Preface

The Annual Report on Exchange Arrangements and Exchange Restrictions has been published by the IMF since 1950. It draws on information available to the IMF from a number of sources, including that provided in the course of official staff visits to member countries, and has been prepared in close consultation with national authorities.

This project was coordinated in the Monetary and Capital Markets Department under the guidance of Annamaria Kokenyne by a staff team led by Salim M. Darbar and comprising Apoorv Bhargava, Ricardo Cervantes, Pornpinun Chantapacdepong, Gergana Gencheva, Ingibjoerg Gudbjartsdottir, Jerzy Jiang, Tiffany Lacroux, Thorvardur Tjoervi Olafsson, Svetlana Popova, Markus Specht, Hanqing Ye, and Viktoriya Zotova (external consultant). It draws on the specialized contributions of that department (for specific countries), with assistance from staff members of the IMF's five area departments, together with staff of other departments. The report was edited and produced by Runit Pancholi, David Appleman, and Lucy Scott Morales of the Communications Department.

Overview

This is the 72nd issue of the Annual Report on Exchange Arrangements and Exchange Restrictions (AREAER), which provides a yearly description of the foreign exchange arrangements, exchange and trade systems, and capital controls of all IMF member countries.<sup>1</sup> The AREAER reports on restrictions in effect under Article XIV, Section 2, of the IMF's Articles of Agreement in accordance with Section 3 of Article XIV, which mandates annual reporting on such restrictions.<sup>2</sup> It also provides information relating to paragraph 25 of the 2012 Integrated Surveillance Decision, which restates the obligation of each member country under the IMF's Articles of Agreement to notify the IMF of the exchange arrangement it intends to apply and any changes in that arrangement.<sup>3</sup>

The AREAER provides a description of global exchange and trade systems. It covers restrictions on current international payments and transfers and multiple currency practices (MCPs) subject to the IMF's jurisdiction in accordance with Article VIII, Sections 2(a) and 3, in addition to those maintained under Article XIV of the IMF's Articles of Agreement.<sup>4</sup> The report also provides information on the operation of foreign exchange markets, controls on international trade, controls on capital transactions, and measures implemented in the financial sector, including prudential measures. In addition, the AREAER reports on exchange measures imposed by member countries solely for national and/or international security reasons, including those reported to the IMF in accordance with relevant decisions by the IMF Executive Board.<sup>5</sup>

The AREAER provides information, relating to paragraph 25 of the 2012 Integrated Surveillance Decision, on exchange rate arrangements of member countries: the de jure arrangements as described by the countries and the de facto arrangements, which are classified into 10 categories (Table 1). This classification is based on the information available on members' de facto arrangements, as analyzed by IMF staff, which may differ from countries' officially announced (de jure) arrangements. The methodology and the characteristics of the categories are described in the Compilation Guide included in this report.

Table 1. Classification of Exchange Rate Arrangements

Type	Categories
Hard pegs	Exchange arrangement with no separate legal tender
Soft pegs	Conventional pegged arrangement
Floating regimes (market-determined rates)	Floating
Residual	Other managed arrangement

Note: This methodology became effective February 2, 2009, and reflects an attempt to provide greater consistency and objectivity of exchange rate classifications across countries and to improve the transparency of the IMF's bilateral and multilateral surveillance in this area. For further details, see IMF Working Paper 09/211. <https://www.imf.org/en/Publications/WP/Issues/2016/12/31/Revised-System-for-the-Classification-of-Exchange-Rate-Arrangements-23311>

<sup>4</sup> The information on exchange restrictions and MCPs consists of verbatim quotes from each country's most recent published IMF staff report as of December 31, 2020. In cases in which the information is drawn from IMF staff reports that have not been made public, the quotes have been included with the express consent of the member country. In the absence of such consent, the relevant information is reported as "not publicly available." Any changes to these restrictions and MCPs implemented after the relevant IMF report has been issued will be reflected in the subsequent issue of the AREAER that covers the year during which the IMF staff report with information on such changes is issued.

<sup>5</sup> The information on exchange measures imposed for security reasons is based solely on information provided by country authorities.

Several tools help navigate and interpret the findings of this report. A single table compares the characteristics of the exchange and trade systems of all IMF member countries: Summary Features of Exchange Arrangements and Regulatory Frameworks for Current and Capital Transactions in IMF Member Countries.

The Country Table Matrix lists the categories of data reported for each country, and the Compilation Guide includes definitions and explanations used to report the data.

The AREAER is available online. As of January 1, 2020, access to AREAER Online is freely available to all; previously a subscription was required. The AREAER Online database includes the overview and detailed information for each of its member countries—which increased by 1, to 190, in this issue with the addition of Andorra, which became a member on October 16, 2020—and separately for a few members' territories.<sup>6</sup> In addition, AREAER Online contains data published in previous issues of the AREAER and is searchable by year, country, and category of measure; it also allows cross-country comparisons for time series.<sup>7 8</sup>

In general, previous vintages of the AREAER published in a particular year included a description of exchange and trade systems as of the end of December of the previous year, with some reporting data through part of the publication year and de facto exchange rate arrangements as of the end of April of the publication year. The 2021 AREAER, similarly to the previous year's publication, includes a description of exchange and trade systems as of June 30, 2021, for virtually all members; some report developments through August 31, 2021.<sup>9</sup> Nevertheless, in keeping with past AREAERs, information on member countries' de facto exchange rate arrangements in this report are as of April 30, 2021.

Overall Developments

The COVID-19 pandemic resulted in the largest slowdown in global economic activity in recent history, with global GDP contracting by 3.1 percent (October 2021 World Economic Outlook [WEO]). The contraction was deep and sudden compared with previous global crises. There was a swift and sizable response to the shock, including through fiscal and financial sector measures.<sup>10</sup> Major central banks and, for the first time, some emerging market central banks undertook quantitative easing with asset purchase programs. The record portfolio outflows from emerging markets at the start of the pandemic reversed somewhat later in the year, but the flows remained volatile. Emerging market and developing economies responded to the capital outflows and the outlook for a severe recession, including by permitting exchange rates to depreciate, intervening in the foreign exchange market, and tightening administrative controls on foreign exchange transactions. To shore up their international reserves, many member countries received IMF financing through its emergency lending facilities. The large number of measures reported, the highest compared with previous years, likely reflect the objective to cushion the adverse impact of the pandemic and counter the severe downturn in economic activity and include the imposition of capital controls to protect reserves, particularly in economies dependent on travel and tourism.

There was a significant recovery in economic activity in 2021 despite the fluctuating intensity of the pandemic. Global GDP grew at 5.9 percent with both advanced and emerging market and developing economies showing strong growth. However, this was accompanied by rising inflation in part because of rising energy costs and supply disruptions and high demand for goods, especially in the United States. Monetary conditions

<sup>6</sup> Aruba, Curaçao and Sint Maarten (all in the Kingdom of the Netherlands; information for Curaçao and Sint Maarten is reported together as they have a common central bank) and Hong Kong SAR (People's Republic of China). Hence, detailed information is available for 193 jurisdictions.

<sup>8</sup> The number of yearly changes reported by each country can be compared directly with those of the previous four reporting periods but not with those of years before that because of the update to the format of the yearly changes table, which was introduced with the 2017 publication (see the 2017 AREAER).

<sup>9</sup> The date of the latest reported development is indicated as the position date for each country in the country chapters in the AREAER Online database. A few countries reported developments beyond August 2021. Data for Syria and Myanmar are as of the end of 2018 and the end of August 2020, respectively.

<sup>10</sup> See the IMF Policy Tracker: <https://www.imf.org/en/Topics/imf-and-covid19/Policy-Responses-to-COVID-19#top>.

tightened given the risks from higher inflation. Central banks in advanced economies took steps toward policy normalization, while those in several emerging markets continued to tighten monetary policy (January 2022 WEO Update). Many actions reported in the AREAER continued to be influenced by the pandemic. Some countries were able to gradually reverse previously imposed capital controls to shore up reserves and reported these as liberalization measures. At the same time, the reversal of temporary measures taken to ease some of the adverse impacts of the pandemic led to tightening of, or reversion to, the pre-pandemic regulations. Overall, the trend was toward liberalization of measures.

The 2021 AREAER documents the following major trends and significant developments:

- There was no significant shift in de facto exchange rate arrangements during this reporting period compared with the end of April 2020; about the same number of economies moved toward more flexibility as moved toward reduced flexibility. However, the number of reclassifications doubled, and about half of these occurred during the first quarter of 2020, reflecting adjustments to the countries' exchange rate policy in response to the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic.
- The share of countries that target a monetary aggregate increased compared with the previous period, with the number almost fully reverting to what it was in April 2019. The proportion of countries with an exchange rate anchor changed slightly when Andorra became a member in October 2020 (anchored to the euro) and with the change in Liberia's monetary policy framework, which reported targeting monetary aggregates (previously anchored to the US dollar). The number of member countries following an inflation-targeting framework also increased slightly. Correspondingly, there was a drop in countries in the "other monetary framework" category.
- A number of central banks increased interventions in their foreign exchange markets and took extraordinary measures to fight depreciation pressure on the country's currency in response to the high uncertainty associated with the COVID-19 pandemic throughout 2020 and the beginning of 2021. Although derivative instruments are not the most frequently used intervention tools, some countries also reported an increase in the use of the following instruments: options, nondeliverable forwards, and interventions through swaps.
- Foreign exchange market liberalization continued. In a number of countries, market activities became more sophisticated through upgraded central bank auction rules and more market-oriented foreign exchange allocations. Several countries eased controls on exchange rate spreads and commissions in the interbank and retail markets. Liberalization measures were implemented also in the forward market, allowing banks to contract more foreign exchange derivative operations and customers to better manage their foreign exchange exposures using foreign exchange swaps.
- The number of IMF member countries accepting the obligations of Article VIII, Sections 2(a), 3, and 4, increased by 1 in 2020 reaching 173 members, while the number of members that make use of the transitional arrangement under Article XIV remained unchanged (17) at the end of 2020. Of these 17 Article XIV members, 4 maintain no restrictions but have not yet decided to accept the obligations under Article VIII. The number of countries maintaining restrictive exchange measures fell from 48 in 2019 to 47 at the end of 2020. Two members removed all previously identified restrictive measures, while in one other member (whose exchange system had previously been free of exchange restrictions and MCPs) one such measure was identified in 2020. Overall, the number of restrictive exchange measures decreased by 2 in 2020—mostly in Article XIV countries.
- Liberalizing actions dominated the current account in 2020, amid an increased number of measures. Trade-related easing measures reached a record high in 2020, more than doubling compared with 2019, as members attempted to contain the repercussions of the COVID-19 pandemic. The liberalizing trend in payments and proceeds for invisible transactions and current transfers, which had reversed in 2019, also regained traction in 2020 and 2021 as members once again introduced more easing than tightening measures. Although several easing measures were reported among changes to account transactions, a trend toward more restrictive actions was discernible in this category. This can be attributed largely to pandemic-related attempts to safeguard international reserves—for instance, by restricting outward transactions from domestic foreign currency accounts.
- Tighter restrictions on international capital flows emerged in 2020 against the backdrop of the COVID-19 pandemic. The number of changes in capital controls increased, with significantly more tightening actions—on both inflows and outflows—than in previous years, and changes were dominated largely by COVID-19-related measures. The outflow controls were introduced mostly by tourism-dependent emerging market and developing economies and low-income developing countries, which were severely affected by the COVID-19 pandemic. The inflow controls were explained largely by the tightening of the foreign direct investment (FDI) screening mechanism in EU member countries and some other advanced economies for national security reasons amid the COVID-19 pandemic. The majority of easing actions were taken by emerging market and developing economies, highlighting the continued liberalization trend in countries with relatively fewer external vulnerabilities—despite the pandemic. Based on partial-year data for 2021, COVID-19–related measures continued to dominate and consisted of easing of previous controls and extension of pandemic-related measures; tightening actions were markedly lower.

- Overall regulatory developments in the financial sector in 2020–21 reflected extensive policy responses at the outset of the pandemic and their subsequent withdrawal in 2021, with notable differences between commercial banks and institutional investors. Reported prudential measures peaked in 2020 with an exceptionally high share of easing measures on commercial banks to support their continued capacity to lend to the real economy. In contrast, prudential measures on institutional investors were broadly tightened in 2020–21. This likely reflects greater leeway to relax prudential measures on banks relative to institutional investors, given the reforms implemented in the banking sector following the global financial crisis. Institutional investors were also far more likely to face tighter capital controls than commercial banks during the pandemic. Hence, while the number of capital controls in 2020–21 was similar to those of the pre-pandemic years, they were geared toward limiting capital outflows by institutional investors to a greater extent than before.

The remainder of this overview highlights the major developments covered in the individual country chapters that are part of this report.

Developments in Exchange Arrangements

This section documents major changes and trends in the following related areas: exchange rate arrangements, intervention, monetary anchors, and the operation and structure of foreign exchange markets. It also reports on significant developments with respect to exchange taxes, exchange rate structures, and national currencies. There are five tables in this section. Table 2 highlights changes in the reclassification of the de facto exchange rate arrangements between May 1, 2020, and April 30, 2021. Table 3 breaks down countries' de facto exchange rate arrangements for 2013–21. Table 4 summarizes the detailed descriptions in the country chapters by reporting each IMF member country's monetary policy framework as indicated by country officials and the classification of their de facto exchange rate arrangements. Table 5 outlines IMF member countries' monetary policy frameworks as reported by country authorities and exchange rate anchors for 2013–21, and Table 6 reports the foreign exchange market structure among the membership for 2018–21.

Exchange Rate Arrangements<sup>11</sup>

In 2020, many countries experienced a worsening of macroeconomic conditions, mostly caused by the COVID-19 pandemic. External demand declined substantially, adversely affecting economic growth. The restrictions imposed to tackle the pandemic had a negative impact in most sectors of the economy, especially the tourism-related segments. Some economies were also affected by a sharp decline in oil and commodity prices. These factors, along with heightened demand for foreign currency by economic agents as a result of increased negative expectations—particularly in the first and third quarters of 2020—led to a weakening of most currencies.

The policy responses, particularly in advanced economies, eased global financial market uncertainty and reduced the intensity of capital outflows from emerging market and developing economies, dampening pressure on their exchange rates. During the last quarter of 2020 until April 2021, foreign exchange market conditions gradually stabilized against the backdrop of gradual easing of strict quarantine restrictions, restoration of economic activity, an increase in oil prices, and investor demand for risky assets, including the currencies of developing economies.

<sup>11</sup> This section summarizes developments between May 1, 2020, and April 30, 2021. However, some reclassifications in the exchange rate arrangement reflect policy changes that occurred during the first quarter of 2020, which were not included in the previous AREAER (with a cutoff date of April 30, 2020) because the exchange rate classification system requires at least six months of observations for a reclassification.

Similar to the previous reporting period, changes in de facto exchange rate arrangements during this reporting period were balanced, with almost the same number of countries moving from less to more flexible exchange rate arrangements than in the opposite direction. Of the 30 countries whose exchange rate arrangement was reclassified as of April 2021<sup>12</sup> (Table 2), 14 countries (47 percent) were reclassified to a more flexible arrangement (compared with 7 of 15 countries, or 47 percent, during the previous reporting period); 16 countries (53 percent) were classified to a more managed arrangement (compared with 8 of 15 countries, or 53 percent, during the previous reporting period).

During this AREAER’s reporting period, the number of reclassifications (as of April 30, 2021) doubled (30) compared with the previous reporting period (15 as of April 2020). Since 2015, at least two-thirds of the reclassifications reported each year took place in soft peg arrangements,<sup>13</sup> except those reported in the 2016 AREAER (from May 2015 to April 2016), when the “other managed” classification represented around 70 percent of all reclassifications (Figure 1). The share of countries whose exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to a soft peg increased by 7 percentage points, from 60 percent in the previous period. Similarly, the adjustments in floating categories rose by 10 percentage points, from 13 percent, while the residual category “other managed” had decreased 17 percentage points, from 27 percent in the previous AREAER.

(Percent of total reclassifications as of April 30)

Fifty percent of all reclassifications took effect in the first quarter of 2020, reflecting adjustments to the countries' exchange rate policy in response to the COVID-19 pandemic (Figure 2). In 2020, the largest share of reclassifications consisted of low-income developing countries (53 percent), followed by emerging market and developing economies (42 percent) and advanced economies (6 percent). During the first quarter, 30 percent of reclassifications in 2020 involved a switch to soft pegs, of which 19 percent can be attributed to low-income developing countries, while 11 percent of reclassifications were a switch to floating, all of which were emerging market and developing economies. The pace of reclassification gradually declined beginning in the second quarter, with reclassifications to soft pegs the preferred exchange rate arrangement in both low-income developing countries and emerging market and developing economies in 2020.

The changes in individual categories are as follows:

- Soft pegs—The total number of countries with soft pegs had a net increase of 2, to 92, compared with the previous reporting period. The majority of reclassifications took place in this group, with most of the changes in crawl-like and stabilized arrangements. Countries with soft pegs continue to make up the single largest type of exchange rate arrangement, accounting for 47.7 percent of members (Table 3).
- o Crawl-like arrangements—There was a net increase of 1 in the number of countries with crawl-like arrangements, to 24, continuing the increasing trend since 2017 (Figure 3; Table 4). Although the net increase was only by 1, this category registered most of the changes in this reporting period (21). Eleven countries were added: five were reclassified from floating (Ghana, Mozambique, Philippines, Switzerland, Zambia), three from “other managed” (Afghanistan, Argentina, China), two from stabilized (Malawi, Vietnam), and one from conventional peg (Solomon Islands<sup>14</sup>). Ten countries exited this classification: seven moved to a stabilized arrangement

- o Stabilized arrangements—There was a net increase of 1 in the number of countries with stabilized arrangements, to 24. Within soft pegs, following crawl-like arrangements, this category registered the second largest number of changes. Eight countries joined the group: seven from crawl-like arrangement (Algeria, Bangladesh, Cambodia, Egypt, Mongolia, Papua New Guinea, Singapore) and one from “other managed” (The Gambia). Seven countries left this group: three to floating (Armenia, Sri Lanka, Yemen), two to crawl-like (Malawi, Vietnam), one to “other managed” (Kyrgyz Republic), and one to a pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands (Morocco). One country was reclassified twice during this reporting period, reverting to a stabilized arrangement (Sudan<sup>21</sup>).
- o Conventional pegs—The number of countries in this category dropped by 1, to 40. Solomon Islands left the group for “crawl-like” because the exchange rate followed an appreciating trend within a 2 percent band against an invoice-based weighted basket of currencies from June 2020. The conventional peg arrangement holds the largest share among soft pegs, with 43.5 percent, although it has been decreasing gradually since April 2016 from its peak of 58 percent.
- o Pegged exchange rates within horizontal bands—There is one country in this category, as Morocco was reclassified from “stabilized.” In the previous reporting period, there were no countries in this category. Three other countries have de jure pegged exchange rates within horizontal bands, but two of them have de facto “other managed” exchange rate (Syria, Tonga), and one has a de facto stabilized arrangement (Maldives).
- Other managed arrangements—The number of countries in this residual category decreased by 3, to 12. There were nine changes from May 2020 through April 2021. Three countries abandoned this category when their exchange rate arrangements were reclassified to crawl-like (Afghanistan, Argentina, China), two to floating (Angola, Pakistan), and one to stabilized (The Gambia). In contrast, three countries were added: two were reclassified from crawl-like (Haiti, Liberia) and one from stabilized (Kyrgyz Republic).
- Floating arrangement—The number of countries classified as floating remains at 32, with 12 changes in the group’s composition. Six abandoned this category: five were reclassified to crawl-like (Ghana, Mozambique, Philippines, Switzerland, Zambia) and one to free floating (Chile). Six countries were added: three from stabilized (Armenia, Sri Lanka, Yemen), two from “other managed” (Angola, Pakistan), and one from crawl-like (Paraguay). One country was reclassified twice during this reporting period, reverting to a floating arrangement (Peru).<sup>22</sup>
- Free floating—The number of countries with free-floating arrangements rose by 1, to 32, as Chile was reclassified from floating in June 2020.
- Hard pegs (no separate legal tender and currency boards)—The number of countries in this category increased by 1, to 25, as Andorra became an IMF member in October 2020 with the classification “no separate legal tender.” Changes in this category are rare, because countries with such arrangements tend to maintain their exchange rate policies unless their economies undergo large structural changes that result in an exit.

<sup>15</sup> Egypt was reclassified twice—to “other managed” in March 2020 and to “stabilized” in October 2020.

<sup>17</sup> Liberia was reclassified three times—retroactively to “other managed” in November 2019, then to stabilized in February 2020, and to “other managed” in October 2020. Retroactive changes are reflected as of January 1, 2020, corresponding to the first day of the period covered in this year’s AREAER.

<sup>18</sup> The Democratic Republic of the Congo was reclassified twice—to “other managed” in May 2020 and back to “crawl-like” in August 2020.

<sup>19</sup> Ethiopia was reclassified twice—retroactively to “other managed” in November 2019 and back to “crawl-like” in February 2020.

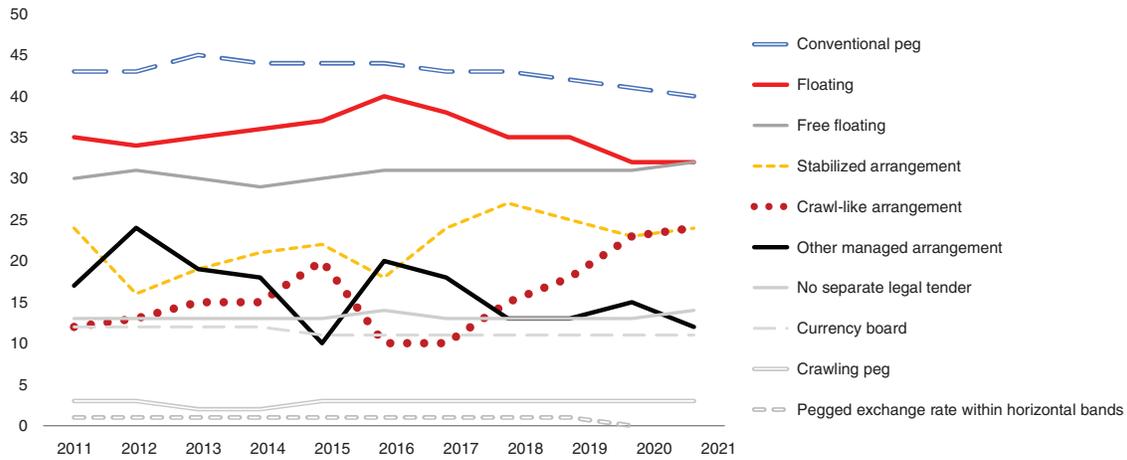

<sup>20</sup> Guinea was reclassified twice—retroactively to “stabilized” in November 2019 and back to “crawl-like” in May 2020.

<sup>21</sup> Sudan was reclassified twice—to “other managed” in January 2020 and back to “stabilized” in March 2020.

<sup>22</sup> Peru was reclassified twice—to “crawl-like” in April 2020 and back to “floating” in March 2021.

Table 4. De Facto Classification of Exchange Rate Arrangements, as of April 30, 2021, and Monetary Policy Frameworks

The classification system is based on the members' actual, de facto arrangements as identified by IMF staff, which may differ from their officially announced, de jure arrangements. The system classifies exchange rate arrangements primarily on the basis of the degree to which the exchange rate is determined by the market rather than by official action, with market-determined rates being on the whole more flexible. The system distinguishes among four major categories: hard pegs (such as exchange arrangements with no separate legal tender and currency board arrangements) soft pegs (including conventional pegged arrangements, pegged exchange rates within horizontal bands, crawling pegs, stabilized arrangements, and crawl-like arrangements) floating regimes (such as floating and free floating) and a residual category, other managed. This table presents members' exchange rate arrangements against alternative monetary policy frameworks to highlight the role of the exchange rate in broad economic policy and illustrate that different exchange rate regimes can be consistent with similar monetary frameworks. The monetary policy frameworks are as follows:

Exchange rate anchor

The monetary authority buys or sells foreign exchange to maintain the exchange rate at its predetermined level or within a range. The exchange rate thus serves as the nominal anchor or intermediate target of monetary policy. These frameworks are associated with exchange rate arrangements with no separate legal tender, currency board arrangements, pegs (or stabilized arrangements) with or without bands, crawling pegs (or crawl-like arrangements), and other managed arrangements.

Monetary aggregate target

The monetary authority uses its instruments to achieve a target growth rate for a monetary aggregate, such as reserve money, M1, or M2, and the targeted aggregate becomes the nominal anchor or intermediate target of monetary policy.

Inflation-targeting framework

This involves the public announcement of numerical targets for inflation, with an institutional commitment by the monetary authority to achieve these targets, typically over a medium-term horizon. Additional key features normally include increased communication with the public and the markets about the plans and objectives of monetary policymakers and increased accountability of the central bank for achieving its inflation objectives. Monetary policy decisions are often guided by the deviation of forecasts of future inflation from the announced inflation target, with the inflation forecast acting (implicitly or explicitly) as the intermediate target of monetary policy.

Other

The country has no explicitly stated nominal anchor, but rather monitors various indicators in conducting monetary policy. This category is also used when no relevant information on the country is available.

Note: If the member country's de facto exchange rate arrangement has been reclassified during the reporting period, the date of change is indicated in parentheses (month, year). CEMAC = Central African Economic and Monetary Community; ECCU = Eastern Caribbean Currency Union; EMU = European Economic and Monetary Union; WAEMU = West African Economic and Monetary Union.

<sup>12</sup> Within the framework of an exchange rate fixed to a currency composite, the Bank Al-Maghrib adopted a monetary policy framework in 2006 based on various inflation indicators, with the overnight interest rate as its operational target to pursue its main objective of price stability.

Monetary Anchors<sup>23</sup>

The exchange rate remained the anchor for monetary policy for fewer than half of member countries—41.5 percent (Table 5). There were five changes in official monetary anchors, similarly to the previous reporting period. Four countries moved from the group of countries with “other monetary framework” (43): two to “monetary aggregate target” (25), and two to “inflation-targeting framework” (45). One country reported having a monetary aggregate target during 2020, switching from an exchange rate anchor to the US dollar (see Table 4).

<sup>23</sup> Monetary anchors are defined as the main intermediate target the authorities pursue to achieve their policy goal (which, overwhelmingly, is price stability). The inventory of monetary anchors is based mainly on members' declarations in the context of the yearly AREAER update or Article IV consultations and is not necessarily consistent with the de facto exchange rate arrangement.

Seventy-seven member countries report an officially announced fixed exchange rate policy—either as a hard peg or soft peg—which implies the use of the exchange rate as the unique monetary anchor, with six exceptions. Although the official (de jure) exchange rate regime of these six countries is a soft peg, four countries reported the use of a mix of monetary policy tools, including exchange rate anchor under an “other monetary framework” (Solomon Islands, Tonga, Vanuatu, Venezuela), and two countries reported targeting monetary aggregates (Bolivia, Samoa). Among the 64 countries with de facto floating exchange rate arrangements—floating or free floating—the monetary anchor varies among monetary aggregates (4), inflation targeting (36), and “other” (24, including the 19 European Economic and Monetary Union [EMU] countries). In the group of countries targeting monetary aggregates (25) there are 17 countries implementing soft pegs, 4 countries in other managed arrangements, and 4 countries in floating arrangements. Countries with either stabilized or crawl-like arrangements (48) report reliance on a variety of monetary frameworks, including monetary aggregates and inflation-targeting frameworks. Other managed arrangements are split among exchange rate anchors (2), monetary aggregate targets (4), inflation targets (1), and other monetary policy frameworks (5).

- The share of IMF members with the exchange rate as the main policy target declined slightly, by 0.2 percentage point, to 41.5 percent, which reflects the change in Liberia’s monetary policy framework to targeting monetary aggregates from a previous US dollar anchor. Countries with hard pegs and soft pegs make up 97.5 percent of this group. Three currency unions—the Central African Economic and Monetary Community, Eastern Caribbean Currency Union, and West African Economic and Monetary Union—have exchange rate anchors for their respective common currency.
- The US dollar maintained its position as the dominant exchange rate anchor, at 19.2 percent. Following a steady decrease from 26.5 percent since 2010, the number of countries using this anchor stabilized from April 2018 to April 2020 but continued decreasing during this reporting period by 0.6 percent, to 19.2 percent.
- The share or composition of countries using an exchange rate anchored to the euro increased 0.5 percentage point to 13.5 percent, with Andorra reporting the use of the euro as its own currency. Countries whose currencies are anchored to the euro generally have historical ties with European countries—for example, the Communauté Financière d’Afrique (CFA) franc area countries; are part of the European Union; or have strong trade relations with western Europe, including central and eastern European countries—for example, Bulgaria (currency board with the euro), North Macedonia (de jure floating arrangement), and Montenegro (uses the euro as its legal tender).

- Nine countries maintain an exchange rate anchored to another single currency. Three of these countries (Kiribati, Nauru, Tuvalu) use the Australian dollar as their legal tender, and one (Brunei Darussalam) has a currency board arrangement with the Singapore dollar. The remaining five have conventional pegged arrangements: three (Eswatini, Lesotho, Namibia) with the South African rand and two (Bhutan, Nepal) with the Indian rupee. Half the countries in this group are landlocked, bordering either partially or exclusively the country whose currency they use as their exchange rate anchor. The anchor currency is typically freely usable in the country and is often legal tender.
- Eight countries reported having a monetary policy framework with the exchange rate anchored to a currency composite. Two track special drawing rights (SDRs) as the sole currency basket (Libya, Syria) and one the SDR and the rand (Botswana). Vietnam anchors to a broader reference basket and additionally specified that the dong may fluctuate within a daily transaction band of  $\pm 3$  percent against the US dollar. Singapore is anchored to its nominal effective exchange rate. Morocco tracks a euro and US dollar basket. The Fiji dollar is anchored to a basket of five currencies (US dollar, Australian dollar, New Zealand dollar, Japanese yen, euro). Kuwait does not disclose the composition of its reference currency basket.

Most IMF member countries, representing the overwhelming share of global output, are split among monetary aggregate targeting, inflation targeting, and “other” (which includes monetary policy not committed to a specific target).

- The number of countries targeting a monetary aggregate increased by 3, to 25, compared with the previous reporting period. Two countries switched from “other monetary framework” (Rwanda, Tajikistan) and one from an anchor to the US dollar (Liberia). This category does not include any country with a free-floating exchange rate arrangement. In fact, monetary aggregates are often the choice of economies with less developed financial markets and managed exchange rates. The objective of the arrangement is to influence consumer prices and, eventually, asset prices through the control of monetary aggregates. Reserve money is often used as the operational target to control credit growth through the credit multiplier.
- The number of countries that reported targeting inflation increased by 2, to 45. Two countries moved here from “other monetary framework” (Kenya, Uzbekistan). Seven countries reported having a “flexible inflation-targeting framework” (Brazil, India, Indonesia, Poland, Sri Lanka, Sweden, Thailand). The countries in this group are mostly middle income but include some advanced economies as well. Of these, 36 have either a de facto floating or free-floating exchange rate arrangement.<sup>24</sup> The central bank is responsible for setting the inflation target for 19 of the 45 countries in this category, and in 15 countries the central bank and the government jointly set the targets. About half of the countries (21) have a target with a tolerance band, with only one country targeting core inflation. Most of the countries (39) report having inflation-targeting regime commitments to transparency and accountability.
- The “other monetary policy framework” category total fell by 4, to 43. The number of countries that are not committed to a specific target (the “other” column in Table 4) was affected by four changes during the reporting period: two countries moved to an inflation-targeting framework (Kenya, Uzbekistan), and two countries reported targeting monetary aggregates. A few countries in this category are in transition to an inflation-targeting framework (Egypt, Mongolia, Mozambique, Pakistan, Tunisia). This category includes many of the largest economies, such as the euro area and the United States. It is also used as a residual classification for countries for which no relevant information is available and for those with alternative monetary policy frameworks not categorized in this report.

Foreign Exchange Interventions

The IMF staff regularly assesses whether the frequency of foreign exchange intervention is consistent with the de facto free-floating arrangements or whether classification as a soft peg is appropriate (see the Compilation Guide). These assessments draw on information that is publicly available, information reported to the IMF by member countries, market reports, and other sources, including information obtained during official staff visits to member countries.

<sup>24</sup> Inflation targeting aims to address the problem of monetary aggregates that do not have a stable relationship with prices, making intermediate monetary targets less suitable for inflation control.

Intervention purpose

In general, central banks intervene to build reserves or to dampen excessive market volatility, but they may also intervene in the foreign exchange market to fight appreciation/depreciation pressure on the country's currency. In the case of pegged arrangements, countries intervene in the foreign exchange market to maintain the exchange rate at a certain target level or range, or within a fluctuation band with respect to a central rate. The COVID-19 pandemic affected global financial markets, particularly in the early stages of the pandemic owing to heightened economic uncertainty that resulted in many cases of rapid depreciation in the currencies of emerging market and developing economies and low-income developing countries and also in some advanced economies. Rapid depreciation occurred most notably in Angola, Belarus, Brazil, Colombia, Iceland, Mexico, Nigeria, Norway, Russia, Seychelles, South Africa, Sudan, Turkey, Zambia, and Zimbabwe. Most emerging market and developing economy currencies strengthened from April to June 2020, some more rapidly than others (Colombia, Indonesia, Kazakhstan, Russia). However, as concerns about the second wave of COVID-19 grew, along with the decline in oil prices from August to October 2020, volatility increased again on world markets, affecting mostly the exchange rates of emerging markets and low-income developing countries, which depreciated again during the third quarter of 2020, albeit at a lower rate than before (Angola, Belarus, Kazakhstan, Russia, Turkey, Zambia, Zimbabwe).

In November–December 2020, reports on successful trials of vaccines against the coronavirus had a positive impact on global risk sentiment. Consequently, until April 2021, foreign exchange markets were relatively stable, with less fluctuation in exchange rates amid global growth optimism linked to COVID-19 vaccination progress. During that period, most emerging market and developing economies strengthened their currencies; currencies of low-income developing countries continued experiencing depreciation pressure.

Intervention techniques

IMF members typically conduct foreign exchange interventions in the spot foreign exchange market, either by directly contacting market participants (all or only a selection—for example, market makers) or through foreign exchange auctions (for more information on auctions, see the Foreign Exchange Markets section of this report). However, foreign exchange interventions occasionally also take place in the forward or options markets or through verbal intervention.

Preannounced programs of future purchases and sales of foreign exchange typically are counted as one intervention in the foreign exchange market for the purpose of the de facto classification, with the assumption that the market prices the new information on the day the program is announced.<sup>25</sup> To avoid influencing market expectations about the exchange rate at the time when the actual interventions take place, the program of interventions should indicate in advance the nature, frequency, and size of the central bank's foreign exchange transactions. Among the mechanisms currently used in preannounced intervention programs, countries may accumulate reserves following a preannounced calendar of auctions (Albania) or conduct purchases and sales of foreign exchange for the government pension fund (Norway). Similarly, a preannounced program is used by Russia, which bases its volume of intervention on the difference in the projected and actual amount of oil and gas revenue in the federal budget. The projected revenue is calculated using separate benchmark prices for oil and gas, respectively. As long as the actual oil and gas revenue exceeds the amount projected, the Ministry of Finance purchases foreign exchange through the Central Bank of Russia equal to the amount of additional oil and gas revenue. If actual oil and gas revenue drops below the projected level, the Ministry of Finance sells foreign exchange equal to the amount of the resulting shortfall in oil and gas revenue. A benchmark Urals oil price of US$40 a barrel (in real 2017 terms, adjusted for US inflation) is used in this framework. In addition, in response to lower proceeds from oil exports, oil products, and natural gas, in 2020 the central bank introduced a new mechanism for sales of foreign exchange, which it received from the National Wealth Fund (NWF) in connection with the NWF's purchase of Sberbank shares and the acquisition of Aeroflot Public Joint Stock Company shares by the Russian government. Specifically, it sells foreign exchange in the market if the Urals crude oil price falls below US$25 a barrel. The size of these operations is announced at the beginning of every month, and purchases are evenly distributed throughout the month.

Some countries use derivatives as an alternative to spot interventions in the foreign exchange market. The National Bank of Georgia used to sell foreign exchange put options via auctions to accumulate reserves, but has not done so since April 2019. The Central Bank of Chile implemented a program of interventions in the foreign exchange spot market and through nondeliverable forwards to protect against unexpected and/or anticipated changes in currency exchange rates. The Central Bank of Mexico uses nondeliverable forwards with maturities of up to 12 months and settled in pesos. Similarly, the Central Bank of Colombia can intervene in the foreign exchange market through (1) direct uniform price auction sales of put or call options, (2) direct uniform price auctions (with three minutes of bids) or discriminatory price auction sales of foreign exchange (with three minutes of bids), (3) spot sales of foreign exchange by means of foreign exchange swap contracts at rates set by the central bank in auctions or over the counter, and (4) since March 2020, forward dollar sales through forward contracts. The Bank of Korea can also intervene in the market with its funds and funds from the Foreign Exchange Equalization Fund when it is deemed necessary for market stability. The Central Reserve Bank of Peru can intervene through dollar-indexed bonds, foreign exchange swaps, and repurchase agreements. The Central Bank of Brazil intervenes mainly in the derivatives market using foreign exchange swaps and, since March 2020, it has provided extra foreign exchange liquidity with the use of Brazilian Global dollar-denominated bond repurchase agreements, open only to foreign exchange dealers. Other countries, including Armenia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Serbia, and Tunisia, have also reported foreign exchange swaps as an intervention method.

Additional measures in response to COVID-19

A number of central banks reported having taken extraordinary measures in the foreign exchange market through interventions to reduce the pace of depreciation of their local currency in response to the high uncertainty associated with the COVID-19 pandemic throughout 2020 and the beginning of 2021.

Among the extraordinary measures the central bank of Colombia took in response to the crisis caused by COVID-19, the board of directors decided on the following: (1) Establish a new foreign exchange hedging mechanism through nondeliverable forward contracts for the sale of dollars at a future date for US$1 billion to facilitate trading in foreign currency by market participants. (2) Auction US$400 million in dollar swaps (foreign exchange swaps) in which the central bank would perform a spot sale of dollars and a forward purchase of dollars (in 60 days). This measure aimed to provide temporary liquidity in dollars to a broad group of entities including not only traditional intermediaries in the foreign exchange market but also companies that manage pensions and severance benefits in terms of their own position and the funds managed by them, with the goal of easing pressure in the foreign exchange market. (3) Purchase from the government of US$1,500 million, thereby boosting the level of the country's international reserves in line with its long-term external risk management policy.

Mexico's Foreign Exchange Commission (FEC) operates an intervention mechanism through a foreign exchange hedging program. The foreign exchange hedging is auctioned through nondeliverable forwards. As a response to the surge in global financial market volatility because of the spread of COVID-19, the FEC announced (1) an increase in the foreign exchange hedging program up to US$30 billion in nondeliverable forwards; (2) a temporary US dollar liquidity swap line established with the Federal Reserve valid through September 30, 2020, for up to US$60 billion; and (3) the possibility of selling nondeliverable forwards settled by differences in US dollars with international counterparties, to be traded during hours when Mexican markets are closed.

Russia diverged from the previously mentioned budget-rule-based interventions in response to pandemic-related volatility in the foreign exchange market—in part owing to the sharp decline in oil prices. It suspended, for 30 days, purchases of foreign exchange based on the budget rule and those related to purchases postponed in 2018. It announced and implemented ad hoc sales of foreign exchange to compensate for the lack of foreign exchange liquidity in the market during March–April 2020. Later in the year, with the recovery in oil prices, it announced and undertook the deferred purchases of foreign exchange.

The National Bank of Serbia's regular swap auctions are organized according to the variable method—with multiple swap points. However, from March 2020 to May 2020, the central bank organized the auctions according to the fixed method, with preannounced fixed swap points at favorable rates to support the domestic financial system under the conditions of COVID-19.

Official Exchange Rates

The vast majority (167) of IMF member countries report that they publish official exchange rates. This includes not only countries that have officially determined exchange rates, but by definition, also those countries that report a reference or indicative exchange rate computed and/or published by the central bank (see the Compilation Guide). The calculation of these exchange rates is often based on market exchange rates, such as those used in interbank market transactions or in a combination of interbank and bank-client transactions during a specified observation period. The published exchange rate is used as a guide for market participants in their foreign exchange transactions, for accounting and customs valuation purposes, in exchange transactions with the government, and sometimes as a requirement in specific exchange transactions.

During the 2020–21 reporting period, several countries adopted new methods for calculating their official exchange rates (Angola, Honduras, Mauritania, Mozambique, Paraguay, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Uzbekistan). Countries from all income levels and various geographic regions are represented among the 25 members that report no official or reference exchange rates; about half (12) are countries with no separate legal tender, 5 are soft pegs, 7 are floating or free floating, and 1 has the residual other managed de facto exchange rate arrangement. Among the countries that do not compute an official exchange rate, some, including Peru and Singapore, publish the market-determined rates on their monetary authority’s website to promote information transparency.

Foreign Exchange Markets

The liberalization of foreign exchange markets continued during 2020 and through August 2021, with the pace of liberalization having picked up compared with the previous reporting period. Changes in the structure and operation of members’ foreign exchange markets are summarized in Table 6.

Member countries reported 182 changes related to foreign exchange markets, slightly more than in the previous reporting period. Measures easing constraints on the operation of foreign exchange markets (97, or 53.3 percent) were nearly five times the number of tightening measures (20, or 11 percent); the remainder were neutral measures (65). In the previous reporting period, member countries reported 119 changes related to foreign exchange markets, of which 39.5 percent were easing measures and 20.2 percent were tightening measures. Across countries, foreign exchange market easing measures exceed tightening measures in almost every category. Member countries continue to implement greater liberalization in foreign exchange auctions and the forward market.

Of the tightening measures, more than half are attributable to four countries: Nigeria (4), Argentina (3), Colombia (2), and Mauritius (2). Of the easing measures, Turkey (39) accounts for more than one-third. The other countries that reported higher numbers of easing measures are Colombia (7), Nigeria (5), Mauritius (4), and Morocco (4). In Turkey, where the most easing changes were recorded in this issue of the AREAER, the central bank lowered the rate for foreign exchange deposit facilities in steps and implemented other easing measures to support the lira in the Turkish lira, foreign exchange, and gold swap markets. Nigeria and Colombia introduced both easing and tightening measures during this reporting period. In Nigeria, tightening measures include the suspension of sales of foreign exchange by the central bank to bureaus de change as a result of border closures due to COVID-19 from March to September 2020 and since July 2021, while easing measures include the resumption of activity by bureaus de change between September 2020 and July 2021, as well as eliminating foreign currency sale requirements for international money transfer operators. In Colombia, easing measures include the addition of central counterparty risk clearinghouses as entities authorized to participate in foreign exchange auctions, as well as the relaxation of rules on spot foreign exchange transactions cleared and settled by central counterparty risk clearinghouses. Tightening measures include requiring entities other than exchange market intermediaries to record foreign exchange spot transactions with foreign agents. In the context of the COVID-19 pandemic, measures to ease trading in the foreign exchange market across countries included lowering central bank foreign exchange facility rates to support liquidity, loosening restrictions on setting prices, broadening market participation, and easing restrictions on using foreign currency swaps to hedge against volatility in the foreign exchange market.

Foreign exchange standing facility, allocations, auctions, and fixing

The number of countries that reported some type of official central bank facility decreased by 5, to 115, compared with the previous reporting period. The decrease in the number of countries in part reflects improved reporting by some member countries, while in other countries, changes took place in the activities conducted by central banks in the foreign exchange market. Central banks may provide access to foreign exchange to market participants through a standing facility, allocation to certain market participants, or the purchase and sale of foreign exchange through auctions or fixing sessions.

- Foreign exchange standing facilities—Sixty-six countries reported standing facilities in their jurisdictions. When a country has a foreign exchange standing facility it means that the central bank typically stands ready to buy or sell foreign exchange to banks, thus providing a maximum and minimum exchange rate for their currency for a given day. Such facilities are usually instrumental in maintaining a hard or soft peg arrangement. Compared with the previous issue of the AREAER, the number of countries reporting a standing facility decreased by three due to improved reporting by Denmark, Morocco, and Yemen. A relatively stable pattern has been observed in recent years: the number of countries operating standing facilities has either declined by one or two or remained steady from year to year.

The countries with foreign exchange standing facilities include all those with currency boards (11); all conventional pegs, except Denmark, Iraq, and São Tomé and Príncipe (37); all crawling pegs, except Honduras (2); countries with crawl-like arrangements (2); countries classified as stabilized arrangements (7); and countries with other managed arrangements (5). The credibility of such arrangements depends largely on the availability of foreign exchange reserves backing the facility. Two countries with flexible exchange rates reported that they had foreign exchange standing facilities, similar to last year's report. These countries are Turkey (floating) and Russia (free floating). In Turkey, to ease depreciation pressure on the lira, the central bank lowered the selling rate of foreign exchange deposits at various maturities, introduced foreign exchange deposits as collateral at shorter maturities, and lowered the buying rate for this facility at various maturities. In addition, to enhance banks' efficiency in Turkish lira and foreign exchange liquidity management, new maturities for Turkish lira currency swaps were introduced, and the limits for such transactions in banks' total transaction limits at the Foreign Exchange and Banknotes Market were gradually raised. The central bank also started selling gold against foreign exchange in September 2020.

- Foreign exchange auctions—The number of countries reporting official foreign exchange auctions decreased by 2, to 39, since the previous reporting period. The Central Bank of Honduras suspended auctions for the sale of foreign currency to natural and legal entities in June 2021. Previously, foreign currency auctions were held daily except weekends and holidays. Kenya reported no foreign exchange auctions. In a significant majority (32 of 39) of countries, foreign exchange auctions are the only mechanism operated by the central bank. More than a third (17) have de facto exchange rate regimes that are floating, including 2 that are free floating. Foreign exchange auctions can be used to intervene in the foreign exchange market and influence the exchange rate, support price discovery, and manage foreign exchange reserves.

Among various changes reported, Angola adopted Bloomberg's FXGO platform to conduct foreign exchange auctions. Previously, the National Bank of Angola conducted a selling foreign exchange auction that followed the principles of a multiple price auction. Colombia broadened participation in auctions to include companies that manage pension funds and severance benefits and central counterparty risk clearinghouses. Mongolia eased the buying and selling limits for auction bids. South Sudan allowed licensed foreign exchange bureaus to participate directly in auctions. Previously, they could only participate indirectly by submitting applications through eligible banks. Serbia applied favorable rates in both its fixed-method swap auctions and for purchases and sales of foreign exchange and foreign cash with residents who have foreign exchange accounts with the National Bank of Serbia. This was done to support the domestic financial system in response to COVID-19.

- Foreign exchange allocation systems—Twenty-one countries reported having a foreign exchange allocation system. Foreign exchange allocation is often used to provide foreign exchange for strategic imports, such as oil or food, when foreign exchange reserves are scarce. For instance, it has at times been used to finance priority sector projects (Ethiopia) and strategic imports (Sudan). In addition, it may also be used to bolster exports through facilitating financing in foreign currency for input procurements by manufacturer-exporters (Bangladesh). Compared with the previous reporting period, both Mozambique and Mauritius (since March 2020) indicated that the central bank provides foreign exchange for the payment of fuel imports. Mauritius also introduced a US dollar–Mauritian rupee swap facility with commercial banks from March 2020 to June 2021 to support import-oriented businesses affected by declining foreign exchange inflows due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Yemen reported that the central bank has occasionally allocated foreign exchange to food importers through letters of credit at nonmarket exchange rates. The Central Bank of Iraq lowered the weekly limits on foreign currency cash sales to banks from US$120,000 to US$100,000, effective March 1, 2020. On the other hand, Ghana reported that since 2015 the Bank of Ghana has ceased providing dedicated foreign exchange support to banks for meeting letter of credit requirements for crude oil imports. The Central Bank of Suriname (CBvS) stopped selling foreign currency to oil and other importers in June 2021 and is planning to introduce foreign exchange auctions. Previously, the CBvS provided foreign exchange to settle import payments of fuel and other basic products and medicines. More than half of the countries (13) with allocation systems also rely on other mechanisms, mainly standing facilities or fixing sessions. Virtually all of them have a de facto soft peg arrangement.
- Fixing sessions—This arrangement is characteristic of the early stage of foreign exchange market development when price discovery may be difficult. Fixing sessions allow the central bank to organize sessions in which market participants can submit buying and selling bids. The central bank uses these bids to find the market clearing exchange rate. The number of countries that reported operating fixing sessions dropped by 1, to 4, compared with the previous period because in February 2021, Uzbekistan discontinued foreign exchange fixing sessions on the Uzbek Republican Currency Exchange.

Interbank and retail foreign exchange markets

The number of countries that reported having a foreign exchange interbank market stood at 174. There was an increase of 1 compared with the previous reporting period because of the inclusion of Andorra, the newest member of the IMF. The 19 jurisdictions that do not have an interbank market are typically countries where either security concerns made the operation of a foreign exchange market difficult in recent years, such as Somalia, South Sudan, and Yemen; where the legal framework does not allow the trading of foreign exchange among banks, such as Venezuela; in countries where the central bank maintains a conventional peg or currency board; or in jurisdictions where there is no separate legal tender. The latter two groups of countries consist of Aruba, Belize, Bhutan, Dominica, Eritrea, Kiribati, Lesotho, Libya, the Marshall Islands, Micronesia, Montenegro, Nauru, Palau, Timor-Leste, and Tuvalu. In most cases, these countries are small, and the size of the territory naturally limits the number of potential participants in the foreign exchange market.

For countries that have an interbank market, the form of operations may include over-the-counter markets, brokerage arrangements, and market-making arrangements. Thirty-four members allow all three types of systems.

- Over-the-counter operations—These account for most of the world’s interbank markets. The number of countries in this group has grown nearly every year since 2013, when it comprised 127 countries, and now stands at 149. There was a net gain of three compared with the previous reporting period due to improved reporting by Eswatini, Jordan, and Mozambique. Despite no formal interbank foreign exchange market in St. Kitts and Nevis and St. Vincent and the Grenadines, banks in these countries can trade freely with one another. Although this type of foreign exchange market appears to be gaining popularity among IMF members, 24 countries with interbank markets still report that they do not engage in over-the-counter operations. These countries do not share any particular characteristic in terms of size, income level, or financial market sophistication.
- Brokerage arrangements—51 countries reported having a brokerage system. Compared with the previous reporting period, the addition of 1 comes from the newest IMF member, Andorra.
- Market-making agreements—73 countries reported having market-making agreements. Compared with the previous reporting period, there was an increase of two because Denmark and Indonesia revised their previous reporting and indicated that there are market-making mechanisms. Morocco raised the requirement for banks with market-maker status to provide quotes at a minimum of US$1 million. Previously, the requirement was US$500,000.

Most member countries report a framework for the operation of foreign exchange bureaus; the majority impose some type of licensing requirement. Since the previous AREAER, Barbados eased restrictions and granted permission to one foreign exchange bureau. Previously, there were no foreign exchange bureaus in the country. The Bank of Nigeria tightened rules on them as a result of COVID-19 border closures from March to September 2020 and again since July 2021. Most members refrain from restricting exchange rate spreads and commissions in the interbank market. Among easing changes, the Central Bank of Sudan announced the unification of the official exchange rate with the market rate and further allowed banks and foreign exchange bureaus to determine their own rate within a  $\pm 5$  percent band around the central bank indicative rate and a maximum profit margin of 0.75 percent. Previously, banks and exchange bureaus had to apply the central bank rate to all transactions and were allowed a maximum profit margin of 0.5 percent. Morocco increased the flexibility of the dirham exchange rate further, by relaxing the limits of the exchange rates for the exchange of foreign banknotes, traveler’s checks, letters of credit, bank checks, and money orders to  $\pm 7.5$  percent in relation to the central exchange rate. Previously the limit was  $\pm 5$  percent. Tanzania reduced the minimum amount of foreign exchange tradable for a given quoted price on the interbank foreign exchange market from US\$250,000 to US\$50,000 to accommodate banks with small net open positions. Among tightening changes, Honduras tightened the maximum commission charged for the purchase of foreign exchange.

Other Measures

Most of the changes in other measures during the reporting period refer to forward operations, exchange rate structure, other legal tender, and taxes on foreign exchange transactions.

- Forwards—17 easing measures and 2 tightening measures were reported on forward transactions across countries in this year’s AREAER. During the reporting period, Angola allowed commercial banks to contract forward exchange operations with their clients. China lowered the foreign exchange risk reserve for banks that sell foreign exchange forward to their clients. India issued directions to make it easier for residents and nonresidents to access the domestic foreign exchange derivatives market. Residents as well as nonresidents can take long or short positions without an underlying exposure, up to a single limit of US$100 million. In Korea, as part of the COVID-19 pandemic response efforts, the limits on banks' foreign exchange derivatives contracts as a share of bank capital were increased for domestic banks and foreign bank branches. To further develop the foreign exchange market, Malaysia allowed residents and nonresidents to hedge against their foreign currency financial account obligations, as well as cancel or unwind their forward positions, except for hedges on portfolio investments; previously, such transactions required approval from Bank Negara Malaysia. In Mozambique, banks and their customers were permitted to trade financial derivatives, including forward foreign exchange operations, foreign exchange swaps, interest rate swaps, and forward rate agreements. Vietnam updated regulations on forward and swap transactions to allow more flexibility in hedging foreign exchange risk. Among tightening measures, the Bank of Papua New Guinea issued a directive in July 2020 for a temporary suspension on all forward transactions. Similarly, in Sri Lanka, commercial banks were directed to refrain from entering into forward contracts of foreign exchange for a period of three months starting January 2021.

During the COVID-19 pandemic, central banks established swap lines to support global liquidity and the smooth functioning of US dollar funding markets. The Bank of Canada, the Bank of England, the European Central Bank, the Federal Reserve, the Bank of Japan, and the Swiss National Bank coordinated efforts by lowering the pricing of the standing US dollar liquidity swap arrangements and increasing frequency as well as offering additional maturities of US dollar operations.

- Exchange rate structure—There were several changes in the number of countries maintaining a dual or multiple exchange rate structure. Currently, 22 countries are classified as having more than one exchange rate, of which 12 are dual and 10 are multiple. This is mainly a result of specific exchange rates applied to certain transactions or because of actual or potential deviations of more than 2 percent between official and other exchange rates and hence resulting in multiple currency practices under Article VIII (see next section). During this reporting period, the exchange rate structure of Myanmar was reclassified from multiple to unitary due to the elimination of an MCP resulting from the discontinuation of the multiple price foreign currency auction. Sudan announced the unification of the official exchange rate with the market rate in February 2021 and further announced the unification of the customs exchange rate in June 2021. However, in practice the exchange rate structure is still classified as multiple due to (1) deviation by more than 2 percent between the official exchange rate used in all government exchange transactions and the rate used by commercial banks; (2) large spreads between the official rate and the parallel market exchange rate; and (3) imposition by the government of a cash margin requirement for most imports.<sup>26</sup>
- Other legal tender—16 countries officially allow the use of another legal tender in their territory. Compared with the previous reporting period, Zimbabwe allowed anyone to pay for goods and services chargeable in Zimbabwe dollars in foreign currency, using “free funds” (funds lawfully held or earned in foreign currency) at the prevailing rate on the date of payment, beginning in March 2020—even though the Zimbabwe dollar was declared the sole legal tender in June 2019. El Salvador passed the Bitcoin Law in June 2021; its intent is to regulate Bitcoin as unrestricted legal tender that may be used freely in any transaction for any purpose by individuals and legal entities, public or private.
- Taxes and subsidies on foreign exchange transactions—Overall, 34 countries report taxing or subsidizing foreign exchange transactions during the reporting period, which is similar to the previous reporting period. Libya eliminated the surtax on sales of foreign currency for commercial or personal purposes (excluding family allowance) in January 2021. Yemen reported that foreign exchange has been allocated to private food importers at time-varying nonmarket official exchange rates, which are substantially lower than market rates. Since November 2020, the Central Bank of Nicaragua applies a commission of 2 percent to the sale of foreign exchange: the official exchange rate plus a commission of 2 percent (previously 1 percent).

<sup>26</sup> As per the AREAER Compilation Guide the status in this category mirrors the information reported in Section II.A, which is based on the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2020.

Member Countries' Obligations and Status under Articles VIII and XIV

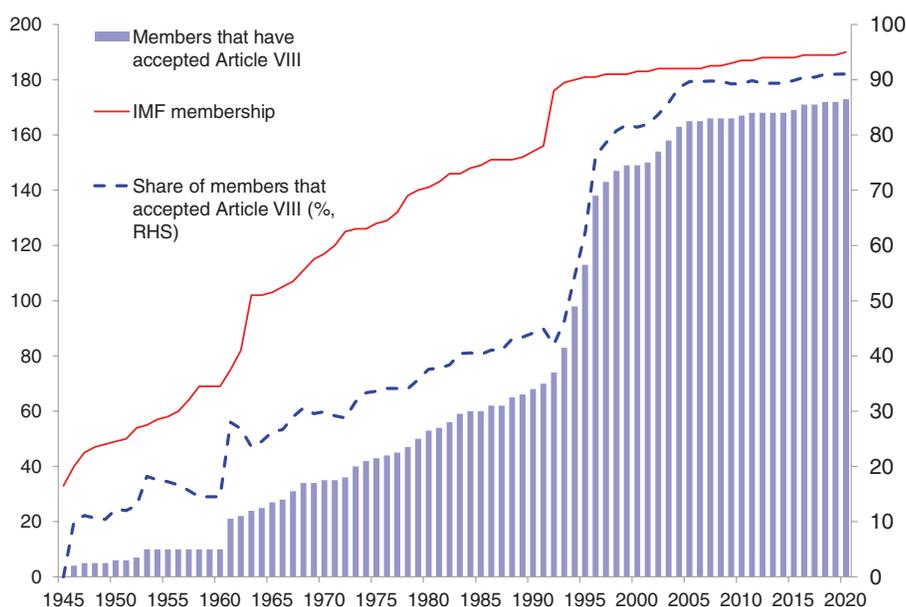

This section provides an overview of the status of IMF members' acceptance of the obligations of Article VIII, Sections 2(a), 3, and 4, of the IMF's Articles of Agreement and of the use of the transitional arrangements of Article XIV. It also describes recent developments in restrictive exchange measures—namely, exchange restrictions and MCPs subject to IMF jurisdiction under Articles VIII and XIV and measures imposed by members solely for national and/or international security reasons.

In accepting the obligations of Article VIII, Sections 2(a), 3, and 4, members agree not to impose restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions or engage in discriminatory currency arrangements or MCPs, except with IMF approval.<sup>27</sup> If Article XIV members introduce exchange restrictions or MCPs after joining the IMF, these restrictive measures are considered to have been imposed under Article VIII.

Status under Articles VIII and XIV

The number of countries that have accepted Article VIII increased by 1 (Figure 4), to 173, when Andorra joined the IMF on October 16, 2020. The share of Article VIII members increased significantly in the first half of the decade 2000–10 and remained flat at about 90 percent of the membership until the end of 2014. However, this share increased slightly during 2015–20 to 91 percent. Since 2000, there has been some progress in Article VIII acceptance among countries that have availed themselves of the transitional provisions of Article XIV. Their number had dropped from 34 in 2000 to 17 by the end of 2018 but remained unchanged in 2019–20. Progress was most notable during 2000–05, when 15 Article XIV countries accepted Article VIII obligations. Since 2000, 4 countries have joined the IMF, simultaneously accepting Article VIII obligations (Andorra, Montenegro, Nauru, Timor-Leste), while 4 other countries (Kosovo, Serbia, South Sudan, Tuvalu) joined the IMF availing themselves of the temporary provisions of Article XIV. Three of the 4 countries (Kosovo, Serbia, Tuvalu) subsequently accepted Article VIII obligations.

<sup>27</sup> Countries that have accepted the obligations under Article VIII are referred to as “Article VIII members” or “Article VIII countries”; in contrast, those that continue to avail themselves of the transitional provisions of Article XIV are referred to as “Article XIV members” or “Article XIV countries” in this report.

As of December 31, 2020, many members in Article XIV status continued to maintain restrictions subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII. Among the 17 members<sup>28</sup> in Article XIV status, 4 do not maintain restrictions but have not yet decided to accept the obligations under Article VIII. Four countries maintain both original or adapted Article XIV exchange measures and Article VIII restrictions. The remaining 9 Article XIV countries maintain exchange measures under Article VIII only.

Restrictive Exchange Measures

The first section below describes recent developments in exchange restrictions—measures that limit the availability and use of foreign currency for payments and transfers for current international transactions—and MCPs subject to IMF jurisdiction under Articles VIII and XIV. In particular, changes in 2020 to exchange restrictions and MCPs are indicated as reported in the latest IMF staff reports as of December 31, 2020. The subsequent section describes developments in measures imposed by members solely for national or international security reasons during 2020.

Exchange restrictions and multiple currency practices<sup>29</sup>

The number of countries maintaining restrictive exchange measures decreased by 1 in 2020, and their composition has also changed (Table 7).<sup>30</sup> Article VIII members maintained a few more restrictive exchange measures in 2020 (68 measures) than Article XIV members (60 measures).

In 2020, one Article VIII member and one Article XIV member removed all previously identified restrictive measures and now maintain exchange systems free of exchange restrictions and MCPs: Colombia (1 exchange restriction) and Myanmar (1 MCP). On the other hand, 2 exchange restrictions and 2 MCPs were identified in two other Article VIII members, one of which (Nicaragua) previously maintained an exchange system free of restrictions. As a result, the overall number of Article VIII countries and Article XIV members that maintain restrictive exchange measures decreased by 1, to 47 members in 2020.

The overall number of restrictive exchange measures decreased by 2 in 2020, including 3 measures by Article XIV members, while the number of such measures by Article VIII countries increased by 1. In 2020, 6 restrictive measures (3 exchange restrictions and 3 MCPs) were reported to have been eliminated,<sup>31</sup> while 4 measures (2 exchange restrictions and 2 MCPs) were newly identified. Article VIII members account for all 4 newly identified measures and 3 of the 6 removals (2 exchange restrictions and 1 MCP).

New restrictive measures were identified in 2 countries in 2020: Nicaragua (1 exchange restriction) and Zimbabwe (1 exchange restriction and 2 MCPs). In contrast, 4 countries eliminated some restrictive measures, but not all—Angola (1 exchange restriction and 1 MCP) and Ukraine (1 exchange restriction and 1 MCP)—while 2 other countries removed all their restrictive measures (see above).

The overall average number of restrictive measures grew marginally to 2.72 from 2.71 per country in 2020. The average number of measures per country increased to 4.62 from 4.50 for Article XIV countries and to 2.00 from 1.97 for Article VIII countries. Although the overall number of restrictive measures maintained by Article XIV countries was lower than in Article VIII members in 2020, they continued to maintain significantly more restrictions and MCPs per country than Article VIII countries given the relatively small number of Article XIV members.

<sup>30</sup> The AREAER does not indicate whether the Executive Board of the IMF has approved such measures.

The types of newly identified exchange restrictions vary in nature. In Nicaragua, a new exchange restriction was identified arising from the SUCRE (Sistema Unitario de Compensación Regional de Pagos<sup>32</sup>) regional payment arrangement, under which the period for settlement for current payments exceeds three months. In Zimbabwe, amid severe imbalance of payment and US dollar liquidity pressures, the central bank allocates foreign exchange to finance certain necessary imports while limiting the availability of foreign exchange for payments and transfers for other current international transactions not eligible to receive such allocations.

The elimination of exchange restrictions also affected different types of transactions. Angola removed a restriction arising from the long-standing stamp tax on foreign exchange operations.<sup>33</sup> Colombia eliminated an exchange restriction arising from the special regime for the hydrocarbon sector. After several years, Ukraine stopped banning the transfer abroad of dividends received by nonresident investors from foreign investments in Ukraine.<sup>34</sup>

All newly identified MCPs in 2020 were the result of either channeling some transactions to another segment of the foreign exchange market with a different exchange rate or by application of different exchange rates for certain transactions. Thus, in Zimbabwe an exchange restriction arising from official guidance issued by the Reserve Bank of Zimbabwe (RBZ) to commercial banks requiring them to prioritize their foreign exchange sales to finance specific categories of international transactions also resulted in an MCP. This is because it channels some non-priority or low-priority transactions to the bureau market, where the exchange rate exceeds more than 2 percent of the interbank market rate. An additional MCP was identified in Zimbabwe: the RBZ allocation of foreign exchange to finance certain necessary imports and purchases of repatriated foreign exchange proceeds under the exporters' surrender requirement are conducted at the interbank rate of the previous day.

Three different MCPs were reported to have been eliminated in 2020. Angola removed an MCP arising from the stamp tax on foreign exchange operations.<sup>35</sup> Myanmar eliminated an MCP arising from the previous multiple price foreign currency auction.<sup>36</sup> In Ukraine, the removal of the requirement to transfer any gains from the sale of unused foreign exchange to the state budget resulted in the elimination of the MCP.

Table 8 provides the description of restrictive exchange measures as indicated in the latest IMF staff reports as of December 31, 2020.

Exchange measures maintained for security reasons

Several member countries maintain measures solely for national and/or international security reasons, which could give rise to exchange restrictions under IMF jurisdiction if applied to payments and transfers for current international transactions. These restrictions, like others, require prior IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a). However, because the IMF does not provide a suitable forum to discuss the political and military considerations that lead to measures of this kind, it established a special procedure for such measures to be notified to and approved by the IMF.<sup>37</sup> In total, 118 member countries reported in 2020 to the IMF that they maintained measures solely for security reasons, including 18 members that reported changes in such measures in 2020. The majority of the restrictions are financial sanctions to combat the financing of terrorism or financial sanctions against certain governments, entities, and individuals in accordance with United Nations Security Council resolutions, EU regulations, or decisions adopted by members on their own initiative.

<sup>35</sup> The measure was lifted in October of 2019 and is reflected in the IMF staff report as of December 31, 2020.

<sup>36</sup> A one-way foreign exchange auction rule, which also eliminated the MCP, was adopted in November 2019. The measure is reflected in the IMF staff report as of December 31, 2020.

Table 8. Exchange Restrictions and/or Multiple Currency Practices, by Country, as of December 31, 2020

Country <sup>1</sup>	Exchange Restrictions and/or Multiple Currency Practices <sup>2</sup>
Albania	The IMF staff report for the 2018 Article IV Consultation with Albania states that, as of January 3, 2019, Albania maintained an exchange restriction in the form of outstanding debit balances on inoperative bilateral payment agreements. These were in place before Albania became an IMF member in 1991 and relate primarily to debt in nonconvertible and formerly nonconvertible currencies. (Country Report No. 19/29)
Angola	The IMF staff report for the Third Review under the Extended Arrangement under the Extended Fund Facility, Requests for Augmentation and Rephasing Access, Waivers of Nonobservance of Performance Criterion and Applicability of Performance Criterion, Modifications of Performance Criteria, and Completion of Financing Assurance Review for Angola states that, as of July 20, 2020, Angola maintained multiple currency practices (MCPs) and exchange restrictions (ERs) as described in the Informational Annex of IMF Country Report No. 18/156, with the exception of the ER arising from the operation of a priority list and the ER and MCP deriving from the stamp tax on foreign exchange operations, which were eliminated (see below). The application of a stamp tax on foreign exchange operations (SB) was eliminated in October 2019, removing an ER and an MCP (ER, Article VIII, 2a and MCP, Article VIII, 3). (Country Report No. 20/281)  Therefore, Angola maintained one ER subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII, Section 2(a) resulting from a special tax of 10% on transfers to non-residents under contracts for foreign technical assistance or management services and two MCPs that are subject to approval under Article VIII, Section 3 arising from the lack of a mechanism to prevent potential spreads in excess of 2% emerging (1) between successful bids within the BNA's foreign exchange auction; and (2) for transactions that take place at the reference rate in place and the rate at which transactions take place in the foreign exchange auction on that day. Angola also maintained restrictions on the making of payments and transfers for current international transactions under the transitional arrangements of Article XIV, Section 2. The measures maintained pursuant to Article XIV are: (i) limits on the availability of foreign exchange for invisible transactions i.e., travel expenses; and (ii) limits on unrequited transfers to foreign-based individuals and institutions. (Country Report No. 18/156)
Argentina	The IMF staff report for the Fourth Review under the Stand-By Arrangement, Request for Waivers of Applicability and Modification of Performance Criteria, and Financing Assurances Review with Argentina states that, as of July 3, 2019, the retention of the multiple currency price auction put in place in June 2018 that staff has assessed gives rise to the multiple currency practice. (Country Report No. 19/232)
Armenia	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation and Request for a Stand-By Arrangement with Armenia states that as of May 3, 2019, Armenia maintained one MCP, which arises from a 2007 agreement between the MOF and Central Bank of Armenia (CBA) to settle some budgetary transactions at an agreed accounting exchange rate throughout the fiscal year. (Country Report No. 19/154)
Aruba–Kingdom of the Netherlands	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation discussions with the Kingdom of the Netherlands–Aruba states that, as of May 6, 2019, Aruba maintained an unapproved exchange restriction arising from the foreign exchange tax on payments by residents to nonresidents (1.3% of the transaction value). (Country Report No. 19/148)
Bangladesh	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Bangladesh states that, as of August 7, 2019, Bangladesh maintained one restriction subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) on the convertibility and transferability of proceeds of current international transactions in nonresident taka accounts (NRTA). (Country Report No. 19/299)

Bhutan	The IMF staff report for the 2018 Article IV Consultation with Bhutan states that, as of August 7, 2018, Bhutan continues to avail itself of transitional arrangements under Article XIV, Section 2, pursuant to which it maintains exchange restrictions in connection with: (1) the availability of foreign exchange for travel, except for medical travel abroad by Bhutanese citizens, invisibles, and private transfers; (2) foreign exchange balancing requirement on remittances of income in convertible currencies or other foreign currencies from FDI; and (3) on the availability of foreign exchange for importers who have not provided evidence that goods for which payments have been made were actually imported. Bhutan also maintains exchange restrictions subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a), in connection with: (1) the foreign exchange balancing requirements for imports of capital goods (for projects involving FDI) and primary raw materials (for certain industrial projects); (2) banning residents who do not comply with the requirement to repatriate export proceeds from accessing foreign exchange for unrelated imports; (3) requiring foreign direct investment companies to pay for their establishment and operational expenses from their own convertible currency resources; (4) requiring Bhutanese companies to pay the interest on and amortization of external loans from their own convertible currency resources; and (5) restricting the availability of Indian rupees for making payments and transfers to India for certain current international transactions and banning the access to Indian rupees for unrelated current international transactions for those who contravene Royal Monetary Authority's (RMA's) 2012 guidelines on Indian rupee transactions. (Country Report No. 18/300)
Bosnia and Herzegovina	The IMF staff report for the Request for Purchase under the Rapid Financing Instrument for Bosnia and Herzegovina states that as of April 13, 2020, Bosnia and Herzegovina maintained restrictions on the transferability of balances and interest accrued on frozen foreign-currency deposits, subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII. (Country Report No. 20/126)
Brazil	The IMF staff report for the 2020 Article IV Consultation with Brazil states that, as of November 9, 2020, the tax on financial transactions (Imposto sobre Operações Financeiras, IOF) of 6.38% on exchange transactions carried out through credit card, debit card, and traveler's checks (including cash withdrawals) by companies to fulfill their payment obligations for purchases of goods and services abroad by their customers gives rise to a MCP subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII, Sections 2(a) and 3. In January 2008, the IOF for these exchange transactions was raised to 2.38% and then further increased to 6.38% in March 2011. The scope of operations was expanded to other foreign exchange transactions in addition to credit cards in December 2013. (Country Report No. 20/311)
Burundi	The IMF staff report for the 2014 Article IV Consultation, Fifth Review under the Three-Year Arrangement under the Extended Credit Facility states that, as of July 29, 2014, Burundi maintained one MCP that is inconsistent with Article VIII, Section 2(a): The exchange rate used for government transactions differs by more than 2% from market exchange rates. (Country Report No. 14/293)
Congo, Democratic Republic of the	The IMF staff report for the Staff-Monitored Program and Request for Disbursement Under the Rapid Credit Facility states that as of December 5, 2019, the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) maintained one exchange rate restriction subject to IMF approval arising from an outstanding net debt position against other contracting members under the inoperative regional payments' agreement with the Economic Community of the Great Lakes Countries. (Country Report No. 19/388)
Ecuador	The IMF staff report for the Request for an Extended Arrangement under the Extended Fund Facility with Ecuador states that, as of September 22, 2020, Ecuador maintained a tax that constitutes an exchange restriction subject to IMF approval under Article VIII. In addition, the SUCRE (Sistema Unitario de Compensación Regional de Pagos) regional payments arrangement also gives rise to a discriminatory exchange restriction, since the period for settlement under the bilateral payment arrangement exceeds three months (see Country Report No. 19/210). (Country Report No. 20/286)
Egypt	The IMF staff report for the 2017 Article IV Consultation Second Review Under the Extended Arrangement Under the Extended Fund Facility, and Request for Modification of Performance Criteria with Egypt states that, as of December 11, 2017, Egypt maintained one exchange restriction subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII, Sections 2(a) and 3 arising from a net debtor position under an inoperative bilateral payments arrangement with Bulgaria. (Country Report No. 18/14)
Ethiopia	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Ethiopia states that, as of December 11, 2019, Ethiopia maintained four restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions, which relate to: (1) the tax certification requirement for repatriation of dividend and other investment income; (2) restrictions on repayment of legal external loans and suppliers of foreign partners credits; (3) the prioritization and rationing of foreign exchange to certain imports of goods and services, debt payments and invisibles, and (4) the requirement to provide a clearance certificate from the National Bank of Ethiopia (NBE) to obtain import permits. These restrictions are inconsistent with Article VIII, Section 2(a), of the IMF's Articles of Agreement. (Country Report No. 20/29)
Fiji	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Fiji states that, as of January 23, 2020, exchange restrictions subject to Article VIII arise from the Fiji Revenue and Customs Authority tax certification requirements on the transfer abroad of profits and dividends, on the proceeds of airline ticket sales, and on the making of external debt and maintenance payments and from limits on large payments (e.g., oil imports and dividends repatriation of foreign banks). (Country Report No. 20/80)

Gabon	The IMF staff report for 2019 Article IV Consultation Fourth and Fifth Reviews under the Extended Arrangement under the Extended Fund Facility, and Request for Waiver of Nonobservance of Performance Criteria, and Rephrasing of the Remaining Purchases with Gabon states that as of December 4, 2019, Gabon maintained a 1.5% tax on wire transfers abroad that is not consistent with Gabon's obligations under Article VIII, Section 2(a) of the Articles of Agreement. The proceeds of this tax are used to fund Gabon's health insurance scheme. (Country Report No. 19/389).
Ghana	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Ghana states that, as of November 21, 2019, Ghana maintained one exchange restriction and an MCP subject to IMF approval. The exchange restriction arises from the limitation/prohibition in purchasing and transferring foreign exchange for import transactions by importers who have not submitted to the commercial bank customs entry forms for any past foreign exchange transactions related to imports, and which are unrelated to the underlying transaction. An MCP also arises, because the Bank of Ghana (BOG) requires the use of its internal rate (that is, the previous day's weighted average interbank exchange rate) for government transactions and the surrender of foreign exchange proceeds from cocoa exports funded through the cocoa syndicated loan without having a mechanism in place to ensure that, at the time of the transaction, this exchange rate does not differ from the rate prevailing in the market rate (that is, the interbank exchange rate) and the rates used by banks in their transactions with their customers by more than 2%. (Country Report No. 19/367).
Guinea	The IMF staff report for the First Review of the Arrangement Under the Three-Year Extended Credit Facility, Financing Assurances Review, and Request for Modification and for Waivers of Nonobservance of Performance Criteria with Guinea states that, as of June 8, 2018, the foreign exchange system gives rise to a MCP because the reference rate can potentially deviate by more than 2% from the commercial banks' purchase and sales rates on a given day. (Country Report No. 18/234)
Honduras	The IMF staff report for the Second Reviews Under the Stand-by Arrangement and the Arrangement Under the Standby Credit Facility, Requests for Augmentation and Rephrasing of Access, and Modification of Performance Criteria with Honduras referencing the 2019 Article IV Consultation and Request for a Stand-By Arrangement and an Arrangement under the Standby Credit Facility with Honduras (Country Report No. 19/236), states that, as of June 1, 2020, Honduras maintained two multiple currency practices subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 3: One MCP arises because there is no mechanism to prevent a potential deviation of more than 2% between the Reference Exchange Rate (TCR) of the day at which certain transactions take place and the exchange rates at which foreign exchange is sold at the foreign exchange auction or the foreign exchange interbank market at that day. A second MCP arises from the possible use of previous days' official exchange rates (TCR) in certain exchange rate transactions (for example, in foreign exchange sales by ADs to the Central Bank of Honduras (BCH) of amounts bought from customers or amounts that exceed the limits set by the BCH for such dealers) which rates may potentially deviate by more than 2% from the TCR and the interbank market rate on the day when foreign exchange rate transactions take place. (Country Report No. 20/186)
India	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with India states that, as of October 17, 2019, India maintained the following restrictions on the making of payments and transfers for current international transactions, which are subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a): restrictions related to the non-transferability of balances under the India-Russia debt agreement; restrictions arising from unsettled balances under inoperative bilateral payments arrangements with two Eastern European countries; and a restriction on the transfer of amortization payments on loans by nonresident relatives. (Country Report No. 19/385)
Iran	The IMF staff report for the 2018 Article IV Consultation with Islamic Republic of Iran states that, as of March 7, 2018, Iran maintained MCPs and an exchange restriction subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII, Sections 2(a) and 3: (1) A MCP and an exchange restriction arise from the establishment of an official exchange rate for use in some exchange transactions, which in practice differs by more than 2% from the rate used by foreign exchange bureaus. (2) A MCP arises from the differences of more than 2% between the current official and exchange bureaus rates and the preferential rates for certain imports for which foreign exchange commitments were made through LCs opened prior to March 21, 2002, under the previous multiple exchange rate system. (3) A MCP arises from the differences of more than 2% between the current official and exchange bureaus rates and the preferential rates for certain imports for which foreign exchange payment commitments were made through LCs or bank drafts prior to July 24, 2012. (Country Report No. 18/93)
Iraq	The IMF staff report for 2019 Article IV Consultation with Iraq states that, as of July 3, 2019, Iraq continues to avail itself of the transitional arrangements under Article XIV, Section 2, but no longer maintains any exchange restrictions or MCPs subject to Article XIV, Section 2, and currently maintains one MCP subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 3. The MCP arises from the lack of a mechanism to ensure that the exchange rate at the Central Bank of Iraq (CBI) foreign exchange window and the market rates (retail exchange rates of commercial banks and exchange bureaus for the sale of foreign currency from sources other than the CBI foreign exchange window) do not deviate from each other by more than 2%. A previously identified exchange restriction arising from an Iraqi balance owed to Jordan under an inoperative bilateral payment agreement has been eliminated. (Country Report No. 19/248)
Jamaica	The IMF staff report for the Sixth Review Under the Stand-by Arrangement with Jamaica states that, as of October 16, 2019, Jamaica continues to implement a multiple-price foreign exchange auction system that gives rise to MCPs. (Country Report No. 19/338)

Kyrgyz Republic	The IMF staff report for the Request for Purchase Under the Rapid Financing Instrument and Disbursement Under the Rapid Credit Facility with the Kyrgyz Republic states that, as of March 24, 2020, the Kyrgyz Republic maintained a MCP arising from the use of the official exchange rate for government transactions. The official rate may differ by more than 2% from market rates because it is based on the average transaction weighted rate of the preceding day. (Country Report No. 20/90)
Lesotho	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Lesotho states that, as of April 8, 2019, Lesotho maintained one exchange restriction arising from single discretionary allowances of M 1 million an individual a calendar year, for residents over 18, and of M 200,000 on the same basis for residents under 18. The availability of foreign exchange beyond these limits is subject to a discretionary approval on a case-by-case basis. (Country Report No. 19/113)
Maldives	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Maldives states that, as of April 30, 2019, Maldives continues to avail itself of the transitional provisions of Article XIV but no longer maintains any measures under this provision, and has not yet accepted the obligations of Article VIII, Sections 2, 3, and 4. It maintains an exchange restriction subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) of the IMF's Articles of Agreement arising from a shortage of foreign exchange at the official rate which leads to the Maldives Monetary Authority (MMA) rationing its supply of foreign exchange to commercial banks. This results in a channeling of foreign exchange transactions for current international transactions to the parallel market where transactions take place at an exchange rate that deviates by more than 2% from the prevailing market exchange rate. The greater than 2% spread gives rise to multiple currency practice subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 3, and also to an exchange restriction, given the additional cost involved for obtaining foreign exchange. The extent of rationing has been eased over the past two years by increasing the amounts provided to commercial banks and adjusting amounts in line with seasonal patterns. The official exchange rate used by the MMA for government transactions is calculated based on the midpoint of the weighted average of the buying and selling rates of foreign exchange transactions conducted by commercial banks one day earlier. The lack of a mechanism to prevent the spread between this official exchange rate used by the MMA for government transactions and the prevailing market exchange rate from deviating by more than 2% gives rise to a multiple currency practice subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 3. (Country Report No. 19/156)
Mongolia	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation, with Mongolia states that, as of August 2, 2019, Mongolia maintained two MCPs subject to IMF jurisdiction. First, the modalities of the multi-price auction system give rise to an MCP because there is no mechanism in place that ensures that exchange rates of accepted bids at the multi-price auction do not deviate by more than 2%. In addition, Mongolia has an official exchange rate (reference rate) that is mandatorily used for government transactions (as opposed to the commercial market rate). Therefore, by way of official action, the authorities have created market segmentation. While Order #699 of the Bank of Mongolia (BOM) issued on December 3, 2010, sets forth that the reference rate is determined based on the weighted average of market rates used from 4 p.m. of the previous day to 4 p.m. of the current day, staff are of the view that this Order does not eliminate the market segmentation and the multiplicity of effective rates arising from it. Accordingly, in the absence of a mechanism to ensure that the commercial rates and the reference rate do not deviate by more than 2%, the way the reference rate is used in government transactions gives rise to an MCP subject to IMF approval. (Country Report No. 19/297)
Nepal	The IMF staff report for the 2020 Article IV Consultation with Nepal states that as of February 28, 2020, the Industrial Enterprises Act places a 75% limit on the conversion and transfer to foreign currency of salaries of nonresidents from countries where convertible currency is in circulation. Because the limit applies to amounts that may be less than net salaries, it gives rise to an exchange restriction under Article VIII. (Country Report No. 20/96)
Nicaragua	The IMF Staff Report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Nicaragua states that, as of January 30, 2020, staff identified an exchange restriction arising from Nicaragua's participation in the SUCRE (Sistema Unitario de Compensación Regional de Pagos) regional payments arrangement. SUCRE gives rise to an exchange restriction because the period for settlement under this regional payment arrangement exceeds three months. See Decision No. 10749-(94/67). Under the SUCRE, Nicaragua made four commercial transactions between 2013 and 2015, and since 2015 no transactions have been made. (Country Report No. 20/59)
Nigeria	The IMF staff report for the 2020 Article IV Consultation with Nigeria states that, as of December 16, 2020, Nigeria maintained the following exchange restrictions subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) of the IMF's Articles of Agreement: (1) an exchange restriction arising from the prohibition to access foreign exchange at the Nigerian foreign exchange markets for the payment of imports of 42 categories of items; (2) an exchange restriction arising from the rationing of foreign exchange by the Central Bank of Nigeria (CBN) in different foreign exchange windows, and its allocation based on the CBN's determination of priority categories of transactions; and (3) an exchange restriction arising from existing limits on the amounts of foreign exchange available when traveling abroad (business travel allowance (BTA)/personal travel allowances (PTAs)), which cannot be exceeded even on verification of the bona fide nature of the transaction. In addition, Nigeria maintains the following MCPs subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 3 of the IMF's Articles of Agreement: (1) an MCP arising from the intervention practice of the CBN that results in the establishment of an official exchange rate for use in official (government) transactions and some other transactions, which may differ by more than 2% from the rate used by commercial banks in other CBN foreign exchange windows (Secondary Market Intervention Sale (SMIS), SME, IEFX, and Invisibles), and by money transfer operators; (2) an MCP arising from the large spread between exchange rates used by the CBN in its foreign exchange windows and the rates in the parallel market, caused by the CBN's limitation on the availability of foreign exchange which channels current international transactions to such market; and (3) an MCP arising from the potential spread of more than 2% in the exchange rates at which the CBN sells foreign exchange to successful auction bidders in the SMIS window. Country <sup>1</sup>	Exchange Restrictions and/or Multiple Currency Practices <sup>2</sup>
Pakistan	The IMF staff report for the Request for an Extended Arrangement under the Extended Fund Facility with Pakistan states that, as of June 28, 2019, import restrictions and an MCP, which are subject to approval under Article VIII of the IMF's Articles of Agreement, were introduced to support the balance of payments at a time of heightened volatility. Specifically, Pakistan maintains (1) a requirement to fully pre-fund LCs, imposed in early 2017; and (2) an exchange restriction on advance payment for imports against LCs, imposed in July 2018. (Country Report No. 19/212)
Papua New Guinea	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation and Request for Staff Monitored Program with Papua New Guinea states that, as of February 21, 2020, Papua New Guinea maintained the following exchange restrictions subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) of the IMF's Articles of Agreement arising from: (1) the requirement to obtain a tax clearance certificate (TCC) evidencing the payment of all taxes prior to making payments or transfers for certain current international transactions and (2) the rationing of foreign exchange, which results in undue delays and arrears in current international payments. Papua New Guinea also maintains the following MCPs subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 3: (1) a MCP arising from the spread of more than 2% between the rates set by Bank of Papua New Guinea (BPNG) for its foreign exchange allocations to authorized foreign exchange dealers (AFEDs), and the rates used by AFEDs in transactions with their clients; and (2) an MCP arising from the potential spread deviation of more than 2% between the rates set by BPNG for its foreign exchange transactions with the government and embassies, and the rates used by AFEDs in transactions with their clients. (Country Report No. 20/95)
São Tomé and Príncipe	The IMF staff report for the First Review under the Extended Credit Facility and Request for Augmentation of Access, Rephasing of Access, and Financing Assurances Review for Sao Tome and Principe states that, as of July 20, 2020, São Tomé and Príncipe continues to avail itself of the transitional arrangements under Article XIV, but it does not maintain restrictions under Article XIV. However, it maintains restrictions subject to IMF approval under Article VIII. One exchange restriction regarding limitations on the transferability of net income from investment arises from Article 3(g) and Article 18 of the Investment Code (Law No. 19/2016). This restriction results from the requirement that taxes and other obligations to the government have to be paid/fulfilled as a condition for transfer, to the extent the requirement includes the payment of taxes and the fulfillment of obligations unrelated to the net income to be transferred. The second exchange restriction arises from limitations on the availability of foreign exchange through rationing of foreign exchange by Bank of São Tomé and Príncipe (BCSTP). This exchange restriction also gives rise to a MCP as the rationing has channeled bona fide current transactions to the parallel market where the exchange rate is at a spread of more than 2% from the exchange rate in the formal market. (Country Report No. 2020/232)
Serbia	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation and Second Review under the Policy Coordination Instrument with Serbia states that as of June 28, 2019, Serbia maintained a system free of restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions, except with respect to blocked pre-1991 foreign currency savings deposits (IMF Country Report No. 02/105). (Country Report No. 19/238)
South Sudan	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with South Sudan, states that as of May 15, 2019, South Sudan maintained exchange restrictions and a MCP under the transitional arrangements of Article XIV. The exchange restrictions arise from: imposing absolute ceilings on the availability of foreign exchange for certain invisible transactions (travel, remittances for living expenses of students and families residing abroad, and transfers of salaries by foreign workers). The MCP, which also gives rise to an exchange restriction because of extra burden, arises from the spread of more than 2% between the parallel market exchange rate and the formal commercial exchange market rate. South Sudan also maintains the MCPs and exchange restriction subject to IMF's approval under Article VIII. The MCPs arise from the spread larger than 2% between (1) the official (indicative) rate and commercial banks' (market) rate and (2) between the official (indicative) rate and the parallel market rate. The exchange restriction arises because of prioritization of foreign exchange allocation by the Bank of South Sudan (BSS) for external government payments and payments for certain essential commodities. (Country Report No. 19/153)
Sudan	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Sudan states that, as of February 5, 2020, Sudan maintained the following measures subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII, Sections 2(a) and 3: (1) An exchange restriction arising from the government's limitations on the availability of foreign exchange and the allocation of foreign exchange to certain priority items; (2) an MCP and exchange restriction arising from the establishment of an official exchange rate (the Central Bank of Sudan (CBOS) rate) for use in all government exchange transactions which in practice differs by more than 2% from the rate used by commercial banks; (3) an MCP and exchange restriction arising from large spreads between the CBOS rate and the parallel market exchange rate because of the CBOS' limitation on the availability of foreign exchange which channels current international transactions to the parallel market; and (4) an exchange restriction and an MCP arising from the imposition by the government of a cash margin requirement for most imports. (Country Report No. 20/72)
Syria	The IMF staff report for the 2009 Article IV Consultation with Syria states that as of February 12, 2010, Syria continued to maintain, under Article XIV, restrictions on payments and transfers for current international transactions, including administrative allocation of foreign exchange. Syria also maintained exchange measures that are subject to IMF approval under Article VIII: (1) prohibition against purchases by private parties of foreign exchange from the banking system for some current international transactions; (2) an MCP resulting from divergences of more than 2% between the official exchange rate and officially recognized market exchange rates; (3) a non-interest-bearing advance import deposit requirement of 75%–100% for public sector imports; and (4) an exchange restriction arising from the net debt under inoperative bilateral payments arrangements with the Islamic Republic of Iran and Sri Lanka. (Country Report No. 10/86)

Tajikistan	The IMF staff report for the Request for Disbursement under the Rapid Credit Facility with Tajikistan states that, as of April 29, 2020, the Republic of Tajikistan maintained one exchange restriction and two multiple currency practices subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) and Section 3 of the IMF's Articles of Agreement. Foreign exchange shortages, evidenced by market participants' reports of undue delays in obtaining foreign exchange and external payment arrears, persist in the commercial foreign exchange market as a result of the setting of exchange rates by commercial banks used in foreign exchange transactions, due to informal guidance by the National Bank of Tajikistan (NBT), which do not reflect market conditions. As a consequence of this, not all demand for bona fide foreign exchange for current international transactions is satisfied, giving rise to an exchange restriction. One of the multiple currency practices arises because of the absence of a mechanism to prevent a potential deviation of more than 2% between: (1) the prevailing market exchange rate and (2) the official exchange rate, which is required to be used for converting domestic currency (somoni) to foreign currency, and vice versa, between accounts of individuals and legal entities opened within the same commercial bank; The second multiple currency practice arises because of the absence of a mechanism to prevent a potential deviation of more than 2% between: (1) the somoni–Russian ruble exchange rate (calculated as a cross-rate using the official exchange rate of the USD to somoni), which is required to be used for mandatory ruble surrender transactions and (with a maximum variation of 0.5%) for the purchase/sale in the interbank market of rubles derived from the mandatory surrender and (2) the market exchange rate banks may use for purchase/sale of Russian rubles derived from other sources. (Country Report No. 20/151)
Trinidad and Tobago	The IMF staff report for the 2018 Article IV Consultation with Trinidad and Tobago states that, as of August 6, 2018, Trinidad and Tobago maintained an exchange restriction and two MCPs subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) and Section 3. The exchange restriction arises from the authorities' restriction of the exchange rate (that is, by restricting the maximum market buying and selling rates, and prohibiting foreign exchange transactions beyond the maximum rates), while not providing enough foreign exchange (that is, through the Central Bank of Trinidad and Tobago (CBTT)'s foreign exchange interventions) to meet all demand for current transactions at that rate. The CBTT also limits sales of its foreign exchange intervention funds to meeting only "trade-related" demand, which do not include non-trade transactions that are, however, current international transactions as defined under Article XXX(d) of the IMF's Articles of Agreement, and encourages ADs to similarly prioritize sales of foreign exchange obtained from other sources. Further, the authorities prioritize provision of foreign exchange to certain manufacturers through a special foreign exchange facility using the Export–Import Bank of Trinidad and Tobago (EximBank). These actions result in undue delays in access to foreign exchange to make payments or transfers for current international transactions and external payment arrears. The two MCPs arise from the absence of a mechanism to prevent the potential deviation of more than 2% at any given time among several effective exchange rates regulated by the authorities, for spot exchange transactions, namely: (1) the potential 2% deviation between: (a) on the one hand, the CBTT's intervention rate and the ADs' selling rates (the maximum of which is anchored on the intervention rate plus fixed margins), and (b) on the other hand, the ADs' buying rates (the maximum of which is limited at the previous day's mid-rate); (2) the potential 2% deviation between: (a) on the one hand, the buying and selling rates for foreign exchange transactions between the CBTT and the government, and (b) on the other hand, the ADs' selling rates. (Country Report No. 18/285)
Tunisia	The IMF staff report for the 2017 Article IV Consultation, Second Review under the Extended Fund Facility, and Request for Waivers of Nonobservance of Performance Criteria, and Rephasing of Access for Tunisia states that, as of March 14, 2018, Tunisia maintained the following measures subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Sections 2(a) and 3: (1) an exchange restriction arising from the measures that restricts access to short-term financing for current international transactions that was customarily available and (2) an MCP resulting from honoring exchange rate guarantees extended prior to August 1988 to development banks, which will automatically expire after maturity of existing commitments (total loans covered by these guarantees amount to about US$20 million). (Country Report No. 18/120)  The IMF staff report for the Fifth Review Under the Extended Fund Facility, and Requests for Waivers of Nonobservance and Modification of Performance Criteria and for Rephasing of Access for Tunisia states that effective December 31, 2018, the exchange restrictions introduced in 2017 (banning trade credits for imports that are deemed nonessential) was repealed. (Country Report No. 19/233)
Ukraine	The IMF staff report for the Request for Stand-By Arrangement with Ukraine states that as of June 2, 2020, Ukraine continues to maintain one exchange restriction and two MCPs, but a roadmap is in place to gradually phase them out. The exchange restriction arises from limits on the availability of foreign exchange for certain non-trade current international transactions (the limit on corporates' investments abroad may capture some current transactions). The MCPs arise from: (1) the use of multiple price foreign exchange auctions conducted by the National Bank of Ukraine (NBU) without a mechanism to prevent a spread deviation of more than 2% between the auction and market exchange rates and (2) the use of the official exchange rate for exchange transactions with the government without a mechanism to prevent a spread deviation of more than 2% between the official exchange rate and market exchange rates. (Country Report No. 20/197)
Zambia	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Zambia, states that as of August 2, 2019, Zambia maintained an exchange restriction, which is subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, arising from limitations imposed by the government on access to foreign exchange for the making of payments and transfers for current international transactions, which is evidenced by the existence of external payments arrears accumulated prior to October 4, 1985. (Country Report No. 19/263)

Country <sup>1</sup>	Exchange Restrictions and/or Multiple Currency Practices <sup>2</sup>
Zimbabwe	IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Zimbabwe, states that, as of February 12, 2020, Zimbabwe continues to maintain a series of measures that give rise to several exchange restrictions and MCPs, inconsistent with Article VIII, Section 2(a) and Section 3, in particular: b(1) Under the official guidance issued by the Reserve Bank of Zimbabwe (RBZ), commercial banks are required to prioritize their foreign exchange sale to finance specific categories of international transactions which constitutes an exchange restriction as it limits the availability of foreign exchange for payments and transfers for current international transactions, in particular in the non-priority or low priority categories. Further, the prioritization also results in an MCP as it channels some of the non-priority or low-priority transactions to the bureau market which has an exchange rate of more than 2% in excess of that in the interbank market. (2) The RBZ also allocates foreign exchange to finance certain necessity imports, and purchases repatriated foreign exchange proceeds that exporters are required to sell (surrender) to the RBZ, at the prior business date's interbank rate. These allocation and purchase transactions at the prior business date's interbank rate constitute an MCP as this rate has recently deviated and may continue to deviate by more than 2% from the prevailing foreign exchange rate for other foreign exchange transactions taking place on the same date. The foreign exchange allocation here also gives rise to an exchange restriction as it limits the availability of foreign exchange for payments and transfers for other current international transactions not eligible to receive such allocation. (3) Zimbabwe has also a longstanding exchange restriction subject to IMF jurisdiction arising from unsettled balances under an inoperative bilateral payment agreement with Malaysia. (Country Report No. 20/82)

Regulatory Framework for Foreign Exchange Transactions

This section surveys the measures reported by members with respect to the regulatory framework for foreign exchange transactions from January 2020 through August 2021. The measures are divided into five major categories: trade-related measures, current invisible transactions and transfers, account transactions, capital controls, and provisions specific to commercial banks and institutional investors.

Trade-Related Measures

Members reported a record overall number of changes related to trade from January 2020 through August 2021, with 426 actions recorded in 2020–21 compared with an average of 230 measures in the previous three reporting periods. More than half (237) were easing measures, most taken by members in an effort to contain the economic fallout from the COVID-19 pandemic, while tightening measures amounted to only 141, reversing the trend observed over previous years.

In 2020, the total number of changes in import- and export-related exchange and trade controls rose to 281, of which 172 were easing (up from 75 in 2019—and more than the number of all trade-related changes reported that year) (Figure 5, panel 1). Only 81 changes were tightening and 28 neutral. In the first months of 2021, however, easing and tightening measures reached almost equal proportions, with trade liberalization measures just marginally more numerous than restrictive ones (65 and 60, respectively).

Although the number of countries<sup>38</sup> implementing restrictive measures continued to rise, to 39 in 2020, that number was eclipsed by the increase in countries taking easing measures (92) (Figure 5, panel 2). Between January 2020 and August 2021, emerging market and developing economies reported an average of 6.84 measures per member, followed by low-income developing countries with 3.77 measures per member, and advanced economies with just 2.93 measures per member.

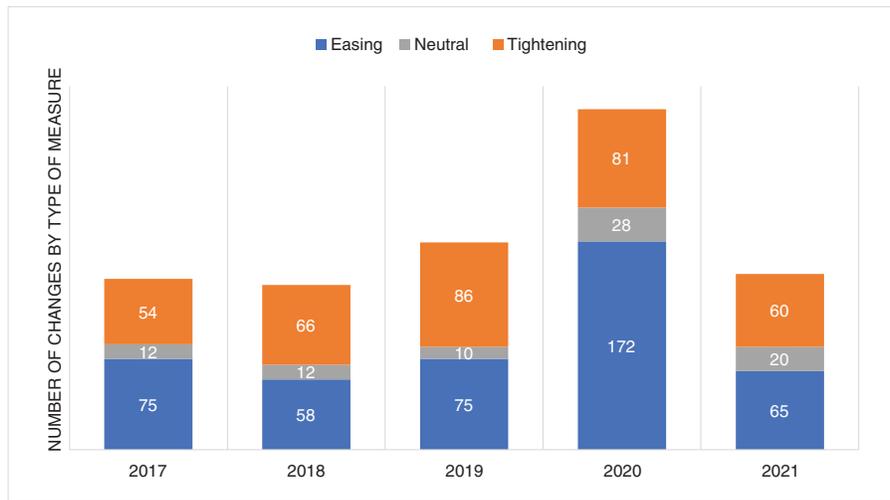

<sup>38</sup> Note that the number of countries in Figures 5 and 6 may not add up in the text because certain countries introduced tightening measures at the same time as neutral or easing measures.

Imports and import payments

Sixty economies reported a total of 221 measures related to imports and import payments in 2020, up sharply from 35 economies reporting just 122 measures in 2019 (Figure 6, panel 1). The significant increase was due mainly to a rise in easing measures (to 138 in 2020 from 56 in 2019), many of which can be attributed to reactions to the COVID-19 pandemic. The 63 tightening measures followed the previous trend, while more neutral measures than before (20) were introduced. While emerging market and developing economies instituted the largest number of easing actions, they also reported a high proportion of tightening measures—as opposed to advanced economies, which tightened more sparingly (Figure 6, panel 2).

1. In 2020, members reported a record number of easing measures, while data from the first months of 2021 present more equal proportions of easing and tightening measures.

2. The number of countries implementing measures rose dramatically in 2020, dominated by emerging market and developing economies, and available data for 2021 appear to indicate the continuation of this trend.

1. Easing measures more than doubled between 2019 and 2020. Available data for 2021 suggest a drop in overall measures compared with 2020 but remain comparable with previous years.

2. Most measures in 2020 and 2021, both easing and tightening, were taken by emerging market and developing economies, whereas advanced economies tightened more sparingly.

Forty-nine of the 60 countries enacting import-related measures took at least one liberalizing action in 2020, with a total of 138 easing measures reported. Among these countries, Sri Lanka implemented the largest number of liberalization measures (23), followed by Pakistan and Turkey (10 each), Bolivia (9), and Kuwait (8). The record number of easing measures can be attributed largely to preventive and reactive measures aimed at mitigating the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic. Measures taken by Sri Lanka were concerned with the simplification and, in most cases, reduction of customs duties for imported goods as well as the granting of exceptions to the Commodity Export Subsidy Scheme for medical equipment in the wake of the pandemic's first wave. Bolivia and Turkey enacted similar changes, restructuring several kinds of tariffs and granting temporary customs exceptions for items such as face masks, oxygen cylinders, and other medical supplies or personal protective equipment (also Canada, Zambia). All eight measures reported by Kuwait concerned the lifting of country- and product-specific import bans, most of which were removed during the first wave of the COVID-19 pandemic. Liberalizing measures taken by Pakistan, on the other hand, were more concerned with easing financing requirements for imports, such as advance payment requirements and deposits (also Libya, Mauritania, Philippines). Other such measures included exemptions for importers from being required to submit supporting documents to banks involved in import transactions (Bangladesh, South Africa), temporary suspensions of requirements for letters of credit (Bangladesh, Egypt), and increased threshold levels triggering the requirement to show supporting documentation (Ukraine). Despite this clear preponderance of pandemic-related actions, a nontrivial number of non-pandemic-related liberalizations took place in 2020 as well; for instance, in the form of trade agreements that went into effect during the reporting period, such as those between Australia and Peru and between Peru and the United Kingdom. Imports from Israel are no longer prohibited in Bahrain and the United Arab Emirates, according to corresponding normalization agreements.

Twenty-five countries implemented 63 tightening measures in 2020, a slight increase compared with 2019 (60 measures). Fourteen of these measures were adopted by the authorities in Sri Lanka, mirroring the previously mentioned restructuring of customs duties, and 11 in Turkey. It is important to note that most of these tightening actions signified the removal of previous easing measures, which were enacted temporarily as part of members' efforts to combat the ongoing pandemic. However, other tightening measures were taken to protect international reserves from the adverse economic impact of the pandemic. Such new tightening measures concerned documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports (approval requirements in Argentina) as well as import restrictions on nonessential goods, which were introduced in many jurisdictions concurrently with COVID-related easing measures to protect declining international reserves (e.g., Seychelles, Sri Lanka,).

Available data for 2021 appear to confirm the trend toward a higher overall number of measures reported. However, easing measures have so far been only slightly more common than tightening measures, with 41 and 36 measures reported, respectively. Liberalizing changes concerned mainly reduced tariffs (e.g., in Bolivia, India, Malaysia, Sierra Leone, Zambia), while restrictive actions—many of which signified a return to regulations in place before pandemic-related easing measures were enacted—also extended to tightening financing requirements for imports (e.g., in Argentina, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka). New pandemic-related measures in 2021 were mainly easing: the Mexican authorities, for instance, temporarily waived the import duty for vaccines against SARS-CoV-2, and Bolivia enabled subnational governments to engage in direct foreign procurement of such vaccines.

Exports and export proceeds

There were 115 changes related to exports and export proceeds from January 2020 through August 2021, with easing measures (58) outnumbering tightening measures (42) and only a small number of neutral changes (7). Measures on export licenses were most numerous (37), followed by those regarding repatriation requirements (30) and surrender requirements (25); measures on export taxes amounted to 20. However, the proportions between easing and tightening measures for 2020 and 2021 presented quite different pictures: Easing measures greatly dominated in 2020 (34), making up almost twice as many of the total as tightening measures (18). In the first months of 2021, on the other hand, there were only 24 changes linked to liberalizing exports and export payments, while tightening measures were already more numerous than they were for all of 2020 (24 compared with 18) (Figure 7, panel 1).

In 2020, regulations on exports and export proceeds were eased in 25 countries<sup>39</sup> (up from 11 in 2019) and tightened in 14 countries (down from 16 in 2019) (Figure 7, panel 2). Russia led the list of liberalizing countries with four easing measures, relaxing repatriation requirements for proceeds from several types of exports, while Kuwait enacted both four easing and four tightening measures. The case of Kuwait exemplifies the temporary nature of measures taken in 2020, many of which were lifted after the first months of the pandemic, resulting in both easing and tightening measures being recorded in the same categories (e.g., export licenses). Liberalization also extended to regulations on exports and export proceeds in low-income developing countries: Sierra Leone, for instance, reduced the repatriation requirement from 100 percent to 30 percent for all export proceeds from commodities that are not agricultural and fishery products. Among the easing actions in this category taken in response to the economic repercussions of the COVID-19 pandemic were extended tenures of realization of export proceeds (Bangladesh, India, Tunisia, Uzbekistan) as well as exemptions from or reductions of surrender requirements (Malaysia, Zimbabwe).

Showcasing the differential impact of the pandemic, most of the 18 tightening measures introduced in 2020 were aimed at containing the economic repercussions of the COVID-19 pandemic. For instance, Mozambique increased its surrender requirement to 30 percent, to address the exceptional balance of payments needs arising from the pandemic. Temporary controls were also applied to the exports of certain goods deemed to contribute to control and prevention of the spread of the COVID-19 virus, including personal protective equipment, disinfectant wipes, and hand sanitizers (e.g., Australia). Non-pandemic-related tightening measures included an increased repatriation requirement in Iran (from 50–60 percent to 80 percent of export revenues) as well as a reduced repatriation period in Sudan in response to inadequate international reserves.

1. Changes increased overall in 2020 and 2021. While easing measures dominated in 2020, data from the first months of 2021 present almost equal proportions of easing and tightening measures.

2. Tightening measures were introduced mostly by EMDEs in 2020, while more LIDCs tightened in 2021.

Source: AREAER database; and IMF staff calculations.

Note: The position date for 2021 varies by country and is less than the full year. AEs = advanced economies; EMDEs = emerging market and developing economies; LIDCs = low-income developing countries.

During the first months of 2021, there were equal numbers of tightening and easing measures (24 each); 7 neutral measures were also reported. However, a clear increase in tightening measures was discernible, with such actions in early 2021 already outnumbering the total for 2020 (18). Among the 24 restrictive changes in 2021, Sri Lanka alone instituted 6 measures—for instance, introducing a 25 percent surrender requirement to licensed banks on all proceeds from exports of goods, as well as a requirement for banks to sell 50 percent of the proceeds in various currencies purchased from exporters of goods to the central bank. Malawi also reintroduced such a requirement to manage shortages of foreign exchange on a temporary basis and lowered the time allowed for repatriation of profits under an existing repatriation requirement. Other pandemic-related tightening measures in 2021 included an authorization requirement for the exportation of COVID-19 vaccines (Belgium) and, at the European Union level, a transparency and authorization mechanism for exports of COVID-19 vaccines. In terms of easing measures in 2021, Argentina registered four such changes, lifting a 50 percent surrender requirement for proceeds from exports other than hydrocarbons and mineral products and relaxing both repatriation requirements and export taxes. Russia continued its liberalization trend with four measures aimed at easing repatriation requirements. Malaysia, similarly as part of a broader liberalization of the country's foreign exchange policy, entirely removed a requirement to surrender export proceeds to authorized dealers, following an earlier suspension of surrender requirement below a threshold because of pandemic-related economic pressure.

Current Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

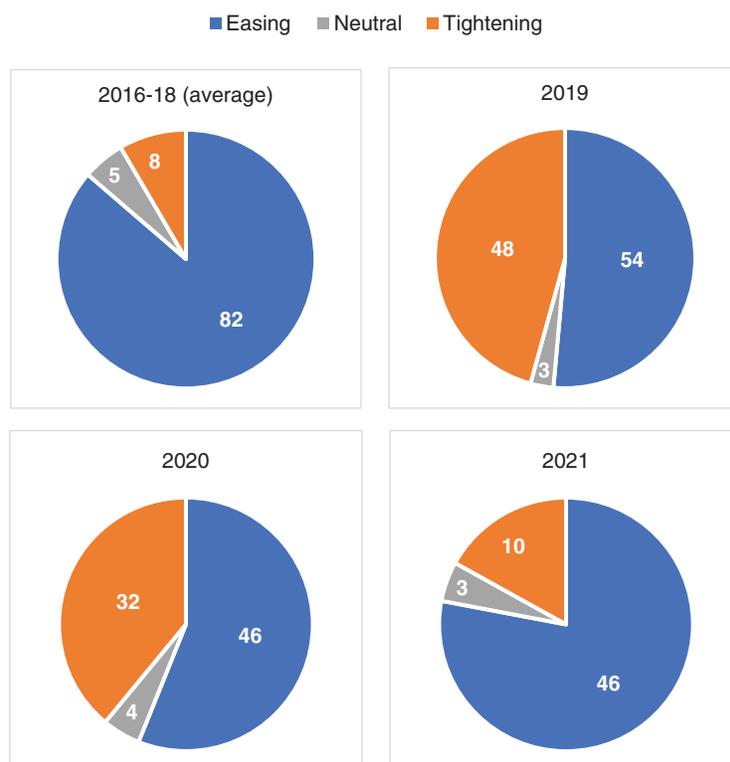

This section discusses exchange controls on invisible transactions and transfers that are included in the current account of the balance of payments. This category includes income from investment (for example, profits, dividends, and interest); payments for travel, education, medical expenses, and subscription and membership fees; unrequited transfers (for example, remittance of nonresidents' salaries and wages); and payments related to services. The section also covers the repatriation and surrender requirements for proceeds from current invisible transactions and current transfers.

Liberalization in this category picked up noticeably in the reporting period, reversing the slowdown observed in 2019 and approaching the average proportions of 2016–18 (Figure 8). From January 2020 through August 2021, members reported significantly more easing measures (92) than restrictive ones (42), especially in the first months of 2021.

(Number of changes, by measure)

While the number of tightening measures in 2020 and 2021 continued to exceed the average for 2016–18, a trend toward prior proportions is discernible, with fewer tightening measures reported than in 2019.

Payments for current invisibles and current transfers

During 2020, more than half of the 67 measures related to payments for current invisibles and current transfers, reported by 22 countries, were easing measures (37), while 28 were tightening and 3 neutral. Of the 37 liberalizing changes, Bangladesh reported 10 actions across a range of current payments, including eliminating documentation requirements for ex post verification of dividend payments and easing trade-related requirements in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. Easing measures were also taken by Argentina (6), both to facilitate access to foreign currency by residents abroad and to grant exceptions to new currency controls (see section that follows). In early 2020, Morocco increased the electronic trade allowance for individuals using credit cards abroad, and Maldives abolished a remittance tax. In addition, several countries eased restrictions, including in response to COVID-19, to facilitate personal payments (Argentina, Bangladesh, Nepal, Tajikistan, Tonga); payments for travel (Morocco, South Africa, Tunisia); foreign workers' wages (Bangladesh, Maldives); credit card use abroad (Argentina, Bangladesh, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Morocco, Ukraine); and other payments (e.g., Pakistan).

In 2020, among the 28 tightening measures reported, 11 were introduced by Argentina as the country imposed and strengthened currency controls to prevent capital flight in the context of considerable balance of payments difficulties. The controls covered most payments in this category and included documentation requirements, prior approval requirements, and quantitative limits. Several other countries introduced tightening measures on investment-related payments to stave off potential negative impacts of the COVID-19 crisis on foreign exchange reserves. Tonga (6 measures), for instance, tightened conditions on all non-import-related transfers by requiring tax clearance for such transfers of any amount as part of the government's COVID-19 tax policy. Given its reliance on inflows of foreign currency through tourism revenues, which dropped significantly, Fiji (4 measures) required central bank approval for all transfers of profits and dividends, regardless of the amount, and reduced quantitative limits on credit and debit card use abroad at the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic. Other examples of members tightening regulations on investment-related payments to strengthen the resilience of the financial sector during the pandemic include temporary bans on the granting of foreign exchange licenses for all outgoing transactions, including dividend payments and profit transfers (Aruba, Albania, The Bahamas) and above certain thresholds (Curaçao and Sint Maarten).

The trend toward liberalization in this category continued into the first months of 2021, diverging further from the 2019 proportions and approaching 2016–18 averages. Of 42 measures reported, the vast majority (36) were easing, with only 3 neutral and 3 tightening changes in regulations. The Philippines enacted 7 easing measures, relaxing indicative limits across most subcategories by allowing foreign exchange to be credited to foreign currency deposit unit accounts for remittance to nonresident beneficiaries, followed by the Solomon Islands (5), which increased the amount commercial banks may authorize for payment while increasing the threshold for central bank approval for several types of payments. COVID-19–related liberalization of personal payment transactions continued in some countries—for instance, regarding medical treatment abroad (Samoa). Only Sri Lanka and Bangladesh tightened in 2021, the former by limiting credit card use abroad for foreign exchange payments to nonresidents and the latter by removing temporary pandemic-related easing measures on remittances abroad under online teaching arrangements.

Proceeds from current invisibles and current transfers

Between January 2020 and the end of August 2021, easing regulations outnumbered tightening measures (19 and 11, respectively), with one neutral measure reported. Nineteen of the total thirty-one changes concerned surrender requirements, and twelve targeted repatriation requirements.

Ten countries reported 14 changes in 2020, composed of 9 easing measures, 4 tightening measures, and 1 neutral change. Many of the measures mirrored the changes to regulations on exports and export-related payments. Among the six countries liberalizing restrictions on proceeds from current and invisible transfers, Russia alone accounted for 4 of the 9 easing measures, reflecting the previously mentioned reforms of repatriation requirements. Other easing measures included increases in the amount of export proceeds allowed to be retained abroad (Thailand) as well as decreases in surrender requirements to authorized dealers (Bangladesh) or to the central bank (Honduras).

Four countries tightened in 2020, mostly in relation to the pandemic: Belarus ended a deadline extension for repatriation requirements enacted earlier that year; Kazakhstan introduced measures aimed at stabilizing the exchange rate, including requiring quasi-public-sector export entities to sell a portion of foreign currency export proceeds in the domestic market; Mozambique introduced a new 30 percent surrender requirement to ease pressure on foreign currency reserves; and Nigeria required oil and gas companies to sell foreign exchange directly to the central bank to improve foreign exchange supply in the economy in the context of the pandemic.

In the first months of 2021, members reported 10 easing measures and 7 tightening measures, for a total of 17 changes in regulations—already more than in all of 2020. On the easing side, Russia once again led with four measures aimed at liberalizing regulations regarding proceeds from current invisibles and current transfers, followed by Bangladesh with two measures relaxing surrender requirements under certain conditions with the goal of facilitating exports and e-commerce. Algeria made surrender to authorized dealers of foreign exchange proceeds from current invisibles and current transfers entirely optional, and Ethiopia increased the amount of foreign exchange exporters and inward remittance beneficiaries may retain in their domestic accounts. Among those introducing new surrender requirements were Malawi and Suriname (30 percent of export proceeds) and Sri Lanka (10 percent on purchases by banks of workers' inward remittances). Malawi reintroduced the surrender requirement to manage the shortage of foreign exchange on a temporary basis, seeking to encourage exporters to step up foreign exchange supply to the interbank market as the central bank winds down its role as supplier of foreign exchange.

Account Transactions

From January 2020 through August 2021, most of the 182 changes in resident and nonresident account regulations were easing regulations (92), followed by 53 neutral and 37 tightening measures. Among the 27 countries<sup>40</sup> reporting measures, emerging market and developing economies were the only group taking restrictive measures; advanced economies and low-income developing countries eased regulations or passed neutral measures (Figure 9, panel 1).

Changes in regulations in this category were not as numerous in 2020 as they were in 2019. Among the 91 changes reported in 2020, 53 were liberalization efforts, while 22 of the remaining measures were tightening and 16 neutral. While 2020 thus saw a drop in liberalizing regulations and an increase in tightening measures (most of which were taken in response to the COVID-19 pandemic), easing measures still made up the largest share of changes reported, and a greater preponderance of easing regulations was discernible in the available data for 2021.

Resident accounts

Twenty-one members reported 57 measures concerning resident accounts in 2020, of which liberalization actions (33) outnumbered tightening (17) and neutral (7) measures (Figure 9, panel 2). While easing and neutral measures thus declined from their previous levels, tightening measures almost doubled compared with 2019. Concerning the 33 easing measures, Russia (5) and Sri Lanka (6) dominated, the former by removing restrictions on residents' deposit accounts in domestic and foreign currency at nonbank institutions and the latter by permitting outward remittances on capital transactions, among other changes. Both Bangladesh and South Africa liberalized extensively as well, partially in response to the COVID-19 pandemic: Bangladesh, for instance, permitted dividends payable to foreign shareholders to be credited to their foreign currency accounts maintained in the country. South Africa, as a temporary measure for the lockdown period, allowed authorized dealers to open customer foreign currency accounts for government-related bodies to receive donations from abroad and to retain foreign donations for overseas payments for personal protective equipment. As a general reform, the country allowed institutional investors to open customer foreign currency accounts to accept foreign currency deposits emanating from disinvestment proceeds of foreign assets. Similarly, Thailand removed previous restrictions and limits on residents maintaining foreign exchange accounts. Several low-income developing countries also reported significant changes: Resident Ethiopians, for instance, were allowed to open foreign currency savings accounts in commercial banks without approval from the National Bank of Ethiopia.

Tightening measures in 2020 were introduced by, among others, Argentina, Aruba, South Africa, Sri Lanka, and Venezuela. Venezuela, for instance, tightened regulations on resident foreign exchange accounts to curtail domestic payments for goods and services in foreign currency. To reduce overall demand for foreign currency and to strengthen the domestic currency capital market, Argentina restricted convertibility of domestic currency into foreign currency without central bank approval by requiring an affidavit from customers indicating that they have not conducted certain operations in securities at a more depreciated exchange rate. Members also introduced a range of tightening measures related to COVID-19: Fiji suspended offshore investment and the associated opening of domestic foreign currency accounts; Curaçao and Sint Maarten no longer approved foreign exchange licenses for outward transactions above certain thresholds. Temporary daily withdrawal limits for resident foreign exchange accounts were enacted in Egypt and lowered from existing levels in Sri Lanka; the latter also suspended outward remittances through resident foreign currency accounts. Sri Lanka is an example of a country that complemented tightening measures on outflows with easing measures to encourage inflows of foreign exchange through the establishment of special deposit accounts available to a broad set of eligible resident and nonresident individuals and entities.

Both easing and tightening measures were on the rise in early 2021: among the 51 recorded changes in regulations, 24 were of an easing nature, while 8 were tightening changes. Sri Lanka made up 8 of the easing actions, notably allowing resident individuals to hold foreign exchange accounts abroad. Similarly, Thailand increased the total limit on portfolio investment abroad for retail investors. Aruba (5 measures) removed temporary foreign exchange restrictions imposed in response to the pandemic and once again allowed transfers by resident legal entities to their own bank accounts held abroad. Malaysia eased convertibility of accounts in domestic currency into foreign currency by allowing sales of domestic currency by residents freely for any amount with licensed onshore banks (excluding international Islamic banks). Resident individuals in the Solomon Islands first became eligible to hold foreign exchange accounts domestically in 2021. Of the 19 neutral measures, 17 were enacted by Sri Lanka, reflecting both extensions of temporary pandemic-related measures as well as the restructuring of regulations regarding different types of accounts in the country. Six of the eight tightening measures in 2021 were also introduced by Sri Lanka, reflecting mainly changes to business foreign currency accounts. North Macedonia enacted new limits for transfers to accounts with payment institutions or e-money institutions abroad. Temporary pandemic-related tightening measures also continued into 2021, with Mongolia prohibiting transactions in foreign currency between residents and legal entities to lower deposit dollarization.

Nonresident accounts

Ten members reported 34 changes in 2020, just slightly fewer than in 2019. The changes continued to be predominantly in the easing direction (19), at about the same level as in 2018 (Figure 9, panel 3). Bangladesh alone contributed eight liberalization measures, expanding, for example, the types of income earned by expatriates that may be credited to foreign currency accounts. Bangladesh was followed in terms of easing measures by two other emerging market and developing economies—namely, Sri Lanka (7) and Pakistan (2). Following the emergence of COVID-19, Sri Lanka for instance introduced a new freely convertible and repatriable foreign currency account to shore up foreign currency reserves. Both Pakistan and Ethiopia liberalized inflows by allowing certain nonresidents, i.e., Pakistan Origin Card holders and nonresident foreign nationals of Ethiopian origin, respectively, to hold new foreign and domestic currency accounts.

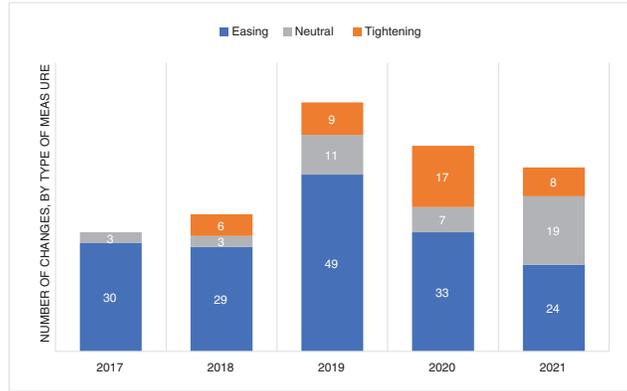

Only three countries tightened regulations in this category in 2020. Sri Lanka lowered the amount holders of personal foreign currency accounts may withdraw in foreign currency notes and, as a COVID-19 measure, the migration allowance for those claiming the allowance for the first time. Overall, Sri Lanka reported equal numbers of easing and tightening measures regarding domestic accounts (7), reflecting in part the temporary nature of COVID-19–related measures. Fiji tightened the rules on deposits of proceeds from the sale of domestic assets in nonresident domestic currency accounts by requiring central bank approval for all such transactions.

The changes reported for the first months of 2021 outnumbered the measures in 2020, with tightening measures (7) already higher than the total for 2020 and easing measures (15) close to the 2020 total. While some pandemic-related actions were extended in 2021 (being recorded as neutral measures), the apparent increase in easing measures does not seem to be driven by COVID-19 dynamics. Rather, several low-income developing countries and emerging market and developing economies continued broader liberalization: The Philippines (4 measures) eased regulations regarding nonresident domestic currency accounts by expanding the ways in which these accounts may be funded (e.g., including proceeds from the onshore sale of equity and debt securities as well as proceeds from trade transactions); Vietnam, as part of reforms emanating from the new Law on Securities, eased regulations on domestic currency accounts; and Bangladesh, seeking to increase inward investment, liberalized regulations by allowing temporary foreign exchange accounts in the name of proposed companies of foreign investors contemplating investment in the country. One of the few advanced economies reporting measures in this category, Iceland completed its gradual liberalization of controls on transfers of domestic currency derived from transactions with offshore domestic currency assets imposed in response to the global financial crisis by formally repealing the 2016 Offshore Króna Act and simultaneously passing a revised foreign exchange law. Tightening measures were introduced only by Sri Lanka, both regarding the removal of previously enacted COVID-19 easing regulations as well as by the clarification of rules on inward and outward investment accounts and migration allowances.

1. All tightening measures in 2020 and 2021 occurred in EMDEs, while LIDCs liberalized account transactions.

2. Resident accounts: In 2020, liberalization actions decreased, while tightening measures were on the rise. Available data for 2021 confirm this trend.

3. Nonresident accounts: Although decreasing from 2019 to 2020, easing measures continued to dominate in the reporting period. Tightening actions picked up in 2021.

Capital Controls

The global economy entered a deep recession in 2020, due to the COVID-19 pandemic and the Great Lockdown, with larger contraction in service sectors than in manufacturing. Financing needs and sovereign debt vulnerabilities significantly increased in many low-income developing countries and some emerging market and developing economies because countries expanded fiscal support. Worsening pandemic dynamics considerably affected the growth outlook for low-income developing countries. Several emerging and frontier markets were affected greatly as financial conditions tightened at unprecedented speed, market volatility spiked and borrowing costs surged, and the bank profitability outlook turned sour on expectations of widespread default. The global economy recovered in 2021, even as the pandemic resurged, but the momentum of economic recovery weakened, and uncertainty increased due to the rapid spread of the Delta variant and the threat of new variants (Global Financial Stability Report April 2020 and October 2020). Global FDI flows were affected by the pandemic as well. The Great Lockdown slowed existing investment projects, and the prospect of recession led multinational businesses from developed and developing economies to reassess new projects (World Investment Report 2021). Pandemic outbreaks in critical links of global supply chains resulted in longer-than-expected supply disruptions, contributing to inflation in many countries.

Net capital outflows from advanced economies slowed in 2020 and recovered in 2021. Emerging market and developing economies and low-income developing countries experienced a sharp net capital flow reversal during 2020–21 (Figure 10, panel 1), which was largely explained by more volatile portfolio flows, slower inflows into direct investment and other investment (such as loans, deposits, trade credits, and so on), and a resulting drawdown of foreign reserve assets (Figure 10, panel 2). Although portfolio inflows into emerging market and developing economies and low-income developing countries rose in 2021, the recovery of portfolio inflows was uneven, with some countries continuing to experience large outflows. In addition, there was only a modest recovery of FDI flows to emerging market and developing economies, partly because of uncertainty regarding access to vaccines, emergence of virus mutations, and delays in opening of economic sectors. Advanced economies also experienced slower FDI flows (both inflows and outflows) and more volatile portfolio and other investment flows in 2020 (Figure 10, panel 3). However, FDI into advanced economies in 2021 showed a stronger rebound thanks to improved macroeconomic fundamentals benefiting from broad vaccination coverage and massive fiscal stimulus packages.

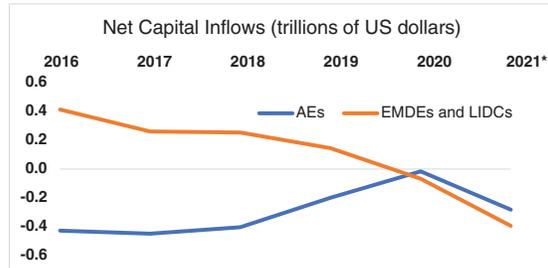

Against this backdrop, tighter restrictions on international capital flows emerged. The number of changes in capital controls increased dramatically in 2020, with significantly more tightening actions—on both inflows and outflows—than in previous years. With partial data available for 2021, some reversal of temporary restrictions is discernible.

The measures included in this section are also considered to be capital flow management measures (CFMs) as defined by the IMF's institutional view on the liberalization and management of capital flows.<sup>41</sup> In addition to the capital controls included in this section, prudential-type measures discussed in the next section may also be CFMs if they were designed to limit capital flows. However, the AREAER does not use this terminology because classifying a measure as a CFM requires substantial background information and considerable judgment, which is beyond the scope of the analysis conducted in compiling the AREAER database.

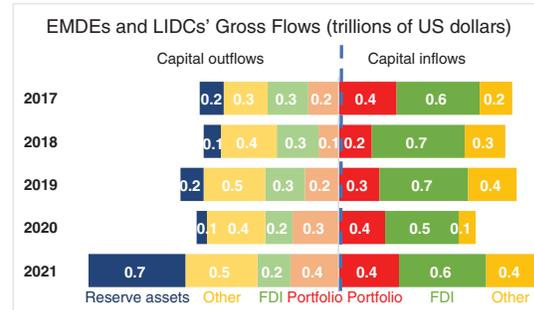

<sup>41</sup> CFMs encompass a broad spectrum of measures. For the purposes of the IMF's institutional view, the term “capital flow management measures” refers to measures designed to limit capital flows. CFMs comprise residency-based CFMs, which encompass a variety of measures (including taxes and regulations) affecting cross-border financial activity that discriminate on the basis of residency—also generally referred to as capital controls—and other CFMs, which do not discriminate on the basis of residency but are nonetheless designed to limit capital flows. These other CFMs typically include measures, such as some prudential measures, that differentiate transactions on the basis of currency, as well as other measures that typically apply to the nonfinancial sector. The concept of capital controls in the AREAER is residency-based: it includes various measures that regulate the conclusion or execution of transactions and transfers and the holding of assets at home by nonresidents and abroad by residents. See IMF, Review of The Institutional View on The Liberalization and Management of Capital Flows, Washington, DC, 2022.

2. EMDEs and LIDCs in 2020–21 saw more volatile portfolio flows, a slower inflow into direct investment and other investment, and a resulting drawdown of reserve assets.

3. AEs in 2020 saw slower FDI flows and more volatile portfolio and other investment flows. Conditions improved in 2021.

The number of actions in 2020 rose to the highest level<sup>42</sup> since 2017 (Figure 11, panel 1). With partial data available for 2021, the pace of changes in capital controls looks set to exceed that in 2019 again. Of the 380 changes in 2020, there were 186 tightening actions, 176 easing actions, and 18 actions that were neutral or of an indeterminate nature.<sup>43</sup> There was a steep rise in tightening actions in 2020 compared with 2019, which comprises an increase in both tightening outflow controls (by almost twice the number) and inflow controls (by almost three times) (Figure 11, panel 2).<sup>44</sup> The higher number of outflow controls reflected the slowdown in growth and capital inflows and the stress of the COVID-19 pandemic. The higher number of inflow controls is explained largely by the tightening of the FDI screening mechanism in a number of countries for national security reasons amid the COVID-19 pandemic. Tightening actions were markedly lower in 2021 based on partial-year data. In 2020, changes in capital transactions were dominated largely by COVID-19–related measures: 161 of 186 total tightening actions were measures introduced in response to the pandemic, while the rest were for other reasons (Figure 11, panel 3). In contrast, 146 of 176 easing actions were unrelated to the COVID-19 pandemic, highlighting the continued liberalization trend in many countries despite the pandemic (Figure 11, panel 4). In partial year 2021, COVID-19–related measures were slightly higher than non-pandemic-related measures and were explained largely by an easing of previous controls and by an extension of pandemic-related measures (recorded as neutral changes).

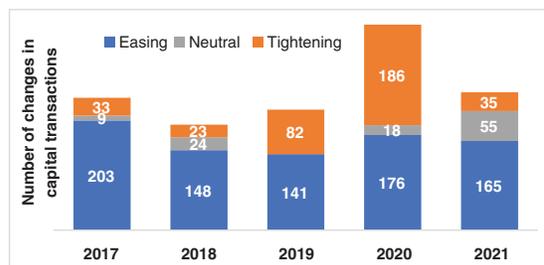

<sup>42</sup> There were 380 changes in regulations on capital transactions in 2020, compared with 223 in 2019, 195 in 2018, and 245 in 2017.

<sup>43</sup> The 18 neutral changes during 2020 and 55 in 2021 cannot be classified as easing or tightening of restrictions. Most either did not discriminate by residence or currency or involved changes in regulations that were not clearly either easing or tightening. To avoid counting the same measure more than once, as far as possible, pandemic-related measures that were extended were labeled neutral—of which a large portion can be attributed to Sri Lanka (13 and 36 neutral changes in 2020 and 2021, respectively).

1. In 2020, there was a higher number of changes (both tightening and easing) to controls on capital transactions than in any of the preceding three years. Partial year 2021 also saw a large number of easing and neutral changes, while measures tightening controls declined dramatically.

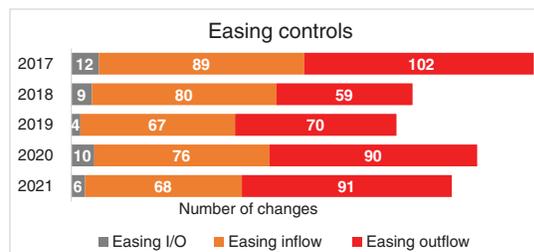

2. In 2020, tightening measures increased dramatically on both capital inflows and outflows, while they were subdued in 2021.

3. In 2020, the number of tightening actions was dominated by COVID-19–related measures, while the number of easing actions was largely attributable to other reasons. In partial year 2021, the COVID-19–related measures continued to dominate and mostly eased previous controls.

4. The easing of controls on capital outflows continued to dominate in 2020–21.

Source: AREAER database; and IMF staff calculations.

Note: The position date for 2021 varies by country and is less than the full year. Tightening (Easing) I/O means that the measure can be tightening (easing) of both capital inflows and outflows. COVID refers to changes that are explicitly reported as measures in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. “Other” refers to changes that are not related to the COVID-19 pandemic.

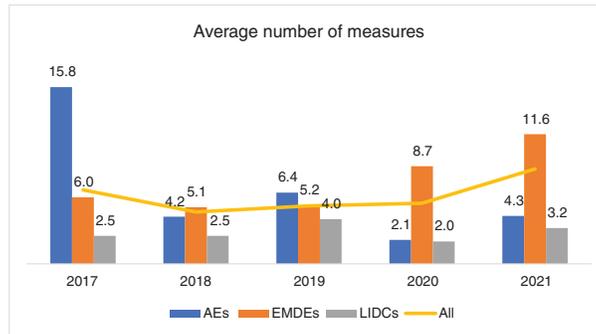

Not only were more actions taken in 2020 than in any of the preceding three years, the number of countries reporting changes also increased dramatically. Although the majority of actions on capital transactions were taken by emerging market and developing economies, more advanced economies (27 countries) introduced restrictive measures than emerging market and developing economies (19 countries) and low-income developing countries (2 countries) in 2020–21. However, on average, controls on capital transactions were implemented mostly by emerging market and developing economies, followed by advanced economies and low-income developing countries (Figure 12).

Actions taken by advanced economies in 2020–21 were in sharp contrast to the previous three years. There was a significantly higher number of tightening measures, while the number of easing measures declined dramatically, indicating that the liberalization trend in advanced economies seen in the previous three years significantly slowed. In 2020, the total number of changes in the controls on capital transactions in advanced economies amounted to 62, of which 43 were tightening (by 27 countries), 18 easing (by 18 countries), and 1 neutral (by 1 country) (Figure 13, panels 1 and 2).

Most of the actions in 2020 and 2021 were reported by emerging market and developing economies. In 2020, the total number of changes in the controls on capital transactions in emerging market and developing economies amounted to 306, of which 148 were easing (by 23 countries), 141 tightening (by 19 countries), and 17 neutral (by 3 countries) (Figure 13, panels 3 and 4). As in advanced economies, the number of measures tightening controls by emerging market and developing economies in 2020 increased significantly by almost three times from the previous year, although it dropped again sharply in the partial year 2021.

On average, controls on capital transactions were implemented mostly by EMDEs, followed by AEs and LIDCs.

Note: The position date for 2021 varies by country and is less than the full year. Some countries may have taken both tightening and easing actions. AEs = advanced economies; EMDEs = emerging market and developing economies; LIDCs = low-income developing countries.

Low-income developing countries reported fewer actions during 2020–21, of which the number of tightening actions declined sharply<sup>45</sup> from 2019. Reported measures were largely easing controls on capital transactions, suggesting a continued liberalization trend among these countries (Figure 13, panels 5 and 6).

The nature of new measures differed significantly among country income groups. The majority of the measures adopted in advanced economies were FDI- and real-estate-investment-related measures, while for emerging market and developing economies, most changes continue to relate to capital and money market instruments. In sharp contrast, the majority of actions introduced in low-income developing countries related to credit operations and repatriation requirements.

Advanced economies

In advanced economies, there was a shift in the composition of changes in controls in 2020–21 toward FDI, which has increased significantly and outnumbered actions related to capital and money market instruments (Figure 14, panel 1). Several countries in advanced economies adopted or reinforced screening regimes for foreign investment, including in reaction to the COVID-19 pandemic. The number of actions in other categories generally decreased during the period.

Advanced economies

1. In sharp contrast to the previous three years, there was a significant increase in the number of tightening measures in 2020–21 and a large drop in easing measures in 2020.

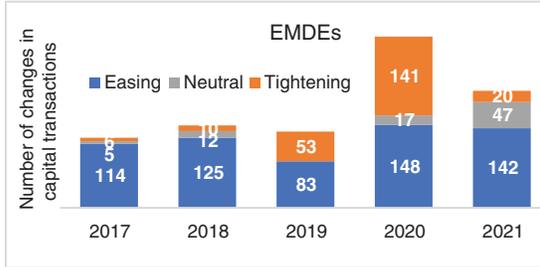

2. The number of countries taking tightening actions increased significantly in 2020–21.

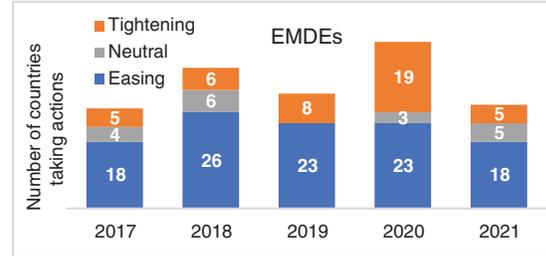

<sup>45</sup> In 2019, a significant number of changes in low-income developing countries were in the Central African Economic and Monetary Community region, in the context of a persistent fragile economic situation since the oil price decline in 2014–16, prompting changes in the securities regulations.

Emerging market and developing economies

3. Tightening measures in 2020 amounted to almost three times those in previous years and dropped sharply in 2021, while the number of easing measures continued to increase in 2020–21.

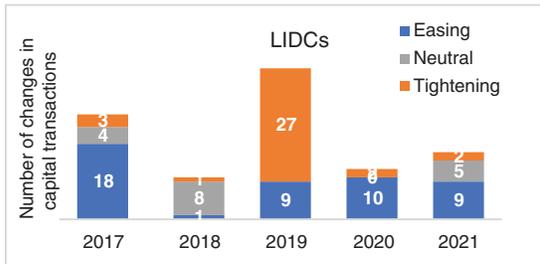

4. The number of countries taking tightening actions more than doubled in 2020 compared with 2019, mainly due to the pandemic, while the number of countries easing controls remained the same in 2020.

Low-income developing countries

5. Measures easing controls on capital transactions dominated in LIDCs during 2020–21, while the number of tightening actions dropped significantly compared with 2019.

6. Similarly to the past, only a few LIDCs introduced changes in 2020–21.

1. The majority of actions in 2020–21 taken by AEs were related to direct investment, which increased substantially, and outnumbered actions related to capital and money market instruments.

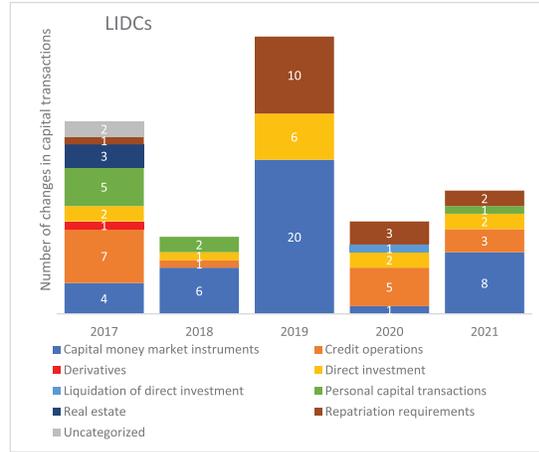

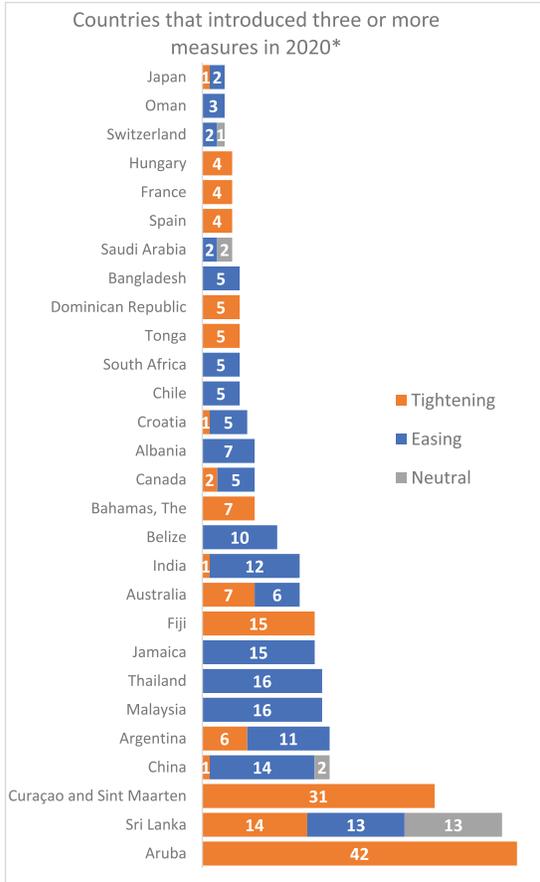

2. Most actions in EMDEs were related to capital and money market instruments. The number of measures increased in several categories in 2020–21.

3. Of 70 economies that took action in 2020, 4 (all EMDEs) had more than 10 tightening actions, and 8 (all EMDEs) had 10 or more easing actions.

4. Actions introduced by LIDCs in 2020 dropped sharply compared with the previous year. The majority of actions in 2020–21 were easing measures related to credit operations, repatriation requirements, and capital and money market instruments.

*Countries that introduced one change in 2020 were Austria, Azerbaijan, Belgium, Bulgaria, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, Greece, Ireland, Kyrgyz Republic, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Maldives, Malta, Mexico, Mozambique, The Netherlands, Poland, Portugal, Slovak Republic, South Sudan, Sweden, United Kingdom. Countries that introduced two changes in 2020 were Belarus, Brazil, Costa Rica, Honduras, Indonesia, Italy, Qatar, Pakistan.

Of the 43 tightening actions by advanced economies in 2020, 35 were restrictive measures on inward direct investment (by 22 EU member countries,<sup>46</sup> plus Australia, Canada, Japan, New Zealand, United Kingdom), and 5 were on purchases by foreigners of shares and securities (by Australia and Spain). The restrictive measures on FDI and foreigners’ purchases of shares and securities related to national security concerns about foreign ownership of critical infrastructure, health sector shares, critical technologies, supplies of critical resources, and other sensitive domestic assets. Often, these measures were motivated by national interest to protect sensitive local sectors against foreign takeovers amid the pandemic.<sup>47</sup> In addition, three restrictive measures were reported by Australia on foreigners' purchases of real estate and on nonresidents' sale or issuance locally of derivatives. These measures were not related to the pandemic.

The restrictive measures on inward direct investment ranged from those at the individual country level to those at the regional level. At the regional level, an EU-wide framework for FDI screening<sup>48</sup> was implemented calling for the European Commission and the member states to coordinate their action on foreign investment to protect businesses operating in strategic or critical sectors. Before the EU-wide FDI Screening Regulation went into effect, some individual EU member states introduced screening legislation and mechanisms; namely, France, Germany, Italy, Slovenia, and Spain. Spain imposed authorization requirements (for both FDI and foreigners' purchases of shares) in certain sectors, initially for non-EU residents and later, temporarily, also for EU citizens. Slovenia introduced a new FDI review mechanism and broadened the scope of the transactions subject to review, along with Germany, France, and Italy. France also lowered thresholds that trigger screening procedures. Many non-EU member countries made temporary adjustments that applied more stringent rules and stricter scrutiny on an approval process to a broader range of transactions than was previously the case, such as Canada, New Zealand, and the United Kingdom to cover public health and sensitive and high-risk sectors. Japan lowered the threshold of FDI in designated industries that require prior notification, while Australia temporarily imposed approval requirements, regardless of value (applying a zero-dollar threshold) or the nature of foreign investors (for both FDI and foreigners' purchases of shares). Later in 2020, there were 9 easing actions (out of 18 easing actions) taken by Australia, Canada, and Japan to ease the inward direct investment screening measures that were previously introduced. Australia and Canada increased the screening threshold for certain countries under particular trade and investment agreements. Japan introduced an exemption program for prior notification for stock purchases with certain conditions.

Of the total 13 tightening actions in 2021, 8 were additional measures related to screening of foreign direct investment by Australia and Sweden (more stringent rules and stronger enforcement), Canada (lower trigger thresholds for particular types of investment), and Italy (stronger enforcement and expanding scope of activities). In addition, Australia broadened the scope of its foreign investment screening program to include collective investment vehicles. Canada issued updated Guidelines on the National Security Review of Investments, supporting continued transparency in the review process.<sup>49</sup> Among the neutral measures, Spain extended the duration of the existing investment screening measures for FDI and foreign acquisition of shares. Iceland at first removed controls on derivative transactions but later imposed limits on the foreign exchange derivative positions of Icelandic banks, specifically on transactions in which the Icelandic króna is specified in the contract against a foreign currency, replacing the previous ban on such activities.

There were 14 easing actions reported in 2021, by Iceland (5), Australia (4), New Zealand (3), and Canada (2). Australia and New Zealand gradually relaxed screening measures on FDI and real estate investment by nonresidents. Canada continued to relax the screening threshold for certain countries under particular trade and investment agreements.

Emerging market and developing economies

The majority of actions in 2020 and 2021 taken by emerging market and developing economies remained largely related to capital and money market instruments (159 and 108), followed by derivatives (42 and 24), credit operations (32 and 29), direct investment (29 and 20), and personal capital transactions (21 and 14)—all of which have increased from the previous three years (Figure 14, panel 2). Most of the actions in 2020 were taken by tourism-dependent economies, which were severely affected by the COVID-19 pandemic—namely, Aruba (42), Sri Lanka (40), Curaçao and Sint Maarten (31), Fiji (15), and The Bahamas (7), which initially tightened measures on capital outflows, mostly in capital and money market instruments and credit operations. With improving economic conditions some countries gradually eased existing controls (Figure 14, panel 3).<sup>50</sup> Nevertheless, despite dealing with the pandemic, several countries introduced a number of easing actions on both capital inflows and outflows—namely, China (17), Malaysia (16), Thailand (16), Jamaica (15), India (13), and Belize (10). The relaxation of controls covers all categories but was dominated by capital and money market instruments. This, in part, reflects the continued trend toward liberalization of emerging markets' domestic financial and corporate sectors, as both residents and nonresidents were allowed to participate in cross-border investment under more liberalized conditions. Gradual relaxation of capital controls was also reported by Argentina (17), which relaxed some of the controls imposed initially to deal with the 2018–19 economic crisis.

<sup>47</sup> Currently, it is still too early to assess the overall impact of the increase in the adoption of FDI screening mechanisms on FDI inflows. However, it is likely to have a growing impact in the coming years (World Investment Report 2021).

Among the key tightening measures introduced in 2020 by countries that experienced pressure from the COVID-19 pandemic on foreign exchange reserves were the following:

- Controls on outward capital transactions were introduced to limit capital outflows and to preserve the currency peg in Aruba and Curaçao and Sint Maarten. These countries temporarily suspended the granting of foreign exchange licenses for outward capital transactions by residents on almost all categories of outflows—namely, granting loans to nonresidents, making investment abroad (both direct and portfolio investments), personal capital transactions, and purchase of real estate from nonresidents (in the case of Aruba).<sup>51</sup> In 2021, Aruba gradually eased and eventually eliminated all temporary controls.
- Sri Lanka suspended outward remittances on capital transactions by residents, imposed restrictions on purchases of Sri Lanka's international sovereign bonds by local banks, and on outward transfers of funds for emigrants. The objective of the measures was to stabilize the exchange rate and preserve scarce international reserves due to the collapse in tourism receipts and large portfolio outflows. In mid-2020 and in 2021, the authorities relaxed selected restrictions imposed earlier by allowing some transactions under certain thresholds.
- Fiji suspended delegated limits<sup>52</sup> for offshore investments (on shares, assets, and direct investment). In addition, delegated limits were replaced with a central bank approval requirement for withdrawal of investment through sales of shares and assets or shareholders' funds (including dividends). Delegated limits were reduced for emigration allowances, loan repayments, and deeds of gift.
- The Bahamas suspended approvals of applications to purchase foreign exchange for transactions in international capital markets, direct investments, and real estate investments.

In line with the EU-wide framework for FDI screening, emerging market and developing economies, which are EU members (such as Bulgaria, Croatia, Hungary, Poland, Romania), strengthened their FDI review mechanism on strategic sectors in 2020.

In contrast, several countries eased regulations in 2020 as part of the COVID-19 pandemic response effort. For instance, Korea raised the limits on banks' foreign exchange derivatives contracts to prepare for sudden volatility in the foreign exchange swap market. Mexico lifted the reporting requirement on derivative transactions by financial institutions. Oman relaxed regulations on the sale of real estate by nonresidents locally, and South Africa extended the deadline for surrendering foreign exchange receipts to authorized dealers.

Despite the pandemic, several countries continued liberalizing controls on capital transactions. While exchange controls continue to apply to most capital transactions in China, in 2020–21 easing continued of controls on capital and money market instruments. Belize, Jamaica, Malaysia, and Thailand eased controls on capital outflows in 2020 by relaxing regulations on residents' purchases of foreign assets. Many countries eased controls on FDI (China, Maldives, Oman) and outward direct investment (Malaysia, South Africa). Among the key changes were the following:

<sup>50</sup> The total number of measures includes a relatively large number of changes reported by a few countries in 2020 and 2021, mainly because of wide-ranging restrictions imposed during an economic crisis from the pandemic, such as in Aruba and Sri Lanka. In some instances, these measures were gradually reversed as the economic situation improved. The AREAER records the imposition of these restrictions and their step-by-step removal across many categories of transactions, thereby showing a large number of measures taken by these countries.

- In 2020, China took further steps to liberalize controls on capital account transactions by initially reducing documentation requirement for outward transfers of earnings on certain types of securities investments by foreign institutional investors, and later by expanding the scope of the qualifying financial instruments. In addition, China relaxed regulations on FDI and allowed foreign investment in certain sectors by removing them from its negative list.<sup>53</sup> During the reporting period conditions were also relaxed for foreign investors participating in local derivatives trading of certain commodities.
- In 2020, Malaysia further eased controls on capital account transactions. For example, limits were eliminated for residents' outward direct investment, portfolio investment, and purchases of real estate and for financial guarantees issued by residents and nonresidents, under certain conditions. In addition, Malaysia relaxed controls on inflows by allowing residents to issue ringgit-denominated redeemable preferred shares to nonresidents for use in Malaysia. Derivative transactions abroad by residents and locally by nonresidents were further liberalized in 2021.
- Thailand continued to relax regulations on residents' investment in foreign securities by increasing investment limits and expanding eligible financial products in 2020 as part of the measures to mitigate pressure on the strength of the currency and to address structural issues in the Thai foreign exchange market. In 2021, the documentation requirement was removed for derivatives purchases by registered nonresident businesses under the Nonresident Qualified Company (NRQC) program to allow them more freedom to manage currency risk related to the Thai baht.
- Jamaica continued increasing permissible limits and expanding coverage of foreign assets in which pension funds and insurance companies may invest.
- India increased investment limits on foreign portfolio investment in government and corporate bonds and eased controls on residents' and nonresidents' participation in foreign exchange derivatives markets for the purpose of hedging their foreign exchange exposure in 2020. Further liberalization was introduced in 2021 by increasing the threshold for mutual funds' investment abroad and relaxing regulations on derivative transactions by nonresidents.
- Belize lifted the central bank approval requirement and replaced it with a notification requirement for portfolio investment transactions by residents and nonresidents locally and abroad in 2020.
- In 2020, Argentina relaxed prior approval requirements under certain conditions for residents' investments in money market instruments and payments for credit operations, and liquidation of direct investments by nonresidents. Controls were gradually eased on capital and money market instruments and credit operations in 2021.

Low-income developing countries

The liberalization trend seen in low-income developing countries in the previous three years continued in 2020–21. Easing of controls on capital transactions dominated during the period, while the number of tightening actions declined significantly compared with 2019 (Figure 14, panel 4).

In 2020, there were 10 easing (mainly on capital inflows) and 2 tightening actions on capital outflows. Among the key changes were the following:

- To minimize the effect of the COVID-19 pandemic, some countries eased controls on capital inflows, such as, Honduras (allowing for contracting externally financed nonconcessional debt under certain conditions) and Bangladesh (easing controls on commercial credit for imports of industrial raw materials, life-saving drugs, and agricultural and chemical fertilizer).
- Some countries relaxed controls on capital inflows unrelated to the COVID-19 pandemic in 2020 to further liberalize the capital account: Ethiopia eased controls on FDI, and Bangladesh lifted the permission requirement for nonresident investors to repatriate sales proceeds under certain conditions, while other countries eased controls on capital outflows, including South Sudan and Honduras by relaxing regulations on surrender requirements on certain capital account transactions. Later, in 2021, Honduras lifted the surrender requirement on proceeds from capital transactions to the central bank as part of the reforms supporting the transition toward a more flexible exchange rate regime and fewer foreign exchange interventions by the central bank. In 2021, Vietnam implemented the largest number of changes among low-income developing countries (10 of a total 16 measures in the year) to ease controls on FDI and foreigners' investment in shares.

- In contrast, Mozambique tightened controls on capital outflows by introducing a surrender requirement for commercial banks on receipts from exports of goods and services and investment income in 2020, as part of the measures in response to urgent balance of payments needs during the COVID-19 pandemic. Meanwhile, the Kyrgyz Republic tightened controls on credit operations by stopping the issuance of government external debt guarantees to public and private entities as part of the reform of its government debt management system and to promote competition.

Provisions Specific to Commercial Banks and Institutional Investors

This section reviews developments in provisions specific to the financial sector; i.e., commercial banks and institutional investors, with a focus on prudential measures that are also capital controls.<sup>54</sup> This category covers some monetary and prudential measures in addition to capital controls.<sup>55</sup> It includes, among other categories of financial institution transactions, borrowing abroad, lending to nonresidents, purchasing locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange, and establishing regulations pertaining to banks' and institutional investors' investments. These provisions may be similar or identical to the measures described in the respective categories of controls on accounts, capital and money market instruments, credit operations, and direct investment if the same regulations apply to commercial banks and institutional investors as to other residents. In such cases, the measure also appears in the relevant category in the sections on accounts and capital transactions.

Reported measures in the financial sector in 2020 and 2021 reflect wide-ranging policy responses to the pandemic and their subsequent reversal, with notable differences between commercial banks and institutional investors. Strong policy action was particularly evident in 2020: reported measures (287) exceeded those in previous years, mostly reflecting the exceptionally large number of prudential measures (194), while the number of capital controls (94) remained broadly in line with those in previous years (Figure 15, panel 1). As expected, the number of easing measures (157) was higher in 2020 than in previous years, but the same applies to tightening measures (82) (Figure 15, panel 2). While not covering the whole year, the number of reported measures in 2021 (178) was similar to what was observed in the pre-pandemic years, although the number of capital controls (99) was somewhat higher than usual.

Regarding prudential measures in the financial sector, 2020 stands out for the high share of easing measures (60 percent), many of which were subsequently tightened in 2021, as reflected in the higher share of tightening measures than usual (57 percent, Figure 15, panel 3). In contrast, for capital controls in the financial sector, 2020 stands out for the high share of tightening measures (42 percent), many of which were extended beyond their initially announced maturity in 2021 as the pandemic continued to affect countries (such extensions are labeled as neutral changes, Figure 15, panel 4).

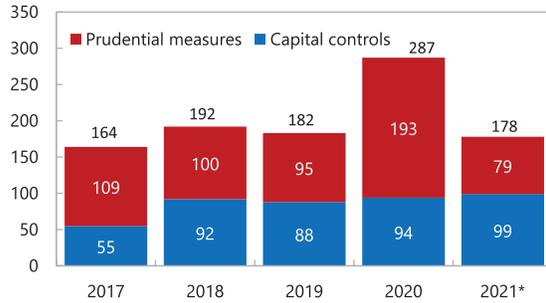

<sup>54</sup> Capital controls and prudential measures are highly intertwined because of their overlapping application. For example, some prudential measures (such as different reserve requirements for deposit accounts held by residents and nonresidents) could also be regarded as capital controls because they distinguish between transactions with residents and nonresidents and hence influence capital flows.

<sup>55</sup> Inclusion of an entry in this category does not necessarily indicate that the aim of the measure is to control the flow of capital.

Considering the direction of changes in capital controls in the financial sector, the share of outflow control tightening measures was high both in 2020 and 2021 (45 and 19 percent, respectively). Many of these were subsequently eased in 2021, when the share of outflow easing measures was somewhat higher (72 percent) than in the pre-pandemic years (Figure 16).

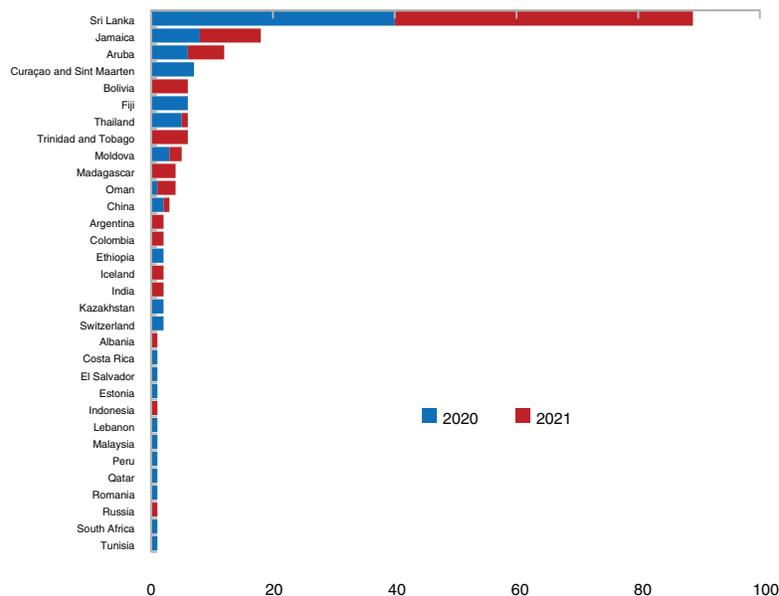

Looking at countries that implemented prudential policy actions in 2020 and 2021, Turkey took the highest number of measures (23 and 15, respectively), followed by Moldova (16 and 4, respectively), Trinidad and Tobago (12 and 2, respectively), and India (8 and 4, respectively; Figure 17, panel 1).

With respect to the number of changes in capital controls, Sri Lanka, by far, exceeds all other countries in 2020 and 2021 (40 and 49, reported measures, respectively). Jamaica (8 and 10, respectively), Aruba (6 and 6, respectively), and Curaçao and Sint Maarten (7 and 0, respectively) also made considerable use of capital controls (Figure 17, panel 2). The large pandemic-related decline in tourism played an important role in creating the conditions that led these countries to resort to capital controls.

(Number of easing measures)

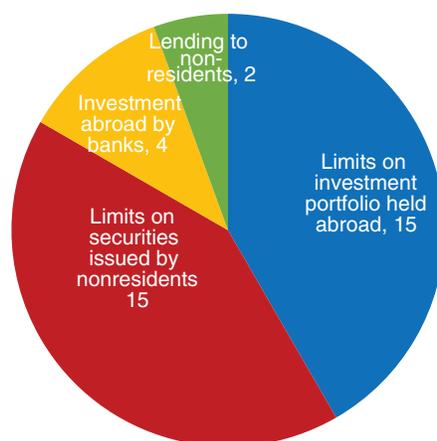

Source: AREAER database; and IMF staff calculations.

As mentioned earlier, in 2020 there was an unusually high number of relaxations in prudential measures (116). Reducing reserve requirements (65) and liquid asset requirements (16) features strongly among easing measures as countries tried to ensure that the financial sector had sufficient liquidity to continue to provide credit to the pandemic-affected real economy and support financial markets (Figure 18).

(Number of tightening measures)

In 2020 there was also significant tightening of capital controls on outflows (36). Measures that tightened or imposed new restrictions on investment portfolios held abroad (15) and on securities issued by nonresidents (15) were the most common type of outflow controls tightened in response to the drying up of inflows and pressures on exchange rates during the pandemic (Figure 19)

Commercial banks and other credit institutions

Measures affecting commercial banks and other credit institutions were exceptionally abundant in 2020 (202), mostly as a result of prudential measures (178); the number of capital controls was lower than in pre-pandemic years (24; Figure 20, panel 1). As expected, the number of easing measures in 2020 was exceptionally high (125), while the number of tightening measures was in line with the pre-pandemic period (43). A somewhat higher number of neutral measures (34) is also observed, which reflects the extension of many pandemic-related measures as the pandemic dragged on (Figure 20, panel 2). As for the financial sector as a whole, prudential measures affecting commercial banks were mostly rules that eased their operations in 2020 (64 percent). These were subsequently reversed in 2021 with improving external and domestic economic conditions (60 percent; Figure 20, panel 3). For capital controls on commercial banks, the downward trend in the share of easing measures observed since 2017 continued (50 and 28 percent in 2020 and 2021, respectively), with 2020 and 2021 showing a higher share of tightening measures (33 percent in each year) than in previous years. Neutral changes (17 and 39 percent, respectively) reflect the extension of previously introduced measures (Figure 20, panel 4)

Regarding the direction of changes in capital controls on commercial banks (24 measures), 2020 is characterized by a large share of inflow control easing (50 percent) and outflow control tightening measures (30 percent). These measures reflect country responses to the pandemic, which led to large outflow pressures in certain countries, prompting them to introduce or tighten outflow controls and/or ease inflow controls (Figure 21). Measures tightening outflow controls in 2020 (6 measures) concerned limits on commercial banks' assets abroad (4 measures) and lending to nonresidents (2 measures).

Some notable country examples of changes to capital controls on commercial banks in 2020 and 2021 are the following:

- Controls on capital inflows: Colombia and Costa Rica removed restrictions on residents' (including banks') borrowing from abroad. Ethiopia allowed domestic banks to borrow from abroad to fund foreign currency loans locally, and China temporarily eased limits on borrowing from abroad (by increasing the so-called macroprudential adjustment parameter from 1 to 1.25 for a few months). In contrast, Qatar tightened restrictions on banks' Tier 1 issuance abroad.
- Controls on capital outflows: Sri Lanka tightened limits on outward investment and suspended commercial banks' purchases of Sri Lankan sovereign bonds, but subsequently eased the restrictions by allowing these transactions to the extent that they are funded by new foreign currency inflows. Thailand tightened limits on Thai baht liquidity that domestic financial institutions may provide to a nonresident group without proof of underlying trade or investment. Oman tightened limits on banks' credit exposure to nonresidents. On the easing side, Indonesia relaxed capital limitations on foreign equity participation for certain commercial banks.
- Controls on capital inflows and outflows: Iceland introduced limits on commercial banks' derivative positions involving the Icelandic currency, which replaced the previous ban on such activities.

Similarly, some notable country examples of changes to prudential measures on commercial banks in 2020 and 2021 are the following:

- Reserve requirements: As noted above, a reduction in reserve requirements (both for domestic and foreign currency liabilities) was a common policy response to the pandemic; among countries that reduced reserve requirements were Argentina, Aruba, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Cambodia, China, Croatia, El Salvador, Haiti, India, Indonesia, Jamaica, Lao P.D.R., Malaysia, Maldives, Moldova, Mongolia, Myanmar, Nicaragua, Pakistan, Peru, Philippines, Romania, Rwanda, Suriname, Tanzania, Trinidad and Tobago, Turkey, and United Arab Emirates.
- Liquid asset requirements: In a similar manner, easing of liquid asset requirements was another common pandemic policy response; among the countries easing liquid asset requirements were Aruba, Belarus, Cyprus, Georgia, Jamaica, Korea, Malaysia, Mauritius, and Peru.
- Other measures: Korea relaxed limits on commercial banks' foreign currency derivative positions, and Ghana relaxed the capital conservation buffer requirement for banks.

Institutional investors

The number of reported measures affecting institutional investors has been on an upward trend since 2017 and continued during the pandemic (85 and 98 measures, respectively; Figure 22, panel 1). However, 2020 stands out for the high number of tightening measures (39) and 2021 for the large number of neutral measures (37)—the latter reflecting mostly the extension of previously introduced measures (Figure 22, panel 2).

With respect to prudential measures affecting institutional investors, the share of tightening measures in 2020 and 2021 is fairly high (53 and 47 percent, respectively). This is in stark contrast to measures affecting commercial banks, for which easing measures dominated in the pandemic prudential policy responses. For prudential measures affecting institutional investors, there were only three instances of easing in 2020 (20 percent; Figure 22, panel 3). This likely reflects greater leeway to relax prudential measures on commercial banks relative to institutional investors, given the reforms implemented in the banking sector following the global financial crisis. Examples of tightening of prudential measures on institutional investors include India, where limits on mutual funds’ exposure to single issuers were tightened, and Montenegro, where limits on insurance companies’ exposure to investment funds managed by the same manager were tightened. Capital controls on institutional investors were more common (70 and 81 in 2020 and 2021, respectively, which also exceeds those on commercial banks) and were characterized by tightening of controls in 2020 and many extensions (neutral) in 2021 (Figure 22, panel 4).

Source: AREAER database; and IMF staff calculations.
* The position date for 2021 varies by country and is less than a full year.
** Measures that were extended from the original duration are counted as neutral.

Looking at the direction of capital controls on institutional investors, tightening of outflow controls was common in 2020 (50 percent), with subsequent easing in 2021 (83 percent, Figure 23, panel 1). This reflects mainly tightening of limits on institutional investors’ investment in securities issued by nonresidents (15) and restrictions on institutional investors’ portfolios held abroad (15) in a bid to stem capital outflows in the context of balance of payments pressure during the early period of the pandemic (Figure 23, panel 2).

Source: AREAER database; and IMF staff calculations.
Note: I/O = Measures that affected both inflow and outflow of capital.
* The position date for 2021 varies by country and is less than a full year.

Some notable country examples of changes to capital controls on institutional investors in 2020 and 2021 are the following:

- Controls on capital inflows: In 2020, Kazakhstan allowed nonresident insurance companies and insurance brokers from World Trade Organization (WTO) member countries to open branches locally as part of its commitments in the WTO. Moldova tightened limits on nonresident insurance companies’ investment portfolios held locally.
- Controls on capital outflows: Aruba temporarily suspended the licensing of outward capital transactions and revoked such general licenses that existed at the outset of the pandemic but eliminated these restrictions in 2021. Similarly, Curaçao and Sint Maarten suspended such licenses for transactions above a certain threshold. Sri Lanka temporarily suspended outward remittances and investments from resident insurance companies and subsequently made adjustments to those restrictions (both easing and tightening them). Fiji prohibited outward investment by insurance companies and the Fiji National Provident Fund.

Status Under IMF Articles of Agreement

Article VIII	The member country has accepted the obligations of Article VIII, Sections 2, 3, and 4, of the IMF's Articles of Agreement.
Article XIV	The member country continues to avail itself of the transitional arrangements of Article XIV, Section 2.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Exchange restrictions and multiple currency practices (MCPs) maintained by a member country under Article VIII, Sections 2, 3, and 4, or under Article XIV, Section 2, of the IMF's Articles of Agreement, as specified in the latest IMF staff reports issued as of December 31, 2020. Information on exchange restrictions and MCPs or on the nonexistence of exchange restrictions and MCPs for countries with unpublished IMF staff reports are published only with the consent of the authorities. If no consent has been received, the AREAER indicates that "Information is not publicly available." Hence, "Information is not publicly available" does not necessarily imply that the country maintains exchange restrictions or MCPs. It indicates only that the country's relevant IMF staff report has not been published and that the authorities have not consented to the publication of the information on the existence of exchange restrictions and MCPs. Because the relevant IMF staff report may refer to years before the reporting period for this volume of the AREAER; therefore, more recent changes in the exchange system may not be included here. Changes in the category "Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices" are reflected in the edition of the AREAER that covers the calendar year during which the IMF staff report including information on such changes is issued. Changes in these measures which give rise to exchange restrictions or MCPs and that affect other categories of the country tables are reported under the relevant categories in the AREAER, in accordance with the normal reporting periods.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Exchange measures on payments and transfers in connection with international transactions imposed by member countries for reasons of national or international security.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Security restrictions on current international payments and transfers on the basis of IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51), which establishes the obligation of members to notify the IMF before imposing such restrictions, or, if circumstances preclude advance notification, as promptly as possible.
Other security restrictions	Other restrictions imposed for security reasons (e.g., in accordance with UN or EU regulations) but not notified to the IMF under Board Decision 144-(52/51).

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	The official legal tender of the country.
Other legal tender	The existence of another currency that is officially allowed to be used in the country.
Exchange rate structure	If there is one exchange rate, the system is called unitary. If there is more than one exchange rate that may be used simultaneously for different purposes and/or by different entities, and if these exchange rates give rise to MCPs or differing rates for current and capital transactions, the system is called dual or multiple. Different effective exchange rates resulting from exchange taxes or subsidies, excessive exchange rate spreads between buying and selling rates, bilateral payments agreements, and broken cross rates are not included in this category. Changes in measures within this category are reported in accordance with the normal reporting periods. Reclassification in cases related to changes in MCPs occurs in the edition of the AREAER, that covers the calendar year during which the IMF staff report that includes information on such changes is issued.

Classification

Describes and classifies the de jure and the de facto exchange rate arrangements.

De jure

The description and effective dates of the de jure exchange rate arrangements are provided by the authorities. By Article IV, Section 2(a) of the Fund's Articles of Agreement and Paragraph 16 of the 2007 Surveillance Decision No. 13919-(07/51), each member is required to notify the Fund of the exchange arrangements it intends to apply and to notify the Fund promptly of any changes in its exchange arrangements. Country authorities are also requested to identify, whenever possible, which of the existing categories of exchange rate arrangements below most closely corresponds to the de jure arrangement in effect. Country authorities may also wish to briefly describe their official exchange rate policy. The description includes officially announced or estimated parameters of the exchange arrangement (e.g., parity, bands, weights, rate of crawl, and other indicators used to manage the exchange rate). It also provides information on the computation of the exchange rate.

De facto

IMF staff classifies the de facto exchange rate arrangements according to the categories below. The name and the definition of the categories describing the de facto exchange rate arrangements have been modified in accordance with the revised classification methodology, as of February 1, 2009.<sup>2</sup> Where the description of the de jure arrangement can be empirically confirmed by the IMF staff over at least the previous six months, the exchange rate arrangement will be classified in the same way on a de facto basis.

Because the de facto methodology for classification of exchange rate regimes is based on a backward-looking approach that relies on past exchange rate movement and historical data, some countries are reclassified retroactively to a date when the behavior of the exchange rates changed and matched the criteria for reclassification to the appropriate category. For these countries, if the retroactive date of reclassification is prior to the period covered in this report, then the effective date of change to be entered in the country chapter and the changes section is deemed to be the first day of the year in which the decision of reclassification took place.

No separate legal tender

Classification as an exchange rate arrangement with no separate legal tender involves the confirmation of the country authorities' de jure exchange rate arrangement. The currency of another country circulates as the sole legal tender (formal dollarization).

Adopting such an arrangement implies the complete surrender by the monetary authorities of control over domestic monetary policy.

Exchange arrangements of countries that belong to a monetary or currency union in which the same legal tender is shared by the members of the union are classified under the arrangement governing the joint currency. This classification is based on the behavior of the common currency, whereas the previous classification was based on the lack of a separate legal tender. The classification thus reflects only a definitional change and is not based on a judgment that there has been a substantive change in the exchange arrangement or in other policies of the currency union or its members.

Currency board	Classification as a currency board involves the confirmation of the country authorities' de jure exchange rate arrangement. A currency board arrangement is a monetary arrangement based on an explicit legislative commitment to exchange domestic currency for a specified foreign currency at a fixed exchange rate, combined with restrictions on the issuing authority to ensure the fulfillment of its legal obligation. This implies that domestic currency is usually fully backed by foreign assets, eliminating traditional central bank functions such as monetary control and lender-of-last-resort and leaving little scope for discretionary monetary policy. Some flexibility may still be afforded, depending on the strictness of the banking rules of the currency board arrangement.
Conventional peg	Classification as a conventional peg involves the confirmation of the country authorities' de jure exchange rate arrangement. For this category the country formally (de jure) pegs its currency at a fixed rate to another currency or basket of currencies, where the basket is formed, for example, from the currencies of major trading or financial partners and weights reflect the geographic distribution of trade, services, or capital flows. The anchor currency or basket weights are public or notified to the IMF. The country authorities stand ready to maintain the fixed parity through direct intervention (i.e., via sale or purchase of foreign exchange in the market) or indirect intervention (e.g., via exchange rate related use of interest rate policy, imposition of foreign exchange regulations, exercise of moral suasion that constrains foreign exchange activity, or intervention by other public institutions). There is no commitment to irrevocably keep the parity, but the formal arrangement must be confirmed empirically: the exchange rate may fluctuate within narrow margins of less than <math>\pm 1\%</math> around a central rate or the maximum and minimum value of the spot market exchange rate must remain within a narrow margin of 2% for at least six months.
Stabilized arrangement	Classification as a stabilized arrangement entails a spot market exchange rate that remains within a margin of 2% for six months or more (with the exception of a specified number of outliers or step adjustments) and is not floating. The required margin of stability can be met either with respect to a single currency or a basket of currencies, where the anchor currency or the basket is ascertained or confirmed using statistical techniques. Classification as a stabilized arrangement requires that the statistical criteria are met and that the exchange rate remains stable as a result of official action (including structural market rigidities). The classification does not imply a policy commitment on the part of the country authorities.
Crawling peg	Classification as a crawling peg involves the confirmation of the country authorities' de jure exchange rate arrangement. The currency is adjusted in small amounts at a fixed rate or in response to changes in selected quantitative indicators, such as past inflation differentials vis-à-vis major trading partners or differentials between the inflation target and expected inflation in major trading partners. The rate of crawl can be set to generate inflation-adjusted changes in the exchange rate (backward looking) or set at a predetermined fixed rate and/or below the projected inflation differentials (forward looking). The rules and parameters of the arrangement are public or notified to the IMF.
Crawl-like arrangement	For classification as a crawl-like arrangement, the exchange rate must remain within a narrow margin of 2% relative to a statistically identified trend for six months or more (with the exception of a specified number of outliers) and the exchange rate arrangement cannot be considered as floating. Normally, a minimum rate of change greater than allowed under a stabilized (peg-like) arrangement is required. However, an arrangement will be considered crawl-like with an annualized rate of change of at least 1%, provided that the exchange rate appreciates or depreciates in a sufficiently monotonic and continuous manner.

Pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands	Classification as a pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands involves the confirmation of the country authorities' de jure exchange rate arrangement. The value of the currency is maintained within certain margins of fluctuation of at least $\pm 1\%$ around a fixed central rate, or the margin between the maximum and minimum value of the exchange rate exceeds 2%. It includes arrangements of countries in the ERM of the European Monetary System (EMS), which was replaced with the ERM II on January 1, 1999, for those countries with margins of fluctuation wider than $\pm 1\%$ . The central rate and width of the band are public or notified to the IMF.
Other managed arrangement	This category is a residual and is used when the exchange rate arrangement does not meet the criteria for any of the other categories. Arrangements characterized by frequent shifts in policies may fall into this category.
Floating	A floating exchange rate is largely market determined, without an ascertainable or predictable path for the rate. In particular, an exchange rate that satisfies the statistical criteria for a stabilized or a crawl-like arrangement will be classified as such unless it is clear that the stability of the exchange rate is not the result of official actions. Foreign exchange market intervention may be either direct or indirect, and such intervention serves to moderate the rate of change and prevent undue fluctuations in the exchange rate, but policies targeting a specific level of the exchange rate are incompatible with floating. Indicators for managing the rate are broadly judgmental (e.g., balance of payments position, international reserves, parallel market developments). Floating arrangements may exhibit more or less exchange rate volatility, depending on the size of the shocks affecting the economy.
Free floating	A floating exchange rate can be classified as free floating if intervention occurs only exceptionally and aims to address disorderly market conditions and if the authorities have provided information or data confirming that intervention has been limited to at most three instances in the previous six months, each lasting no more than three business days. If the information or data required are not available to the IMF staff, the arrangement will be classified as floating. Detailed data on intervention or official foreign exchange transactions will not be requested routinely from member countries, but only when other information available to IMF staff is insufficient to resolve uncertainties about the appropriate classification.
Official exchange rate	Provides information on the computation of the exchange rate and the use of the official exchange rate (accounting, customs valuation purposes, foreign exchange transactions with the government).
Monetary policy framework	The category includes a brief description of the monetary policy framework in effect according to the following subcategories:
Exchange rate anchor	The monetary authority buys or sell foreign exchange to maintain the exchange rate at its predetermined level or within a range. The exchange rate thus serves as the nominal anchor or intermediate target of monetary policy. These frameworks are associated with exchange rate arrangements with no separate legal tender, currency board arrangements, pegs (or stabilized arrangements) with or without bands, crawling pegs (or crawl-like arrangements), and other managed arrangements.
U.S. dollar	The U.S. dollar is the nominal anchor or the only legal tender.
Euro	The euro is the nominal anchor or the only legal tender.
Composite	A currency composite consisting of two or more currencies is the nominal anchor.
Other	A currency other than the U.S. dollar and the euro is the nominal anchor or the only legal tender.
Monetary aggregate target	The intermediate target of monetary policy is a monetary aggregate such as M0, M1, or M2, although the country may also set targets for inflation. The central bank may use a quantity (central bank reserves or base money) or price variable (policy rate) as operational target.

Inflation-targeting framework	This involves the public announcement of numerical targets for inflation, with an institutional commitment by the monetary authority to achieve these targets, typically over a medium-term horizon. Additional key features normally include increased communication with the public and the markets about the plans and objectives of monetary policymakers and increased accountability of the central bank for achieving its inflation objectives. Monetary policy decisions are often guided by the deviation of forecasts of future inflation from the announced inflation target, with the inflation forecast acting (implicitly or explicitly) as the intermediate target of monetary policy.
Target setting body	The official body or organizational unit responsible for setting and/or adjusting the inflation targets.
Inflation target	The numerical targets for inflation which have been publicly announced by the Central Bank. Inflation targets are generally expressed as i) a point target, ii) targets with plus minus a certain numerical limit, and iii) as a band or range. The target measure is defined in terms of end-year inflation or as average annual inflation. CPI and core CPI are based on national definitions, which may vary from country to country. Target horizon is the term in years of inflation targets as publicly announced by the Central Bank.
Operating target (policy rate)	Policy rate is used as the operating target of the monetary policy to achieve the inflation target. Short-term policy interest rate target (for example, overnight, one week, two weeks, etc.) is generally expressed as i) a point target, ii) target with a certain numerical limit above and below the target, and iii) as a band or range (upper and lower limits).
Accountability	Accountability framework that requires the central bank to explain its conduct of monetary policy in the pursuit of achieving its inflation target. For example, the governor or representatives of the central bank are required to appear before Parliament or one of its committees to explain actions and views on monetary policy and economic developments. It may also require reporting inflation targets through Open letters on monetary policy. Usually written by the Governor on behalf of the Monetary Policy Committee to the government in the event that inflation misses the inflation target by a pre-specified amount.
Transparency	The manner and level of detail how monetary policy decisions are communicated to the public. Institutional transparency is gauged by the communication vehicles employed by the central bank, including the release of inflation reports and the frequency and detail of these reports, the announcement of changes in the stance of monetary policy via press release, reviews of inflation performance and changes in monetary policy, the publication of inflation forecasting models, and the use of media and other public presentations.
Other monetary framework	The country has no explicitly stated nominal anchor, but rather monitors various indicators in conducting monetary policy. This category is also used when no relevant information on the country is available.
Exchange tax	Foreign exchange transactions are subject to a special tax. Bank commissions charged on foreign exchange transactions are not included in this category; rather, they are listed under the exchange arrangement classification.
Exchange subsidy	Foreign exchange transactions are subsidized by using separate, nonmarket exchange rates.
Foreign exchange market	The existence of a foreign exchange market.
Spot exchange market	Institutional setting of the foreign exchange market for spot transactions and market participants. Existence and significance of the parallel market.

Operated by the central bank

The role of the central bank in providing access to foreign exchange to market participants through a foreign exchange standing facility, allocation of foreign exchange to authorized dealers, or other legal and private persons, and the management of buy or sell auctions or fixing sessions. Price determination and frequency of central bank operations.

A foreign exchange standing facility allows market participants to buy foreign exchange from or sell it to the central bank at predetermined exchange rates at their own initiative and is usually instrumental in maintaining a hard or soft peg arrangement. The credibility of the facility depends to a large extent on the availability of foreign exchange reserves to back the facility.

Allocation involves redistribution of foreign exchange inflows by the central bank to market participants for specific international transactions or in specific amounts (rationing). Foreign exchange allocation is often used to provide foreign exchange for strategic imports such as oil or food when foreign exchange reserves are scarce. In an allocation system, companies and individuals often transact directly with the central bank, and commercial banks may buy foreign exchange only for their clients' underlying international transactions. Purchases of foreign exchange for the banks' own books typically are not permitted.

Auctions are organized by the central bank, usually for market participants to buy and /or sell foreign exchange. They can take the form of multiple-price auctions (all successful bidders pay the price they offer) or single-price auctions (all successful bidders pay the same price, which is the market-clearing/cut-off price). The authorities may exercise discretion in accepting or rejecting offers, and sometimes a floor price is determined in advance, below which offers are not accepted. The frequency of auctions depends mainly on the amount or availability of foreign exchange to be auctioned and on the role the auction plays in the foreign exchange market.

Fixing sessions are often organized by the central bank at the early stage of market development to establish a market-clearing exchange rate. The central bank monitors the market closely and often actively participates in price formation by selling or buying during the session to achieve a certain exchange rate target. The price determined at the fixing session is often used for foreign exchange transactions outside the session and/or for accounting and valuation purposes.

Interbank market

The organization and operation of the interbank market or interventions. Existence of brokerage, over the counter, and market-making arrangements.

Forward exchange market

The existence of a forward exchange market and the institutional arrangement and market participants.

An official entity (the central bank or the government) assumes the exchange risk of certain foreign exchange transactions.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements

The official requirements affecting the selection of currency and the method of settlement for transactions with other countries. When a country has payments agreements with other countries, the terms of these agreements often lead to a prescription of currency for specified categories of payments to, and receipts from, the countries concerned. This category includes information on the use of domestic currency in transactions between residents and nonresidents, both domestically and abroad; it also indicates any restrictions on the use of foreign currency among residents.

Payments arrangements

Bilateral payments arrangements

Two countries have an agreement to prescribe specific rules for payments to each other, including cases in which private parties are also obligated to use specific currencies. These agreements can be either operative or inoperative.

Regional arrangements	More than two parties participate in a payments agreement.
Clearing agreements	The official bodies of two or more countries agree to offset with some regularity the balances that arise from payments to each other as a result of the exchange of goods, services, or—less often—capital.
Barter agreements and open accounts	The official bodies of two or more countries agree to offset exports of goods and services to one country with imports of goods and services from the same country, without payment.
Administration of control	The authorities' division of responsibility for monitoring policy, administering exchange controls, and determining the extent of delegation of powers to outside agencies (banks are often authorized to effect foreign exchange transactions).
Payments arrears	Official or private residents of a member country default on their payments or transfers in foreign exchange to nonresidents. This category includes only the situation in which domestic currency is available for residents to settle their debts but they are unable to obtain foreign exchange—for example, because of the presence of an officially announced or unofficial queuing system; it does not cover nonpayment by private parties owing to bankruptcy.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Separate rules for trading in gold domestically and with foreign countries.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Regulations governing the physical movement of means of payment between countries. Where information is available, the category distinguishes between separate limits for the (1) export and import of banknotes by travelers and (2) export and import of banknotes by banks and other authorized financial institutions.

Resident Accounts

Indicates whether resident accounts that are maintained in the national currency or in foreign currency, locally or abroad, are allowed and describes how they are treated and the facilities and limitations attached to such accounts. When there is more than one type of resident account, the nature and operation of the various types of accounts are also described; for example, whether residents are allowed to open foreign exchange accounts with or without approval from the exchange control authority, whether these accounts may be held domestically or abroad, and whether the balances on accounts held by residents in domestic currency may be converted into foreign currency.

Nonresident Accounts

Indicates whether local nonresident accounts maintained in the national currency or in foreign currency are allowed and describes how they are treated and the facilities and limitations attached to such accounts. When there is more than one type of nonresident account, the nature and operation of the various types of accounts are described.

Blocked accounts	Accounts of nonresidents, usually in domestic currency. Regulations prohibit or limit the conversion and/or transfer of the balances of such accounts.

Imports and Import Payments

Describes the nature and extent of exchange and trade restrictions on imports.

Foreign exchange budget	Information on the existence of a foreign exchange plan, i.e., prior allocation of a certain amount of foreign exchange, usually on an annual basis, for the importation of specific types of goods and/or services. In some cases, also covers differentiations among individual importers.
Financing requirements for imports	Information on specific import-financing regulations limiting the rights of residents to enter into private contracts in which the financing options differ from those in the official regulations.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports

Domiciliation requirements	The obligation to domicile the transactions with a specified (usually domestic) financial institution.
Preshipment inspection	Most often a compulsory government measure aimed at establishing the veracity of the import contract in terms of volume, quality, and price.
Letters of credit	Parties are obligated to use letters of credit (LCs) as a form of payment for their imports.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	Import licenses are used not for trade purposes but instead to restrict the availability of foreign exchange for legitimate trade.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures

Positive list	A list of goods that may be imported.
Negative list	A list of goods that may not be imported.
Open general licenses	Indicates arrangements whereby certain imports or other international transactions are exempt from the restrictive application of licensing requirements.
Licenses with quotas	Refers to situations in which a license for the importation of a certain good is granted, but a specific limit is imposed on the amount to be imported.
Other nontariff measures	May include prohibitions on imports of certain goods from all countries or of all goods from a certain country. Several other nontariff measures are used by countries (e.g., phytosanitary examinations, setting of standards), but these are not covered fully in the report.

Import taxes and/or tariffs

Taxes collected through the exchange system	A brief description of the import tax and tariff system, including taxes levied on the foreign exchange made available for imports.
	Indicates if any taxes apply to the exchange side of an import transaction.

State import monopoly

Private parties are not allowed to engage in the importation of certain products, or they are limited in their activity.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Describes restrictions on the use of export proceeds, as well as regulations on exports.

Repatriation requirements

The obligation of exporters to repatriate export proceeds.

Surrender requirementsSurrender to the central bank*

Regulations requiring the recipient of repatriated export proceeds to sell, sometimes at a specified exchange rate, any foreign exchange proceeds in return for local currency to the central bank.

Surrender to authorized dealers

Regulations requiring the recipient of repatriated export proceeds to sell, sometimes at a specified exchange rate, any foreign exchange proceeds in return for local currency to commercial banks or exchange dealers authorized for this purpose or on a foreign exchange market.

Financing requirements

Information on specific export-financing regulations limiting the rights of residents to enter into private contracts in which the financing options differ from those in the official regulations.

Documentation requirements	The same categories as in the case of imports are used.
Export licenses	Restrictions on the right of residents to export goods. These restrictions may take the form of quotas (where a certain quantity of shipment abroad is allowed) or the absence of quotas (where the licenses are issued at the discretion of the foreign trade control authority).
Export taxes	A brief description of the export tax system, including any taxes that are levied on foreign exchange earned by exporters.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Describes the procedures for effecting payments abroad in connection with current transactions in invisibles, with reference to prior approval requirements, the existence of quantitative and indicative limits, and/or bona fide tests. Detailed information on the most common categories of transactions is provided only when regulations differ for the various categories. Indicative limits establish maximum amounts up to which the purchase of foreign exchange is allowed upon declaration of the nature of the transaction, mainly for statistical purposes. Amounts above those limits are granted if the bona fide nature of the transaction is established by the presentation of appropriate documentation. Bona fide tests also may be applied to transactions for which quantitative limits have not been established.

Trade-related payments	Includes freight and insurance (including possible regulations on non-trade-related insurance payments and transfers), unloading and storage costs, administrative expenses, commissions, and customs duties and fees.
Investment-related payments	Includes profits and dividends, interest payments (including interest on debentures, mortgages, etc.), amortization of loans or depreciation of foreign direct investments, and payments and transfers of rent.
Payments for travel	Includes international travel for business, tourism, etc.
Personal payments	Includes medical expenditures abroad, study expenses abroad, pensions (including regulations on payments and transfers of pensions by both state and private pension providers on behalf of nonresidents, as well as the transfer of pensions due to residents living abroad), and family maintenance and alimony (including regulations on payments and transfers abroad of family maintenance and alimony by residents).
Foreign workers' wages	Transfer abroad of earnings by nonresidents working in the country.
Credit card use abroad	Use of credit and debit cards to pay for invisible transactions.
Other payments	Includes subscription and membership fees, authors' royalties, consulting and legal fees, etc.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Describes regulations governing exchange receipts derived from transactions in invisibles—including descriptions of any limitations on their conversion into domestic currency—and the use of those receipts.

Repatriation requirements	The definitions of repatriation and surrender requirements are similar to those applied to export proceeds.
Surrender requirements
Surrender to the central bank

Restrictions on use of funds Refers mainly to the limitations imposed on the use of receipts previously deposited in certain types of bank accounts.

Capital Transactions

Describes regulations influencing both inward and outward capital flows. The concept of controls on capital transactions is interpreted broadly. Thus, controls on capital transactions include prohibitions; need for prior approval, authorization, and notification; dual and multiple exchange rates; discriminatory taxes; and reserve requirements or interest penalties imposed by the authorities that regulate the conclusion or execution of transactions or transfers; or the holding of assets at home by nonresidents and abroad by residents. The coverage of the regulations applies to receipts as well as to payments and to actions initiated by nonresidents and residents. In addition, because of the close association with capital transactions, information is also provided on local financial operations conducted in foreign currency, describing specific regulations in force that limit residents' and nonresidents' issuing of securities denominated in foreign currency or, generally, limitations on contract agreements expressed in foreign exchange.

Repatriation requirements The definitions of repatriation and surrender requirements are similar to those applied to export proceeds.

Surrender requirements

Controls on capital and money market instruments Refers to public offerings or private placements on primary markets or their listing on secondary markets.

On capital market securities Refers to shares and other securities of a participating nature and to bonds and other securities with an original maturity of more than one year.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature Includes transactions involving shares and other securities of a participating nature if they are not effected for the purpose of acquiring a lasting economic interest in the management of the enterprise concerned. Investments for the purpose of acquiring a lasting economic interest are addressed under foreign direct investments.

Bonds or other debt securities Refers to bonds and other securities with an original maturity of more than one year. The term "other securities" includes notes and debentures.

On money market instruments Refers to securities with an original maturity of one year or less and includes short-term instruments such as certificates of deposit and bills of exchange. The category also includes treasury bills and other short-term government paper, bankers' acceptances, commercial papers, interbank deposits, and repurchase agreements.

On collective investment securities Includes share certificates and registry entries or other evidence of investor interest in an institution for collective investment such as mutual funds, and unit and investment trusts.

Controls on derivatives and other instruments Refers to operations in other negotiable instruments and nonsecured claims not covered under the above subsections. These may include operations in rights; warrants; financial options and futures; secondary market operations in other financial claims (including sovereign loans, mortgage loans, commercial credits, negotiable instruments originating as loans, receivables, and discounted bills of trade); forward operations (including those in foreign exchange); swaps of bonds and other debt securities; credits and loans; and other swaps (e.g., interest rate, debt/equity, equity/debt, foreign currency, as well as swaps of any of the instruments listed above). Also included are controls on operations in foreign exchange without any other underlying transaction (e.g., spot or forward trading on the foreign exchange markets, forward cover operations, etc.).

Controls on credit operations

Commercial credits	Covers operations directly linked with international trade transactions or with the rendering of international services.
Financial credits	Includes credits other than commercial credits granted by all residents, including banks, to nonresidents or vice versa.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Includes guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities provided by residents to nonresidents and vice versa. Also includes securities pledged for payment or performance of a contract—such as warrants, performance bonds, and standby letters of credit—and financial backup facilities that are credit facilities used as a guarantee for independent financial operations.

Controls on direct investment

Refers to investments for the purpose of establishing lasting economic relations both abroad by residents and domestically by nonresidents. These investments are essentially for the purpose of producing goods and services, in particular, investments that allow investor participation in the management of the enterprise. The category includes the creation or extension of a wholly owned enterprise, subsidiary, or branch and the acquisition of full or partial ownership of a new or existing enterprise that results in effective influence over the operations of the enterprise.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment

Refers to the transfer of principal, including the initial capital and capital gains, of a foreign direct investment as defined above.

Controls on real estate transactions

Refers to the acquisition of real estate not associated with direct investment, including, for example, investments of a purely financial nature in real estate or the acquisition of real estate for personal use.

Controls on personal capital transactions

Covers transfers initiated on behalf of private persons and intended to benefit other private persons. Includes transactions involving property to which the promise of a return to the owner with payments of interest is attached (e.g., loans or settlements of debt in their country of origin by immigrants), and transfers effected free of charge to the beneficiary (e.g., gifts and endowments, loans, inheritances and legacies, or emigrants' assets).

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Describes regulations specific to these institutions, such as monetary, prudential, and foreign exchange controls. Inclusion of an entry in this category does not necessarily signify that the aim of the measure is to control the flow of capital. Some of these items (e.g., borrowing abroad, lending to nonresidents, purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange, investment regulations) may be repetitions of the entries under respective categories of controls on capital and money market instruments, credit operations, or direct investments when the same regulations apply to commercial banks as well as to other residents.

Open foreign exchange position limits

Describes regulations on certain commercial bank balance sheet items (including capital) and on limits covering commercial banks' positions in foreign currencies (including gold).

Provisions specific to institutional investors Describes controls specific to institutions, such as insurance companies, pension funds, investment firms (including brokers, dealers, or advisory firms), and other securities firms (including collective investment funds). Incorporates measures that impose limitations on the composition of the institutional investors' foreign or foreign currency assets (reserves, accounts) and liabilities (e.g., investments in equity capital of institutional investors or borrowing from nonresidents) and/or that differentiate between residents and nonresidents. Examples of such controls are restrictions on investments because of rules regarding the technical, mathematical, security, or mandatory reserves; solvency margins; premium reserve stocks; or guarantee funds of nonbank financial institutions. Inclusion of an entry in this category does not necessarily signify that the aim of the measure is to control the flow of capital.

Insurance
Pension funds
Investment firms
investment funds.

Listing conventions used in the report are as follows:

- When it is unclear whether a particular category or measure exists—because pertinent information is not available at the time of publication—the category is displayed with the notation “n.a.”
- If a measure is known to exist but specific information on it is not available, the category is displayed with the notation “yes.”
- If no measure exists on any item within a category, the category is displayed with the notation “no.”
- If members have provided the IMF staff with information indicating that a category or an item is not regulated, these are marked by “n.r.”
- When relevant documents have not been published and the authorities have not consented to the publication of the information as included in the IMF staff report, the text reads “Information is not publicly available.”

Crawl-like arrangement Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed floating. The Da Afghanistan Bank (DAB) intervenes regularly in the foreign exchange market through three-times-weekly selling auctions. The results are published on the DAB website. The DAB deals with ADs only through the auction. The primary goal of these auctions is to regulate the growth of reserve money and/or currency in circulation. Subject to meeting this goal, the DAB also seeks to minimize intra-auction exchange rate volatility. From March 2020, the exchange rate followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to crawl-like from other managed, effective March 2, 2020. The DAB publishes intervention data on its website.

Yes.

The DAB reports official exchange rates of the Afghani vis-à-vis ten major currencies. The DAB staff conducts an online foreign exchange rate survey of between 40 and 50 licensed exchange dealers in Kabul at the start of each business day and acquires data on buying and selling rates for the nine currencies. The DAB's official reference rates are then determined as the average of the market rates for each currency. The official exchange rate is provided as a daily benchmark or reference point for commercial banks, private sector entities, and government agencies to use in their transactions.

Exchange tax No.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. The foreign exchange market consists of commercial banks and foreign exchange dealers. Commercial banks and bureaus are free to set their exchange rates and commissions in transactions with their clients and with each other.

Spot exchange market Yes. According to the Foreign Exchange Dealers and Money Service Providers Regulation, 2017, both foreign exchange dealers and money service providers licensed by the DAB may operate in the foreign exchange market. In addition, commercial banks and licensed foreign exchange dealers must register and pay a fee to participate in DAB auctions. There were 1,630 foreign exchange dealers and 1,567 licensed money service providers overall, as of December 2019. Money service providers, including Hawaladars, provide remittances and related services including transfer of payments, while foreign exchange dealers are only allowed to exchange currency.

Foreign exchange standing facility No.

Allocation No.

Auction Yes. The DAB conducts online foreign currency auction three times a week on a first-price basis with same-day settlement. The amount of foreign exchange offered at the auction is announced in the local press and magazines one working day in advance, and the results are published on the DAB website immediately after each auction. All bidders are required to submit their bids before 9:20 a.m. of the auction day. The Foreign Currency Auction Regulations allow bidders to set their maximum bid amounts at 3% of the total announced amount of the auction day, respectively. Bids are awarded based on the bidding prices. The auction includes commercial banks and foreign exchange dealers. There is no requirement for auction participants to finance specific international transactions with the foreign currency obtained at the auctions. Effective March 15, 2020, successful bidders who fail to settle their accounts within the same day of the auction are fined the total cash collateral of Af 500,000 (previously, Af 1,500,000). The DAB may elect to revoke the auction privileges or license of a bidder if it fails to settle.

AFGHANISTAN

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	No.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

The DAB does not impose restrictions on the interbank foreign exchange market, but it is not active. Most foreign exchange transactions are made between commercial banks/exchange dealers and their clients. There are 12 licensed commercial banks. Commercial banks and bureaus are free to set their exchange rates and commissions in transactions with their clients and with each other.

Floating

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The Bank of Albania (BOA) does not target any level or band for the exchange rate. The BOA interventions in the foreign exchange market are limited to the following situations: (1) maintaining adequate levels of foreign reserves; (2) avoiding harmful short-term fluctuations in the market; and (3) meeting monetary policy or financial stability objective when such interventions are deemed crucial. Effective December 16, 2020, the BOA has approved a new regulation on domestic market interventions which aims at improving transparency and enhance efficiency of its interventions.

Excess volatility in the domestic foreign exchange market is considered on a case-by-case basis by the Committee for Implementing and Advising the Monetary Policy. The BOA uses auctions only for the purpose of accumulating foreign exchange reserves. This practice has been approved in the regulation from January 2021 and communicated to the banks. Further changes in the same regulation have been made to increase transparency of the whole auction process and improve efficiency.

When the BOA intervenes in the domestic foreign exchange market, its counterparties are the commercial banks; if necessary, it may carry out its intervention with foreign exchange bureaus. The BOA intervenes through (1) verbal intervention, in the form of press releases in the print or electronic media and/or press conferences and (2) transactional intervention. The latter can take two forms, direct intervention and intervention via preannounced auctions. In the case of direct intervention, the exchange rate is determined by commercial banks' quotes and the BOA Monetary Operations Department's quotes. When the intervention exchange rate is uniform for all counterparties, the BOA publishes that rate on its Reuters page and simultaneously communicates the rate to commercial banks that do not participate in the Reuters system and to foreign exchange bureaus with which it has contact. When different exchange rates are used, the BOA announces only the fact that it has intervened. It publishes with a three-month lag the amount of the intervention in a quarterly bulletin that summarizes its foreign exchange operations with banks and the public sector. The regulation regarding foreign exchange interventions includes the option to carry out transactional interventions via auctions announced in advance with the aim of increasing/decreasing the reserves. The BOA announces the date, amount, and currency it wants to buy at least one month before the auction, and the banks submit at least 3 bids with no limitation of the amount. The BOA decides how much to buy based on the rates offered and its target amount. Following the auction, the BOA publishes the amount offered by commercial banks, the amount accepted by the BOA, the range of offered bids, the range of accepted bids, and the prorata at the maximum accepted bid. The BOA aims to avoid disruptions from large and irregular demand of foreign exchange by MOF, to better manage liquidity. The Ministry of Finance and Economy has not conducted outright purchases of foreign exchange in the market via auctions since 2014. The BOA offers a euro/Albanian lek (EUR/ALL) swap facility for the Ministry of Finance and Economy to be able to use foreign exchange cash balances for lek payments. The swap is priced on the basis of the interest rate differential between the foreign currency and ALL.

In the last years, the BOA's interventions to manage the level of foreign reserves are guided by a framework incorporating also an optimization model, which accounts for the macroeconomic and financial conditions and the opportunity cost of holding reserves. At the end of each year, the BOA publishes a calendar of the interventions for the upcoming year, announcing the dates and the volumes of such interventions. For 2020, only 2 out of 17 scheduled auctions were held, with the rest being cancelled after the outbreak of COVID-19, given the high uncertainty and sensitivity in the market. As of August 2021, 10 foreign exchange purchase auctions have been organized and 4 auctions are yet to follow.

Appreciation/depreciation bias in the market is calculated as the ratio of the number of days when lek has appreciated to the number of days when it has depreciated, on a rolling window of 250 days. Values close to 1 indicate two-sided volatility or no appreciation of depreciation bias in the market.

Following the outbreak of coronavirus pandemic in Albania, the increase of risk perception in the market led to lek depreciating against the euro, weakening to the level of 131 leks/euro in the end of March 2020. The BOA intervened in the market by selling euros to prevent a possible disruption in the domestic foreign exchange market. Most of this depreciation was reversed back in April 2020. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating.

Free floating

Yes.

The BOA sets the official rate of the lek against the US dollar and the euro every day, based on rates quoted by the 10 most active commercial banks. Rates for other currencies are based on US dollar cross-rates observed in international foreign exchange markets. The official rate of the lek vis-à-vis the principal foreign currencies is the rate used to settle customs obligations and reevaluate the foreign exchange positions of the BOA. Participants in the domestic foreign exchange market are not required to use the official rate in their transactions; however, the BOA requires commercial banks to use the official rate to convert foreign currency positions reported in their monthly balance sheet data.

Target setting body

Yes.

BOA Supervisory Council is the highest decision-making and supervisory body of the BOA. By law, the BOA is independent in formulating and implementing the monetary policy, including setting a numerical target for inflation. The Supervisory Council has decided that the inflation target is 3.0% over the medium term. Only the Supervisory Council can change the target. The decisions are taken by a majority vote. This degree of independence is outweighed through increased transparency and accountability of its actions. The Supervisory Council meets on a regular schedule published in the beginning of every year. It conducts eight regular meetings for

Inflation target	Yes.
Target number	Yes.
Point target	Yes.	In quantitative terms, the BOA defines price stability as keeping the annual change in consumer prices at 3%, on average terms, and for long time periods. To achieve its objective, the BOA employs the following market-based monetary policy instruments: open-market operations, standing facilities, and reserve requirements. The main policy instrument is a repo (reverse repo) transaction with a seven-day maturity. (The credit for liquidity support is not classified as a monetary policy instrument; it is intended to address financial stability.) Since June 2010, the objective of monetary operations has been to steer and keep short-term interest rates in the interbank market near the base rate set by the BOA Governing Council and minimize their volatility.
Target with tolerance band
Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.	The primary objective of the BOA is to achieve and maintain price stability. The annual inflation rate is calculated as the annual change in the CPI, measured and published by the Institute of Statistics, the public institution in charge of compiling statistics. Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	ADs are allowed to freely determine their bid-ask spreads and foreign exchange commissions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	In addition to banks, exchange bureaus are allowed to deal in foreign exchange with the public. As of December 31, 2020, 538 foreign exchange bureaus were licensed as foreign exchange operators. The BOA is the only institution that grants such licenses. The exchange bureaus may engage in the following activities: currency trading, trading of traveler's checks, and acting as an agent for nonbank financial institutions licensed by the BOA to conduct payment services and money transfers. Exchange bureaus are allowed to engage in operations within Albania and are subject to BOA's supervision and regulatory framework. Their accounts are held within the country only, and there are no restrictions on the volume of their transactions. The BOA deals with exchange bureaus under its intervention policies only in exceptional circumstances, which last occurred in 1998.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	The regulation regarding foreign exchange interventions includes the option to carry out transactional interventions via auctions announced in advance. The BOA uses preannounced auctions for the purpose of accumulating foreign exchange reserves.

The BOA announces the date, amount, and currency it wants to buy at least one month before the auction, and the banks submit one bid each (in an amount equal to the limit it has provided the BOA). The BOA decides how much to buy based on the rates offered and its target amount. Following the auction, the BOA publishes the amount offered by commercial banks, the amount accepted by the BOA, the range of offered bids, the range of accepted bids, and the prorate at the maximum accepted bid. The frequency of the auctions is slightly over 1 auction per month. There were 14 auctions scheduled for 2021, and half of them were scheduled in the May–August period. There are no penalties foreseen for banks that do not match their bid settlement.

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Banks operate mainly through bilateral payments arrangements and use their own Reuters pages to announce some indicative rates, which usually apply to amounts of at least €50,000. According to the intervention regulation, the BOA may call on each bank to buy/sell up to a limit (trading lot) predetermined by each bank at the price the bank quotes on its Reuters page. Currently, the sum of four largest trading lots is €12million and all other nine banks have a total limit of €3million. There were 13 banks participating in the interbank foreign exchange market as of December 31, 2020.

Albania maintains outstanding balances under inoperative bilateral payments agreements in nonconvertible currencies with Cuba, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, and Vietnam. Albania also maintains outstanding balances under inoperative bilateral clearing agreements in convertible currencies with Algeria, Cuba, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, and Vietnam.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The BOA is vested with the power to administer exchange controls. The BOA is the only authority with the right to (1) license, authorize, regulate, supervise, and revoke the licenses of foreign exchange market participants, as well as those of commercial banks; (2) define the limits of their activities; and (3) regulate and supervise foreign exchange operations and international payments to prevent any participants from dominating the market and undermining the value of the lek through speculation. In accordance with anti-money-laundering legislation, banks are required to maintain records of all cash transactions in excess of the equivalent of lek 1 million and to report these to the authority in the MOF responsible for the prevention of money laundering.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.	There are no official external arrears. The outstanding balance from bilateral agreements of payments—dating from the communist regime, with Algeria, Cuba, and Vietnam, can be recognized as liabilities only on signing of the respective debt rescheduling agreements and their ratification by the parliament of the Republic of Albania. Under Albanian law, the outstanding balances were only considered liabilities if they entered into an agreement by 2009. On official communication to the respective governments, no request or response is provided.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.	There are no restrictions on domestic ownership of gold, and trading activity is allowed under the license granted by the appropriate authorities.
On external trade	Yes.	In accordance with Article 12.1 of the regulation on foreign exchange activities, residents and nonresidents may transfer standardized gold and precious metals to and from Albania only through entities licensed by the BOA. In accordance with Article 12.2 of the regulation on foreign exchange activities, residents and nonresidents may transfer nonstandardized gold and precious metals to and from Albania in accordance with documentary requirements regarding the source, the purpose of the transfer, the quantity, and whether the transfer involves the return of the precious metals and, if so, the form in which they must be returned. The requirement does not apply to transfers of jewelry for personal use.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.

ALBANIA

On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Natural and juridical persons are allowed to export up to lek 50,000 in domestic banknotes and coins.
Foreign currency	Yes.	In accordance with Article 11.1 of the regulation on foreign exchange activities, residents and nonresidents must declare to customs authorities the source and purpose of funds in amounts exceeding €10,000 or its equivalent in foreign currency. In accordance with Article 11.2 of the regulation on foreign exchange activities, nonresidents visiting Albania may take out foreign currency in cash and traveler's checks in the amount declared to customs authorities on entry. This amount must be supported by (1) a declaration made at the time of entry and (2) exchange documents, if available.
On imports	Yes.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	Yes.	Currently, there are approximately 147 types of legal fees and charges for certificates, licenses, and permits (and for controls in international trade) issued by various government agencies involved in the Albanian customs process. Sixty-six types are charged with a fee.
Negative list	No.
Open general licenses	Yes.	Currently, there are approximately 147 types of legal fees and charges for certificates, licenses, and permits (and for controls in international trade) issued by various government agencies involved in the Albanian customs process. Sixty-six types are charged with a fee.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	In compliance with Law No. 10081 on Licenses, Authorizations, and Permits in the Republic of Albania, anyone meeting the criteria specified in this law and other pertinent legislation is licensed to exercise a specific activity. Once the license to exercise the activity is granted, the importer may import any product without an additional import license, except for specific products that require a nonautomatic license, including narcotic and psychotropic drugs, certain flora and fauna, medicinal products, military goods, and certain fish and fish products (G/LIC/N/3/ALB/4 of October 23, 2009).
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	The only import prohibitions relate to products considered to be hazardous or to threaten public health. The importation of dangerous waste is prohibited, unless it can be used, processed, or recycled, in which case an import license is required. Import prohibitions also apply to imports of strong poisons, chemical weapons, narcotics, and animal products from certain countries. Import prohibitions apply to bioproducts and veterinary drugs recognized as dangerous to human or animal health by relevant international organizations; imports from countries or areas within a country infected by a contagious disease; live microorganisms pathogenic to animals and plants; and infected plant products and other objects.

Reserve requirements	Yes.	Banks are required to maintain reserves at their accounts with the BOA. The reserve requirement ratio varies by currency as a measure to increase the use of domestic currency in the financial system. The following are applied to the liabilities included in the reserve base to which a zero reserve ratio is not applied: The reserve ratio in lek is 7.5% for liabilities with a maturity up to 12 months, and 5% for those with an initial maturity between 12 months and two years. The reserve ratio in foreign currency is 12.5% when the bank's ratio of liabilities in the relevant currency included in the reserve base to which a zero reserve ratio is not applied to the total of liabilities is up to 50%, and 20% if the ratio is higher than 50%. Reserves in lek are remunerated at the repo rate. The euro required reserves are remunerated at the ECB overnight deposit rate, and the US dollar required reserves are remunerated at 0%. The maintenance period of the required reserve is one month. It starts on the 24th day of the month succeeding the base period and ends on the 23rd day of the following month. The BOA applies the averaging system of maintaining reserves over the maintenance period. Banks are allowed to use every day up to 70% of the reserve requirements' amount in lek.

companies to appropriately match the amount of investment of assets covering technical and mathematical provisions which are exposed to risk of potential losses because of changes in interest rates, exchange rates, and other market risks with its liabilities from insurance contracts dependent on the same changes. When investing assets covering technical and mathematical provisions, insurance companies must take into consideration the maturity of the liabilities under individual insurance contracts. Insurance companies must match no less than 80% of the assets covering mathematical provisions with the liabilities under insurance contracts dependent on changes in foreign exchange rates.

Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Regulation No. 1 of January 28, 2010, as amended, specifies the restrictions on investment of assets of pension funds in securities issued abroad. This regulation specifies limits based on debt securities ratings, issuing financial institutions, issuing countries, such as EU or OECD countries, concentration on single issuers, etc.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Regulation No. 1 of January 28, 2010, as amended, specifies the restrictions on investment of the assets of pension funds in securities issued abroad, including limits based on debt securities ratings, issuing financial institutions, issuing countries, such as EU or OECD countries, concentration on single issuers, etc. The assets of a pension fund may not be invested more than (1) 30% in shares or units in investment funds licensed in an EU Member State, and (a) the assets of which are invested in the following indices: CAC 40, DAX, FTSE 100, S&P 500, Dow Jones Industrial Average, Nikkei 225 (Japan), Sensex (India), All Ordinaries (Australia), and Hang Seng Index (Hong Kong); or (b) the assets of which are invested in bonds, treasury bills, and other securities issued or guaranteed by EU Member States; (2) 100% in bonds, treasury bills, or other securities issued or guaranteed by the ECB, the EIB, and the World Bank; (3) 100% in bonds, treasury bills, and other securities issued or guaranteed by EU Member States or OECD countries or by the relevant CBs, but (a) no more than 30% in a single issuer. The ceiling may be increased to 100% in a single issuer, after receiving approval by the FSA, based on the arguments provided for such an investment policy.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	Regulation No. 1 of January 28, 2010, as amended, stipulates that 100% of assets of pension funds may be invested in notes, treasury bills, and other government papers issued and backed by the Republic of Albania. However, there are limits regarding bank deposits and concentration of investment in a single issuer. The assets of a pension fund may not be invested more than: 100% in Treasury Bills, bonds, and other securities issued or guaranteed by the Republic of Albania; 20% in bank deposits in the same bank; 30% in debt securities with a rating of BBB or higher as rated by Standard & Poor's or Fitch, a rating of Baa3 or higher as rated by Moody's, a rating of BBB (low) or higher as rated by DBRS (Dominion Bond Rating Service), but no more than 10% in a single issuer.

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed floating. The Bank of Algeria (BA) does not announce the path of the exchange rate. The external value of the dinar is determined in the interbank foreign exchange market, in which the BA is the main seller. This is because of inflows related to commodity exports, including hydrocarbons, which, under current law, must be surrendered to the BA. The BA manages the dinar with reference to a basket of currencies, and the rate of the dinar relative to the currencies in the basket is based on balance of payments data. The BA has not set a target range for fluctuation of the dinar outside or within any particular band, and the observed exchange rate movements do not confirm any constant weights of the currency composite. Since April 2020, the exchange rate has stabilized within a 2 percent band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to stabilized from crawl-like, effective

Yes.

The monetary policy framework adjusts to reflect the developments of the economic environment caused by oil price fluctuations. Since 2003, base money has been the main intermediate instrument of monetary policy, and liquidity management tools dominated the monetary policy toolkit. In March 2017, the BA introduced open market operations for the first time. Until November 2017, open market lending operations served as the main policy tool. With the introduction of monetary financing in October 2017, excess liquidity reappeared, and the BA reintroduced liquidity absorption facilities in January 2018. At present, the decline in liquidity has led to greater use of bank refinancing instruments, particularly through open market operations. The exchange rate policy targets a real effective exchange rate in line with its fundamental value but has occasionally been used to contain price pressures.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Authorized exchange bureaus may not freely determine their bid-ask spread. Their rates may vary by no more than 1% from the rate used by the BA (Article 10 of Instruction No. 08-96 of December 18, 1996). Exchange bureaus may charge a commission in dinars, which must be posted, on foreign exchange purchases and sales (Article 1 of Instruction No. 08-96 of December 18, 1996).

Spot exchange market Yes. The governor of the BA issues licenses to banks and financial institutions to engage in banking operations, including foreign exchange transactions. These licenses are conditional on authorization from the Council on Money and Credit (CMC, a monetary authority). As of December 31, 2019, 19 banks and 4 financial institutions, all authorized intermediaries, participated in the interbank foreign exchange market. Exchange bureaus must obtain a license from the BA (Instruction No. 08-96). As of December 31, 2019, the BA had granted licenses to 45 exchange bureaus, but only 7 bureaus were active. Exchange bureaus may only buy and sell banknotes and traveler's checks denominated in freely convertible foreign currencies against dinars. Exchange bureaus may sell foreign currency to authorized banks and financial institutions or to the BA, but they may not buy foreign currency from the BA, and they may not hold accounts abroad. They may not make payments or transfers in foreign currency for the accounts of their customers.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BA intervenes in the foreign exchange market directly by proposing its own rates and by making foreign exchange available to banks at their request. The BA sets the buying and selling rates of the dinar against the US dollar in this market within a margin of 0.015 dinar. The BA sells foreign exchange only to authorized banks and financial institutions. The government and other public institutions do not deal directly with the BA. They deal with financial institutions operating in the interbank foreign exchange market.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.	The BA allocates foreign exchange at the request of authorized banks and financial institutions.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	No margin limits are imposed on the buying and selling exchange rates in the interbank foreign exchange market. As of December 31, 2019, 19 banks had been licensed to engage in banking operations, including foreign exchange transactions; they therefore participate in the interbank foreign exchange market. The governor of the BA issues the licenses, which are conditional on authorization from the CMC.
Over the counter	Yes.	The exchange rates applicable to OTC trades are set on the basis of the interbank market exchange rate.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	Yes.	Transactions take place between traders (market makers), all of which are authorized banks and financial institutions that are directly and exclusively authorized to operate in the system, and negotiations take place by mutual agreement. The BA continuously quotes buying and selling prices to the other market participants. These transactions are conducted under a BA instruction organizing the foreign exchange market (Instruction No. 79/95 of December 27, 1995, on the foreign exchange market).
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Authorized banks and financial institutions may provide forward cover to clients. Banks are authorized to carry out interbank borrowing and lending operations in freely convertible foreign currency and make deposits in freely convertible foreign currency at the BA. These borrowing and lending operations in foreign currency must be performed exclusively on the forward exchange market (Instruction No. 04-2011 of October 19, 2011). However, foreign exchange forward hedging transactions are still rarely performed. Regulation No. 17-01 of July 10, 2017, concerning the interbank forward exchange market and instruments for hedging foreign exchange risks, and Instruction No. 06-2017 of November 26, 2017, concerning the functioning of the market, apply.

Changes during 2020 and 2021

No significant changes occurred in the exchange and trade system.

ANGOLA(Position as of June 30, 2021)Status under IMF Articles of Agreement*Date of membership September 19, 1989.Article VIII*Article XIV Yes.Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices Yes. The IMF staff report for the Third Review under the Extended Arrangement under the Extended Fund Facility, Requests for Augmentation and Rephasing Access, Waivers of Nonobservance of Performance Criterion and Applicability of Performance Criterion, Modifications of Performance Criteria, and Completion of Financing Assurance Review for Angola states that, as of July 20, 2020, Angola maintained multiple currency practices (MCPs) and exchange restrictions (ERs) as described in the Informational Annex of IMF Country Report No. 18/156, with the exception of the ER arising from the operation of a priority list and the ER and MCP deriving from the stamp tax on foreign exchange operations, which were eliminated (see below). The application of a stamp tax on foreign exchange operations (SB) was eliminated in October 2019, removing an ER and an MCP (ER, Article VIII, 2a and MCP, Article VIII, 3). (Country Report No. 20/281)

Therefore, Angola maintained one ER subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII, Section 2(a) resulting from a special tax of 10% on transfers to non-residents under contracts for foreign technical assistance or management services and two MCPs that are subject to approval under Article VIII, Section 3 arising from the lack of a mechanism to prevent potential spreads in excess of 2% emerging (1) between successful bids within the BNA's foreign exchange auction; and (2) for transactions that take place at the reference rate in place and the rate at which transactions take place in the foreign exchange auction on that day.

Angola also maintained restrictions on the making of payments and transfers for current international transactions under the transitional arrangements of Article XIV, Section 2. The measures maintained pursuant to Article XIV are: (i) limits on the availability of foreign exchange for invisible transactions i.e., travel expenses; and (ii) limits on unrequited transfers to foreign-based individuals and institutions. (Country Report No. 18/156)

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons No.

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51) No.

Other security restrictions No.

Exchange Arrangement*Currency Yes. The currency of Angola is the Angolan kwanza.

Other legal tender No.

Unitary

Dual

Multiple

Yes. The exchange rate structure is considered multiple because there was a lack of a mechanism to prevent potential spreads in excess of 2% emerging (1) between successful bids within the National Bank of Angola’s (Banco Nacional de Angola—BNA’s) foreign exchange auction; and (2) for transactions that take place at the reference rate in place and the rate at which transactions take place in the foreign exchange auction on that day. Effective April 1, 2020, the BNA publishes a reference exchange rate daily, on its portal the market exchange rates of the Euro and the US Dollar in relation to the Kwanza. These exchange rates are calculated as the arithmetic average of the bid and ask rates published on Bloomberg.

Floating

Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. However, the BNA closely monitors exchange rate variation with the objective of price stability in the economy, and intervenes in the foreign exchange market by conducting currency auctions. The BNA sells foreign currency to the commercial banks. Companies and Financial Banking Institutions wishing to trade foreign currency must trade transactions through Bloomberg’s “FXGO” trading platform. The BNA may also limit the daily variations of the exchange rate by arbitrarily classifying certain bids. The BNA publishes the results of the auctions and the respective reference exchange rates on its website.

In the Extraordinary Session of the MPC, the BNA decided to implement a floating exchange rate regime in which the exchange rate is freely defined by the market, that is, according to the demand and supply of foreign currency. Implementation in October 2019 of the floating exchange rate regime, in which the exchange rate is freely set by the market, created the conditions in April 2020 for the start of currency bid and ask transactions on the Bloomberg platform.

The trade balance improved significantly in late 2020 in line with a recovery in oil prices and foreign exchange inflows. Foreign exchange supply increased accordingly. This was further boosted by the entry of the Treasury into the foreign exchange market (via the Bloomberg platform that was introduced in early 2020). At the same time, the BNA largely allowed the exchange rate to serve as a shock absorber in 2020 (when a drop in oil prices and foreign exchange inflows meant significant depreciation) and significantly scaled back its foreign exchange interventions over the course of the year. The BNA has been largely out of the foreign exchange spot market in 2021. Since March 2020, the exchange rate has increased its flexibility. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to floating from other managed, effective March 17, 2020.

Free floating

Yes.

Effective April 1, 2020, the BNA publishes a reference exchange rate daily, on its portal the market exchange rates of the Euro and the US Dollar in relation to the Kwanza. These exchange rates are calculated as the arithmetic average of the bid and ask rates published on Bloomberg. Previously, the BNA published a reference exchange rate daily, which was calculated as the weighted average exchange rate of winning bids of the previous auction.

Monetary aggregate target

Yes.

The BNA uses base money as the anchor for monetary policy. The BNA's operational target is reserve money; its intermediate target is money supply (M2). Under the operational framework, the BNA mainly uses the following instruments: open market operations and the reserve ratio; the marginal lending facility rates; and liquidity absorption. Although the regime remains focused on monetary aggregates, the increased use of the key interest rate serves as a complement to the signaling effect. It should be noted that the BNA does not use interest rate targets.

Exchange tax	Yes.	Foreign exchange operations are subject to a stamp duty of 0.1%. Traveler's checks are exempt from this duty. Presidential Legislative Decree No. 02/15 of June 29, 2015, establishes the Special Contribution for Current Invisible Foreign Exchange Operations regime, imposing a special contribution of 10% on transfers carried out under contracts for foreign technical assistance or management services governed by Presidential Decree No. 273/11 of October 27, 2011.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Banks may freely deal in foreign exchange at rates established among themselves, with the public, and in secondary market operations. The market was already liberalized. Foreign exchange bureaus must be licensed by the BNA and may deal in banknotes and traveler's checks, at freely negotiable rates and provide remittance and cash collection services, with individuals, with institutions and non-financial entities authorized to carry out exchange activities. As of December 31, 2020, there were about 67 authorized foreign exchange bureaus in operation, 47 were licensed to perform cash transaction as well as remittance and cash collection services, while another 20 were authorized only to perform cash transactions. Besides the exchange bureaus, there are also money transfer bureaus, which may send money abroad. The money transfer bureaus depend mainly on commercial banks. There are currently about 13 such authorized money transfer bureaus in operation.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	Effective January 10, 2020, free auctions are held on Bloomberg's FXGO platform. Previously, the BNA conducted a selling foreign exchange auction that followed the principles of a multiple price auction. The sale or purchase of foreign currency by the BNA is carried out through auctions carried out electronically, in the Exchange Market Management System – SGMC. The BNA and the Banking Financial Institutions authorized by it participate in the auctions. The frequency of auctions is determined by the BNA.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Banks and exchange bureaus may deal in foreign exchange among themselves and with their customers at freely negotiated rates. All exchange bureaus may participate in the interbank market, but the volume is small because banks generally deal with their customers and/or with the BNA through buying and selling, as well as through buying from oil and diamond companies.
Over the counter	Yes.	The interbank market is still in the early stages of development and operates on an OTC basis, but some banks include their quotes on Reuters platform.
Brokerage	No.	This does not currently take place.
Market making	No.	This does not currently take place.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Effective November 30, 2020, Commercial Banks may contract forward exchange operations with their Clients, legal entities, importers, exporters, oil and diamond companies and, state entities for the hedging of the exchange risk related to specific and identified transactions for the import or export of goods. Forward Exchange Transactions must have a maximum term of 1 (one) year.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments under contracts concluded with nonresidents for foreign exchange purposes may be made in any currency freely agreed between the parties. However, the amount payable should be equivalent to the amount specified in the contract. Domestic payments are restricted to kwanza according to Law No. 2/12 of January 13, 2012.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	The kwanza is not used in international payments. However, individual residents and nonresidents for foreign exchange purposes may leave and enter the country with up to Kz 50,000.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	The kwanza is not used in international payments. However, individual residents and nonresidents for foreign exchange purposes may leave and enter the country with up to Kz 50,000.
For capital transactions	Yes.	The kwanza is not used in international payments. However, individual residents and nonresidents for foreign exchange purposes may leave and enter the country with up to Kz 50,000.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	The kwanza is not used in international payments. However, individual residents and nonresidents for foreign exchange purposes may leave and enter the country with up to Kz 50,000.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	The kwanza is not used in international payments. However, individual residents and nonresidents for foreign exchange purposes may leave and enter the country with up to Kz 50,000.
Credit operations	Yes.	The kwanza is not used in international payments. However, individual residents and nonresidents for foreign exchange purposes may leave and enter the country with up to Kz 50,000.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The kwanza is legal tender in the country, and transactions in foreign exchange among residents are only permitted when not used for making any kind of payment.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	Yes.	Arrangements in effect with Brazil, China, and Israel are based on oil as collateral.
Inoperative	Yes.	There was a reciprocal acceptance agreement with Namibia that allowed for commercial transactions at the border to be carried out in domestic currency. Implementation of the agreement is suspended.
Regional arrangements	No.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The BNA is the exchange authority of the Republic of Angola.
Payments arrears	Yes.	Guidelines were defined to regularize arrears up to December 31, 2017.
Official	Yes.	Some public debt from the 1980s and 1990s remains to be settled—namely, that owed to Portugal and Eastern European countries, where the identification of credible creditors has hampered negotiations.
Private	Yes.	Guidelines were defined to regularize arrears up to December 31, 2017.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.	Under the Foreign Exchange Law, control of trade in monetary gold is exclusively incumbent on the BNA.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Residents are permitted to hold and trade gold only in the form of jewelry. In 2014, the Gold Agency was created to execute, monitor, control, and manage gold sales and pricing policies. The Agency is also responsible for guaranteeing the purchase of gold on the artisanal market and reselling it on the domestic and international markets.
On external trade	Yes.	Imports and exports of gold in the form of coins and bullion are subject to a BNA monopoly.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.	Banks are permitted to import/export banknotes without authorization from the BNA.
On exports	Yes.	Banks are authorized to export banknotes without authorization from the BNA.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Exports of domestic currency are under the exclusive authority of the BNA.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Banks are authorized to import/export banknotes without authorization from the BNA.
On imports	Yes.	Banks are permitted to import/export banknotes without authorization from the BNA.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Imports of domestic currency may be made by the BNA or by a banking institution with BNA authorization resulting from the exportation of Kz 50,000 by individuals traveling abroad.

ANGOLA

Foreign currency	Yes.	Commercial banks may import foreign currency in accordance with the Notice No. 1/15 of January 29, 2015.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Foreign exchange residents are permitted to open accounts in foreign exchange subject to the conditions applicable to their transactions (Notice No. 03/09 of June 5, 2009).
--	------	--

Held domestically	Yes.	Individuals' accounts may be credited with foreign currency deposits in cash or other instruments generally accepted in the international financial market and with accrued interest. These accounts may be debited by the withdrawal or sale of foreign currency and the issuance of any generally accepted instrument for settlement of transactions involving merchandise imports, current invisibles, and capital, carried out by the depositor in accordance with existing foreign exchange regulations. Legal entities' accounts may be credited with foreign currency deposits in cash or other generally accepted instruments derived from their business activity and with accrued interest. These accounts may be debited in accordance with the licensing regulations for goods, invisibles, and capital transactions and the withdrawal or sale of foreign currency.
-------------------	------	--

Approval required	Yes.	Withdrawals of foreign currency by residents are de facto restricted in some commercial banks. Customers of some commercial banks may only withdraw foreign currency from their account if traveling, and this also depends on the bank's foreign currency availability. Commercial banks have set monthly or weekly limits on the withdrawal of foreign currency.
--------------------------	------	--

Held abroad	Yes.	Individuals may have these accounts without BNA approval. Legal entities may open foreign exchange accounts abroad, with BNA approval, which may be credited with export receipts and debited with payments for imports of goods and services and debt-service payments. Diamond and other mineral companies may, with BNA approval, open escrow accounts in banks abroad as security for foreign borrowing.
-------------	------	--

Approval required	Yes.	Legal entities may open foreign exchange accounts abroad with BNA approval. Individuals may hold such accounts without BNA approval.
--------------------------	------	--

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.	As the kwanza is not a convertible currency, accounts in kwanzas cannot be opened abroad.
--	-----	---

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.	Accounts in kwanzas cannot be converted to foreign currency.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	These accounts may be credited with foreign currency imported from abroad and with the accrued interest. They may be debited for sales of foreign currency, payments to residents in domestic currency, foreign currency expenditures abroad, interbank transfers to resident entities belonging to the same group, the use of international credit and debit cards, and/or the repatriation of amounts authorized by the BNA.

Approval required	No.

Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Before 2009, nonresidents may open two types of domestic currency accounts: type A and type B. Type A accounts may be credited with the proceeds from the sale of resources from foreign exchange accounts and, with BNA authorization, with receipts from nonresidents' activities in Angola. These accounts may be debited for payments of local expenses and against the purchase of foreign currency to be deposited in a foreign exchange account held by the same entity. Type B accounts may be credited only with receipts from nonresidents' activities in Angola (when authorized by the BNA) and may be debited for payments of local expenses. These types of accounts were canceled in accordance with Notice No. 03/09 of June 5, 2009. The balance of type A account was converted and transferred to the foreign exchange accounts of nonresidents. Type B accounts were reclassified as domestic currency accounts for nonresidents.

Convertible into foreign currency	No.
Approval required	Yes.	For nonresidents, approval from the BNA is not required to open an account in domestic currency.
Blocked accounts	No.	The terms and conditions are defined in Notice No. 02/17 of February 3, 2017.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.	There are no regulations in this area.
Financing requirements for imports	No.	There are no regulations in this area.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Before any foreign exchange operation involving an import, export, or reexport, banks must verify the nature, economic rationale, and legitimacy of the resident importer or exporter for foreign exchange purposes, in accordance with the obligations of identification and due diligence set out in the tax legislation and in the anti-money-laundering/combating the financing of terrorism (AML/CFT) legislation. Banks must also verify that the foreign exchange operation complies with the applicable legislation and should request all the necessary documentation to confirm it. The required documentation will also depend on the type of payment. Under the terms of the Notice, there are four payment mechanisms: documentary credit, advance payment, remittance, and documentary collection. To improve the competitiveness of the economy and expedite the import process, a "Simplified Regime" was approved, in which companies do not have to submit the documentation supporting import operations to the banks, but instead are required to submit to the BNA, through commercial banks, certain documents such as audited financial statements for the last three fiscal years and letters of engagement from the management administration/body.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.	Preshipment inspection is optional, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 63/13 of June 11, 2013, which repeals Articles 10, 11, and 12 of Council of Ministers Decree No. 41/06 of June 17, 2006.
Letters of credit	Yes.	This is one of the payment methods allowed by the law and can take the form of advance payment or post-payment.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	No.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Only three types of transactions do not require import licenses: Imported goods valued at US$5,000 or less. Goods imported as luggage. Other goods as defined by Presidential Decree No. 75/17 of

ANGOLA

Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	The legal framework lists goods that may not be imported, which include plants and animals from infected areas, toxic products, and certain drugs. There is a list of goods that require specific licenses from the Ministries of Health, Industry, or Agriculture and Rural Development. Imports of arms and ammunition are subject to authorization by the Ministry of the Interior. Imports for specific purposes may be exempt from customs tariffs.
Open general licenses	No.	Foreign trade is not subject to foreign exchange licensing; however, it is recorded in a computer system, Sistema Integrado de Comércio Exterior (SICOEX)—Integrated System of Foreign Trade, Ministry of Commerce—for the licensing, registration, and control of operations.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Under the quota system, three provinces (Cabinda, Cunene, and Cuando Cubango) are each allowed to import 150,000 tons of cement a year.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Presidential Legislative Decree No. 10/13 of November 22, 2013, approves the new tariff schedule, the full text of which was republished January 30, 2014. The tax system consists of eight rates: 1%, 2%, 5%, 10%, 20%, 25%, 30%, and 35%.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	A tax stamp of 0.1% (the percentage under the previous law was 0.001% for foreign exchange operations) is collected through the foreign exchange system.
State import monopoly	Yes.	Petroleum products may be imported only by the public oil company. Arms and ammunition for warfare may be imported only by the government.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	All revenue in foreign exchange deriving from each export operation must be deposited in a bank account in foreign exchange held by the exporter. Under Notice No. 5/18, the exporter must sell, five days from the date the resources enter the country, to the bank that brokered the operation, 50% of the foreign exchange revenue deriving from the export at the exchange rate negotiated with the bank on the execution date of the transaction. They should be used primarily to pay for imports. On the other hand, they must be converted to domestic currency for payments to resident entities. Diamond companies may retain export proceeds in Angolan banks to pay for imports of goods and services. They may also retain part of their receipts abroad in escrow accounts, with BNA authorization, as security for foreign borrowing.
Surrender requirements	Yes.	Under Notice No. 5/18, the exporter must sell, five days from the date the resources enter the country, to the bank that brokered the operation, 50% of the foreign exchange revenue deriving from the export at the exchange rate negotiated with the bank on the execution date of the transaction. 		receipts abroad for payment of imports of goods and services, transfer of interest and profits, and the amortization of capital. These companies must use funds from abroad for the payment of royalties, taxes, and local expenses. According to Law No. 2/12 of January 13, 2012, the foreign exchange law for the oil sector, foreign companies in the oil sector may retain export proceeds in foreign accounts for deposit of balances after payment of current expenses, profits and dividends, incentives and other capital remuneration, and the amount of investment amortization. The BNA issued a normative instruction (No. 7/2014) reversing the previous decision that allowed foreign companies in the oil sector to retain export proceeds in foreign accounts for deposit of balances after payment of current expenses, profits and dividends, incentives and other capital remuneration, and the amount of investment amortization.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Tax payments by oil companies must be surrendered to the BNA from deposits on account with financial institutions in Angola. The BNA issued a normative instruction (No. 7/2014) reversing the previous decision that allowed foreign companies in the oil sector to retain export proceeds in foreign accounts for deposit of balances after payment of current expenses, profits and dividends, incentives and other capital remuneration, and the amount of investment amortization.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	All revenue in foreign exchange deriving from each export operation must be deposited in a bank account in foreign exchange held by the exporter. Under Notice No. 5/18, the exporter must sell, five days from the date the resources enter the country, to the bank that brokered the operation, 50% of the foreign exchange revenue deriving from the export at the exchange rate negotiated with the bank on the execution date of the transaction. The available resources in their accounts in foreign exchange must be used first to settle any imports. By contrast, the funds must be converted to kwanzas to make payments to resident entities. Diamond enterprises may retain export revenue in local bank accounts to make payments for imports of goods and services. With authorization from the BNA, they may also retain some of the revenue abroad in escrow accounts to guarantee loans arranged abroad.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	Yes.	This is one of the payment mechanisms provided in the regulatory texts.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	Yes.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Other	No.
Export licenses	Yes.	Exports require licensing by the Ministry of Commerce through Sistema Integrado de Comércio Exterior. Exports of arms, ammunition, and cultural artifacts are prohibited. Special export regimes apply to aircraft, animals and animal products, works of art, and petroleum.
Without quotas	No.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.

Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	The tax system comprises six rates: 1%, 2%, 3%, 4%, 5%, and 10%.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.
Trade-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	Under Notice No. 13/13 of August 6, 2013, approval is required for service agreements with nonresidents related to trade and foreign workers' wages exceeding Kz 300 million or the equivalent in another currency, if the originators are companies that provide services to the oil sector, as well as for service agreements involving more than Kz 100 million or the equivalent in another currency.
Quantitative limits	No.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the Fourth Review under the Stand-By Arrangement, Request for Waivers of Applicability and Modification of Performance Criteria, and Financing Assurances Review with Argentina states that, as of July 3, 2019, the retention of the multiple currency price auction put in place in June 2018 that staff has assessed gives rise to the multiple currency practice. (Country Report No. 19/232)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Argentina notified the IMF that it maintains restrictions in accordance with UNSC resolutions on preventing the financing of terrorism.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	The Central Bank of the Argentine Republic (BCRA) has established that financial and exchange institutions are subject to the provisions of Law Nos. 25.246 and 26.734 as amended and supplemented, Decree No. 918/12, and FIU Resolution No. 12/11 as amended, 30-E/2017, and FIU Resolution No. 29/2013. Under these laws, decrees, and resolutions, regulated institutions must follow the regulatory guidelines of the FIU for the prevention of money laundering, financing of terrorism, and other unlawful activities “without delay,” including Argentine Executive Branch decrees regarding UNSC resolutions on combating terrorism and resolutions (and their annexes) of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Worship. Article 1 of Executive Decree No. 918/12 regulates the measures and procedures for the administrative freezing of goods linked to the criminal activities specified in Article 306 of the Criminal Code (financing of terrorism), as well as the procedure for inclusion and exclusion from the lists established in accordance with UNSC resolutions.  Com “A” 6244 and now Para. 5.5 of the TO de EyC retained the minimum information that ADs must verify when funds are transferred to and from abroad, including the messages that pertain to these transfers (as well as various control mechanisms) to include: – the payer’s and recipient’s information, – having procedures to detect information missing in transfers and, in such cases, keeping them pending settlement until omissions are remedied.

Crawl-like arrangement Yes. The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The exchange rate of the peso is determined in the Free Foreign Exchange Market (MLC) by market forces and applies to all transactions in foreign exchange and foreign currency banknotes (under Para. 1.3 of the TO de EyC (Com “A” 6844 and supplementary provisions)).

The most significant seasonal impacts on the current account since January 2020 have included crop cycles (more than specific yields for the year) and weak tourism flows, particularly for outbound tourism, which was virtually paralyzed by the COVID-19 restrictions in the sector. Non-seasonal factors affecting the current account included the contractionary effects of the pandemic on trade in goods, with a greater impact on exports, which were partially offset by the improvement in the terms of trade. Other factors were lower interest payments on the public foreign debt compared with previous years and the restructuring of the debt denominated in foreign currencies that took place in mid-2020.

Looking at the financial account, the severe balance of payments crisis in 2019, following a high degree of foreign currency borrowing, which resulted in a significant depreciation of the domestic currency, led to the termination of the previous floating arrangement with full capital mobility in September 2019. From this date forward, a series of exchange regulations were issued that were subsequently ratified and updated, including in particular the mandatory repatriation of export proceeds on the local foreign exchange market, the renegotiation of the private foreign debt compatible with the normal operation of the foreign exchange markets, and limits on the formation of external assets using local resources. Also having an impact was the tax on the purchase of foreign exchange intended for hoarding and the payment of foreign travel and tourism services established by the National Government (Law No. 27541), and the 35% capital gains tax on operations for the formation of external assets and credit card purchases in foreign currencies introduced by the Federal Public Revenue Administration (Administración Federal de Ingresos Públicos – AFIP). Capital controls made it possible to limit exchange volatility and avoid it impacting prices, economic activity and financial stability.

Other measures adopted over the past 12 months with an impact on foreign exchange market dynamics include:

ARGENTINA

- the opening of a trading session on the Open Electronic Market (MAE) for the purchase of renminbi exclusively for foreign trade operations;

- implementation of a system of incentives to attract FDI intended for the production of exportable goods and services and import substitutes or the improvement of infrastructure related to the export transport capacity;

- the authorization of the Local Currency System (XML) as a bilateral payments system between Argentina and the Republic of Paraguay, with the aim of facilitating transactions between the two countries in domestic currencies.

This set of foreign exchange measures has resulted in an increase in the international reserves, primarily through the net purchase of foreign exchange from the private sector. In replenishing its stocks, the BCRA has strengthened its external position to enable it to handle potential episodes of financial volatility.

In short, the BCRA is maintaining a short-term strategy that seeks to actively mitigate potential temporary imbalances on the foreign exchange market, promoting a more efficient allocation of foreign exchange through the foreign exchange regulations and adapting the volatility of the nominal exchange rate to the anti-inflation strategy. Over the long term, the BCRA is maintaining its strategy of protecting the stability of the real foreign exchange rate, which complements its objective of the accumulation of international reserves.

Since January 2020, the exchange rate of the peso has followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar, with one realignment in December 2020. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to “crawl-like” from “other managed,” effective January 27, 2020.

The foreign exchange intervention data can be consulted in the Daily Monetary Report, which is available on the CB webpage. This report each day publishes data on interventions involving net purchases from the private sector and the National Treasury with a three day lag (business days) owing to the time required for proper processing of the information prior to dissemination.

In light of the economic and social emergency, which was deepened by the COVID-19 pandemic, the BCRA continued to work to normalize the operation of the economy in 2021 in coordination with the national government's fiscal strategy. To this end, it developed its policy within the following framework:

(1) Continue to focus monetary policy on absorbing anti-cyclical forces so as to protect the monetary and financial balances.

(2) Construct a process that will restore confidence in the domestic currency and reduce inflation rates, through the prudent management of monetary, financial, and foreign exchange conditions.

(3) Deepen the recovery of private credit by stimulating the supply to promote productive and technological development and increase the participation of micro-, small-, and medium-sized enterprises (MSMEs).

(4) Protect financial stability by applying the best international recommendations, while considering the specific characteristics of the Argentine financial market and maintaining adequate levels of liquidity and solvency.

(5) Promote the development of the capital market in coordination with other national public sector agencies to increase public and private financing and the range of options for the investment of savings.

The BCRA regulates bank liquidity primarily using two instruments: (1) Liquidity Bills (LELIQ), which are discounted instruments issued by the BCRA. Currently, the BCRA conducts two weekly auctions and the bills have a term of 28 days. All financial institutions have access to the LELIQ auctions and the cut-off is based on the interest rate set by the BCRA. Besides the primary auctions, one of the channels used by the BCRA to inject liquidity into the market is the repurchase of outstanding LELIQs on the secondary market.

(2) Each day the BCRA offers the option to institutions to place their excess liquidity in reverse repos with the CB with terms of 1 to 5 business days. Entities needing liquidity can access repos with a term of 1 business day. As well, on the last business day of each month financial institutions can conduct a special type of reverse repo called the overnight repo (pase nocturno), which facilitates the close of monthly minimum cash positions.

In this way, all financial institutions can place excess liquidity that is not used to make up their reserve requirements or for lending in CB instruments, while the CB can harden or relax its monetary policy through changes in the interest rates on those instruments.

Open market operations in treasury securities are an additional tool.

Both reserve ratios and LELIQ and repo balances meet the prudential requirements and can be used to implement monetary policy measures. A minimum interest rate was established for fixed terms while all reserve requirements for fixed terms can be constituted in LELIQs or public securities (moving from a non-interest-bearing reserve requirement to an interest-bearing requirement to strengthen the transmission of rates).

Effective October 16, 2020, a line of credit for the financing of the productive investments of MSMEs was approved, under which Group A financial institutions must grant rates of up to a fixed annual nominal rate of 30% to finance investment projects and of up to 35% to finance working capital. The institutions covered must maintain a balance of such financing equivalent, as a minimum, to 7.5% of their nonfinancial private sector deposits in pesos until September 30, 2021.

Exchange tax	Yes.	Although it is not a regulation issued by the BCRA, Article 35 of Law No. 27541 on Social Solidarity and Productive Recovery as of December 23, 2019, established the Tax for an Inclusive and Caring Argentina (PAIS), regulated by Decree No. 99/19 and AFIP General Resolution for 659/20. Subsequently, effective September 15, 2020, AFIP General Resolution No. 4815/2020 established a collection regime that applied to transactions covered by the PAIS.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Under the provisions of Article 132 of Law No. 27444 (repealing Article 188 of Decree No. 27/18), which replaced Article 1 of Decree No. 260/2002 and Para. 1.1 of the TO de EyC, all foreign exchange operations must be carried out in the MLC. The exchange rate is determined by market forces. ADs freely set their bid-ask spreads and the commissions on foreign exchange transactions with their customers. Since September 9, 2019, Decree No. 609/2019, amended by Article 1 of Decree No. 91/2019 (Boletín Oficial (B.O.) December 28, 2019), establishes: Article 1 – The equivalent value of the exports of goods and services must be repatriated in foreign exchange and/or traded on the foreign exchange market under the conditions and terms established by the BCRA. Article replaced by Article 1 of Decree No. 91/2019 B.O. December 28, 2019. Effective as of the date of its publication in the Official Gazette (B.O.). Article 2 – The BCRA, in accordance with its Charter, will establish the circumstances in which access to the foreign exchange market for the purchase of foreign exchange and minted precious metals and transfers abroad will require prior approval, based on objectives guidelines established in accordance with prevailing conditions on the foreign exchange market and distinguishing between the situations of individuals and legal entities. Article 3 – The BCRA is authorized to establish regulations to prevent practices and operations that are intended to circumvent, through the use of public securities or other instruments, the provisions of this measure. The indicated provision was regulated by Com “A” 6770 and supplementary provisions, which are now found in the TO de EyC. existing debt with an extension of the average term, when it corresponds to the amount of the refinanced principal, the interest accrued to the date of refinancing and the new debt securities do not involve a principal maturity date before January 1, 2023, the amount equivalent to the interest that would accrue until December 31, 2022, for the debt subject to early refinancing and/or the extension of the refinanced principal and/or interest accrued on the amounts thus refinanced (Para. 3.6.1.5).

Operations prior to September 1, 2019, have access to the market for the payment, on maturity, of obligations in foreign exchange between residents taking the form of public instruments or entries in registries (Para. 3.6.2) and financing in foreign exchange granted by local public institutions outstanding as of August 30, 2019 (Para. 3.6.3).

In accordance with Para. 3.6.4, access to the foreign exchange market prior to maturity requires the prior approval of the BCRA, except if the transaction is included in any of the exceptions indicated.

As well, Para. 3.16 of the TO de EyC establishes additional requirements applicable to transactions involving flows of funds abroad via the foreign exchange market that customers must, if relevant, meet for purposes of access to the foreign exchange market without the prior approval of the BCRA:

- (a) submission of an affidavit linked to their holdings of external assets in Argentina and abroad (Para. 3.16.2, incorporating Para. 1 of Communication “A” 7030 of May 28, 2020, as amended and/or supplemented by Communications “A” 7042 of June 11, 2020, 7094 of August 27, 2020, and 7327 of July 10, 2021);
- (b) submission of an affidavit indicating that on the day on which the request for access to the market is submitted and during the previous 90 days they have not sold securities in Argentina with settlement in foreign exchange or transferred securities to depositary agencies abroad, and indicating their commitment not to conduct such operations in the following 90 days (Para. 3.16.3, which incorporates Para. 3 of Communication “A” 7001 of April 30, 2020, replaced by Para. 4 of Communication “A” 7030 of May 28, 2020, which extended the time period indicated from 30 days to 90 days, supplemented by Communication “A” 7042 of June 11, 2020). Effective July 12, 2021, Communication “A” 7237 included swaps of securities for other external assets in the affidavit to be submitted by customers and additional requirements in the event that the customer is a legal entity.
- (c) the customer is not an individual or legal entity included by the AFIP in the database of invoices or equivalent documents deemed to be fictional (Para. 3.16.4, which incorporates Para. 5 of Communication “A” 7193 of December 30, 2020);
- (d) individuals or legal entities that are considered regulated entities having complied with the “Registry of Foreign Exchange Information of Exporters and Importers of Goods” and that are not indicated as “NOT REGISTERED” (Para. 3.16.5, which incorporates Communication “A” 7200 of January 6, 2021, amended by Communication “A” 7273 of April 29, 2021).

There are no restrictions on imports of gold bars. Imports of gold by industrial users are subject to a statistical duty of 0.5% and sales tax.

Exports of coins and minted precious metals exceeding US$10,000 must be made through institutions subject to supervision by the Superintendency of Financial and Exchange Institutions.

Article 133 of Law No. 27.444 (repealing Article 189 of Decree No. 27/18), which replaced Article 7 of Decree No. 1570/01, eliminated the prior approval of the BCRA for the export of foreign currency banknotes and coins and minted precious metals, in accordance with the regulatory provisions issued by the BCRA.

Controls on exports and imports of banknotes Yes.

On exports Yes.

Domestic currency

Yes.

Para. 5.13 of the TO de EyC provides that institutions may conduct transactions that involve exporting domestic currency provided the counterparties are listed in Para. 5.13 (foreign branch or agency of an official local bank or a foreign financial institution that is wholly or majority owned by a foreign government; or a foreign financial institution or exchange agency not established in countries or territories that do not apply or insufficiently apply the Recommendations of the FATF; or a foreign company that is dedicated to the purchase and sale of banknotes from specific countries and/or minted precious metals or good delivery bars, whose head office is located in a member country of the Basel Banking Supervision Committee).

As well, it is established that the sale of foreign exchange remitted to the local institution by the counterparty for the purchase of domestic currency banknotes is exempt from the provisions of the first paragraph of Para. 2.8 (credit of the proceeds of the sale of the foreign exchange to a local account) as long as that there is a commitment from the counterparty that said funds will be used to meet tourism and travel demand and export will take place no more than 30 calendar days following the date of foreign exchange contract.

Foreign currency

Yes.

Exports of foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of US$10,000 must be made through institutions subject to the supervision of the Superintendency of Financial and Exchange Institutions. Exports of foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of US$10,000 must also be reported to the federal tax agency.

27/18), which replaced Article 7 of Decree No. 1570/01, eliminated the prior approval of the BCRA for the export of foreign currency banknotes and coins and minted precious metals, in accordance with the regulatory provisions issued by the BCRA.

Para. 5.12 of the TO de EyC regulates foreign swap and arbitrage operations, which institutions may enter into as long as the counterparty is one of those listed.

On imports Yes.

Domestic currency

Yes. The importing of domestic currency implies a foreign currency sale to a nonresident, which requires the prior approval of the BCRA under the provisions of Para. 3.13 to the TO de EyC.

Foreign currency

No. As well, Para. 5.12 of the TO de EyC requires fulfillment of the counterparty requirements listed. Imports of foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of US$10,000 must be reported to the AFIP.

As well, Para. 5.12 of the TO de EyC requires fulfillment of the counterparty requirements listed.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Held domestically

Yes. Banks are authorized to accept funds in: (1) US dollar and euro term deposits; (2) deposits in US dollar and euro savings accounts; and (3) deposits in US dollars and euro public and private securities and term investments.

Appropriate identification is required in all cases to prevent money laundering, the financing of terrorism, and other unlawful activities, among other reasons.

Approval required

Yes. Authorized banks may collect funds on a fixed-term basis and deposits in savings funds in other foreign currencies (other than US dollar and euro) subject to authorization from the BCRA.

Held abroad

Yes. There are no restrictions in the exchange regulations on residents opening and maintaining foreign exchange accounts abroad. The funds held abroad are freely available to the customer as long as the transactions are not subject to the requirement for sale on the foreign exchange market and are not funds provided as guarantees for commercial or financial transactions (with unconnected counterparties) in accordance with Para. 3.11 of the TO de EyC.

Under the provisions of Para. 3.16.2, access to the foreign exchange market for transactions involving flows of funds abroad requires the customer to submit an affidavit, indicating that they do not have liquid foreign assets abroad or outside the Argentine financial system, except in the situations specifically contemplated.

In the event that the resident decides to repatriate these funds, for amounts exceeding US$2 million a month, the transactions are covered by Decree No. 616/05, Article 3, with the requirement to credit the proceeds from the sale of the foreign exchange to a local account (Para. 2.8 of the TO de EyC).

Regarding the remaining provisions of Article 4 of the aforementioned decree, Resolution No. 3/15 of the former Ministry of the Treasury and Public Finance, which reduced the percentage of the deposit indicated in Para. (c) of said article to 0, and Resolution

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	There are no Argentine peso accounts held with institutions abroad.  However, they are not prohibited under the foreign exchange regulations.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Communication “A” 6770 and supplementary provisions added various regulations to the previously existing regulations.  Currently Para. 3.10 of the TO de EyC (which incorporates Para. 5 of Com “A” 6770) establishes prior approval of the BCRA for access to the foreign exchange market by legal entities, local governments, mutual funds, and certain trusts and other estates established in Argentina for the formation of external assets (purpose codes A01, A02, A03, A04, A06, A07, A08, A09, A14, A16, and A17) and for operations involving derivatives, with the exception of those indicated in Para. 3.12.1.  Para. 3.8 of the TO de EyC (which incorporates Para. 6 of Com “A” 6770, as amended by Para. 1 of Com “A” 6815) establishes that resident individuals may access the market for the purchase of foreign currency banknotes for the purposes indicated without the prior approval of the BCRA under certain conditions, including that they do not exceed the equivalent of US$200 a calendar month in all institutions and for all of the purposes indicated (Para. 3.8.1 of the TO) and that the transaction takes place by debiting the accounts of the customer with local financial institutions, with the use of domestic currency cash allowed for transactions up to the equivalent of US$100 a calendar month in all entities (Para. 3.8.2). In addition to the general requirements established for outflow operations, effective May 28, 2020, Com “A” 7030 and supplementary provisions established that for access to the foreign exchange market without the prior approval of the BCRA, the institution must have an affidavit from the customer. Subsequently, the requirements applicable to operations involving flows of funds abroad, for access to the foreign exchange market without the prior approval of the BCRA the customer must comply with the requirements set out in Para. 3.16 of the TO de EyC (which incorporates Communications “A” 7001, “A” 7030, “A” 7173, “A” 7200 and supplementary provisions), including the submission of an affidavit indicating they have not conducted certain operations in securities.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Banks can accept funds in: (1) US dollar and euro term deposits; (2) deposits in US dollar and euro savings accounts; and (3) deposits in US dollars and euro public and private securities and term investments.  Appropriate identification is required in all cases to prevent money laundering, the financing of terrorism, and other unlawful activities, among other reasons.
Approval required	Yes.	Authorized banks may accept funds at fixed terms and deposits in savings accounts in other foreign currencies (other than US dollars and euro) with the prior approval of the BCRA.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Authorized banks may accept funds from foreigners not yet established in Argentina in demand accounts (savings and current

In addition, they may open special investment accounts and special current accounts for legal entities, exclusively for the acquisition of public and private securities and BCRA monetary regulation instruments. Appropriate identification is required to prevent money laundering, the financing of terrorism, and other unlawful activities. Accounts opened with temporary documentation require final documentation by the established deadline for further operations. Bank current accounts require a special domicile in Argentina, which is taken into consideration for legal and regulatory purposes associated with the operation of the account, including check-related disputes.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Para. 3.13 of the TO de EyC (which incorporates Para. 7 of Com “A” 6770, as amended by Communications “A” 6815 and 6855) establishes that access to the foreign exchange market by nonresident customers is subject to the prior approval of the BCRA for purchases of foreign exchange, with the exception, inter alia, of international organizations, institutions acting as official export credit agencies, diplomatic and consular offices and diplomatic staff accredited to Argentina by means of transfers conducted in the exercise of their duties, and offices in Argentina of Tribunals, Authorities or Offices, Special Missions, Bilateral Agencies or Commissions established by International Treaties or Agreements to which the Argentine Republic is a party, as long as the transfers are conducted in the performance of their functions, transfers abroad on behalf of individuals that receive pensions from the National Social Security Administration (Administración Nacional de la Seguridad Social/ANSES).

Approval required	Yes.	Para. 3.13 of the TO de EyC establishes that access to the foreign exchange market by nonresident customers for the purchase of foreign exchange will require the prior approval of the BCRA, with the exceptions indicated in said paragraph.

Blocked accounts No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget No.

Financing requirements for imports Yes. For purposes of access to the foreign exchange market, commercial debts for the financing of imports of goods should be considered among the debts indicated in Para. 10.2.4 of the TO de EyC.

Minimum financing requirements Yes. Effective January 6, 2021, as per Paras. 10.3.2.5 and 10.3.2.6, which incorporate the rules set out in Communication “A” 7201 of January 6, 2021, establish that for goods with tariff positions indicated in Paras. 10.10.1 and 10.10.2 (luxury consumer goods or sumptuous goods) access to the foreign exchange market must take place as of 90 and 365 calendar days, respectively, of the date of registration of clearance through customs of said goods.

Advance payment requirements Yes. The various methods of payment for imports of goods are permitted. The time periods indicated are not applicable if the merchandise was loaded on or before January 6, 2021, or the exclusion conditions for the position are met.

Advance payments for imports of goods are allowed on condition that the importer submits an affidavit committing to demonstrate entry of the goods into the country within 270 days for advance payments on capital goods and 90 days for other goods.

In the event that the foreign supplier is a counterparty connected with the importer or longer time periods are needed for formalization of the clearance of the imports, the prior approval of the BCRA is required for access to the foreign exchange market (Para. 10.4.2.4).

These periods may be extended by the institutions for reasons of force majeure (Para. 10.5.5).

Importers that have made sight [and/or] advance payments and have not demonstrated the entry of the goods within the required period, nor have they requested an extension or repatriation of the foreign exchange via the MUC, may not make further advance payments until the pending operations have been regularized. The public sector and trusts established with national public sector contributions, as well as legal entities responsible for the supply of critical medicines that are brought in by Specific Request are exempt from this provision (Para. 10.4.2.6).

Effective October 16, 2020, the importer must have a declaration made via the Comprehensive Import Monitoring System (Sistema Integral de Monitoreo de Importaciones – SIMI) with status “EXITED” for the goods involved in all cases in which the declaration is required for registration of the “import for home use application” (Para. 10.4.2.8, which incorporates Communication “A” 7138).

Effective January 6, 2021, if the intended advance payment corresponds to goods whose tariff positions are included in Paras. 10.10.1 (luxury consumer goods) and 10.10.2 (sumptuous goods) and the conditions for exclusion provided for the position are not met, access to the foreign exchange market is subject to the prior approval of the BCRA (Para. 10.4.2.9, which incorporates Communication “A” 7201).

Until December 31, 2021, entities must additionally comply with the supplementary provisions set out in Para. 10.11 (Para. 10.4.2.10).

Para. 10.11 (which incorporates Para. 2 of Communication “A” 7030, supplemented and/or amended by Communications “A” 7042, “A” 7052, “A” 7068, “A” 7079, “A” 7094, “A” 7151, “A” 7193, “A” 7201, “A” 7239, “A” 7253, “A” 7272, “A” 7293, “A” 7301, “A” 7308, “A” 7313 and “B” 12083) establishes that until December 31, 2021, access to the foreign exchange market for payments for imports of goods or principal payments on debts originating from imports of goods are subject to the prior approval of the BCRA, except if the requirements set out in Paras. 10.11.1 and 10.11.9 are met.

Para. 10.11.1 allows access as long as, among other conditions, the institution has an affidavit from the customer indicating that the total amount of the payments associated with their imports of goods transacted via the foreign exchange market as of January 1, 2020, including the payment requested, does not exceed, by more than the equivalent of US$1 million, the amount resulting from considering imports in their name in the Import Payments Tracking System (SEPAIMPO) as of the date indicated, payments under the provisions of Paras. 10.11.2 to 10.11.8 not associated with imports already showing in SEPAIMPO, and the amount of the payments made via the foreign exchange market as from July 6, 2020, that correspond to imports of goods brought in by individual request or courier or operations that are not included in Paras. 10.9.1 through 10.9.3, which were loaded as from July 1, 2020, or were loaded prior to this but have not arrived in Argentina prior to this date and the payments associated with goods donated to the National Ministry of Health to improve the nation's medical or health capacity, as provided in Para. 10.6.5. As well, the amount of access is reduced by the amount pending settlement of the sum of the payments with outstanding customs registration carried out between September 2, 2019, and December 31, 2019.

Paras. 10.11.2 and 10.11.3 contemplate specific situations such as deferred payments or sight payments for imports of goods that were loaded as of July 1, 2020, or having been loaded prior to this date have not arrived in the country by this date, settlements of commercial debts for imports of goods with an export credit agency or foreign financial institution or that have a guarantee granted by such institutions, as long as the portion of such imports being paid has not been previously counted for purposes of payments under the threshold set in Para. 10.11.1.

Paras. 10.11.4 through 10.11.6 contemplate payments by the public sector, business organizations in which the federal government has a majority shareholding or a majority voice in corporate decisions, or trusts established with contributions from the national public sector, payments of imports of goods by a legal entity responsible for the provision of critical medicines to be brought in under a Specific Request by the beneficiary of said medical coverage, and payments of imports with registration of customs clearance pending intended for the purchase of COVID-19 detection kits or other goods whose tariff positions are included in the list in Decree No. 333/2020 and its supplementary provisions.

Para. 10.11.7 incorporates advance payment for imports intended for the purchase of capital goods, including situations that do not require prior approval.

Para. 10.11.8 allows principal payments on commercial debts for imports of goods, in accordance with Para. 10.2.4, when the customer has a "Certificate of Increase of Exports of Goods in 2021" issued in accordance with Para. 3.18 for the equivalent of the value of the amount to be paid.

Para. 10.11.9 allows the surplus of US$1 million established for the threshold in Para. 10.11.12 to be increased up to US$3 million as long as advance payments for the import of products related to the provision of medicines or other goods related to the medical and/or health treatment of the population or inputs necessary for the local development of the same are involved.

Before making payments for imports of goods under the terms of Paras. 10.11.1 and 10.11.9, the institution must, in addition to requesting an affidavit from the customer, establish that said affidavit is consistent with the data in the online system implemented for that purpose in the BCRA.

As well, Para. 10.12 (which incorporates Communication "A" 7123 as amended and/or supplemented by Communications "A" 7123, "A" 7239, and "A" 7253) provides that effective October 2, 2020, the amount for which importers may access the foreign exchange market under the conditions established in Para. 10.11 will be increased by the equivalent of 50% of the amounts that, as of October 2, 2020, the importer has repatriated and sold on the foreign exchange market for advance or prefinancing of exports from abroad with a minimum term of 180 days.

Effective March 18, 2021, in the case of transactions settled as from March 19, 2021, access to the foreign exchange market is also allowed for the remaining 50% to the extent that the additional portion corresponds to payments for imports of capital goods and/or goods deemed to be necessary inputs for the production of exportable goods, with the institution being required in the latter case to have an affidavit from the customer on the type of good involved and its status as an input in the production of goods for export.

Supplementary to the requirements applicable to transactions involving flows of funds abroad for access to the foreign exchange market without the prior approval of the BCRA, the customer must comply with the requirements set out in Para. 3.16 of the TO de EyC, including submission of an affidavit linked to their holdings of external assets and their not having conducted certain operations in securities.

Advance import deposits	No.	There are no foreign exchange regulations covering this topic.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Under Para. 1.2 of the TO de EyC, the institution must have all of the documentation needed to demonstrate the authenticity of the import operation and its appropriate classification under the declared purpose.

Sections 10 and 11 establish the specific provisions for operations for the import of goods.

Section 10 establishes the requirements for access to the foreign exchange market, including documentation for: (a) payment of the import formalizations included in SEPAIMPO (Para. 10.3.2); (b) payments for imports of goods brought in under a Specific Request or by Courier that are not shown in SEPAIMPO (Para. 10.3.3); (c) additional requirements for payments for imports of secret military supplies (Para. 10.3.4); (d) payments for imports of goods entering from free zones with customs transfer of ownership from the exporter to the importer (Para. 10.3.5); (e) payments for imports using LCs or guaranteed drafts issued or granted by local financial institutions (Para. 10.3.6); (f) advance payment for imports (Para. 10.4.2); (g) payments for commercial debts or debts payable on demand against the presentation of the shipping documents (Para. 10.4.4); (h) payment of commercial guarantees for imports of goods granted by local financial institutions (Para. 10.4.4); (i) domestic sales prior to customs registration (Para. 10.4.4); (j) goods donated to the Ministry of Health (Para. 10.6.5); and (k) other purchases of goods abroad as set out in Para. 10.9.

Effective October 16, 2020, in the case of credit cards or guaranteed drafts issued or granted as from October 16, 2020, the institution must have documentation demonstrating that at the time of opening or issuance by the institution, the customer had a declaration made through the SIMI with status “EXITED” for the goods concerned, in all cases in which said declaration is required for the registration of customs clearance of the goods (Para. 10.3.6, which incorporates Communication “A” 7138).

Effective May 28, 2020, requirements were added for access to the foreign exchange market for payments for imports of goods or principal payments on debts originating in the import of goods, that is, the prior approval of the BCRA unless any of the situations provided in Para. 10.11 of the TO de EyC (which incorporates Para. 2 of Com “A” 7030 and supplementary provisions) are involved.

Domiciliation requirements	No.	There are no foreign exchange regulations covering this topic.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	No.	Payments for imports by LCs or guaranteed drafts issued or granted by local financial institutions are also authorized under Para. 10.3.6 of the TO de EyC, and the institution may access the foreign exchange market as long as they demonstrate customs registration of the goods, regardless of whether the remaining requirements established in the regulation are met. LCs are not required for the release of foreign exchange for imports.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.	No prior import license is required for access to the foreign exchange market; only the customs documentation giving access for the transaction is required.
		Para. 10.3 of Section 10 of the TO de EyC indicates the transactions that are considered Import Payments for Goods with registration of customs entry, establishing the requirements for access to the foreign exchange market, which include, among the documents required, evidence of registration of the customs entry into Argentina of the goods for which the payment is to be made for: (a) payment of the import formalizations included in the SEPAIMPO (Para. 10.3.2); (b) payments for imports of goods under Specific Requests or by Courier not included in the SEPAIMPO (Para. 10.3.3); (c) additional requirements for payments for imports of secret military supplies (Para. 10.3.4); (d) payments for imports of goods entering from free zones with customs transfer of ownership from the exporter to the importer (Para. 10.3.5); and (e) payments for imports using LCs or guaranteed drafts issued or granted by local financial institutions (Para. 10.3.6).
Other	Yes.	Effective May 28, 2020, requirements were added for access to the foreign exchange market for payments for imports of goods or principal payments on debt originating in the import of goods, namely, the prior approval of the BCRA is required unless any of the situations provided in Para. 10.11 of the TO de EyC (which incorporates Para. 2 of Com “A” 7030 and supplementary provisions in Para 3.16 of the TO de EyC) are involved.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	By Resolution of the AFIP No. 3823/2015, the SIMI is intended to facilitate information-sharing and monitoring of the import process from its start through to customs clearance. Resolution No. 523/2017 of the Ministry of Commerce established a system of automatic and non-automatic import licenses. After December 31, 2017, Resolution AFIP No. 3823/2015 was superseded by Joint AFIP and Commerce Department Resolution No. 4185/2018, which redesigned the SIMI system in terms of specific operational factors for importers.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Restrictions are in effect for security, hygiene, environmental protection, and public health reasons. The list of prohibited imports is included in the regulations issued by the competent bodies in each case (Ministry of Health, AFIP, ANMAT, Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Fisheries, SENASA, Ministry of the Environment and Sustainable

ARGENTINA

Open general licenses	No.	Development). OGLs are not used.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Trade with Brazil in the automobile sector is subject to an administered trade regime. Under bilateral agreements, there are quotas with preferential tariffs for automobile sector products.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Argentina applies a special regime to sugar imports pending agreement on a common regime for this sector. Imports of used and retreaded tires, some used capital goods, and secondhand clothing are prohibited, except by nonprofit organizations.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	As a member of MERCOSUR, Argentina applies CET to imports from the rest of the world for almost all products (except automobiles and sugar). The CET rates range from 0% to 35%. The national list of CET exceptions under Decision No. 26/2015 of the Common Market Council allows Argentina to increase or decrease import duties from outside the zone on up to 100 tariff items, effective until December 31, 2021. By contrast, MERCOSUR Common Market Council Decision No. 27/2015 authorizes temporary increases in import duty outside the zone above the CET on 100 tariff items until December 31, 2021. Both texts were incorporated into the Consolidated National Legislation, and the current lists are provided in the annexes to Decree No. 847/2018. In addition, Decision No. 26/2015 authorizes member countries to maintain current national regimes for capital goods imports, and to apply a rate other than the common external tariff to information technology and telecommunication goods until December 31, 2021. The lists of capital goods are included in Decree No. 837/2018 and those of computer and telecommunications goods in Decree No. 973/2018.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.	There are no foreign exchange regulations covering this topic.
State import monopoly	No.	There are no foreign exchange regulations covering this topic.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Under Decree No. 609/2019, regulated by Com “A” 6770, the equivalent in foreign exchange of exports with shipping licenses formalized as from September 2, 2019, up to the invoiced value, depending on the agreed terms of sale, must be repatriated and sold on the foreign exchange market within the periods established in Para. 7.1.1 of the TO de EyC (incorporating Para. 1 of Com “A” 6770). In accordance with the provisions of Para. 7.1.1 of the TO de EyC, the time periods for compliance with the repatriation and sale requirements are 15, 30, 60, 120, 180, and 365 calendar days, depending on the type of good exported, whether operations between related companies are involved (in the case of operations between related companies it also depends on the type of merchandise exported), the volume of exports recorded by the exporter in the previous year, and the export regime. Regardless of these maximum periods, export proceeds must be repatriated and sold on the foreign exchange market within 5 business days of the date of receipt or collection abroad.  Exports formalized prior to September 2, 2019, that are pending payment as of that date must be repatriated and sold on the foreign exchange market within 5 business days of the date of receipt or payment abroad or in Argentina (Para. 7.1.2).

Extensions may be granted to the period for the repatriation and sale of the foreign exchange when the oversight entities note specific situations (cases that do not meet these requirements must have the prior approval of the BCRA):

(a) when there is a minimum period for the financing of the import in the destination country (Para. 7.5.1);

(b) exports entirely prefinanced locally or abroad through the term of the financing (Para. 7.5.2);

Effective February 25, 2021, Com “A” 7229 replaced Para. 7.5.2, incorporating local or foreign post-financing, establishing that if the exporter demonstrates sale on the foreign exchange market prior to the end of the term, post-financing of exports that cover the entire amount pending payment on the license, without verification of the conditions provided in Paras. 9.3.4 and 9.3.5 for the issuance of the corresponding application of funds certificate, the time period for the sale of the foreign exchange may be extended from shipment until the date of maturity of the longer-term loan discounted and/or assigned by the exporter.

(c) licenses for which the funds are held in accounts associated with the financial debts (Para. 7.5.3);

(d) operations with related counterparties eligible for an extension (defaults in collection management or delinquent debtors) (Para. 7.5.4).

Advance payments, prefinancing, and post-financing abroad must be repatriated and sold on the foreign exchange market with 5 business days of the date of receipt or disbursement abroad (Para. 7.1.2).

Prefinancing, post-financing, and financing for foreign importers granted by local financial institutions must be sold on the foreign exchange market at the time of disbursement (Para. 7.1.3).

Broadly speaking, the provisions regulating operations for exports of goods and their tracking are found in Sections 7, 8, and 9 of the TO de EyC.

Sale on the foreign exchange market of the foreign exchange from exports will not be required when the funds repatriated within the period provided for the operation are credited to foreign exchange accounts held by the customer with local financial institutions and are simultaneously applied to operations regarding which the foreign exchange regulations allow access to the foreign exchange market in exchange for domestic currency, bearing in mind the limits established for each purpose and the tax neutral use of this mechanism (Para. 2.6, TO de EyC).

Surrender requirements Yes.

Surrender to the central bank No.

Surrender to authorized dealers Yes.

Under Decree No. 609/2019, regulated by Com “A” 6770, the equivalent in foreign exchange of exports with shipping licenses formalized since September 2, 2019, up to the invoiced value, depending on the agreed terms of sale, must be repatriated and sold on the foreign exchange market within the periods established in Para. 7.1.1 (incorporating Para. 1 of Com “A” 6770).

Communications “A” 6770, “A” 6776, “A” 6780, and “A” 6882 established the time periods for compliance with the aforementioned obligation; they were incorporated in Para. 7.1.1 of the TO de EyC.

Other export taxes	Yes.	Decree No. 793/2018 established the application of an export duty to all Common Nomenclature of MERCOSUR (NCM) goods until December 12, 2020. The duty to apply is 12% up to a maximum of 4 pesos on each dollar of the taxable value including the amount resulting from the application of the tax rate stipulated therein, or the official f.o.b. price, as applicable. Likewise, if the goods are included in Annex 1 of the aforementioned Decree, the maximum limit to be applied is 3 pesos on each dollar of the taxable value. In the case of goods whose export has already been taxed, the new export duty must be added. In addition, Decree No. 1201/2018 applies an export duty to the provision of services covered by Article 10(2)(c) of Law No. 22.415 (Customs Code) until December 31, 2020. The duty to apply is 12% up to a maximum of 4 pesos on each dollar of the taxable value. Micro- and small-sized enterprises that export less than US$600,000 annually are exempt from the payment, as long as they are registered with the small- and medium-sized enterprises (SME) Registry of the Ministry of Productive Development. Law No. 27.541 on “Solidarity and the Reactivation of Production” eliminated the export duty ceilings of 4 pesos and 3 pesos per dollar exported, while a general tax rate of 12% remained in effect for all goods, with the exception of certain products such as soy-based products (33%), biodiesel (30%), peanuts, wheat flour and sunflower

(7%), and peas, beans, chickpeas, lentils, sunflower oil, and sunflower seeds for human consumption (5%).

As well, Law No. 27.541 on “Solidarity and the Reactivation of Production” establishes a universal export duty of 5% effective until December 31, 2021, on exports of services, repealing Article 2 of Decree No. 1.201 of December 28, 2018, which established the limit of 4 pesos per dollar, but maintaining the exemption for SMEs exporting less than US$600,000. AFIP Resolution No. 4.666/20 establishes that the amount of the duty is calculated on the amount resulting from the class “E” electronic invoice issued for the operation for the export of services.

Effective October 3, 2020, Decree Nos. 785/2020, 789/2020, and 790/2020 established discounts for mineral products, certain industrial goods and inputs produced, as well as agricultural (soybeans) and agroindustrial (soybean oil and biodiesel) goods. Effective December 22, 2020, Decree No. 1034/2020 reduced duties to 0% for exports of knowledge-based services (software, nanotechnology, biotechnology, audiovisual, aerospace, satellite industries, etc.).

Effective January 1, 2021, Decree No. 1060/2020 provides for the expansion of the set of industrial goods subject to lower duties by means of rates inversely proportional to the value added of the product. Given that implementation of Decree No. 793/2018 expired on December 31, 2020, the export duty arrangement was standardized via a rate based on the value-added of the product. As well, export duties were eliminated for certain regional products (aquaculture, beekeeping, horticulture, olive-growing, vegetables, potatoes, cassava, etc.).

Effective March 10, 2021, subsequently, Decree No. 150/2021 set the duty at 0% on incremental exports of automobiles, based on their FOB value, by each exporter until December 31, 2021, considering 2020 as the base period.

Finally, effective June 28, 2021, Decree No. 410/2021 reduced the duty on certain regional products, such as bees, eggs, aromatic plants, potato seeds, sunflowers, and rice, to 0%.

In the case of legal entities, the requirement is deemed to be met when the funds are included in the PGC (Para. 2.5 of the TO de EyC).
		Para. 2.6 allows exceptions to sale on the foreign exchange market under certain conditions.
		Para. 1.9 of the TO de EyC requires completion of the “Survey of External Assets and Liabilities,” even when no funds have been repatriated on the foreign exchange market and/or future access to this market is not planned.
		In the case of the operations covered by Article 3 of Decree No. 616/05, the proceeds from the sale of foreign exchange must be credited to a local account. For the remaining requirements set out in Article 4 of said decree, the provisions of Resolution No. 3/15 of the former Ministry of the Treasury and Public Finance, which reduced the percentage of the deposit indicated in paragraph (c) of this article to 0, and the provisions of Resolution No. 1/17 of the MOF, which reduced the term indicated in Articles 2 and 4(a) of Decree No. 616, as amended, to 0 days, are applicable (Para. 2.8 of the TO de EyC).
		Under Paras. 1.1 and 1.2 of the TO de EyC, local financial institutions intervene in cases in which sale of the foreign exchange on the foreign exchange market is required.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.
On capital market securities	Yes.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	There are no limitations on purchase by nonresidents of shares or other securities of a participating nature in the local market. For direct investment or portfolio investment by a nonresident, the foreign exchange regulations do not establish a requirement for the sale of the foreign exchange.

Under Para. 2.7 of the TO de EyC, entities may conduct swaps and arbitrage with customers in the case of the repatriation of foreign exchange from abroad and allow these operations to be credited to accounts opened by the customer in foreign exchange, as long as these are not operations covered by the requirement for sale on the foreign exchange market.

Under Para. 1.9 of the TO de EyC, the “Survey of External Assets and Liabilities” must be completed.

Portfolio investments are operations covered by Article 3 of Decree No. 616/05, under which the proceeds from the sale of the foreign exchange must be credited to a local account. For the remaining requirements set out in Article 4 of said decree, the provisions of Resolution No. 3/15 of the former Ministry of the Treasury and Public Finance, which reduced the percentage of the deposit indicated in paragraph (c) of this article to 0, and the provisions of Resolution No. 1/17 of the MOF, which reduced the term indicated in Articles 2 and 4(a) of Decree No. 616, as amended, to 0 days, are applicable (Para. 2.8 of the TO de EyC).

Para. 3.13 (which incorporates Para. 7 of Com “A” 6770, as amended by Communications “A” 6815 and “A” 6855) establishes that access to the foreign exchange market by nonresident customers for the purchase of foreign exchange requires the prior approval of the BCRA, with various exceptions including international organizations, official export credit agencies, and diplomatic and consular offices.

The Contado Con Liquidación (CCL) provides for a legal parallel market which allows for inflow and outflow cross-border capital transactions via securities transactions at a more depreciated exchange rate.

Yes.

Under the National Securities Commission (CNV) regulations, foreign and Argentine issuers must meet the same requirements for public offerings of securities in Argentina. Foreign issuers must establish a permanent representative office and a domicile in Argentina to receive notices. Foreign issuers must state whether the securities are also being offered to the public in their country of origin and indicate all initial and periodic reporting requirements applicable to them. If the CNV determines that the regulations in the country of origin properly protect local investors and ensure an adequate flow of information, it may relax the requirements for those issuers. The CNV may authorize foreign issuers on a case-by-case basis to submit only such information as they would periodically submit to the corresponding authority in their jurisdiction of origin. Issuers of securities offered publicly in Argentina and abroad must submit all information required by the entities authorizing the foreign public offering and listing to the CNV in Spanish.

The financial statements at the close of the fiscal year, in all cases, must be presented to include supplementary information to reconcile the effects on net equity and net earnings of accounting mechanisms other than those current in the Republic of Argentina, stating the exchange rate used to convert the items mentioned to Argentine pesos. Where the annual financial information is concerned, and for intermediate periods, publications may be issued without the indicated reconciliation. In such case, it should be clearly stated that the information was prepared in accordance with the current accounting standards in the country of origin, and that they are presented without being reconciled with Argentina's accounting standards.

Nonresidents are subject to the same conditions as residents with regard to the sale or issue of shares or other equity securities.

Para. 3.13 (which incorporates Para. 7 of Com "A" 6770, as amended by Communications "A" 6815 and 6855) establishes that access to the foreign exchange market by nonresident customers for the purchase of foreign exchange for the repatriation of portfolio investments requires the prior approval of the BCRA, with various exceptions including international organizations, official export credit agencies, and diplomatic and consular offices.

Para. 3.14.1 of the TO de EyC allows the transfer of foreign exchange abroad by individuals from their local foreign currency accounts to their own bank accounts abroad.

In addition to the requirements specifically established for transactions involving flows of funds abroad, for access to the foreign exchange market without the prior approval the BCRA the customer must have complied with the requirements set out in Para. 3.16 of the TO de EyC (incorporating Communications "A" 7001, "A" 7030, "A" 7173, "A" 7200 and supplementary provisions), which include submission of an affidavit regarding their holdings of foreign assets in Argentina and abroad (Para. 3.16.2) and indicating that they have not conducted certain operations in securities (Para. 3.16.3).

Yes.

Portfolio investments by residents abroad are subject to the provisions of Paras. 3.8 (individuals) and 3.10 (legal entities). This means that there is a limit of US$200 a month for individuals with all institutions, the remaining requirements established in the aforementioned paragraph must be met and amounts above this limit are subject to prior approval. Legal entities require prior approval.

Para. 3.14.1 authorizes the transfer of foreign exchange abroad by individuals from their local foreign currency accounts to their own bank accounts abroad.

Under Para 4.3.1 of the TO de EyC, transactions in securities contracted abroad may not be paid in pesos in Argentina; only operations contracted in Argentina may be paid in pesos in Argentina.

In addition to the requirements specifically established for transactions involving flows of funds abroad, for access to the foreign exchange market without the prior approval the BCRA the customer must have complied with the requirements set out in Para. 3.16 of the TO de EyC (incorporating Communications "A" 7001, "A" 7030, "A" 7173, "A" 7200 and supplementary provisions), which include submission of an affidavit indicating that they have not conducted certain operations in securities (Para. 3.16.3).

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes.

The foreign exchange regulations do not establish a repatriation requirement for direct and portfolio investment sales operations abroad by residents.

If the funds are repatriated, under Para. 2.7 of the TO de EyC, entities may conduct swaps and arbitrage with customers and allow credit of the proceeds of these operations to the foreign currency accounts of the customer, as long as these are not operations covered by the requirement for sale on the foreign exchange market.

Under Para 4.3.1 of the TO de EyC, transactions in securities contracted abroad may not be paid in pesos in Argentina; only operations contracted in Argentina may be paid in pesos in Argentina.

In the case of operations covered by Article 3 of Decree No. 616/05 (operations exceeding US$2 million by residents), the proceeds of the sale of the foreign exchange must be credited to a local account. For the remaining requirements set out in Article 4 of said decree, the provisions of Resolution No. 3/15 of the former Ministry of the Treasury and Public Finance, which reduced the percentage of the deposit indicated in paragraph (c) of this article to 0, and the provisions of Resolution No. 1/17 of the MOF, which reduced the term indicated in Articles 2 and 4(a) of Decree No. 616, as amended, to 0 days, are applicable (Para. 2.8 of the TO de EyC).

Bonds or other debt securities Yes.

The foreign exchange regulations do not establish a requirement for the sale of the foreign exchange for portfolio investments by nonresidents.

Under Para. 2.7 of the TO de EyC, entities may conduct swaps and arbitrage with customers in the case of the repatriation of foreign exchange and allow credit of the proceeds of these operations to the foreign currency accounts of the customer, as long as these are not operations covered by the requirement for sale on the foreign exchange market.

Para. 1.9 of the TO de EyC requires completion of the “Survey of External Assets and Liabilities.”

Portfolio investments are operations covered by Article 3 of Decree No. 616/05, that is, the proceeds of the sale of the foreign exchange must be credited to a local account. For the remaining requirements set out in Article 4 of said decree, the provisions of Resolution No. 3/15 of the former Ministry of the Treasury and Public Finance, which reduced the percentage of the deposit indicated in paragraph (c) of this article to 0, and the provisions of Resolution No. 1/17 of the MOF, which reduced the term indicated in Articles 2 and 4(a) of Decree No. 616, as amended, to 0 days, are applicable (Para. 2.8 of the TO de EyC).

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents Yes.

Para. 3.13 (which incorporates Para. 7 of Com “A” 6770, as amended by Communications “A” 6815 and “A” 6855) establishes that access to the foreign exchange market by nonresident for the purchase of foreign exchange requires the prior approval of the BCRA, with various exceptions including international organizations, official export credit agencies, and diplomatic and consular offices.

Under the CNV regulations, foreign and Argentine issuers must meet the same requirements for public offerings of securities in Argentina. Foreign issuers must establish a permanent representative office and a domicile in Argentina to receive notices. Foreign issuers must state whether the securities are also being offered to the public in their country of origin and indicate all initial and periodic reporting requirements applicable to them. If the CNV determines that the regulations in the country of origin properly protect local investors and ensure an adequate flow of information, it may relax the requirements for those issuers. The CNV may authorize foreign issuers on a case-by-case basis to submit only such information as they would periodically submit to the corresponding authority in their jurisdiction of origin. Issuers of securities offered publicly in Argentina and abroad must submit all information required by the entities authorizing the foreign public offering and listing to the CNV in Spanish.

The financial statements at the close of the fiscal year, in all cases, must be presented to include supplementary information to reconcile the effects on net equity and net earnings of accounting mechanisms other than those current in the Republic of Argentina, stating the exchange rate used to convert the items mentioned to Argentine pesos. Where the annual financial information is concerned, and for intermediate periods, publications may be issued without the indicated reconciliation. In such case, it should be clearly stated that the information was prepared in accordance with the current accounting standards in the country of origin, and that they are presented without being reconciled with Argentina's accounting standards.

Nonresidents are subject to the same conditions as residents with regard to the sale or issue of bonds or other debt securities.

Para. 3.13 (which incorporates Para. 7 of Com "A" 6770, as amended by Communications "A" 6815 and "A" 6855) establishes that access to the foreign exchange market by nonresident for the purchase of foreign exchange requires the prior approval of the BCRA, with various exceptions including international organizations, official export credit agencies, and diplomatic and consular offices, and transfers to individuals' bank accounts abroad of funds received in Argentina associated with the benefits granted by the National Government under Laws Nos. 24043, 24411, and 25914 and related provisions.

Para. 3.14.1 of the TO de EyC allows transfers of foreign exchange abroad by individuals from their local foreign currency accounts to their own bank accounts abroad and Para. 3.14.2 allows transfers abroad by local depositary agencies of foreign currency funds received for principal and interest payments on National Treasury securities, the operations of which forms part of the payment process at the request of depositary abroad.

Yes.

Portfolio investments by residents abroad are subject to the provisions of Paras. 3.8 (individuals) and 3.10 (legal entities). This means that there is a limit of US$200 a month for individuals with all institutions, the remaining requirements established in the aforementioned paragraph must be met, and amounts above this limit are subject to prior approval. Legal entities require prior approval.

Para. 3.14.1 authorizes the transfer of foreign exchange abroad by individuals from their local foreign currency accounts to their own bank accounts abroad.

In addition to the requirements specifically established for transactions involving flows of funds abroad, for access to the foreign exchange market without the prior approval the BCRA the customer must have complied with the requirements set out in Para. 3.16 of the TO de EyC (incorporating Communications "A" 7001, "A" 7030, "A" 7173, "A" 7200 and supplementary provisions), which include submission of an affidavit indicating that they have not conducted certain operations in securities (Para. 3.16.3).

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes.

Transactions in securities contracted abroad may not be paid in pesos in Argentina; only operations contracted in Argentina may be paid in pesos in Argentina (Para. 4.3.1).

Portfolio investment sales abroad by residents are not subject to a repatriation requirement. If the funds are repatriated, under Para. 2.7 of the TO de EyC, institutions may conduct swaps and arbitrage with customers and allow credit of the funds from these operations to the foreign currency accounts of the customer.

In the case of issues of debt securities, Com “A” 6770 establishes that foreign financial debts disbursed as from September 1, 2019, must be repatriated and the funds sold on the foreign exchange market as a requirement for later access to that market for purposes of principal and interest payments. Com “A” 6776 of September 5, 2019, provides that, in the case of institutions, this requirement is deemed to be met when the funds are included in the PGC. These provisions are found in Para. 2.4 of the TO de EyC.

Para. 1 of Com “A” 6838 establishes that issues of debt securities by residents that are registered in Argentina as from November 29, 2019, denominated and subscribed in foreign currencies and the capital and interest of which are payable in Argentina in foreign currency, must be sold on the foreign exchange market as a requirement for subsequent access to the market for principal and interest payments. In the case of legal entities, the requirement is deemed to be met when the funds are included in the PGC (Para. 2.5 of the TO de EyC).

Para. 2.6 allows exceptions to sale on the foreign exchange market under certain conditions.

Para. 3.5 of the TO de EyC establishes that entities may have access to the foreign exchange market for principal and interest payments on foreign financial debt as long as the following conditions are met: (a) the debtor demonstrates the repatriation and sale of foreign exchange on the foreign exchange market in an amount equivalent to the nominal value of the financial debt abroad. It is considered to be met:

- for funds disbursed as from September 1, 2019;
- foreign debts originating as from September 1, 2019, that do not generate disbursements as they consist of refinancing of foreign financial debts that would have had access under the applicable regulations, as long as the refinancing does not occur prior to the maturity of the original debt;
- for the amount of the applicable issuance expenses and other expenses debited abroad for the bank transactions involved;
- for the difference between the actual issue value and the nominal value of issues of debt securities publicly registered abroad that are placed below par;
- for the portion corresponding to a capitalization of interest provided in the debt contract;
- effective October 9, 2020, for the portion of issues of debt securities registered publicly abroad as from October 9, 2020, with an average term of not less than two years that were delivered to financial creditors abroad and/or debt securities publicly registered in Argentina denominated in foreign exchange with maturities between October 15, 2020, and December 31, 2021, which made it possible to reach the refinancing parameters provided in Para. 3.17 (incorporating Com “A” 7133 of October 9, 2020, and 7230 of February 25, 2021);

- effective January 6, 2021, for the portion of issues of debt securities publicly registered abroad as from January 7, 2021, that were delivered to creditors for the refinancing of pre-existing financial debts with an extension of the average term, when this corresponds to the amount of refinanced principal, interest accrued until the date of refinancing and, to the extent that the principal of the new debt securities does not fall due before January 1, 2023, the amount equivalent to the interest that would accrue until December 31, 2022, for the debt refinanced in advance and/or for the extension of the refinanced principal and/or for interest that would accrue on the amounts thus refinanced (incorporating Com “A” 7196 of January 6, 2021);

- effective February 4, 2021, for the portion subscribed in foreign currencies in Argentina of issues of debt securities publicly registered abroad as from February 5, 2021, as long as all of the conditions established are met (incorporating Com “A” 7218 of February 4, 2021).

(b) The operation is declared, if appropriate, on the most recent required “Survey of External Assets and Liabilities.”

(c) Access to the foreign exchange market by residents, including entities, for prepayments of principal and interest more than 3 business days prior to their due date will require the prior approval of the BCRA, unless all of the conditions provided in each case are met:

- prepayment is made simultaneously with the settlement of the funds from a new financial debt disbursed as from that date;

- prepayment of interest in the context of a debt instrument swap (incorporates Com “A” 7133 of October 9, 2020);

- prepayment in the context of a refinancing process as provided by Para. 3.17 (incorporating Com “A” 7133 of October 9, 2020, and “A” 7196 of January 6, 2021).

(d) Effective October 2, 2020, if the requirement for the prior approval of the BCRA is in effect for access to the foreign exchange market for payments at maturity of the principal of foreign financial debts of the nonfinancial private sector when the creditor is a counterparty connected with the debtor, this requirement will not be applicable as long as the funds have been repatriated and sold on the foreign exchange market as of October 2, 2020, and the debt has an average term of no less than two years (Para. 3.5.4, which incorporates Com “A” 7123 of October 1, 2020).

(e) Effective November 19, 2020, if the requirement for prior approval of the BCRA is in effect for access to the foreign exchange market for payments at maturity of the principal and interest of foreign financial debts, this requirement will not be applicable as long as the purpose of the funds has been the financing of projects included in the “Plan for the Promotion of the Production of Argentine Natural Gas – 2020–2024 Supply and Demand Scheme” established in Article 2 of Decree No. 892/20, the funds have been repatriated and sold on the foreign exchange market as from November 16, 2020, and the debt has an average life of no less than two years (Para. 3.5.5, which incorporates Com “A” 7168 of November 19, 2020).

(f) Effective January 6, 2021, principal and interest payments may be made on foreign financial debts as from their due date through the application of collections on exports of goods and services, as long as the requirements set out in Para. 7.9 (financial operations authorized for application of collections of exports of goods and services) are met (Para. 3.5.6, which incorporates Com “A” 7196 of January 6, 2021).

(g) Effective May 28, 2020, access to the foreign exchange market for principal payments on foreign financial debts when the creditor is a counterparty connected with the debtor. This requirement is not applicable to local financial institutions for their own transactions (Para. 3.5.7, which incorporates Com “A” 7030 and supplementary provisions).

Effective June 4, 2021, subsequently, Communication “A” 7301 of June 4, 2021, established that this requirement would also not be applicable when the customer has a “Certificate of Increase of Exports of Goods in 2021” issued under Para. 3.18 for the equivalent of the principal amount being paid.

(h) In the event that the debtor records scheduled principal due dates through to December 31, 2021, on financial debts included in Para. 3.5 of the TO de EyC, they must comply with the provisions of Para. 3.17.

The provisions of Para. 3.17 (which incorporates Com “A” 7106 of September 15, 2020, and supplementary provisions) established that nonfinancial private sector debtors and financial institutions that have maturities through to December 31, 2021, for the indicated operations must present a refinancing plan based on the criteria set out in Para. 3.17.3.

Institutions may provide access to the foreign exchange market for the payment of principal and/or interest to trusts established in Argentina by a resident to guarantee principal and interest payments on their liability, as long as it is verified that the debtor had had access for payments in their name through compliance with the applicable regulatory provisions (Para. 3.7 of the TO de EyC).

In addition to the requirements specifically established for transactions involving flows of funds abroad, for access to the foreign exchange market without the prior approval the BCRA the customer must have complied with the requirements set out in Para. 3.16 of the TO de EyC (incorporating Communications “A” 7001, “A” 7030, “A” 7173, “A” 7200 and supplementary provisions), which include submission of an affidavit regarding their holdings of foreign assets in Argentina and abroad (Para. 3.16.2) and indicating that they have not conducted certain operations in securities (Para. 3.16.3).

Transactions in securities contracted abroad may not be paid in pesos in Argentina; only operations contracted in Argentina may be paid in pesos in Argentina (Para. 4.3.1).

Para. 1.9 of the TO de EyC requires completion of the “Survey of External Assets and Liabilities,” even when no funds have been repatriated on the foreign exchange market and/or future access to this market is not planned.

In the case of the operations covered by Article 3 of Decree No. 616/05, the proceeds from the sale of foreign exchange must be credited to a local account. For the remaining requirements set out in BCRA, with various exceptions including international organizations, official export credit agencies, and diplomatic and consular offices.

Para. 3.14.1 of the TO de EyC allows the transfer of foreign exchange abroad by individuals from their local foreign currency accounts to their own bank accounts abroad.

In addition to the requirements specifically established for transactions involving flows of funds abroad, for access to the foreign exchange market without the prior approval the BCRA the customer must have complied with the requirements set out in Para. 3.16 of the TO de EyC (incorporating Communications “A” 7001, “A” 7030, “A” 7173, “A” 7200 and supplementary provisions), which include submission of an affidavit indicating that they have not conducted certain operations in securities (Para. 3.16.3).

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes.

Portfolio investments abroad by residents are subject to the provisions of Paras. 3.8 (individuals) and 3.10 (legal entities). This means that for individuals there is a limit of US$200 a month with all institutions, the remaining requirements established in the aforementioned paragraph must be met, and amounts above this limit are subject to prior approval. Legal entities require prior approval.

Para. 3.14.1 authorizes the transfer of foreign exchange abroad by individuals from their local foreign currency accounts to their own bank accounts abroad.

In addition to the requirements specifically established for transactions involving flows of funds abroad, for access to the foreign exchange market without the prior approval the BCRA the customer must have complied with the requirements set out in Para. 3.16 of the TO de EyC (which incorporates Communications “A” 7001, “A” 7030, “A” 7173, “A” 7200 and supplementary provisions), which include submission of an affidavit indicating that they have not conducted certain operations in securities (Para. 3.16.3).

Sale or issue abroad by residents

Yes.

Transactions in securities contracted abroad may not be paid in pesos in Argentina; only operations contracted in Argentina may be paid in pesos in Argentina (Para. 4.3.1).

The foreign exchange regulations do not establish a repatriation requirement for sales abroad of portfolio investments by residents. If the funds are repatriated, under Para. 2.7 of the TO de EyC entities may conduct swaps and arbitrage with customers and allow credit of the proceeds of these operations to the foreign currency accounts of the customer.

In the case of issues, Com “A” 6770 establishes that foreign financial debts disbursed as from September 1, 2019, must be repatriated and the funds sold on the foreign exchange market as a requirement for later access to that market for principal and interest payments. Com “A” 6776 of September 5, 2019, provides that, in the case of institutions, this requirement is deemed to be met when the funds are included in the PGC. These provisions are collected in Para. 2.4 of the TO de EyC.

Para. 2.6 allows exceptions to sale on the foreign exchange market under certain conditions.

Para. 3.5 of the TO de EyC establishes that entities may have access

In the case of the operations covered by Article 3 of Decree No. 616/05, the proceeds from the sale of foreign exchange must be credited to a local account. For the remaining requirements set out in Article 4 of said decree, the provisions of Resolution No. 3/15 of the former Ministry of the Treasury and Public Finance, which reduced the percentage of the deposit indicated in paragraph (c) of this article to 0, and the provisions of Resolution No. 1/17 of the MOF, which reduced the term indicated in Articles 2 and 4(a) of Decree No. 616, as amended, to 0 days, are applicable (now Para. 2.8 of the TO de EyC).

Para. 1.9 of the TO de EyC requires completion of the “Survey of External Assets and Liabilities,” even when no funds have been repatriated on the foreign exchange market and/or future access to this market is not planned.

Para.3.13 (which incorporates Para. 7 of Com “A” 6770, as amended by Communications “A” 6814 and “A” 6855) establishes that access to the foreign exchange market by nonresident customers for the purchase of foreign exchange requires the prior approval of the BCRA, with various exceptions including international organizations, official export credit agencies, and diplomatic and consular offices.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents      Yes.

Derivatives may be traded for hedging, speculation, or arbitrage purposes. In the case of speculation and arbitrage, exposure of the underlying assets is not necessary. CNV approval is required. Specifically, in the case of futures and options contracts (standardized derivatives), the requirements set out in Article 22, Section IX, Chapter V, Title VI of the consolidated text of the CNV Regulations (N.T. 2013, as amended) must be met for CNV approval and subsequent trading on the authorized markets. In the case of derivatives between national and/or foreign counterparties not traded in markets authorized by the CNV, Article 189 of Law No. 27.440 established that the CNV will require registration, indicating that the contracts in question will be enforceable against third parties and will have a specific date as from the date of their registration. Article 10 bis of Section V, Chapter V, Title VI of the CNV Regulations (N.T. 2013 as amended) establish that Entities for the Registration of Derivative Operations or, in their absence, Markets and/or Clearinghouses must register bilateral derivative contracts entered into outside the authorized markets. It provides that the parties required to register are entities under the jurisdiction of the Commission and agents registered with the Commission. Registration is voluntary for third parties, that is, for any individual or legal entity not under the jurisdiction of the Commission, which may register the contract, final settlement, and cancellation of bilateral derivative contracts outside the markets authorized by the CNV.

Under Para. 1.4 of Com “A” 6780, contained in Para. 3.12.3 1 of the TO de EyC, all settlements of futures, forwards, options, and any other type of derivative contracted in Argentina by entities as from September 11, 2019, must be made in domestic currency.

Para.3.13 (which incorporates Para. 7 of Com “A” 6770, as amended by Communications “A” 6814 and “A” 6855) establishes that access to the foreign exchange market by nonresident customers for the purchase of foreign exchange, for any purpose including repatriation, requires the prior approval of the BCRA, with various exceptions including international organizations, official export credit agencies,

(b) The operation is declared, if appropriate, on the most recent required “Survey of External Assets and Liabilities.”

(c) Access to the foreign exchange market by residents, including entities, for prepayments of principal and interest more than 3 business days prior to their due date will require the prior approval of the BCRA, unless all of the conditions provided in each case are met:

- prepayment is made simultaneously with the settlement of the funds from a new financial debt disbursed as from that date;
- prepayment of interest in the context of a debt instrument swap (incorporates Com “A” 7133 of October 9, 2020);
- prepayment in the context of a refinancing process as provided by Para. 3.17 (incorporating Com “A” 7133 of October 9, 2020, and “A” 7196 of January 6, 2021).

(d) Effective October 2, 2020, if the requirement for the prior approval of the BCRA is in effect for access to the foreign exchange market for payments at maturity of the principal of foreign financial debts of the nonfinancial private sector when the creditor is a counterparty connected with the debtor, this requirement will not be applicable as long as the funds have been repatriated and sold on the foreign exchange market as of October 2, 2020, and the debt has an average term of no less than two years (Para. 3.5.4, which incorporates Com “A” 7123 of October 1, 2020).

(e) Effective November 19, 2020, if the requirement for prior approval of the BCRA is in effect for access to the foreign exchange market for payments at maturity of the principal and interest of foreign financial debts, this requirement will not be applicable as long as the purpose of the funds has been the financing of projects included in the “Plan for the Promotion of the Production of Argentine Natural Gas – 2020–2024 Supply and Demand Scheme” established in Article 2 of Decree No. 892/20, the funds have been repatriated and sold on the foreign exchange market as from November 16, 2020, and the debt has an average life of no less than two years (Para. 3.5.5, which incorporates Com “A” 7168 of November 19, 2020).

(f) Effective January 6, 2021, principal and interest payments may be made on foreign financial debts as from their due date through the application of collections on exports of goods and services, as long as the requirements set out in Para. 7.9 (financial operations authorized for application of collections of exports of goods and services) are met (Para. 3.5.6, which incorporates Com “A” 7196 of January 6, 2021).

(g) Effective May 28, 2020, access to the foreign exchange market for principal payments on foreign financial debts when the creditor is a counterparty connected with the debtor. This requirement is not applicable to local financial institutions for their own transactions (Para. 3.5.7, which incorporates Com “A” 7030 and supplementary provisions).

Effective June 4, 2021, subsequently, Communication “A” 7301 of June 4, 2021, established that this requirement would also not be applicable when the customer has a “Certificate of Increase of Exports of Goods in 2021” issued under Para. 3.18 for the equivalent of the principal amount being paid.

(h) In the event that the debtor records scheduled principal due dates through to December 31, 2021, on financial debts included in Para. 3.5 of the TO de EyC, they must comply with the provisions of Para. 3.17.

The provisions of Para. 3.17 (which incorporates Com “A” 7106 of September 15, 2020, and supplementary provisions) established that nonfinancial private sector debtors and financial institutions that have maturities through to December 31, 2021, for the indicated operations must present a refinancing plan based on the criteria set out in Para. 3.17.3.

Institutions may provide access to the foreign exchange market for the payment of principal and/or interest to trusts established in Argentina by a resident to guarantee principal and interest payments on their liability, as long as it is verified that the debtor had had access for payments in their name through compliance with the applicable regulatory provisions (Para. 3.7 of the TO de EyC).

In addition to the requirements specifically established for transactions involving flows of funds abroad, for access to the foreign exchange market without the prior approval the BCRA the customer must have complied with the requirements set out in Para.

By residents to nonresidents

Yes.

Entities may give access to the foreign exchange market for principal and/or interest payments to trusts established in Argentina by a resident to ensure the capital and interest payments on its liability, as long as it verifies that the debtor had access for payments in its name to comply with the applicable regulatory provisions (Para. 3.7 of the TO de EyC).

Under Para. 3.11.1 of the aforementioned TO, entities may give access to the foreign exchange market to residents with foreign debts or trusts established in Argentina to ensure capital and interest payments on such debt, for the purchase of foreign exchange to establish guarantees for the amounts owed under debt contracts when: (a) it involves commercial debts for the import of goods and/or services to a foreign financial entity or official export credit agency or foreign financial debts to unrelated creditors that under the regulations have access to the foreign exchange market for their repayment, the contracts of which provide for the credit of the funds to guarantee accounts for future debt service on foreign debts; (b) the funds purchased will be deposited in accounts opened with local financial institutions under the conditions established in the contracts. The establishment of guarantees in accounts opened with foreign financial institutions will only be allowed when it is the only and exclusive option provided in the debt contracts entered into prior to August 31, 2019; (c) cumulative guarantees in foreign currencies that will be used for service payments do not exceed the amount to be paid on the next service payment due; (d) the daily excess amount does not exceed 20% of the amount indicated in (c); (e) the intervening entity has verified the foreign debt documentation of the debtor and has the information needed to ensure that access is taking place under the conditions established in these provisions. The foreign currency funds not used for the settlement of contracted debt service payments must be sold on the foreign exchange market within 5 business days following the due date (Para. 3.11.4 of the TO de EyC).

Effective January 6, 2021, Communication “A” 7196 incorporated the following conditions: institutions may provide access to the foreign exchange markets to residents with debts originating as from January 7, 2021, that are covered by Para. 7.9 or to trusts established in Argentina to guarantee the payment of principal and interest on such debt for the purchase of foreign exchange for the establishment of guarantees in foreign currency accounts opened with local financial institutions or foreign financial institutions (in the case of a foreign debt) for the amounts owing on the debt agreements under the following conditions: the purchases take place simultaneously with the settlement of the foreign exchange and/or funds deposited in the name of the exporter in a correspondent account abroad of a local institution are used; and the guarantees established in foreign currencies do not exceed the equivalent of 125% of the principal and interest to be paid in the current month and the following six calendar months, in accordance with the schedule of service due dates agreed with the creditors (Para. 3.11.3 of the TO de EyC).

In addition to the requirements specifically established for transactions involving flows of funds abroad, for access to the foreign exchange market without the prior approval the BCRA the customer must have complied with the requirements set out in Para. 3.16 of the TO de EyC (incorporating Communications “A” 7001, “A” 7030, “A” 7173, “A” 7200 and supplementary provisions), which include effective May 28, 2020, submission of an affidavit regarding their holdings of foreign assets in Argentina and abroad (Para. 3.16.2) and indicating that they have not conducted certain operations in securities (Para. 3.16.3).

To residents from nonresidents

No.

If appropriate, the provisions of Para. 2.8 of the TO de EyC applicable to certain foreign debts and repatriations by nonresidents must be met.

In the case of the operations covered by Article 3 of Decree No. 616/05, the proceeds from the sale of foreign exchange must be credited to a local account. For the remaining requirements set out in Article 4 of said decree, the provisions of Resolution No. 3/15 of the former Ministry of the Treasury and Public Finance, which reduced the percentage of the deposit indicated in paragraph (c) of this article to 0, and the provisions of Resolution No. 1/17 of the MOF, which reduced the term indicated in Articles 2 and 4(a) of Decree No. 616, as amended, to 0 days, are applicable (currently Para. 2.8 of the TO de EyC).

Controls on direct investment

Yes.

Direct investments are exempt from the provisions of Articles 2 through 4 of Decree No. 616/05 and supplementary provisions (the amendments in Resolution No. 3/15 of the former Ministry of the Treasury and Public Finance and Resolution No. 1/17 of the former MOF are currently applicable) and are not subject to the repatriation requirement.

Para. 1.9 of the TO de EyC requires completion of the “Survey of External Assets and Liabilities,” even when no funds have been repatriated on the foreign exchange market and/or future access to this market is not planned.

Outward direct investment

Yes.

These operations are governed by the regulations on the formation of assets, specifically the provisions in Paras. 3.8 (individuals) and 3.10 (legal entities). This means that individuals are subject to a limit of US$200 a month from all entities, are subject to the remaining requirements established in the aforementioned paragraph, and amounts above this limit are subject to prior approval. Legal entities require prior approval.

Para. 3.14.1 authorizes the transfer of foreign exchange abroad by individuals from their local foreign currency accounts to their own bank accounts abroad.

In addition to the requirements specifically established for transactions involving flows of funds abroad, for access to the foreign exchange market without the prior approval the BCRA the customer must have complied with the requirements set out in Para. 3.16 of the TO de EyC (incorporating Communications “A” 7001, “A” 7030, “A” 7173, “A” 7200 and supplementary provisions), which include effective May 28, 2020, submission of an affidavit indicating that they have not conducted certain operations in securities (Para. 3.16.3).

Inward direct investment

Yes.

The foreign exchange regulations do not establish a requirement for sale on the foreign exchange market for direct investments by nonresidents.

Under Para. 2.7 of the TO de EyC, entities may conduct swaps and arbitrage with customers in the case of the repatriation of foreign exchange from abroad and allow the credit of these operations to accounts opened by the customer in foreign exchange.

Para. 1.9 of the TO de EyC requires completion of the “Survey of External Assets and Liabilities.”

Yes.

The liquidation of direct investments of nonresidents: Para. 3.13.1 of the TO de EyC establishes that access to the foreign exchange market by nonresident customers for the purchase of foreign exchange will require the prior approval of the BCRA, with certain exceptions effective October 2, 2020, such as repatriations of direct investments of nonresidents in businesses that do not control local financial institutions, as long as the capital contribution has been repatriated and sold on the foreign exchange market as of October 2, 2020, and the repatriation takes place at least 2 (two) years following entry (Para. 3.13.1.7).

Effective November 19, 2020, the repatriation of direct investments of nonresidents is allowed up to the amount of the investment contributions repatriated and sold on the foreign exchange market as of November 16, 2020, as long as the purpose of the funds was the financing of projects included in the “Plan for the Promotion of the Production of Argentine Natural Gas – 2020–2024 Supply and Demand Scheme” established in Article 2 of Decree No. 892/20; access must not take place until two years following the date of settlement on the foreign exchange market of the operation that meets the condition in this paragraph, among other conditions (Para. 3.13.2, which incorporates Com “A” 7168 of November 19, 2020).

Effective October 2, 2020, the repatriation of direct investment contributions through the application of foreign exchange from collections on exports of goods and services will also be allowed as long as the requirements set out in Para. 7.9 (Para. 3.13.3, which incorporates Com “A” 7123 of October 1, 2020) are met.

In addition to the requirements specifically established for transactions involving flows of funds abroad, for access to the foreign exchange market without the prior approval the BCRA the customer must have complied with the requirements set out in Para. 3.16 of the TO de EyC (incorporating Communications “A” 7001, “A” 7030, “A” 7173, “A” 7200 and supplementary provisions),

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	The TO de EyC does not regulate borrowing abroad. For the specific regulations applicable to institutions, consult the Gerencia de Aplicaciones Normativas (Regulatory Implementation Management Office) or the Gerencia Principal de Emisión y Aplicaciones Normativas (Regulatory Issuance and Implementation Senior Management Office).  On foreign exchange aspects, Com “A” 6770 establishes that foreign financial debts disbursed as from September 1, 2019, must be repatriated and the funds sold on the foreign exchange market as a requirement for later access to that market for principal and interest payments. Com “A” 6776 of September 5, 2019, provides that, in the case of institutions, this requirement is deemed to be met when the funds are included in the PGC. These provisions are collected in Para. 2.4 of the TO de EyC.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Only financial intermediaries are permitted to grant credit assistance to residents in the country to finance investment, production, marketing, or consumption of goods and services for domestic consumption or export, or outward FDI by enterprises resident in the country. Financial assistance will only be granted to residents abroad if this general criterion is met and in certain specific cases (credit facilities to foreign banks, whether or not they are correspondents, for the purpose of facilitating local exports, credits to residents abroad corresponding to lags in the payment of operations involving quoted foreign currencies or securities, inter alia).
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Lending capacity based on foreign exchange deposits and other liabilities through financial intermediation in foreign exchange (with the exception of inward commercial credit facilities) may be applied to the following: (1) prefinancing and financing of exports directly or through principals, trustees, or other brokers; (2) other financing for exporters expecting future foreign currency income streams and demonstrating, in the year prior to when the financing is granted, invoices reasonably comparable to the amount of financing; (3) financing of investment projects, working capital, or goods that increase the value of or are related to the production of goods to be exported; (4) financing for the producers of goods to be exported, whether as is or as part of other goods, by third-party purchasers, provided they have total assurances or guarantees in foreign currency from those third parties and/or firm sales contracts in foreign currency and/or in exportable goods; (5) financing for providers of goods and/or services that are part of the production process for fungible goods regularly and customarily quoted in foreign currency in domestic or foreign markets and widely disseminated and easily known to the public, provided they have firm sales contracts for those goods and/or services in foreign currency and/or in those goods; (6) commercial financing for commercial portfolio customers that is treated as consumer or housing loans – in accordance with the provisions established in the regulations on “Borrower Classification” – for the purpose of importing capital goods (“BK” in accordance with the MERCOSUR Common Nomenclatures as indicated in Annex I to Decree No. 690/02 and other supplementary provisions) that increase the production of goods intended for the domestic market; (7) loans made from one financial institution to another; (8) foreign currency debt securities or financial trust investment certificates publicly quoted with CNV authorization whose underlying assets are securities acquired by the trust and guaranteed by reciprocal guarantee companies, to finance export transactions; (9) financing of producers, processors, or storage operators, provided they have contracts for the outright sale of the goods to an exporter at a price set or to be set in foreign currency that is customary in local or foreign markets and is widely published and easily accessible to the public; (10) other financing included in the credit program referred to in Inter-American Development Bank (IADB) Loan No. 1192/OC-AR, not to exceed 10% of borrowing capacity; (11) letters and notes of the BCRA denominated in US dollars; (12) direct investments abroad by companies resident in Argentina, the purpose of which is to develop productive activities in goods and/or nonfinancial services, whether through contributions or through purchases of shares in companies, provided they are established in countries or territories considered cooperative for purposes of fiscal transparency based on the provisions of Article 1 of Decree No. 589/13 and supplementary provisions; (13) financing of investment projects, including working capital, that allow increased production in the energy sector and have firm sales contracts and/or total assurances or guarantees in foreign currency; (14) primary subscription of foreign currency debt instruments of the National Treasury, up to an amount equal to one-third of the applications made; (15) financing of investment projects focusing on cattle ranching, including working capital, not to exceed 5% of the institution’s deposits in foreign exchange; (16) financing of foreign importers for the acquisition of goods and/or services produced in the country, directly or through credit facilities to external banks; and (17) financing to residents in the country guaranteed with standby LCs issued by foreign banks or multilateral development banks having investment grade international risk ratings, provided these credit portfolios are unrestricted and that the funds are credited immediately on the simple request of the beneficiary. subordinate debt in foreign currency and instruments representing foreign currency debt. Also included are forward operations entered into under framework agreements within authorized markets in Argentina in which settlement is by netting, without physical delivery of the underlying asset. The position in currencies other than US dollars is expressed in the currency in question by applying the exchange rate published by the BCRA. Assets deductible for purposes of determining regulatory capital (responsabilidad patrimonial computable – RPC) and items recorded by financial institutions in their branches abroad are not included.

The positive net global foreign exchange position may not exceed 5% of regulatory capital but may reach up to 30% of regulatory capital if, under certain conditions, National Treasury Notes denominated in US dollars (Paras. 6 and 7 of Communication “A” 6526 and Communications “A” 6699, 6735, and 7093) are included. Any variation resulting from swaps by the National Executive Branch may only be covered by one of the applications provided in Section 2 of the Regulations on Credit Policy or by foreign currency forward transactions payable in pesos. The positive net global foreign exchange position must be measured on a daily basis instead of as the monthly average of daily balances.

There is also a limit on the positive spot position, which, measured daily, may not exceed the amount of US$2,500,000 or 4% of regulatory capital, whichever is higher.

The negative net global foreign exchange position, expressed as a monthly average of the daily balances, should not exceed 30% of the financial institution’s regulatory capital for the previous month.

Overruns are subject to a charge equivalent to 1.5 times the average rate resulting from auctions of BCRA instruments in Argentine pesos for shorter terms.

Financial institutions may freely determine the level and use of their PGC, under Para. 5.9.1 of the TO de EyC while foreign exchange bureaus and agencies may not increase their foreign currency holdings from the higher of their average holdings in August 2019 or the stock as of the close of the day before September 2, 2019 (Para. 5.9.2 of the TO de EyC).

The PGC includes all of the institution’s liquid external assets, net of debit balances of correspondents deriving from foreign exchange market transactions. It also includes buying and selling arranged on the foreign exchange market and pending settlement. The following, inter alia, are considered institutions’ liquid external assets: banknotes and coins in foreign exchange, good delivery holdings in monetary gold or gold bars, correspondents’ credit balances (including transfers to third parties without arranged settlement), other demand deposits with foreign financial institutions, investments in external public securities, and time CDs. PGCs do not include FDI, third-party external assets under custodianship, forward buying and selling of foreign exchange or foreign assets, deposits with the BCRA in foreign exchange in accounts in the name of the institution, and other local assets in foreign exchange, under Para. 6.7 of the TO de EyC.

Investment firms and collective investment funds

Yes.

The following limitations apply to stock exchange transactions by local market intermediaries involving foreign exchange operations: Sale of negotiable securities with settlement in foreign exchange. Transfers of securities to depositories abroad. Minimum holding period.

Article 2. – To conduct operations for the sale of negotiable securities with settlement in foreign exchange in foreign jurisdictions, said negotiable securities must be held in the portfolio for a minimum period of effective July 12, 2021, two (previously five) business days from the time of their credit to the depository agent.

This minimum holding period will not be applicable in the case of purchases of negotiable securities with settlement in foreign exchange in a foreign jurisdiction.

In the case of sales of negotiable securities with settlement in foreign exchange in the local jurisdiction, the minimum holding period in the portfolio will be one business day calculated in the same way.

This minimum holding period will not be applicable in the case of purchases of negotiable securities with settlement in foreign exchange.

To conduct transfers of negotiable securities purchased with settlement in domestic currency to depository agencies abroad, said negotiable securities must be held in the portfolio for a minimum period of two business days from the time of their credit to the depository agent, except in cases in which the credit to said depository agent is the result of the primary placement of negotiable securities issued by the National Treasury or the transfers involve shares and/or Argentine CDs (CEDEAR) traded on markets regulated by the National Securities Commission.

Settlement and Clearing Agents and Trading Agents must demonstrate compliance with the aforementioned minimum holding period for negotiable securities.

Transfers of securities from depositories abroad. Minimum period.

Article 3. – Effective July 12, 2021, negotiable securities credited to the Central Depository Agent for Negotiable Securities (ADCVN) by depository agencies abroad may not be applied to the settlement of transactions in foreign exchange in foreign jurisdictions until two business days have passed following credit to a subaccount or subaccounts with the aforementioned local custodian.

In the event that said negotiable securities are applied to the settlement of operations in foreign currencies in the local jurisdiction, the minimum holding period will be one (previously five) business day calculated in the same manner.

Contracting and settlement of transactions in domestic currency.

Article 4. – The contracting and settlement of transactions in domestic currency with negotiable securities accepted for listing and/or trading in the Argentine Republic by subaccounts in the own portfolio of the registered agents and other parties subject to the oversight of the CNV, may only take place on authorized markets and/or clearinghouses registered with the CNV.

Registered agents. Own portfolio.

Article 5 – In competing offers using price/time priority in transactions for the purchase and sale of fixed-income negotiable securities denominated and payable in US dollars issued by the Argentine Republic under local laws by the subaccounts covered by the provisions of Article 6 of Chapter V of Title VI, which also constitute qualified investors in accordance with the provisions of Article 12 of Chapter VI of Title II, the following must be observed:

- (a) for all of these negotiable securities, the amount of nominal securities purchased with settlement in pesos may not exceed the amount of nominal securities sold with settlement in said currency on the same day and for each client subaccount;
- (b) for all of these negotiable securities, the amount of nominal securities sold with settlement in foreign exchange in the local jurisdiction may not exceed the amount of nominal securities purchased with settlement in said currency and jurisdiction on the same day and for each client subaccount; and
- (c) for all of the securities, the amount of nominal securities sold with settlement in foreign exchange in foreign jurisdictions may not exceed the amount of nominal securities purchased with settlement in those currencies and jurisdictions on the same day for each client subaccount.

Transactions with settlement in foreign exchange in foreign jurisdictions

Article 6 – In competing offers using price/time priority in transactions for the purchase and sale of fixed-income negotiable securities denominated and payable in US dollars issued by the Argentine Republic under local laws by client subaccounts not covered by the provisions of Article 5 of this Chapter, and for all of these negotiable securities, the amount of negotiable securities sold with settlement in foreign exchange in foreign jurisdictions may not exceed the following amounts at the close of each calendar week:

- (1) fifty thousand (50,000) nominal for the amount of negotiable securities issued under local laws, purchased with settlement in said currency and jurisdiction; and
- (2) fifty thousand (50,000) nominal for the amount of negotiable securities issued under foreign laws purchased with settlement in said currency and jurisdictions.

These limits are applicable to every client subaccount and for all client subaccounts held or co-held by a single party.

Settlement and Clearing Agents and Trading Agents must demonstrate compliance with the client subaccount limit.

The CNV will verify compliance with said limit for all client subaccounts held or co-held by a single party.

Interpretational criterion CNV No. 75: In light of the provisions of Chapter V of Title XVIII of the CNV Regulations (N.T. 2013, as amended) and considering that the limit in Article 5 is applicable to fixed-income negotiable securities denominated and payable in US dollars issued by the Argentine Republic under local laws, the client subaccounts covered by the provisions of this article must comply with the limits established by Article 6(ii) of said Chapter.

Title XI. Payment methods and control procedures for the receipt and delivery of funds from and to customers.

Article 3. – Settlement and Clearing Agents and individuals and/or legal entities registered with the Commission that act in the placement of mutual funds and other collective investment products authorized by the Commission will abide by the following for the receipt of funds from and delivery of funds to customers:

(a) Cash

(i) Received from customers. Only the value in pesos or its equivalent in foreign exchange established in Article 1 of Law No. 25.345 may be received per customer and per day in cash.

(ii) Paid to customers. Only the value in pesos or its equivalent in foreign exchange established in Article 1 of Law No. 25.345 may be paid per customer and per day in cash.

When the funds received or paid, per customer and per day, for these items exceed the amount established in the above-mentioned law, delivery by the customer or payment to the customer must be take one of the forms indicated below:

(b) Checks

(i) Received from customers. Must be paid from current accounts opened with financial institutions in Argentina authorized by the BCRA, held or jointly held by the customer. As well, as long as irrefutable documentation is provided by the customer, the checks may be paid in favor of the customer, with full endorsement.

(ii). Payments to customers. Checks used to pay customers must be crossed checks paid to the order of the customer for deposit in the account or include the words “not to order.” For (a) and (b) together, the regulated parties indicated may make no more than two payments of funds per customer per day.

(c) Transfers in Argentina

(i) Received from customers. These must be made from sight bank accounts held or jointly held by the customer, opened with institutions in Argentina authorized by the BCRA or using the Uniform Virtual Key (CVU) of the Unique Tax Identification Code of the customer as long as it allows identification and traceability of the transfers of funds from sight accounts opened with institutions in Argentina authorized by the BCRA belonging to a PSP.

(ii) Payments to customers. These must be made to sight bank accounts held or jointly held by the customer, opened with institutions in Argentina authorized by the BCRA or to the CVU of the Unique Tax Identification Code of the customer as long as it allows identification and traceability of the transfers of funds to sight accounts opened with institutions in Argentina authorized by the BCRA belonging to a PSP.

As well, Settlement and Clearing Agents and individuals or legal entities registered with the Commission that act in the placement of Mutual Funds or other collective investment products authorized by the Commission, may make transfers, on the account and by order of their customers, to sight bank accounts held by one of the aforementioned regulated parties for credit to the subaccount that the same issuer has opened with the regulated party receiving the funds. Similarly, the receiver of the funds may credit the transfer to the customer’s account when it comes from sight bank account held by another of the regulated parties mentioned in this article and is transferred on account and by order of the same customer.

Without prejudice to the above, foreign investors subject to special due diligence, in accordance with provisions established by the FIU in the special regulations on this topic, may:

(d) Receive and send bank transfers to and from institutions regulated by the BCRA that act as local custodian for said investors. For this purpose, said foreign investors must issue a special or permanent instruction to the Settlement and Clearing Agents with the data on the account opened with the local custodian.

(e) Receive and send bank transfers to and from institutions regulated by the BCRA that act as local custodian of a foreign institution that participates as a “Foreign Bank/Financial Institution” for such investors, as defined in the specific FIU regulation on this topic. For this purpose, said foreign investors must provide the Settlement and Clearing Agents with a special or permanent instruction containing the data on the account opened with a local custodian – entity regulated by the BCRA – in the name of the foreign institution that participates as a “Foreign Banks/Financial Institution” for such investors, as defined in the specific FIU Resolution on this topic.

Section III

Transactions conducted by foreign investors.

Article 4. – The regulated parties contemplated in Article 20(4), (5), and (22) of Law No. 25.246, as amended, may only conduct transactions under public offerings of negotiable securities, term contracts, futures or options of any kind and other financial products and instruments when they are made or ordered by regulated parties constituted, domiciled or residing in associated dominions, jurisdictions, territories or states that are not considered Non-Cooperative or High Risk by the FATF. The regulated parties contemplated in Article 20(4) and (5) of Law No. 25.246, as amended, may apply special due diligence measures for identification to foreign investors in the Argentine Republic at the time of the remote opening of special investment accounts, in accordance with the provisions of the specific Resolution on this topic issued by the FIU.

Article 32. FIU Resolution No. 21/2018 – Customers supervised abroad.

Customers that carry out financial activities that are authorized, regulated and supervised adequately from an Anti-Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing standpoint in accordance with the FATF recommendations in the home country jurisdiction, as long as this jurisdiction is not considered to be non-cooperative or high risk by FATF, are subject to authorization and/prudential oversight by their respective specific oversight authorities, and have Cooperation Agreements or Memoranda of Understanding in effect signed with the CNV and/or with the BCRA, may be subject to a special identification procedure as follows:

they must obtain documentation from the customer or reliable sources to:

(1) identify the customer under the terms of Articles 23 and 24 of said law, indicating in an affidavit their primary activity for purposes of identifying the lawful origin of the funds.

(2) determine their respective authorization and registration by the supervisory authorities, specific authorization and/or oversight abroad, as well as their due oversight from an anti-money laundering and terrorism financing standpoint.

(3) determine the existence of Cooperation Agreements or MoUs in effect, signed between the authorization agency and/or prudential oversight authority of the customer and the CNV or with the BCRA.

Regulated Entities must, in these cases, monitor and track the operations throughout the relationship with their customer with a risk-based focus, in accordance with the terms of Article 33(d). The documentation indicated in the above paragraphs may be sent electronically or by courier.

Changes during 2020 and 2021

Classification

Crawl-like arrangement 01/27/2020 The de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to “crawl-like” from “other managed.”

Monetary policy framework

Other monetary framework 10/16/2020 A line of credit for the financing of the productive investments of micro-, small-, and medium-sized enterprises was approved, under which Group A financial institutions must grant rates of up to a fixed annual nominal rate of 30% to finance investment projects and of up to 35% to finance working capital. The institutions covered must maintain a balance of such financing equivalent, as a minimum, to 7.5% of their nonfinancial private sector deposits in pesos until September 30, 2021.

Exchange tax 09/15/2020 Federal Public Revenue Administration General Resolution No. 4815/2020 established a collection regime that applied to transactions covered by the Tax for an Inclusive and Caring Argentina (PAIS).

Foreign exchange market

Spot exchange market 04/30/2020 Exchange bureaus may simultaneously carry out only activities related to tourism and sales of travel tickets. Previously, they could also participate in public offerings of securities, subject to the relevant legal provisions.

04/30/2020 Exchange agencies may simultaneously carry out only activities related to tourism and sales of travel tickets. Previously, they may simultaneously carry out any commercial, industrial, or other type of activity, in accordance with the corresponding legal provisions.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements

Use of foreign exchange among residents 10/09/2020 Debt securities publicly registered in Argentina denominated in foreign exchange, the servicing of which is payable abroad or in foreign currencies in Argentina, as long as their average term is not less than 2 (two) years and their delivery to the creditors has made it possible to achieve the refinancing parameters set out in Para. 3.17 (Para. 3.6.1.4).

01/07/2021 Debt securities publicly registered in Argentina denominated in foreign exchange, the servicing of which is payable in foreign exchange in Argentina, as long as they were delivered to the creditors for refinancing of pre-existing debt with an extension of the average term, when it corresponds to the amount of the refinanced principal, the interest accrued to the date of refinancing and the new debt securities do not involve a principal maturity date before January 1, 2023, the amount equivalent to the interest that would accrue until December 31, 2022, for the debt subject to early refinancing and/or the extension of the refinanced principal and/or interest accrued on the amounts thus refinanced (Para. 3.6.1.5).

07/12/2021 Communication “A” 7237 included swaps of securities for other external assets in the affidavit to be submitted by customers and additional requirements in the event that the customer is a legal entity.

of the Central Bank of the Argentine Republic, the institution must have an affidavit from the customer, indicating they have not conducted certain operations in securities.

Imports and Import Payments

Financing requirements for imports

Minimum financing requirements	01/06/2021	Goods with tariff positions indicated in Paras. 10.10.1 and 10.10.2 (luxury consumer goods or sumptuous goods) access to the foreign exchange market must take place as of 90 and 365 calendar days, respectively, of the date of registration of clearance through customs of said goods.
Advance payment requirements	10/02/2020	Para. 10.12 (which incorporates Communication “A” 7123 as amended and/or supplemented by Communications “A” 7123, “A” 7239, and “A” 7253) provides that the amount for which importers may access the foreign exchange market under the conditions established in Para. 10.11 will be increased by the equivalent of 50% of the amounts that, as of October 2, 2020, the importer has repatriated and sold on the foreign exchange market for advance or prefinancing of exports from abroad with a minimum term of 180 days.
	10/16/2020	The importer must have a declaration made via the Comprehensive Import Monitoring System with status “EXITED” for the goods involved in all cases in which the declaration is required for registration of the “import for home use application” (Para. 10.4.2.8, which incorporates Communication “A” 7138).
	01/06/2021	If the intended advance payment corresponds to goods whose tariff positions are included in Paras. 10.10.1 (luxury consumer goods) and 10.10.2 (sumptuous goods) and the conditions for exclusion provided for the position are not met, access to the foreign exchange market is subject to the prior approval of the Central Bank of the Argentine Republic.
	03/18/2021	Access to the foreign exchange market is also allowed for the remaining 50% to the extent that the additional portion corresponds to payments for imports of capital goods and/or goods deemed to be necessary inputs for the production of exportable goods, with the institution being required in the latter case to have an affidavit from the customer on the type of good involved and its status as an input in the production of goods for export.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	05/28/2020	Requirements were added for access to the foreign exchange market, for payments for imports of goods or principal payments on debts originating in the import of goods, that is, the prior approval of the Central Bank of the Argentine Republic unless any of the situations provided in Para. 10.11 of the TO de EyC (which incorporates Para. 2 of Com “A” 7030 and supplementary provisions) are involved.
	10/16/2020	In the case of credit cards or guaranteed drafts issued or granted as from October 16, 2020, the institution must have documentation demonstrating that at the time of opening or issuance by the institution, the customer had a declaration made through the Comprehensive Import Monitoring System with status “EXITED” for the goods concerned, in all cases in which said declaration is required for the registration of customs clearance of the goods (Para. 10.3.6, which incorporates Communication “A” 7138).
Other	05/28/2020	Requirements were added for access to the foreign exchange market for payments for imports of goods or principal payments on debt originating in the import of goods, namely the prior approval of the Central Bank of the Argentine Republic is required unless any of the situations provided in Para. 10.11 of the TO de EyC (which incorporates Para. 2 of Com “A” 7030 and supplementary provisions in Para 3.16 of the TO de EyC) are involved.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	02/25/2021	Com “A” 7229 replaced Para. 7.5.2, incorporating local or foreign post-financing, establishing that if the exporter demonstrates sale on the foreign exchange market prior to the end of the term, post-financing of exports that cover the entire amount pending payment on the license, without verification of the conditions provided in Paras. 9.3.4 and 9.3.5 for the issuance of the corresponding application of funds certificate, the time period for the sale of the foreign exchange may be extended from shipment until the date of maturity of the longer-term loan discounted and/or assigned by the exporter.
Export taxes
Other export taxes	10/03/2020	Decree Nos. 785/2020, 789/2020, and 790/2020 established discounts for mineral products, certain industrial goods and inputs produced, as well as agricultural (soybeans) and agro-industrial (soybean oil and biodiesel) goods.
	12/22/2020	Decree No. 1034/2020 reduced duties to 0% for exports of knowledge-based services (software, nanotechnology, biotechnology, audiovisual, aerospace, satellite industries, etc.).
	01/01/2021	Decree No. 1060/2020 provides for the expansion of the set of industrial goods subject to lower duties by means of rates inversely proportional to the value added of the product. Given that implementation of Decree No. 793/2018 expired on December 31, 2020, the export duty arrangement was standardized via a rate based on the value-added of the product. As well, export duties were eliminated for certain regional products (aquaculture, beekeeping, horticulture, olive-growing, vegetables, potatoes, cassava, etc.).
	03/10/2021	Decree No. 150/2021 set the duty at 0% on incremental exports of automobiles, based on their FOB value, by each exporter until December 31, 2021, considering 2020 as the base period.

01/01/2020

The limit on the deduction of the minimum cash requirement based on financing granted under the “AHORA 12” program was increased from 1% to 1.5% (with the possibility of an additional 1%) of the items subject to the requirement.

A new deduction from the minimum cash requirement was established for entities in Group A, equivalent to 30% of the sum of peso financing to micro-, small-, and medium-sized enterprises granted at a maximum annual nominal fixed interest rate of 40% with a limit of 2% of the items in peso subject to the requirement.

The way in which the residual term of deposits with a prepayment option in Unidad de Valor Adquisitivo (UVAs) updatable on the basis of the Coeficiente de Establización de Referencia should be calculated – Law No. 25.827 (“UVA”).

The minimum cash requirement was reduced based on the special treatment provided for financing in UVAs updatable on the basis of the Coeficiente de Establización de Referencia – Law No. 25.827 (“UVA”), to which a limit on the increase in the value of the installments to be paid is applied.

Provisions specific to institutional investors

Investment firms and collective investment funds

07/12/2021

To conduct operations for the sale of negotiable securities with settlement in foreign exchange in foreign jurisdictions, said negotiable securities must be held in the portfolio for a minimum period of two (previously five) business days from the time of their credit to the depositary agent.

07/12/2021

Negotiable securities credited to the Central Depositary Agent for Negotiable Securities by depositary agencies abroad may not be applied to the settlement of transactions in foreign exchange in foreign jurisdictions until two business days have passed following credit to a subaccount or subaccounts with the aforementioned local custodian.

In the event that said negotiable securities are applied to the settlement of operations in foreign currencies in the local jurisdiction, the minimum holding period will be one (previously five) business day calculated in the same manner.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation and Request for a Stand-By Arrangement with Armenia states that as of May 3, 2019, Armenia maintained one MCP, which arises from a 2007 agreement between the MOF and Central Bank of Armenia (CBA) to settle some budgetary transactions at an agreed accounting exchange rate throughout the fiscal year. (Country Report No. 19/154)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.	Under Article 28 of the AML/CFT Law, reporting entities and customs authorities are required to freeze the assets of persons designated under respective UNSC Resolutions or under lists established by the CBA. It is prohibited to make any property, economic resources, or financial or other related services available, directly or indirectly, wholly or jointly, to or for the benefit of terrorism-related or proliferation-related persons. Further specificities on applicable restrictions are provided under Guidance on Freezing of Property of Persons and Entities Related to Terrorism or Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction, Providing Access to Frozen Property and Related Actions approved by the Decision of the Chairman of the CBA No. 1/435 – A of June 26, 2018. Decision of the Chairman of the CBA No. 1/434 – A of June 26, 2018, approved the Rules for Proposing Persons or Entities for Designation under the Lists published by or in accordance with the UNSC Resolutions and for Designating Persons or Entities under the Lists published by the CBA.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Financial transactions are restricted and accounts are frozen if they involve persons or entities designated under the lists of persons and entities related to terrorism pursuant to (1) the UNSC Resolutions 1373 and 1267 and (2) the list of current organizations associated with terrorism designated by the US Secretary of State.

Floating

Yes.

The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The CBA intervenes in the foreign exchange market only to smooth excessive exchange rate volatility, defined as short-term, high-frequency exchange rate movements caused by speculative or trend following elements rather than underlying macroeconomic fundamentals. The CBA intervenes anonymously mainly via auctions of foreign exchange, or openly in the interbank market, or through the stock exchange. The CBA publishes weekly intervention data through the stock exchange only on its website every Monday and publishes daily foreign exchange auction results on the local interbank platform.

Since March 2020, the exchange rate has increased its flexibility. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to floating from stabilized, effective March 10, 2020.

Free floating

Yes.

Every day the CB publishes official exchange rates. The official exchange rate against the US dollar is set as the weighted average of the buying and selling rates in the foreign exchange market. For other currencies, except for the SDRs of IMF, the official average exchange rates of Armenian dram are set as cross-rates using US dollar's official exchange rate against corresponding currencies and official exchange rate of Armenian dram against US dollar published by the CBA. The official exchange rate is used for accounting purposes and for treasury operations connected with external debt service or to create new external obligations. All economic agents use the official exchange rate for bookkeeping and revaluation purposes.

Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	Investment transactions of banks operating in Armenia are regulated by Article 35 of the Law on Banks and Banking, which applies to transactions in Armenia and abroad. Under Article 35 of the Law on Banks and Banking, unless permitted by the CBA, bank operations may not lead to (1) acquisition of 4.99% or more participation in the statutory fund of any other person; (2) acquisition of equity interest in the statutory fund of one person exceeding 15% of the bank's total capital; or (3) acquisition of equity interest in the statutory funds of other persons exceeding 35% of the bank's total capital. CBA consent is required for transactions that result in a bank's participation in the statutory fund of another or the same person exceeding 9%, 15%, 25%, 35%, 50%, or 70% or leading to 100%.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Under Article 18 of the Law on Banks and Banking, significant ownership in banks by residents or nonresidents must be approved by the CBA. Under Article 9 of this law and other laws regulating banking activity, significant participation in a legal entity means (1) ownership of 10% or more of voting stocks (shares) of the legal entity or (2) ownership of less than 10% of voting stocks (shares) or ownership with no voting power but in the opinion of the CB able to determine the decisions of management, exercise significant influence over decision making and application of decisions, or determine the targets and spheres of a legal entity's activity through participation, directly or indirectly, business reputation, and standing. According to this law and other laws regulating banking activities, significant interest means that a legal entity is able to determine the decisions of management, influence decision making or application, or determine the targets and spheres of a legal entity's activity. According to the point 5 of the Article 18 of the Law on Banks and Banking, physical entities permanently residing or acting in offshore zones, as well as legal entities or entities with no legal status determined or incorporated there and parties related with them may acquire participation in the statutory capital of a bank (regardless of the extent of the participation) through one or a number of transactions only through the procedure outlined in this Article, after securing preliminary consent of the CB. The legal entities determined with participation of parties listed in this article or parties related with them may acquire participation in the statutory capital of a bank (regardless of the extent of the participation) only through the procedure outlined in this Article, after securing preliminary consent of the CB. The described regulations are of a prudential nature and not a form of a capital control.

Open foreign exchange position limits      Yes.

The limits on open foreign exchange positions are calculated with and without including derivatives. A limit of 7% of capital applies on open foreign exchange positions of individual currencies, and a limit of 10% of capital applies on aggregate gross foreign exchange positions of all currencies. For the purpose of calculation, currencies are grouped into two categories: (1) SDR, US dollar, euro, Japanese yen, pound sterling, Swiss franc, Swedish krone, Danish koruna, Australian dollar, Canadian dollar, and bank gold and (2) all other currencies. Derivatives contracts with international organizations (for example, ECB, IMF, and World Bank), multilateral development banks, sovereigns, CBs, and foreign commercial banks rated at least A+ (A1) are included in the calculation of limits on open foreign exchange positions, which exclude derivatives.

Exchange tax	Yes.	A foreign exchange commission of 1.3% applies to all payments by residents to nonresidents, including those made through local banks and foreign accounts. Certain payments, such as those of certain government-related companies, are exempt.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The Central Bank of Aruba (CBA) determines the daily foreign exchange rate for the officially quoted foreign currencies, which commercial banks must use when calculating foreign currency cross-rates among themselves and for transactions with residents and nonresidents. If there is a large exchange rate fluctuation of a foreign currency against the US dollar for transactions with a counter value of Afl. 100,000 or more, a commercial bank may request a new exchange rate. The spread between the foreign exchange buying and selling rates may not exceed 2%. The foreign exchange commission is not included in the bid-ask spreads but is added afterward.

In September 2017, the State Ordinance on the Supervision of Money Transfer Companies (SOSMTC) was amended to extend its supervisory scope to money exchange offices. Money exchange offices may exchange coins or banknotes against other coins or banknotes, or pay out coins or banknotes on presentation of a credit card or payment card or on handing over checks, traveler's checks, bills of exchange, or postal money orders. They may maintain accounts abroad; however, all resident companies that have a foreign bank account (FBA) or foreign intercompany account (FIA) must notify these to the CBA pursuant to Article 11 of the State Ordinance Foreign Exchange Transactions.

Currently, two money exchange offices and one money transfer company are in the possession of a registration from the CBA. The register of supervised financial institutions can be found on the CBA's website.

From April 1, 2015, the State Ordinance on Exchange Rate Margin Compensation CBA requires commercial banks to pay a fee to the CBA on all sales of foreign currency to the public, both cash and noncash, amounting to 3/8% of the florin equivalent of these sales. The CBA will pay a fee to the commercial banks on all purchases of foreign currency from the public, both cash and noncash, amounting to 1/8% of the florin equivalent of these purchases.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	The 5 licensed domestic commercial banks and 1 money transfer company that is in the possession of a registration to conduct money exchanges may conduct foreign exchange transactions with the public. Note that in September 2007, the SOSMTC was amended to extend the scope to money exchange offices. Money exchange offices may exchange coins or banknotes, or pay out coins or banknotes against other coins or banknotes, or pay out coins or banknotes on presentations of a credit card or payment card or on handing over checks, traveler's checks, bills of exchanges, or portal money orders.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The CBA deals with local commercial banks within margins of 0.002795% on either side of parity. Depending on banks' B-9 arrangement, which sets a maximum on the amount of foreign exchange commercial banks may hold (in net foreign assets), they may buy or sell foreign exchange from or to the CBA. The CBA deals directly with the government.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may open accounts denominated in foreign currency with local banks, provided these accounts are funded with foreign currency. Effective September 1, 2021, all remaining foreign exchange restrictions temporarily imposed because of the COVID-19 pandemic were eliminated and transactions of less than Afl. 300,000 a year or its equivalent in foreign currency for natural persons and Afl. 750,000 a year or its equivalent in foreign currency for legal entities (excluding commercial banks and institutional investors) may be carried out without CBA authorization. These ceilings are applicable to all capital transactions with nonresidents; a special foreign exchange license from the CBA is required for capital transactions exceeding these ceilings. Previously, as part of the gradual easing of temporary foreign exchange restrictions imposed in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, effective August 1, 2021, resident legal entities could make outward intercompany transfers and effective June 1, 2021, resident legal entities could make management fees to nonresident parent company.

Prior to that in the context of the measures taken resulting from the impact of COVID-19 pandemic on the economy of Aruba, effective March 17, 2020, the CBA stopped granting any new foreign exchange licenses that relate to outgoing capital transactions. The Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2002/K.1 (General Foreign Exchange License) was suspended for all outgoing capital transactions until further notice. Furthermore, the CBA also revoked the general license issued by Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transaction 02/K.1 for all outgoing capital transactions. This means that the thresholds of Afl. 300,000 a year for resident natural persons and Afl. 750,000 a year for resident legal entities were no longer applicable for outgoing capital transactions. Consequently, no outgoing capital transactions, no matter the amount, were allowed until further notice. Effective March 27, 2020, the general foreign exchange license (pursuant to Decree concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2013/K.2) was suspended for all outgoing capital transactions until further notice. Thus, legal entities with such licenses (listed in the CBA's Quarterly list) could not make any outgoing capital transfers. However, if it regards an incoming transfer, then it was allowed no matter the amount, as long as the resident legal entity is included in the Quarterly list. Prior to the pandemic related restrictions, legal entities included in the CBA's Quarterly list could make transfers to and from their notified FBAs and/or FIAs without a special foreign exchange license, no matter the amount of the transfer.

Approval required	No.	The local banks should adhere to CBA instructions related to maintaining such accounts at all times.
Held abroad	Yes.	Effective August 1, 2021, the Decree concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2013/K.2 came into effect again and the temporary foreign exchange restrictions imposed in response to the pandemic was revoked and transfers by resident legal entities to their own bank accounts held abroad were again permitted. Effective June 1, 2021, resident natural persons may make transfers to their own FBAs up to a maximum amount of Afl. 50,000 a year. Accounts of resident companies abroad must be reported to the CBA. Approval is not required, but holders of such accounts must report them to the CBA if they wish to be exempted from the requirement that they collect foreign claims as soon as they fall due and transfer and sell them to a local foreign exchange bank. In the absence of an exemption, payments in foreign exchange to nonresidents must be made from a registered bank account or an account of a foreign bank in the country of the transaction or to a nonresident's nostro account with the registered bank. Resident companies that have notified the CBA of their foreign accounts and comply with the conditions of the exemption as stipulated in the Decree concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2013-O.1 General Exemption may make transfers freely to and from these accounts, based on the Decree concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2013/K.2 (General Foreign Exchange License). A general exemption from the provisions of SOFET Articles 11 and 12 applies to residents whose previous exemptions (pursuant to SOFET Articles 16 and 17) were revoked and who reported such bank accounts to the CBA again. Previously, effective March 27, 2020, the general foreign exchange license (pursuant to Decree concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2013/K.2) was suspended for all outgoing capital transactions until further notice. Thus, legal entities with such licenses (listed in the CBA's Quarterly list) were not allowed to make any outgoing capital transfers. However, if it regards an incoming transfer, then this is allowed no matter the amount, as long as the resident legal entity is included in the Quarterly list.
Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.	These accounts are not allowed.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Commercial banks are allowed to open, hold, and close foreign currency accounts for nonresidents. The balances may be transferred freely abroad and/or to other nonresident accounts.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Commercial banks are allowed to open, hold, and close florin for nonresidents. Deposits into these accounts must be made from the proceeds of foreign currency sales or from florins obtained in transactions with residents. The balances may be transferred freely abroad and/or to other nonresident accounts.

Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Balances in these accounts are fully convertible.

These restrictions applied to nonresidents and new nonresident investors who wanted to liquidate their direct investments in Aruba and repatriate their capital overseas if the investors sell these investments to residents. Such transfers would be possible when the foreign exchange restrictions have been lifted by the CBA. However, if the nonresident investor sold its investment to another nonresident, the foreign exchange measures were not applicable.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Effective September 1, 2021, all remaining foreign exchange

		restrictions temporarily imposed because of the COVID-19 pandemic were eliminated and based on a general foreign exchange license (Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transaction 02/K.1) natural persons were allowed to execute capital transactions up to a maximum of Afl. 300,000 a calendar year and legal entities up to a maximum amount Afl. 750,000 a calendar year without a special foreign exchange license. A special foreign exchange license was required for transactions above aforementioned thresholds. Effective June 1, 2021, the monies parked by notaries in their third-party bank account related to the sale of real estate by nonresident to resident that took place after March 31, 2021, could be released to the nonresident sellers. Effective May 7, 2021, the monies parked by notaries in their third-party bank account related to the sale of real estate by nonresident to resident as per March 31, 2021, could be released to the nonresident sellers. Effective April 20, 2021, the monies parked by notaries in their third-party bank account related to the sale of real estate by nonresident to resident as per December 31, 2020, could be released to the nonresident sellers.

Prior to that in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, temporary measures with respect to outgoing capital transfers were taken such that effective March 17, 2020, the CBA would not grant any new foreign exchange licenses that relate to outgoing capital transactions and revoked the general license issued by Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transaction 02/K.1 for all outgoing capital transactions. These restrictions applied to nonresidents investors who wanted to liquidate their investments in Aruba and repatriate their capital overseas if the investors sell these investments to residents. In the case that a nonresident agreed to sell his house to a resident under the condition that the proceeds of the sale would stay on the third-party bank account of the notary's office in Aruba until the foreign exchange restrictions have been lifted by the CBA, the CBA would allow such transactions by granting a foreign exchange license. However, if the nonresident investor sold its investment to another nonresident, then the mentioned foreign exchange restrictions were not applicable.

Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.
Loans	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Effective September 1, 2021, all remaining foreign exchange restrictions temporarily imposed because of the COVID-19 pandemic were eliminated and the Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2002/K.1 (General Foreign Exchange License) reinstated. Based on a general foreign exchange license, natural person may execute capital transactions with nonresidents up to a maximum of Afl. 300,000 or its equivalent in foreign currency a year. A special foreign exchange license is required for amounts above the aforementioned limit. Previously, effective March 17, 2020, in response to the COVID-19 pandemic the CBA temporarily suspended granting of any new foreign exchange licenses that relate to outgoing capital transactions; hence, loans by residents to nonresidents were not allowed until further notice.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Effective September 1, 2021, all remaining foreign exchange restrictions temporarily imposed because of the COVID-19 pandemic were eliminated and the Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2002/K.1 (General Foreign Exchange License) reinstated. Based on a general foreign exchange license, natural person may execute capital transactions with nonresidents up to a maximum of Afl. 300,000 or its equivalent in foreign currency a year. A special foreign exchange license is required for amounts above the aforementioned limit. Previously, residents were allowed to receive loans from nonresidents; however, effective March 17, 2020, because of the foreign exchange restrictions in place, no repayments of the loan and interest payments could be made until the mentioned restrictions have been lifted by the CBA, unless the loan in question has been granted before March 17, 2020, and the resident has a special foreign exchange license for the loan or made use of the general license applicable to transfers below the thresholds. Then, the repayments and interest payments were allowed. The CBA did not want its residents to default.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Effective June 1, 2021, the temporary restrictions on gifts and donations were eliminated and a foreign exchange license is required for amounts above the thresholds of Afl. 300,000 for natural persons and Afl. 750,000 for legal entities. Previously, effective March 17, 2020, in response to the COVID-19 pandemic the CBA temporarily suspended the granting of any new foreign exchange licenses that relate to outgoing capital transactions and revoked the general license issued by Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transaction 02/K.1 for all outgoing capital transactions. Consequently, no outgoing capital transactions, no matter the amount, were allowed until further notice.

To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	If the amount is below the thresholds of Afl. 300,000 for natural persons, then no foreign exchange license is required. However, if the incoming gift amount is above-mentioned threshold, then a foreign exchange license is required. The foreign exchange restrictions taken by the CBA because of the COVID-19 pandemic did not affect incoming transfers. So, these transfers were always allowed.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	Effective September 1, 2021, all remaining foreign exchange restrictions temporarily imposed because of the COVID-19 pandemic were eliminated and the Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2002/K.1 (General Foreign Exchange License) reinstated. Based on a general foreign exchange license, natural person may execute capital transactions with nonresidents up to a maximum of Afl. 300,000 or its equivalent in foreign currency a year. A special foreign exchange license is required for amounts above the aforementioned limit. Previously, effective March 17, 2020, because of the temporary foreign exchange restrictions in place, no repayments of the loan and interest payments could be made until the mentioned restrictions have been lifted by the CBA, unless the loan in question has been granted before March 17, 2020; then, the debt could be continued to be serviced according to the loan repayment schedule, thereby preventing a default situation vis-à-vis a foreign loan.
Transfer of assets	No.	No controls apply to transfers of assets.

	02/19/2021	Sanctions State Decree Human Rights Violations (AB 2021 No. 30) implements Regulation No. 2020/1998 of the Council of the EU of December 7, 2020, and Decision No. 2020/1999 of December 7, 2020, concerning restrictive measures against serious human rights violations, and it provides for the freezing of all funds or other assets in Aruba, directly or indirectly belonging to, owned, held, or controlled by a natural person, a legal person, entities, or bodies listed in Annex I to Regulation No. 2020/1998 and the Annex to Decision No. 2020/1999.
	02/19/2021	Sanctions State Decree Chemical Weapons (AB 2021 No. 31) implements Regulation No. 2018/1542 of the Council of the EU of October 15, 2018, and Decision No. 2018/1544 of October 15, 2018, concerning restrictive measures against the proliferation and use of chemical weapons, and it provides for the freezing of all funds or other assets in Aruba, directly or indirectly belonging to, owned, held, or controlled by a natural person, a legal person, entities, or bodies listed in Annex I to Regulation No. 2018/1542 and the Annex to Decision No. 2018/1544.
	09/02/2021	The Government of Aruba, in accordance with the UNSC Resolution 2231, issued a sanctions decree to freeze all funds or other assets present in Aruba that belong directly or indirectly to, are owned, held, or controlled by a natural person, legal person, entities person, legal entity, entity, or body in/from/to Iran.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

Held domestically	03/17/2020	In the context of the measures taken resulting from the impact of COVID-19 pandemic on the economy of Aruba, the Central Bank of Aruba (CBA) stopped granting any new foreign exchange licenses that relate to outgoing capital transactions, including dividend declarations. The Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2002/K.1 (General Foreign Exchange License) was suspended for all outgoing capital transactions, until further notice. Furthermore, the CBA has also revoked the general license issued by Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transaction 02/K.1 for all outgoing capital transactions. This means that the thresholds of Afl. 300,000 a year for resident natural persons and Afl. 750,000 a year for resident legal entities were no longer applicable for outgoing capital transactions. Consequently, no outgoing capital transactions, no matter the amount, were allowed until further notice. Previously, transactions of less than Afl. 300,000 a year or its equivalent in foreign currency for natural persons and Afl. 750,000 a year or its equivalent in foreign currency for legal entities (excluding commercial banks and institutional investors) could be carried out without CBA authorization. These ceilings were applicable to all capital transactions with nonresidents; a special foreign exchange license from the CBA was required for capital transactions exceeding these ceilings.

	03/27/2020	The general foreign exchange license (pursuant to Decree concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2013/K.2) was suspended for all outgoing capital transactions until further notice. Thus, legal entities with such licenses (listed in the Central Bank of Aruba's (CBA's) Quarterly list) may not make any outgoing capital transfers. However, if it regards an incoming transfer, then this is allowed no matter the amount, as long as the resident legal entity is included in the Quarterly list. Previously, legal entities included in the CBA's Quarterly list could make transfers to and from their notified foreign bank accounts and/or foreign intercompany accounts without a special foreign exchange license, no matter the amount of the transfer.
	06/01/2021	Resident legal entities could make management fees to nonresident parent company.
	08/01/2021	Resident legal entities could make outward intercompany transfers.
	09/01/2021	All remaining foreign exchange restrictions temporarily imposed because of the COVID-19 pandemic were eliminated and transactions of less than Afl. 300,000 a year or its equivalent in foreign currency for natural persons and Afl. 750,000 a year or its equivalent in foreign currency for legal entities (excluding commercial banks and institutional investors) may be carried out without Central Bank of Aruba (CBA) authorization. These ceilings are applicable to all capital transactions with nonresidents; a special foreign exchange license from the CBA is required for capital transactions exceeding these ceilings.
Held abroad	03/27/2020	The general foreign exchange license (pursuant to Decree concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2013/K.2) was suspended for all outgoing capital transactions until further notice. Thus, legal entities with such licenses (listed in the Central Bank of Aruba's Quarterly list) may not make any outgoing capital transfers. However, if it regards an incoming transfer, then this is allowed no matter the amount, as long as the resident legal entity is included in the Quarterly list.
	06/01/2021	Resident natural persons may make transfers to their own foreign bank accounts up to a maximum amount of Afl. 50,000 a year.
	08/01/2021	The Decree concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2013/K.2 came into effect again and the temporary foreign exchange restrictions imposed in response to the pandemic was revoked and transfers by resident legal entities to their own bank accounts held abroad were again permitted.

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Central Bank of Aruba (CBA) temporarily suspended the granting of any new foreign exchange licenses that relate to outgoing capital transactions and revoked the general license issued by Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transaction 02/K.1 for all outgoing capital transactions. This means that the thresholds of Afl. 300,000 a year for resident natural persons and Afl. 750,000 a year for resident legal entities were no longer applicable for outgoing capital transactions. Consequently, no outgoing capital transactions, no matter the amount, were allowed until further notice. These restrictions applied to nonresidents and new nonresident investors who wanted to liquidate their investments in Aruba and repatriate their capital overseas if the investors sell these investments to residents. Such transfers would be possible when the foreign exchange restrictions have been lifted by the CBA. However, if the nonresident investor sold its investment to another nonresident, the foreign exchange measures were not applicable. ##### Commercial credits

By residents to nonresidents	03/17/2020	In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Central Bank of Aruba temporarily suspended the granting of any new foreign exchange licenses that relate to outgoing capital transactions and revoked the general license issued by Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transaction 02/K.1 for all outgoing capital transactions. This means that the thresholds of Afl. 300,000 a year for resident natural persons and Afl. 750,000 a year for resident legal entities were no longer applicable for outgoing capital transactions. Consequently, no outgoing capital transactions, no matter the amount, were allowed until further notice. Hence, commercial credits by residents to nonresidents were not allowed until further notice.
	03/27/2020	The general foreign exchange license (pursuant to Decree concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2013/K.2) was suspended for all outgoing capital transactions until further notice. Thus, legal entities with such licenses (listed in the Central Bank of Aruba's Quarterly list) may not make any outgoing credit to notified intercompany accounts.
	08/01/2021	The public announcement of March 27, 2020, was revoked, and Decree 2013/K.2 reinstated thereby permitting certain capital transfers abroad.
	09/01/2021	All remaining foreign exchange restrictions temporarily imposed because of the COVID-19 pandemic were eliminated and the Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2002/K.1 (General Foreign Exchange License) reinstated. Controls on direct investment
Outward direct investment	03/17/2020	In the context of the measures taken resulting from the impact of COVID-19 pandemic on the economy of Aruba, the Central Bank of Aruba temporarily suspended the granting of foreign exchange licenses that relate to outgoing capital transactions. The Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2002/K.1 (General Foreign Exchange License) has been suspended for all outgoing capital transactions until further notice. This means that the thresholds of Afl. 300,000 a year for resident natural persons and Afl. 750,000 a year for resident legal entities were no longer applicable for outgoing capital transactions.
	06/01/2021	Pension funds and insurance companies under the supervision of the Central Bank of Aruba were allowed to make investments abroad up to a maximum amount of Afl. 5 million a calendar year.
	08/01/2021	Participation of residents in a foreign company was permitted and required a license from the Central Bank of Aruba above the threshold of Afl. 300,000 for natural persons and Afl. 750,000 for entities.
	09/01/2021	All remaining foreign exchange restrictions temporarily imposed because of the COVID-19 pandemic were eliminated and the Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transactions 2002/K.1 (General Foreign Exchange License) reinstated. Controls on liquidation of direct investment	03/17/2020	In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Central Bank of Aruba (CBA) temporarily suspended the granting of any new foreign exchange licenses that relate to outgoing capital transactions and revoked the general license issued by Notice concerning Foreign Exchange Transaction 02/K.1 for all outgoing capital transactions. This means that the thresholds of Afl. 300,000 a year for resident natural persons and Afl. 750,000 a year for resident legal entities were no longer applicable for outgoing capital transactions. Consequently, no outgoing capital transactions, no matter the amount, were allowed until further notice. These restrictions applied to nonresidents and new nonresident investors who wanted to liquidate their direct investments in Aruba and repatriate their capital overseas if the investors sell these investments to residents. Such transfers would be possible when the foreign exchange restrictions have been lifted by the CBA. However, if the nonresident investor sold its investment to another nonresident, the foreign exchange measures were not applicable.

Free floating

Yes. Both the de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are classified as free floating. However, the Reserve Bank of Australia (RBA) retains discretionary authority to intervene in the foreign exchange market and has done so during periods of significant market disorder and/or gross misalignment of the exchange rate. Given the high level of development of the Australian foreign exchange market, interventions have been rare. The most recent period of intervention was in 2007–2008 and was in response to episodes of significant market disorder – that is, instances when market functioning was impaired to such a degree that it was clear that the observed volatility was excessive. The RBA may also vary the way intervention is conducted; it may enter the interbank foreign exchange market directly through voice or electronic brokerage platforms or use an agent bank. As a matter of government policy, most wholesale purchases of foreign currency by government agencies are made through the RBA. The RBA manages the flows from purchases on behalf of the government so as to minimize their market impact – for example, by executing these trades when the market is liquid and, if necessary, breaking up the required purchases into a series of smaller transactions. Monthly purchases and sales of foreign exchange are published on the RBA website. Daily data on foreign exchange market interventions are published on the RBA website annually, following the release of the RBA Annual Report.

Official exchange rate

Yes. There is no official RBA fixing rate for the Australian dollar. World Market/Reuters provide hourly fixing rates for the Australian dollar against the US dollar. The legal and commercial reference rate against the US dollar, which is often used in private contracts, is the World Market/Reuters Australian dollar fixing rate at 10:00 a.m. Australian Eastern Standard Time. For public information, the RBA publishes an Australian dollar–US dollar reference rate based on the 4:00 p.m. Australian Eastern Standard Time World Market/Reuters Australian dollar fixing rate and the trade-weighted index of the Australian dollar based on market rates at 4:00 p.m. The RBA also publishes the Australian dollar cross-rates for all currencies in the trade-weighted index.

Monetary Policy Committee
Central Bank Board
Other
Government and Central Bank	Yes.	The Reserve Bank Act 1959 provides for decisions of the Reserve Board on monetary policy to be reached by a majority of the votes of the members present and voting, with the Chair having a casting vote, if necessary, in addition to a deliberative vote. Votes are not published. The Statement on the Conduct of Monetary Policy (the Statement) has recorded the common understanding of the Governor, as Chair of the Reserve Bank Board, and the government on key aspects of Australia's monetary and central banking policy framework since 1996. The Statement seeks to foster a sound understanding of the nature of the relationship between the Reserve Bank and the government, the objectives of monetary policy, the mechanisms for ensuring transparency and accountability in the way policy is conducted, and the independence of the Reserve Bank. The inflation target is set as part of the agreement on the monetary policy framework and the key features of the target cannot be changed by the Bank unilaterally.
Inflation target	Yes.
Target number	Yes.
Point target
Target with tolerance band
Band/Range	Yes.	Both the RBA Governor and the government agree that a flexible medium-term inflation target is the appropriate framework for achieving medium-term price stability. They agree that an appropriate goal is to keep consumer price inflation between 2% and 3%, on average, over time. This formulation allows for the natural short-run variation in inflation over the economic cycle, and the medium-term focus provides the flexibility for the Reserve Bank to set its policy so as best to achieve its broad objectives, including financial stability. The 2%–3% medium-term goal provides a clearly identifiable performance benchmark over time.
Target measure	Yes.
CPI	Yes.	The target measure is end-year growth in the CPI. The CPI measures the changes in the price of a “basket” of goods and services, which account for a high proportion of expenditure by the CPI population group (that is, metropolitan households).
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	The inflation target is defined as a medium-term average rather than as a rate (or band of rates) that must be held at all times.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The RBA's monetary policy involves setting a target for the interest rate on unsecured overnight loans in the money market (“the cash rate”). The RBA's target for the cash rate was 0.1% as of June 30, 2021.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The RBA's cash rate target is expressed as a point target. The RBA pays an interest rate on Exchange Settlement balances held in accounts with the RBA that is set at a margin below the cash rate target. Banks have an incentive to deposit as little as possible at this rate, and instead prefer to earn the higher cash rate by lending out their balances overnight in the money market. The RBA is also willing to lend Exchange Settlement balances to banks if this is required. The interest rate on these loans is set at a margin above the cash rate target under its standing facilities. Banks have an incentive to borrow as little as possible at this rate, and instead prefer to borrow at the lower cash rate in the interbank market. The overnight deposit and lending rates form the lower and upper bounds of the policy interest rate corridor. Until March 2020, the lower and upper bounds of the corridor were set at 25 basis points below and above the target cash rate, respectively. As part of the package of policy measures announced by the RBA in March 2020, effective March 20, 2020, the cash rate was lowered to 25 basis points, the lower bound of the corridor was set at 15 basis points below the cash rate target, and balances held in Exchange Settlement Accounts at the RBA earn 10 basis points (previously 0). Effective November 4, 2020, the cash rate target was lowered to 10 basis points and the lower bound of the corridor was set at 10 basis points below the cash rate target. There have been no changes to arrangements for the top of the corridor, which remains 25 basis points above the target cash rate. Given the large amount of liquidity in the banking system as a result of the RBA's package of policy measures implemented since 2020, the cash rate is trading just above the bottom of the corridor and the RBA is effectively operating a floor system.

Other	Yes.	Effective March 20, 2020, the Reserve Bank Board introduced a target for the 3-year Australian government bond yield of around 25 basis points. This target was lowered to around 10 basis points effective November 4, 2020. Effective July 7, 2021, the Reserve Bank Board announced the yield target of 10 basis points would continue to apply to the April 2024 bond (rather than extend the target to the next bond with a maturity date closest to 3 years, the November 2024 bond).
Accountability	Yes.
Open letter	No.
Parliamentary hearings	Yes.	The Governor, Deputy Governor, and a small number of other senior officers of the Reserve Bank usually appear twice-yearly before the House of Representatives Standing Committee on Economics. Between January 1, 2020, and June 30, 2021, the RBA appeared at four public hearings of this committee. Senior staff are also periodically invited to appear at public hearings held as part of inquiries by other committees of both houses of parliament.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Licensed dealers of foreign exchange are allowed to freely determine their bid-ask spreads and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC) is responsible for licensing of all financial services providers, including foreign exchange dealers that deal in foreign currency contracts, whether exchange traded or over the counter, by its administration of the Australian financial services license (AFSL) regime. As of June 17, 2021, there were 1,168 licensees licensed to deal in foreign exchange products in Australia; 586 of these are licensed to deal with retail investors. Licensed foreign exchange dealers that deal in foreign currency contracts are permitted to maintain accounts abroad and to make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. The ASIC does not license entities dealing in spot foreign exchange contracts.

Interbank market	Yes.	The RBA survey of foreign exchange turnover indicates that at least 24 financial institutions participate in the Australian interbank foreign exchange market. The Australian dollar is also widely traded by financial institutions in offshore interbank markets. There are no limits on the bid-ask spread and commission of market participants. Interventions in the Australian foreign exchange market are rare, given the high level of market development. However, if the RBA were to intervene, the intervention could be conducted either directly with market participants at their quoted rates, via market makers, or by placing an interest in an electronic system whereby a market maker would have to accept the quoted price.
Over the counter	Yes.	Turnover occurs almost entirely over the counter with licensed dealers. ASIC grants licenses to Derivatives Trade Repositories who report on OTC derivatives transactions.
Brokerage	Yes.	Licensed dealers may deal among themselves and with their overseas counterparties at mutually negotiated rates for spot transactions in any currency for trade- and non-trade-related transactions. Trading is conducted through several mediums, including electronic broking platforms.
Market making	Yes.	An ASIC license is generally required for foreign exchange dealing (other than spot). An AFSL and authorization to make a market for foreign exchange products and derivatives are required, subject to some exemptions, such as Regulation No. 7.6.02AG. As of June 17, 2021, there were 214 licensees authorized to make a market in derivatives, 1863 authorized to make a market in foreign exchange, and 149 authorized to make a market in both derivatives and foreign exchange. Pursuant to Section 766D of the Corporations Act, persons make a market for a financial product if (1) they regularly state the prices at which they propose to acquire or dispose of financial products on their own behalf, (2) others have a reasonable expectation that they will be able to regularly effect transactions at the stated prices, and (3) the persons' actions do not

Negative list	Yes. Australia's customs legislation prohibits absolutely the import of some goods. These are certain types of dangerous dogs and documents and devices related to suicide. Some goods (restricted goods) are prohibited from import unless certain conditions are met, the goods are exempt, and/or written permission from a relevant authority is provided. These controls and prohibitions reflect mainly law enforcement, health, environmental and safety requirements; requirements for labeling, packaging, and technical specifications; autonomous sanctions; and obligations of international agreements or UNSC sanctions. Goods which are restricted are certain types of narcotic and psychotropic, substances; drugs, medicines, and antibiotic substances; therapeutic substances; tablet presses, and encapsulators; drug paraphernalia; counterfeit credit, debit, and charge cards; tobacco products; firearms, weapons, and warfare goods; including chemical weapons, plastic explosives and ammonium nitrate, radioactive substances, and nuclear material; cloned human embryo material; goods with false trade descriptions; goods that infringe trademarks or copyright; images and indicia for major sporting events; goods representing the arms, flag, or seal of an Australian State or Territory or of the Commonwealth or the royal arms; ANZAC goods; wool packs; pronged dog collars; cat and dog fur; certain hazardous industrial and pesticide chemicals; asbestos and goods containing asbestos; specimens of CITES-listed endangered species; consumer safety goods such as glazed ceramic ware, toys and cosmetics that contain hazardous amounts of lead or other metals; rough diamonds; incandescent lightbulbs; lighters; signal jammers; cultural heritage items; objectionable material including child pornography and terrorism-related goods; tooth fish and, ozone depleting substances and synthetic greenhouse gases. The Biosecurity Act 2015 and its subordinate legislation apply controls to the importation of all plants, parts of plants, and plant products, all animals (including birds, fish, and insects), animal products, soil, and other items of general quarantine concern. The importation of arms or related material is prohibited under the sanctions regimes for the DPRK, Iran, Libya, and Russia. Arms or related material is defined broadly and includes, but is not limited to, weapons, ammunition, military vehicles and equipment, and spare parts for any of those things, as well as paramilitary equipment.

In addition to these restrictions, there are other restrictions on imports which relate to each specific sanctions regime.

With respect to Crimea and Sevastopol, Australian law prohibits the import, purchase, or transport of any goods, without a sanctions permit, if the goods originate in, or are exported from, Crimea or Sevastopol (except certain goods, which have been made available to the Ukrainian authorities for examination and for which compliance with conditions conferring entitlement to preferential origin has been verified by Ukrainian officials).

With respect to the DPRK, under the UNSC sanctions, it is also prohibited to procure from the DPRK, or from a person or entity in the DPRK, any of the following “import sanctioned goods”; and a permit cannot be obtained to authorize their import: certain items relevant to nuclear, ballistic missiles, and other WMD-related programs; certain arms-related items listed in Resolution No. 1718 (2016) of the Security Council, subparagraph 8(a)(1) and (2) (such as battle tanks, combat vehicles, and aircraft); gold, titanium ore, vanadium ore, or rare earth minerals; goods mentioned in paragraph 5(1)(c) of the Charter of the UN (Sanctions – DPRK) Regulations 2008; copper, nickel, silver, or zinc; statues; coal, iron, or iron ore; lead or lead ore; seafood; textiles; or goods covered by Chapters 07, 08, 12, 25, 44, 84, 85, or 89 of the Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding Systems. The following “import sanctioned goods” cannot be procured, received, or transported from the DPRK, or from a person or entity in the DPRK, without a permit, which may be granted in certain circumstances: statues, textiles, coals; and any goods that are not “specified import sanctioned goods” and not food or medicine. Australian law also prohibits the receipt of “import sanctioned goods” from the DPRK, or a person or entity in the DPRK, if the goods are received for the purposes of repair, servicing, refurbishing, testing, reverse engineering, or marketing by the person or another person if it is not authorized by a sanctions permit.

With respect to Iraq, it is prohibited to hold, use, or deal with a “controlled asset” or allow or facilitate the use of it. A “controlled asset” is an asset: (1) of the government led by Saddam Hussein (including a state body, corporation, or other body or agency) that was located in Australia on May 22, 2003; and (2) that has been removed from Iraq, or acquired, by a person or entity designated for the purposes of the Iraq sanctions regime. It is also prohibited to deal with an item of Iraqi cultural property or of archeological, historical, cultural, rare scientific, or religious importance that has been illegally removed from Iraq on or after August 6, 1990.

With respect to Somalia, under UNSC sanctions, it is prohibited to import charcoal from Somalia or from a person or entity in Somalia.

With respect to Syria, it is prohibited to import, purchase, or transport certain crude oil, petroleum, and petrochemical products if they originate in or have been exported from Syria, without a sanctions permit. It is also prohibited to import or purchase gold, precious metals, or diamonds from the Government of Syria or an entity or body owned or controlled by it or acting on its behalf or direction, without a sanctions permit. It is also prohibited to give “illegally removed cultural property” to another person, to trade in it, or to transfer the ownership of it to another person. “Illegally removed cultural property” means an item of Syrian cultural property; or of archeological, historical, cultural, rare scientific, or religious importance that has been illegally removed from Syria on or after March 15, 2011.

The targeted financial sanctions outlined in category II “Exchange Measures” above prohibit providing assets to a proscribed or designated person or entity. This would effectively prohibit imports from any person or entity listed on the Consolidated List maintained by the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade (DFAT).

Import taxes and/or tariffs Yes.

Most agricultural products enter Australia duty free. A maximum tariff of 5% applies to some manufactured goods, including household textile products. Tariffs on many goods have been eliminated. Tariff concessions are available under the Tariff Concession System for most goods subject to a tariff, if no domestic manufacturers produce substitutable goods. Other concessions are available for specific purposes, such as to accommodate split import consignments and for donations and bequests.

Effective February 1, 2020, a temporary concession in relation to COVID-19 is provided for medical and hygiene goods imported between February 1, 2020, and December 31, 2020. Effective January 1, 2021, it was extended until June 30, 2022.

Australia currently has 15 multilateral or bilateral trade agreements in force. All tariffs are eliminated under 14 out of the 15 of these FTAs:

- Australia-New Zealand Closer Economic Relations Trade Agreement;
- Singapore-Australia FTA;
- Australia-United States FTA;
- Thailand-Australia FTA;
- Australia-Chile FTA;

 China-Australia FTA;
 Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership (CPTPP) (tariff elimination effective January 1, 2021);
 FTA between Australia and Hong Kong, China (tariff elimination effective January 17, 2020);
 Indonesia-Australia Comprehensive Economic Partnership Agreement (tariff elimination effective July 5, 2020);
 PACER Plus (effective December 13, 2020).
 The Peru-Australia FTA provides the following reduction in tariffs for originating goods: Effective February 11, 2020 – Australia has eliminated tariffs on 96% of tariff lines on entry into force and 100% is to be eliminated by January 1, 2023.
 Australia provides duty-free, quota-free access for goods produced or manufactured in 50 Least Developed Countries (LDC) under the Australian System of Tariff Preferences, Australia’s GSP Scheme. In addition, Australia maintains a range of historic preferences for Developing Countries ranging from 11 countries and places where all but 108 tariff lines are 0; 106 countries and places with 835 tariff lines that are reduced or eliminated; 4 countries and places with 193 tariff lines that are reduced or eliminated.
 Further Forum Island Countries are provided duty-free, quota-free access under the South Pacific Regional Trade and Economic Co-operation Agreement. Papua New Guinea, who is a member of South Pacific Regional Trade and Economic Co-operation Agreement, also has duty-free, quota-free access under the Agreement on Trade and Commercial Relations between the Government of Australia and the Government of Papua New Guinea (PATCRA II). Finally, Australia maintains a range of historic preferences for a limited number of goods from Canada and Malaysia.
 Tariff quotas apply to certain types of cheese and curd that may be imported at a concessional rate of duty of $A 0.096/kg and is restricted to 11,500 tons a year. Imports may be made outside the 11,500 ton quota allocated each year, but a higher rate of duty of $A 1.220/kg applies.
 Reductions and elimination of tariffs exclude excise-equivalent customs duty such as on alcohol, fuel, and tobacco.

Other	Yes.	The Australian Government introduced a new export legislative framework to streamline regulation of exports effective March 28, 2021. The new framework makes the laws more relevant, responsive, and effective, but provides the same level of regulatory oversight. The new export legislation includes: the Export Control Act 2020 which sets out the overarching legal framework for the regulation of exported goods, including food and agricultural products, from Australia. It enables the Secretary of the Department of Agriculture, Water and the Environment to make rules that detail the requirements and establish conditions for exporting certain goods from Australian. The Export Control Rules 2021 are legislative instruments made by the Secretary under Section 432 of the Act and set out the operational requirements that must be met to export specific goods from Australia. These conditions ensure any importing country requirements are satisfied, and that the export conforms with requirements and industry standards and meets Australia's international obligations. In accordance with the requirements of the Export Control Act 2020 and its associated Rules and Orders, an exporter is required to demonstrate, for the purpose of exporting prescribed agricultural goods, that the goods were produced and/or prepared at an exported registered establishment/accredited property for the purpose of supporting an application for export permits and other certification necessary to accompany prescribed agriculture export consignments. Documentation requirements also apply for the export of non-prescribed agricultural goods.
Export licenses	Yes.
Without quotas	Yes.	Export prohibitions and restrictions enforce quality control measures, administer UNSC and Australian autonomous sanctions, and meet obligations under international treaties and commitments under international arrangements. Australia's export control policies reflect the government's commitment to ensure that exports of defense and dual-use goods are consistent with Australia's interests, international obligations, and commitments. Prohibitions also maintain adequate measures of control over designated cultural property, resources, protected flora; and fauna; secure conservation objectives; and respond to specific market distortions abroad. Australia's customs legislation prohibits absolutely the export of some goods, which are documents and devices relating to suicide. Some goods (restricted goods) are prohibited from export unless certain conditions are met, the goods are exempt, and/or written permission from a relevant authority is provided. Restricted goods are certain types of: objectionable goods; asbestos and goods containing asbestos; hazardous industrial and pesticide chemicals; toothfish; human embryo clone material; human body fluids, organs and other tissue; nuclear material; rough diamonds; cat and dog fur; ammonium nitrate; radioactive goods; drugs, narcotics and precursors; goods subject to autonomous sanctions; counterfeit debit, credit, and charge cards; weapons, defense, and strategic goods; ozone depleting substances and synthetic greenhouse gases and radioactive waste and ; liquefied natural gas.

Remaining controls on primary products apply mainly to food and agricultural products and are administered by the Department of Agriculture, Water and the Environment. Controls administered by the Department of Agriculture, Water and the Environment require an export license for exports of woodchips and unprocessed wood (for example, whole logs). These controls apply to wood sourced from areas outside Regional Forest Agreement regions and plantation forests within states and territories where Codes of Practice for plantation forestry are not approved by the Australian Government. Export registration and/or licensing procedures apply to agricultural products (meat, dairy products, eggs, live animals and their reproductive material, fish, vegetables, and fruit) to ensure that exporters meet other countries' import conditions. These include sanitary and phytosanitary conditions. In the case of live animals, controls apply to exporters to ensure they meet Australia's animal welfare standards. Export controls are regulated by the Department of Agriculture, Water and the Environment and the appropriate industry agencies. Exports of wine and brandy products in both bulk and bottled form require licenses from the Wine Australia Corporation. Only one entity has an export monopoly for selected agricultural products – the Rice Marketing Board for the State of New South Wales. This board appointed Ricegrowers Limited (trading as SunRice) as the sole and exclusive export license holder for exports of rice grown in New South Wales. (Ricegrowers Limited is also an authorized buyer.) There are no statutory restrictions on the exportation of rice in other Australian states.

Effective March 30, 2020, temporary export controls were applied to noncommercial exports of certain goods that contribute to the controlling and preventing the spread of the COVID-19 virus, including personal protective equipment, disinfectant wipes, and hand sanitizers. The measures were repealed effective December 11, 2020.

DFAT coordinates the implementation, administration, and enforcement of UNSC sanctions and autonomous sanctions, working closely with a wide range of agencies, including the Department of Defense, the Department of Home Affairs, the Australian Transaction Reports and Analysis Centre, and the Australian Federal Police. The export of arms or related material is prohibited, without a permit, under sanctions regimes for the Central African Republic, the DPRK, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Libya, Myanmar, Russia, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan, Syria, the Taliban, Yemen, and Zimbabwe. Australian law prohibits the export of arms or related material to a designated person or entity for the UNSC sanctions regime in relation to ISIL (Da'esh) and Al-Qaida, and it is not possible to obtain a permit for the export of such items. Arms or related material is defined broadly and includes, but is not limited to, weapons, ammunition, military vehicles and equipment, and spare parts for any of those things, as well as paramilitary equipment.

In addition to these restrictions, there are other restrictions on exports which relate to each specific sanctions regime. For example, with respect to the DPRK, food and medicine are the only goods which may be exported, supplied, sold, or transferred to the DPRK without restriction. Likewise, significant restrictions apply to exports bound for Iran, Iraq, Syria, Russia, and Crimea and Sevastopol.

The targeted financial sanctions outlined in category II "Exchange Measures" above prohibit dealing with the assets of a proscribed or designated person or entity. This would effectively prohibit exports from any person or entity listed on the Consolidated List maintained by the DFAT.

Certain Autonomous Sanctions apply. With respect to the DPRK, Australian law prohibits, without a sanctions permit, acquiring or extending an interest in, or establishing or participating in a business with, or granting a financial loan or credit to (1) a person or entity (wherever located) that is engaged in an extractive or its related industry or associated infrastructure, in the DPRK (or persons or entities acting on their behalf, direction or control) and (2) a DPRK person or entity, or those acting on their behalf, direction or control, that is engaged in an extractive or related industry outside the DPRK. With respect to Crimea and Sevastopol, Australian law prohibits, without a sanctions permit: (1) the granting of any financial loan or credit, or the establishment of a joint venture, in relation to the following sectors and/or (2) the acquisition or extension of an interest in an enterprise that was established in Crimea or Sevastopol and is engaged in the following sectors: the creation, acquisition, or development of infrastructure in the transport, telecommunications, or energy sectors; or the exploitation of oil or gas, or of mineral resources specified in the Autonomous Sanctions (Russia, Crimea and Sevastopol) Specification 2015. With respect to Russia, Australian law generally prohibits, without a sanctions permit (with some exceptions): (1) the purchase or sale of, or any other dealing with, bonds, equity, transferable securities, money market instruments, or other similar financial instruments, if the financial instrument is issued by an entity specified by the Minister for Foreign Affairs and (2) making, or being part of any arrangement to make loans or credit if the loan or credit is made to an entity specified by the Minister for Foreign Affairs. With respect to Syria, Australian law prohibits, without a sanctions permit, the acquisition or extension of an interest in: (1) the establishment of, or participation in, a joint venture with and/or (2) the granting of a financial loan or credit to an entity that is engaged

On capital market securities	Yes.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The acquisition of shares and other securities of a participating nature that may be affected by laws and policies on inward direct investment may require notification to the Australian authorities. Notification may be required under the foreign investment review framework subject to the percentage interest and monetary thresholds prescribed under the Foreign Acquisitions and Takeovers Act 1975, associated regulations, and foreign investment policy. Effective March 29, 2020, a temporary zero monetary screening threshold was introduced because COVID-19 had increased the risk of foreign investment occurring in ways that were contrary to the national interest. Effective January 1, 2021, this temporary measure was removed. The monetary threshold that determines whether approval is required now depends on the type of investment and the foreign investor's jurisdiction. However, investments that may raise national security concerns continue to be subject to the zero monetary threshold. Guidance Note 8 provides more details on national security investments, including when mandatory notification is required. If a person acquires a substantial holding in a listed entity, or there is a change in their substantial holding, they are also subject to disclosure obligations under Chapter 6C of the Corporations Act. Chapter 6C applies to residents and nonresidents for acquisitions of securities in an entity listed on an Australian financial market. The acquisition of shares and other securities in listed companies or unlisted companies with over 50 shareholders is separately regulated by the takeover rules in Chapters 6 and 6A of the Corporations Act. The requirements in Chapters 6 and 6A apply to both residents and nonresidents but only for acquisitions of securities in companies incorporated in Australia. Disputes regarding control transactions are primarily resolved by the Takeovers Panel. The Panel has published a number of Guidance Notes explaining policy relevant to control transactions. The policy underlying Chapter 6 is that a bid for an Australian target company should be made on the same terms to all holders: s619(1). However, if a bidder is offering scrip consideration, the securities do not need to be offered to foreign holders (holders with a registered address outside Australia) if the bidder appoints a nominee approved by ASIC to sell the scrip that would have been issued to the foreign holders and distribute the net proceeds of sale to the holders: Section 619(3). This nominee procedure should only be used where the bidder is constrained by foreign laws from offering scrip and the bidder risks a declaration of unacceptable circumstances from the Takeovers Panel if that is not the case: ASIC Regulatory Guide 9 Takeover bids at paragraphs 71–72. A pro-rata offer of securities may exclude nonresidents (members with a registered address outside of Australia or New Zealand) but only if the company determines that it is unreasonable to extend the offer to nonresidents having regard to the number of holders in the place where the offer would be made, the number and value of securities the holders would be offered, and the cost of legal compliance: s9A(3)(a). If the pro-rata offer is renounceable, the entity must also appoint a nominee to arrange for the sale of entitlements of any excluded nonresident and distribution of the proceeds to them: s9A(3)(c). These requirements are relevant if the company wishes to rely on the disclosure exemption for rights issues

in s708AA. Similar requirements are also imposed on all entities listed on the Australian Securities Exchange under Listing Rule 7.7.1 (regardless of whether a disclosure document is provided or not). If any person, such as a member or underwriter, needs to rely on the takeovers' exemption for rights issues in item 10 of Section 611, the securities that would otherwise be issued to nonresidents who accept the offer (or the right to acquire those securities) must be transferred to a nominee approved by ASIC to sell and distribute the proceeds of sale to the foreign holders: Section 615. Both of these provisions are intended to facilitate control or capital transactions in circumstances where extending an offer of securities to nonresidents may be constrained by foreign law, or where the cost of compliance with foreign law may be disproportionate to the number of nonresident holders in a particular jurisdiction. ASIC's policy on approval of a nominee for nonresidents is set out in Regulatory Guide – 6 Takeovers: Exceptions to the general prohibition at paragraphs 118–124. Ordinarily ASIC would not approve a nominee for the purposes of s615 if the company was able to make offers to nonresidents. Australian companies which conduct a share buyback must follow the procedure set out in Part 2J.1 of the Act. For an equal-access scheme, all shareholders must be treated equally, including nonresident shareholders. However, ASIC can give individual relief from this legislative requirement to an Australian company to exclude nonresident shareholders from a buyback (which is, in essence, an equal-access scheme) where the company cannot make an offer to some shareholders because of the laws of the country in which they reside, pursuant to Regulatory Guide 110 – Share buybacks at Table 3.

The Treasurer's approval is required to hold more than 20% of the voting shares of an Australian bank. The Treasurer may grant approval only if the shareholding is in the national interest or for recently established companies that are below a specified asset size threshold.

While the Corporations Act usually requires a prospectus or other disclosure document for an offer of securities that is received in Australia, whether from a local or foreign issuer, ASIC has given conditional relief from the prospectus disclosure requirements where a foreign entity makes certain offers to Australian resident shareholders of the foreign entity. The conditional relief for rights issues by foreign companies, foreign scrip takeovers, and schemes of arrangement is subject to certain conditions, including listing of the foreign securities on an approved foreign market. We also give relief for offers that result in securities being issued to 20 or fewer investors in 12 months to Australian residents.

The provision of financial services, including the offers of financial products including shares in Australia, by residents and nonresidents, is subject to Chapter 7 of the Corporations Act. Chapter 7 imposes a requirement on the provider of the financial services to hold an AFSL, such as dealing and advising, and to meet certain requirements about the operation of the financial services business, for example capital requirements. There are limited exceptions to the AFSL requirement.

Effective April 1, 2020, foreign financial service providers (FFSPs) entering the Australia market must apply for an AFSL to provide their financial services to Australian clients. FFSPs were granted a two-year transition period to make arrangements to continue their operations in Australia. ASIC's previous licensing exemptions for foreign providers were replaced with a foreign AFSL process which is available to FFSPs that are licensed and regulated in sufficiently equivalent countries and providing services to Australian wholesale clients. FFSPs that relied on the sufficient equivalence relief and limited connection relief have until March 31, 2023, to obtain an AFSL to continue providing their services to Australian wholesale clients. Previously, FFSPs were exempt from needing to hold an AFSL if they were licensed and regulated in a sufficiently equivalent jurisdiction to offer the same financial services they offered in Australia (sufficient equivalence relief). An FFSP was also not required to hold an AFSL if it was not based in Australia and only taken to carry on a financial services business in Australia because the FFSP was engaging in conduct that was intended to induce people in Australia to use the financial services it provides or was likely to have that effect (limited connection relief). Both forms of relief were limited to providing financial services to Australian wholesale clients.

from the requirement to hold an AFSL in relation to that operation, to register the FCIS in Australia with ASIC, and to issue a compliant disclosure document. ASIC’s policy in relation to the FCIS is set out in Regulatory Guide 178 – FCISs. ASIC can grant relief from the legal provisions, if the applicant who applies complies with ASIC requirements in relation to that relief. Broadly, the relief is based on (1) the regulation by the regulatory regime to which the FCIS is subject to is sufficiently equivalent to ASIC regulation (from a market integrity and systemic risk perspective); (2) there are effective cooperation arrangements between the overseas regulatory authority and the ASIC; and (3) adequate rights and remedies are practically available to Australian investors.

Other exemptions from regulatory requirements may apply in respect of FCIUs under frameworks in the Corporations Act. This currently applies to New Zealand schemes under Chapter 8 of the Act and applies to schemes that seek to register as passport funds in a foreign member economy of the Asia Region Funds Passport (currently Japan, New Zealand, Thailand, and the Republic of Korea) and become notified foreign passport funds in Australia (also a member economy) under Chapter 8A of the Act.

temporary changes to the foreign investment review framework as a COVID-19-related policy measure. From this date, all proposed foreign investments into Australia subject to the Foreign Acquisitions and Takeovers Act 1975 require approval, regardless of value or the nature of the foreign investor that is, a reduced zero-dollar threshold applies to all investment agreements entered into after 10:30 p.m. Australian Eastern Daylight Savings Time March 29, 2020. To ensure sufficient time for screening applications, the FIRB extended timeframes for reviewing applications from 30 days to up to six months. This temporary, zero-dollar monetary threshold was rewound effective January 1, 2021, and the monetary thresholds referred to in (1)–(7) took effect. These monetary thresholds referred to in (1)–(7) are indexed annually January 1 each year, except the threshold for agricultural land exceeding A$15 million (cumulative) and $50 million threshold for investors from Thailand where the agricultural land is used wholly and exclusively for a primary production business.

Effective January 1, 2021, comprehensive reforms to Australia’s foreign investment review framework came into force, including a new national security test, stronger enforcement and compliance powers, a new amalgamated register of foreign owned assets, a fairer and simpler foreign investment application fees, and streamlined approval for lower risk foreign investors.

With respect to the DPRK, under Australia’s autonomous sanctions regime, it is prohibited, without a sanctions permit, to sell or make available (otherwise than by sale) an interest in a commercial activity in an extractive or related industry in Australia to a DPRK person or entity, or those acting on their behalf. Under the UNSC sanctions regime, it is prohibited, without a sanctions permit, to (1) open a representative office in Australia of, or (2) establish a branch or subsidiary in Australia of, or (3) conclude an agreement related to (1) or (2) for or on behalf of: a financial institution domiciled in the DPRK; a branch or subsidiary, wherever located, of a financial institution domiciled in the DPRK; or a financial institution wherever domiciled that is controlled by an entity or person in the DPRK.

With respect to Syria, under Australia’s autonomous sanctions regime, there are prohibitions, without a sanctions permit, on the sale or making available of an interest in a commercial activity in Australia in the oil and gas industry (in the following sectors: refining of fuels, exploration or production of crude oil and natural gas or liquefaction of natural gas) to the Syrian Government, or any Syrian person or entity, or an entity or person acting on their behalf, at their direction or under their control. It is also prohibited, without a sanctions permit, for a Syrian financial institution (or a financial institution controlled by a Syrian person or entity) to open a representative office, branch, or subsidiary in Australia, and acquire an interest in an Australian financial institution. It is also prohibited, without a sanctions permit, to establish a joint venture or a correspondent banking relationship with a Syrian financial institution.

Tax arrangements:

Most states and territories of Australia impose either higher stamp duties on the purchase of real estate by nonresidents or land tax surcharges on the ownership of land by nonresidents or both. These taxes are levied by the state or territory governments, not the Commonwealth Government.

Foreign buyers of properties are subject to additional duty (stamp duty) of 7% in the states of Victoria, Queensland, Western and South Australia. The surcharge purchaser duty (stamp duty) on residential property imposed on foreign buyers is 8% in New South Wales and in Victoria. Effective April 1, 2020, in Tasmania an 8% stamp duty with a 1.5% surcharge applies to foreign purchasers of primary production property (previously, 3% stamp duty with an additional 0.5% surcharge).

New South Wales imposes a land tax surcharge on foreign owners of 2%. In Victoria, the additional land tax surcharge on all land owned by absentee owners is 2%. Queensland has an “absentee” owner surcharge of, effective July 1, 2020, 2% (previously 1.5%) that can apply to absentee individuals, foreign corporations, and trustees of foreign trusts. The Australian Capital Territory (ACT) imposes a 0.75% surcharge on the unimproved land value of foreign investors.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Yes.

Under the Banking Act 1959, a body corporate requires an authorization by the Australian Prudential Regulation Authority (APRA) to conduct banking business in Australia. Foreign banks may operate as locally incorporated subsidiaries or as branches. Branches of foreign Banks are granted an authorized deposit-taking institution (ADI) license subject to a condition specifically restricting the acceptance of retail deposits by their Australian branches. This is because depositors with branches of foreign banks do not have the same protections under the Banking Act as depositors with Australian ADIs. Branches of foreign banks do not have to maintain capital in Australia, as such foreign bank applicants must satisfy APRA that they are subject to adequate supervision in their home country and must have received consent from their home supervisor for establishing a banking operation in Australia. Authorization for licensees providing financial services in emissions units is a requirement. Some new applicants also request authorization to deal in foreign exchange because emissions units' authorizations also include eligible international emissions units. The financial requirements for licensees that issue OTC derivatives to retail clients, including contracts for difference and margin foreign exchange, were increased beginning January 31, 2013, through Class Order 12/752. These requirements are outlined in Regulatory Guide 166. The increases affected some licensees that have foreign exchange authorizations.

The Autonomous Sanctions Regulations of 2011 prohibit: a financial institution from establishing a joint venture, correspondent banking relationship, or a bank account with a Syrian financial institution, or setting up a representative office, branch, or subsidiary in Syria. Syrian financial institutions are prohibited, without a sanctions permit, from opening a representative office, branch, or subsidiary in Australia. They are also prohibited from acquiring interests in Australian financial institutions and establishing a joint venture or correspondent banking relationship with Australian financial institutions. They are also prohibited from the sale of an interest in an Australian financial institution to a Syrian financial institution. They are also prohibited from opening a representative office, branch, or subsidiary in Syria.

Pension funds	Yes.	Most pension (superannuation) funds, other than self-managed funds that are regulated by the Australian Taxation Office (ATO), require APRA licensing under the Registrable Superannuation Entity (RSE) licensing regime. The trustees of these funds must also hold an AFSL that is issued by ASIC and must satisfy conduct and disclosure obligations in the Corporations Act 2001. Effective July 1, 2021, the licensing regime was expanded to require all APRA regulated trustees to hold an AFSL to operate a superannuation fund and removed previous exemptions for non-public offer trustees. This reform was implemented to ensure that all trustees are treated the same way and held to the same standards. Australian financial service (AFS) licensing exemptions in the Corporations Regulations for non-public offer trustees were removed, making them subject to the same legal obligations as trustees of public offer funds. These reforms also extended the scope of conduct obligations that apply to trustees under the Corporations Act 2001. The Superannuation Industry (Supervision) Act 1993 restricts related party transactions (for example, lending to members, in-house assets), but there are limited restrictions on investment. Borrowing is generally prohibited. APRA sets prudential standards in relation to investment governance for RSE licensees (see SPS, SPG, and SRS 530), which includes a requirement for the Board of an RSE licensee to approve investment objectives for each investment option offered in each RSE.

MySuper (default superannuation) products must have a diversified investment strategy, which can be a single strategy, or a lifecycle strategy. To be eligible for concessional taxation, control and management of a complying pension fund must usually be in Australia (or outside Australia for a period of not more than two years). In May 2021, the Government announced its intention to extend this period to five years for self-managed funds from July 1, 2022. For self-managed superannuation funds and small APRA-regulated funds, at least 50% of active members' total market assets must belong to active members who are Australian residents. In May 2021, the Government announced its intention to remove this test for both fund types from July 1, 2022.

Investment firms and collective investment funds Yes.

The operation of investment firms is subject to strict legal requirements under the Corporations Act that outline operations, licensing and compliance obligations, including the FFSPs' regulatory framework.

The operation of retail MIS (collective investment vehicles that issue interests to retail clients) is subject to registration, licensing, conduct, and disclosure provisions under Chapter 5C of the Corporations Act 2001. The Chapter 5C requirements do not apply to wholesale schemes. Where a wholesale scheme is unregistered, it must still meet certain requirements regarding licensing and reporting obligations under the relevant provisions of the Corporations Act. Scheme operators may also be required to obtain licenses under other legislation, depending on the nature of their investments.

For taxation purposes, nonresidents investing through a MIS are treated differently to resident investors. Generally, nonresidents are subject to Australia's withholding tax rules, with income arising from passive income investments (such as shares, rent, or interest) subject to a form of withholding tax, while capital gains are taxed only in respect of nonportfolio interests in taxable Australian property. Australia only imposes taxing rights on Australian sourced income. Domestic (that is, resident) investors are taxed on all incomes at their marginal tax rate.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents No.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad No.

From a tax perspective, there are restrictions on the extent to which a trust can be "closely held" for the purposes of accessing concessional withholding tax rates. One such example is that a trust must not have one nonresident individual holding 10% or more of the participation interests. This restriction applies to both a registered MIS that is a retail trust and a MIS that is a wholesale trust.

	03/29/2020	The Australian Government announced temporary changes to the foreign investment review framework as a COVID-19-related policy measure. From this date, all proposed foreign investments into Australia subject to the Foreign Acquisitions and Takeovers Act 1975 require approval, regardless of value or the nature of the foreign investor – that is, a reduced zero-dollar threshold applies to all investment agreements entered into after 10:30 p.m. Australian Eastern Daylight Savings Time March 29, 2020. To ensure sufficient time for screening applications, the Foreign Investment Review Board extended timeframes for reviewing applications from 30 days to up to six months.
	01/01/2021	The temporary, zero-dollar monetary threshold in force since March 29, 2020, was rewound, and the monetary thresholds that are indexed annually took effect. However, mandatory screening of investments in sensitive national security businesses will continue at the current $0 monetary threshold.
	01/01/2021	All specified monetary thresholds that are indexed on an annual basis were increased within the scope of the foreign investment screening framework.
	01/01/2021	Comprehensive reforms to Australia’s foreign investment review framework came into force, including a new national security test, stronger enforcement and compliance powers, a new amalgamated register of foreign owned assets, a fairer and simpler foreign investment application fees, and streamlined approval for lower risk foreign investors.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2020.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	In accordance with EU regulations and, if applicable, relevant UNSC resolutions, certain restrictions are maintained with respect to certain individuals/entities (a consolidated list of EU sanctions is available at www.sanctionsmap.eu/#/ ). EU sanctions are currently associated with, for example, Belarus, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Burundi, Central African Republic, China, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Guinea (Conakry), Guinea-Bissau, Haiti, the Islamic Republic of Iran, the former government of Iraq, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Lebanon, Libya, Mali, Moldova, Myanmar, Nicaragua, Russia, Somalia, South Sudan, Sudan, Syria, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, Venezuela, the former Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro), Yemen, and Zimbabwe. Restrictions also apply to transfers with respect to the Taliban (Afghanistan), Al-Qaida, ISIL (Da'esh), and individuals and organizations associated with terrorism. New restrictive measures against the proliferation and use of chemical weapons and against cyberattacks threatening the Union or its member states were introduced. Council Regulation (EU) 2019/1890 of November 11, 2019, concerns restrictive measures in view of Turkey's unauthorized drilling activities in the Eastern Mediterranean. Effective March 16, 2021, Council Regulation (EU) 2021/445 of March 12, 2021, repealed Regulation (EU) No 270/2011 concerning restrictive measures directed against certain persons, entities, and bodies in view of the situation in Egypt.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	With regard to EU internal terrorism, these restrictions are established by OeNB (Oesterreichische Nationalbank, Austrian Central Bank) regulations based either on the Austrian Exchange Control Act (Devisengesetz 2004), as amended, or on the Sanctions Act of 2010 (Sanktionengesetz 2010), as amended.

Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Austria participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Yes. The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks, which normally takes place at 2:15 p.m. Central European Time. On July 1, 2016, the ECB changed the publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates (ECB reference rates) from around 2.30 p.m. Central European Time to around 4.00 p.m. Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates. The publication regime aims to reinforce the distinction between exchange rate fixings used as benchmarks for transaction purposes and the ECB reference rates that are published for information purposes only.

To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community." These include a "high level of employment" and "sustainable and non-inflationary growth." Effective July 7, 2021, price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EU regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EU regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EU regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EU regulation; the EU regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Global standards on bank capital and resolution were incorporated into European law by Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 (CRR), Directive 2013/36/EU (CRD IV) and Directive 2014/59/EU (Bank recovery and resolution directive). In Member states whose currency is the euro, the Single Supervisory Mechanism (SSM), the Single Resolution Mechanism (SRM), and the Common Deposit Guarantee Scheme (which is not yet in place) form the European Banking Union. Non-euro Member States may participate if close cooperation has been established. The legal basis for the SSM is Council Regulation (EU) No. 1024/2013; for the SRM, it is Regulation (EU) No. 806/2014. Within the SSM, the ECB directly supervises all so-called significant institutions (SI), while less significant institutions (LSI) remain within the remit of the national supervisory authorities under the ECB's oversight. The Single Resolution Board mandate covers significant institutions and cross-border operating groups. The SRM differs in comparison with the SSM because the decisions of the Single Resolution Board need to be implemented by national resolution authorities to become legally effective. The regulatory framework for credit institutions in Austria, the Federal Banking Act (Bankwesengesetz – BWG), and the national regulations based on this act were revised because of the new European framework. According to Article 69 (5) BWG, FMA follows the guidelines and recommendations and other measures passed by the European Banking Authority (EBA), as well as comply with the warnings and recommendations issued by the European Systemic Risk Board (ESRB). According to Article 9 (1) BWG, credit institutions (as defined in Article 4 (1) No. 1 CRR) that are authorized and established in an EU Member state may conduct activities listed in Annex I CRD IV by the establishment of a branch or under the freedom to provide services. The Federal Act on the Recovery and Resolution of Banks (Bank Recovery and Resolution Act – BaSAG) transposed the BRRD into Austrian law. The BaSAG conveys far-reaching powers to FMA to deal with credit institutions in crisis. To this effect, institutions must submit recovery plans to FMA, while the FMA draws up resolution plans. The Deposit Guarantee Schemes and Investor Compensation Act

		(Einlagensicherungs- und Anlegerentschädigungsgesetz – ESAEG) is in force, which transposes the Deposit Guarantee Schemes Directive (Directive 2014/49/EU). Additionally, laws exist concerning specific requirements for special credit institutions (for example, the Federal Act on Savings and Loan Associations). Regulation (EU) No. 260/2012 establishing technical and business requirements for credit transfers and direct debits in euros is in force, which set up the single euro payments area (SEPA) that replaced national payment services with a common EU-wide payment service.
Borrowing abroad	No.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Lending locally in foreign currency is governed by the FMA's Minimum Standards for the Risk Management and Granting of Foreign Currency Loans and Loans with Repayment Vehicles (FMA-FXTT-MS). The minimum standards aim to impose strict criteria on new foreign currency loans (FCLs) to unhedged private consumers and to require banks to develop strategies to reduce the current high volume of outstanding FCLs. FMA minimum standards are not regulations in the legal sense, but are the supervisory authority's recommendations on limiting risk. They are based on the FMA's mandate to protect the national economic interest and the stability of the financial market (BWG Article 69, paragraph 1) and are linked to the due diligence requirements of managers as specified in BWG Article 39. The exposure of domestic private households to FCLs had been deemed unsustainable by the Austrian authorities. Accordingly, strict regulatory measures were taken (tough interpretation of the minimum standards that restrict FCLs to hedged households or the most creditworthy households).
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Reserve requirements apply to deposits and debt securities up to two years in all currencies. Liabilities from other credit institutions that are already required to hold minimum reserves and liabilities vis-à-vis the ECB are exempt. The current reserve requirement is 1% minus an allowance deduction of €100,000 Pursuant to the Governing Council decision ECB/2019/31 published October 15, 2019, a part of the excess reserves holdings, up to a multiple of the required reserves, is exempt from the negative remuneration. On the basis of this decision, the interest rate of excess reserves holdings up to six times of the required reserves is 0%.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	Liquid asset requirements apply only to deposits held in euros.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	No.	Deposit accounts held by nonresidents are not taxed differently.

Investment regulations	No.
Abroad by banks	No.	According to Article 89 paragraph 3(b) CRR, institutions may not have qualifying holdings exceeding 15% of the eligible capital of the institution in an enterprise that is a nonbank financial institution, nonancillary company, or noninsurance company. The total amount of such holdings may not exceed 60% of eligible capital of the institution.
In banks by nonresidents	No.	According to BWG Articles 20–20b, any party (resident or nonresident) that decides to hold a qualifying participation in a credit institution directly or indirectly, or to increase a qualifying participation directly or indirectly so that it reaches or exceeds the 20%, 30%, or 50% limits of the voting rights or capital – or in a way that causes the credit institution to become a subsidiary of that party – must notify the FMA in writing and indicate the amount of the participation and the information required under BWG Article 20b (3).
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	According to Article 351 CRR, credit institutions must fulfill at all times the minimum capital requirement to cover foreign exchange risk.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	With the transposition of Solvency II into national law entering into force, the prudent person principle for investments has been introduced (Article 124 VAG 2016) and requirements as regards eligible assets for funds covering technical provisions and territorial restrictions referring to these assets have been abandoned (cf. Article 134 of the directive 2009/138/EC). Investments of Austrian insurance companies are regulated in the Versicherungsunternehmen Kapitalanlageverordnung (VU-KAV), subordinated to the Insurance Supervision Act 2016. While under Solvency II the prudent person principle applies to investments, the VU-KAV regulation specifies qualitative requirements for investments (for example, concentration risks, credit risk analysis, derivatives, securities lending, risk management, and specifically prudent requirements for funds covering technical provisions). For small mutual associations and small insurance companies outside the scope of Solvency II restrictions on eligible investments and quantitative limits (Article 72 and 90 VAG 2016, Article 3 Small Mutual Associations Investment Regulation – kV-KAV, Article 3 Small Insurance Undertakings Investment Regulation) continue to be in place.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	For small mutual associations, the following thresholds apply: Individual investments may only be made up to the percentages stated below, based on the carrying amount of the total investment (“individual threshold”): up to 2% each: shares and other variable-yield participations of companies admitted to trading on a regulated market, up to 10% each: (1) debt securities of the same issuer, (2) shares and other variable-yield participations of the same company (eligible participations), (3) units in investment funds of the same fund, (4) loans of the same issuer; up to 30% each: bank balances; up to 35% each: real estate and immovable property rights. The following total investments may only be made up to the percentages stated below, based on the carrying amount of the total investment

Similar regulations apply to Small Insurance Undertakings not subject to Solvency II (Article 4 Small Mutual Associations Investment Regulation – kV-KAV, Article 4 Small Insurance Undertakings Investment Regulation – kVU-KAV).
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Controls apply to (1) the acquisition of real estate outside the EU, if the asset in question is to form part of the cover of the prescribed solvency margin for a local branch of a third country insurance company established in Austria with the solvency regime in the third country not considered equivalent by the European Commission (Article 13 paragraph 4 and Article 14 paragraph 1 No. 6 VAG 2016); (2) the acquisition of real estate abroad, if the asset in question is to form part of the guarantee funds of a local branch of a third country insurance company established in Austria with the solvency regime in the third country not considered equivalent by the European Commission (Article 13 paragraph 4 and Article 14 paragraph 1 No. 6 VAG 2016); (3) loans granted to nonresidents, or for which the designated collateral is located abroad, if the asset in question is to form part of the guarantee funds of a local branch of a third country insurance company established in Austria with the solvency regime in the third country not considered equivalent by the European Commission (Article 13 paragraph 4 and Article 14 paragraph 1 No. 6 VAG 2016); and (4) loans to residents outside the EU, or for which the designated collateral is located outside the EU, if the asset in question is to form part of the cover of the prescribed solvency margin for a local branch of a third country insurance company established in Austria with the solvency regime in the third country not considered equivalent by the European Commission (Article 13 paragraph 4 and Article 14 paragraph 1 No. 6 VAG 2016).
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.

Azerbaijan's de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The exchange rate of manat is determined on the basis of the supply and demand in the interbank foreign exchange market. The sale of foreign currency is realized at auctions organized by the Central Bank to fulfill the transfer obligations of the State Oil Fund to the state budget. The amount of currency to be offered at the auction is announced in advance to the market participants. The results of currency auctions are published immediately. In addition, the Central Bank has the right to intervene in the interbank foreign exchange market, if necessary. Information on the Central Bank's intervention in the foreign exchange market is regularly published. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	According to the law on the CBA, the main goal of monetary policy is price stability. The inflation target for 2021 was $4 \pm 2\%$ . The Central Bank uses intermediate targets such as the exchange rate and the monetary base to keep inflation within the target.
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks freely determine their bid-ask spreads and commissions. There is no concrete legal framework for foreign exchange regulation. However, a definition of foreign exchange contracts is given in the “Rules on margin trading,” as follows: a financial instrument that provides the party to the contract to pay the difference between the initial and final prices of the underlying asset determined by the contract.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The foreign exchange market consists of the interbank (between commercial banks) and the intrabank (between commercial banks and their clients) markets. All commercial banks (26) may participate in both the interbank and intrabank markets.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.	The standing facility was eliminated when the CBA started holding foreign currency auctions through the Bloomberg Auction Platform.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	On January 12, 2017, the CBA introduced one-sided, multiple-price, and competitive auction format, where banks can send up to three different bids with no price and amount restriction. Only banks are allowed to participate in the auctions. Banks are notified about the auction at least thirty minutes before the auction, specifying the time, the direction of operation, as well as the amount of offered currency. The auctions are held two times a week. At the end of the auction, the balance on the correspondent account of each bank is checked. A bank with insufficient funds compared to its order is excluded from the auction. The results of the auctions are published on the CBA website, and the amount sold is published on the website of the State Oil Fund of Azerbaijan. Banks are free to decide to make any transaction with the foreign exchange obtained at the auction. The weighted average rate of both the auction transactions and interbank trades executed on Bloomberg is the official exchange rate for the next day.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	All commercial banks (26) are allowed to freely execute foreign exchange transactions among themselves in the interbank foreign exchange market. All trades are fulfilled on Bloomberg. As of December 31, 2020, 26 commercial banks traded in interbank foreign exchange market on Bloomberg.
Over the counter	Yes.	The interbank foreign exchange market operates over the counter.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	All commercial banks may execute foreign exchange forward transactions. However, this market is in the initial stages of development.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Commercial bank fees and charges are set solely by the banks themselves. For transactions with the public, commercial banks are authorized to charge a commission of 0.50% per US dollar on the purchase and 0.75% per US dollar on the sale of US dollars and 0.50% per pound on the purchase or sale of pounds sterling.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Along with commercial banks, stand-alone money transfer business operators are also included as participants. These operators are licensed by the CBB and make payments to correspondents abroad on behalf of clients. As of December 31, 2020, there are 217 licensed banks, 5 nonbank money transmission service providers, and 21 money transmission agents. Money transmission businesses must obtain Exchange Control approval to deal in foreign currency and operate foreign currency accounts with local commercial banks and abroad. Money transmission businesses do not make foreign exchange transactions directly with the CBB.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	Buying and selling rates for pounds sterling are also officially quoted, with the buying rate based on the rate in the New York market; the selling rate is 0.5% above the buying rate. There is also a market in which investment currency may be negotiated among residents through the CBB.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The CBB buys and sells US dollars at the official rate without a commission and deals only with commercial banks and the government. The CBB and commercial banks (when acting under delegated authority) verify the bona fide nature of each transaction before providing foreign exchange. For pound sterling sales, the CBB adds a commission of 0.5% to the midrate. The CBB deals with commercial banks for a range of transactions.

Forward exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks may provide forward cover for residents who are due to receive or must pay in foreign currency under a contractual commitment. Commercial banks may not, however, sell foreign currency spot to be held on account to cover future requirements without the CBB's permission. ADs may deal forward in foreign currency with nonresidents without prior approval from the CBB. Commercial banks may execute forward deals among themselves at market rates, but they must ensure when carrying out all forward cover arrangements that their open spot or forward position does not exceed 5% of the respective bank's Tier 1 capital.

While the CBB does not itself participate in the forward exchange market, it facilitates swap transactions on behalf of the government of The Bahamas.

Official cover of forward operations No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	The Exchange Control system of The Bahamas makes no distinction among foreign territories. Settlements with residents of foreign countries may be made in any foreign currency or in Bahamian dollars through an external account. Foreign currency is defined as all currencies other than the Bahamian dollar.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	Nonresidents may not access domestic currency for capital purposes; however, they may access domestic currency up to a certain limit for working capital in local businesses they operate.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	Exchange Control regulations apply. Generally, domestic currency may not be used for outward transactions between residents and nonresidents.
For capital transactions	Yes.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Exchange Control approval is required. Generally, domestic currency may not be used for outward transactions between residents and nonresidents.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Exchange Control approval is required. Generally, domestic currency may not be used for outward transactions between residents and nonresidents.
Credit operations	Yes.	Generally, nonresidents may not obtain credit facilities in domestic currency, except for domestic currency overdraft facilities for local businesses owned by nonresidents. Otherwise, local businesses owned by nonresidents are required to obtain credit facilities in proportion to their ownership structure. Temporary residents may receive domestic currency loan facilities on a restricted basis. Resident individuals and wholly Bahamian-owned businesses require Exchange Control approval to obtain foreign currency credit and must demonstrate that efforts have been made, without success, to obtain local financing.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	Officially, all settlements between residents must be made in domestic currency. Foreign currency received domestically from nonresidents (for example, tourism related) must be surrendered to ADs, unless approved by the CBB.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	The Bahamas is a member of CARICOM, but it does not participate in the common market.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	Exchange Control is administered by the CBB, which authorizes ADs to approve allocation of foreign exchange for certain current payments, including for imports up to the equivalent of B$1.0 million and cash gift transfers up to the equivalent of B$15,000 a transaction.

Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Residents, other than ADs, are not permitted to hold or deal in gold bullion. However, residents who are known users of gold for industrial purposes may, with CBB approval, meet their current industrial requirements. There are no restrictions on residents' acquisition or retention of gold coins.
On external trade	No.	ADs are not required to obtain licenses for bullion or coins, and no import duty is imposed on these items. Commercial imports of gold jewelry do not require a license and are duty free, although they are subject to a 10% stamp tax. A 1.5% stamp tax payable to customs is also assessed on commercial shipments of gold jewelry from any source.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers may export banknotes up to a total of B$200. ADs may export Bahamian notes to nonresident banking correspondents against payment in Bahamian dollars from an external account or any foreign currency, Bahamian currency notes in any quantity, provided the AD concerned is satisfied that they are required for the purpose of providing notes for travelers to The Bahamas. In other cases, the prior permission of the CBB is required for the export of Bahamian currency notes. Each application is considered on a case-by-case basis, within defined areas of usage, including, but not limited to, educational, promotional, and government sponsor initiatives.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Bahamian travelers need CBB approval to export foreign banknotes. Providing the requisite documentation, Bahamian travelers may apply to ADs for foreign currency to travel abroad up to a specified amount, beyond which, application must be made to the CB. All foreign currency purchased by resident individuals may be exported. In addition, there are some de-risking protocols that prevent ADs from physically exporting foreign currency to corresponding banks. This facility is actioned through the CB.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Importation is subject to CBB approval. There are no restrictions on the importation of domestic currency banknotes by ADs.
Foreign currency	No.	There is no restriction on the import of foreign currency notes and coins.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Permission from the CBB is required to open and hold foreign exchange accounts. Permission is generally granted to residents earning substantial amounts of foreign exchange who make regular payments abroad. Balances in excess of current requirements must generally be converted to Bahamian dollars. Balances on these accounts may not be transferred abroad without the prior permission of the CBB.

Without prior approval from the CBB, resident businesses may open and maintain foreign currency for operating transactions, from revenues earned in foreign currency, with balances of up to $100,000. The limit applies to accounts maintained in the aggregate, if at multiple commercial banks. Prior CBB approval is required for resident businesses to maintain accounts with balances exceeding $100,000.

Approval required Yes.

Held abroad Yes. Residents may not establish accounts abroad without Exchange Control approval. Such accounts must be maintained in foreign currency, and balances in excess of current requirements must generally be converted to Bahamian dollars.
On application to the CBB, approval will be granted to retain existing foreign currency assets, without penalty, with the right to repatriate the assets or to maintain the holdings outside The Bahamas. Deposits and other assets repatriated to the Bahamas may be retained in foreign currency.
Restrictions remain in place against funding of such foreign-currency-denominated accounts with proceeds converted from Bahamian dollars.

Approval required Yes.

Accounts in domestic currency held abroad No.

Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency Yes. With the permission of the CBB (Exchange Control), balances on accounts held by residents in domestic currency may be converted to foreign currency.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes. These accounts may be credited with (1) payments in foreign currency from residents of The Bahamas with CBB permission, (2) payments in foreign currency from nonresidents, and (3) foreign currency receipts arising from dealings between nonresidents and ADs. These accounts may bear interest. Accounts may be debited for (1) payments to residents or nonresidents, (2) payments to other foreign exchange accounts, and (3) payment of foreign currency costs involved in dealings between nonresidents and ADs.

Approval required No.

Domestic currency accounts Yes. With CBB approval, authorized banks may open external accounts in Bahamian dollars for nonresident companies that have expenses in The Bahamas and for nonresident investors. Authorized banks may freely open external Bahamian dollar accounts for nonresident entities and individual investors that have local expenses. Authorized banks may freely open external accounts in Bahamian dollars for winter residents and other such categories of non-Bahamians—for example, certain temporary residents employed in the Bahamian offshore sector. External accounts in Bahamian dollars must be funded entirely from foreign currency originating abroad, but income from registered investments may be credited to these accounts with CBB approval. These accounts may not bear interest. Balances on these accounts may be transferred abroad freely.

Convertible into foreign currency Yes. These accounts are freely convertible to foreign currency.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	No.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	CBB approval is required to make payments for non-oil imports exceeding the equivalent of B$1.0 million, regardless of origin. This approval is generally given automatically on submission of pro forma invoices, Customs Entry Form, or other relevant documents proving the existence of a purchase contract.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	Transactions must be domiciled with a local AD.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	No.

Other	Yes.	Customs Department Entry Form is required together with pro forma invoice or other documentation proving the existence of a purchase contract.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	The importation of certain commodities is prohibited or controlled for social, humanitarian, or health reasons. For all imports of agricultural products, a permit must be obtained from the Ministry of Agriculture. All other goods may be imported without a license. Customs entries are subject to a stamp tax of 7%.
Open general licenses	Yes.	OGLs must comply with the Agricultural Manufactories Act.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Sanitary or phytosanitary restrictions apply.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Import duties vary from 0% to 210%. The tariff rate on most goods is 35%, and the average tariff rate is 31%. Stamp duties on imports range from 2% to 20%. There is no import duty on certain tourism-related goods, but these goods are subject to stamp duties ranging from 8% to 20%.

Taxes collected through the exchange system No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements Yes. Export proceeds must be collected without delay, that is, it should not be delayed to an extent which is unreasonable having regard to the ordinary course of trade. Without permission by the controller to retain the foreign currency, the proceeds must be repatriated at the earliest opportunity.

Surrender requirements Yes.

Surrender to the central bank No.

Surrender to authorized dealers Yes. Export proceeds must be offered for sale to an AD as soon as the goods have reached their destination or within six months of shipment; alternatively, export proceeds may be used in any manner acceptable to the CBB. Exemption from surrender requires CBB approval.

Financing requirements No.

Documentation requirements No.

Letters of credit No.

Export licenses Yes.

Without quotas Yes. Export licenses are not required, except for crawfish, conch, and arms and ammunition.

With quotas No.

Export taxes No.

Collected through the exchange system No.

Other export taxes No.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers Yes. There are no restrictions on current payments. However, there are limits on the approval authority delegated to commercial banks by the CBB. ADs may make payments to nonresidents on behalf of residents and individuals deemed “temporary residents” for Exchange Control purposes—that is, non-Bahamians authorized to work in The Bahamas for a specified period, for certain services and other invisible transactions, such as commissions, royalties (excluding franchise fees), and education, within specified limits. CBB approval is required for payments in excess of those limits and for categories of payments not delegated to commercial banks.

THE BAHAMAS

Trade-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	CBB approval is required for transactions of more than B$25,000 for unloading and storage costs and commissions.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	Limits are based on pro forma invoices or other relevant documents proving the existence of a service contract.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Approval is based on a bona fide test.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	For all investments with approved status, permission is given on application for the transfer. In light of the COVID-19 pandemic, the CBB suspended, effective March 4, 2020, all Exchange Control approvals for domestic bank dividends.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	No.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	CBB approval is required for travel of more than B$15,000 a person a trip and business travel to facilitate imports.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	ADs may provide up to B$15,000 or its equivalent a person a trip for tourism and other personal travel. The limit on travel for education is B$15,000 a person a trip. For business or professional travel, the limit is B$15,000 a trip. The allowance for tourism travel excludes the cost of fares and travel services, which is generally paid in Bahamian dollars to a travel agent in The Bahamas. Foreign exchange obtained for travel and any unused balance must be surrendered within one week of issue or, if the traveler is still abroad, within one week of returning to The Bahamas.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Approval is based on a bona fide test.
Personal payments	Yes.	There is no limit for medical expenses.
Prior approval	Yes.	Except for the medical expenses, CBB approval is required for amounts exceeding this established limit.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	ADs may provide up to B$25,000 a transaction or its equivalent for payments to education institutions (B$2,500 a transaction if paid to the student), family maintenance, and alimony payments. CBB approval is required for amounts exceeding this limit. Limits are applied per transaction. An AD can facilitate payments to educational institution based on the full amount noted on the bill, as well as payments due under a court order for the total amount.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Approval is based on a bona fide test, including supporting evidence.
Foreign workers' wages	Yes.
Prior approval	No.	Prior approval is not required.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	The limit is 100% of wages and salaries.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	If commitments outside The Bahamas are more than 100% of wages and salaries, additional amounts may be remitted. Temporary residents may also repatriate all their accumulated savings resulting from their employment in The Bahamas.
Credit card use abroad	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	Approval is required for residents to hold an international credit card. Cards may not be used to pay for life insurance premiums and capital

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Residents must collect all proceeds without delay, that is, it should not be delayed to an extent which is unreasonable having regard for ordinary course of trade. Without permission by the controller to retain the foreign currency, the proceeds must be repatriated at the earliest opportunity.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	All foreign currency proceeds must be offered for sale to an AD on receipt. Foreign exchange obtained for travel and any unused balance must be surrendered within one week of issue or, if the traveler is still abroad, within one week of returning to The Bahamas.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	The premium on approved purchases of securities and foreign real estate is 5%, while the premium on rates for investment currency sales by residents is 2.5%. However, certain categories of securities may be negotiated in the official market, with no premium. Cross-listing of Bahamian and foreign companies on CARICOM exchanges is allowed, and limited foreign investment by the National Insurance Board (the public pension fund) is authorized.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Repatriation must occur at the time of liquidation of foreign assets.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	In the event of liquidation of the investment of funds that were initially purchased through the Investment Currency Market (ICM), the proceeds may be sold to the ICM and an element of the premium recovered, on the original capital invested, in line with the offer rate prevailing at the time of liquidation. The current premium on rate for sales is 2.5%.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Earnings on securities and money market instruments purchased abroad by residents must be surrendered to ADs, unless exemption is granted by the CBB. Foreign exchange loans by nonresidents to residents must be converted by an AD to Bahamian dollars, unless exemption is granted by the CBB.
Controls on capital and money market	Yes.	All outward capital transfers require Exchange Control approval, and outflows of resident-owned capital are restricted. Inward transfers by nonresidents, which are encouraged, must be processed through the Exchange Control approval procedure, and the subsequent use of the funds in The Bahamas may also require authorization. Nonresidents may invest in obligations of companies listed on the Bahamas International Securities Exchange up to an aggregate of 10% of the respective issue or offering. They may also invest in public sector securities for which the CBB acts as registrar, subject to an overall limit of B$0.1 million a person or entity.

Operational guidelines apply to issuance of non-sponsored Bahamian depository receipts. Proposed product offerings must be established under the supervision of the Securities Commission (SC) before the CBB is approached for foreign exchange to fund external portfolios. Additional rules are as follows: (1) Mutual funds may retain foreign currency cash in their portfolios up to the maximum percentage of overall assets, as specified or disclosed in the investment policy statements or strategies of the funds. (2) Purchases and sales of foreign exchange against Bahamian dollar facilities must be executed through the CBB. (3) Individual brokers or dealers may pool the foreign exchange allotted to them each quarter, but the resources may not be traded in any commercial sense, because this would be seen as constituting a parallel market in foreign exchange. (4) The CBB prohibits the accumulation of unused quarterly allocations of brokers or dealers.

On capital market securities

Yes.

The Mutual Funds Act and a regulation that provides for licensing of mutual fund administrators and the registration of mutual funds are enforced. The Securities Industry Act authorizes the SC to regulate the stock exchange and its operations.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature

Yes.

Resident companies may invest in equities of Bahamas International Securities Exchange-listed companies, up to 10% of the issue or offering for each investing entity. Resident companies may invest in other private and public sector securities, without limit.

Purchase locally by nonresidents

Yes.

In principle, inward investment by nonresidents is unrestricted. However, CBB approval is required for the issue or transfer of shares in a Bahamian company to a nonresident and for the transfer of control of a Bahamian company to a nonresident. The extent of such approvals generally reflects the government's economic and investment policy guidelines.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents

Yes.

CBB approval is required for the issue and transfer of shares in a Bahamian entity to a nonresident. The extent of such activity is often a function of government economic and investment policy on nonresident ownership in sectors of the economy.

Purchase abroad by residents

Yes.

Residents employed by offshore and foreign-based institutions in The Bahamas may invest in employee stock options or share purchase plans through the official exchange market up to the equivalent of B$10,000 a person a year, on a noncumulative basis for contributory plans. Otherwise, residents may not purchase foreign currency securities with official exchange, export proceeds, or other current earnings; payment must be made with investment currency. All purchases, sales, and swaps of foreign currency securities by residents require CBB permission and are normally effected through authorized agents, who are free to act on behalf of nonresidents in relation to such transactions without additional approval from the CBB at a 5% premium. Certificates relating to ownership of all foreign securities purchased by residents must be held by, or to the order of, an AD.

Investment by pension funds of Bahamian dollar assets in securities issued by nonresidents or in an investment portfolio held abroad must receive CBB approval, and approved transactions must be conducted through the ICM. Limits are imposed by the CBB, in concert with primary regulators (for example, the SC), with respect to portfolios held abroad by investment firms and collective investment funds. Effective May 4, 2020, in relation to the COVID-19 situation, the CBB suspended approvals of applications to purchase foreign currency for transactions via the ICM and the Bahamas Depositary/Depositary Receipt programs, suspending access to foreign exchange for international capital market investments by Bahamians.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Sale proceeds from resident-held foreign currency securities that were registered at the CBB before December 31, 1972, or that were acquired through the ICM are eligible for sale in the ICM. Unregistered securities may be offered for sale at the official rate of exchange.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresident buyers of Bahamian-dollar-denominated securities must fund the acquisition of such securities from foreign currency sources. Interest, dividends, and capital payments on these securities may not be remitted outside The Bahamas, unless the holdings have been properly acquired by nonresidents. There is no minimum holding period for such bonds.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	CBB approval is required and is based on government economic and investment policy on nonresident ownership in sectors of the economy.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes. Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale of residents' foreign securities initially approved by the CBB and acquired via the ICM are eligible for sale in the market. Investors may recover a portion of the original premium paid equivalent to the premium offer rate prevailing at the time of the sale. Investment proceeds that are not premium worthy are recovered at the official market rate through commercial banks.
On money market instruments	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresident buyers of Bahamian-dollar-denominated securities must fund the acquisition of such securities from foreign currency sources. Interest, dividends, and capital payments on these securities may not be remitted outside The Bahamas unless the holdings have been properly acquired by nonresidents.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Prior approval of the CBB is required, but generally restricted.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	CBB approval is required.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	All purchases, sales, and swaps of foreign currency securities by residents require permission from the CBB and are normally effected through authorized agents, who are free to act on behalf of nonresidents in relation to such transactions without any additional approval from the CBB at a 5% premium. All foreign securities purchased by residents of The Bahamas must be held by, or drawn to the order of, an AD. Investment by pension funds of Bahamian dollar assets in securities issued by nonresidents or in an investment portfolio held abroad must receive CBB approval, and approved transactions must be conducted through the ICM. Limits are imposed by the CBB, in concert with primary regulators (for example, the SC), with respect to portfolios held abroad by investment firms and collective investment funds. Effective May 4, 2020, in relation to the COVID-19 situation, the CBB suspended approvals of applications to purchase foreign currency for transactions via the ICM and the Bahamas Depository/Depository Receipt programs, suspending access to foreign exchange for international capital market investments by Bahamians.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	CBB approval is required.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	A resident company wholly owned by nonresidents is not allowed to raise fixed capital in Bahamian dollars, although approval may be granted to obtain working capital in local currency. If the company is partly owned by residents, the amount of local currency borrowing for fixed capital purposes is determined in relation to residents' interest in the equity of the company. However, companies set up by nonresidents primarily to import and distribute products manufactured outside The Bahamas are not allowed to borrow Bahamian dollars from residents for either fixed or working capital; instead, they must provide all their financing in foreign currency. Banks and other lenders resident in The Bahamas must have permission to extend loans in domestic currency to any corporate body (other than a bank) that is resident in The Bahamas but is controlled directly or indirectly by nonresidents. Foreign currency loans are generally permitted on application. Exchange Control approval is required if local real estate is offered as collateral.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Residents other than authorized banks must obtain permission to borrow foreign currency from nonresidents. Residents must also obtain permission to pay interest on, and to repay the principal of, foreign currency loans by conversion of Bahamian dollars. When permission is granted for residents to accept foreign currency loans, it is conditional on the currency being offered for sale without delay to an AD, unless the funds are required to meet specifically authorized payments to nonresidents.
Financial credits	Yes.

By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	CBB approval is required.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	CBB approval is required.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	For direct (that is, not portfolio) investments both in The Bahamas' offshore sector and abroad, residents are permitted to purchase up to $2 million a person or entity via the official market (that is, from ADs), with the prior approval of CBB, subject to an overall limit of $10 million an investor group, a transaction. This facility may be accessed once every three years. These limits apply to investments from which the additional benefits that are expected to accrue to the balance of payments from export receipts, profits, or other earnings within 18 months of the investment will be at least equal to the total amount of the investment and will continue thereafter. Investments abroad that do not meet the above criteria may be financed by foreign currency borrowed on suitable terms, subject to individual approval from the CBB; by foreign currency purchased in the ICM; or by the retained profits of foreign subsidiary companies. Permission is not given for investments that are likely to have adverse effects on the balance of payments. Effective May 4, 2020, in relation to the COVID-19 situation, the CBB suspended approvals of applications to purchase foreign currency for transactions via the ICM and the Bahamas Depository/Depository Receipt programs, suspending access to foreign exchange for international capital market and real estate investments by Bahamians.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	CBB approval is required.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	In the event of a sale or liquidation, nonresident investors may repatriate the proceeds, including any capital appreciation, through the official foreign exchange market.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents require the specific approval of the CBB to buy property outside The Bahamas; such purchases, if for personal use, may be made only with investment currency, and approval is limited to one property a family. Incidental expenses connected with the purchase of property for personal use may generally be met with investment

The premium on approved purchases of foreign real estate through ICM is 5%. The ICM property premium excludes the purchase of time share units abroad, which may be funded at the official rate up to B$25,000 a family unit, once every 10 years. On CBB approval, residential or time share purchases may be made at the official rate, up to a limit of $0.5 million. Payments in excess of this amount will require use of the ICM. Effective May 4, 2020, in relation to the COVID-19 situation, the CBB suspended approvals of applications to purchase foreign currency for transactions via the ICM and the Bahamas Depository/Depository Receipt programs, suspending access to foreign exchange for international capital market and real estate investments by Bahamians.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Foreigners intending to purchase land for commercial purposes or property larger than two acres in size must obtain a permit from the Investments Board. If such an application is approved, payment for the purchase may be made either in Bahamian dollars from an external source or in foreign currency. Nonresidents wishing to purchase property for residential purposes may do so without prior approval but are required to obtain a certificate of registration from the Investments Board on completion of the transaction.
Sale locally by nonresidents	Yes.	CBB approval is required.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.
Loans	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	CBB approval is required.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	CBB approval is required.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Authorized banks may approve foreign exchange transactions for cash gift payments up to B$15,000 a transaction. Larger amounts require CBB approval. Endowments, inheritance, and legacies require CBB approval.
To residents from nonresidents	No.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	Immigrants (that is, work visa and contract workers) are permitted to remit up to half of their wages and salaries annually for the length of their contract. They may also with CBB approval transfer accumulated savings abroad, if needed to meet commitments abroad. Immigrants are permitted to remit up to 100% of wages and salaries annually for the length of contract.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	An emigrant may transfer abroad a maximum of the equivalent of B $250,000 a family unit a year. Excess amounts may be approved by the CBB on an individual basis.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	No.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	Residents are not allowed to remit funds earned from gambling.

Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	In line with the CBB Directive (Ref. EDBO/44/2011) issued to all retail banks within the Bahrain on August 10, 2011, the participation of retail customers/investors in government securities' issuance, in specific, was discussed. The Directive was issued with the objective of promoting greater participation of individuals in the issuance of governmental securities (which must mean treasury bills, government development bonds, and Islamic securities issued by the CBB on behalf of the government of the Bahrain). The Directive is general for all retail banks' customers; therefore, nonresidents are eligible to participate only if they have an account with a retail bank. In summary, it requires any retail bank which is approached by a customer who wishes to acquire government securities to assist that customer by purchasing for him or her on a fiduciary basis and hold such government securities for him or her.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	The CBB Law and the OFS Module in Volume 6 of the CBB Rulebook apply.
Purchase abroad by residents	No.	There are no restrictions on these transactions, provided the regulations of the foreign jurisdiction concerned are satisfied.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	No restriction applies, provided there is no objection by the CBB. As per the CBB Rulebook requirement, in particular, the OFS Module in Volume 6, sale or issue abroad by residents must be subject to the CBB approval, provided the foreign regulator in respective jurisdiction has approved the sale of issue.
On money market instruments	No.	There are no restrictions on these transactions; however, they are regulated to prevent money laundering.

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Bangladesh states that, as of August 7, 2019, Bangladesh maintained one restriction subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2 (a) on the convertibility and transferability of proceeds of current international transactions in nonresident taka accounts (NRTA). (Country Report No. 19/299)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Banks and other financial institutions have been instructed to block all capital transfers and to freeze financial assets of individuals, groups, and organizations associated with terrorism, pursuant to the relevant UNSC resolutions. Banks have been instructed to follow the following provisions in case of international fund transfers. No account may be opened or operated for a listed individual or entity suspected to be involved in terrorism or activities connected with its financing within the purview of different resolutions of the UNSC. Person or entities listed under various resolutions of the UNSC refer to the listed persons or entities under the resolutions defined under Article 2(g) of Anti-Terrorism Rules, 2013. If any account or transaction of any individual/entity directly or indirectly under their control/association is identified, banks must stop the transaction in that account and inform the Bangladesh Financial Intelligence Unit (BFIU) with detailed information within the next working day. As soon as any news on the Financing of Terrorism and Financing of Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction is published in the media and if any account of any person or entity related to that activity is maintained with the bank, detailed information must be reported to the BFIU without any delay. No correspondent banking relationship may be established or maintained with any Shell Bank. Conduct and review transaction, when necessary, to identify if there is any account or any other relationship, under Resolution No. 1373 (2001) of UNSC, on request of foreign government or foreign FIU or any listed or proscribed individual or entity as per the list sent from the BFIU or as per the listed or proscribed individual/entity by the Bangladesh Government. As soon as any account is identified of any listed or proscribed individual or entity, the bank must stop the transaction in that account and inform the BFIU with detailed information within the next working day. As of February 11, 2016, financial institutions and other reporting agencies identified under Section 2(20) of Anti-Terrorism Act, 2009, have been instructed to

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating. The Bangladesh Bank (BB) intervenes in the foreign exchange market to contain undue fluctuations in the exchange rate. ADs in the foreign exchange market independently set their own exchange rates for their customer and inter-bank transactions. The BB publishes information on its intervention on monthly (Major Economic Indicators), quarterly (Bangladesh Bank Quarterly) and annually (Monetary Policy Statement & Annual Report). Publications lags are: 1 month for Major Economic Indicators, 2–3 months for Bangladesh Bank Quarterly, 3–4 weeks for Monetary Policy Statement (MPS), and 5–7 months for Annual Report. Because of handsome surplus in Balance of Payments, Taka faced an unusual appreciation pressure during July, 2020 to June, 2021. BB intervened through net purchase of USD to maintain exchange rate stability. From February 2020, the exchange rate has stabilized within a 2% band against the US dollar. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to stabilized from crawl-like, effective February 3, 2020.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The BB, on the basis of the exchange rate prevailing in the interbank market, calculates the exchange rate of the US$/BDT against major foreign currencies for the purpose of valuation adjustment of foreign exchange reserves, for carrying out transactions related to government's external loans, grants, and aids (receipt/service) in terms of local currency and for market intervention (sale/purchase, when required). To determine the exchange rate of Bangladesh taka (BDT) for a particular date, the latest New York closing exchange rate of major currencies against the US dollar and the US$/BDT exchange rate of the preceding day, which prevailed in the local interbank foreign exchange market, are taken into account. The weighted average US$/BDT exchange rate of the local interbank foreign exchange market is used for the valuation of US$, while cross-rates of other currencies against BDT are used for the valuation of those currencies. The cross-rate is calculated using the US$/BDT exchange rate (low as bid and high as ask) of the local interbank foreign exchange market. The BB publishes exchange rates of the taka against major currencies through its website.

Yes.

The intermediate target of BB's monetary policy is to control monetary aggregate, that is, broad money (M2) to achieve its ultimate goal, that is, price stability. BB uses its monetary policy instruments and open market operation tools to maintain the ceiling of M2 growth target by controlling the growth rate of reserve money as an operating target. BB publishes its MPS on annual basis.

Spot exchange market

ADs are allowed to freely determine their bid-ask spread with bank and nonbank clients.

Yes. Commercial banks participating in the local foreign exchange market may freely determine their exchange rate for interbank and customer transactions.

The BB grants licenses to deal in foreign exchange. There are 1,040 branches of commercial banks (known as AD banks) licensed to deal in foreign exchange with bank and nonbank customers. There are 235 money changers (MCs) and 114 limited MCs granted with licenses to buy foreign currency (FC) from tourists and to sell up to US$1,000 a person as a travel allowance to Bangladesh nationals. MCs are not allowed to transact directly with the CB and are not allowed to maintain account abroad. However, MCs can maintain FC account with ADs in Bangladesh.

Operated by the central bank Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility No.

Currently, there is no foreign exchange standing facility for commercial banks. To ensure smooth functioning of the interbank market, the BB occasionally buys and sells foreign exchange from/to commercial banks considering the exchange position of the banks concerned, underlying transactions, market demand, and liquidity of the overall market.

Allocation Yes.

The BB provides foreign currency support to exporters to bolster export through Export Development Fund. The current limit of the Export Development Fund is US$6 billion. The BB has introduced another two foreign exchange funds. Under the financing agreement with the International Development Association (IDA) regarding implementation of the Financial Sector Support Project (FSSP), the BB provides long-term financing in foreign currency (Long-Term Financing Facility – LTFF) to the eligible banks for on lending/refinancing to mainly small- and medium-scale manufacturing enterprises in the country. This facility is available for purchasing capital machinery and equipment for upgradation, expansion, or for newly setup manufacturing industries, relocating factories to designated industrial zones, etc., with a maturity from 3 to 10 years. Since 2016, the BB has established a revolving fund of US$200 million and EUR200 million named the Green Transformation Fund (GTF) to accelerate sustainable growth in export-oriented textile and leather sectors conducive to transformation of green economy in the country. This fund allows the AD banks to lend to their customers for importing capital machineries and accessories in foreign exchange and the BB refinances the fund to the AD banks. The BB occasionally engaged itself in the foreign exchange market to ensure stability of exchange rate of taka by absorbing excess liquidity and vice versa when needed. In 2020, the BB sold US$629 million to commercial banks. The CB usually does not enter into any deals directly with the government and other public entities.

Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There is an effective interbank foreign exchange market where all 61 commercial banks participate to buy or sell foreign exchange on spot, swap, and forward basis. Since the adoption of the floating exchange rate system May 31, 2003, the exchange rate is determined based on demand and supply of the respective currencies in the market. Swap transactions are also very common and the size of swap transactions is larger than spot transactions. There is no brokerage system currently in the foreign exchange market. To maintain orderly market conditions, the BB remains vigilant over the movements in the foreign exchange market. The BB intervenes occasionally in the market to ensure market liquidity and to smooth the market in the case of unusual volatility.
Over the counter	Yes.	These deals are made on a bilateral basis, and there is no broker or other market-making arrangement.
Brokerage	No.	There is no broker arrangement.
Market making	No.	There is no other market-making arrangement.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	ADs may buy and sell foreign currency forward in accordance with international practices. Currency swaps and forward exchange transactions of ADs with nonbank customers must be backed by approved underlying commercial transactions. Although the limits on outstanding swap transactions have been relaxed, counterparty limits on swap transactions between ADs are determined according to the core risk management guidelines prescribed by the BB. Condition to cover forward sale by forward purchase was waived through FE Circular No. 18 of October 1, 2009. The BB buys and sells on a spot basis only in the foreign exchange market and does not participate in the foreign exchange derivatives market.
Official cover of forward operations	No.	There is no official cover of forward operations.

BANGLADESH

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Settlements generally take place in convertible currencies and, in some cases, through NRTA. The board of directors of the ACU allows the use of euros in addition to US dollars for the settlement of transactions among ACU member countries. Settlements with ACU member countries must be effected through the ACU and in units denominated in AMUs. (ACU dollars and ACU euros are equivalent in value to US$1 and €1, respectively.) The minimum threshold amount for transactions through ACU member CBs under ACU arrangement was set at 500 ACU dollars or ACU euros. As the payment channel for processing “ACU Euro” transactions had been suspended by some correspondents, ADs were advised to suspend operations in “ACU Euro” temporarily. Accordingly, all eligible current account transactions in “ACU Euro” were permitted to be settled outside the ACU mechanism until further notice. To facilitate transactions under ACU mechanism, along with “ACU Dollar,” ADs are advised to resume transactions in “ACU Euro” to settle current account transactions among ACU member countries. In addition, Japanese yen is also a settlement currency in the ACU mechanism.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	Domestic currency held in the NRTAs of overseas bank branches and correspondents against inward remittance in convertible currencies may be used to settle eligible international transactions.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	Payments for imports may be made to any country (with the exception of countries from which imports are prohibited). They may be made in (1) taka for credit in Bangladesh to a nonresident bank account of the country concerned, (2) the currency of the country concerned, or (3) any freely convertible currency. Export proceeds must be received in freely convertible foreign exchange or in taka from a NRTA.
For capital transactions	Yes.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	ADs may hedge the price risk of commodities (traded on exchanges or OTC) of their customers through standard exchange-traded futures and options and OTC commodity derivatives, subject to the BB approval. The use of commodity derivatives is permitted when customers have genuine underlying commodity-price risk exposure. Speculation through the use of commodity derivative instruments is not permitted by the BB.
Credit operations	Yes.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The use of foreign exchange among residents is generally not allowed.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	Yes.	There is a bilateral payments arrangement with Myanmar. Under a MoU signed between Bangladesh and India, there are zones (markets) for border trade between the two countries. Both countries’ exchange regulations are suspended in these zones for trading of goods up to the equivalent of US$100 a day an individual.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	The ACU was established at the initiative of the UN Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP). The Draft Agreement establishing the ACU was finalized in December 1974 after five CBs (India, Iran, Nepal, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka) signed the Agreement. In subsequent years, Bangladesh and Myanmar were the sixth and seventh signatories. Bhutan and Maldives signed the Agreement in 1999 and 2009, respectively, leading to a total of nine members in the ACU.

Clearing agreements	Yes.	The ACU (Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Iran, Maldives, Myanmar, Nepal, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka) is a payment arrangement whereby the participants settle payments for intra-regional transactions among the participating central banks on a net multilateral basis. The main objectives of the clearing union are to facilitate payments among member countries for eligible transactions, thereby economizing on the use of foreign exchange reserves and transfer costs, as well as promoting trade and banking relations among the participating countries.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	Foreign exchange policy is administered by the BB in accordance with the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act (FERA) (1947). Banks may deal in foreign exchange. The chief controller of imports and exports of the Ministry of Commerce is responsible for registering exporters and importers and for issuing import policy orders (IPOs). Registered importers may operate according to the terms of an IPO. LC authorization forms (LCAFs) are issued by ADs and do not require separate import licenses.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the internal sale, purchase, or possession of gold or silver ornaments (including coins) and jewelry.
On external trade	Yes.	The importation and exportation of gold and silver require special permission under the FERA, 1947, which was later amended September 9, 2015. However, women may bring in or take out any amount of personal jewelry they are wearing or carrying in their personal luggage, without approval. Exports of gold jewelry and imports of gold and silver for exports of jewelry manufacture are allowed under the Jewelry Export Scheme. Incoming passengers irrespective of their resident status may bring into Bangladesh gold or silver in bullion/ingot up to the prescribed limit in terms of relevant baggage rules in force issued under the Customs Act, 1969. The BB issues authorized gold dealer licenses for importation of gold bar and jewelry to AD banks and interested organizations.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Residents and nonresidents may take out up to Tk 10,000 in domestic currency.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Residents may take out foreign currency and traveler's checks (TCs) up to the amount of their travel allocation and up to the equivalent of, effective February 3, 2020, US$10,000 (previously US$5,000) brought in without declaration when returning from a visit abroad. Nonresidents may take out the foreign currency and TCs they declared on entry or up to the equivalent of, effective February 3, 2020, US$10,000 (previously US$5,000) brought in without declaration. The limit on foreign exchange (cash, TCs, notes, cards, etc.) that may be taken out from private FC accounts, nonresident foreign currency deposit (NFCD) accounts, and resident foreign currency deposit (RFCD) accounts for travel abroad by presenting a ticket and other travel documents is US$5,000.

Foreign tourists may reconvert unspent taka to foreign currency from the same AD from which the foreign currency was encashed earlier on presentation of the encashment certificate. General permission has been granted to reconvert unspent taka (up to US$100 or its equivalent) at the bank booth in the departure lounge of international airports in Bangladesh on presentation of encashment certificate. Licensed MCs, including bank booth at the airports, are allowed to reconvert the unspent taka to foreign currencies up to US$500 or equivalent for tourists on presentation of encashment certificate.

On imports Yes.

Domestic currency Yes. Residents and nonresidents may bring in up to Tk 10,000 in domestic currency.

Foreign currency No. Foreign currency TCs and notes may be brought in freely up to the equivalent of, effective February 3, 2020, US$10,000 (previously US $5,000); larger amounts must be declared to customs on arrival using the FMJ form.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted Yes.

Held domestically Yes. Residents may open and maintain RFCD accounts with foreign exchange brought in at the time of their return from travel abroad. However, proceeds of export of goods or services from Bangladesh or commission arising from business deals in Bangladesh may not be credited to such accounts. Balances in such accounts are repatriable abroad and may also be used for travel. This account may be opened in US Dollars, Euros, Pound Sterling, or Japanese yen. Interest in foreign exchange is payable on balances in such accounts. FC accounts may be opened in the names of (1) the Diplomatic Bonded Warehouse (duty-free shops) licensed by the Custom Authorities; (2) local and joint venture contracting firms employed to execute projects by foreign/ international agencies; (3) resident Bangladesh nationals working with foreign/international bodies operating in Bangladesh provided their salary is paid in foreign currency; (4) foreign nationals residing in Bangladesh for six months or more; (5) foreign nationals temporarily residing in Bangladesh holding a residential or working visa valid for not less than six months; (6) branch offices/liaison offices of foreign companies operating under approval from Bangladesh Investment Development Authority (BIDA) or other competent authority. Exporters of goods and services may deposit a certain percentage of the repatriated export proceeds in Exporters' Retention Quota (ERQ) accounts with the concerned ADs in USD, Pound Sterling, Euro, or Japanese Yen. Balances in these accounts may be used by the exporters for bonafide business purposes without prior approval of BB. Foreign exchange from the ERQ account cannot be used for investment abroad by the exporter. Transfer of unencumbered foreign currency between the ERQ accounts of same exporter maintained out of export receipts with different ADs is permissible for bonafide transactions, settlement of import liability and repayment of authorized foreign loan of their subsidiaries/sister concerns. ERQ account may be kept as interest bearing renewable term deposits with the concerned ADs. ADs may effect advance payment not exceeding US$25,000 or its equivalent from the ERQ account against bonafide business purposes following certain terms and conditions. Export oriented shipbuilders in Bangladesh are allowed to open and maintain FC accounts in ADs for retaining advance remittances from abroad against ship exports. Balances of these accounts may be used for payment of input procurements. Separate FC accounts may be opened for each ship for receiving and payment on per ship basis. Such account must be closed within one month of delivery of the ship to the foreign buyer by transferring the balance of the account in usual retention quota account or by converting the balance into Taka. To facilitate the payments in foreign currency for handling of FOB imports from their receipts in foreign currency against handling of FOB exports, shipping companies, airlines and multimodal transport operators licensed as freight forwarders by Customs Authorities may open and maintain accounts in US$ or other freely convertible currencies with ADs in Bangladesh. Since May 16, 2019, pursuant to Paragraph 30, Chapter 13 and Paragraph 4, Chapter 20 of the Guidelines for Foreign Exchange Transactions-2018 (GFET), Volume-1, ADs are allowed to credit foreign equity, authorized foreign loan & export proceeds in FC accounts of enterprises (Type A, B & C) operating in specialized economic zones like EPZs, Economic Zones (EZs), and Hi-Tech Parks (HTPs). Since November 17, 2019, eligible enterprises may also receive inward remittances, legitimate receipts against short weight claim, quality claim, freight charge of sample, insurance claims, reimbursement of expenses for samples from buyers or parents, etc.

Prior permission of the BB is not required for issue of shares in favor of nonresidents against foreign investment in Bangladesh. Effective July 7, 2020, dividend payable to foreign shareholders may be credited to their FC accounts maintained in Bangladesh. Crediting these accounts is treated as outward remittance, while encashment of balances is treated as inward remittance. Purchase of shares with funds held in FC accounts is treated as foreign investment. Declared dividends may be used, with treatment as inward remittances for reinvestment in Bangladesh through purchase of shares in existing companies and/or other companies.

Effective July 21, 2020, as a part of ongoing liberalization and to bring uniformity between regulations for enterprises of specialized zones and those of non-specialized zones regarding remittances on account of dividends, ADs are no longer required to forward documents to BB. Concerned AD banks must retain the related documents. Pursuant to BRPD Circular Letter No. 16, effective March 11, 2021, banks are allowed to open accounts through online applications of banks or Government service providing entities like BIDA, Bangladesh Economic Zones Authority, Bangladesh EPZ Authority, Bangladesh Hi-Tech Park Authority, etc., under their one stop service facilities. Effective May 17, 2021, temporary NRTA and temporary FC accounts may be opened in the name of proposed companies of foreign investors contemplating to invest in Bangladesh. Designated banks must observe Simplified Due Diligence in opening these temporary accounts and the regular Customer Due Diligence procedures before transferring balances held in these temporary accounts to the regular accounts immediately after incorporation of the companies along with other relevant instructions.

In terms of Section 18(2) of the FER Act, 1947 (as amended), BB has accorded general authorization to banks and nonbank financial institutions (NBFIs), including resident individuals and institutions, for extending Taka loans to foreign owned/controlled companies. Effective July 21, 2020, because of COVID-19, banks and NBFIs were allowed to extend admissible Taka finance against overseas Effective June 30, 2021, the measure was extended until December 31, 2021. In case of lending by NBFIs, guarantees should be received from ADs issued in terms of paragraph 10(b), Chapter 16 of GFET against back-to-back overseas guarantees.

Held abroad	Yes.	Residents who opened an account abroad when residing abroad may retain it after returning to Bangladesh. To facilitate study abroad by Bangladeshi students in permissible courses, general permission was given to deposit foreign currency to be blocked in designated bank accounts or student accounts abroad for visa/admission processing. Effective July 27, 2021, resident firms contracting to implement projects awarded by project implementing agencies abroad may open bank accounts in the respective countries jointly with nonresident co-partners to credit payments received against the works and short-term loans proceeds from external sources. Balances held in these accounts are useable for settlement of project related bonafide payments abroad.
Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	ADs may open convertible taka accounts in the names of foreign organizations or nationals (that is, diplomatic missions, UN organizations, nonprofit international organizations, foreign contractors, and consultants) engaged in projects of the government or semi government agencies and their expatriate personnel who are resident in Bangladesh. These accounts may be credited with foreign currency brought in or remitted from abroad or transferred from a FC account or another convertible taka account and may be debited for payments in foreign currency abroad, for local expenses, for transfers to FC accounts or other convertible Taka accounts or for credits to a nonconvertible Taka account. Pursuant to Paragraph 30, Chapter 13 and Paragraph 4, Chapter 20 of GFET-2018, Volume-1, ADs are allowed to credit inward remittance and encashments of funds from FC accounts, receipt from taka sales of factory refuses and unusable portion of raw materials in taka accounts on behalf of enterprises (Type A, B & C) operating in specialized economic zones like EPZs, EZs and HTPs. Eligible enterprises may receive inward remittances, legitimate receipts against short weight claim, quality claim, freight charge of sample, insurance claims, reimbursement of expenses for samples from buyers or parents, etc., received in foreign currency or local currency accounts of the enterprises.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	ADs are permitted to open FC accounts in the names of: (1) Bangladesh nationals residing abroad; (2) foreign nationals residing abroad or in Bangladesh and also foreign firms registered abroad and operating in Bangladesh or abroad; and (3) foreign missions and their expatriate employees. The types of income earned by expatriates that may be credited to FC accounts was expanded effective June 23, 2020, effective September 15, 2020, and effective January 1, 2021. Effective July 7, 2020, dividend payable to foreign shareholders may be credited to their FC accounts maintained in Bangladesh. Crediting these accounts is treated as outward remittance, while encashment of balances is treated as inward remittance. Purchase of shares with fund held in FC accounts is treated as foreign investment. Declared dividends may be used with treatment as inward remittances for reinvestment in Bangladesh through purchase of shares in existing companies and/or other companies. Bangladesh nationals working and earning abroad, including self-employed Bangladeshi migrants proceeding abroad on employment, may open FC accounts in Pound Sterling, US Dollar, Euro, or Japanese Yen even without initial deposits. They may operate the accounts themselves or nominate other persons in Bangladesh and maintain them as long as the account holder desires. These accounts may be credited with remittances sent by the account holder or other wage earners. ADs may also credit proceeds of convertible foreign exchange (currency notes, travelers' checks, drafts, etc.) brought into Bangladesh by the account holders while on a temporary visit to Bangladesh. Payments may be made freely abroad for import of goods and commodities, and local disbursements may also be made freely in Taka. Nonresident Bangladeshi (NRBs) may maintain FC accounts and NRTA in Bangladesh. They are also allowed to make direct and portfolio investment in Bangladesh, including investment in saving instruments of Government in the form of time deposits. Effective August 9, 2020, ADs introduced deposit products in taka in the form of savings for a period of one year and above. Taka loans to such deposit product holders for meeting personal needs in Bangladesh may be granted keeping the deposit accounts as lien. In case of NRBs residing in Bangladesh permanently after their return, the proceeds may be made available to them either in one time settlement or pension type monthly/quarterly settlement.

All nonresident Bangladeshi nationals and persons of Bangladesh origin including those having dual nationality and ordinarily residing abroad may maintain interest bearing time deposit accounts named "NFCDA Account" with the ADs. Bangladesh nationals serving with Embassies/High Commissions of Bangladesh in foreign countries and also the officers/staff of the government/semi-government departments/nationalized banks and employees of body corporate posted abroad or deputed with international and regional agencies such as the IMF, World Bank, IDB, ADB, etc., shore staff of Bangladeshi shipping companies, during their assignments abroad, may open such accounts denominated in US Dollar, Pound Sterling, Euro, or Japanese Yen; initially with minimum amount of US$1,000 or Pound Sterling 500 or equivalent. NRBs may, after their return to Bangladesh, open NFCDA accounts with ADs to credit their retirement benefits, periodical pensions, superannuation benefits, etc., per employment agreement with employers while on service abroad and the balances may be used for settlement of legitimate payments abroad. Bank booths operating in airports under license with limited scope from BB may take deposits from NRBs in foreign currency brought in by them for crediting their FC accounts or NRTA (by converting foreign currency at prevailing exchange rate) maintained with concerned AD bank branches. If the foreign currency brought in by NRBs differs from the account type (that is, USD, GBP, etc.) of the account holder, the bank booth converts the currency to the relevant foreign currency at the appropriate cross currency exchange rate to effect the deposit. Foreign nationals and companies registered and/or incorporated abroad, banks, other financial institutions, including institutional investors and 100% foreign-owned (A-Type) industrial units in the EPZs/EZs in Bangladesh, are also allowed to open and maintain NFCDA accounts with ADs with a minimum time deposit of US$25,000 or its equivalent.

All foreign payment obligations by industrial enterprises operating in EZs are met with balances held in their FC accounts. Industrial enterprises operating in DPAs of EZs do not have sources of income in foreign currency. Effective October 4, 2020, to facilitate transactions for meeting foreign payment obligations, ADs may, on behalf of industrial enterprises in DPAs of EZs, effect outward remittance on account of royalty, technical know-how and technical assistance fees from taka account. Effective May 17, 2021, temporary NRTA and temporary FC accounts may be opened in the name of proposed companies of foreign investors contemplating to invest in Bangladesh. Designated banks must observe Simplified Due Diligence in opening these temporary accounts and the regular Customer Due Diligence procedures before transferring balances held in these temporary accounts to the regular accounts immediately after incorporation of the companies along with other relevant instructions. Temporary FC accounts may also be opened by ADs and OBUs (in case of Type A enterprises), for funds remitted from abroad as equity by foreign investors. The regulations to open Temporary NRTA and Temporary FC accounts are equally applicable for proposed companies to be established in EPZs and EZs, subject to observance of the same instructions. Industrial enterprises producing for the local markets and service sector industries are allowed to remit through their nominated ADs up to 1% of annual sales. Effective November 19, 2020, this facility applies equally to industrial enterprises operating in domestic processing areas of EZs having sales in Taka. However, in case of the availability of foreign exchange in the respective FC accounts from legitimate sources, ADs must first use such balances before utilization of their own sources by conversion of Taka funds. Effective December 21, 2020, to improve the ease of doing business and reduce the cost of compliance, ADs are no longer required to submit returns/statements in hardcopy to BB. However, ADs must continue reporting the same information in relevant online portals/modules of BB.

Approval required

No.

Domestic currency accounts

Yes.

Foreign missions and embassies and their expatriate personnel, foreign airlines and shipping companies, and international nonprofit organizations in Bangladesh may open interest-bearing convertible taka accounts, but the interest earned may be disbursed in local currency only. Taka accounts of individuals, firms, or companies residing outside Bangladesh are designated as nonresident accounts. For portfolio investments in Bangladesh through the stock exchange, a nonresident may open a nonresident investor's taka account (NITA) with any AD with foreign exchange remitted from abroad through normal banking channels or through transfer of funds from a foreign exchange account. The balance in the NITA may be used freely to buy Bangladesh shares and other securities. These balances are also freely transferable to foreign exchange accounts opened in the name of (1) Bangladesh nationals residing abroad and Bangladesh nationals working and earning abroad, including self-employed Bangladesh migrants residing abroad; (2) foreign nationals residing abroad or in Bangladesh; (3) foreign firms registered abroad and operating in Bangladesh or abroad; and (4) foreign missions and their expatriate employees. Balances in these accounts are remittable abroad in equivalent foreign exchange. The list of permissible debits from NRTAs is expanded to include, subject to approval or reporting requirements, outward remittances in foreign currency for (1) subsistence expenses for individual account holders and their family members in their country of residence and (2) permissible procurement of goods and services from abroad for institutional account holders. Temporary NRTA may also be opened by scheduled bank branches, apart from ADs for direct and portfolio investment in Bangladesh by foreign investors. Effective August 20, 2020, balances held in NITAs of nonresidents may be used to purchase units of open-end mutual funds as OTC products subject to compliance with the instructions.

Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Funds from NITAs and convertible taka accounts may be converted freely.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	Yes.	Funds in NRTAs from unapproved payments may be blocked by the BB.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.	For private sector imports on usance terms, the interest rate may be LIBOR plus a markup, according to prevailing market conditions and subject to an overall interest maximum of 6% a year. Importers may also obtain buyer credit for import payments from abroad through ADs for a period not exceeding one year; the overall interest cost may not exceed 6% a year. To facilitate short-term import finance, ADs, on behalf of industrial importers, may issue repayment bank guarantees without the BB approval favoring International Islamic Trade Finance Corporation extending short-term buyer's credit up to 180 days for import of industrial raw materials for own use by importers, on sight basis. Effective March 23, 2020, with a view to minimizing COVID-19 pandemic-related disruptions to input imports by industrial importers, ADs may extend the usance periods of the import of industrial raw materials up to a maximum of 360 days instead of 180 days depending on the actual needs of their concerned clients. This relaxation is valid until December 31, 2021. Effective March 24, 2020, ADs may extend the usance periods of the import of life-saving drugs up to maximum of 180 days instead of 90 days depending on the actual needs of their concerned clients. This facility was no longer valid effective April 1, 2021. Effective April 26, 2020, ADs may extend the usance periods of the imports of agricultural implements and chemical fertilizers up to a maximum of 360 days from 180 days. This facility is valid until December 31, 2021. ADs may open LCs on behalf of industrial units to import necessary spare parts of capital machineries for own industrial use up to 360 days usance basis. For such deferred payment imports, the prices must be internationally competitive and all in cost including usance interest must not exceed 6% a year. Since May 5, 2019, the all-in cost ceiling per year for usance period against imports under supplier's/buyer's credit was set at 6-month LIBOR plus 3.5% spread (maximum). Effective June 21, 2021, alternative reference/benchmark rate in the currency of financing, declared by competent bodies, may be applied with prescribed markup of 3.5% a year for permissible usance import under supplier's/buyer's credit. Where forward looking reference/benchmark rate with tenure-link is absent, the relative rate applied as reference/benchmark rate for import finance may be compounded in arrears to calculate effective interest for the tenure of credit. In case of risk-free reference/benchmark rate to be applied for financing, adjustment for risk premium not exceeding 2.5% a year on markup of 3.5% may be added with reference/benchmark rate compounded in advance or in

		arrear as necessary, for the relative tenure. Exporters are allowed to use the unencumbered balances held in the single pool within 30 days to meet the import payments of exporters' subsidiaries/sister concerns.
Minimum financing requirements	No.	Banks may determine the margin requirement on LCs for imports by themselves on the basis of the bank–customer relationship.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	Advance payments up to the equivalent of US$10,000 for imports of any permissible items do not require a repayment guarantee. The limit of advance payment from ERQ accounts is US$25,000 or its equivalent. Effective March 23, 2020, to facilitate urgent medical imports required for containment of COVID-19, ADs may effect, without repayment guarantee, advance payment up to US$500,000 or equivalent other foreign currency for import of coronavirus related life-saving drugs, medical kits/equipment and other essential medical items This facility is valid until December 31, 2021.
Advance import deposits	No.	Banks may determine such requirements on the basis of the bank–customer relationship.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	ADs must observe the following procedures during importation through land ports: (1) Only one port of entry (land port) may be named in the LC. (2) A copy of the LC and subsequent amendments, if any, including other relevant information, must be sent to the land port authority. (3) Sample signatures of the officials working at the import-export desks of the ADs concerned, along with their contact phone and fax numbers, must be supplied to all land ports. (4) ADs' agents or representatives must obtain directly from the land port involved a list of goods entering Bangladesh, a certified invoice, and a bill of entry showing entry of the goods for inclusion in a database accessible to all ADs. Effective March 19, 2020, to facilitate trade transactions in the context of COVID-19, the tenure of submission of bill of entry was extended up to 60 days, as additional time from the specified period of 4 months from the date of payments, for bona fide grounds. This facility is no longer valid effective October 1, 2020. (5) LCs must not contain any reimbursement or debit authority; rather, they must stipulate the following payment terms: “on receipt of documents complying with credit terms, we must effect payment as per instructions of the negotiating bank or collecting bank.” (6) LCs covering more than US$5,000 or its equivalent must be sent through the SWIFT system to the advising bank. Pursuant to Order No. 288/2017/Customs/529 of December 21, 2017, transactions between enterprises operating in Domestic Processing Area of EZs and in Tariff Area of Bangladesh may be settled in taka without observance of regulatory procedures such as EXP Form for export and IMP Form for import. To support the transactions by EZ enterprises, irrespective of their ownership status, their liabilities for imports and other permissible expenses may be settled out of the fund held in their taka accounts.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.	Preshipment inspection, except for those products prescribed in Import Policy Order, 2015-2018, is not mandatory.
Letters of credit	Yes.	Payment against imports is generally permissible only under irrevocable LCs. However, consignment of quickly perishable food goods worth US$50,000 via Teknaf Customs Station, essential food goods and raw materials used in industry worth US$10,000, and capital machinery irrespective of price limit via other custom land stations may be imported against LCAF without LC as instructed in Import Policy Order, 2015-2018, Chapter 2, Paragraph 8 (3). Capital machinery and industrial raw materials may also be imported without LCs and without limit on value. Recognized export-oriented units operating under the bonded warehouse system may import up to four months' supply of their raw and packing materials by establishing import LCs without reference to an export LC. They may also effect such imports by opening back-to-back LCs (either on a sight basis under the Export Development Fund or for up to 180 days on a usage basis) against export LCs received by them. Effective March 19, 2020, and valid until December 31, 2021, for facilitation of trade transactions in the context of COVID-19, usance period of back-to-back LCs opened under supplier's/buyer's credit may be extended on banker–customer relationship within the admissible rate of interest up to 180 days, as additional time from the permissible period of 180 days, for bona fide grounds required to settle the payments. Effective June 11, 2020, with a view to facilitating export trade during COVID-19 without requiring permission of BB, input procurements under back-to-back LCs/usance LCs may be issued with realization clause on behalf of exporters operating outside specialized zones provided: (1) ADs verify the execution of the export orders; (2) there is a transparent arrangement under which suppliers are in agreement to accept the relevant LCs with realization clause; (3) LC liabilities will not be settled under “net-off” arrangement with export proceeds. ADs may establish LCs on a c.f.r., c.p.t., or f.o.b. basis without the BB approval. Imports may also be on a delivered at terminal (d.a.t.) or delivered at place (d.a.p.) basis. Importation on a c.i.f. or c.i.p. basis requires the permission of the Ministry of Commerce. Foreign exchange for authorized imports is provided automatically by ADs when payments are due. The maximum import value (through an LC or contract) for a mandatory credit report of foreign suppliers by ADs is US$10,000 if a pro forma invoice is issued directly by the foreign supplier and US$20,000 if orders are issued by the foreign supplier's local agent.

To facilitate the remittances for import payment against expired LCAF which are restricted without obtaining its revalidation, ADs may effect remittances within 30 months of LCAF issuance against import of capital machinery without obtaining its revalidation. Revalidation of LCAF will not be required for remittances against import out of fund held in FC accounts of importers maintained under general or special authorization from the BB. LCAFs issued for the import of hot-rolled coil, scrap, pig iron, and sponge iron for manufacturing of flat and long steel for use in own factories of steel industries on a 360-day deferred payment basis are valid for remittances for 18 months following the month of issuance. LCAFs may also be signed by lawful representative(s) of the importer.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses

No.

LCAFs are issued by ADs and do not require a separate import license.

Other

Yes.

ADs are not permitted to open new LCs for importers who have failed to submit the bills of entry of imports or customs-certified invoices as evidence of actual importation of such goods within the stipulated time period.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures

Yes.

All importers (including all government departments, with the exception of the Ministry of Defense) are required to obtain LCAFs for imports. Under the authority of the IPO issued by the chief controller, importers may effect imports against LCAFs issued for imports under bilateral trade or payments agreements and for imports under tied-aid programs. LCAFs are otherwise valid worldwide, except for imports from Israel and imports transported on Israeli flag vessels, which are prohibited. Goods must be shipped within 30 months of the date of issuance of LCAFs in the case of machinery and spare parts, and 12 months in the case of all other items. ADs may effect import payment within 30 months of issuance of LCAF

		against import of capital machinery and spare parts. Revaluation of LCAF will not be required for such remittances against import out of fund held in importer's FC accounts maintained under general or special authorization from the BB. LCAFs issued for import of capital machinery and spares are valid for remittances for 18 months from the month of issuance. Incoming passengers irrespective of their resident status may bring into Bangladesh gold or silver in bullion/ingot up to the prescribed limit in terms of relevant baggage rules in force issued under the Customs Act, 1969.
Positive list	No.	All the items are importable freely pursuant to the provisions of the IPO 2015–2018 (replacing IPO 2012–2015), except the banned items therein the footnote of the prohibited lists and the list of controlled items subject to fulfillment of certain conditions specified attached concerned page of the IPO 2015–2018 (Annexure-1).
Negative list	Yes.	The goods are not importable if they are specified in the footnotes of the prohibited lists (Annexure-1).
Open general licenses	No.	Unless otherwise specified, no import license is required for imports. Importers with a valid Import Registration Certificate (IRC) may import any kind of goods against the ceiling value, except the goods specified in the prohibited lists.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Unless otherwise specified in the IPO 2015–2018, industrial units approved on a regular basis are allowed to import up to 300% of their regular import entitlement of items whose import is banned for commercial purpose and that are importable by industrial consumers only. Industrial units approved on an ad hoc basis are allowed to import up to the maximum value limit, not exceeding 100% of their half-yearly import entitlement.
Other nontariff measures	No.	As a member of the WTO and regional trade organizations, Bangladesh is liberalizing its trade policies gradually and is maintaining non-discriminating measures. The country is also not applying nontariff measures to restrict imports and exports, except the prohibited and restricted items of goods therein the Annexure-1 in line with the WTO Agreements.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The tariff bands are 0%, 1%, 5%, 10%, 15%, and 25%. A number of goods are subject to supplementary duties.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from exports must be repatriated within four months of shipment, unless otherwise permitted by the BB. Effective March 19, 2020, because of COVID-19, it was allowed to extend the tenure of realization of export proceeds up to 60 days, as additional time from the specified period of 4 months from the date of shipment, for bona fide grounds. Effective July 23, 2020, the facility to extend the tenure of realization was increased to 90 days until March 31, 2021. Effective April 1, 2021, the facility was extended until June 30, 2021. Effective August 1, 2021, the facility was extended until December 31, 2021.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Exporters are required to repatriate export proceeds within the statutory period and to sell the proceeds to ADs exceeding the

	eligible portion retainable in foreign exchange in single pool and ERQ. Industrial units located at specialized economic zones may also retain their export proceeds in FC accounts up to the eligible portion. For ERQ: Merchandise exporters may retain 60% of repatriated FOB value of their exports in foreign exchange in ERQ accounts. For exports of goods having high import content (low domestic value-added), the retention quota is 15% of the repatriated FOB value. Exporters of ICT related services may retain 70% of net export earnings in ERQ accounts, and service exporters other than ICT related services may maintain 60% of their export receipts in ERQ. Balances in these accounts may be used by the exporters for bona fide business purposes. For Single Pool: Export proceeds may be retained in a single pool after encashment of value for settlement of back-to-back LCs. For import payments other than back-to-back LCs, proceeds may be retained in single pool up to 30 days. For FC accounts for industrial units in zone areas: Type A industries operating in EPZs may retain 100% of their export earnings in FC accounts. Up to 80% of the repatriated export proceeds of Type B and Type C units other than those in the garments sector may be retained in FC Accounts; for a Type B or Type C unit in the garments sector, up to 75% of the repatriated export proceeds may be credited to FC accounts. The facilities are equally applicable for industries located at EZs and HTPs.
Financing requirements	Yes. The following apply to pre-shipment financing in foreign exchange. (1) Back-to-back LCs: To procure input requirements for execution of export orders, exporters are allowed to open back-to-back import LCs/inland back-to-back LCs in foreign exchange against export LCs received by them. Settlement of back-to-back LCs must be made with export proceeds. (2) Suppliers'/buyers' credit: Exporters may obtain supplier's/buyer's credit from abroad at all-in-cost of 6-month LIBOR plus 3.5% a year, for making payments against their imports under deferred payment/usance term. Regarding post-shipment financing in foreign exchange, to obtain immediate financing, beneficiaries of usance export bills are permitted to avail bill discounting facilities at overall cost not exceeding 6-month LIBOR plus 3.5% a year. Regarding early payment against sales under open account, export on sales contracts under open account credit terms is allowed against payment undertaking/payment risk coverage by designated institutions abroad with option for early payment arrangement on non-recourse basis. Expenses to exporters for guarantee commission against payment undertaking/payment risk coverage, and interest with relevant charges for early payment against export bills/receivables may not exceed 6-month US$ LIBOR plus 3.5% a year.
Documentation requirements	Yes. Declaration of exports: Declaration on EXP Form must be submitted by exporters to the Customs Authority or another relevant authority, such as BB. Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	Payments for invisible transactions related to authorized trade transactions are generally not restricted.
Trade-related payments	Yes.	ADs may pay freight charges to foreign shipowners for ships chartered by importers in Bangladesh without the BB approval. Importers may make payments of freight charges for f.o.b. imports as declared in an LCAF to the shipping lines/airlines/licensed freight forwarders in foreign currency. Shipping lines/airlines may also accept payment in foreign currency from freight forwarders for handling of f.o.b. exports. foreign currency deposited in FC accounts of shipping lines/airlines against freight charges on f.o.b. exports from licensed freight forwarders may be used for outward remittances on account of surplus earnings. Balances in FC accounts must first be used for outward remittances before use of local currency funds. AD banks must ensure the encashment of adequate foreign currency by the shipping lines/airlines to meet local expenses in case of shortfall in local currency funds. In view of wider scope of fund sources in Bangladesh, the legitimate charges (charges of demurrage, detention, handling or equivalent charges) in addition to freight charges are also allowed to be considered for calculation of remittable surplus of foreign shipping lines/their agents working in Bangladesh subject to deduction of taxes and commission. The list of permissible debits from NRTAs includes, subject to approval or reporting requirements, outward remittances in foreign currency for the purposes of permissible procurement of goods and services from abroad for institutional account holders. To facilitate smooth operations of branches of foreign banking companies in Bangladesh, ADs are allowed to remit head office expenses without prior approval from the BB subject to observance of some instructions which is allocated by the head office to their branches in accordance with standard practices. Funds from Personal FC accounts may be used for payment of admissible imports in terms of the IPO in force. Effective March 19, 2020, to facilitate trade transaction in the context of COVID-19, the following were extended: (1) the tenure of realization of export proceeds up to 60 days, (2) the tenure of submission of bill of entry up to 60 days, and (3) the usance period of back-to-back LCs opened under supplier/buyer credit on bank–customer relationship within the admissible rate of interest of up to 180 days.

Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Payment abroad of commissions or discounts and remittances for operating expenses is subject to indicative limits and verification. Purchases by individuals in border markets, from the respective local currency, are limited to the equivalent of US$100. Besides the ERQ, the remittable amount for IT and/or software firms is US$30,000. Within this limit, the amount that can be made through international cards is US$6,000. To facilitate export trade in meeting urgent needs, ADs are allowed to provide remittance facilities to the exporters for bona fide service payments to beneficiary’s bank account abroad up to US$5,000 or equivalent.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	Yes.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	ADs may remit dividends to nonresident shareholders without the BB approval on receipt of an application from the company concerned. Applications must be supported by an audited balance sheet; a profit and loss statement; and a board resolution declaring to the head office dividends from profits earned from foreign firms, banks, insurance companies, and other financial institutions operating in Bangladesh. Effective July 21, 2020, the requirement of document submission to BB for ex post verification of remittances on account of dividend was removed. Previously, these remittances were subject to ex post checks by the BB. No approval is required for remittances on loans if a loan agreement has been cleared by the BIDA. Local stock brokerage firms acting in Bangladesh on behalf of foreign stock brokerage firms may repatriate, without the BB approval, a share of commission earnings to the respective foreign firms against services rendered to foreign portfolio investors for investment in Bangladesh. Private sector industrial enterprises approved by BIDA may release foreign exchange on account of royalty, fees for technical knowledge or technical assistance, and franchise fees to foreign persons or institutes through AD banks in accordance with the prescribed manner as defined by BIDA (BIDA guidelines of March 20, 2021, further circulated through FE Circular Letter No. 7 of April 11, 2021). Effective July 21, 2020, submission of documents against dividends payable to foreign shareholders on behalf of enterprises operating in EZs/HTPs/EPZs (specialized zones) was waived pursuant to Paragraph 9, Chapter 20 of GFET.

Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	The indicative limit for private travel was increased to US$12,000 or equivalent an adult passenger a calendar year from US$5,000 and US$7,000 for travel to South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation (SAARC) member countries (Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Bhutan, India, Maldives, Nepal, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka) and Myanmar, and for travel to other countries, respectively. For minors (below 12 years of age), the applicable quota, as before, is half the amount for adults. The entire unused balance may be released to individuals traveling abroad with a one-way ticket, if it is for valid job or migration purposes. ADs may release foreign exchange without visa to the resident Bangladesh nationals proceeding to the countries/zones with provision of visa on port of entry/arrival basis up to the unused annual travel quota entitlement applicable for the country concerned subject to complying with other relevant instructions. The facility will also be applicable for official visits abroad by the officials of government/semi-government and autonomous bodies. ADs and Licensed MCs may release foreign exchange on account of overseas allowances of the cockpit and cabin crews of Biman Bangladesh Airlines Ltd. Releasable foreign currency in cash US dollar notes for outgoing Bangladeshi residents is US$5,000 a person a trip from their annual entitlement applicable for personal travel quota/business travel quota/treatment abroad/immigration/higher education or other specially or generally approved purposes. The remainder or full amount of quota may be released in other freely convertible foreign currencies in cash or in international cards. The business travel quota entitlement was revised in 2014. New exporters, importers, and producers for the local market are entitled to foreign exchange for travel abroad of US$400 a day, subject to a limit of US$4,000 a trip and US$10,000 a calendar year. Established exporters may also use balances in their ERQ (15% of exports of goods with high import content, such as RMGs, and 60% of repatriated export proceeds of merchandise and services) for business travel abroad. Senior-level (top two tiers) expatriates in Bangladesh under valid visas and work permits are entitled to the same business travel allowance as Bangladesh nationals, which may be used through international credit/debit cards. Higher amounts require documentation. Foreign exchange quota for business travel abroad is also applicable for local agents operating in Bangladesh on behalf of foreign principals. Since October 3, 2019, ADs may release foreign exchange in favor of private sector participants for attending seminar, conference, workshops, training, etc., abroad up to US$400 per diem irrespective of the countries of destination.

family members live as declared by them in the prescribed application form. To facilitate payment of remuneration, net income of foreign nationals employed in branch offices/liaison offices of foreign companies duly approved by BIDA may be credited to their FC accounts. Effective March 22, 2020, to facilitate the remittance on account of bonus payments, foreign nationals may remit up to 75% of their bonus after deduction and payment of applicable taxes in one transaction. Previously, it had to be spread over the subsequent 12 months.

Resident and nonresident Bangladesh nationals and foreign nationals may use abroad international credit cards (ICCs), debit cards, and prepaid cards issued by ADs in Bangladesh under different entitlements or different account balances. ICCs may be used for online payment to settle remittances for membership fees of foreign professional and scientific institutions and fees for application, registration, admission, and examination in connection with admission to a foreign educational institution. Individuals who do not have their own ICCs may make such online payments with a “virtual card.” ICCs issued under different entitlements may also be used for online hotel booking by the cardholders when traveling abroad. Visa processing fees may be remitted through online using international cards or virtual cards. The limit of ICCs for online payment was US$300 or its equivalent for transaction against legitimate purchases of goods and services (downloadable application software, e-books, magazine/newspaper subscription fees, etc.) from reputed and reliable sources abroad. ICC holders may also make online payments for such purchases up to their available unused annual travel allowance plus an additional amount not exceeding US$1,000 annually. ICC holders must fulfill tax/duty payment obligations for such payments. Eligible individual developers/freelancers of mobile applications (apps) and games may remit foreign exchange for allowable IT expenses through the use of a virtual card, up to US$300 or its equivalent a calendar year. To enhance the scope of business travel abroad by officials of enterprises located in EPZs and EZs, card issuing banks are allowed to issue International Debit/Prepaid card up to three top tier officials of concerned enterprises against balances held in FC accounts. EPZs and EZs enterprises can avail such card facility from one card issuing bank only. ADs may issue International Debit/Prepaid/Credit cards in favor of Bangladeshi medical centers accredited by Gulf Health Council (GHC) to pay only the registration fee for medical checkup services of Bangladesh nationals proceeding abroad for employment in member countries of GCC. ADs must make necessary arrangements to guard against illegitimate online payments abroad through International Cards from Bangladesh, for example, payments for participation in online casino/gambling, trading in foreign exchange/stock exchanges, purchase of cryptocurrencies/lottery tickets, and purchase of goods/services that originated in Bangladesh. Effective June 16, 2020, ADs may issue international debit cards in favor of eligible persons against their annual travel entitlements subject to observance of several instructions. Effective September 20, 2020, online payment from Bangladesh may be executed for actual payment against the following transactions, subject to admissible annual entitlements or balances of FC accounts linked to the concerned cards: (1) Bona fide payments by BASIS member IT/software firms (cf. paragraph 11, chapter 19 of GFET); (2) Membership fees, etc. (cf. paragraph 12, chapter 19 of GFET); (3) IT expenses (cf. paragraph 13, chapter 19 of GFET and FE Circular No. 33 of September 09, 2019); (4) Visa processing fees (cf. paragraph 14, chapter 19 of GFET); (5) Hotel booking (cf. paragraph 16, chapter 19 of GFET); (6) Mobile phone roaming bills (cf. paragraph 18, chapter 19 of GFET).

Effective September 24, 2020, for online purchase of air tickets by travelers between destinations outside Bangladesh, international cards may be used. Bangladeshi travel operators may also provide through ADs such ticketing services to travelers for movements between destinations outside Bangladesh against payments by international cards.

Effective May 2, 2021, ADs may allow annual remittance facilities of US$10,000 or its equivalent to a member firm of e-Commerce Association of Bangladesh for meeting bona fide current expenses abroad through traditional banking channels or a card. ADs may issue refillable international credit/pre-paid card with US$2,000 to the nominated official of the remitter within the limit. Aggregate refills in cards and remittances by banking channels may not exceed US$10,000 a calendar year.

Outward remittances on account of royalty, technical knowledge/technical know-how fee, technical assistance fee and franchise fee must follow the BIDA guidelines circulated in FE Circular Letter No. 07 of April 11, 2021.

Effective May 31, 2021, ADs may use international card channels as alternative to traditional banking channel to effect outward remittances on behalf of customers for permissible payments in accordance with GFET and its subsequent circulars as follows:

- (1) Remittance for IT expenses as per paragraph 40, chapter 10 of GFET for non-cardholder individuals;
- (2) Membership fees, fees for application, registration, admission, examination, etc., as per paragraph 9, chapter 11 of GFET for non-cardholder individuals;
- (3) Release of foreign exchange for study abroad as per paragraph 10, chapter 11 of GFET;
- (4) Remittance of visa fees abroad as per paragraph 11(B), chapter 11 of GFET for non-cardholder individuals;
- (5) Remittance of immigration visa processing fees, evaluation fees, right of landing fees as per paragraph 12, chapter 11 of GFET for non-cardholder individuals;
- (6) Registration/participation fee for attending training, seminar, workshop abroad as per paragraph 14, chapter 11 of GFET;
- (7) Remittance for academic/research journal subscription as per paragraph 15, chapter 11 of GFET;
- (8) Remittance towards publication related fees of articles in international journals as per paragraph 16, chapter 11 of GFET;
- (9) Release of foreign exchange for travel on health ground as per paragraph 2, chapter 12 of GFET, provided total release through cash and international cards does not exceed the permissible limit;
- (10) Remittance on account of tour operators out of balances held in FC accounts as per paragraph 22(f), chapter 12 of GFET; and
- (11) Periodical remittances to counterparts abroad by travel operators as per paragraph 2(a), FE Circular No. 40 of September 24, 2020.

No.

General approval has been given for issuance of international credit, debit, and prepaid cards for use abroad by resident Bangladesh nationals issued against (1) balances in ERQs; (2) individual annual personal travel quota entitlements; (3) balances in RFCD accounts; (4) foreign exchange entitlements (established by the government for each person intending to perform Hajj) of approved private Hajj agencies for food and lodging expenses of pilgrims in Saudi Arabia; (5) foreign exchange entitlements established by the MOF or an appropriate authority for official or semiofficial visits abroad by government officials, autonomous and semiautonomous institutions, and so forth; (6) per diem foreign exchange entitlements for private sector participants attending seminars, conferences, and workshops abroad arranged by recognized international organizations; (7) personal entitlements established yearly by the government for pilgrims intending to perform Hajj; (8) against balance in private FC accounts; (9) against annual entitlement for IT/software firms; (10) against membership fees, examination fees, etc.; (11) against business travel quota entitlement; (12) against IT expenses; and (13) against visa processing fees. ADs may issue debit cards to NRBs and foreign nationals against the balances held in foreign exchange accounts opened and maintained with them. Effective June 16, 2020, ADs may issue international debit cards in favor of eligible persons against their annual travel entitlements subject to observance of several instructions.

Quantitative limits	Yes.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Transfers may be made up to the amount of the balance in respective foreign exchange accounts and respective entitlements.
Other payments	Yes.	Banks may remit registration fees for attendance at training, seminars, and workshops abroad by officials of government, autonomous/semiautonomous entities, and banks and banking training institutions. Banks may also remit registration fees for officials of the private corporate sector and nongovernmental organizations (NGOs) who attend training, seminars, and workshops abroad without the BB permission. Effective November 19, 2020, ADs no longer need to seek a first-time approval from BB to effect remittances on account of maintenance/support fees of proprietary/specialized software subject to observance of prescribed instructions. Permissible debits from NRTAs include, subject to approval and reporting requirements, outward remittances in foreign currency for permissible procurement of goods and services from abroad for institutional account holders. ADs may remit funds for membership/affiliation fees of local business/professional entities to professional/scientific institutions abroad. AD banks may effect remittance toward the cost of advertisement of Bangladeshi products in foreign electronic and online media in dynamic, image, video, interactive, and/or other formats, after verifying the genuineness and bona fide of the requests through agreement and invoices and after deducting all applicable taxes.
Prior approval	Yes.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	ADs may effect remittances on account of royalties, technical knowledge/technical know-how, technical assistance fee(s) by firms registered with the BIDA subject to the BIDA guidelines of March 20, 2021, further circulated through FE Circular Letter No. 7 of April 11, 2021. Permission of BB is not required for these transactions.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Effective November 19, 2020, industrial enterprises producing for local markets and service sector industries are allowed to remit through their nominated ADs up to 1% of annual sales as declared in their previous year's income tax or US$100,000, whichever is higher, for paying legitimate current account payments, such as audit fee, certification fee, commissioning fee, testing fee, valuation fee, etc. Previously, the authorization was applicable only for payment of training and consultancy fees.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	ADs were allowed to repatriate remittances against small-value service exports in nonphysical form up to US$10,000 per transaction through Online Payment Gateway Service Providers (OPGSPs).
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.

BANGLADESH

Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Exporters of services must sell to ADs not less than 40% of receipts in foreign exchange and may use retained earnings for valid business purposes. Bangladeshis working abroad may retain their earnings in foreign exchange accounts or in NFXD accounts. Unless they have an exemption from the BB, resident Bangladeshis must sell to an AD any foreign exchange they receive, whether held in Bangladesh or abroad, within one month of receipt. However, returning residents may keep, in foreign exchange accounts in their names, foreign exchange they brought in, provided it does not represent proceeds from exports from Bangladesh or commissions earned from business activities in Bangladesh. Residents must declare inward remittances from abroad, except remittances by Bangladeshis working abroad, using Form C for amounts exceeding US$10,000 or its equivalent. Foreigners residing in Bangladesh for more than six consecutive months must sell within one month of the date of receipt foreign exchange earned from business conducted in Bangladesh or services rendered while in Bangladesh. The BB allows receipt of proceeds from small-value service exports, such as data entry/data processing, offshore IT services, BPO, etc., through online payment service providers up to US$10,000 or equivalent an instance. Service providers receive payments through banks set up to receive online payments from abroad. ADs may handle inward remittances for BPO by residents, for which the retention quota is up to 60% of repatriated foreign exchange. ADs may provide facilities to credit inward remittances received in international card number/account against the services provided by individual developers/freelancers. In this context, ADs are allowed to issue to individual developers/freelancers international cards (termed as “Freelancer Card”) having dual currency units with features of being prepaid from abroad. Effective February 10, 2021, to facilitate small value ITES exports, Mobile Financial Service Providers (MFSPs) licensed by BB may repatriate export proceeds in association with internationally recognized Online Payment Gateway Service Providers/digital wallets and/or aggregators having operation in multiple countries. Effective May 2, 2021, to facilitate e-commerce trade in the country, ADs may allow annual remittance facilities of US$10,000 or its equivalent to a member firm of e-Commerce Association of Bangladesh for meeting bona fide current expenses abroad through traditional banking channel or a card. ADs may issue refillable international credit/pre-paid card with US$2,000 to the nominated official of the remitter within the limit. Aggregate refills in cards and remittances by banking channel may not exceed US $10,000 a calendar year.
Restrictions on use of funds	Yes.	Retained foreign exchange may be used for travel abroad or bona fide business purposes.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	These transactions are not allowed.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Export payments deferred for more than 120 days require the BB authorization.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Effective March 23, 2020, with a view to minimizing COVID-19 pandemic-related disruptions to input imports by industrial importers, ADs may extend the usance periods of the import of industrial raw materials up to a maximum of 360 days instead of 180 days depending on the actual needs of their concerned clients. This relaxation is valid until December 31, 2021. Effective March 24, 2020, ADs may extend the usance periods of the import of life-saving drugs up to maximum of 180 days instead of 90 days depending on the actual needs of their concerned clients. This facility was no longer valid effective April 1, 2021. Effective April 26, 2020, ADs may extend the usance periods of the imports of agricultural implements and chemical fertilizers up to a maximum of 360 days from 180 days. This facility is valid until December 31, 2021. ADs may open LCs on behalf of industrial units to import necessary spare parts of capital machineries for own industrial use up to 360 days usance basis. For such deferred payment imports, the prices must be internationally competitive and all in cost including usance interest must not exceed 6% a year. Since May 5, 2019, the all-in cost ceiling per year for usance period against imports under supplier's/buyer's credit was set at 6-month LIBOR plus 3.5% spread (maximum). Effective June 21, 2021, alternative reference/benchmark rate in the currency of financing, declared by competent bodies, may be applied with prescribed markup of 3.5% a year for permissible usance import under supplier's/buyer's credit. Where forward looking reference/benchmark rate with tenure-link is absent, the relative rate applied as reference/benchmark rate for import finance may be compounded in arrears to calculate effective interest for the tenure of credit. In case of risk-free reference/benchmark rate to be applied for financing, adjustment for risk premium not exceeding 2.5% a year on markup of 3.5% may be added with reference/benchmark rate compounded in advance or in arrear as necessary, for the relative tenure.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Except in certain cases, credits are subject to the BB approval.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	ADs may obtain short-term and overdraft loans from overseas branches and correspondents for a period not exceeding seven days at a time. Industrial enterprises may borrow funds or make deferred payments for imports for a period beyond 360 days, with BIDA approval. Type A industries in EPZs/EZs may access short-term foreign currency loans from parent companies/shareholders abroad and other Type A subsidiaries/associates operating in EPZs/EZs.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.	ADs no longer need the BB approval to issue guarantees in foreign currency up to SRIs 200,000 (SRIs, Saudi Arabian riyals) to official pilgrimage (Umrah) service providers in Saudi Arabia. ADs no longer need the BB approval to hold collateral on behalf of foreign bank branches or correspondents with respect to external borrowing by industrial enterprises approved by the BIDA. ADs may on behalf of residents issue bid bonds/performance bonds/guarantees in foreign currency in favor of local project authorities against goods/services procurement tenders financed by the government, subject to regulations. Approval from the BB is also not required for issuing guarantees by the borrowers such as corporate guarantee, personal guarantee, third party guarantee, etc., as per loan agreement, favoring foreign lenders in case of external borrowing approved by the BIDA. ADs may issue guarantee in taka or equivalent convertible foreign currency on behalf of foreign-owned/foreign-controlled companies operating in Bangladesh, favoring concerned authorities in Bangladesh against foreign back-to-back guarantee acceptable to them subject to observance of some instructions.

By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	On behalf of residents, banks may issue guarantees or sureties in favor of nonresidents for permissible current transactions.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Receipt of guarantees or sureties by residents from abroad requires full disclosure of the underlying transaction. ADs may issue guarantee, bid bond, or performance bond in local currency against taka equivalent on behalf of a nonresident firm/company favoring residents in Bangladesh, provided there is a back-to-back foreign currency guarantee with suitable coverage for exchange rate fluctuation from counter guarantee issuing banks abroad.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	All outward transfers of capital require approval. For resident-owned capital, approval is granted only in exceptional cases.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	Investment, except in the industrial sector, requires approval. The Foreign Private Investment (Promotion and Protection) Act of 1980 provides for the protection and equitable treatment of foreign private investment, indemnification, protection against expropriation and nationalization, and guaranteed repatriation of investments. There is no ceiling on private investment. Tax exemptions are granted for periods of up to nine years, depending on location.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	Yes.	For the purpose of repatriation of sale proceeds of nonresident equity investment in public limited companies not listed with the stock exchanges and private limited companies, BB accepts the fair value of the shares determined on the date of MoU for share sale-purchase agreement between the buyer and seller based on the latest audited financial statements of the target company. The fair value of the shares must be determined by weighted average calculation of all the 3 valuation approaches (that is, NAV approach, market value approach, and discounted cash flow approach) or on any of the suitable approaches depending on the nature of the company. However, ADs may effect remittances on account of sales proceeds of shares regardless of the amount, the fair value of which is determined by the management of the target companies through NAV approach based on latest audited financial statements submitted together with tax returns, and ADs are allowed to remit sale proceeds without BB approval up to Tk. 100 million or equivalent in foreign currency based on fair value determined by weighted average calculation of three valuation approaches or any of the suitable approaches depending on the nature of the company prescribed in FEID Circular No. 1 of June 5, 2018, whereas for repatriation of sale proceeds below Tk.10 million or equivalent in foreign currency neither BB approval nor valuation report from independent valuer is required. However, ADs must report the share transactions to the Foreign Exchange Investment Department, BB, Head Office, Dhaka, within 14 days of transfer of shares pursuant to Paragraph 2(B),

BANGLADESH

Chapter 9 of GFET.

Effective June 18, 2020, ADs may effect remittances on account of sales proceeds of shares of nonresidents in private/public limited companies not listed with stock exchanges based on the NAV approach, regardless of the amount. Further, BB's permission is not required to repatriate sales proceeds of shares up to Tk 10 million or equivalent in foreign currency without a valuation report from independent valuers, or to repatriate between Tk 10 million and Tk 100 million or equivalent in foreign currency on account of sales proceeds based on fair value determined using the valuation methods prescribed in FEID Circular No. 1 of May 6, 2018. Previously, in case of sale/transfer of shares from a nonresident to a resident in public/private limited companies not listed on the stock exchanges, a MoU for share sale/purchase agreement between the buyer and the seller had to be concluded on receipt of approval from the BB regarding the determination of the fair value of the shares. The BB accepted the fair value of the shares determined from the weighted average of the three valuation approaches (that is, NAV approach, market value approach, and discounted cash flow approach), or based on any of these approaches suitable on justified ground depending on the nature of the company. This applies only to the sale of shares by nonresidents to residents. Post tax dividends and capital gains from sale proceeds of listed shares are credited to NITA and balance lying in NITA are freely remittable abroad.

Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Remittance of funds for these purchases is not permitted.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases of real estate by a nonresident with funds from abroad are allowed. ADs were allowed to extend mortgage loans in taka to NRBs working abroad for the purpose of housing in Bangladesh, subject to observance of the existing guidelines of Prudential Regulations for Consumer Financing. The housing finance facility provided to NRBs may not exceed the debt-equity ratio of 75:25.
Sale locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Repatriation of sales proceeds is subject to the BB approval, which is not typically granted.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.
Loans	Yes.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The BB approval is not required for taka advances through the purchase of checks from foreign embassies, international organizations, or foreign nationals employed by them and drawn on their accounts abroad. Foreign-owned/foreign-controlled companies in Bangladesh that engaged in manufacturing or services output activities for three years or longer in Bangladesh may access taka term loans from the domestic market regardless of the local content in their equity, subject to applicable credit norms and prudential parameters, including the single borrower exposure limit, debt-equity ratio, and so forth. Foreign-owned/foreign-controlled industrial enterprises in Bangladesh may access interest-free loans for working capital other than input procurement from parent companies/shareholders abroad for up to one year without prior approval. These loans are available to companies that have not yet obtained working capital financing from the local market. ADs were allowed to extend mortgage loans in taka to NRBs working abroad for the purpose of housing in Bangladesh, subject to observance of the existing guidelines of Prudential Regulations for Consumer Financing. The housing finance facility provided to NRBs may not exceed the debt-equity ratio of 75:25. ADs may extend working capital facilities to Type B (joint-venture) units of EPZs for the procurement of components needed for up to four months' worth of production on the basis of the bank–customer relationship and the customer's ability to repay from export proceeds.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	ADs may obtain short-term and overdraft loans from overseas branches and correspondents for a period not exceeding seven days at a time.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	The maintenance of these accounts is subject to notification to the BB.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Lending to nonresidents is not allowed, except with the BB approval and in specific cases. Foreign-owned/foreign-controlled companies in Bangladesh that engaged in manufacturing or services output activities for three years or longer in Bangladesh may access taka term loans from the domestic market regardless of the local content in their equity, subject to applicable credit norms and prudential parameters, including the single borrower exposure limit, debt-equity ratio, and so forth. Foreign-owned/foreign-controlled industrial enterprises in Bangladesh may access interest-free loans for working capital other than input procurement from parent companies/shareholders abroad for up to one year without prior approval. These loans are available to companies that have not yet obtained working capital financing from the local market. To widen the scope of taka working capital loans for foreign-owned/foreign-controlled companies operating in Bangladesh, resident persons/companies may purchase commercial papers issued by such companies. ADs were allowed to extend mortgage loans in taka to NRBs working abroad for the purpose of housing in Bangladesh subject to observance of the existing guidelines of Prudential Regulations for Consumer Financing. The housing finance facility provided to NRBs may not exceed the debt-equity ratio of 75:25.

Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Lending is subject to the BB approval. ADs may use up to 50% of NFCD balances (1) for loans to exporters for settlement of back-to-back sight LCs for imports of inputs and (2) to discount usage bills of wholly foreign-owned (Type A) and joint-venture (Type B) EPZ units against inputs to exporters. Industrial enterprises may borrow funds or make deferred payments for imports for a period beyond 360 days, with Board of Investment Bangladesh approval. Usance export bills related to direct and deemed exportation of Bangladesh products may be discounted in foreign exchange by an exporter's AD with funds received from foreign banking units and correspondent banks and financial institutions and from international financial organizations: the overall cost may not exceed 6% a year.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Purchases are subject to the BB approval.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.	Banks have to maintain two mandatory liquid asset ratios Cash Reserve Ratio (CRR) and Statutory Liquidity Ratio (SLR). The requirements are determined against average total demand and time liabilities (ATDTL) held by the Domestic Banking Operation (DBO) of a bank. Effective April 15, 2020, the daily minimum CRR is 3.5% (previously 5%) and the biweekly average is 4% (previously 5.5%). The SLR is maintained with the easily convertible assets (cash, gold, unencumbered approved securities, etc.). The daily minimum SLR for conventional banks is 13% (including the excess amount of CRR) and for Islamic banks is 5.50%. Since September 1, 2019, Offshore Banking Operation (OBO) have to maintain CRR and SLR in addition to reserves of Domestic Banking Operation. The requirements are determined against average total demand and time liabilities held by the banks. Effective July 1, 2020, the daily minimum CRR and biweekly average CRR requirement for Offshore Banking Operation were reduced to 1.5% and 2%, respectively. The reserve requirement ratios are calibrated by BB as macroprudential tool in addition to using it as a monetary policy tool. The CRR and SLR are not differentiated based on currency.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	The LCR is calculated as High-Quality Liquid assets (HQLA) against the total net cash outflow over the next 30 calendar days. Since January 1, 2015, the LCR ratio must not be less than 100%. The Net Stable Funding Ratio (NSFR), in line with Basel III framework, is defined as the Available Amount of Stable funding against the Required amount of Stable funding. Since January 1, 2015, the ratio must be greater than 100% on a quarterly basis. The LCR and NSFR are not differentiated based on currency and the foreign currency liabilities are included in their calculation.

ADs may effect remittances on account of sales proceeds of shares based on the NAV approach, regardless of the amount. Further, Bangladesh Bank's (BB's) permission is not required to repatriate sales proceeds of shares up to Tk 10 million or equivalent in foreign currency without a valuation report from independent valuers, or to repatriate between Tk 10 million and Tk 100 million or equivalent in foreign currency on account of sales proceeds based on fair value determined using the valuation methods prescribed in FEID Circular No. 1 of May 6, 2018. Previously, in case of sale/transfer of shares from a nonresident to a resident in public/private limited companies not listed on the stock exchanges, a MoU for share sale/purchase agreement between the buyer and the seller had to be concluded on receipt of approval from the BB regarding the determination of the fair value of the shares. The BB accepted the fair value of the shares determined from the weighted average of the three valuation approaches (that is, NAV approach, market value approach, and discounted cash flow approach), or based on any of these approaches suitable on justified ground depending on the nature of the company. This applies only to the sale of shares by nonresidents to residents. Post tax dividends and capital gains from sale proceeds of listed shares are credited to Nonresident Investor's Taka Account (NITA) and balance lying in NITA are freely remittable abroad.

Floating Yes. The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are classified as floating. The National Bank carries out a flexible exchange rate policy that provides for using currency interventions to reduce the daily volatility of the exchange rate and not for regulating its level. In accordance with the Republic of Belarus Monetary Policy Guidelines for 2021, with a sustained excess supply of foreign currency in the domestic exchange market, the National Bank purchases foreign currency to replenish international reserves. The National Bank of the Republic of Belarus (NBRB) does not publish data on its interventions.

In 2020, there was a worsening of the macroeconomic situation caused by unfavorable external conditions (a change in oil delivery terms and a decline in its value in global markets, a weakening of the Russian ruble and a slowdown in economic growth in trading partner countries given the emergence of the coronavirus pandemic). These factors, along with heightened demand for foreign currency on the part of economic agents as a result of increased negative expectations, which was seen in the first and third quarters of 2020, led to a weakening of the Belarusian rubel. As a result, in 2020 the exchange rate of the Belarusian rubel against the US dollar fell by 22.6%, and its rate against the Russian ruble declined by 2.4%. Surges in demand for foreign currency (primarily on the part of the public) in March and August 2020 were evened out by the National Bank through currency interventions. In January–July 2021, the situation in the foreign exchange market was stable and fluctuations in the exchange rate were negligible. Over the first seven months of 2021, the Belarusian rubel strengthened against the US dollar by 2.7% and against the Russian ruble by 1.6%. The net supply of foreign currency resulting from trading enabled the National Bank to purchase 0.55 billion US dollars on a net basis.

Official exchange rate Yes. The NBRB sets official exchange rates daily against 26 currencies. The official exchange rates on a given date correspond to the rates from the Belarusian Currency and Stock Exchange (BCSE) observed on the preceding business day. Official exchange rates of US dollars, euros, and Russian rubles are set on the basis of BCSE trading sessions. Official exchange rates with the other currencies are based on US dollar cross-rates against these currencies. The official exchange rate is used to determine the rubel value of assets and liabilities denominated in foreign exchange. The official exchange rates of an additional 52 currencies are set monthly. These rates are calculated on the basis of the US dollar–rubel exchange rate in the last foreign exchange trading session of the month in the BCSE and the cross-rates of the currencies against the US dollar in the international foreign exchange markets on the last day of the month. The official rates are valid until the new rates are published for the following month. The official rate is used for transactions with the official sector (customs charges and duties, other foreign-exchange-linked payments payable in local currency) and transactions in which sellers do not specify an alternative exchange rate.

Yes.

The NBRB has a monetary-targeting framework that uses growth in average broad money as an intermediate target in monetary policy. The operating target in monetary policy, effective January 1, 2021, is the rubel monetary base (previously, the one-day interbank interest rate in the domestic currency). The goals and parameters of monetary policy are defined annually in the Monetary Policy Guidelines for the Republic of Belarus, approved by the president of the Republic of Belarus. According to this document for 2021, the inflation target, measured by the CPI, is set at a level of no more than 5% (December 2021 to December 2020). Growth in the average broad money supply is forecast at 7%–10% (December 2021 to December 2020).

Foreign exchange market Yes. The foreign exchange market consists of: (1) the BCSE; (2) the interbank foreign exchange market; and (3) operations involving the purchase and sale of foreign currency between a bank/nonbank lending and financial institutions and its customers, including cash foreign exchange operations. Purchases and sales of foreign currency for rubels and conversion of foreign currency take place in the foreign exchange market through NBRB-licensed banks and nonbank lending and financial institutions. The NBRB does not impose limits on exchange rates. No commission is charged for the purchase and sale of foreign exchange in the OTC market. A bank may charge a commission only for the purchase and sale of currency in the BCSE, and the amount is based on the rates set by banks.

Spot exchange market Yes. As of June 30, 2020, there were 24 banks and the Republic of Belarus Development Bank Open Joint-Stock Company, and 3 banks were undergoing bankruptcy or liquidation procedures. Most transactions in the foreign exchange market are spot transactions. Purchases and sales of cash foreign currency for rubels and conversion of foreign currency take place only through banks and nonbank lending and financial institutions licensed by the NBRB

		for foreign exchange operations with individuals. Individuals are free to buy and sell foreign currency. Purchases and sales of foreign currency between Belarusian banks, between a Belarusian bank and a nonresident bank, and between banks and their corporate clients are performed in the OTC exchange market without restriction. Businesses have the right to perform the purchase/sale of foreign currency in the OTC exchange market, and also through banks in BCSE, including continuous two-way auctions. There are no restrictions on the amounts for the foreign exchange purchase and sale transactions by business entities. No restrictions have been established on the purchase and sale of foreign currency in the currency exchange (BCSE). Resident legal entities and individual entrepreneurs may buy foreign exchange for any current or capital transaction based on a request (or a payment order for transfer with purchase, if appropriate) submitted to any local bank. No supporting documentation (for example, contracts, NBRB approvals, etc.) is required for the purchase of foreign exchange. The purchased foreign exchange is credited to the resident's foreign exchange current account with the local bank and may be kept there for an unlimited period of time until the foreign exchange is used. Also, a resident is free to use the purchased foreign exchange for a purpose other than that indicated in the request submitted to the bank, and no additional notification of the bank is required.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BCSE organizes a trading session through which the NBRB may intervene as necessary.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	An electronic trading system operates in the BCSE based on the continuous two-way auction principle and negotiated deals. Trading on the BCSE is performed each business day. A two-way auction operates for three currencies (US dollar, euro, and Russian ruble), while negotiated deals are used for transactions in other currencies. In a continuous two-way auction system, potential buyers submit their bids for the purchase of foreign exchange, and potential sellers simultaneously submit their offers for the sale of foreign exchange to the system. Trades are performed on a real-time basis when the parameters of a buyer's bid satisfy the parameters of a seller's offer. Under continuous two-way auction exchange trading, the purchase and sale of foreign exchange can be performed by the National Bank, the Republic of Belarus Development Bank Open Joint-Stock Company, banks, and nonbank lending and financial institutions, as well as by business entities through banks. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads or commissions of market participants, as well as there are no limits on bids in terms of amounts. A participant pays a fine to the BCSE for failure to fulfill or improper fulfillment of net obligations equal to a percentage of the unfulfilled net obligations as specified in an agreement with the BCSE for each day of delay. Information about the results of foreign currency trading is published on the BCSE website and is also disseminated by the BCSE on the basis of agreements on information services concluded with legal entities and individuals.

Payments for imports of goods and services delivered outside Belarus require an NBRB permit, which is issued at the request of the importer supported by a recommendation by the administrative body that oversees the importer (that is, local Council of Ministers of the Republic of Belarus, regional or local executive committees).

Import licenses and other nontariff measures Yes.

The specific considerations, grounds, and procedure for the application of a particular nontariff regulatory measure within the EAEU (the Union) are established under the Protocol on Nontariff

Regulatory Measures with respect to Third Countries (Annex 7 to the EAEU Treaty).

A permitting procedure for imports and exports of certain goods is carried out through licensing or the application of other administrative measures for the regulation of foreign trade activity, including the issuing of a finding (a permitting document) and other administrative measures.

Goods against which it was decided to apply measures are included on the Uniform List of Prohibited or Restricted Goods for Import or Export by Member States of the Customs Union within the EAEU in Trade with Third Countries, which was approved by Eurasian Economic Commission Executive Council Decision No. 134 of August 16, 2012 (hereinafter – Uniform List), and on the List of Goods with respect to Which Permitting Procedures Have Been Established for Import onto the EAEU Customs Territory and/or Export From the EAEU Customs Territory, approved in Decision No. 30 of April 21, 2015, of the Collegium of the Eurasian Economic Commission (hereinafter – List).

These goods include ozone-depleting substances; means of plant protection; hazardous waste; narcotics; psychotropic substances and their precursors, poisons; radio-electronic equipment; special technical equipment; encryption (cryptographic) equipment; human organs and tissue; blood and its components; certain printed matter, audiovisual materials, and other media; certain types of service and civilian weapons, basic parts thereof, and ammunition; cultural assets; documents from national archival collections; information about mineral resources; live wild animals; wild plants; certain species of wild flora and fauna; equipment for harvesting aquatic biological resources; mineralogical collections and collectible mineralogical items; and rare species of live wild animals and plants. In accordance with Resolution No. 486 of the Republic of Belarus Council of Ministers of June 23, 2016, the Republic of Belarus Ministry of Antimonopoly Regulation and Trade issues licenses for the importation of goods included on the Uniform List and the List into the customs territory of the Union.

Resolution No. 486 also established lists of republic-level government authorities and other organizations that approve the issuing of licenses, and, in cases referred to in the Regulations on the Application of Restrictions, that issue findings (permitting documents) for the importation of goods included on the Uniform List and the List into the customs territory of the Union.

A list of documents and/or information to be presented by interested parties to an authorized agency within the context of administrative procedures, including for the purpose of obtaining licenses and permitting documents for the importation of certain categories of goods, as well as other required information, are reflected in Republic of Belarus Council of Ministers Resolution No. 156 of February 17, 2012.

In accordance with the Council of Ministers Resolution No. 67 of February 3, 2020, “On Licensing Imports of Portland Cement,” the following measure was temporarily introduced (effective February 13, 2020, and ending effective August 16, 2020): imports of Portland Cement to the Republic of Belarus from outside the customs territory of the EAEU, on being placed under the customs procedures for release for domestic consumption and free customs zone, were performed under one-time licenses issued by the Ministry of Antimonopoly Regulation and Trade in coordination with the Ministry of Architecture and Construction.

Implementation has been awarded to legal entities that won government-organized tenders. In accordance with Decree No. 4 of the President of the Republic of Belarus of October 18, 2007, the government has the exclusive right to import tobacco and tobacco products. Exercise of this right has been granted to Grodno Tobacco Factory Neman and Tabak-Invest, and for tobacco products to Belarustorg and Energo-Oil. Republic of Belarus Council of Ministers Resolution No. 1397 of September 23, 2008, established the permitting procedure for the importation of goods whose movement is restricted on noneconomic grounds.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	There is a single procedure for customs regulation within the EAEU in accordance with the provisions of the EAEU Treaty, the Customs Code of the EAEU, international agreements governing legal relations in the customs sphere, and acts constituting the law of the EAEU. The Common Customs Tariff of the Eurasian Economic Union (EAEU CCT) is a set of import customs duties for goods imported into the common customs territory of the Union from third countries, classified under the common nomenclature for foreign economic activities of the Union (EAEU TNVED). The EAEU CCT applies the following types of duties: ad valorem, calculated as a percentage of the customs value of taxable goods; specific, calculated per unit of taxable goods; and combined, mixing both these types. For better regulation of imports into the common customs territory of the EAEU, seasonal customs duties may be applied instead of regular import customs duties, for a period of no more than six months a year. EAEU CCT import duty rates apply, depending on the country of origin of imported goods and the conditions of their importation, in accordance with the laws of members of the EAEU, unless otherwise indicated in the EAEU Treaty. Goods originating in and imported from CIS countries that have an ST-1 certificate are exempt from import customs duties. With the aim of promoting the economic development of developing and least developed countries, in accordance with the EAEU Treaty, the Union may grant tariff preferences for goods from developing and/or least developed economies using the Union's common system of tariff preferences. For preferential goods imported into the Union's customs territory from developing economies using the Union's common system of tariff preferences, the import customs duty rates are equal to 75% of the rates under the Union's common customs tariff. For preferential goods imported into the Union's customs territory from least developed economies using the Union's common system of tariff preferences, the import customs duty rates are equal to 0% of the rates provided for under the Union's common customs tariff. Decision No. 130 of the Customs Union Commission of November 27, 2009, on the Common Customs Tariff Regulation of the EAEU provides for a number of tariff concessions with respect to imported goods, as well as exemptions from import customs duties with respect to technological equipment and spare parts for such equipment; raw materials and supplies imported as part of an

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Resident individuals are obliged to have the NBRB approval for certain transactions associated with capital movements (hereinafter – capital transactions). Resident banks (banks) may conduct capital transactions as follows: (1) based on the special NBRB permits (licenses) for carrying out of banking activity; (2) through notification; and (3) freely (no NBRB permission is required). The definition of “banks” includes banks and nonbank lending and financial institutions that are treated as such in accordance with the legislation of the Republic of Belarus, and their branches (NBRB Executive Board Resolution No. 72 of April 30, 2004). Capital transactions of resident legal entities other than banks (herein after – resident legal entities) are carried out as follows: (1) through registration; (2) through notification; and (3) freely (no NBRB permission is required). The registration requirement was established for capital transactions of resident legal entities that previously were subject to the NBRB approval. For the most part, resident legal entities perform transactions involving capital outflow through the registration procedure. For the most part, resident legal entities perform transactions involving capital inflows through the notification procedure or freely. Registration and notification procedures are similar and used for monitoring purposes. The registration procedure implies that the foreign economic agreement is assigned the registration number of the transaction, while the notification procedure does not imply this. To register a transaction, a resident legal entity submits a request for registration and the international business contract to one of the banks in which an account is open. When performing a capital transaction for which a notification procedure is established, the resident legal entity completes and submits a notice of capital transaction to the bank using the proper form. Banks should notice the NBRB about their own capital transactions in the framework of the ordinary monthly reporting. Resident legal entities are required to register a transaction with a bank if it involves the acquisition of securities issued by nonresidents and that are recognized as such in accordance with the legislation of foreign states. Carrying out of capital transactions by nonresidents does not require application to the NBRB.

Securities Department – with regard to bonds, shares of issuers that are banks, nonbank lending and financial institutions, insurance companies, professional participants in the securities market, and special financial institutions (SFIs), as well as issuers located in Minsk Province and the city of Minsk; by regional securities offices of the MOF (depending on the issuer’s location) with respect to shares of other issuers.

Government securities and NBRB securities are not subject to state registration.

In accordance with the Republic of Belarus Law on the Securities Market, exchange-traded bonds are bonds denominated in Belarusian rubels and issued in nondocumentary form, of which the placement and circulation are performed only in the trading system of the stock exchange. Exchange-traded bonds are issued by legal entities in accordance with the conditions established by Decree No. 277 of the President of the Republic of Belarus of April 28, 2006, on Certain Issues in the Regulation of the Securities Market (Paragraph 1.10 of the Decree). Exchange-traded bonds are registered by the BCSE OJSC following the procedure determined by the Republic of Belarus Council of Ministers (Paragraph 15.20 of the Uniform List of Administrative Procedures Performed by Government Authorities and Other Organizations with Respect to Legal Entities and Individual Entrepreneurs, approved by Resolution No. 156 of the Republic of Belarus Council of Ministers of February 17, 2012).

On capital market securities Yes.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature Yes.

Purchase locally by nonresidents Yes.

The purchase of shares of Belarusian issuers by nonresidents does not require a license from the NBRB or a license or other permission from the MOF (Securities Department), except that the maximum participation of foreign capital in the banking system of Belarus is 50%. The NBRB terminates state registration of banks whose founders (shareholders) are foreign investors once the maximum has been reached. Foreign exchange legislation does not restrict these transactions; however, NBRB approval is required for transfer of bank shares by residents to nonresidents.

Insurance institutions, including those with foreign investments, must be registered with the MOF. A special permit (license) needs to be obtained to perform all types of insurance-related work and services. When establishing an insurance organization with foreign investment, the proportion of a foreign investor’s share is not restricted. However, foreign investors’ share in the authorized capital of all insurance organizations may not exceed 30%. If that figure is exceeded, the MOF terminates the registration of insurance organizations with the participation of foreign investors and/or issues special permits (licenses) to such organizations to perform insurance activities.

Permission from the MOF is required to transfer shares of Belarusian issuers to a depot loro correspondent account of a nonresident depository that has established a correspondent relationship with the Republic Central Securities Depository.

Article 18 of the Republic of Belarus Law on the Securities Market of January 5, 2015, states that in the placement of securities, it is prohibited to establish in the issuer’s charter documents and/or in a decision regarding an issue (additional issue) of issue-grade securities a preferential right to acquire securities for certain investors over other investors or another investor, including the establishment of restrictions on the acquisition of issue-grade securities by nonresidents.

BELARUS

		In accordance with Republic of Belarus Law No. 52-Z on Investment Funds of July 17, 2017, the amount of funds used for the acquisition of financial instruments issued by nonresidents of the Republic of Belarus must not exceed 30% of the value of the assets of a joint-stock investment fund intended for investment, or the assets of a mutual fund.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Resident legal entities must submit notification to the bank when funds enter the account of such resident legal entity from transactions entailing the sale of money market instruments to a nonresident.
On collective investment securities	Yes.	Under Law No. 52-Z on Investment Funds of July 17, 2017, it is possible to create two types of investment funds: joint-stock investment funds and mutual funds. Joint-stock investment funds may issue only common (ordinary) shares. The issuing, circulation, and redemption of securities are performed in accordance with the given law, taking into account the specific considerations established by other legislative acts of the Republic of Belarus concerning investment funds. The procedure for the issuing, circulation, and redemption of investment shares is also established by Republic of Belarus Law No. 52-Z of July 17, 2017, on Investment Funds. Investment shares are subject to state registration, and they are freely traded in the organized or other markets, unless otherwise established by legislative acts. Investment shares are recorded in the depository system.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Pursuant to Article 10 of Republic of Belarus Law No. 226-Z of July 22, 2003, on Foreign Exchange Regulation and Foreign Exchange Control, NBRB approval is not required for a resident to sell a stake in the authorized capital or a share in the assets of a resident, and also when performing a transaction with a nonresident involving securities issued by residents. Purchases locally by nonresidents of collective investment securities do not require the approval of the NBRB or the MOF.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	There is no restriction on such transactions by nonresidents. NBRB approval is not required for the sale or issue of collective investment securities by nonresidents in the local market. Only resident individuals are required to have NBRB approval to purchase such securities from nonresidents. Resident legal entities purchase such securities from nonresidents under a registration procedure. Banks carry out such transactions under the notification procedure.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Resident individuals are required to have NBRB approval. Resident legal entities may acquire securities issued by nonresidents without NBRB approval. Conduct of such transactions by resident banks requires notification and by resident legal entities requires registration. In accordance with the Republic of Belarus Law on Investment Funds of July 17, 2017, the amount of funds used for the acquisition of financial instruments issued by nonresidents of the Republic of Belarus must not exceed 30% of the value of the assets of a joint-stock investment fund intended for investment, or the assets of a mutual fund.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Pursuant to Article 10 of Republic of Belarus Law No. 226-Z of July 22, 2003, on Foreign Exchange Regulation and Foreign Exchange Control, NBRB approval is not required for a resident to sell a stake in the authorized capital or a share in the assets of a resident, and also when performing a transaction with a nonresident involving securities issued by residents.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.

		entities neither need notification nor registration of such transactions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	Resident banks and resident legal entities and individuals are not required to have NBRB approval. Resident legal entities attract credit (loans) from nonresidents through a registration procedure. Banks perform such transactions freely (without NBRB permission, notification, or registration).
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	No.
By residents to nonresidents	No.	Resident banks and resident legal entities and individuals are not required to have NBRB approval for the provision of guarantees and sureties to nonresidents. Such transactions by resident legal entities need registration only. Banks perform transactions involving the provision of guarantees and sureties on the basis of special banking licenses (no permission, notification, or registration is required).
To residents from nonresidents	No.	Resident legal entities notify banks when conducting these transactions. Banks perform transactions involving the receipt of guarantees and sureties under special banking licenses (no permission, notification, or registration is required).
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	Only resident individuals are required to have NBRB approval. Resident legal entities are required to register transactions related to investing abroad; banks are required to notify such transactions. The establishment of subsidiary banks and the opening of branches of resident banks outside the Republic of Belarus and the participation by resident banks in the authorized capital of foreign banks are performed with the approval of the National Bank. Participation in the authorized capital of legal entities, including foreign ones, in an amount that exceeds 5% of the legal entity's authorized capital also requires National Bank approval.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	NBRB permission is not required. Foreign investments must be registered with the relevant local governments. Financial institutions must also register them with the NBRB. Insurance organizations, including those with foreign investments, must also be registered with the MOF. A special permit (license) needs to be obtained to perform all types of insurance-related work and services. When establishing an organization with foreign investment, the proportion of a foreign investor's share is not restricted. Foreign investors' share in the authorized capital of all insurance organizations may not exceed 30%. If that figure is exceeded, the MOF terminates the registration of insurance organizations with the participation of foreign investors and/or issues special permits (licenses) to such organizations to perform insurance activities. The maximum participation of foreign capital in the banking system of Belarus is 50%. The NBRB terminates the state registration of banks whose founders (shareholders) are foreign investors once the maximum has been reached. Foreign exchange legislation does not restrict these transactions; however, NBRB consent is required for transfers of bank shares by residents to nonresidents. In the event of an increase in a bank's authorized capital at the expense of nonresidents' funds and/or conveyance by the bank and/or a resident bank shareholder of shares to nonresidents, the nonresident party acquiring the bank's shares, or the resident who intends to conclude such a transaction, is required to obtain prior approval from the National Bank.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Banks and nonbank lending and financial institutions with an appropriate banking license may purchase and sell foreign exchange. Banks may perform these transactions without restriction within the limits of their open foreign exchange position. A banking license is required to engage in banking operations. The definition of “banks” includes banks and nonbank lending and financial institutions that are treated as such in accordance with the legislation of the Republic of Belarus (NBRB Executive Board Resolution No. 112 of July 28, 2005).
Borrowing abroad	No.	Borrowing abroad by banks and nonbank lending and financial institutions is not subject to the NBRB approval, registration, or notification procedure.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	The NBRB approval is not required. Maintenance of accounts abroad by banks and nonbank lending and financial institutions is also not subject to notification or registration procedure.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.	Lending to nonresidents by banks and nonbank lending and financial institutions is not subject to the NBRB approval, registration, or notification procedure.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Banks and nonbank lending and financial institutions are not allowed to lend in foreign currency to individuals. The requirement with regard to lending to individuals in Belarusian rubels only is established in the Instruction on the Procedure for Providing Funds in the Form of Credit and their Return (Repayment), approved by NBRB Executive Board Resolution No. 149 of March 29, 2018, and also in Article 150 of the Banking Code of the Republic of Belarus. There are no restrictions on making loans in foreign currency to legal entities and individual entrepreneurs.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.	There are no restrictions on the purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign currency. Under the legislation of the Republic of Belarus, certain types of securities (for example, bonds) may be denominated in foreign exchange. It is possible to purchase bonds denominated in foreign currency.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Reserve requirements for funds attracted in foreign exchange are 17%, while for funds attracted in domestic currency the ratio is 4%.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	As a requirement to ensure secure functioning, the LCR and NSFR have been introduced, as provided for by the Basel III system standards. The value of each ratio is at least 100%. For the OAO Development Bank of the Republic of Belarus, only NSFR of 100% is established. The procedure for the calculation of indicators that describe compliance with liquidity ratios and their minimum regulatory values are broadly in line with the recommendations of the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision. Within the context of the countercyclical measures taken by the National Bank, effective April 22, 2020, through December 31, 2020, banks and nonbank lending and financial institutions were granted the right to apply a LCR of 80% (previously 100%). In addition, starting effective May 27, 2020, and ending on December 31, 2020, banks classified as Group 1 systemically important banks were granted the right to include an irrevocable line of credit opened by the National Bank as Level 1 highly liquid assets when calculating compliance with the LCR. The measure is no longer in force effective January 1, 2021. Effective January 1, 2021, pursuant to NBRB Executive Board Resolution No. 298 of September 18, 2020, on Certain Issues in the Regulation of the Activities of Banks, Nonbank Lending and Financial Institutions, and the Republic of Belarus Development Bank Open Joint-Stock Company in 2021, the right to apply a LCR of 80% was extended to June 30, 2021. Effective July 1, 2021, through December 31, 2021, the required LCR was increased to 90%.
Interest rate controls	No.	Banks set interest rates on deposits in domestic and foreign currencies. The NBRB may make recommendations to banks about interest rate levels, regardless of the banks' residency status.
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Funds raised from nonresident banks and loans and funds received from nonresident clients in foreign exchange are not subject to reserve requirements.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	Liquid asset requirements are the same for deposit accounts of nonresidents and residents.

There are no differences with regard to the inclusion of residents' assets and nonresidents' assets as part of highly liquid assets for the purpose of calculating the indicator describing fulfillment of the LCR.

Interest rate controls	No.	There are no legislative restrictions for banks' establishing the size of interest rates for bank loans (deposits) of legal entities and individuals depending on whether they are Belarus residents or nonresidents.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	NBRB permission is required for a bank's participation in the authorized capital of another legal entity in the following cases: (1) for the acquisition of shares when they are distributed among a company's founders, as well as an interest in the authorized capital or stakes in the property of nonresidents; (2) for a bank's stake in the authorized capital of another legal entity in the event that it is being acquired by the bank for the purpose of long-term financial investments in a unitary enterprise as a property complex and/or shares (an interest) in another legal entity and/or its contribution of funds for increasing the nominal value of shares (actual value of interest) in such a legal entity, if after such acquisition and/or such an increase in the par (actual) value of its stake in the given legal entity's authorized capital is equal to 5% or more (including if previously that stake was 5% or more), except in cases of acquisition of shares (interest) and/or an increase in the nominal value of shares (actual value of interest) unrelated to the need for its contribution of additional funds as a result of disposal by other shareholders (partners) and/or redistribution of internal sources of the legal entity; (3) establishment by resident banks of subsidiaries and branches outside the Republic of Belarus and the participation by resident banks in the authorized capital of foreign banks; and (4) transfers to nonresidents based on commitments involving a resident's purchase of real estate abroad. These are prudential regulation requirements (except for Item (4)). In keeping with memoranda of understanding (agreements) on banking supervision between the NBRB and the banking supervisors of individual countries, the parties may provide information regarding a potential investor, report on the issuing of licenses to open subsidiary banks and permits to participate in authorized capital of banks, and share other information.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	The maximum participation of foreign capital in the banking system of Belarus is 50%. The NBRB terminates the state registration of banks whose founders (shareholders) are foreign investors once the maximum has been reached. Foreign exchange legislation does not restrict these transactions; however, NBRB permission is required in the following cases: (1) acquisition of ownership, administrative control, operational management, or receipt in trust of 5% or more of shares in the authorized capital of a bank as a result of one or more transactions by one legal entity or individual, including a shareholder of the bank, by a group of individuals and/or legal entities connected by an agreement, or by a group of subsidiary or dependent legal entities, as well as all subsequent acquisitions of bank shares by said persons and (2) an increase in the authorized capital of a bank as a result of funds provided by nonresidents and/or the transfer of bank shares by a resident shareholder to a nonresident. In accordance with the Decree No. 84 of the President of the Republic of Belarus dated March 3, 2016, "Regarding the Issue and Circulation of Shares Using Foreign Depository Receipts," it is and/or insurance organizations that are subsidiaries (dependent companies) of those foreign investors, and to convey shares (interest in the authorized capital) to foreign investors and/or insurance organizations that are subsidiaries (dependent companies) of those foreign investors. The share of foreign investors in the authorized capital of all insurance organizations must not exceed 30%. If that maximum is exceeded, the MOF terminates the registration of insurance organizations with the participation of foreign investors and/or issues these organizations special permits (licenses) to perform insurance activities.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Insurance laws do not establish any quantitative limits on the purchase by Belarusian insurance companies of securities issued by nonresidents. But insurance laws establish the following restrictions and requirements: (1) Belarusian state-owned insurance organizations and insurance organizations in which the state holds a stake in the authorized capital equal to more than 50% may not purchase securities issued by nonresidents (either at the expense of insurance reserves or at the expense of their own funds), except for participation in the establishment of insurance organizations and/or insurance brokers outside Belarus and/or the acquisition of interests (shares) in the authorized capital of such organizations (these should be carried out with the permission of the MOF); (2) Belarusian private insurance organizations may purchase securities issued by nonresidents at the expense of their own funds that are unencumbered and not subject to legislative requirements (for example, minimum authorized capital funds are placed in accounts at Republic of Belarus banks), in compliance with the principle of diversification.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	There are no quantitative restrictions on the portfolio of investments abroad. However, the establishment by insurance companies or insurance brokers of separate subdivisions outside Belarus, participation in the establishment of insurance companies and/or insurance brokers outside Belarus, or the acquisition of an interest (shares) in the authorized capital of such organizations requires MOF permission. Belarusian state-owned insurance organizations and insurance organizations in which the state holds a stake in the authorized capital equal to more than 50% may not purchase securities issued by nonresidents (either at the expense of insurance reserves or at the expense of their own funds), if they are not related to the participation in the establishment of insurance organizations and/or insurance brokers outside Belarus and/or the acquisition of interests (shares) in the authorized capital of such organizations (these should be carried out with the permission of the MOF). Belarusian private insurance organizations may purchase securities issued by nonresidents at the expense of their own funds that are unencumbered and not subject to legislative requirements (for example, minimum authorized capital funds are placed in accounts at Republic of Belarus banks), in compliance with the principle of diversification.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Pension funds	No.	There are no pension funds acting as institutional investors in Belarus. This circumstance is because of the distributive pension system in the Republic of Belarus, which does not provide for an accumulative tier in the form of pension funds. In the event of a Investment firms and collective investment funds Yes.

The activities of brokers, dealers, depositories, trustees, clearinghouses, and organizers of securities trading are overseen by the MOF (Securities Department).

Under a banking license, banks may provide services related to the trust management of money (individual investments) and trust management of bank management funds (collective investments). Republic of Belarus Law No. 52-Z on Investment Funds of July 17, 2017, provides for the possibility of creating two types of investment funds: joint-stock investment funds and mutual funds. The organization managing the assets of an investment fund may be a commercial company that has been created in accordance with the legislation of the Republic of Belarus and has gone through the state accreditation process. A specialized depository is a commercial company or unitary enterprise that has been created in accordance with the legislation of the Republic of Belarus and has gone through the state accreditation process.

The Republic of Belarus Council of Ministers establishes the procedure for the registration of rules governing mutual funds; it establishes the procedure for the state accreditation process, as well as the procedure and grounds for the suspension, renewal, and termination of state accreditation for operating as a management company and state accreditation for operating as a specialized depository; it establishes the procedure for the state registration of investment shares; and it exercises other authority related to the state regulation of relations involving investment funds.

State accreditation for operating as an investment fund management company is performed by the Republic of Belarus MOF following the procedure defined under Item 15.27 of the Uniform List of Administrative Procedures Performed by Government Authorities and Other Organizations with respect to Legal Entities and Individual Entrepreneurs, approved by Republic of Belarus Council of Ministers Resolution No. 156 of February 17, 2012.

The Regulation on the Financing of Commercial Organizations against a Concession of Rights (Claims) at the Expense of Funds Attracted through a Bond Issue, or with a Subsequent Bond Issue, approved by Decree No. 154 of the President of the Republic of Belarus of May 11, 2017, introduced the concept of a SFI. An SFI is a joint-stock company created for the performance of securitization operations. An SFI is prohibited from performing any entrepreneurial activity other than securitization operations and transactions involving the acquisition of financial assets during the period that bonds are in circulation (at the expense of temporarily available funds that are part of the assets that have been allocated), as well as transactions involving the conveyance of said financial assets.

A SFI has the right to attract borrowed funds, including credits, for the acquisition of rights (claims) and for the payment of expenses

Free floating

Yes. The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. Belgium participates in a currency union (EMU) with 18 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.

Official exchange rate

Yes. The ECB publishes reference rates based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks, which normally takes place at 2:15 p.m. Central European Time. On July 1, 2016, the ECB changed the publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates (ECB reference rates) from around 2:30 p.m. Central European Time to around 4:00 p.m. Central European Time. The reference rates against the euro are the average of the buying and selling rates. The publication regime aims to reinforce the distinction between exchange rate fixings used as benchmarks for transaction purposes and the ECB reference rates that are published for information purposes only.

To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community." These include a "high level of employment" and "sustainable and non-inflationary growth." Effective July 7, 2021, price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term. (Previously, it was defined as inflation rate below but close to 2% over the medium term.)

Market making	Yes.	The interbank foreign exchange market operates on the basis of a market-making agreement, under which participants commit to a maximum spread and a minimum amount to trade.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Banks may engage in spot and forward exchange transactions in any currency, and they may deal among themselves and with residents and nonresidents in foreign notes and coins. The National Bank of Belgium conducts operations in the foreign exchange spot and forward exchange market within the framework of the management of its foreign reserves, client relationships, and obligations vis-à-vis international organizations.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	No.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.	For anti-money-laundering reasons, real estate may be paid for only with a bank transfer or check. Regardless of the total amount, no payment or donation may be made or received in cash for an amount above €3,000 of its equivalent in another currency, as part of one or several transactions that seem to be related. However, except in case of public auction under the supervision of a bailiff: (1) the payment of copper cables may not be carried out in cash, when the buyer is not a consumer; (2) the payment of old metals or goods containing precious materials, unless these precious materials are only present in small quantities and only because of their necessary physical properties: (a) may not be carried out or received in cash when neither the seller nor the buyer is a consumer; (b) may not be carried out or received in cash for an amount or more than €500 when the seller is a consumer and the buyer is not a consumer. If, in this latter case, the buyer accepts to carry out the payment fully or partially in cash, he must identify the consumer, verify his identity, and keep his data and the proof of verification, in accordance with the rules determined by the King. The provision laid down in the first subparagraph does not apply to:

- (1) the sale of real property, referred to in Article 66;
- (2) transactions between consumers;
- (3) the obliged entities referred to in Article 5, § 1, 1, 3, 4, 6, 7, 10, and 16, as well as their clients when they carry out transactions with these entities.

When the submitted accounting documents, including bank statements, do not enable to determine how payments or donations have been made or received, these are presumed to have been carried out or received in cash.

Subject to evidence to the contrary, any payment or donation in cash is presumed to be made on Belgian territory, and therefore subject to the provisions of this article when at least one of the parties resides or conducts an activity in Belgium.

Irrespective of the total amount, postal deposits on accounts of third parties or on postal current accounts may only be carried out by consumers, for a maximum amount of €3,000 per deposit or a set of linked deposits. This does not apply to postal deposits on postal current accounts or on current accounts carried out by federal or regional public service officials in the performance of their duties.

have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national financial intelligence unit. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation or suspicions of money laundering/terrorism financing, cash may be confiscated or retained administratively for a period of time between 30 and 90 days. The EC regulation requires member countries to impose effective, dissuasive, and proportionate penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EC regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. A similar mandatory declaration system exists when cash with a value of €10,000 or more is entering or leaving the EU non-accompanied. The EC regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered “cross-border” for the purposes of the EC regulation; the EC regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU’s external borders. However, the Royal Decree of January 26, 2014, implemented an obligation to declare physical cross-border transportation of cash from one EU member country to another at the request of an appropriate authority (mainly the Customs and Excise Administration).

On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Insurance or reinsurance companies must invest all their assets in accordance with the “prudent person” principle as described in the law (Article 190).
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Insurance or reinsurance companies governed by the Belgian law: There is no limit anymore because of the application of the prudent person principle. Insurance or reinsurance companies must invest all their assets in accordance with the “prudent person” principle as described in the law (Article 190). According to Article 191 of the Law of March 13, 2016, on the legal status and supervision of insurance or reinsurance companies: “With respect to the whole portfolio of assets, insurance or reinsurance companies must only invest in assets and instruments the risks of which the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control and report, and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs in accordance with Article 91, § 1, second paragraph, 1. All assets, in particular those covering the minimum capital requirement and the solvency capital requirement, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole. In addition, the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability.

Assets held to cover the technical provisions must also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance obligations. Those assets must be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries taking into account any disclosed policy objective.

In the case of a conflict of interest, insurance companies, or the entity which manages their asset portfolio, must ensure that the investment is made in the best interest of policyholders and beneficiaries.”

This law will not be applicable to insurance or reinsurance companies governed by the law of another member state, which will be supervised by the home country.

Insurance or reinsurance companies governed by the law of a third country: The same rules as for companies governed by the Belgian law are applicable (prudent person principle).

Royal Decree of February 22, 1991, on General Regulation of the Supervision of Insurance Companies details rules governing investments by insurance companies for the assets that cover their technical provisions. It includes the principles on investment activity, details on the location of the assets, categories of permissible assets, quantitative limits, and valuation rules.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	For insurance or reinsurance companies governed by the Belgian law, the assets of the insurance and reinsurance companies can be localized in any country (in or outside the EEA). Nevertheless, investment in assets of countries outside the EEA and covering insurance (not reinsurance) risks situated inside this Area are subject to some conditions (Article 197 of Law of March 13, 2016) to ensure the effectiveness of the recovery and resolution measures against companies in difficulties (the limit of the power to dispose of assets). This law will not apply to insurance or reinsurance companies governed by the law of another member state, which will be supervised by the home country. For insurance or reinsurance companies governed by the law of a third country (provisions of the Law of March 13, 2016, are applicable at the Belgian branch), assets covering the technical provisions of insurance liabilities must be, in principle, localized inside the EEA. These assets can be localized outside the EEA if the law applicable to the winding-up procedures gives a similar protection to the policyholders as the Belgian law.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	There are no minimum or maximum investment limits. Insurance or reinsurance companies must invest all their assets in accordance with the “prudent person” principle.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	There is no limit because of the application of the “prudent person” principle. Insurance or reinsurance companies must invest all their assets in accordance with the “prudent person” principle as described in the law (Article 190).
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The technical provisions of pension funds must be covered at all times by sufficient and appropriate assets belonging to the IORP

(hereafter “representative values”) and allocated in a way that guarantees fulfillment of the obligations of the pension schemes they manage and application of the relevant legal and regulatory provisions for each fund.

The actual legislation for Belgian IORP contains no quantitative restrictions in this respect. Representative values must be invested according to the principle of prudence and the following rules (control a posteriori):

(1) The assets must be invested in the best interest of members and beneficiaries. If there is potential conflict of interest, the institution, or its portfolio manager, must ensure that the investment is made in the sole interest of members and beneficiaries.

IORP can take into account the potential long-term impact of investment decisions on environmental, social, and governance factors.

(2) The assets must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole.

(3) The assets must be invested predominantly in regulated markets. Assets not traded in a regulated financial market must be kept to a prudent level.

(4) Investments in derivative instruments are permitted insofar as they reduce investment risk or facilitate efficient portfolio management. They must be valued prudently, taking into account the underlying asset, and included in the valuation of the institution’s assets. The institution must avoid excessive risk exposure to a single counterparty and to other derivative operations.

(5) The assets must be diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer, or group of companies and accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole. Investments issued by the same issuer or by issuers of the same group must not expose the institution to excessive risk concentration.

(6) Investments in, as well as loans granted to, and claims on the sponsoring company may not exceed 5% of the entire portfolio, and, if the sponsoring company belongs to a group, investment in, as well as loans granted to, and claims on companies of the same group as the sponsoring company may not exceed 10% of the portfolio. If the institution is sponsored by more than one company, investment in, as well as loans granted to, and claims on these companies must be made prudently, taking into account proper diversification.

Derivative instruments that imply delivery are authorized only if at least one of the following conditions is met:

(1) The institution for occupational retirement provision holds the underlying assets as covering assets.

(2) The risks inherent in the highly liquid underlying assets are adequately covered by other liquid assets, provided the latter can be allocated to acquisition of underlying assets to be delivered, and provided the additional risk of this type of operation is adequately measured and managed.

(3) A clearing institution is involved that offers an adequate guarantee of the success of the operation, the derivative positions are evaluated daily at market value, and margin calls are issued at least once a day.

To apply the first paragraph, second point (of Article 28 of the Royal Decree of January 12, 2007), a hedging instrument is considered liquid if, during a period of at least seven bank working days, it can be converted to cash at a price very close to the actual valuation of the instrument. The amount in cash must be at the disposal of the IORP at maturity or at the exercise date of the derivative.

Financial instruments that are not traded in a regulated market may not serve as cover unless they are realizable within a reasonable time. This condition (of Article 29 of the Royal Decree of January 12, 2007) may be waived for credit institutions, insurance companies, and investment firms whose registered office is in an EU Member State – with FSMA approval.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Pension fund representative values must be located within the EEA. By way of derogation from the first paragraph, movable cover assets outside the EEA are also accepted, provided the National Bank of Belgium or a credit institution or investment firm governed by the laws of an EU member and authorized to carry out the activity of depository attests that it holds these assets for the IORP's account, through an EEA establishment at a credit institution or investment firm outside the EEA whose authorization the FSMA deems equivalent to its own.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	Representative values of a pension fund may be denominated in (1) euros or currencies convertible to euros without restriction or (2) the currency of the liabilities, up to the amount of those liabilities.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	No.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	For pension savings funds in the form of public open-end collective investment funds, up to 20% of the assets of such funds may be denominated in a currency other than euros. However, the assets denominated in a currency other than euros may be fully or partially hedged with financial derivatives for the currency risk, so that the hedged part is not taken into account for the determination of the maximum of 20%.

Exchange tax	Yes.	A stamp duty of 1.75% is levied on all conversions from Belize dollars to foreign currency greater than BZ$100 in value unless otherwise exempt via instructions from the MOF.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	All transactions in foreign exchange must be conducted through ADs (that is, domestic banks, the accountant general, and the postmaster general). Domestic banks may buy and sell foreign exchange at the official rate in transactions with their clients and interbank transactions. The CBB sets the buying and selling rates as well as the maximum commissions for major currencies.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Five domestic banks, the accountant general, and the postmaster general are licensed to deal in foreign exchange with the public. The CBB grants official licenses. There are also three international banks that operate in Belize. There are no lawfully operating foreign exchange bureaus in Belize. Domestic banks may buy and sell foreign exchange at the official rate in transactions with their clients and interbank transactions. The CBB sets the buying and selling rates as well as the maximum commissions for major currencies.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The CBB quotes daily rates for the Canadian dollar, pound sterling, euro, US dollar, and a number of currencies of the CARICOM member countries.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The CBB provides US dollars to ADs and the government at the official rate with a specified commission.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.
Credit operations	Yes.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	No.	Act No. 6 of the 2010 Amendment to the CBB Act repealed the provision authorizing residents who earn foreign exchange to pay their taxes, utility bills, and other expenses in US dollars, thereby restoring a single currency system in Belize. Act No. 16 of the 2010 Amendment to the EPZ Act removed the requirement for EPZs to conduct business in US dollars. Section 21 of the CBB Act 2011 states that to be valid in Belize, all monetary contracts, obligations, or transactions in Belize, whether imposed or authorized by a law or otherwise, are deemed to be expressed and recorded and must be settled or discharged in Belize dollars unless specifically provided otherwise.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.	A bilateral arrangement aims to eliminate the need to use US dollars or other non-regional currencies for regional transactions. Settlement under the arrangement is done monthly between CBs based on the net amount outstanding.
Operative	Yes.	There is a bilateral clearing arrangement in effect. Caribbean countries with bilateral clearing arrangements with Belize are Antigua and Barbuda, Barbados, Dominica, Grenada, Guyana, Jamaica, St. Kitts and Nevis, St. Lucia, St. Vincent and the Grenadines, and Trinidad and Tobago. Settlement under the bilateral clearing arrangement is done on a monthly basis between CBs based on the net amount outstanding.

On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Each traveler may bring in BZ$500 a trip.
Foreign currency	No.	There is no limit on the importation of currency. However, any amount over BZ$10,000 requires a customs declaration.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Domestic commercial banks may open foreign exchange accounts for residents. The CBB reserves the right to prohibit specific accounts. These accounts are demand accounts utilized solely for the purpose of meeting external obligations, and the Exchange Control Regulations apply to these accounts. Residents are not allowed to maintain foreign exchange accounts in international banks. Amendments in the International Banking Act provide for such exceptions, namely companies that operate in the Commercial Free Zone/Designated Processing Areas (DPAs) and government-owned entities. (See IBA amendment 2017.)
Approval required	Yes.

Advance payment requirements No.

Advance import deposits No.

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports Yes. Prepayment for imports requires CBB authorization.

Domiciliation requirements No.

Preshipment inspection No.

Letters of credit Yes.

Import licenses used as exchange licenses No.

Other Yes. Valid invoices and customs documents are required for approval of foreign exchange for imports. As stated in Exchange Control Direction No. 18/2014, all domestic banks must offer foreign currency for sale to a designated importer to cover payments for fuel in an orderly and timely manner. The amount of foreign currency that each bank must provide is the proportion of the fuel bill equivalent to the bank's share of foreign assets within the banking system. The CBB provides each domestic bank with a notice specifying the minimum amount of foreign currency it must offer for sale to the designated importer to cover monthly fuel payments.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures Yes.

Positive list No.

Negative list Yes. For reasons of health, standardization, and protection of domestic industries, import licenses are required for a number of goods, mostly food and agricultural products and certain household and construction products; such licenses are granted liberally. Licenses are also required for pharmaceuticals and prescription medications from the chief pharmacist and director of health services before importation. Ministry of Agriculture, specifically Belize Agricultural Health Authority (BAHA), sets regulations to protect Belize's agriculture industry from foreign pests that may be transported through the products.

Open general licenses No.

Other nontariff measures No.

Import taxes and/or tariffs Yes. Belize applies the fourth phase of the CARICOM CET. Duties range from 5% to 100%, and a number of items (particularly agricultural inputs) enter duty-free. Imports by most of the public sector and certain nonprofits, imports of an emergency or humanitarian nature, and goods for reexportation are exempt, as are goods originating in the CARICOM area. Some items are subject to revenue-replacement

BELIZE

Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.	duties ranging from 5% to 50%. An environmental tax of 2% is levied on a broad range of imports. Specific duties and surcharges apply to certain products.

Prior approval	Yes.	For the payment and transfer of commissions, approval is granted by the CBB, subject to clearance by the commissioner of income tax (CIT).
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Transactions for CBB approval must be accompanied by customs entry documentation and relevant invoices. Foreign exchange is provided up to the invoiced limit.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	Interest payments are subject to CBB approval and clearance by the CIT; these require a copy of the loan agreement and amortization schedule and proof of the loan disbursement. For transfers of profits and dividends, an income statement and a declaration of dividends must be presented along with clearance by the CIT.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Transactions for CBB approval must be accompanied by documents from a reputable firm and of a recent date. Limits are based on amounts stated in the document submitted. A system of calculations and cross-checks is used to verify principal payments on loans. Payments are directed to the firms or names indicated in the documents.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	The following limits are in effect for ADs for (1) nonbusiness travel by residents, the equivalent of BZ$6,000 a person a trip; (2) business travel by residents, BZ$500 a person a day; (3) medical travel, BZ$6,000 a person a trip; and (4) business or nonbusiness travel by nonresidents, BZ$500 a person a trip, unless payment is made from an external account or with foreign currency proceeds. Travel amounts in excess of these limits should be directed to the CBB for approval. Resident travelers must sell their excess holdings of foreign currency to an AD on returning to Belize. The CBB reserves the right to waive these limits.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Documentation required to obtain foreign currency includes a valid passport, visa, and plane ticket where applicable. Official exchange rate Yes. The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the intervention currency, at the fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. Exchange rates for other currencies are derived from the rates for the currency concerned in the Paris foreign exchange market vis-à-vis the euro. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation purposes. The Conference of Heads of State and Government may decide to amend the Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAMU member countries and France.

Monetary policy framework

Exchange tax	Yes.	The commission rate charged by registered intermediaries on transfers outside the WAEMU that are authorized by their clientele is 0.6%. This commission is reversed in full to the National Treasury and is a portion of its tax revenue.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries (licensed intermediary banks and licensed exchange dealers) freely set the buying and selling rates for foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which must be traded at the official fixed parity of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The commission on foreign exchange transactions may not exceed 2% for the euro. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 of November 10, 2015, on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU applies.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The entities authorized to conduct nonelectronic foreign currency transactions are authorized intermediary banks and individuals and companies authorized to conduct nonelectronic transactions with the public by decision of the minister of finance. Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect on the financial conditions for executing OTC foreign exchange transactions that involve foreign currencies and issue a transaction slip for all transactions with a client. Moreover, to provide satisfactory information to clients, they are required to permanently post at their windows the rates actually charged for the different currencies and post notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions on presentation of the requestor's identity document. Exchange bureaus may conduct transactions in foreign currencies (except the euro) with the BCEAO. Entities authorized to perform OTC operations may not make transfers or payments in foreign currency with other countries or maintain accounts abroad. As of December 31, 2020, 103 authorized OTC dealers conducted business in Benin.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at rates published on the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The nonelectronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and on all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals). However, no commission is charged for the following operations: (1) OTC foreign banknote exchanges conducted by state entities, government employees of WAEMU member states on mission abroad, and officials of the CB and their beneficiaries and (2) payments made by banks and financial institutions.
Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are allowed. As of December 31, 2020, 12 banks participated in the domestic currency interbank market. There is no regulated foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions in the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps. Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to purchase foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign bank, and options to sell foreign currency, purchased by residents of the WAEMU zone from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution. Authorized intermediary banks must simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur with respect to derivative instruments traded with their customers. The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or direct foreign investment in a resident company. All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other the WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions outside the WAEMU.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	CFA francs may not be used for settlement of international transactions outside the WAEMU.
For capital transactions	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require Minister of Economy and Finance (MEF) authorization.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following operations on derivatives and other instruments with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward contract, (2) foreign exchange swaps, and (3) options. Operations on derivatives with foreign banks outside the WAEMU can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Credit operations	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone may not use foreign exchange for domestic transactions.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	An operations account is maintained with the French Treasury that links operations account countries. All purchases and sales of foreign currencies and euros against CFA francs are ultimately settled through a debit or credit to the operations account.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	There is a multilateral netting agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS member countries (Cabo Verde, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, Sierra Leone) as part of the WAMA. All payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be made under the netting agreement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.

Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	On April 1, 2010, the institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO went into effect, with the adoption of the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Benin for the purposes of preparing the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and physical exports of means of payment and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Benin are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfers with other countries must be made through registered intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers may freely export CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from one WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc banknotes issued by the BCEAO.
Foreign currency	Yes.	The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; the reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposits in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFAF 5 million. They are allowed to carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler's checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, and other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler's checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.

On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Resident and nonresident travelers may freely import domestic currency (CFA franc (XOF)). However, resident individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving banknotes in domestic currency (CFA franc (XOF)).
Foreign currency	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone may freely import CFA area banknotes denominated in foreign currencies. Such means of payment in excess of or equal to the equivalent of CFAF 5 million must be declared to customs. Nonresident travelers must declare to customs foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 5 million on entry and exit.

Resident Accounts

Held domestically	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.
Held abroad	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Individuals who are residents of the WAEMU and temporarily staying or traveling outside of the WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts valid for up to one year. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.

The ECOWAS CET entered into force in Benin on January 1, 2015. The CET, amended in accordance with Supplementary Law No.

A/SA.1/06/09 of June 22, 2009, to include the additional tariff bracket of 35% called “Category 4: specific goods for economic development,” has five tariff brackets (0%, 5%, 10%, 20%, and 35%). Two additional taxes are planned to protect the budding ECOWAS industrial sector and the other strategic sectors: (1) a temporary adjustment tax on imports for five years intended to offset the reduced tariff protection for community products as a result of CET implementation and (2) a temporary supplementary protection tax for up to two years applicable to products imported from third countries in direct competition with similar products manufactured by an ECOWAS member country. In accordance with the spirit of Resolution No. A/DEC.17/01/06 of January 12, 2006, the adoption of the CET, as amended by Supplementary Law No. A/SA.1/06/09 of June 22, 2009, the previous WAEMU and ECOWAS community levies continue to be imposed for a temporary period of five years. Consequently, for five years, imports from ECOWAS nonmember countries will be subject to a 0.8% community levy, in addition to an ad valorem ECOWAS community levy of 0.5%.

Taxes collected through the exchange system No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements Yes. Resident economic operators must collect and repatriate within 30 days of the payment due date the entire proceeds of sales of goods abroad in the country of origin with the bank with which the transaction is domiciled. The payment due date is specified in the trade agreement and normally falls within a period of 120 days after the goods are dispatched.

Surrender requirements Yes.

Surrender to the central bank Yes. Export proceeds must be surrendered by ADs to the BCEAO within 30 days of the payment due date, which may not exceed 120 days after shipment of the goods. To cover its current foreign exchange needs, the domiciling bank may hold up to 20% of its export proceeds as own foreign exchange resources. However, it must ensure that its total foreign exchange resources to cover its requirements do not exceed 5% of total customer demand deposits; otherwise, the surplus must be surrendered to the BCEAO.

Surrender to authorized dealers Yes. Proceeds must be surrendered to authorized banks within 30 days of the payment due date. Export revenue may be surrendered to intermediaries other than banks with which the transaction is domiciled if authorized by the BCEAO, provided they furnish the domiciling bank with the documents required for the domiciliation file to be closed.

Financing requirements No.

Letters of credit No.

Guarantees No.

Domiciliation Yes. Export transactions of more than CFAF 10 million, except those between WAEMU countries, must be domiciled with an authorized intermediary bank.

-------------------------------	------	--

Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.
-------------------------------	------	---

Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of WAEMU residents' investments abroad must be repatriated and surrendered within one month to an AD, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.
---------------------------------	------	--

Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	RCPSFM authorization is required for the following operations: (1) issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) canvassing, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. Soliciting the public of the WAEMU by nonresident entities is subject to authorization by the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority responsible for regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

Shares or other securities of a participating nature Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.

	No.	Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, purchases by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization from RCPSFM, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MEF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MEF authorization. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries. Purchases of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of resident entities, foreign investors are required to make a prior declaration to the MEF. The sale of securities for liquidation of an investment abroad must be declared to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes. Issuance of securities abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. There is no minimum holding period.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization from RCPSFM, with the prior authorization of the BCEAO. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. Issuance of securities constituting a loan by residents of the WAEMU zone to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the minister of finance.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	There are no controls on credits related to exports of goods. The date on which payment falls due is agreed to in the contract (in principle no later than 120 days after the date of shipment).

BENIN

To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.
Financial credits
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These credits require MEF approval. Outward transfers to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the minister of finance and substantiated by documentation.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The granting of guarantees and sureties is subject to minister of finance approval. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to minister of finance approval and submission of supporting documents.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered to be direct investments and therefore require declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.	Direct investment implies control of a company or enterprise. Mere participation is not considered direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company. All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of WAEMU residents and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MEF authorization.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MEF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	FDIs, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the MEF for statistical purposes. A share is not considered a direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of a company.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MEF and the CB for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the proceeds of liquidation is subject to MEF authorization. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted, but must be reported to the MEF and the CB for statistical purposes.

Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These purchases require MEF authorization.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company are allowed. They require a declaration to the minister of finance and the CB for statistical purposes.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.	Sales by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone to residents of the WAEMU zone require submission of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary that handles the settlement and must be declared to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.	Personal capital transactions between residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through the BCEAO, the postal service, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless authorization is obtained from the minister of finance.
Loans	Yes.	The regulations governing securities and investments apply.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions require MEF authorization. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation without first being licensed and included on the list of financial institutions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions may be made freely, but are subject to declaration for statistical purposes to the MEF and the CB when disbursed and when repaid. They must be conducted through an authorized intermediary.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to authorization by the MOF and the BCEAO. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant anti-money-laundering and terrorism financing provisions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	Immigrants with resident status must obtain MEF authorization to settle debts contracted abroad while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	These transactions require MEF authorization if the value exceeds CFAF 500,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	Yes.	Foreign accounts of nonresidents of the WAEMU zone (in foreign currencies or CFA francs) who become residents of the WAEMU zone must be closed. However, these residents may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. New transfers to these accounts require MEF approval.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	No.	These transfers are conducted freely by authorized intermediaries, subject to the presentation of supporting documents and compliance with the relevant provisions on combating money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect through Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 of September 28, 2012. This decision was incorporated into Benin's legislation in July 2016.
Borrowing abroad	No.	Foreign borrowing is unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the MEF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions for their own account or the accounts of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements. In accordance with Regulation No. 09/2010/CM/UEMOA on the External Financial Relations of the WAEMU Member States, to cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits not exceeding the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits not exceeding the balance on their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency. The total amount of these assets may not exceed 5% of the clients' outstanding demand deposits. Assets in excess of foreign currency requirements must be surrendered to the BCEAO.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Commercial lending is allowed. Financial credits are subject to MEF authorization following BCEAO approval.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	There are no explicit regulations regarding these transactions, but MEF authorization is required with BCEAO approval.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These purchases require MEF authorization if their issuance was not approved by the RCPSFM.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.	A reserve requirement of 3% applies to WAEMU banks. Demand deposits, other deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the base for the calculation of the required reserves. The base for the calculation of the required reserves to be held with the CB includes customer foreign currency deposits.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	According to the prudential framework applicable to WAEMU banks and financial institutions that perform banking operations, the minimum standard liquid asset requirement is 75%.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to MEF authorization, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.	Banking regulations make no distinction among resident deposit accounts, nonresident deposit accounts, and foreign deposit accounts.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.

BENIN

Credit controls	Yes.	Any overdraft or advance granted to a nonresident requires MEF authorization with BCEAO approval.
Investment regulations	Yes.	The regulations governing direct investment apply.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may, depending on their volume, be subject to authorization by the minister of finance. The banking law stipulates that investment by any person in a bank that would have the effect of changing the minority and/or majority voting rights requires authorization by the minister of finance.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits not exceeding the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits not exceeding the balance on their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks are not allowed to maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts for the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits not exceeding the total amount of import payments domiciled by clients in their books, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits not exceeding the balance on their open foreign accounts denominated in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts denominated in foreign currency.

No significant changes occurred in the exchange and trade system.

BHUTAN(Position as of June 30, 2021)Status under IMF Articles of Agreement*Date of membership September 28, 1981.Article VIII*Article XIV Yes.Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices Yes. The IMF staff report for the 2018 Article IV Consultation with Bhutan states that, as of August 7, 2018, Bhutan continues to avail itself of transitional arrangements under Article XIV, Section 2, pursuant to which it maintains exchange restrictions in connection with: (1) the availability of foreign exchange for travel, except for medical travel abroad by Bhutanese citizens, invisibles, and private transfers; (2) foreign exchange balancing requirement on remittances of income in convertible currencies or other foreign currencies from FDI; and (3) on the availability of foreign exchange for importers who have not provided evidence that goods for which payments have been made were actually imported. Bhutan also maintains exchange restrictions subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a), in connection with: (1) the foreign exchange balancing requirements for imports of capital goods (for projects involving FDI) and primary raw materials (for certain industrial projects); (2) banning residents who do not comply with the requirement to repatriate export proceeds from accessing foreign exchange for unrelated imports; (3) requiring foreign direct investment companies to pay for their establishment and operational expenses from their own convertible currency resources; (4) requiring Bhutanese companies to pay the interest on and amortization of external loans from their own convertible currency resources; and (5) restricting the availability of Indian rupees for making payments and transfers to India for certain current international transactions and banning the access to Indian rupees for unrelated current international transactions for those who contravene Royal Monetary Authority's (RMA's) 2012 guidelines on Indian rupee transactions. (Country Report No. 18/300)

In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51) Yes.

Banking institutions have been instructed to freeze all capital transfers and financial assets of individuals, groups, and organizations associated with terrorism, pursuant to the relevant UNSC resolutions. In addition, financial institutions are required to report to the RMA any financial transactions linked to groups associated with terrorism. The RMA has the power to share information and cooperate in any way necessary with domestic and foreign supervisors to combat money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

Other security restrictions Yes.

BHUTAN

Other legal tender	No.	Indian rupee banknotes circulate freely in Bhutan, but there is no legal/official provision establishing them as legal tender in Bhutan. Since January 2015, Indian rupee (INR) denominations above Rs 500 (specifically currency notes in denominations of Rs 500 and Rs 1,000) started to circulate, and individuals from India are allowed to carry to Bhutan INR in denominations of Rs 500 and/or Rs 1,000 subject to a limit of Rs 25,000. The RMA opened an exchange counter at the RMA (Thimphu and Phuntsholing branch office) for facilitating the exchange of ngultrum notes for INR notes, beginning with the facility for Bhutanese proceeding on pilgrimage to India. Any Bhutanese may avail INR from the RMA exchange counters in Thimphu and the RMA branch Office in Phuntsholing up to a limit of Rs 50,000 a person on production of personal context identity (Citizenship Identity Card) to the exchange counter tellers. All current international transactions denominated in rupees have been streamlined to reflect the legal status of the rupee as a foreign currency. Since the demonetization of high denomination Indian rupee note in India from November 2016, INR denominations of 500 and 1000 were not allowed to be used in Bhutan and only INR denominations of 100 and below are allowed to be used in Bhutan. The new series of INR denominations up to 500 were re-permitted in Bhutan since June 2018. Further, the RMA opened up exchange counters at the Airport and Phuntsholing to facilitate exchange of Indian rupees to ngultrum and vice versa.

Conventional peg	Yes.

The exchange rate arrangement is a conventional peg vis-à-vis the Indian rupee. No current legal documents establish a fixed exchange rate arrangement; the ngultrum has been pegged at par with the Indian rupee since the introduction of the ngultrum in 1974. Under the RMA Act of Bhutan 2010 (Provisions 88 and 89), the Bhutanese government, on recommendation of the RMA, may declare the external value of the ngultrum, and the RMA will determine the appropriate external value. The RMA does not publish the intervention data.

Official exchange rate Yes. The ngultrum is officially pegged to the Indian rupee at par. Under the RMA Act of Bhutan 2010 (Provisions 88 and 89), the government may at any time, on recommendation of the RMA, declare the external value of the ngultrum vis-à-vis currencies for which the RMA determines a fixed exchange rate or the width of the exchange rate band against that of foreign currencies whose rate or width it considers compatible with the primary monetary policy objective. The rates for currencies other than the Indian rupee are determined on the basis of the prevailing rupee exchange rates (average rate) against the currencies concerned. The official exchange rate is used for all foreign exchange transactions in Bhutan. The method as mentioned above is prevailing rupee exchange rates (average rate) against the currencies concerned plus fixed margin as decided by the RMA.

Foreign exchange market Yes. Banks may charge customers a spread of 0.2% above or below the dealing rate used by the RMA. Hotels licensed under restricted authorized money changers (AMCs) may charge a commission of 0.5% on cash only. ADs (banks and AMCs) use exchange rates that are determined by the RMA on a daily basis.

Spot exchange market Yes. In addition to the five depository institutions operating in Bhutan, there are 65 AMCs licensed by the RMA. These AMCs may purchase but not sell foreign currency. Commercial banks may only make foreign exchange transactions with the CB. These banks may maintain accounts abroad, conduct operations for the purchase and sale of banknotes, and make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. As of December 2019, there were 65 AMCs licensed by the RMA. As stipulated in Chapter IIIC of the Foreign Exchange Regulations 2020, any person other than authorized bank may apply for a license from the RMA to carry out money changing business in Bhutan. Accordingly, these licensed AMC operations are limited to (1) buying from individual's banknotes and traveler's checks denominated in convertible currencies against the ngultrum or (2) selling to an authorized bank, holdings of banknotes and traveler's checks denominated in convertible currencies against the ngultrum. They are not allowed to operate like authorized banks, viz. maintain accounts abroad or transfer on behalf of their clients. The RMA allows commercial banks to hold convertible currency up to the maximum limit of US$15 million, beyond which the commercial banks are required to sell it to the RMA.

Operated by the central bank Yes.

Foreign exchange standing facility Yes. The RMA stands ready to buy and sell ngultrum at the official exchange rate without any commission and buys and sells on demand. The RMA rates for the US dollar, euro, Swiss franc,

BHUTAN

Singapore dollar, Hong Kong dollar, Swedish krona, and other major traded currencies are based on the previous day's closing rates in international markets, as determined by the RMA. Only banks are eligible to deal with the RMA.

Since 2016, the RMA opened an exchange counter at the RMA (Thimphu and Phuntsholing branch office) for facilitating the exchange of ngultrum notes for INR notes, beginning with the facility for Bhutanese proceeding on pilgrimage to India and Indian merchants in the border town. Any Bhutanese citizen going on pilgrimage may, in person, avail INR from the RMA exchange counters in Thimphu and RMA branch Office in Phuntsholing up to a limit of Rs 50,000 a person on production of personal Citizenship Identity Card to the exchange counter tellers. Indian merchants were permitted to deposit their sale proceeds in ngultrum with any of the commercial banks and were allowed to repatriate the equivalent in INR the next day through banking channel (demand draft, telegraphic transfer, and real-time gross settlement).

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.

The de jure exchange rate arrangement of the Plurinational State of Bolivia is a crawling peg to the US dollar (also called a “sliding” rate) and is characterized by small exchange rate movements that are not announced in advance. The Central Bank of Bolivia (CBB) determines the floor price for the daily competitive foreign exchange auction (“bolsín”) in which both the financial private sector and the nonfinancial private sector participate. The CBB ensures that the exchange rate is consistent with moderate inflation, thus mitigating external and internal inflationary pressures, because the exchange rate is still used as a benchmark for the prices of nontradable goods, albeit to a decreasing extent because of bolivianization (dedollarization) in real and financial transactions. The exchange rates used in most exchange transactions fluctuate daily within a band of 12 centavos (1.7%), defined by the official buying and selling exchange rates (Bs. 6.86 and Bs. 6.96, respectively) plus a margin of one centavo at each end. Because the boliviano stabilized against the US dollar since November 2011, the de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement. The authorities consider that the de facto stabilized arrangement does not fully reflect the exchange arrangement managed by the CBB because the official policy of a crawling peg has not changed. The CBB's crawling peg mechanism allows the sliding rate to be set at 0 without changing the arrangement if the underlying economic fundamentals warrant it. The CBB publishes information on its exchange market interventions and on its foreign exchange purchases and sales in the "Weekly Statistics" section and in other publications such as the Monthly Statistical Bulletin, all of which are available on its website.

Yes. The official selling exchange rate is the minimum auction price resulting from the bolsin. The official exchange rate is used for official transactions, and the buying rate (Bs. 0.10 less than the official rate) is used for valuation and accounting purposes. The CBB uses the official selling exchange rate of the day for same-day sales of US dollars to the general public and to financial institutions, by debiting the accounts in domestic currency and crediting the accounts in US dollars held with financial institutions (Board Resolution No. 63/2013). The CBB can sell US dollars to financial institutions and to the general public on the same day at the official selling exchange rate in effect (Board Resolution No. 63/2013). The majority of foreign exchange operations transacted by financial institutions and exchange bureaus are carried out at an exchange rate within the band defined by the buying and selling exchange rates, plus a margin of Bs. 0.01 at each end. The CBB does not sell US dollars directly to the general public (ventas en ventanillas) and/or through financial intermediation entities with majority participation of the government. The CBB sells dollars to financial intermediation entities through two arrangements (bolsin and direct same-day sales). Similarly, foreign currency can be acquired from any financial intermediation entity.

Exchange tax

Yes. Law No. 713 of July 1, 2015, extended the Financial Transactions Tax (Impuesto a las Transacciones Financieras – ITF) to December 2018. This tax is levied on transactions performed in foreign currency and in domestic currency indexed to any foreign currency. The rate was 0.15% in 2015, increased to 0.20% in 2016, increased to 0.25% in 2017, and increased to 0.30% in 2018, of the gross amount of the transaction and applies to taxpayers who are individuals or legal entities and who hold current or savings accounts. To that same end, Law No. 1135 of December 20, 2018, amends Law No. 713, extending the effective date of the ITF until December 31, 2023, maintaining a rate of 0.30% while in force. The following are exempt from this tax:

- (1) credits to and debits from the savings accounts of individuals in foreign currency and in indexed domestic currency, up to US$2,000 or its equivalent in other foreign currencies;
- (2) on the condition of reciprocity and enforceability of agreements and treaties, credits to and debits from bank accounts corresponding to diplomatic and consular missions and diplomatic personnel;
- (3) credits to or debits from accounts belonging to the judicial branch, the legislative branch, the central government, the CBB, and departmental and municipal autonomous governments, except publicly owned enterprises;
- (4) credits to and debits from accounts held by entities governed by the Securities Market Law in the financial system or with the CBB, corresponding to investment accounts belonging to third parties;
- (5) credits to current or savings accounts through remittances from abroad; and
- (6) redemption and earnings of shares in investment funds with balances (in domestic or foreign currency) less than or equal to US$2,000.

Exchange subsidy No.

Foreign exchange market Yes. The bid-ask spread of the official exchange rate of the boliviano against the US dollar is set by the CBB Board at Bs. 0.10 (Point 7 of CBB Board Act No. 008/2008 of July 3, 2006). This differential is a benchmark for the parallel market, which determines its own differentials and the fees charged to its customers within the limits established for consumer protection. The Financial System Supervisory Authority (Autoridad de Supervisión del Sistema Financiero – ASFI) is responsible for verifying that financial institutions sell US dollars to their customers and users at an exchange rate no higher than Bs. 0.01 above the CBB’s official exchange rate and buy US dollars from their customers and users at a rate no lower than Bs. 0.01 below the CBB’s official rate. The majority of foreign exchange operations are conducted within this band. The CBB uses the official selling exchange rate of the day for same-day sales of US dollars to financial institutions, by debiting the accounts in domestic currency and crediting the accounts in US dollars held with financial institutions (Article 19, Board Resolution No. 63/2013).

Spot exchange market Yes. The fee (or service charge) for outward fund transfers by the financial system through the CBB is 1% and the fee for funds transfers received by the financial system through the CBB is 0.6% (Board Resolution No. 175/2015). The exceptions are as follows: (1) transfers from exporters through the CBB and remittances equivalent to US$1,000 or less and (2) transactions carried out through the financial system by the diplomatic corps, cooperation agencies, and international bodies. The temporary ITF, mentioned in III.F above, is separate from the service charge mentioned in this paragraph. The commissions on transfers from the financial system through the CBB are 1.6% for transfers abroad and from 0.0% for transfers from abroad (Board Resolution No. 18/2016). Included are transactions through the CBB for exports and remittances, and transactions through the financial system for the diplomatic corps, cooperation agencies, and international bodies, and remittances less than or equal to US$1,000.

The fee for transfers of funds sent by the financial system through the CBB is 2% (Board Resolution No. 39/2017).

Charges on transfers for 2019 remain at 2% for transfers going abroad and 0% for transfers from abroad RD 177/2018.

Effective January 1, 2020, the commission for transfers abroad decreased from 2% to 0.1% for the payment of capital and interest for financing from multilateral organizations for the private sector. For the financial system, they remain at 2% for transfers abroad and 0% for transfers from abroad (Board Resolution No. 152/2019).

As of January 1, 2021, the commission for the financial system is 2% for transfers abroad and 0% for transfers from abroad (Board Resolution No. 143/2020).

Exchange transactions may be freely executed and require no special authorization. Commercial banks, exchange bureaus, individuals, legal entities, and nonfinancial private sectors are authorized to deal in foreign exchange. The foreign exchange bought in official public sales by the CBB is freely available for use by the buyer. Foreign exchange sold at auction may be bought only by institutions holding accounts with the CBB, whether for themselves or on behalf of their clients.

The CBB does not sell US dollars directly to the general public (ventas en ventanillas) and/or through financial intermediation entities with majority participation of the government. However, it sells through the other two arrangements (bolsin and direct same-day sales).

Exchange bureaus also trade in foreign currency and are subject to supervision and regulation by the ASFI, pursuant to ASFI Resolution No. 486/2011 of June 16, 2011.

The Regulation governing Exchange Bureaus, issued September 14, 2011, establishes guidelines for the creation of exchange bureaus and for the process of conforming to those in operation. The services that exchange bureaus with legal status can engage in were also defined, such as buying and selling currency, exchanging traveler's checks, sending and receiving domestic transfers, exchanging and paying remittances from abroad in the capacity of payment agent and, for single-person exchange bureaus only, the buying and selling of currency.

As of August 27, 2020, 170 exchange bureaus and 7 money transfer and remittance companies were registered under the ASFI operating license.

As of August 30, 2021, 178 exchange bureaus and 7 money transfer and remittance companies were registered with an ASFI operating license.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The CBB buys foreign currency from the financial system at the buying exchange rate of the day, without any restriction as to the amount. In turn, the CBB sells foreign currency to the financial and nonfinancial private sector through the various mechanisms specified in the previous section.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	Exchange market participants may buy foreign currency at the CBB, and the CBB in turn sells foreign currency to the financial and nonfinancial private sector and to the public sector.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	Exchange Regulation No. 063/2013, in its Articles 8 to 18, regulates foreign currency sales through the bolsin. There are no specific auction regulations as such. The CBB sells foreign currency at a bolsín-denominated daily auction. The Monetary and Exchange Policy Committee (Comité de Política Monetaria y Cambiaria – CPMC) determines the amounts to be auctioned. The information on the supply of foreign currency is published each day on the CBB website. The floor price is set by the CBB president, who directs the allocation of foreign currencies in descending price order, provided it is higher than the floor price, until the bid is exhausted. Financial institutions may participate in these auctions on their own account or on behalf of their clients with a minimum bid of US$100,000; the nonfinancial private sector may also participate. In the applications to participate in the bolsín, the banks only specify if the foreign currencies to be acquired at the auction are for the banks themselves or for their clients. Once these are awarded they can be withdrawn through the CBB vaults for domestic use or transferred abroad; in the latter case, the bank must fill out a form where they are asked the reason for the transfer, which is usually for trade (imports) or for the bank's own operations.

Auction results are published on the CBB website daily. Bidders pay their offered price. Bids without the necessary resources are rejected and the bidder is barred from bolsín participation for five business days.

If the US dollar amount offered is not sufficient to meet all the bids submitted at a particular exchange rate, the dollars are awarded on a prorated basis.

The total offer of US$150 million is distributed as follows: the CBB's daily offer of dollars through the bolsín is US$100 million, and direct sales amount to US$50 million. CPMC Act No. 024/2014 of December 23, 2014.

The CBB purchases foreign currency from the financial system at the buying rate of the day, without any restriction as to the amount.

Interbank market Yes.

Financial intermediaries are free to carry out transactions at the exchange rate they set among themselves, within the limits of Bs. 0.01 below and above the CBB buying and selling rates, respectively. As of December 31, 2020, there were 59 financial intermediaries, of which 12 are full-service banks, 2 are banks serving small and medium enterprises (SMEs), 2 are public banks (BDP S.A.M. and Banco Unión), 3 are Housing Finance Institutions (Entidades Financieras de Vivienda), 31 are savings and loan cooperatives, and 9 are Development Finance Institutions (IFD), which became subject to regulation in November 2016.

Within the framework of the legislation in force (Law No. 393, the Financial Services Law (LSF), Articles 19 and 150), an operating license was granted by the ASFI to the financial intermediaries.

TAX AND CUSTOMS TREATMENT APPLICABLE TO SPECIFIC PRODUCTS

The Plurinational State of Bolivia has established tariff deferrals for certain goods to promote the productive sector and has also given priority to the import of medical inputs and medication to combat the COVID-19 pandemic.

S.D. No. 4192, effective March 16, 2020, temporarily defers the TR for the import of medical supplies and equipment to 0% until December 31, 2020.

S.D. No. 4211, effective April 8, 2020, temporarily defers the TR for wheat imports to 0% for a 2-year period.

S.D. No. 4227, effective April 28, 2020, defers the TR for the import of inputs and medicines for the treatment of COVID-19 and other basic diseases to 0%.

S.D. No. 4298, effective July 24, 2020, temporarily defers the TR for imports of machinery and equipment to 0% until December 31, 2021.

S.D. No. 4299, effective July 24, 2020, eliminates the granting of prior import authorizations (S.D. 2752) for articles used for transportation or packaging.

S.D. No. 4428, effective December 23, 2020, reduces the import TR to 0% for diesel oil (subheading 2710.19.21.00) from January 1, 2021, to December 31, 2021.

S.D. No. 4438, effective December 30, 2020, reduces the import TR for sugars (glucose, lactose, etc.), chlorine, iodine, oxides, hydroxides, aldehydes, acids, vitamins, and other organic compounds to 0% until December 31, 2021, before a second wave of COVID-19.

S.D. No. 4467, effective February 24, 2021, reduces the import TR for oxygen, cylinders, generators, and ISO tank containers for the transport of oxygen to 0% until December 31, 2021.

S.D. No. 4514, effective May 26, 2021, with the aim of protecting domestic industry and encouraging the consumption of Bolivian products, and also encouraging reading, modifies the TRs for publications and printed matter, ceramic plates and tiles, and glass canisters, bottles, and jars.

S.D. No. 4521, effective June 16, 2021, makes it easier for autonomous governments to engage in direct foreign procurement of COVID-19 vaccines.

S.D. No. 4522, effective June 16, 2021, modifies the import customs TRs for: chicken, powdered milk, cocoa, potatoes, tomatoes, onions, apples, and strawberries.

S.D. No. 4539, effective July 7, 2021, to encourage the assembly of electric vehicles, modifies the import TRs for telematic control units, telematic systems, and electric motors. The TRs for electric motor vehicles and agricultural machinery are also modified.

In addition, the rates for finished goods or those that generate some negative externality were modified, to protect the industry and the population in general.

TRADE AGREEMENTS

The Plurinational State of Bolivia grants preferential treatment to imports from countries with which it has preferential agreements within the framework of ALADI.

BOLIVIA

The tariff preferences granted in the framework of all the agreements amount to 100% of the tariff universe except for the agreement with Mexico and with Chile.

Similarly, with the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela, there is a tariff preference equal to 100% of the tariff universe. Outside the ALADI framework, there is a tariff preference with the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela.

It also strengthens the prudential and solvency measures applicable to financial institutions, in addition to establishing deposit insurance for low-income savers, who account for more than 90% of the total number of deposit accounts.

Law No. 921 of March 29, 2017, amends the first paragraph of Article 51 ter. of Law No. 843, as amended by Law No. 771 of December 29, 2015, establishing that when the rate of return on equity of financial intermediation entities regulated by the ASFI exceeds 6%, the net taxable profits of these entities will be subject to an additional corporate income tax rate of 25%.

Borrowing abroad	Yes.	In accordance with Chapter VIII of Title II of Book 2 of the Compilation of Standards for Financial Services, revised April 27, 2018, short-term foreign liabilities are subject to reserve requirements, with the exception of liabilities incurred solely in connection with foreign trade operations in which the assets and liabilities of each transaction are exactly matched.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	In accordance with the ASFI Circular of December 16, 2010, as amended by ASFI Resolution No. 13/2014, the specific provisions for loans denominated in foreign currency or in indexed domestic currency (MNV) as a function of the category and type of credit are as follows: Category A: (1) For Business, Microcredit, SMEs 2.25% and 1% for direct and contingent, respectively; (2) for housing (direct and contingent) Residential mortgage credit, social residential mortgage credit, and social residential credit with no mortgage guarantee, 2.5%; (3) for housing (direct and contingent) Residential credit without mortgage guarantee and duly secured home loans without mortgage guarantee, 7%; (4) for consumption (direct and contingent), 7%. Category B: (1) For Business, Microcredit, SMEs 5% for both direct and contingent; (2) for housing (direct and contingent) Residential mortgage credit, social residential mortgage credit, and social residential credit with no mortgage guarantee, 5%; (3) for housing (direct and contingent) Residential credit without mortgage guarantee and duly secured home loans without mortgage guarantee, 12%; (4) for consumption (direct and contingent), 12%. Category C: 20% for all types of loans; Category D: 50% for all types of loans; Category E: 80% for all types of loans; Category F: 100% for all types of loans.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	The reserve requirement regime varies by currency. Via CBB Board Resolution No. 35/2019, the reserve requirement for deposits in foreign currency and MVDOL (unit of account indexed to the exchange rate vis-à-vis the US dollar) for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs up to 360 days is 31.5% (previously 46.5%), 18% for DPFs between 360 and 720 days (previously 33%), and 10% for DPFs greater than 720 days (previously 25%). With the release of these resources, the Fund for Loans to the Productive Sector and Social Interest Housing III (CPVIS III Fund) was created. In addition, it allows the CBB or one or more foreign institutions to act as delegated administrators in the administration of the Foreign Currency Liquid Assets Requirement Fund.

For domestic currency and domestic currency indexed to the Housing Development Unit MNUFV, it is 11% for demand deposits, savings account deposits, and DPFs of 30–360 days, 5% in securities and 6% in cash. Deposits in MN and UFV greater than 360 days are exempt from reserve requirements. For funds in escrow, which is the percentage of cash reserves that financial intermediaries hold in foreign currency and MVDOL in their vaults, the reserve requirement is 40%, and for domestic currency, it is up to 50% for MNUFV.

Board Resolution No. 044/2020, effective March 24, 2020, adds the single transitory provision to the Reserve Requirements, specifically referring to the Extraordinary Reserve Requirement associated with the Exceptional Funds. The exceptional funds received by financial intermediation entities must be used in the construction of new portfolios between April 1, 2020, and July 31, 2020. If this increase is less than the amount established in the schedule, the financial intermediation entities must constitute an extraordinary legal reserve in cash for 100% of the difference.

Board Resolution No. 055/2020, effective May 15, 2020, modified the Single Transitional Provision so that the exceptional funds also reach Development Financial Institutions and Credit Unions when calculating new portfolio creation.

Effective June 29, 2020, via Board Resolution No. 060/2020, the reserve requirements were reduced as follows: (1) in domestic currency and MNUFV (cash) from 6% to 5.5%; (2) in domestic currency and MNUFV (securities) from 5% to 4.5%; (3) in foreign currency and MVDOL (cash) from 13.5% to 10%; (4) in foreign currency and MVDOL (securities) from 18% to 11%; except for time deposits of 720 days or more, for which 10% is maintained. Financial intermediation entities may maintain up to 60% of their cash reserve requirement in domestic currency and MNUFV in Funds in Custody in any location; previously, the percentage was 50%.

The released resources (from the reductions in the reserve requirements) should be kept at the Fondo para Créditos para la Adquisición de Productos Nacionales y el Pago de Servicios de Origen Nacional.

Board Resolution No. 071/2020 of July 31, 2020, granted authorization on an exceptional basis for loans granted from the Fondo para Créditos para la Adquisición de Productos Nacionales y el Pago de Servicios de Origen Nacional Fund to compensate for the extraordinary legal reserve for non-compliance with the portfolio targets for the July and August 2020 account closings. It also includes the portfolio resulting from loans to Development Finance Institutions (IFDs) and Savings and Loan Cooperatives (CACs) between April 1 and September 30, 2020. Board Resolution No. 081/2020 of September 8, 2020, modified the CPVIS III Fund so that loans requested from the CBB by Housing Finance Institutions, CACs, and IFDs using their Fund resources as collateral would not be conditional upon any sort of increase in the portfolio. Furthermore, the credit granted by banks to CACs and IFDs is recorded as part of the allocation of the proceeds of loans requested by banks from the BCB using their resources in the CPVIS III Fund as collateral.

Board Resolution No. 018/2021 of January 21, 2021, extended the terms of the CPVIS III Fund. In this connection, liquidity loans may be requested until January 3, 2022, and the liquidity loans will come due January 31, 2022.

Board Resolution No. 047/2021 of March 23, 2021, extended the terms of the CPVIS II [sic] Fund with regard to voluntary contributions until June 30, 2022, requests for liquidity loans until September 30, 2022, and the maturity of liquidity loans and the repayment of CBB resources to financial intermediaries until December 31, 2022.

Article 471 of Law No. 393 on Financial Services stipulates that the ASFI will regulate the maximum limits on investment abroad by financial intermediaries, that is, entities that accept deposits and grant loans.

ASFI through Resolution No. 247/2019 modified the Regulation of Investments in Fixed Assets and Operations with Foreign Entities and lowered the foreign investment limit of banks from 25% to 15% of regulatory capital. To compute this limit, investments in time deposits and securities abroad are considered, in addition to the account of banks and corresponding entities abroad. In addition, the new formula to calculate the limit takes the monthly average of the daily balance of the sub-accounts with the cutoff date on the last day of the month. The deadline to comply with this limit is June 28, 2019. Furthermore, ASFI Resolution No. 246/2019 approved the reduction in the limits on investment abroad from 25% to 5% for new open and closed investment funds. This limit will not apply to investment funds currently in operation. It was established, however, that the limit applicable to these funds will be the percentage of investments reached and reported up to March 27, 2019.

Effective January 28, 2020, ASFI Circular No. 627/2020 and ASFI Resolution No. 081/2020 approved and put into effect the Regulation that provides for the responsibility of financial intermediation entities to control the financing received or granted. It provides for the obligation of the Internal Audit Unit of the financial intermediation entity to incorporate, within its Annual Work Plan, the verification of the financing contracted by the entity. It determines that the supervised entities must have policies and procedures to achieve an optimal management of the financing, allowing for the expansion of credit coverage to the productive sector. It specifies that financial intermediation entities must consider preventive measures for the control of financing to monitor that it does not exceed the legal limits. It also stipulates that the supervised entity that grants financing must have policies and procedures for assessing and mitigating the risk inherent in the financing.

Effective February 26, 2021, ASFI Resolution No. 145/2021, which amends the Regulation on Investments in Fixed Assets and Operations with Foreign Entities, establishes that investments abroad may not exceed 10% of regulatory capital (previously it was 15%).

Effective March 17, 2021, pursuant to ASFI Resolution No. 202/2021, for the purposes of computing the limits, investments in sovereign debt bonds issued abroad by the Plurinational State of Bolivia are also considered to be investments abroad starting in fiscal year 2021.

In banks by nonresidents	No.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The net open foreign exchange position limits are the same for resident and nonresident assets and liabilities.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	For financial intermediaries, the long position limit in foreign currency, MVDOL, and other foreign currencies is 60% and the short position limit in foreign currency, MVDOL, and other foreign currencies (excess of liabilities over assets in those denominations), is 40% of equity. In the case of MNUFV, the long position limit (excess of assets over liabilities in that denomination) is 10%. CBB Resolution No. 11/2019 changed for financial institutions the long position limit in foreign currency, MVDOL, and other foreign currencies from 60% to 50% and the short position limit in foreign currency, MVDOL, and other foreign currencies (excess of liabilities over assets in those denominations), was increased to 50% from 40% of equity.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	For financial intermediaries, the long position limit in foreign currency, MVDOL, and other foreign currencies is 60% and the short position limit in foreign currency, MVDOL, and other foreign currencies (excess of liabilities over assets in those denominations), 40% of equity. In the case of MNUFV, the long position limit (excess of assets over liabilities in that denomination) is 10%. CBB Resolution 011/2019 changed for financial institutions the long position limit in foreign currency, MVDOL, and other foreign currencies from 60% to 50% and the short position limit in foreign currency, MVDOL, and other foreign currencies (excess of liabilities over assets in those denominations), was increased to 50% from 40% of equity.
		CBB Resolution No. 070/2021 modified the formula for calculating the long position in foreign exchange, MVDOL, and other foreign currencies. Accordingly, it was established that the book equity value is net of the investment in fixed assets (net equity value). The position limits were not modified.

Investment regulations

Abroad by banks	01/28/2020	Financial System Supervisory Authority (ASF) Circular No. 627/2020 and ASF Resolution No. 081/2020 approved and put into effect the Regulation that provides for the responsibility of financial intermediation entities to control the financing received or granted. It provides for the obligation of the Internal Audit Unit of the financial intermediation entity to incorporate, within its Annual Work Plan, the verification of the financing contracted by the entity. It determines that the supervised entities must have policies and procedures to achieve an optimal management of the financing, allowing for the expansion of credit coverage to the productive sector. It specifies that financial intermediation entities must consider preventive measures for the control of financing to monitor that it does not exceed the legal limits. It also stipulates that the supervised entity that grants financing must have policies and procedures for assessing and mitigating the risk inherent in the financing.
	02/26/2021	Financial System Supervisory Authority Resolution No. 145/2021 which amends the Regulation on Investments in Fixed Assets and Operations with Foreign Entities, establishes that investments abroad may not exceed 10% of regulatory capital (previously it was 15%).
	03/17/2021	Pursuant to Financial System Supervisory Authority Resolution No. 202/2021, for the purposes of computing the limits, investments in sovereign debt bonds issued abroad by the Plurinational State of Bolivia are also considered to be investments abroad starting in fiscal year 2021.

Crawling peg	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are classified as a crawling peg. The official exchange rate of the pula is determined according to a weighted basket of currencies comprising the SDR and the South African rand. The crawl rate is set as the difference between the Bank of Botswana's (BOB's) inflation objective and the average inflation forecast in major trading partner countries. The crawl rate is thus determined using a forward-looking approach and is revised regularly. In this approach, the authorities periodically determine the crawl rate for the subsequent period, such as the next 6 or 12 months. The weights of the basket are 45% for the South African rand and 55% for the SDR. Effective January 1, 2020, a downward rate of crawl of 1.51% (previously an upward rate of crawl of 0.3%) per annum was adopted, while the weights of the pula basket remained unchanged. Effective May 1, 2020, a downward rate of crawl of 2.87% (previously downward rate of crawl of 1.51%) per annum was adopted and maintained for 2021, while the weights of the pula basket remained unchanged. This rate of crawl was implemented in May 2020 with a view to enhance domestic industry competitiveness in response to the adverse impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on the economy. Decisions relating to this framework are made by the president of Botswana on the recommendation of the Minister of Finance and Economic Development after consultation with the BOB.

Yes.

U.S. dollar

Euro

Composite

Yes. The monetary policy framework is primarily an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis a basket of currencies comprising the SDR and rand. Within this framework, the crawl rate is determined using a forward-looking approach, which is based on the difference between the average inflation forecast in major trading partner countries and the BOB's medium-term inflation objective within a 3%–6% range, to achieve price stability, the overarching goal of the BOB.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.	These transactions are subject to the listing requirements of the Botswana Stock Exchange.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Effective May 13, 2020, the domestic currency deposit reserve requirement was reduced to 2.5% from 5%, as one of the relief measures in response to the negative impact of COVID-19 pandemic. The reserve requirement aims to regulate the amount of liquidity absorbed through BOB certificates. Reserve requirement averaging is also allowed for liquidity management purposes since October 2019. Foreign currency deposits are not subject to reserve requirements.
Liquid asset requirements	No.	Commercial banks are required to maintain, at all times, 10% of prior month deposit liabilities as liquid assets.
Interest rate controls	No.	The Regulatory Guideline on the Disclosure Framework for Deposit and Lending Interest Rates prescribes that the interest payable on the 91-day deposit or equivalent products must be 350 basis points below the prevailing Bank Rate.
Credit controls	No.	The Banking Act (Cap. 46:04), along with Guidelines on large exposures, restricts a bank from granting facilities that are in excess of 10% of a bank's unimpaired capital to a single customer or group

On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	There is a 20% aggregate limit on foreign securities, provided the investment in an individual institution is limited to 5%. *Note that these thresholds are the proportions of admissibility (for solvency purposes) to Net Liabilities and the risk-based Prescribed Capital Target ("PCT").
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Insurers are required to hold assets in Botswana, the fair value of which is not less than 70%, or a higher percentage as may be prescribed, of the Net Liabilities and PCT. This is in regard to policies other than linked long-term policies.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Insurers are required to hold assets in Botswana, the fair value of which is not less than 70%, or a higher percentage as may be prescribed, of the Net Liabilities and PCT. This is in regard to policies other than linked long-term policies.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	There are no specific currency-matching regulations/rules; however, insurers are only allowed to invest in derivative instruments provided: (1) The derivatives are in respect of a linked long-term policy, (2) The derivatives are acquired in respect of assets in excess of liabilities and PCT, and (3) The derivatives are acquired for the purpose of reducing investment risk. This provides for insurers to hedge against (currency) investment risk.
Pension funds	Yes.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Pension funds may invest up to 70% of their assets outside Botswana, as provided under the Retirement Funds Act and PFR2 (prudential Rule).
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Pension funds may invest a minimum of 30% of their assets in Botswana, as provided under the Retirement Funds Act and PFR2 (prudential Rule).
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	It requires that an independent Actuary be engaged to certify the appropriateness of the structure asset/liabilities composition of a retirement fund.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.	A firm may invest not more than 10% of its net asset in securities issued by the same institution.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2020 Article IV Consultation with Brazil states that, as of November 9, 2020, the tax on financial transactions (Imposto sobre Operações Financeiras, IOF) of 6.38% on exchange transactions carried out through credit card, debit card, and traveler's checks (including cash withdrawals) by companies to fulfill their payment obligations for purchases of goods and services abroad by their customers gives rise to a MCP subject to IMF jurisdiction under Article VIII, Sections 2(a) and 3. In January 2008, the IOF for these exchange transactions was raised to 2.38% and then further increased to 6.38% in March 2011. The scope of operations was expanded to other foreign exchange transactions in addition to credit cards in December 2013. (Country Report No. 20/311)

Floating

Yes. The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are classified as floating. There is no official exchange rate for Brazil as the exchange rate of the real is defined by supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. The Central Bank of Brazil (BCB, in Portuguese: Banco Central do Brasil) intervenes to smooth out excessive volatility and/or provide liquidity and hedge, with the ultimate objective of assuring a functioning foreign exchange market. Consolidated data on intervention in the interbank market are available in the BCB's weekly publication on currency flows on the BCB website with a lag ranging from 7 to 12 days, considering execution dates. However, the Deputy Governor for Monetary Policy may choose to publish intervention volumes on the same day of each auction. Data on interventions in the derivatives market are published on the same day of each auction.

Free floating

Yes. There is no official exchange rate for the real determined by the BCB. The BCB publishes a reference rate, known as the PTAX rate, which is the average of four polls conducted by the BCB with the group formed by its primary dealers (up to 14 institutions in the domestic US dollar interbank market). The polls start at a random time in the 10 minutes following 10:00, 11:00, 12:00, and 13:00, and the dealers have two minutes to report their bid and ask quotes for the US dollar–Brazilian real (USD–BRL) at the beginning of the poll. The BCB cannot buy or sell at the quotes provided by the dealers, but dealers who consistently provide out-of-market quotes may lose their dealer status. At each poll, the two highest and two lowest bid and ask quotes are trimmed, and the consistency of the final results is tested against market parameters obtained from the BCB's information systems and data feeders. The PTAX rate is published right after the last poll results. The BCB does not require that government agencies use the PTAX rate as a benchmark for conversion. However, government agencies and financial institutions generally use the PTAX as it is a reliable reference. According to the foreign exchange regulation, the exchange rate is freely agreed between the parties, including if the government is the client.

Point target
Target with tolerance band	Yes.	The inflation target for 2020 is 4% with a tolerance interval of $\pm 1.5\%$ . The inflation target for 2021 is 3.75% with a tolerance interval of $\pm 1.5\%$ . The inflation target for 2022 is 3.5% with a tolerance interval of $\pm 1.5\%$ . The inflation target for 2023 is 3.25% with a tolerance interval of $\pm 1.5\%$ .

CPI	Yes.	National CPI Extended, measured by the Brazilian Institute of Geography and Statistics. The definition is given by the Brazilian Institute of Geography and Statistics. National CPI Extended measures inflation rate for a group of products and services from retail trade, relative to household expenditure. The income range between 1 and 40 minimum wages was created to guarantee a 90% coverage of families living in urban areas.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	A one-year inflation target and its tolerance interval are fixed 30 months in advance by the CMN, and the BCB must pursue this target. The inflation-targeting framework in Brazil is flexible. The horizon that the BCB sees as appropriate for the return of inflation to the target depends on both the nature of the shocks that affect the economy and their persistence.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The BCB's Monetary Policy Committee (COPOM) was created on June 20, 1996, and was assigned the responsibility of setting the stance of monetary policy and the short-term interest rate. The aim of creating the COPOM was to enhance the monetary policy transparency and confer adequate regularity to the monetary policy decision-making process. The Selic rate is the primary instrument of the monetary policy. It is the average interest rate charged on the daily interbank loans – with a maturity of one day (overnight) backed by federal government securities – registered in the Special System of Clearance and Custody (Selic). In sum, the Selic rate balances the market for the bank reserves.

The minutes provide a summary of the COPOM's discussion, in line with the inflation-targeting regime's commitments to transparency and accountability.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	The COPOM publishes inflation expectations in the meeting minutes on the BCB's website 8 times a year.
Other monetary framework
Exchange tax	Yes.	Foreign exchange transactions are subject to the IOF general tax rate of 0.38%, which is levied and collected on the settlement date of the foreign exchange operation. An IOF of 6.38% is applied to foreign exchange transactions related to the purchase of prepaid cards and traveler's checks. It is also applied to foreign exchange transactions carried out by credit card companies for the payment of obligations because of operations abroad carried out by their clients in connection with expenditures and automated teller machine (ATM) withdrawals abroad using credit and debit cards. External loans with maturity less than 180 days are subject to the 6% IOF. External loans with an initial term of more than 180 days will still be subject to the 6% IOF rate if the loan is repaid within the 180-day period. There are some exceptions, as described by Decree No. 6.306 of December 14, 2007: The IOF is 0 on trades involving overseas depositary receipts (DRs) issued by Brazilian companies. The IOF rate is also 0 on (1) inflows of export proceeds; (2) interbank transactions between institutions that make up the national financial system and that are authorized to operate in the foreign exchange market, and between these institutions and institutions abroad; (3) investments by investment funds in the international market, according to the limits and conditions established by the Brazilian Securities and Exchange Commission (Comissão de Valores Mobiliários of Brazil, CVM); (4) outflows related to local revenues of international air transportation companies domiciled abroad; (5) inflows of foreign currency to cover expenses from the use of credit cards issued abroad; (6) inflows of cash donations received by financial institutions controlled by the Brazilian government and destined for the prevention, monitoring, and combating of deforestation and the promotion of the conservation and sustainable use of Brazilian forests, as provided by specific legislation; (7) inflows and outflows of funds obtained as external loans and financing, except external loans with maturity of less than 180 days; (8) remittances of interest on owner's equity and dividends; (9) transactions of foreign investors, including through simultaneous operations, for investment in the financial and capital markets; (10) purchases of foreign exchange by institutions authorized to operate in the foreign exchange market, executed simultaneously with a sale transaction, when required by law; (11) nonresidents' investments in fixed-income securities and derivative margin deposits; (12) settlements of foreign exchange inflow transactions, including through simultaneously contracted foreign exchange transactions after December 1, 2011, related to inflows stemming from cancellation of DRs invested in stocks in the stock market; (13) use of credit and debit cards by the public sector for acquisition of goods and services abroad; and (14) settlements of foreign exchange operations derived from a foreign investor regime switch from direct investment to investment in stocks traded on a securities exchange according to regulation issued by the CMN. Some cross-border operations have been exempt from the IOF (set in the Law, not amendable by Presidential Decree), most notably operations carried out for payment of imported goods, foreign exchange operations by diplomatic missions, and credit to housing programs or for project purposes, including infrastructure facilities and Itaipu Binacional.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Banks and other institutions authorized to operate in the foreign exchange market may freely set their exchange rates and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	As of December 31, 2020, there were 179 institutions authorized by the BCB to operate in the foreign exchange market buying and selling foreign currency (101 banks and 78 nonbank financial institutions). ( www.bcb.gov.br/estabilidadefinanceira/instituicoesoperacambio ). Only banks may maintain accounts abroad for the purpose of performing international payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. Any institution authorized by the BCB to operate in the foreign exchange market can qualify to be a primary foreign exchange dealer, which is eligible to operate directly with the BCB. (In practice, however, because of the weight given to transacted amounts in the qualifying process, only banks have been selected as dealers so far.) Currently, there are 14 primary foreign exchange dealers, which are the only institutions authorized to buy/sell currencies in the BCB's foreign currency auctions. ( www.bcb.gov.br/estabilidadefinanceira/dealerscambio ). Any of the 179 foreign exchange-authorized institutions, however, can perform operations with the BCB in which they cash their deposits in foreign currencies or vice versa. Nonbanks have a limit of effective May 5, 2020, US$300,000 (previously US$100,000) an operation with clients (not applicable to operations in the interbank market). Banks and nonbanks may contract with companies, which act as foreign exchange bureaus to perform foreign exchange operations up to US$3,000 related to unilateral transfers and, effective July 1, 2020, up to US$1,000 related to cash transactions (previously US$3,000), typically related to international travel. There were 4,587 such contractor companies as of December 31, 2020.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	Depending on market circumstances, the BCB may execute foreign exchange auctions and direct operations for intervention purposes. The types of auctions performed by the BCB in the interbank market are spot, forward, and credit lines (equivalent to foreign exchange swaps). Only foreign exchange dealers authorized by the BCB are eligible to participate in these auctions. Currently, there are 14 institutions authorized as primary dealers. The dealers are selected every 12 months based on the volume traded in the foreign exchange market and their past performance as dealers. The BCB may also intervene in the derivatives market using specific listed contracts at B3, former BM&FBOVESPA, the foreign exchange swaps (formally called US Dollar Swap with Reset Referencing One-Day Repurchase Agreements) which function as synthetic futures contracts. In this kind of auction, any preregistered market participant may take part. In credit lines and foreign exchange swaps auctions, the amounts to be auctioned are preannounced. There is a minimum amount for bids for auctions in the interbank market. In the auctions with preannounced amounts, that is also the maximum bid. The frequency of the auctions is only known if they are part of an intervention program. All BCB auction operations are delivery versus payment (DVP); if an institution's payment fails, that institution will lose its dealer status. Results are disclosed in Communiqués. During previous acute crisis, the BCB has used foreign currency loans and earmarked spot auctions in which the amounts must be used to finance export trades and in which all institutions authorized to operate in the foreign exchange market can participate. In 2020, the BCB provided extra foreign exchange liquidity with the use of a new facility introduced effective March 18, 2020, Brazilian Global dollar-denominated bond repo agreements, in which only foreign exchange dealers could participate.

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	As of December 31, 2020, there were 179 institutions authorized by the BCB to operate in the interbank foreign exchange market (101 banks and 78 nonbank financial institutions – securities intermediaries and foreign exchange brokerage firms). Nonbanks can only operate on a spot basis, while banks can also perform future or forward operations. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants. The Brazilian currency leg of all foreign exchange interbank transactions must be settled through the BCB-operated real-time gross settlement (RTGS) system. In 2020, 40.2% of those operations were settled through a clearinghouse, which acts as a central counterparty (B3 Foreign Exchange Clearinghouse). The BCB intervenes in the foreign exchange interbank market mainly with auctions via its primary foreign exchange dealers.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	Yes.
Market making	Yes.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Concerning the deliverable foreign exchange market, only interbank operations are allowed to be traded on a forward basis, limited to 1,500 days. Forward foreign exchange auctions are one of the instruments available for the BCB for intervention purposes. Foreign exchange operations related to import and financial transactions must be settled within 360 days, while those related to export or National Treasury transactions must be settled within 1,500 days.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

		in banks authorized by the BCB to conduct foreign exchange operations. The balances may be transferred abroad freely.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	The balances in these accounts may be freely transferred to and from Brazil. An IOF tax of 1.1% is applied on foreign exchange transactions for transfers of funds by residents to their foreign bank accounts held abroad. Information about all foreign exchange operations must be transmitted to the BCB by the financial institutions authorized by the BCB.
Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	The balances in these accounts may be freely transferred to and from Brazil. Information about all foreign exchange operations must be transmitted to the BCB by the financial institutions authorized by the BCB.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	The balances on accounts held by residents in domestic currency may be freely transferred to and from Brazil as long as the counterparty in the operation is a financial institution authorized by the BCB to conduct foreign exchange operations.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts may be held by embassies, foreign delegations, international organizations, foreign transportation companies, foreign citizens in transit in the country, Brazilians living abroad, reinsurance companies (if authorized to operate in Brazil), and other persons authorized by the CMN. The balances in these accounts may be transferred abroad freely. Foreign exchange accounts of nonresident clients must be held in banks authorized by the BCB to conduct foreign exchange operations. These accounts' deposits and withdrawals are not subject to tax (IOF), unless a foreign exchange operation is involved, in which case a rate of 0.38% is applied. Some foreign exchange transactions are exempt from the IOF, such as those of diplomatic missions and consular offices and of their foreign officials.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Account holders may not use these accounts to remit resources deposited on behalf of a third party. For instance, a nonresident financial institution may freely convert to foreign currency and remit abroad its own resources deposited in its account in a Brazilian bank, but the nonresident financial institution may not use this account to fulfill payment orders on behalf of third parties.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	No.

Advance payment requirements	Yes.	The payment of import financing operations with a maturity of more than 360 days cannot be transferred prior to the arrival of the good or to the rendering of the service. External financing of imports for periods of more than 360 days must be registered with the BCB strictly for statistical purposes.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	Imports must be registered in the import subsystem of the Integrated Foreign Trade System (SISCOMEX/IMPORT), which allows importers, carriers, banks, and brokers to register the various stages of an import process directly through the interlinked computers of the SECEX and RFB.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Commercial imports must be registered in Brazil's Integrated Foreign Trade System (SISCOMEX, Sistema Integrado de Comércio Exterior). The granting of nonautomatic licenses for imports of used machinery and equipment is conditional on proof that such items are not produced in Brazil and that no substitute item is currently produced in Brazil. Nonautomatic licensing is also used for administration of duty and tax concessions; to benefit, imports must undergo a "similarity examination" to ascertain that there is no equivalent domestic product. Imports are grouped into the following three categories: (1) those that do not require licenses (most common), (2) those subject to automatic import licenses, and (3) those subject to nonautomatic licenses. In general, imports are exempt from approval requirements. However, some require approval (that is, an import license) from the SECEX or another government agency, and it is promptly given to importers that fulfill licensing requirements. As a rule, licenses are valid for 90 days and may be extended if the delay is justified by the importer. Import licenses for certain imports may be obtained after the goods have arrived but before customs clearance. Products subject to automatic licensing are listed in the Administrative Treatment of SISCOMEX and on the Ministry Web page. Products under the special customs regime of drawback are also subject to automatic licensing. Products subject to nonautomatic licensing are listed in the Administrative Treatment of SISCOMEX and on the Ministry Web page. They are mostly products that may damage human, plant, or animal health or cause environmental damage; products classified as weapons or made for warlike purposes; products subject to nontariff quotas as established in the agreements of the Uruguay Round; products subject to tariff quotas; and products subject to trade remedy measures established in accordance with the WTO agreements. The Brazilian normative framework related to similarity examination and import licensing procedures is based on the following legislation: (1) Decree-Law No. 37 of November 18, 1966; (2) Decree No. 6,759 of February 5, 2009; and (3) SECEX Ordinance No. 23 of July 14, 2011. Any person, enterprise, or institution may request import licensing. The only requirement is SISCOMEX registration. Import licenses are obtained through the SISCOMEX. Such an administrative procedure – that integrates the registration activities and monitors imports and exports – is based on the sole flow of computerized information so as to make the process efficient and fast. Importers may request import licensing directly from their institution if it is registered with the SISCOMEX. Imports of used consumer goods are prohibited for environmental, safety, and consumer rights reasons. Used consumer goods may be imported only by the government or education and scientific institutions. Imports of used nonconsumer goods (except aeronautic goods and packaging materials in temporary admission or reimportation) are subject to nonautomatic licensing.

Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of agrochemical products not authorized under Brazilian regulations are prohibited, as are imports of weapons and military equipment (from Eritrea, the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea, and Libya) and of certain drugs, for reasons of security, health, morals, or UNSC resolutions. It is forbidden to import, export, or store dichlorodiphenyltrichloroethane (DDT) and to import and export rough diamonds from countries not participating in the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	In addition to imports covered by the LAIA agreement, goods imported through the Manaus and Tabatinga free trade zones are subject to an annual quota. Foreign goods worth up to the equivalent of US$2,000 imported into the Manaus Free Trade Zone may be transferred to other parts of Brazil (as a passenger’s baggage) free of import duties.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Sanitary and phytosanitary measures and technical regulations, conformity assessment, and standards must be observed.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The MERCOSUR agreement established a customs union with a CET. Ad valorem tariffs range from 0% to 20%. Exceptional cases are subject to higher rates. MERCOSUR members are allowed temporary national tariff exceptions. Accordingly, Brazil may maintain an exception list for information technology and capital goods under the “ex tarifários” program established by Ordinance ME SECINT No. 309 of June 24, 2019. For general items, up to 100 tariff codes may be included on the list of CET exceptions through December 31, 2021. MERCOSUR countries adopted a program aimed at consolidation of the customs union, which includes revision of the CET, free trade zones, special common import regimes, a common automotive policy, a national exception to CET lists, harmonization of drawback customs programs, elimination of the double-levy CET, and distribution of customs income. MERCOSUR countries could also increase the import tax for extra-zone imports up to WTO consolidated tariffs for 200 MERCOSUR Common Nomenclature positions until December 31, 2021. This was a temporary and strategic mechanism that allowed MERCOSUR countries to cope with the international crisis. However, Brazil has never used this capacity.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	Yes.	Imports of petroleum and its derivatives are subject to disclosure to the National Petroleum Agency.

Exports and Export Proceeds
