Sri Lanka; (2) Sri Lankan dual citizens, resident in or outside Sri Lanka; (3) Sri Lankan national who has obtained PR or citizenship in another country, resident in or outside Sri Lanka; (4) Sri Lankan citizen employed abroad, resident outside Sri Lanka (excluding emigrants); (5) companies incorporated outside Sri Lanka; (6) partnerships registered outside Sri Lanka; (7) country and regional funds, mutual funds, unit trusts, and other institutional investors who are established outside Sri Lanka; (8) administrators or executors of the estate of a deceased person, who maintained an IIA with an AD or a RD; (9) receivers or liquidators of a company that maintained an IIA with an AD or RD; and (10) any other person or category of persons who may be authorized by the Central Bank from time to time.

Previously, the following persons were eligible to open IIAs: (1) non-national residents in or outside Sri Lanka; (2) non-nationals of Sri Lankan origin, who are residents outside Sri Lanka; (3) Sri Lankan citizens, resident outside Sri Lanka; (4) companies incorporated outside Sri Lanka; and (5) country and regional funds, mutual funds, unit trusts, and other institutional investors who are established outside Sri Lanka.

Effective March 22, 2021, IIAs may be used for the following types of permitted investments in Sri Lanka subject to exclusions, limitations and other terms and conditions stipulated in Regulations No. 2 of 2021: (1) all classes of shares under an entitlement to shares or conversions to shares issued by Companies incorporated in Sri Lanka under the Companies Act, No. 7 of 2007; (2) debt securities (excluding listed debt securities) with a tenure of 3 or more years issued by companies incorporated in Sri Lanka under the Companies Act, No. 7 of 2007 (other than LCBs, LSBs, LFCs, specialized leasing companies, and companies limited by guarantee and overseas companies registered in Sri Lanka), in designated foreign currency or in Sri Lanka rupees; (3) invest in debt securities issued with the approval of the relevant regulatory authorities in designated foreign currency or Sri Lanka rupees, by LCBs, LSBs, LFCs, or specialized leasing companies; (4) loans with a tenure of 3 or more years to companies incorporated under the Companies Act, No. 7 of 2007, in Sri Lanka (other than LCBs, LSBs, LFCs, specialized leasing companies, and companies limited by guarantee and overseas companies) in designated foreign currency or in Sri Lanka rupees; (5) loans by the parent company incorporated outside Sri Lanka to its branch office or project office registered in Sri Lanka as an overseas company under the Companies Act, No. 7 of 2007, in designated foreign currency or in Sri Lanka rupees; (6) loans to the Government of Sri Lanka or State-Owned Enterprises subject to obtaining any approval required from the relevant line Ministry and any other relevant authority; (7) loans in foreign currency or Sri Lanka rupees to LCBs, LSBs, LFCs, and specialized leasing companies, subject to the approval of the relevant regulatory authorities; (8) subject to the provisions or restrictions in any other written law, investments in (a) units in unit trusts or mutual funds; (b) government securities (treasury bills, treasury bonds, and any other securities issued by the Government of Sri Lanka); (c) securities issued by the CBSL or any state-owned enterprise or any other statutory body; (d) SLDBs; (e) term deposits in, Sri Lanka rupee or any designated foreign currency in licensed financial institutions, subject to Section 4 of the Act; (f) immovable properties; or (g) listed debt securities; (9) loans with a tenure of less than three years to companies as defined in the Companies Act, No. 7 of 2007, in Sri Lanka which hold BFCAs, for the purpose of utilizing such proceeds of the loan to meet the working capital requirement of the borrower, provided all repayments of such loans are made out of the foreign exchange earnings of the borrower; and (10) invest in any other investment category approved by the Monetary Board in accordance with such directions as may be issued by the Minister.

Previously, IIAs could be used for the following types of permitted investments in Sri Lanka: (1) shares in companies (listed and unlisted); (2) units in unit trusts; (3) government securities (treasury bonds and bills); (4) securities issued by the CBSL or any other statutory body; (5) SLDBs; (6) deposits in licensed financial institutions; (7) loans and debt securities; and (8) immovable property.

Senior Foreign Nationals' Rupee Accounts: Senior Foreign Nationals' Rupee Accounts may be opened in the form of savings or current accounts with a minimum deposit of US$1,500 or its equivalent in any other foreign currency brought into the country on appropriate declaration, and converted to Sri Lanka rupees. Inward remittances or foreign currency brought into the country by the account holder on declaration for upkeep (US$1,500 a month) and for the upkeep of dependents (US$750 a dependent a month) must be deposited to Senior Foreign Nationals' Rupee Accounts.

SDAs: SDAs can be maintained as Sri Lanka rupee deposits:

Effective April 8, 2020, the Government of Sri Lanka in consultation with the Monetary Board of the CBSL has introduced a SDA with a view to seek assistance for the national effort to overcome the effects of COVID-19 outbreak in the country. Any Sri Lankan individual resident in or outside Sri Lanka including Dual Citizens, Citizens of other States with Sri Lankan origin, and any person resident outside Sri Lanka including funds, corporate bodies, associations incorporated/registered outside Sri Lanka, and other well-wishers are eligible to open SDAs with the following special features:

Minimum tenure: Six months.

Type of deposit: Fixed deposits only.

Interest payable: 1 percentage point and 2 percentage points per annum for SDAs with a tenure of 6 months and 12 months, respectively, payable at maturity of the deposit, above the deposit interest rates applicable for normal deposits of similar maturities by the respective bank.

Repatriation of Funds: Freely convertible and repatriable outside Sri Lanka on the maturity of the term deposits.

Source of Funds: (1) inward remittances through banking system during the six-month period from April 8, 2020; (2) fund transfers from IIAs or accounts in the OBU of the account holder during the subject period.

Currency type: in foreign currency or Sri Lanka rupees.

Effective July 1, 2020, regulations and directions were issued informing the further measures taken to encourage opening of SDAs as stated below.

(1) Expansion of the sources of funding SDAs:

(a) Any person who has arrived in Sri Lanka from overseas on or after January 1, 2020, can open SDAs with any AD on or before October 7, 2020, out of foreign exchange legitimately acquired and brought into Sri Lanka by such person subject to:

(i) a declaration made to the Sri Lanka Customs at the port of arrival where the amount of such foreign exchange exceeds US$15,000 or an equivalent amount in any designated foreign currencies.

(ii) a declaration to the relevant AD where the amount of such foreign exchange is equal or less than US$15,000 or an equivalent amount in any designated foreign currencies.

(b) Any person in, or resident in, Sri Lanka can open SDAs with any AD on or before October 7, 2020, out of foreign currency notes in his possession up to the limit of US$15,000 and subject to such terms and conditions of the prevailing Regulations and Orders, subject to a declaration on the source of funds to the AD.

(2) SDA holders are permitted to obtain loans from ADs against SDAs (keeping as collateral) as follows:

(a) Residents in Sri Lanka rupees,

(b) Nonresident SDA holders who are eligible to obtain loans as per the prevailing regulations.

Effective October 6, 2020, permission was granted to renew and continue the SDAs opened under the Regulations in the DBU, as SDAs, beyond the designated date of maturity.

Effective November 17, 2020, the period for opening SDAs was extended till April 7, 2021.

Effective April 7, 2021, the period for opening SDAs extended till April 7, 2022.

Effective June 30, 2021, permission was granted to rollover the SDAs opened under the Regulations (excluding interest), with six-month or twelve-month tenures, provided the accumulated period of the said SDAs does not exceed the maximum of twenty four months from the initial date of placing such deposits, in accordance with the directions issued by the Central Bank.

Emigrant's Remittable Income Account (ERIA): Effective March 22, 2021, ADs are permitted to open and maintain ERiAs in the DBU, for the purpose of repatriation of current income derived in Sri Lanka by an emigrant only if there is a regulatory requirement in the country where the emigrant is residing permanently, to identify the current income globally derived by such emigrant. ERiA may be opened and maintained in the form of Savings or Current (without over drawing facility) account, in Sri Lanka rupees as sole account. Eligible persons may open only one ERiA in the banking system and both the CTRA and ERiA must be opened and maintained with the same AD.

ERiA may be credited with (1) any income derived from any assets in Sri Lanka, owned by the emigrant while being a resident in Sri Lanka or inherited or gifted to such emigrant, (2) income received for services provided by the emigrant, (3) superannuation benefits, and (4) current income received by the emigrant. Funds in the account may be utilized for (1) remittances in favor of the accountholder; (2) transfers to IAs, PFCAs, and accounts maintained in the OBU of the same accountholder; (3) payments in relation to the loans permitted to be obtained by the accountholder from an AD; (4) payments for the settlements of the Electronic Fund Transfer Cards (EFTCs) of the account holder; and (5) disbursements in Sri Lanka in Sri Lanka rupees.

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	No.	ADs may remit foreign exchange abroad or credit nonresident accounts against applications for the opening of an LC on Documents against Payment (DP) or Documents against Acceptance (DA) terms, Advance payments, Open account, or Consignment account based on the submission of proof of a valid import license, where applicable. These payment term requirements do not apply if the value of a consignment does not exceed the equivalent of US$5,000 (c.i.f.) for the use of the particular importer (for personal use and not for commercial purpose). ADs may make outward remittances with respect to payment on interest for supplier credit facilities offered to an importer by the supplier of such goods.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	The limit on advance payments for imports is US$50,000 if such payments are made from a Sri Lanka rupee account. However, such limit does not apply to payments made from foreign currency accounts.

Following measures were issued as interim measures to ease the pressure on the exchange rate and the stress on financial markets because of the impact of COVID-19.

(1) Effective March 19, 2020, the CBSL requested banks to suspend, for a period of three months, facilitating importation of some motor vehicles under the LCs, as well as some non-essential goods under LCs, DA, and Advance Payment. (This Direction lapsed effective June 19, 2020.)

(2) Effective March 24, 2020, the Import and Export Control Department (IECD) requested Sri Lanka Customs and commercial banks to suspend facilitating importation of some non-essential goods under LCs, DA, DP, Open Account, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these, until June 23, 2020. (These regulations were incorporated by the regulations issued on April 16, 2020.)

(3) Effective April 16, 2020, the IECD requested Sri Lanka Customs and commercial banks to suspend facilitating importation of items in Schedule I under LCs, DA, DP, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these, until June 23, 2020. Items in Schedule II may be only facilitated with three-month credit facility. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on May 22,

(4) Effective May 22, 2020, the IECD confirmed a temporary suspension from April 16, 2020, of importing items in Schedule I under LCs, DA, DP, Open Account, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these for a period of three months. It also indicated that items in Schedule II may be only imported with three- or six-month credit facilities provided by the supplier from the date of loading. However, exceptions are allowed for items appearing in Schedules I and II depending on the conditions specified in the gazette. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on June 30, 2020.)

(5) Effective June 30, 2020, the IECD further updated the items under temporary suspension and items that require credit arrangements to import until further notice. However, exceptions are allowed for these items depending on the conditions specified in the gazette. The update resulted in reducing the number of items under suspension. The update resulted in increasing the number of items under credit requirement. However, such items were previously in the temporary suspension list. Accordingly, overall impact of these updates was broadly toward relaxing the import restrictions. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on July 16, 2020.)

(6) Effective July 16, 2020, importing items in Schedule I under LCs, DA, DP, Open Account, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these suspended until further notice. It also indicated that items in Schedule II may be only imported with three- or six-month credit facilities provided by the supplier from the date of loading. However, exceptions are allowed for items appearing in Schedules I and II depending on the conditions specified in the gazette. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward relaxing the import restrictions. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on September 15, 2020, October 19, 2020, December 24, 2020, January 5, 2021, February 11, 2021, April 6 and 23, 2021, and June 11, 2021.)

(7) Effective September 15, 2020, IECD further updated importing items in Schedule I and Schedule II until further notice. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward relaxing the import restrictions.

(8) Effective October 19, 2020, IECD further updated importing items in Schedule I and Schedule II until further notice. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward relaxing the import restrictions.

(9) Effective December 24, 2020, IECD further updated importing items in Schedule I and Schedule II until further notice. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward relaxing the import restrictions.

(10) Effective January 5, 2021, IECD further updated importing items in Schedule I and Schedule II until further notice. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward tightening the import restrictions.

(11) Effective February 11, 2021, IECD further updated importing items in Schedule I and Schedule II until further notice. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward relaxing the import restrictions.

(12) Effective April 6, 2021, IECD further updated importing items in Schedule II until further notice. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward tightening the import restrictions.

(13) Effective April 23, 2021, IECD further updated importing items in Schedule I until further notice. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward tightening the import restrictions.

(14) Effective June 11, 2021, importing items in Schedule I under LCs, DA, DP, Open Account, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these was suspended until further notice. However, exceptions are allowed for items appearing in Schedules I depending on the conditions specified in the gazette. Several items added and several items removed from Schedule I but the overall impact of these updates relaxes the import restrictions. IECD discontinued Schedule II under credit terms of July 16, 2020, gazette.

Accordingly, items that were in Schedule II are no longer required to import under mandatory credit facilities provided by foreign supplier, which is a relaxation of restrictions.

Accordingly, the banks are not allowed to involve in intermediary services (such as opening LCs, making payments, and endorsing or releasing documents) related to the import process of the restricted items unless with a special approval from the direction issuing authority.

Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Imports may be on Advance Payment, Open Accounts, DP, or DA terms or under LCs with original commercial invoices and transport or delivery documents.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	Inspection is required for certain consumer goods.
Letters of credit	Yes.	LCs are required for importation of vehicles.

Other	Yes.	Effective March 20, 2020, the release of foreign exchange for the importation of non-essential consumer goods as per the Banking Act Direction No. 1 of March 19, 2020, under DPs and Open Account Payment terms was suspended until June 20, 2020.

Regulations issued by IECD have restricted facilitating selected import items by commercial banks under payment terms LCs, DA, DP, Advance Payment, and Open account. Accordingly, to import restricted items documentary evidence may require where applicable.

(1) Effective March 19, 2020, the CBSL requested banks to suspend, for a period of three months, facilitating importation of some motor vehicles under the LCs, as well as some non-essential goods under LCs, DA, and Advance Payment. (This Direction lapsed effective June 19, 2020.)

(2) Effective March 24, 2020, the IECD requested Sri Lanka Customs and commercial banks to suspend facilitating importation of some non-essential goods under LCs, DA, DP, Open Account, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these, until June 23, 2020. (These regulations were incorporated by the regulations issued on April 16, 2020.)

(3) Effective April 16, 2020, the IECD requested Sri Lanka Customs and commercial banks to suspend facilitating importation of items in Schedule I under LCs, DA, DP, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these, until June 23, 2020. Items in Schedule II may be only facilitated with three-month credit facility. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on May 22, 2020.)

(4) Effective May 22, 2020, the IECD confirmed the temporary suspension from April 16, 2020, of importing items in Schedule I under LCs, DA, DP, Open Account, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these for a period of three months. It also indicated that items in Schedule II may be only imported with three- or six-month credit facilities provided by the supplier from the date of loading. However, exceptions are allowed for items appearing in Schedules I and II depending on the conditions specified in the gazette. The IECD updated the items on November 9, 2017, gazette under licensing requirement and the specified items were suspended from importing for a period of three months. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on June 30, 2020.)

(5) Effective June 30, 2020, the IECD further updated the items under temporary suspension and items that require credit arrangements to import until further notice. However, exceptions are allowed for these items depending on the conditions specified in the gazette. The update resulted in reducing the number of items under suspension. The update resulted increasing the number of items under credit requirement. However, such items were previously in the temporary suspension list. The IECD updated the items on November 9, 2017, gazette and its subsequent updates under licensing requirement and the specified items were suspended to import until further notice. Accordingly, overall impact of these updates was broadly toward relaxing the import restrictions. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on July 16, 2020, and August 17, 2020.)

(6) Effective July 16, 2020, importing items in Schedule I under LCs, DA, DP, Open Account, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these was suspended until further notice. It also indicated that items in Schedule II may be only imported with three- or six-month credit facilities provided by the supplier from the date of loading. However, exceptions are allowed for items appearing in Schedules I and II depending on the conditions specified in the gazette. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward relaxing the import restrictions. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on September 15, 2020, October 19, 2020, December 24, 2020, January 5, 2021, February 11, 2021, April 6 and 23, 2021, and June 11, 2021.)

(7) Effective August 17, 2020, the IECD updated the items under licensing requirement and the specified items were suspended to import without a valid import control license until further notice. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward tightening the import restrictions. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on October 29, 2020.)

(8) Effective September 15, 2020, IECD further updated importing items in Schedule I and Schedule II of July 16, 2020, until further notice. The overall impact of these updates has caused relaxation of the import restrictions.

(9) Effective October 19, 2020, IECD further updated importing items in Schedule I and Schedule II of July 16, 2020, until further notice. The overall impact of these updates has caused relaxation of the import restrictions.

(10) Effective October 29, 2020, the IECD updated the items on November 9, 2017, gazette and its subsequent updates under licensing requirement and the specified items were suspended to import without a valid import control license until further notice. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward tightening the import restrictions. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on February 11, 2021.)

(11) Effective December 14, 2020, the IECD updated the items on November 9, 2017, gazette and its subsequent updates under licensing requirement and the specified items were suspended to import without a valid import control license until further notice. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward tightening the import restrictions. (These regulations were updated by the regulations issued on April 6, 2020.)

(12) Effective December 24, 2020, IECD further updated importing items in Schedule I and schedule II of July 16, 2020, until further notice. The overall impact of these updates has caused relaxation of the import restrictions.

(13) Effective January 5, 2021, IECD further updated importing items in Schedule I and schedule II of July 16, 2020, until further notice. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward tightening the import restrictions.

(14) Effective February 11, 2021, IECD further updated importing items in Schedule I and Schedule II of July 16, 2020, and the IECD updated the items on November 9, 2017, gazette and its subsequent updates under licensing requirement removed from import control license requirement until further notice. The overall impact of these updates has caused relaxation of the import restrictions. (The licensing requirements were updated by the regulations issued on April 6, 2020.)

(15) Effective April 6, 2021, IECD further updated importing items in Schedule II of July 16, 2020, and the items on November 9, 2017, gazette and its subsequent updates under licensing requirement and the specified items were banned/suspended to import without a valid import control license until further notice. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward tightening the import restrictions. (The licensing requirements were updated by the regulations issued on April 23, 2020.)

(16) Effective April 23, 2021, IECD further updated importing items in Schedule I of July 16, 2020, and importing items on November 9, 2017, gazette and its subsequent updates under licensing requirement and the specified items were temporary suspended/suspended to import without a valid import control license until further notice. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward tightening the import restrictions. (The licensing requirements were updated by the regulations issued on May 6, 2021.)

(17) Effective May 6, 2021, IECD further updated importing items on November 9, 2017, gazette and its subsequent updates under licensing requirement and the specified items were banned/suspended to import without a valid import control license until further notice. The overall impact of these updates was broadly toward tightening the import restrictions. (The licensing requirements were updated by the regulations issued on June 11, 2021.)

(18) Effective June 11, 2021, importing items in Schedule I under LCs, DA, DP, Open Account, and Advanced Payment or a combination of these was suspended until further notice. However, exceptions are allowed for items appearing in Schedules I depending on the conditions specified in the gazette. Several items added and several items removed from Schedule I, but the overall impact of these updates has caused relaxation of the import restrictions IECD discontinued Schedule II under credit terms of July 16, 2020, gazette. Accordingly, items that were in Schedule II are no longer required to be imported under mandatory credit facilities provided by foreign supplier, which is a relaxation of restrictions.

Accordingly, the banks are not allowed to involve in intermediary services (such as opening LCs, making payments, and endorsing or releasing documents) related to the import process of the restricted items unless with a special approval from the direction issuing authority. Effective August 18, 2020, for several specified items, banks may not process any payment relating to importation of any items, which are subject to Import Control License, without a valid Import Control License.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures

Yes.

New licensing requirements were introduced, while several requirements were relaxed. Thus, some foods were subjected to import licenses as follows: selected food items such as seafood, nuts, tamarind, pepper, cinnamon, nutmeg, and mace; food items such as gram, cloves, and ginger; and other consumables such as incense sticks, kites, and lanterns; effective May 22, 2020—items such as textile articles, beverages, building material, vehicle parts, computer monitors, televisions, selected motor vehicles, and furniture items, and effective June 30, 2020—items such as air conditioners, refrigerators, and washing machines and chemical products. Meanwhile, some other goods were removed from license requirement as follows: effective May 22, 2020—retreated tires (included in the banned list); effective June 30, 2020—selected items such as sorghum, facemasks, saws, and asbestos (asbestos included in the banned list); effective October 29, 2020—items such as sugar; effective December 14, 2020—items such as insecticides, clothing items such as batik products; effective April 6, 2021—items such as palm oil (included in the banned list); effective April 23, 2021—items such as mobile workshops; effective May 6, 2021—items such as chemical fertilizer; and effective June 11, 2021—items such as face masks and items related to gold. As indicated, some of these removed items were inserted in to the negative (banned) list. As a result, about 1500, HS line items are subjected to import controls because of concerns on public health, public morals, environmental protection, preservation of antiques, or national security. Broadly, these items are categorized as drugs; used vehicles and vehicle parts; chemicals, fertilizer, sugar, palm oil, batik items, animal products, alcohol, petroleum, and petroleum products; telecommunication equipment and miscellaneous items; and selected food items. Paddy is also subjected to licensing to protect domestic producers from low prices. International quality certificate is required to import petroleum products, an analytical report from manufacturer to import pharmaceutical products. Standards were set to importation of taps, cocks, and valves categorized under HS code 84.81. The number of commodity categories subject to Sri Lanka standards (SLS) certification is 122. From July 13, 2018, lower vehicular exhaust emission limits in compliance with the EURO IV standards, and new safety measures and standards were introduced for selected motor vehicles. Electric vehicles are excluded from the requirement of vehicular exhaust emission limits.

Positive list	Yes.	These are items that are not on the negative import list.
Negative list	Yes.	New banned items were introduced, while several banned items were removed. As a result, about 64 HS lines including some fish, pharmaceutical waste, and chemicals such as polychlorinated biphenyls, ethylene dichloride, chloropentafluoroethane, used and retreated tires (effective May 22, 2020), clinical waste, chain saws, asbestos (effective June 30, 2020), palm oil (effective April 6, 2021), chemical fertilizer (effective May 6, 2021), etc., may not be imported, under Import and Export Control Act No. 1 of 1969. Glyphosate was removed from the negative list and was added to the list of products requiring an import license.  Effective June 30, 2020, ban on saws import was removed and inserted into the licensed list. Effective May 22, 2020, importation of salt was banned. However, effective June 30, 2020, ban on salt import was removed and inserted into the licensed list.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Importation of hydrochlorofluorocarbon was limited by imposing quotas; import licenses are issued by the IECD to quota holders to import hydrochlorofluorocarbon.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Effective November 18, 2020, customs duty for entire imported goods was simplified to 0%, 10%, and 15% from 0%, 15%, and 30% as announced in the Budget 2021. Accordingly, tax rates applicable for approximately 1,440 items were reduced to 15% from 30%. Preferential tariffs apply to imports under bilateral and regional trade agreements. In addition to customs duties, some imports are subject to domestic taxes such as Commodity Export Subsidy Scheme (CESS) Levy, Ports and Airports Development Levy (PAL), and excise duty (on alcohol, tobacco products, vehicles, petroleum products, etc.). As a composite levy, a Special Commodity Levy (SCL) is imposed on selected essential food items, so as to ensure affordable prices for such commodities. With the aim of minimizing adverse effects of the pandemic, several exemptions were granted in respect of PAL and CESS on the importation of selected health related equipment. Thus, the exemptions on a CESS levy were granted as follows: effective May 20, 2020, CESS on the supply or donation of health protection equipment and similar products by any export oriented enterprises, which have entered into an agreement with the BOI of Sri Lanka, to Ministry of Healthcare and Indigenous Medical Services, Department of Health Services, Tri Forces, Sri Lanka Police, and COVID Centre (National Operation Centre for Prevention of COVID-19 Outbreak) was exempted on their request; effective May 20, 2020, machinery and equipment including medical, surgical and dental instruments, apparatus, accessories and parts thereof, hospital/medical furniture and drugs, chemicals and similar items, required for the provision of health services to address the COVID-19 pandemic in the country, imported or imported and supplied or imported and donated to the Secretary, Ministry of Healthcare and Indigenous Medical Services were exempted from CESS. This exemption was not granted for any partial consignment/cargo of the above and was effective until December 31, 2020; effective November 1, 2020, CESS was rescinded for the supply or donation of health protection equipment and similar products by any export oriented enterprises, which have entered into an agreement with the BOI, to the Ministry of Healthcare and Indigenous Medical Services, Department of Health Services, Sri Lanka Army, Sri Lanka Navy, Sri Lanka Air Force, Sri Lanka Police, and COVID Centre (National Operation Centre for Prevention of COVID-19 Outbreak). effective November 1, 2020, CESS was rescinded for machinery and equipment including medical, surgical, and dental instruments, apparatus, accessories and parts thereof, hospital/medical furniture and drugs, chemicals and similar items, required for the provision of health services to address the COVID-19 pandemic, imported or imported and supplied or imported and donated to the Secretary, Ministry of Healthcare and Indigenous Medical Services, on the recommendation of the Secretary, Ministry of Healthcare and Indigenous Medical Services, subject to approval of the Director General of Customs. This exemption was for any partial consignment/cargo of the above and was effective until December 31, 2020.

The exemptions on Port and Airport Development Levy were granted as follows:

Effective April 16, 2020, PAL on the importation of health instruments and appliances and hospital furniture consigned to the Secretary, Ministry of Healthcare and Indigenous Medical Services as a donation was exempted;

Effective May 19, 2020, PAL on the supply or donation of health protection equipment and similar products by any eligible export oriented enterprises was exempted;

Effective May 19, 2020, machinery and equipment, including medical, surgical and dental instruments, apparatus, accessories and parts thereof, hospital/medical furniture and drugs, chemicals and similar items, required for the provision of health services to address the COVID-19 pandemic in the country, imported or imported and supplied or imported and donated to the Secretary, Ministry of Healthcare and Indigenous Medical Services were exempted from PAL. This exemption should not be granted for any partial consignment/cargo of the above and was effective until December 31, 2020;

Effective May 26, 2020, PAL on the importation of raw materials and packing materials by the pharmaceutical manufacturers for the manufacture of pharmaceuticals was exempted;

Effective October 24, 2020, PAL was exempted for pharmaceutical machinery and equipment including accessories and spare parts for pharmaceutical machinery and equipment imported by the pharmaceutical manufacturers for the manufacture of pharmaceuticals, on the recommendation of the Secretary to the State Ministry of Production, Supply and Regulation of Pharmaceuticals, subject to the approval of the Director General of Customs;

Effective October 27, 2020, PAL was exempted for medical instruments and equipment including test kits required for the provision of health services, imported or imported and supplied by any agency.

In addition, a VAT rate of 8% applies on import and/or supply of goods or services except financial services.

Taxes collected through the exchange system No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements Yes. Special arrangements apply to exports carried out under trade and payments agreements and to exports to ACU member countries. Every exporter of goods must repatriate to Sri Lanka payments received for the exportation of goods within 180 days from the date of exportation. Every exporter of goods must submit related documentary evidence on each exportation to the respective AD/RD that receives the payment. These export proceeds may be credited to any Sri Lanka rupee account or to a BFCA or to an account maintained in the OBU of the exporter (where applicable). Effective October 28, 2021, in addition to repatriation of goods, exporters must repatriate proceeds from services provided outside Sri Lanka, within 180 days from the date of provisioning of services.

Surrender requirements Yes.

Surrender to the central bank Yes. Effective February 18, 2021, all licensed banks (LBs) were required to sell 50% of the exports proceeds in various currencies purchased from exporters of goods (as per Rules No. 1 of 2021 made under Section 68 read in conjunction with Section 10(c) of the Monetary Law Act (MLA) published in the Gazette Notification No. 2215/39 of February 18, 2021), to the CBSL in US dollars.

The above requirement was temporarily suspended effective March 17, 2021, and reimposed on May 28, 2021. Accordingly, effective May 28, 2021, all LBs are required to sell 10% from out of the 25% of exports proceeds (equivalent to USD), converted to LKR ( as required under “Repatriation of Export Proceeds in to Sri Lanka Rules”), to the CBSL, in USD, on a weekly basis.

Surrender to authorized dealers Yes. Effective February 18, 2021, with a view to facilitate the domestic foreign exchange market during COVID-19 pandemic, every exporter of goods is required to convert 25% of the total export proceeds into Sri Lanka rupees, through a Licensed bank, immediately on the receipt of such export proceeds into Sri Lanka. Further, all LBs were required to mandatorily monitor the conversion of repatriated export proceeds as required under the rules.

Effective March 9, 2021, exporters were given a period of 14 days to convert aforesaid 25% of export proceeds received into Sri Lanka rupees, provided such date of conversion may not be a date later than 180 days from the date of shipment.

Effective April 9, 2021, every exporter is required to convert 10% of the export proceeds received in to Sri Lanka rupees (instead of previous 25%), within 30 days on receipt of such proceeds, provided such date of conversion may not be a date later than 180 days from the date of shipment.

Effective May 28, 2021, considering the situation in the foreign exchange market amidst the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, exporters are required to convert 25% of the export proceeds received into Sri Lanka rupees, within 30 days on receipt of such proceeds, provided such date of conversion may not be a date later than 180 days from the date of shipment. However, discretion was given to the Monetary Board of CBSL to determine a lesser percentage up to 10%, for conversion of export proceeds received, for the specific export sectors or industries or individual exporters, if the Monetary Board is satisfied, that the export goods and processes of such export sector, industry or exporter, utilize a very high percentage of imported goods that cannot be sourced domestically.

Effective October 28, 2021, with a view of enhancing the liquidity in the domestic foreign exchange market, every exporter of goods and services was required to convert residual of the export proceeds received in Sri Lanka, into Sri Lanka rupees on utilizing such proceeds only in respect of the below-mentioned authorized payments, on or before the seventh (7th) day of the following month.

- (1) outward remittances in respect of current transactions of the exporter of goods and services;
- (2) withdrawal in foreign currency notes or transfer of funds for travel purpose of the exporter of goods and services;
- (3) debt servicing expenses and repayment of foreign currency loans and accommodations obtained by the exporter of goods and services, where such foreign currency loan and accommodation is a permitted borrowing in terms of the Regulations, Orders, and Directions issued by the CBSL under the provisions of the FEA No. 12 of 2017 or Banking Act, No. 30 of 1988, as amended;
- (4) payments for purchases of goods and obtaining services by the exporter of goods and services, related to such export of goods and services including one-month commitments in foreign currency, thereof; and
- (5) payments in respect of making investments in SLDBs in foreign currency up to 10% of the export proceeds, so received.

03/22/2021

In the event of “Parent Migration Schemes” operated by foreign countries, the funds for the payments to be made to overseas authorities by such individuals for obtaining visa, must be remitted through the Capital Transaction Rupee Account opened by such individuals subject to the directions issued by the Central Bank under the provisions of the Act. On receiving permanent residency in the country to which such payment was made, total amount of such payments must be deducted from the eligible migration allowance of such individuals at the time of claiming the eligible migration allowance.

Inward Investment Accounts (IIAs) may be used for the following types of permitted investments in Sri Lanka subject to exclusions, limitations and other terms and conditions stipulated in Regulations No. 2 of 2021: (1) all classes of shares under an entitlement to shares or conversions to shares issued by Companies incorporated in Sri Lanka under the Companies Act, No. 7 of 2007; (2) debt securities (excluding listed debt securities) with a tenure of 3 or more years issued by companies incorporated in Sri Lanka under the Companies Act, No. 7 of 2007 (other than licensed commercial banks (LCBs), licensed specialized banks (LSBs), licensed finance companies (LFCs), specialized leasing companies, and companies limited by guarantee and overseas companies registered in Sri Lanka), in designated foreign currency or in Sri Lanka rupees; (3) invest in debt securities issued with the approval of the relevant regulatory authorities in designated foreign currency or Sri Lanka rupees, by LCBs, LSBs, LFCs, or specialized leasing companies; (4) loans with a tenure of 3 or more years to companies incorporated under the Companies Act, No. 7 of 2007, in Sri Lanka (other than LCBs, LSBs, LFCs, specialized leasing companies, and companies limited by guarantee and overseas companies) in designated foreign currency or in Sri Lanka rupees; (5) loans by the parent company incorporated outside Sri Lanka to its branch office or project office registered in Sri Lanka as an overseas company under the Companies Act, No. 7 of 2007, in designated foreign currency or in Sri Lanka rupees; (6) loans to the Government of Sri Lanka or State-Owned Enterprises subject to obtaining any approval required from the relevant line Ministry and any other relevant authority; (7) loans in foreign currency or Sri Lanka rupees to LCBs, LSBs, LFCs, and specialized leasing companies, subject to the approval of the relevant regulatory authorities; (8) subject to the provisions or restrictions in any other written law, investments in (a) units in unit trusts or mutual funds; (b) government securities (treasury bills, treasury bonds, and any other securities issued by the Government of Sri Lanka); (c) securities issued by the Central Bank of Sri Lanka (CBSL) or any state-owned enterprise or any other statutory body; (d) Sri Lanka Development Bonds (SLDBs); (e) term deposits in, Sri Lanka rupee or any designated foreign currency in licensed financial institutions, subject to Section 4 of the Act; (f) immovable properties; or (g) listed debt securities; (9) loans with a tenure of less than three years to companies as defined in the Companies Act, No. 7 of 2007, in Sri Lanka which hold Business Foreign Currency Accounts, for the purpose of utilizing such proceeds of the loan to meet the working capital requirement of the borrower, provided all repayments of such loans are made out of the foreign exchange earnings of the borrower; and (10) invest in any other investment category approved by the Monetary Board in accordance with such directions as may be issued by the Minister.

Previously, IIAs could be used for the following types of permitted investments in Sri Lanka: (1) shares in companies (listed and unlisted); (2) units in unit trusts; (3) government securities (treasury bonds and bills); (4) securities issued by the CBSL or any other statutory body; (5) SLDBs; (6) deposits in licensed financial institutions; (7) loans and debt securities; and (8) immovable property.

A Sri Lankan individual who resides in or outside Sri Lanka and has obtained a temporary resident visa in another country, aged 18 years or above, may claim a maximum of US$30,000 subject to the directions issued by the Central Bank under the provisions of the Act. Such persons may claim the said allowance through a Capital Transaction Rupee Account opened by such persons. The amounts so claimed must be deducted from the eligible migration allowance at the time of claiming the migration allowance.

ADs are permitted to open and maintain Emigrant's Remittable Income Accounts (ERiAs) in the Domestic Banking Unit, for the purpose of repatriation of current income derived in Sri Lanka by an emigrant only if there is a regulatory requirement in the country where the emigrant is residing permanently, to identify the current income globally derived by such emigrant. ERIA may be opened and maintained in the form of Savings or Current (without over drawing facility) account, in Sri Lanka rupees as sole account. Eligible persons may open only one ERIA in the banking system and both the Capital Transactions Rupee Account and ERIA must be opened and maintained with the same AD.

ERIA may be credited with (1) any income derived from any assets in Sri Lanka, owned by the emigrant while being a resident in Sri Lanka or inherited or gifted to such emigrant, (2) income received for services provided by the emigrant, (3) superannuation benefits, and (4) current income received by the emigrant. Funds in the account may be utilized for (1) remittances in favor of the accountholder; (2) transfers to Inward Investment Accounts, Personal Foreign Currency Accounts, and accounts maintained in the Offshore Banking Unit of the same accountholder; (3) payments in relation to the loans permitted to be obtained by the accountholder from an AD; (4) payments for the settlements of the Electronic Fund Transfer Cards of the accountholder; and (5) disbursements in Sri Lanka in Sri Lanka rupees.

ADs are permitted to open and maintain Non-Resident Rupee Account (NRRRA) in the Domestic Banking Unit for (1) emigrants resident in or outside Sri Lanka and (2) a firm or company registered/incorporated outside Sri Lanka, in the form of savings, current (without overdrawing facility) or term deposits. NRRAs may be maintained as joint accounts with another emigrant. NRRRA held by emigrants may be credited with (1) foreign exchange received from outside Sri Lanka in favor of the account holder, (2) any income or proceeds derived from any assets in Sri Lanka, owned by the emigrant while being a resident in Sri Lanka or inherited or gifted to such emigrant, and (3) superannuation benefits received by the emigrant. Funds in NRRRA may be utilized for (1) making payments for investments permitted to be made by the account holder in terms the regulations issued under the Foreign Exchange Act No. 12 of 2017 and (2) transfers to Capital Transactions Rupee Account or Emigrant's Remittable Income Accounts of the account holder. Where accountholder is a firm or company outside Sri Lanka NRRRA may be credited with (1) foreign exchange received from outside Sri Lanka in favor of the account holder and (2) local income derived from current transactions and income and capital proceeds from investments in Sri Lanka inherited or received as gifts for which there is no evidence on the inward remittances for such investments or investment made during the period of January 1, 2010, to November 20, 2017. Such local income from current transactions may be remitted outside Sri Lanka and proceeds from the said investments in Sri Lanka may be transferred to Inward Investment Accounts or accounts maintained in the Offshore Banking Unit of the accountholder subject to US$30,000 an annum.

Further, local disbursements in Sri Lanka rupees are allowed for both emigrants and firms/companies maintaining NRRAs.

04/07/2021

The period for opening Special Deposit Accounts was extended till April 7, 2022.

06/30/2021

Permission was granted to rollover the Special Deposit Accounts (SDAs) opened under the Regulations (excluding interest), with six-month or twelve-month tenures, provided the accumulated period of the said SDAs does not exceed the maximum of twenty four months from the initial date of placing such deposits, in accordance with the directions issued by the Central Bank.

07/02/2021

In response to COVID-19 pandemic, funds remitted via Capital Transactions Rupee Accounts (CTRAs) were suspended/restricted for six months as follows:

- (1) Suspend the repatriation of funds under the migration allowance out of funds received as monetary gifts by an emigrant from an immediate family member, being funds realized from any asset in Sri Lanka (including movable, immovable, tangible and intangible assets);
- (2) Limit the repatriation of funds under the migration allowance through CTRAs by the emigrants who have already claimed migration allowance up to a maximum of US$10,000 (previously US$20,000);
- (3) Limit the eligible migration allowance for the emigrants who are claiming the migration allowance for the first time, up to a maximum of US$30,000;
- (4) Limit the repatriation of any current income or accumulated current income (including Employees' Provident Fund, Employees' Trust Fund, gratuity, and pensions or any other retirement benefits) by the emigrants through the CTRA, up to a maximum of US$30,000 or equivalent in any other designated foreign currency;
- (5) Limit the outward remittances or issuance of foreign exchange for any Sri Lankan individual who resides in or outside Sri Lanka and has obtained Temporary Residence Visa (which leads to a permanent residency) of another country, up to a maximum of US$20,000;
- (6) Limit the issuance of foreign exchange for any person resident in Sri Lanka who intends to leave Sri Lanka under the Temporary Residence Visa of another country up to a maximum of US$10,000 or equivalent in any other designated foreign currency per person.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	10/28/2021	In addition to repatriation of goods, exporters must repatriate proceeds from services provided outside Sri Lanka, within 180 days from the date of provisioning of services.
Surrender requirements
Surrender to the central bank	02/18/2021	All licensed banks were required to sell 50% of the exports proceeds in various currencies purchased from exporters of goods (as per Rules No. 1 of 2021 made under Section 68 read in conjunction with Section 10(c) of the Monetary Law Act published in the Gazette Notification No. 2215/39 of February 18, 2021), to the Central Bank of Sri Lanka in US dollars.
	03/17/2021	The requirement for licensed banks to sell 50% of the exports proceeds in various currencies purchased from exporters of goods to the Central Bank of Sri Lanka in US dollars was suspended.
	05/28/2021	All licensed banks are required to sell 10% from out of the 25% of exports proceeds (equivalent to USD), converted to LKR (as required under “Repatriation of Export Proceeds in to Sri Lanka Rules”), to the Central Bank of Sri Lanka, in USD, on a weekly basis.
Surrender to authorized dealers	02/18/2021	With a view to facilitate the domestic foreign exchange market during COVID-19 pandemic, every exporter of goods is required to convert 25% of the total export proceeds into Sri Lanka rupees, through a licensed bank, immediately on the receipt of such export proceeds into Sri Lanka. Further, all licensed banks were required to mandatorily monitor the conversion of repatriated export proceeds as required under the rules.
	03/09/2021	Exporters were given a period of 14 days to convert 25% of export proceeds received into Sri Lanka rupees, provided such date of conversion may not be a date later than 180 days from the date of shipment. Previously, conversion was required immediately on the receipt of such export proceeds into Sri Lanka. Every exporter is required to convert 10% of the export proceeds

Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consolation with Sudan states that, as of February 5, 2020, Sudan maintained the following measures subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII, Sections 2 (a) and 3: (1) An exchange restriction arising from the government's limitations on the availability of foreign exchange and the allocation of foreign exchange to certain priority items; (2) an MCP and exchange restriction arising from the establishment of an official exchange rate (the Central Bank of Sudan (CBOS) rate) for use in all government exchange transactions which in practice differs by more than 2% from the rate used by commercial banks; (3) an MCP and exchange restriction arising from large spreads between the CBOS rate and the parallel market exchange rate because of the CBOS' limitation on the availability of foreign exchange which channels current international transactions to the parallel market; and (4) an exchange restriction and an MCP arising from the imposition by the government of a cash margin requirement for most imports. (Country Report No. 20/72)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	No.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	No.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	Yes.	The currency of Sudan is the Sudanese Guinea (SDG).
Other legal tender	No.
Exchange rate structure
Unitary
Dual
Multiple	Yes.	The exchange rate structure is classified as multiple as a result of MCPs that arise because of the: (1) establishment of an official exchange rate (the CBOS rate) for use in all government exchange transactions which in practice differs by more than 2% from the rate used by commercial banks; (2) large spreads between the CBOS rate and the parallel market exchange rate because of the CBOS' limitation on the availability of foreign exchange which channels current international transactions to the parallel market; and (3) imposition by the government of a cash margin requirement for most imports.

Effective February 21, 2021, the CBOS announced the unification of the official exchange rate (excluding the customs valuation exchange rate) with the market rate at the prevailing market rate. The CBOS calculates the indicative exchange rate every day based on commercial banks purchases of foreign currencies, calculated as the weighted average of the previous day's trading excluding CBOS sales/purchases from the government. In addition, commercial banks and foreign exchange bureaus may determine their rate in a  $\pm 5\%$  band around the CBOS indicative rate with an allowed maximum profit margin of 0.75%. Previously, the CBOS determined the exchange rate of the US dollar against the Sudanese guinea and published it daily through its website. For other convertible currencies, exchange rates were applied in US dollar terms, according to the CBOS' daily announcement on its website. Banks and exchange companies had to apply the exchange rate announced by the CB to all transactions. They were allowed a maximum profit margin of 0.5% on selling over the buying rate for the currency in question.

Effective June 22, 2021, the CBOS announced the unification of the customs exchange rate.

Since the unification of exchange rate, the gap between the CBOS rate and the parallel market rate is estimated to be 2.5% on average.

Classification

Stabilized arrangement

Yes.

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is classified as managed floating. A MFR used by commercial banks is determined in the interbank market, in which participants deal directly with each other. The main objective of the policy is exchange rate stability. Sudan's multiple exchange rate regime includes: (1) a CB rate that also applies to payment of government obligations and customs valuation. The rate of customs valuation is fixed at SDG18/$ revised daily but not necessarily at CBOS rate; and (2) an MFR used mainly by commercial banks and exchange bureaus. The MFR applies to all other transactions. Effective January 7, 2020, the CBOS devalued the official exchange rate from SDG45/1$ to SDG55/1$. Because the exchange rate depreciated from January 2020 and then stabilized from March 2020, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified twice: (1) to other managed from stabilized, effective January 9, 2020, and (2) to stabilized from other managed, effective March 2, 2020. The CBOS does not disclose information on its interventions to the public.

The CBOS calculates the indicative exchange rate every day based on commercial banks purchases of foreign currencies, calculated as the weighted average of the previous day's trading excluding CBOS sales/purchases from the government. In addition, commercial banks and foreign exchange bureaus may determine their rate in a  $\pm 5\%$  band around the CBOS indicative rate with an allowed maximum profit margin of 0.75%. Previously, the method for determining the official rate was a target gap between the official rate and parallel market rate. The CBOS determined the exchange rate of the US dollar against the Sudanese guinea and published it daily through its website. Other monetary framework	Yes.	The monetary policy framework is primarily a nominal exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the US dollar. The operational target is the reserve money. The CBOS aims to control broad money as a monetary target and intervenes directly in the market by lending to banks in the event of a liquidity shortage.
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	As a temporary arrangement, each client is permitted only one foreign currency check not exceeding US$100,000 in the clearinghouse.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Foreign exchange bureaus may sell and buy foreign exchange freely and may set their bid and ask prices within the upper and lower indicative limits. Exchange bureaus operate under a license from the CBOS, which organizes and monitors them. As of December 31, 2020, there were about 13 licensed bureaus. Exchange bureaus may not buy foreign exchange from the CBOS. The maximum allowed bid-ask spread is 0.5% for all currencies. The operations of foreign exchange bureaus are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes. They may maintain accounts abroad with their correspondents, but may not make foreign exchange transactions directly with the CBOS. Effective January 1, 2020, the CBOS no longer intervenes in determining the gold exchange rate. Effective February 21, 2021, the CBOS announced the unification of the official exchange rate (excluding the customs valuation exchange rate) with the market rate at the prevailing market rate. In addition, commercial banks and foreign exchange bureaus may determine their rate in a $\pm 5\%$ band around the CBOS indicative rate with an allowed maximum profit margin of 0.75%. Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The CBOS sells foreign exchange to commercial banks in accordance with the importance of the imported commodity, with priority for strategic needs. The CBOS does not deal with government and public entities directly. In rare cases, there may be a direct deal with the government, such as a "clean payment." Clean payments are unconverted currency payments—for example, profit transfers, transfers meant for embassies abroad and for government travel, airline transfers, etc.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	Yes.	The CBOS sells foreign exchange to commercial banks through auctions, with priority on strategic and necessity needs.
Auction	No.

Changes during 2020 and 2021

Exchange Arrangement

Exchange rate structure

Multiple	02/21/2021	The Central Bank of Sudan (CBOS) announced the unification of the official exchange rate (excluding the customs valuation exchange rate) with the market rate at the prevailing market rate. The CBOS calculates the indicative exchange rate every day based on commercial banks purchases of foreign currencies, calculated as the weighted average of the previous day's trading excluding CBOS sales/purchases from the government. In addition, commercial banks and foreign exchange bureaus may determine their rate in a $\pm 5\%$ band around the CBOS indicative rate with an allowed maximum profit margin of 0.75%. Previously, the CBOS determined the exchange rate of the US dollar against the Sudanese guinea and published it daily through its website. For other convertible currencies, exchange rates were applied in US dollar terms, according to the CBOS' daily announcement on its website. Banks and exchange companies had to apply the exchange rate announced by the CB to all transactions. They were allowed a maximum profit margin of 0.5% on selling over the buying rate for the currency in question.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)

On external trade

06/22/2020 Companies operating in the area of mining waste and micro-mining companies may export, pursuant to Circular No. 16/2020, their entire production (previously 15%) after the operating profits, sovereign returns, and zakat (tax) have been deducted in kind from the total production of these companies, provided the earnings are repatriated and kept in special accounts for this purpose within Sudan and used in accordance with the regulations.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements

01/01/2020 The repatriation period was changed to 45 days from two months.

Surrender requirements

Surrender to the central bank

01/01/2020 The requirement to allocate at least 10% of the export earnings in favor of importing human medicines and raw materials for the manufacture of medicine was removed. Export proceeds may be used as follows: (1) for imports subject to controls; (2) to be sold to any other importer inside or outside the source bank; and (3) to be sold to the issuing bank or any other bank.

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating. In accordance with the Resolution of June 3, 2021, No. 6778/21, the Centrale Bank van Suriname (CBvS) adopted a floating (flexible) exchange rate system on June 7, 2021. Under this exchange rate system, the CBvS refrains from foreign exchange interventions, except in cases of disorderly market conditions. Disorderly market conditions are defined as an intraday depreciation of the USD/SRD exchange rate in excess of 2%. Since 2017 through April 2021, the exchange rate remained stabilized within a 2% band against the US dollar with one realignment in September 2020. Accordingly, the de facto exchange arrangement is classified as stabilized. The CBvS conducts a discretionary foreign exchange intervention policy and as such does not publish intervention data.

Official exchange rate

Yes. Effective June 7, 2021, the CBvS records USD and EUR exchange rates established on the basis of the supply and demand mechanism on the foreign exchange market, where banks and currency exchange houses trade foreign currency in a transparent and orderly manner. This means that the CBvS, on the basis of all reported transaction volumes and the price quotations of banks and currency exchange houses, calculates weighted average USD and EUR exchange rates three times a day and publishes these exchange rates accordingly. These exchange rates apply to the valuation of goods and services expressed in foreign currency and overseas government foreign exchange transfers.

Previously, the commercial banks and foreign exchange bureaus could not freely determine exchange rates effective April 15, 2020. The CBvS set the indicative exchange rate for the US dollar for the following working day. The exchange rates for other currencies than the US dollar were being derived from this indicative exchange rate, using the international cross-currency rates relative to the US dollar. The indicative exchange rates applied to transactions committed by the bank and served for the valuation of goods whose value was denominated in foreign currency. The published daily indicative exchange rate provided guidance to the foreign exchange market. To promote the efficient operation of transactions on the foreign exchange market, the CBvS set the buying and selling rate for the US dollar at SRD 14.018 per USD and SRD 14.290 per USD, effective September 22, 2020, until further notice. Effective March 1, 2021, until further notice, the CBvS set a bandwidth for the selling rate of the US dollar at a minimum selling rate of SRD 14.290 per USD and a maximum selling rate of SRD 16.300 per USD.

Monetary aggregate target

Yes. The CBvS has adopted a reserve money targeting regime geared towards price stability. The change of the exchange regime is an integral part of the implementation of this monetary policy framework, in which not the exchange rate but reserve money is applied as the policy target for controlling inflation. In this regard, effective July 14, 2021, the CBvS conducts open market operations through auctioning of CBvS term deposits to meet its reserve money target, which in turn will have an impact on inflation.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.	Residents are allowed to purchase locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	The reserve ratio for foreign currency deposits is determined independently of those for Surinamese dollar balances. The reserve ratio for domestic currency deposits was increased to 39% from 35% effective December 30, 2020. However, the effective reserve ratio for domestic currency deposits stood at around 24% at end-August 2021. The gap between the nominal and effective ratio is explained by the following exemptions: (1) Housing loans: commercial banks are permitted to on-lend up to 10% of their Surinamese dollar reserve base for housing loans and had effectively used around 5% of the reserve base as of end-August 2021; (2) T-bills purchase: in July 2014, the banks were allowed a one-off purchase of T-bills, which amount equals around 1% of the reserve base of end-August 2021; (3) COVID-19 support: effective May 20, 2020, banks were allowed to utilize 7.5% of the reserve base to provide credit to households and corporates that are affected by the COVID-19 pandemic; and (4) Budget support: effective June 29, 2020, banks were allowed to utilize up to 6.5% of their reserve base to lend to the government to finance crucial government expenditure for June and July 2020.

Effective July 14, 2021, an averaging provision of the required reserves for domestic currency was introduced.

The reserve ratio for foreign currency deposits currently stands at 50%.

The exchange rate of the krona is determined on the basis of supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. Foreign exchange interventions are allowed under extraordinary circumstances (for example, participation in concerted interventions with other CBs). In January 2016, the Executive Board adopted a mandate that facilitated rapid intervention on the foreign exchange market for monetary policy purposes. The mandate was extended several times thereafter, but expired on February 12, 2019, without ever having been used. The Sveriges Riksbank (SR) has not intervened in the foreign exchange market since June 14, 2001.

Monetary aggregate target
Inflation-targeting framework	Yes.	The monetary policy framework is flexible inflation targeting.
Target setting body	Yes.
Government
Central Bank	Yes.	As of 1999, the Sveriges Riksbank Act states that the objective of the Riksbank's operations is to maintain price stability. The Riksbank has specified this as 2% annual change in the CPI with fixed mortgage interest rates (CPIF).
Monetary Policy Committee
Central Bank Board	Yes.	The Riksbank is led by an Executive Board consisting of six members. As of 2020, the Board holds five scheduled monetary policy meetings every year. Formerly, there were six regularly scheduled meetings per year. At these meetings, the Executive Board establishes its majority view of what is considered a well-balanced monetary policy. If there is no majority for a decision, the governor of the Riksbank has the casting vote. There is no separate monetary policy committee. The Executive Board of the Riksbank decides on the direction and magnitude of various tools used for monetary policy purposes.
Other
Government and Central Bank
Inflation target	Yes.
Target number	Yes.
Point target	Yes.	According to the Sveriges Riksbank Act, the objective of monetary policy is to maintain price stability. The Riksbank has interpreted this objective to mean a low, stable rate of inflation. More precisely, the Riksbank's objective is to keep inflation (CPIF) around 2% a year. The Riksbank uses a variation band around the inflation target (1%–3%), which is not an inflation target band, but rather a way to highlight the normal variation of inflation around the 2% target.
Target with tolerance band
Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.
CPI	Yes.	The Riksbank's inflation target variable is the consumer price index with a fixed mortgage interest rates (CPIF). The CPIF is calculated using the same data and in the same way as the CPI, excluding the effect of changes to mortgage rates. The weights in the consumption basket are the same in CPI and CPIF; however, the mortgage index is kept fixed in CPIF. The reason for changing the target variable from the CPI to the CPIF in 2017 was that the former has had drawbacks as guidance for monetary policy. One such drawback was that changes to the repo rate affect household mortgage rates, which then has an effect on the CPI, as households' living costs also change.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	There is no predefined time horizon for when the target of 2 % CPIF-inflation is to be achieved. However, the Riksbank's general ambition has been to adjust monetary policy so that inflation is expected to be fairly close to the target in two years' time.

Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The SR uses the repo rate as its key signaling rate. With this rate, the SR indicates what the overnight rate will be one week ahead. If there is a liquidity deficit in the banking system, the SR supplies funds at this interest rate by buying securities through weekly repos or lending against eligible collateral. In the event of a liquidity surplus, the SR issues Riksbank Certificates to withdraw funds remunerated at the repo rate. The banking system as a whole has a large liquidity surplus at present.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The Riksbank has modified its operational framework for the implementation of monetary policy to make it simpler and more flexible. The changes imply that the Riksbank has introduced a narrow symmetrical interest rate corridor of 0.10 percentage points around the Riksbank's repo rate. To steer the overnight rate, so that it lies close to the Riksbank's policy rate, the Riksbank offers its monetary policy counterparties to borrow unlimited amounts of SEK against eligible collateral at an interest rate 0.10 percentage points above the Riksbank's repo rate and to deposit unlimited amounts of SEK at an interest rate 0.10 percentage points below the Riksbank's repo rate. As of October 9, 2019, the Riksbank ceased to conduct daily fine-tuning transactions. The deposit rate is 0.10 percentage points below the Riksbank's repo rate (since October 9, 2019). Effective July 2, 2020, the interest rate on the Riksbank's lending facility was lowered to 0.10 from 0.75 percentage points above the repo rate. This change was initially to take place within two years of the change to the deposit rate but was brought forward because of COVID-19. In addition to the standing facilities, the Riksbank also uses market operations with its monetary policy counterparties to steer the overnight rate. In recent years, the Riksbank has chosen to implement its expansionary monetary policy partly by purchasing securities. As a consequence, the banking system has a large liquidity surplus toward the Riksbank. To drain liquidity from the banking system, the Riksbank issues Riksbank certificates with one-week maturity once a week, normally on Tuesdays, at an interest equal to the repo rate. If the banking system were to have a liquidity deficit instead, the Riksbank could provide liquidity through monetary policy repos to the repo rate or lend against eligible collateral at the repo rate. Also in the wake of COVID-19, the Riksbank has ensured that more liquidity remain in the overnight market by limiting the issuance of Riksbank Certificates.
Other	No.
Accountability	Yes.
Open letter	No.
Parliamentary hearings	Yes.	The governor of the SR appears before the Riksdag Committee on Finance twice a year for a discussion on monetary policy.
Other	Yes.	In accordance with Sveriges Riksbank Act, the Riksbank compiles an Account of monetary policy every year. The account is used as a basis for the Parliamentary Committee on Finance's examination and assessment of monetary policy.
Transparency	Yes.
Publication of votes	Yes.	Press releases state how the individual members had voted and provided the main motivation for any reservations entered.

SWEDEN

Publication of minutes	Yes.	The minutes of the Executive Board's monetary policy meetings are published approximately ten days after the respective meeting. The minutes are attributed, so it is possible to see who has put forward which argument, as well as how individual members voted.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	Decisions on the repo rate are normally made five times a year and on each occasion, a Monetary Policy Report is also published. This contains analyses of the factors that determine inflation and forecasts for the repo rate, inflation, and the development of the real economy over the coming years – in other words, the most important factors on which the monetary policy decisions are based.

Market making	Yes.	The foreign exchange market operates based on electronic brokerage systems, but there is also a market-making agreement whereby the Riksbank's counterparties in foreign exchange transactions agree to make markets in EURSEK and USDSEK.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	The SR is allowed to conduct foreign exchange swaps.
Official cover of forward operations	Yes.	The SR and certain government agencies participate in the forward exchange rate market. However, such transactions are not conducted for the purposes of influencing the krona exchange rate. The SR occasionally participates in the foreign exchange derivatives market (in kronor) in connection with payment of the Swedish contribution to the EU.

Stabilized arrangement

Crawling peg

Crawl-like arrangement

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The exchange rate of the Swiss franc is determined by market forces in the foreign exchange market. However, the Swiss National Bank (SNB) reserves the right to intervene in the foreign exchange market to dampen excessive appreciation, taking the overall currency situation into consideration. The SNB publishes its foreign exchange interventions on a quarterly basis. All settlements are made at free-market rates. In the first half of 2020, the Swiss franc appreciated markedly amid the market turmoil related to the COVID-19 crisis and uncertainties regarding the cohesion of the Eurozone. The SNB intervened in the foreign exchange market to counter an undesired tightening of monetary conditions in light of the highly valued Swiss franc. According to the published information on foreign exchange transactions, the SNB intervened with close to CHF 110bn in 2020. These interventions occurred mainly at times of heightened uncertainty, when the Swiss franc was particularly sought after as a safe investment. The Swiss franc temporarily reversed its gains from 2020 on a trade-weighted basis in the first quarter of 2021 amid global growth optimism linked to the COVID-19 vaccination progress. Yet, it appreciated again since April 2021 because of the dampening of global growth expectations and decline in global interest rates.

From May 2020 to February 2021, the exchange rate followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the euro. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to “crawl-like” from “floating,” effective May 19, 2020. The de facto methodology for classification of exchange rate regimes is based on a backward-looking statistical approach that relies on past exchange rate movement and historical data. Therefore, this reclassification does not imply a corresponding policy commitment on the part of the country authorities nor does it imply statements or views on future or intended policies. The SNB publishes information regarding its foreign exchange transactions quarterly.

inflation forecast over a three-year horizon. For taking and communicating monetary policy decisions, the SNB uses the SNB policy rate. The SNB seeks to keep secured short-term Swiss franc money market rates, of which the Swiss Average Rate Overnight (SARON) is the most representative, close to the policy rate. A key communication device is an inflation forecast chart, which indicates the SNB's policy bias.

Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	In general, customs duties are levied based on the gross weight of goods. On industrial goods, import tariffs are generally very low (average 0.20% ad valorem equivalent). On agricultural goods, they average 5.9% ad valorem equivalent. The tariff rates on agricultural goods that are imported above quota may range up to several hundred percent (in ad valorem terms). In the framework of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) Uruguay Round, all quantitative restrictions and measures with equivalent effects concerning agricultural products have been converted to tariffs. To maintain the market access opportunities prevailing during 1986–1988, 28 tariff rate quotas were set for specific agricultural and livestock goods (fruits, vegetables, meats, wines, etc.). As a contribution to the fight against COVID-19, the Federal Council decided to temporarily set customs duties on imports of certain medical goods at zero, effective April 10, 2020, which ended effective October 10, 2020.

While the general investment principles (Asset Liability Management orientation, safety, profitability, diversification, liquidity) of the FINMA Circular No. 2016/5 apply to all insurance companies, the specific guidelines refer to those insurance companies who need to hold tied assets according to the law. These are of qualitative as well as of quantitative nature. Quantitative limits such as counterparty exposure limit (5%) or foreign currency exposure limit (20%) intend to mitigate various risks, for example, concentration risk or currency mismatch risk. The FINMA Circular No. 2016/5 also sets out asset-class-specific guidelines and investment restrictions (mentioned in the sections above), which are in line with the stipulated general investment principle.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Besides the asset-type-specific limits (for example, 30% for equity), securities issued by nonresidents need to be securitized and traded on a market so that a market price can be identified or the legal framework applicable to the investment must recognize FINMA’s insolvency procedures.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	To ensure the enforceability of the invested assets in case of bankruptcy, the investments held abroad can only be assigned to the tied assets, if the legal framework applicable to the investment recognizes FINMA’s insolvency procedures and the seniority of the claim to the tied assets in accordance with Swiss law so that no special enforcement or other interventions by an authority or third party become necessary. According to the FINMA Circular No. 2016/05, “Investment Guidelines – Insurance Companies” generally allows a foreign custody abroad as long as the aforementioned preconditions are fulfilled.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	According to the Asset Liability Management principles of the FINMA Circular No. 2016/5, liabilities arising from insurance contracts should match with the assets of the relevant currencies. Assets in currencies other than the reference currency should not exceed 20% of the required amount of the tied assets. This limit takes into consideration the effects of hedging.
Pension funds	Yes.	There are transparency requirements for occupational pension funds in the area of nontraditional bonds (especially securitized vehicles). Furthermore, securities lending and repo agreements must fulfill certain minimal conditions. As before, pension funds are usually not allowed to leverage their assets.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The Ordinance on Occupational Benefit Plans Concerning Old Age, Survivors, and Disability of January 1, 2021, regulates occupational pension funds. It treats residents and nonresidents mostly in the same way, stresses the need for supervision of counterparty risks and for sophisticated portfolio diversification, and strengthens the prudent investor principle. SYRIA(Position as of December 31, 2018)Status under IMF Articles of Agreement*Date of membership April 10, 1947.Article VIII*Article XIV Yes.Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices Yes. The IMF staff report for the 2009 Article IV Consultation with Syria states that as of February 12, 2010, Syria continued to maintain, under Article XIV, restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions, including administrative allocation of foreign exchange. Syria also maintained exchange measures that are subject to IMF approval under Article VIII: (1) prohibition against purchases by private parties of foreign exchange from the banking system for some current international transactions; (2) an MCP resulting from divergences of more than 2% between the official exchange rate and officially recognized market exchange rates; (3) a non-interest-bearing advance import deposit requirement of 75%–100% for public sector imports; and (4) an exchange restriction arising from the net debt under inoperative bilateral payments arrangements with the Islamic Republic of Iran and Sri Lanka. (Country Report No. 10/86)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons No.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51) No.

Other security restrictions No.

Exchange Arrangement*Currency Yes. The currency of Syria is the Syrian pound.

Exchange rate structure

Unitary

Dual Yes. The exchange rate system is dual because it consists of two rates: (1) the official rate of LS 11.20/11.25 per US dollar, which applies to interest arising from former bilateral payments agreements, pending agreements on their rescheduling, and (2) the exchange rate for all other transactions (foreign exchange market exchange rate), which unifies the other exchange rates and is announced by the Central Bank of Syria (CBS) daily.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	Each business day at 9:30 a.m. the foreign exchange management team, comprising the governor and representatives from across the CBS, convenes to determine the official exchange rate for the pound against the SDR basket. The information that contributes to their decision includes the previous close-of-business information regarding foreign exchange operations and positions of the local banks. The governor, or the governor's deputy if the governor is absent, makes the final decision on the US dollar-pound exchange rate. After this rate is set, all other cross-rates for currencies in the basket are calculated and published. The official exchange rate of the pound is used for imports of certain materials specified by Prime Ministerial Decision No. 14184 of August 10, 2011, and its amendments.

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Nonresidents may open accounts in convertible foreign currency in authorized banks for the deposit of funds from abroad. Balances in such accounts may be sold to local banks, transferred abroad without restriction, or used to pay for authorized imports. Temporary nonresident accounts may be opened in the name of nonresidents temporarily residing in Syria.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	These accounts may be credited with the proceeds of foreign currency sold to authorized banks and with other receipts in foreign currency or in pounds; they may be debited to pay for expenses in Syria. Neither the account balances nor the interest accrued on these accounts is transferable.
Convertible into foreign currency	No.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale of real estate in Syria by nonresidents must be deposited in blocked domestic currency accounts. LS 180,000 or its equivalent a year may be transferred abroad from such accounts. Accounts may be debited for expenses in Syria.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	Yes.	The foreign exchange requirements of government trading agencies are met with the annual foreign exchange budget; these agencies automatically receive import licenses on submission of documentation of their import requirements.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.	Banks may finance all types of imports, except imports of gold and cars.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	Yes.	A non-interest-bearing advance deposit is required for public sector imports. The deposit is set as a certain percentage of the value of the import and differs depending on the case. Private sector imports are not subject to this requirement if they are financed from abroad. Article VIII	Yes.	Date of acceptance: December 9, 2004.
Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the Request for Disbursement under the Rapid Credit Facility with Tajikistan states that, as of April 29, 2020, the Republic of Tajikistan maintained one exchange restriction and two multiple currency practices subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) and Section 3 of the IMF's Articles of Agreement. Foreign exchange shortages, evidenced by market participants' reports of undue delays in obtaining foreign exchange and external payment arrears, persist in the commercial foreign exchange market as a result of the setting of exchange rates by commercial banks used in foreign exchange transactions, due to informal guidance by the National Bank of Tajikistan (NBT), which do not reflect market conditions. As a consequence of this, not all demand for bona fide foreign exchange for current international transactions is satisfied, giving rise to an exchange restriction. One of the multiple currency practices arises because of the absence of a mechanism to prevent a potential deviation of more than 2% between: (1) the prevailing market exchange rate and (2) the official exchange rate, which is required to be used for converting domestic currency (somoni) to foreign currency, and vice versa, between accounts of individuals and legal entities opened within the same commercial bank; The second multiple currency practice arises because of the absence of a mechanism to prevent a potential deviation of more than 2% between: (1) the somoni–Russian ruble exchange rate (calculated as a cross-rate using the official exchange rate of the USD to somoni), which is required to be used for mandatory ruble surrender transactions and (with a maximum variation of 0.5%) for the purchase/sale in the interbank market of rubles derived from the mandatory surrender and (2) the market exchange rate banks may use for purchase/sale of Russian rubles derived from other sources. (Country Report No. 20/151)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.	Because of security considerations, the NBT sent lending institutions Letter No. 27.03-274/3494 of October 9, 2015, which is of an advisory nature, recommending that all lending institutions exercise particular care when engaging in banking relations and performing transactions with the following banks, which have been included on the Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC) Special Designated Nationals list: ZAO (Closed Joint-Stock Company) Kont; ZAO Kafolatbank; and a branch of Tjijorat bank of the Islamic Republic of Iran.

Yes. The official exchange rate of the US dollar is calculated on the basis of the weighted average exchange rates in transactions involving the purchase and sale of the US dollar for somoni in the interbank and intrabank foreign exchange markets as of 4:00 p.m. of the current day. The NBT has the right to adjust the calculated base weighted average exchange rate within a range of  $\pm 1.5\%$ . A decision to make an adjustment is made by the NBT working group on exchange rate policy.

The official exchange rates of other foreign currencies are calculated according to the rules for determining cross-rates using the ratio of the official exchange rate of the US dollar against the somoni and the exchange rates of the US dollar against other foreign currencies as established by their CBs or in international foreign exchange markets on that day.

The official exchange rate is used for accounting purposes and for recording foreign exchange funds in somoni on the balance sheets of economic entities, for recalculation into somoni of mandatory state payments expressed in foreign currency, for calculating main macroeconomic indicators, and for analyzing the results of foreign economic activity.

In accordance with NBT Executive Board Resolution No. 127 of September 29, 2017, the exchange rate in somoni for the purchase and sale of foreign currency for clients of the NBT is set by the NBT by agreement between the parties, taking into consideration the following conditions:

- the exchange rate in somoni for the purchase of foreign currency must be no higher than the official exchange rate in effect on the day the transaction is performed;
- the sale of foreign currency for somoni to the MOF must be performed at the official exchange rate in effect on the day the transaction is performed;
- the sale of foreign currency for somoni to other public enterprises and organizations serviced by the Main Central Treasury Administration of the MOF must be performed at the official exchange rate in effect on the day the transaction is performed, plus a margin of 1.5%.

In the event that the difference between the official and market exchange rates of the US dollar is greater than 2%, buying and selling transactions with the MOF and other institutions supported by the budget should be performed at the weighted average selling rate in the interbank and intrabank markets in effect at the time the transaction is performed.

When setting the purchase and sale exchange rate for foreign currency, lending institutions proceed from market principles and determine the rate independently based on the foreign currency supply and demand in the domestic market.

Monetary aggregate target	Yes.	The Republic of Tajikistan’s Monetary Policy Strategy for 2021–2025 states that the mechanism of monetary policy of the NBT is officially implemented under the reserve money targeting regime and its regulation is carried out to ensure stable money supply growth in the economy and also to maintain a stable level of demand and inflation. The NBT is carrying out a number of reforms to make a gradual transition from a reserve money targeting regime to a new framework for the implementation of monetary policy – inflation targeting. Accordingly, at this time the NBT performs monitoring of reserve money as an operational objective of the monetary targeting regime, as well as the short-term interest rate in the interbank credit market. The main focus of monetary and exchange policy is on the development of institutional reforms, instruments and on increasing their impact on short-term interest rates in the money market, the level of aggregate demand and inflation, and its aim is to create a favorable climate and reliable foundation for making a gradual transition from a reserve money framework (quantity) to a new inflation-targeting framework (quality) for the implementation of monetary policy. Monetary policy targets are defined in the Republic of Tajikistan’s Projected Monetary Policy Guidelines for 2021 and the Medium Term. This document is reviewed by the NBT Executive Board and approved by the Republic of Tajikistan Parliament. To identify the maintenance of price stability as a top priority, a quantitative medium-term inflation target of 6.0% (+/–2 percentage points) at end-2021 is published on the NBT’s official website. The inflation target in Tajikistan is defined in the form of the inflation rate at the end of the year. During the transition from reserve money to short-term interbank operations, a corridor for fluctuations in interbank operations was set at the refinancing rate +/-2 percentage points. The upper limit of the corridor is overnight credits (refinancing rate +2 percentage points), and the lower limit of the corridor is overnight deposits (refinancing rate –2 percentage points). The target corridor band for reserve money is set at +/-5% of the established target. With the aim of ensuring transparency and raising the financial literacy of the population, the NBT developed the NBT Monetary Policy Communication Strategy for 2019–2021, according to which the NBT regularly publishes all necessary information on the NBT website. The NBT is accountable to the Lower Chamber of the Supreme Assembly (Parliament) of the Republic of Tajikistan. The NBT submits to the Parliament the NBT’s annual report and auditor’s report as well as the Monetary Policy Projections of the Republic of Tajikistan and a report on their implementation. themselves and acquired funds. Market participants themselves dispose of acquired funds.

In accordance with NBT Directive No. 07.03-99/366 of February 2, 2016, the requirement on the conversion of Russian rubles transferred by individuals without opening a bank account, and their disbursement in somoni, was introduced. Fifty percent of these funds acquired by banks for their own position in Russian rubles by 4:00 p.m. on any day had to be offered for sale in the interbank market (rubles purchase and sale auctions) at a variation of 0.5% of the rate at which they purchased them.

In December 2019, the NPC was created that provides for money transfers without opening a bank account with the NBT. In connection with this, all cross-border transfers without the opening of an account within the Republic of Tajikistan are performed through the NPC, and on the basis of this 50% of the amount of the transfers is automatically transferred to a commercial bank, and the rest is offered for sale in the interbank foreign exchange market at the exchange rate for money transfers at the time the auction is held. Auction participants are the NBT and all lending institutions (banks and microfinance organizations) licensed to perform banking operations in foreign exchange. The NBT acts as a temporary intermediary for these transactions, and a volume-based auction is conducted to distribute the rubles to banks. The portion of funds in Russian rubles not purchased by other auction participants remains at the disposal at the NBT.

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. Exchange rate arrangement is floating. The Bank of Tanzania (BOT) participates in the interbank foreign exchange market (IFEM) for liquidity management purposes and intervenes occasionally to smooth out short-term volatility in the exchange rate. In carrying out these operations, the Bank remains mindful of the need to maintain adequate level of international reserves within the statutory requirement. Trading in the IFEM is conducted using the Reuters trading platform in a two-way quote system. The BOT is not required to indicate two-way quotes when it participates in the interbank market. From February 2019, the shilling stabilized within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as stabilized. The BOT does not publish information on foreign exchange interventions on the website.

Monetary aggregate target Yes. The monetary policy aims to control monthly average reserve money as the operational target, which affects the extended broad money (intermediate target), to contain inflation, which is the ultimate target of monetary policy. The medium-term target for headline inflation is 5% with an upper bound of 8% agreed at EAC level. The CPI measures the change over time in the cost of a fixed basket of goods and services that are purchased by a representative sample of households. Following the rebasing of the National CPI (NCPI) from December 2015 to year 2020 as the reference period, the basket includes a list of 383 goods and services, of which 132 are food and nonalcoholic beverages and 251 are nonfood items.

reflecting demand and supply in the foreign exchange market. In the case that the resulting movements in THB are deemed excessive and unjustified by fundamentals, foreign exchange intervention can be undertaken to avoid disorderly market conditions. The data on interventions are not publicly available. However, the weekly and monthly data on gross international reserve are published on the CB's website, where international reserve assets comprise monetary gold, SDRs, reserve position in the fund, and foreign currency assets.

The baht depreciated in the first half of 2020. The rapid spread of the COVID-19 led investors to sell risky assets, especially some emerging market currencies with high exposures to the external sector. In the second half of 2020, the baht appreciated following risk-on sentiment brought by the relaxation of containment measures in many countries, the outturn of the U.S. presidential election, and the progress of the COVID-19 vaccines development.

In 2021, the Thai baht depreciated mainly from an intensified COVID-19 outbreak situation and a slow recovery of the Thai economy.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The baht–US dollar reference exchange rate is announced daily, based on the weighted average exchange rate of the previous day. The baht–US dollar reference exchange rate is widely used as a benchmark for marking to market the US dollars held by funds and corporations and for calculating profit and loss as a result of foreign exchange transactions for accounting purposes. The Bank of Thailand (BOT) also uses the baht–US dollar reference exchange rate to mark to market its foreign exchange reserves.

regarding the monetary policy target for the following year and then proposes to the minister of finance. The MPC, with a cooperative agreement with the minister of finance, then determines targets of monetary policy for the following year which is regarded as the guideline for the State and the BOT for the purpose of implementing any measures to maintain price stability. The minister of finance proposes the agreed targets of monetary policy to the Cabinet for approval. On approval, the target must be published in the Government Gazette. In the case where it is appropriate or necessary, the MPC may edit, change, or add targets of monetary policy, provided those stated in the above paragraph are complied with.

Inflation target	Yes.
Target number	Yes.
Point target
Target with tolerance band
Band/Range	Yes.	Effective January 1, 2020, headline inflation is targeted to reside within the range of 1%–3% over the medium term. Previously, since 2015, an annual average headline inflation target of 2.5% with a tolerance band of $\pm 1.5\%$ was in place.
Target measure	Yes.	The headline inflation target is reviewed annually, although the target is set for the medium term.
CPI	Yes.	Headline inflation is defined as the year-on-year (y-o-y) change in CPI (all commodities) published monthly by the Ministry of Commerce.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	The target is intended for the medium-term horizon. However, the law requires the target to be reviewed annually.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The one-day bilateral repurchase transaction rate is employed as the policy rate to signal the monetary policy stance. At the end of June 2020, the interest rate target stands at 0.50%.
Target corridor band	No.
Other	No.
Accountability	Yes.
Open letter	Yes.	Effective January 1, 2020, the MPC may send an open letter to the minister of finance, should average headline inflation in the past 12 months or a forecast of average headline inflation over 12 months ahead breach the target range. The open letter elaborates on underlying reasons and remedial actions, both taken and planned by the MPC, as well as the period within which headline inflation is expected to return to target. The MPC will also write an additional open letter every 6 months if average headline inflation based on the above criteria remains outside the target range. Previously, the MPC would issue an open letter whenever headline inflation averaged over the calendar year remained outside the inflation target.
Parliamentary hearings	No.
Other	Yes.	The MPC reports its operations to the Cabinet every six months.

Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	Yes.
Market making	Yes.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Nonresidents are free to enter into forward foreign exchange contracts with authorized banks to hedge their underlying trade or investment in Thailand. On top of this, effective January 5, 2021, registered nonresident corporates under Nonresident Qualified Company (NRQC) scheme can engage with onshore financial institutions more freely by managing currency risks related to Thai baht more freely without having to provide proof of underlying for each transaction. In addition, NRQCs may manage Thai baht liquidity more flexibly without being subject to the end-of-day outstanding limit of B 200 million imposed on Nonresident Baht

THAILAND

Accounts (NRBA).

Since January 5, 2021, without domestic trade or investment, the overall outstanding limit on baht liquidity provided by a domestic financial institution to a nonresident group (as a consolidated entity) is B 200 million (previously B 600 million). This is because the NRQC Scheme will facilitate nonresident companies to engage in foreign exchange transactions with domestic financial institutions more freely. The outstanding limit has been reduced as this channel has become less necessary and to support activities under the NRQC Scheme. The limit on baht borrowing by a domestic financial institution from a nonresident group is B 10 million. Residents in Thailand are free to engage in forward transactions with authorized banks to hedge foreign exchange risk arising out of committed payments or receipts for current or capital account transactions. Resident exporters and importers are also allowed to engage in forward transactions to hedge foreign exchange exposure for expected payments and receipts based on a one-year forecast of underlying trade and services. Unwinding of forward transactions for hedging foreign exchange exposure of underlying trade, services, and investment and lending abroad is freely allowed.

Use of foreign exchange among residents Yes. Effective December 5, 2020, transfer of foreign exchange among residents' foreign currency accounts are generally allowed. Previously, Thai legal entities with foreign currency proceeds for exports and services could transfer the funds from their foreign currency deposit accounts to counterparties in Thailand for payment for goods and services.

Payments arrangements Yes.

Bilateral payments arrangements Yes.

Operative Yes. The BOT has been making collaborative efforts with other CBs in ASEAN countries to establish cross-border linkages to facilitate Quick response (QR) code payment and innovative remittance. The initiatives that are in operation are as follows:
 –Lao PDR: Since April 4, 2019, Thai and Lao banks have launched cross-border QR payments and remittance between the two countries.
 –Cambodia: Effective February 18, 2020, Thai and Cambodian banks have launched cross-border QR payments between the two countries. Cambodian tourists visiting Thailand can use their mobile banking applications to scan the Thai QR Codes of merchants in Thailand. Thai tourists will be able to use their Thai mobile banking applications to scan Cambodian QR Codes to pay for goods and services at merchants in Cambodia starting from the third quarter of 2020.

–Singapore: A Thai payment service provider has launched a mobile wallet application that allows Thai e-wallet customers to make QR payments overseas through a Singaporean cross-border mobile payment provider (Q4 2018). Since April 4, 2019, Thai and Singaporean banks have launched the remittance service via sponsoring bank model between Thailand and Singapore.

–Japan: Thai and Japanese commercial banks have launched cross-border QR payments between the two countries in 2018.

–Vietnam: BOT and State Bank of Vietnam have collaborated to spearhead the cross-border QR payment service between Thai and Vietnamese banks. Effective March 26, 2021, Tourists from Thailand are able to pay for goods and services via VietQR at merchants of the participating banks in Vietnam, and tourists from Vietnam are able to pay via Thai QR Payment logo.

–Malaysia: BOT and Bank Negara Malaysia have jointly steered the cross-border QR payment project between Thai and Malaysian banks to launch the service effective June 18, 2021. In the first phase, tourists from Thailand are able to pay for goods and services via DuitNow QR at merchants of the participating banks in Malaysia. The opposite payment flow will later be introduced by end of this year.

The BOT and Monetary Authority of Singapore (MAS) have collaborated to introduce “PromptPay-PayNow,” the cross-border real-time remittance service between the Thai and Singaporean banks, effective April 29, 2021. It is recognized as the world’s first linkage between two real-time payment systems by connecting PromptPay and PayNow, which are the domestic real-time payment systems of both countries. The service allows the customers of participating banks to make and receive cross-border real-time fund transfers using mobile phone numbers as proxies.

Thailand and Hong Kong Monetary Authority (HKMA) developed the cross-border Payment versus Payment linkage between Bank of Thailand Automated High-value Transfer Network (BAHTNET) and US Dollar Clearing House Automated Transfer System (USDCHATS) to facilitate THB/USD settlement to reduce foreign exchange settlement risk arising from different time zones.

USDCHATS was in operation since July 17, 2014. Currently, BOT has included OTC foreign exchange swap transaction into Payment versus Payment system since January 2017.

Thailand and Malaysia launched the local currency settlement framework in March 14, 2016, and its scope was expanded in January 2, 2018. Likewise, Thailand and Indonesia launched similar framework in January 2, 2018. These frameworks aim to promote the settlement of trade and direct investment in local currencies. Banks which fulfill key qualifications to facilitate bilateral trade are appointed to facilitate the frameworks.

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	No.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may open two types of NRBA: NRBA for securities and NRBA for general purposes. Transfers are not allowed between different types of accounts. The limit on the outstanding balance of NRBA was B 200 million a nonresident.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	Yes.	Interest on NRBA may be paid only on fixed deposit accounts with maturities of at least six months.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	Financial institutions—commercial banks, finance companies, and credit foncier companies (credit foncier company is a public limited company licensed to undertake credit foncier business by accepting deposit from public, granting mortgage loan, and purchasing immovable property under contract of sale with right of redemption)—may invest, purchase, and hold directly or indirectly shares of any company up to the following amounts, including the shares of nominee shareholders of financial institutions: (1) 20% of the total capital of the financial institution for shares in all companies; (2) 5% of the total capital for shares in each company; and (3) 10% of the total shares sold. In cases of debt restructuring or as security for a loan, financial institutions may seek BOT approval to hold more shares. The BOT may grant waivers, but with certain conditions.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	In principle, Thailand allows up to 25% foreign equity participation in commercial banks, finance companies, and credit foncier companies (credit foncier company is a public limited company licensed to undertake credit foncier business by accepting deposit from public, granting mortgage loan, and purchasing immovable property under contract of sale with right of redemption). The BOT may consider allowing foreign holdings between 25% and 49%. If deemed necessary to improve the condition or business of these institutions, the minister of finance, on recommendation of the BOT, may allow foreign investors to hold up to 100% of these institutions' shares for 10 years. After 10 years, foreign investors do not have to sell their shares but may not purchase additional shares, unless they hold less than 49% of total shares. Additional shares may then be acquired to bring foreign holdings up to the 49% maximum.

Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The regulation on net foreign exchange exposure limits allows commercial banks to maintain a position for each currency relative to its capital fund up to 15% or US$5 million, whichever is greater, and to maintain an aggregate position relative to its capital fund up to 20% or US$10 million, whichever is greater.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.	The regulations governing shares and other securities of a participating nature apply.
Insurance companies	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes. Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Effective January 29, 2020, insurance companies may invest up to 30% of their total investment assets (a relaxation from 15% investment limit) in securities issued by nonresidents.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Total investment in each category is determined by a company's total investment assets: (1) government bonds, treasury bills, BOT bonds, and state enterprise bonds with an MOF guarantee, no limit; (2) corporate debt securities, 60%; and (3) stocks and equities, 30%.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Effective January 29, 2020, when investing in foreign securities (that bear known amount of cash flows for investors such as bonds), insurance companies must hedge their foreign exchange exposure based on their capital adequacy ratio (CAR). Insurance companies with CAR less than 250 must hedge at least 75% of their cash flow. Insurance companies with CAR over 75% but less than 380 must hedge at least 50% of their cash flow. Insurance companies with CAR over 380 can hedge freely according to the internal policy of the company's investment committee. Previously, insurance companies had to fully hedge their foreign exchange exposure when investing in the above foreign securities.
Pension funds	No.	The SEC oversees provident fund, a voluntary defined contribution plan jointly established by the employer and employee to serve as a long-term savings to support an employee upon retirement.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	The SEC investment rules require no limit on securities issued by nonresidents. Nevertheless, the following investment limits, namely (1) single entity limit, (2) group limit, (3) product limit, (4) concentration limit, and (5) employer's asset limit, still apply to any provident fund investment.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.	The SEC investment rules require no limit on investment portfolio held abroad. Effective December 5, 2020, there is no investment limit in foreign assets for investors regulated under the SEC. This is an abolishment of the total investment limit (FIA) with outstanding amount of US$ 150 billion a time that the BOT allocated to investors regulated under the SEC, to simplify rules and procedures. Nevertheless, the following internal investment limits, namely (1) single entity limit, (2) group limit, (3) product limit, (4) concentration limit, and (5) employer's asset limit, still apply to any provident fund investment

Conventional peg	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the WAEMU is a conventional peg. Togo participates in a currency union with seven other members of the WAEMU and has no separate legal tender. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAEMU member countries and France was concluded December 4, 1973. It was maintained after the French franc was replaced by the euro by the EC decision of November 23, 1998. The Monetary Cooperation Agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common issuing institution, (2) fixed parity with the euro, and (3) a guarantee of unlimited convertibility.

Official exchange rate Yes. The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro at the fixed exchange rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. Exchange rates for other currencies are derived from the rates for the currency concerned in the Paris foreign exchange market vis-à-vis the euro. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation. The Conference of Heads of State and Government may decide to amend the Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAMU member countries and France.

Monetary policy framework

U.S. dollar

Euro Yes. The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro. The operational target of price stability is defined as an annual inflation rate in the WAEMU that falls within a band of  $\pm 1\%$  around a central rate of 2%. The Harmonized Consumer Price Index is the benchmark rate to measure inflation.

Exchange tax	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries apply a 0.6% commission on transfers to countries outside the WAEMU. This commission is transferred in full to the National Treasury and makes up part of its tax revenue.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and authorized non-electronic exchange dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which must be traded against CFAF at the fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The commission on foreign exchange transactions may not exceed 2%. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU is in effect.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Entities authorized to conduct non-electronic foreign currency transactions are authorized intermediary banks and individuals or companies authorized by order of the minister of finance, with the consent of the BCEAO. As of December 31, 2020, there were 50 institutions, consisting of 13 banks and 37 licensed exchange dealers, currently authorized to trade on the foreign exchange market. Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions for non-electronic exchange operations with euro banknotes and issue a receipt for all operations with customers. In addition, authorized intermediaries must (1) permanently post at their windows the rates actually charged for the different currencies and (2) post notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions on presentation of the requestor's identity document. As of December 31, 2020, there were 50 institutions licensed to deal in the foreign exchange market. The minister of finance issues

		approvals, after consulting the BCEAO. Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions for executing banknote foreign exchange transactions involving foreign currency and issue a receipt for all transactions with clients. Banks and registered banknote exchange houses are intermediaries authorized by the Ministry of Economy and Finance (MEF) to carry out foreign exchange transactions with the public. The exchange houses may perform transactions in foreign currencies other than euros with the BCEAO. Registered banknote exchange houses may not make transfers or payment in foreign currencies with other countries or maintain accounts abroad. In operations with customers, authorized intermediaries (authorized intermediary banks and OTC dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 and may be subject to a maximum commission of 2.0%.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BCEAO deals directly with the government and other public entities, and the official rate is used for valuation.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at the rates published in the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of 655.957 per euro. The non-electronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals). However, commissions are not charged on cash foreign exchange transactions conducted by governments, officials of Member States of the WAMU on missions abroad, officials of the CB and their beneficiaries, and on payments made by banks and financial institutions.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are allowed. At December 31, 2020, there were 13 commercial banks in Togo that participate in the domestic currency interbank market. There is no foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions on the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps.
		Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, or options to sell foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.
		Authorized intermediary banks are required to simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur with respect to derivative instruments traded with their customers.

The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or FDI in a resident company.

All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used as payment for current international transactions and for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions outside the WAEMU.
For capital transactions	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require MEF authorization.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following operations on derivatives and other instruments with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward contract, foreign exchange swaps, and options. Operations on derivatives with foreign banks outside the WAEMU can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Credit operations	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone may not use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account is maintained with the French Treasury that links operations account countries. All purchases and sales of foreign currency and euros against CFA francs are ultimately settled through a debit or credit to the operations account.

TOGO

Clearing agreements	Yes.	There is a multilateral clearing agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS member countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone) as part of the WAMA. All payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be made under the clearing agreement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO went into effect April 1, 2010, with the adoption of the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. Exchange control is administered jointly by the MOF and the BCEAO. Most of the authority to supervise foreign exchange transactions is delegated to authorized banks, which are required to report these operations to the MOF. The BCEAO is also authorized to collect—either directly or through banks, financial institutions, the postal administration, or judicial agents—information necessary to compile balance of payments statistics. Customs officers monitor outflows of foreign exchange and confirm importation and exportation of goods. All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Togo for the purpose of calculating the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and the material exportation of means of payment and of securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Togo are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfer transactions with other countries must be made through the registered intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers may freely export CFA franc banknotes from one WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals (from a WAEMU member country) and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc banknotes issued by the BCEAO.

TOGO

Foreign currency	Yes.	The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers (that is, residing outside of a WAEMU member country) is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Nonresident travelers must declare to customs foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 1 million on exit. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They are allowed to carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Amounts in excess of this ceiling may be exported in the form of traveler's checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler's checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issue of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident travelers may freely import domestic currency. However, WAEMU resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from receiving banknotes in domestic currency.
Foreign currency	No.	There are no restrictions on resident and nonresident travelers' importation of foreign-currency-denominated means of payment, which must be declared to customs authorities if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 5 million. Resident travelers must surrender foreign banknotes and other foreign-currency-denominated means of payment exceeding CFAF 500,000 to an authorized intermediary within eight days of arrival in any WAEMU member country.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.
Held abroad	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Individuals who are resident of the WAEMU temporarily staying or traveling outside of WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Approval required Yes. Intermediaries authorized in the WAEMU are authorized to open accounts in euros for the benefit of nonresidents, subject to proof of their status and actual residence. Nonresident accounts denominated in foreign currency other than euros are subject to BCEAO authorization. Nonresident foreign currency accounts are valid for a renewable period of two years. In the event of a failure to obtain renewal (through a new BCEAO authorization for foreign exchange other than the euro), these accounts must be closed. The balances of these accounts may be freely transferred abroad after verification.

Domestic currency accounts Yes.

Convertible into foreign currency Yes. Authorized intermediaries may open nonresident accounts in CFA francs and in euros, under their own responsibility, depending on the status and actual residence of the applicant. These accounts may be debited for spot purchases of foreign exchange.

Approval required No.

Blocked accounts No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget No.

Financing requirements for imports Yes.

Minimum financing requirements No.

Advance payment requirements Yes. Advance payments for imports require authorization, and importers may not acquire foreign exchange until the date of the payment specified in the contract.

Advance import deposits No.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports Yes. Importers may purchase foreign exchange for import payments after establishing bank payment order accounts and submitting supporting documents, but not earlier than eight days before shipment if a documentary credit is opened, or on the due date of payment if the products have already been imported.

Domiciliation requirements Yes. Import transactions from outside the CFA franc area exceeding CFAF 10 million must be effected through an authorized bank.

Preshipment inspection Yes. Imports arriving by sea and exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 3 million, and overland imports exceeding CFAF 1.5 million, are subject to inspection.

TOGO

Letters of credit	No.	LCs may be opened for all import operations, regardless of origin. LCs are not required.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.

Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The ECOWAS CET consists of five tariff brackets: 0%, 5%, 10%, 20%, and 35%. A statistical tax of 1% and a community solidarity levy of 1% are also applied on imports from ECOWAS non-member countries. Imports from countries that are not ECOWAS members are subject to a 0.5% community levy (CL/ECOWAS).
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Resident economic operators are required to collect and repatriate the entire proceeds from the sale of goods abroad to the bank with which the transaction is domiciled within one month from the payment due date. The payment due date is the date provided in the commercial contract; as a rule, it should be within a maximum of 120 days from the merchandise shipment date.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries must surrender their customers' foreign currency receipts to the BCEAO by transfer via the bank of issue. For purposes of covering its current foreign currency requirements, an authorized intermediary bank may hold a maximum of 20% of export receipts as own foreign exchange resources. However, it must ensure that its total foreign exchange resources to cover its requirements do not exceed 5% of total customer demand deposits; otherwise, the surplus must be surrendered to the BCEAO.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds must be surrendered to authorized banks within 30 days after the payment due date. Sales of foreign currency by exporters to ADs other than the domiciling bank are permitted, provided they furnish the domiciling bank with the documents required for the domiciliation file to be closed.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Export transactions are subject to a customs declaration.
Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.

		between WAEMU countries, must be domiciled with an authorized intermediary bank.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.
Other	No.
Export licenses	Yes.
Without quotas	Yes.	Diamonds, gold, and all other precious metals are subject to MOF authorization. Exports to all countries require licenses in certain cases.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	Phosphate rock is subject to a specific export tax.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	Payments and transfers for current transactions with WAEMU and non-WAEMU countries may be made freely through authorized intermediaries. Transfers exceeding CFAF 500,000 are subject to documentary requirements. Payments and receipts of foreign ships on stopovers in WAEMU countries or by WAEMU ships abroad are considered current transactions.
Trade-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Payments abroad related to freight and insurance (including transfers of insurance not related to commercial transactions), unloading and warehousing costs, administrative costs, commissions, and customs duties and fees are permitted in general, subject to the presentation of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	Payments for depreciation of direct investments require MOF authorization, because this type of depreciation is not specifically mentioned in the regulations.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Outward transfers of interest payments and proceeds from the liquidation of investments may be made by authorized banks, subject to presentation of supporting documents.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling for tourism or business purposes to non-WAEMU countries may take out banknotes other than CFA franc notes up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person a trip; larger amounts may be taken out of the country in the form of traveler's checks, prepaid debit or payment cards, traditional debit or payment cards, or other means of payment and must be justified by requirements related to ordinary personal travel expenses.

TOGO

Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Resident travelers must present a travel document and a valid passport or a national identity card to an authorized intermediary bank or exchange bureau before foreign exchange will be issued. Foreign currency allocations delivered by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler's checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be justified by requirements related to ordinary personal travel expenses if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person.
Personal payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	Approval is required for payment of family maintenance expenses abroad.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	All personal payments may be made through an authorized bank, subject to presentation of supporting documents. Payments abroad related to pensions and benefits resulting from an employment contract, education costs, family maintenance, and alimony may be executed freely on presentation of documentation.
Foreign workers' wages	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Payments abroad related to wages, salaries, and honoraria; contributions and benefits; pensions and work-related activities; and service contracts are generally authorized on presentation of the appropriate documentation.
Credit card use abroad	Yes.	The use of credit cards is allowed when issued by specialized institutions which, where applicable, must report such transactions on a quarterly basis to the BCEAO.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	For travelers, allocations of foreign currency in the form of debit and payment card must be justified by requirements related to travel and personal expenses if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million.

Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	As a general rule, payments abroad above CFAF 500,000 related to other current operations are permitted subject to the presentation of supporting documentation to the relevant authorized intermediary.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be repatriated. Residents of the WAEMU zone are required to surrender to an authorized intermediary all revenues and income in foreign currency collected abroad or received from a nonresident. Such operations must be conducted within no more than one month after the payment due date.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.

Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be surrendered to an AD within one month. Residents of the WAEMU zone must surrender foreign currency revenue and proceeds received abroad or remitted by a nonresident to an authorized intermediary bank within one month of the payment due date. Resident travelers must surrender to an authorized intermediary, within eight days of their arrival in Togo, foreign banknotes and other means of payment denominated in foreign currency worth more than the equivalent of CFAF 500,000.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require MOF authorization, except (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans to finance industrial and commercial operations, (2) payments required on foreign exchange derivatives transactions or raw material or commodity derivatives transactions, and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries are generally permitted.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone's investments abroad must be repatriated within one month through a registered intermediary, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	The proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone's investments abroad must be repatriated and surrendered, if the resident has no reinvestment authorization, within one month through an authorized intermediary. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	RCPSFM (Regional Council on Public Savings and Financial Markets) authorization is required for the following operations: (1) issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Nonresident entities that solicit the public of the WAEMU must obtain BCEAO authorization as the entity in charge of regulating the external financial relations of the WAEMU countries. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

On capital market securities	Yes.	The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, these purchases are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of Togolese entities, foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MOF. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, except for those constituting a loan.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. There is no minimum holding period.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires an exchange authorization from the MOF and supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries is authorized by the RCPSFM. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of domestic establishments, foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MOF. Issuance of securities abroad constituting a loan to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized intermediary bank and must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes.

On money market instruments	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to declaration for statistical purposes only.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance and sale of money market instruments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization, with authorization of the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of money market instruments resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of money market instrument transactions by transfer abroad or credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation (Article 8, Rule No. 09/10/CM/UEMOA).
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign money market instruments by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign money market instruments whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. The sale of money market instruments to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell money market instruments abroad, except those constituting a loan. Sales liquidating an investment abroad are subject to declaration to the minister of finance for statistical purposes.
On collective investment securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to prior declaration to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization with the authorization of the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority regulating external financial relations. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of resident entities, foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MOF. The sale of securities for liquidation of an investment abroad must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes. Issuance of securities constituting a loan by residents of the WAEMU zone to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.

Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using derivatives. They must be backed by the residents of the WAEMU zone' imports or exports of raw materials and commodities. Residents of the WAEMU zone are not authorized to purchase raw materials or commodities on foreign markets for delivery within the framework of a derivatives transaction in raw materials or commodities.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	The purchase of derivatives by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone on the domestic market is treated as a loan contracted by a resident with a nonresident. As such, it is permitted. The purchase must be executed through an authorized intermediary and must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone do not require prior authorization to purchase foreign exchange derivatives from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone do not require prior authorization to purchase foreign currency put options in the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the MOF.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods, provided the date on which payment falls due is not more than 120 days after the date of shipment.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These credits require MOF approval. Outward transfers necessary to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the MOF and substantiated by documentation.

TOGO

To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The granting of guarantees and sureties is subject to MOF approval. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require the issuance of an exchange authorization, subject to MOF approval and the submission of supporting documents.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered to be direct investments and therefore require declaration to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.	Direct investment implies control of a company or enterprise. Mere participation is not considered direct investment unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company. All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Inward direct investment	No.	FDI, including by resident companies directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. A share is not considered a direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the liquidation proceeds is subject to MOF authorization. If reinvestment is not authorized, the proceeds from the liquidation must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted but must be reported to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These purchases require MOF authorization.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company do not require prior authorization. They require declaration to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.

TOGO

Sale locally by nonresidents	No.	Sales by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone to residents of the WAEMU zone require the submission of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary handling the settlement and must be declared to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.	Personal capital transactions between residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through the BCEAO, the postal administration, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless MOF authorization is obtained.
Loans	Yes.	The regulations governing securities and investments apply.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions require MOF authorization. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation unless they are licensed and included on the list of financial institutions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions may be made freely but are subject to declaration to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes when disbursed and when repaid.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to MOF and BCEAO authorization. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant anti-money-laundering and terrorism financing provisions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	Immigrants with resident status must obtain MOF authorization to settle debts contracted abroad while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	These transactions are subject to MOF authorization if the value exceeds CFAF 500,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	Yes.	Foreign accounts (in foreign currency or CFA francs) of nonresidents of the WAEMU zone who become residents of the WAEMU zone must be closed. However, these residents of the WAEMU zone may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. New transfers to these accounts require MOF approval.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	These transfers are conducted freely via authorized intermediaries, subject to the presentation of supporting documents and compliance with the relevant provisions on combating money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The uniform act concerning dormant accounts on the books of financial institutions of WAMU member countries, adopted by the WAMU Council of Ministers, took effect September 28, 2012. WAMU Council of Ministers Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/12/2012 of December 14, 2012, establishes the deadline (December 31, 2013) for insertion of the uniform act into the WAMU members' national legal systems. The relevant provisions were adopted by the Togolese National Assembly on June 12, 2014, and formally enacted by the President of the Republic on June 16, 2014.
Borrowing abroad	No.	Foreign borrowing is unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid.

Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions on their own behalf or on behalf of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements. In accordance with Regulation No. 09/2010/CM/UEMOA on the External Financial Relations of the WAEMU Member States, to cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency. The total amount of these assets may not exceed 5% of the clients' outstanding demand deposits. Assets in excess of foreign currency requirements must be surrendered to the BCEAO.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Commercial lending is allowed. Financial credits are subject to MOF authorization following BCEAO approval.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	There are no explicit regulations regarding these transactions, but MOF authorization is required with BCEAO approval.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These purchases require MOF authorization if their issuance was not approved by the RCPSFM.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	A reserve requirement of 3% applies to WAEMU banks. Demand deposits, other deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the base for the calculation of the required reserves. The base for the calculation of the required reserves to be held with the CB includes customer foreign currency deposits.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	According to the prudential framework applicable to WAEMU banks and financial institutions that perform banking operations, the minimum standard liquid asset requirement is 75%.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to MOF authorization, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.	Banking regulations make no distinction among resident deposit accounts, nonresident deposit accounts, and foreign deposit accounts.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Any overdraft or advance granted to a nonresident requires MOF authorization and BCEAO approval.
Investment regulations	Yes.	The regulations governing direct investment apply.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.

TOGO

In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may, depending on their volume, be subject to MOF authorization. According to the banking law, investment in a bank by any person that would change the blocking minority and/or the majority of voting rights requires authorization of the MOF.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Banks may not maintain open foreign exchange positions because of the surrender requirement. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts to assist in the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Banks may not maintain open foreign exchange positions because of the surrender requirement. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts to assist in the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Banks may not maintain open foreign exchange positions because of the surrender requirement. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts to assist in the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits that may not exceed the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits that may not exceed the balance of their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than the euro and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Controls are imposed by the CIMA Code of the CFA franc area members.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Insurance companies may subscribe up to 40% of the total amount of regulated commitments of securities issued by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone that are offered publicly and traded regularly in a regulated market controlled by a CIMA member and listed by the Control Commission after approval by the appropriate CB or after being officially listed on a stock exchange of a CIMA member country (Paragraph 2 of Article 335-1 of the CIMA Code).
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

TOGO

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

Other managed arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is a pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands. The external value of the pa'anga is determined on the basis of a weighted currency basket comprising the US dollar, Australian dollar, New Zealand dollar, and Fijian dollar. The basket weights are determined based on the proportions of trade with trading partners. The exchange rate of the pa'anga in terms of the US dollar, the intervention currency, is fixed daily by the National Reserve Bank of Tonga (NRBT) within a band of  $\pm 5\%$  a month. The NRBT does not publish intervention data. Under Section 34 of the NRBT Act, the external value of the pa'anga is determined from time to time in a manner approved by the NRBT board, after consultation with the Ministry of Finance and National Planning, in view of Tonga's obligations connected with international monetary agreements in which it takes part. Section 35(1) of the NRBT Act empowers the NRBT to set the exchange rate. Because the composite weights cannot be confirmed, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as other managed.

Official exchange rate

Yes.

The NRBT sets the US dollar–pa'anga exchange rate daily which the banks use to set their exchange rates for the public. The official exchange rate set by the NRBT is the rate applicable for the transactions conducted by the NRBT for its customers which are the banks, government, public enterprises, and other international agencies. The value of the pa'anga, which is the official exchange rate, is determined on the basis of a weighted currency basket comprising the US dollar, Australian dollar, New Zealand dollar, and Fijian dollar.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	The monetary policy framework includes an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis a composite comprising the US dollar, Australian dollar, New Zealand dollar, and Fijian dollar. The exchange rate basket is intended to reduce exchange rate variability, maintain external competitiveness, and minimize imported inflation. The monetary policy framework also includes monitoring the monetary aggregates but no targets are set. A policy rate is also set which is equivalent to the interest rate paid on commercial banks' exchange settlement account with the CB. The policy rate floor system is currently set at 0. The CB board determines the monetary policy settings, and the board's decision is published on a monthly basis following the board's monthly meetings.
Exchange tax	Yes.	A levy is imposed on foreign exchange transactions. It is assessed and paid at a rate of one half of a cent imposed as part of the spread of the pa'anga value of every purchase and sale of foreign currency. Levy only applies if the spread is more than one half of a cent.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks and the authorized foreign exchange dealers (FEDs) may freely set their exchange rates and commissions in transactions with their clients, with the exception of banks' spreads on telegraphic transfers in US dollar, Australian dollar, and New Zealand dollar which are limited to 220 basis points, 300 basis points, and 350 basis points, respectively.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The NRBT has licensed four commercial banks and sixteen FEDs. Only licensed banks may make spot foreign exchange transactions directly with the NRBT, while FEDs transact only with the commercial banks. FEDs can conduct money conversion (conversion of foreign currency notes to/from Tongan pa'anga) and/or remittances business (inward and outward remittances). Ten of the FEDs hold license Type A, five hold license Type B, and only one holds license Type C. FEDs with Type A are authorized to conduct money conversion, make foreign currency payments on behalf of their clients, and receive fund from overseas (both inward and outward remittances). FEDs with license Type B are authorized to receive funds from overseas only (inward remittances), and license Type C is for money conversion only. Licensed banks are authorized under their banking license to conduct foreign exchange business. Licensed banks and FEDs can maintain accounts abroad.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The NRBT operates a foreign exchange fixing arrangement.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The NRBT sets the US dollar–pa’anga rate on a daily basis and buys and sells foreign exchange at these exchange rates with commercial banks. The NRBT deals with commercial banks and the government, public enterprises, and international agencies on demand. For the commercial banks’ transactions, they are required to list all the underlying customers. All foreign currency payments from Tongan pa’anga accounts, through either the commercial banks or the NRBT, are subject to the Exchange Control requirements, so supporting documents are provided accordingly which would verify whether the transactions are bona fide.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There are four commercial banks, which are licensed by the NRBT, and they may trade among themselves. The NRBT does not intervene directly with market participants at their quoted rates. The NRBT sets the US dollar–Tongan pa’anga exchange rate which is used for the NRBT’s daily foreign currency transactions with the commercial banks, and these deals are at the commercial banks’ initiative. Commercial banks also maintain nostro accounts, and their total balances must not exceed T$1 million daily, with the exception of one commercial bank with a temporary limit of T$2.5 million which was necessary to allow this bank to meet the minimum requirements for a US dollar correspondent bank account in Australia. Excess foreign exchange must be sold to the NRBT within two business days. The NRBT imposes limits on commercial banks’ spread on telegraphic transfers in US dollar, Australian dollar, and New Zealand dollar of 220 bp, 300 bp, and 350 bp, respectively. There are no limits on the spreads for the interbank foreign currency transactions (among commercial banks only).
Over the counter	No.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	Yes.	The foreign exchange market operations (commercial banks and their own customers) are based on a market-making agreement.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks may provide forward exchange cover for their own customers up to the equivalent of each bank’s current capital position. The NRBT does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

TONGA

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Settlements are normally made in convertible currencies acceptable to both parties. On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Cash exports of T$10,000 or more (both domestic and foreign currency cash totaling to an equivalent of T$10,000 or more) require NRBT approval under the Foreign Exchange Control Act 2018. The Customs Act restricts exports of cash except with written permission of the NRBT governor. It is required to present valid passport, airline ticket, and evidence of source of cash.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Cash exports of T$10,000 or more (both domestic and foreign currency cash totaling to an equivalent of T$10,000 or more) require NRBT approval under the Foreign Exchange Control Act 2018. The Customs Act restricts exports of cash except with written permission of the NRBT governor. It is required to present valid passport, airline ticket, and evidence of source of cash. All exports of cash cargo and hand carry of cash of T$10,000 or more must be declared to Customs. Failure to declare to Customs amounts to a false misleading declaration under the Customs and Excise Management Act Order 2007; the sanctions include administrative penalties under Section 82 and prosecution under Section 93B of the Act.
On imports	No.
Domestic currency	No.	Cash imports of T$10,000 or more are restricted under customs laws and must be declared on the arrival card. Approval is not required.
Foreign currency	No.	Cash imports equivalent to T$10,000 or more are restricted under customs laws and must be declared on the arrival card. Approval is not required.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts can be opened for both residents and nonresidents. The NRBT allows banks to open these accounts as long as the funds come from abroad. Outward transfers from foreign currency accounts do not require NRBT approval since November 1, 2018. Any deposit and/or withdrawal to/from the foreign currency accounts from/to a local Tongan pa'anga account or another local foreign currency account must be converted to its Tongan pa'anga equivalent first before they are converted back to the relevant foreign currency.
Approval required	Yes.	NRBT approval is required to open foreign currency accounts or make payments to these accounts that are sourced from local funds.
Held abroad	Yes.	Residents require prior approval from the NRBT to open and maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad since November 1, 2018. NRBT approval is required for the transfer of funds from Tongan pa'anga accounts held locally (subject to the Exchange Control requirements) to accounts held abroad.
Approval required	Yes.	Residents require prior approval from the NRBT to open and maintain foreign exchange accounts abroad since November 1, 2018.

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO

(Position as of June 30, 2021)

Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership		September 16, 1963.
Article VIII	Yes.	Date of acceptance: December 13, 1993.
Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2018 Article IV Consultation with Trinidad and Tobago states that, as of August 6, 2018, Trinidad and Tobago maintained an exchange restriction and two MCPs subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) and Section 3. The exchange restriction arises from the authorities' restriction of the exchange rate (that is, by restricting the maximum market buying and selling rates, and prohibiting foreign exchange transactions beyond the maximum rates), while not providing enough foreign exchange (that is, through the Central Bank of Trinidad and Tobago (CBTT)'s foreign exchange interventions) to meet all demand for current transactions at that rate. The CBTT also limits sales of its foreign exchange intervention funds to meeting only "trade-related" demand, which do not include non-trade transactions that are, however, current international transactions as defined under Article XXX(d) of the IMF's Articles of Agreement, and encourages ADs to similarly prioritize sales of foreign exchange obtained from other sources. Further, the authorities prioritize provision of foreign exchange to certain manufacturers through a special foreign exchange facility using the Export-Import Bank of Trinidad and Tobago (EximBank). These actions result in undue delays in access to foreign exchange to make payments or transfers for current international transactions and external payment arrears. The two MCPs arise from the absence of a mechanism to prevent the potential deviation of more than 2% at any given time among several effective exchange rates regulated by the authorities, for spot exchange transactions, namely: (1) the potential 2% deviation between: (a) on the one hand, the CBTT's intervention rate and the ADs' selling rates (the maximum of which is anchored on the intervention rate plus fixed margins), and (b) on the other hand, the ADs' buying rates (the maximum of which is limited at the previous day's mid-rate); (2) the potential 2% deviation between: (a) on the one hand, the buying and selling rates for foreign exchange transactions between the CBTT and the government, and (b) on the other hand, the ADs' selling rates. (Country Report No. 18/285)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	No.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	No.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	Yes.	The currency of Trinidad and Tobago is the Trinidad and Tobago dollar.
Other legal tender	No.

Unitary

Dual

Multiple

Yes. The system is multiple as the authorities' actions give rise to several exchange rates for spot exchange transactions, resulting in MCPs. The exchange rates for spot transactions in effect include: (1) the CBTT's intervention rate, (2) the ADs' selling rates, the ceiling of which is set by the CBTT based on fixed margins over the latest intervention rate, (3) the ADs' buying rates for purchases from the market, the ceiling of which is established at the prior day's mid-rate as guided and monitored by the CBTT, (4) the CBTT to government's selling rate, which is set at the prior day's average selling rate, and (5) the CBTT from government's buying rate, which is set at the prior day's mid-rate. The two MCPs arise from the absence of a mechanism to prevent the potential deviation of more than 2% at any given time among these multiple effective exchange rates regulated by the authorities, for spot exchange transactions, namely: (1) the potential 2% deviation between: (a) on the one hand, the CBTT's intervention rate and the ADs' selling rates (the maximum of which is anchored on the intervention rate plus fixed margins), and (b) on the other hand, the ADs' buying rates (the maximum of which is limited at the previous day's mid-rate); (2) the potential 2% deviation between: (a) on the one hand, the buying and selling rates for foreign exchange transactions between the CBTT and the government, and (b) on the other hand, the ADs' selling rates.

Classification

No separate legal tender

Currency board

Conventional peg

Stabilized arrangement

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The CBTT intervenes regularly, and with no significant developments in the domestic foreign exchange market, the exchange rate has remained relatively stable. Because the Trinidad and Tobago dollar stabilized within a 2% band against the US dollar, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as stabilized. The CBTT publishes daily and monthly purchases and sales by the CB and ADs.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The official or reference exchange rate is used by various parties to process specific transactions and is calculated as the weighted average exchange rate for the US dollar of all transactions settled during the prior business day by commercial banks and other ADs.

The selling and buying rates have a ceiling that is defined by a fixed margin over the latest intervention rate, and the prior day's mid-rate as guided and monitored by the CB. The intervention rate is not published.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Commercial banks and nonbank financial institutions may conduct foreign exchange transactions, both spot and forward, with the public without limitation. ADs determine their selling rates to maintain a maximum spread of 1% above the CB intervention rate on the intervention settlement date with fixed margins thereafter for all spot transactions. ADs determine their buying rates, the maximum of which is limited at the previous day's mid-rate.

Spot exchange market Yes. As of June 30, 2021, there were 13 institutions: 8 commercial banks and 5 nonbank financial institutions, licensed by the CBTT to deal in foreign exchange with the public. These institutions constitute the group of ADs. Since 2018, the EximBank holds a limited-scope AD license to conduct specific foreign exchange transactions. The terms and conditions of this license are in accordance with the existing laws and regulations. Through the EximBank, the authorities prioritize provision of foreign exchange to certain manufacturers. Through the US$100-million EximBank facility, eligible small and medium exporters are able to obtain foreign exchange to finance inputs for export operations.

Foreign exchange bureaus are also licensed by the CBTT, but they may only buy currency notes, coins, and traveler's checks and sell currency notes and coins (Clause 1 of the Terms and Conditions agreed to by all operators on the issuance of a license from the CBTT). As of June 30, 2021, there were five authorized foreign exchange bureau operators with 76 locations; they do not conduct foreign exchange transactions directly with the CBTT.

Operated by the central bank Yes. Until May 2012, the CBTT intervened in the foreign exchange market solely through a predetermined allocation system. In May 2012, the CBTT introduced an auction system that operated alongside its usual fixed allocation system for a portion of its intervention. The last auction held under this system was in June 2014.

Foreign exchange standing facility Yes. The CBTT also provides a Foreign Exchange Liquidity Guarantee Facility to the ADs. The facility provides a source of liquidity that ADs can draw on if needed to quickly reduce an extended open position during times when there is a paucity of supply, as happens seasonally in the domestic market. Whilst the facility has been in existence since 2009, it was never utilized by the ADs and was temporarily suspended. The facility was reestablished in March 2017 and operates periodically. The last Foreign Exchange Liquidity Guarantee Facility operated for a period of 12 months and expired effective June 30, 2021. During 2020, the ADs accessed US$57.2 million from the facility.

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO

Allocation	Yes.	The CBTT allocates some foreign exchange as part of its intervention. This system is based, among other things, on ADs' market share, asset base, and distribution network. Based on these criteria, dealers and their allocations are assessed annually. Intervention funds are to be used to settle trade-related requests for foreign exchange from the public. The CBTT encourages ADs to prioritize foreign exchange interventions to meet trade-related demand.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There is an interbank foreign exchange market, which as of June 30, 2021, comprises of 12 ADs licensed by the CB. The other AD in the market holds a limited-scope license for specific foreign exchange transactions. The ADs trade among themselves at freely determined rates, without any additional conditions. The CBTT does not intervene directly with individual participants.
Over the counter	Yes.	The market operates over the counter. The CBTT intervenes directly by selling, at its discretion, foreign currency to ADs in amounts and at prices that it determines based on market conditions.

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating, as indicated on the Central Bank of Tunisia (BCT—Banque Centrale de Tunisie) website. The BCT intervenes in the foreign exchange market to reduce erratic fluctuations in the exchange rate on the market. Since January 1, 2019, the foreign exchange auctions have been held on daily basis and the BCT ceased interventions outside the auction mechanism, and calls for tender (appel d'offre) became the sole intervention method. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a crawl-like arrangement. The BCT publishes the results of foreign currency tenders on its BCTADJ Reuters and Bloomberg contribution page on a daily basis and the amount of its interventions on the CB's website.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The BCT's reference exchange rate is based on the results of foreign exchange auctions to allow for price discovery. The BCT's reference exchange rates are used for transactions between the BCT and the government. Customs also uses the BCT's reference rates for valuation. On August 1, 2018, the BCT began resorting to competitive foreign exchange auctions to support price discovery in the foreign exchange market but maintained bilateral transactions. Since January 1, 2019, the foreign exchange auctions became more frequent and the BCT ceased interventions outside the auction mechanism, and calls for tender (appel d'offre) became the sole intervention method.

Since 2011, the CB has adopted a transitional regime that places greater emphasis on the dynamics of inflation and its determinants, and on its short- and medium-term outlook in formulating its monetary policy stance. This framework replaced the monetary targeting strategy, which had shown its limitations in managing the post-revolutionary phase, notably because of the instability of the money multiplier (cf. “Tunisia Monetary Policy Since the Arab Spring: The Fall of the Exchange Rate Anchor and Rise of Inflation Targeting” by K.M. El Hamiani, N. End, and R. Kolsi, IMF WP/20/167).

TUNISIA

This new framework was reinforced by Article 7 of Law No. 2016-35 of April 25, 2016, Establishing the Charter of the BCT, which removed any ambiguity around the BCT's main mission, which is the preservation of price stability.

Under the current monetary policy framework, the interest rate is BCT's preferred monetary policy instrument, and inflation projections constitute the intermediate target.

This transition was made possible by the development of analytical and operational frameworks for monetary policy. In collaboration with a number of CBs, the BCT has succeeded in setting up an analysis and forecasting system to assess risks surrounding the inflation outlook. In addition, in 2017 it focused on reforming its regulatory framework for conducting monetary policy through the publication of Circular No. 201702 on the Implementation of Monetary Policy by the BCT, which defines the monetary policy instruments, the money market participants, and eligible collateral for refinancing.

This framework favored a restrictive monetary policy stance that resulted in an increase in the policy rate in February 2019 to 7.75%, which strongly supported the disinflationary process, and succeeded in reducing the inflation rate from a maximum of 7.7% in June 2018 to 4.9% at the end of 2020, thus returning to positive real interest rates, an action whose beneficial effects were soon felt in terms of reduced external vulnerability, accumulation of foreign exchange reserves, and appreciation of the dinar against the major currencies. These developments enabled an easing of monetary policy to mitigate the impact of the COVID-19 crisis on the domestic economy. To this end, the BCT decided to lower its key rate by 100 basis points, bringing it down to 6.75% in March 2020, then by 50 basis points to 6.25% at the end of September 2020, amid a relaxation of inflationary pressures.

Despite an unfavorable international and national environment (unprecedented health and economic crises, tense socio-political climate, etc.), the BCT is still working on a number of prerequisites (macroeconomic stabilization, exchange rate flexibility, deepening of the markets, and monetary policy communication). To this end, and as part of the 2019–2021 strategic project “Clear, transparent, and credible governance for the conduct of monetary policy,” the BCT has requested technical assistance from the IMF for the preparation of a roadmap for the migration to an explicit inflation targeting framework.

		OTC operations through specialized agencies referred to as exchange bureaus. Exchange bureaus publish buying and selling exchange rates in dinars and transact with clients for foreign banknotes and traveler's checks. This activity is carried out via simple declaration to the BCT and is subject to Circular No. 2008-04. Exchange bureau operations are limited to buying and selling foreign banknotes and traveler's checks. Banks carry out transactions with the BCT and open accounts with foreign correspondents. On the functioning of the foreign exchange market, all resident and nonresident authorized intermediaries may act as counterparties in transactions carried out in the foreign exchange market. There are about 20 active participants in the foreign exchange market. Twenty-three banks participate actively in the exchange market.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.

Auction	Yes.	Currency swaps are carried out through auctions at the initiative of the BCT, which consist of spot buying or selling of dinars in exchange for foreign currency and simultaneously undertaking to resell or repurchase the amount in the future at a predetermined rate. On August 1, 2018, the BCT began resorting to competitive foreign exchange auctions to support price discovery in the foreign exchange market but maintained bilateral transactions. The results of the auctions are published daily after each auction on the BCT contribution pages on Reuters. On January 1, 2019, the foreign exchange auctions became more frequent to support price discovery in the foreign exchange market and the BCT ceased interventions outside the auction mechanism, and calls for tender (appel d'offre) became the sole intervention method.

Title V of this circular relating to risk management rules. Authorized intermediaries are authorized to perform foreign currency/dinar and foreign currency/foreign currency exchange swap transactions with their customers.

Foreign exchange swaps in which a resident customer buys spot and sells forward foreign currency against dinars must be backed by transactions carried out abroad in accordance with the regulations in force. These swaps may be performed with an authorized intermediary other than the paying agent of the underlying transaction.

For foreign currency/dinar exchange swaps performed with nonresident customers, an authorized intermediary only buys spot and sells forward dinars.

For foreign currency/dinar exchange swaps performed with nonresident authorized intermediaries, an authorized intermediary only buys spot and sells forward dinars.

Authorized intermediaries are authorized to perform foreign currency/dinar and foreign currency/foreign currency exchange swap transactions with foreign financial institutions in compliance with the regulations provided for under Title V of this circular relating to risk management rules.

For foreign currency/dinar exchange swap transactions performed with foreign financial institutions, an authorized intermediary only buys spot and sells forward dinars.

Authorized intermediaries are authorized to perform “plain vanilla” interest rate swap (IRS) transactions with their customers as part of their financial transactions in dinars and foreign currencies in accordance with the regulations in force.

The schedule of an IRS contract must coincide with the contractual settlement dates of the underlying transaction. Authorized intermediaries are authorized to perform IRS transactions among themselves and with foreign financial institutions to hedge against the interest rate risk incurred on the portfolio of IRS performed with their customers, in accordance with the regulations set forth in Title V of this circular relating to risk management rules.

Authorized intermediaries are authorized to perform foreign currency/dinar and foreign currency/foreign currency “plain vanilla” cross-currency swap (CCS) transactions with their customers as part of their financial transactions in foreign currency in accordance with the regulations in force.

For foreign currency/dinar currency swaps performed with nonresident customers, an authorized intermediary only sells dinars against foreign currency, except for transactions involving the transfer of capital and investment income.

The schedule of a currency swap contract must coincide with the contractual settlement dates of the underlying transaction.

Authorized intermediaries are authorized to perform foreign currency/dinar and foreign currency/foreign currency swaps among themselves to hedge against the exchange rate risk incurred on the portfolio of currency swaps performed with their customers.

Authorized intermediaries are authorized to perform foreign currency/foreign currency swaps with foreign financial institutions to hedge against the exchange rate risk incurred on the portfolio of currency swaps performed with their customers, in accordance with the regulations set forth in Title V of this circular relating to risk management rules. A currency swap may be terminated prior to its final maturity, in whole or in part, in accordance with international practices.

Authorized intermediaries are authorized to perform forward rate agreement (FRA) transactions involving the dinar and foreign currencies with their customers as part of their financial transactions in accordance with the regulations in force.

The hedge schedule must coincide with the contractual settlement date of the underlying transaction.

Authorized intermediaries are authorized to perform FRA transactions among themselves and with foreign financial institutions to hedge against the interest rate risk incurred on the portfolio of FRAs performed with their customers, in accordance with the regulations set forth in Title V of this circular relating to risk management rules.

Authorized intermediaries are authorized to perform on behalf of their customers hedging transactions against commodity price fluctuations with foreign financial institutions or in organized international markets, in accordance with the regulations set forth in Title V of this circular relating to risk management rules.

The authorized hedging instruments are standard “plain vanilla” instruments in the OTC market, including those whose settlement depends on the average underlying price over a given period, and instruments traded in organized international markets.

Hedging contracts must be for inputs and/or outputs in the form of commodities within the economic operator’s operating cycle. The economic operator may benefit from a hedging program over several fiscal years.

The prices of the derivatives are freely negotiated between the customer and the counterparty bank.

The BCT does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market.

Official cover of forward operations Yes.

The national reinsurance company manages the exchange cover mechanism for banks and financial institutions with respect to their borrowing abroad.
